Adapted for the Screen from "Mr. Meeson's Will" by Sir. H. Ryder Haggard. Directed by Joseph De Grasse.
BRYTON DUCEY

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS INC.

ALTHO' the BLUEBIRD Photoplay is but a few months old it has come to be known as "The Photoplay of Distinction," having earned this recognition on merit alone.

BLUEBIRD Photoplays are distinctive because they are built on the lasting policy of "The Play's The Thing," a policy that Time will strengthen.

Cost is not considered in the production of a BLUEBIRD. Quality alone governs the making of each play.

Theatres which cater to that particular type of playgoers who differentiate and appreciate the sharp contrast between ordinary features and the perfect BLUEBIRD Plays, are daily increasing the already large list of progressive successful picture houses.

Book thru your local BLUEBIRD offices or thru the Executive Office of

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (Inc.)

1600 Broadway, New York

The Box Office Magnet

BERT WILLIAMS

AMERICA'S GREATEST COMEDIAN

Now being released in a series of

TWO REEL COMEDIES

Produced by Biograph Company

First Release July 24th

A NATURAL BORN GAMBLER

Booked through all
General Film Exchanges

Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton present

Robert Edeson

with Naomi Childers

in "Fathers of Men"

By JAMES OLVIER CURWOOD

Author of "God's Country and the Woman," "The Destroyers," etc.

Produced under the direction of William Humphrey

A six-part drama of the Northwest, vivid in its portrayal of elemental passions, splendid scenically, and produced by an exceptionally strong cast.

Released Monday, July 10th through V-L-S-E

VITAGRAPH

Blue Ribbon Feature

IVAN ALL-STAR CAST

The Faded Flower

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY IVAN ABRAMSON,

¶ The first Ivan All-Star Cast 100% story production which inaugurates our new policy of producing features with a cast each member of which would ordinarily be starred alone, in a drama by one of the most noted of Photo-dramatists, marks an epoch in filmdom.

¶ This is a GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY for live-wire exchange owners to secure options on expiring franchises to become exclusive distributors of Ivan All-Star Cast 100 per cent. story productions—the only company releasing a REAL feature each month on the open market policy. Write or wire NOW!

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS

126 West 46th Street NEW YORK CITY

Chicago, Ill., June 26, 1916.

Mr. George K. Spoor, President,
Essanay Film Mfg. Company,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Spoor:—

I congratulate Essanay on the feature for the opening of the V. L. S. E. theatre in Chicago. William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes" received the highest commendation from our patrons. So great was its success we felt it necessary to prolong the run. It is seldom we are favored with such a perfect combination of star, play and production as in this instance.

Sincerely yours,
Alfred Hamburger, President.

RELEASED THROUGH V. L. S. E.

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT

BIG FOUR
V L S E
FEATURE PLAY

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

HENRY B. WALTHALL

soon will appear in a new feature

"The Sting of Victory"

J. Charles Haydon, Director

EDNA MAYO

soon will appear in a new feature

"The Return of Eve"

Arthur Berthelet, Director

Released through V. L. S. E.

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Trademark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. 1907

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

BOOK THESE FOR YOUR VARIETY PROGRAM

LILLIAN DREW and SYDNEY AINSWORTH

are presented in

"The Secret of the Night"

3 act drama, July 15

FRANCIS X BUSHMAN

is presented in

"The Private Officer"

2 act drama—Released July 11

GEORGE ADE'S

"Fable of the Small Town Favorite Who Was Ruined By Too Much Competition"

1 act comedy—July 12

Essanay excellence in all short subjects, with its stars featured, guarantees packed houses. Ask the exhibitor who uses Essanay

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

Essanay

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

BOOK THIS FOR ANY PROGRAM

1,000 of the theatres which have run the ESSANAY-CHAPLIN comedy "POLICE" have asked for return bookings. Do you realize what this means? When a comedy is breaking all attendance records, as this one is doing, book it quick.

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

ESSANAY

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

"SECOND AND THIRD DAYS BETTER THAN THE FIRST"~

That's what all exhibitors say about

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S "BURLESQUE ON CARMEN"

A LAUGH IN EVERY FOOT

Ideal Amusement Company
COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA

V. L. S. E. Inc.,
1600 Broadway, New York City

Gentlemen:
On our first day's showing we thought we played to capacity, but imagine our surprise upon the second day, of standing the people up from the opening of the show until the closing at night.

We did one third more business the second day than we did the first.

We are more than pleased with the results and we unhesitatingly recommend any exhibitor two days as there will undoubtedly be more business on the second day than there will be on the first.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) George C. Warner, Gen'l Mgr.

Released through
VITAGRAPH
THE BIG 4 LUBIN THE BIG 4
SELIG ESSANAY INC.

Essanay
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

CONFIDENCE—

THE V-L-S-E believes in the superiority of its pictures.

It proves this by permitting its exhibitors to select those which suit them best. Only features of high general average could stand such a test.

Exhibitors believe in the superiority of V-L-S-E pictures.

They have proven this by giving to V-L-S-E an avalanche of business without being forced by contracts or deposits to "stick" to it.

The public believes in the superiority of V-L-S-E pictures.

It has proven this by the "extra" support it gives exhibitors on "Big Four" nights.

The exhibitor who believes that "confidence" is the greatest asset which any business organization can possess, would do well to give these facts the consideration which they deserve.

V.L.S.E. Inc.

"FATHERS OF MEN"

A Vitagraph Blue Ribbon SUPER Picture

Featuring

ROBERT EDESON

With

NAOMI CHILDERS

A pulsating drama of the snow-lined woods of the Northwest, where men love deep, hate long, and the code is, honor—or the gun. Full of red-blooded, dramatic action, strong-hearted interest and a climax of unusual power.

Written by

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

"THE LIGHT AT DUSK"

A Lubin Sovereign Play in Five Parts

Written by

ANTHONY P. KELLY

Directed by

EDGAR LEWIS

Featuring

ORRIN JOHNSON

PICTURING the rise of an immigrant from poverty to power—

His abandonment of the memories of his own hardships, the ties and customs of his people and the love of his peasant wife for the false gods of luxury, wealth and position—

And his final awakening through "the light" of a reborn conscience to life's real values.

LUBIN FEATURE

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

KATHLYN WILLIAMS in

Hallie Erminie Rives' Greatest Romance of the Southland

"THE VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA"

Scores the Greatest Triumph of Her Artistic Career According to Film Reviewers.—A Smashing Drama in Five Soul-stirring Parts, Teeming With Passionate Love Interest and Exciting Situations—A Selig Red Seal Play Carrying the Appealing Atmosphere of Old Virginia.

SELIG

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG.
U.S. PAT. OFF.

Warda Howard

Supported by

Duncan McRae
Ernest Maupain
and
John Lorenz

Is presented in

"That Sort"

In 5 acts

By Basil McDonald Hastings
Directed by Charles J. Brabin

---

William Gillette

Is presented in

"Sherlock Holmes"

In 7 acts

Arthur Berthelet, Director

---

Essanay Features

"The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row"
Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on "Carmen"
"The Havoc"
"The Discard"
"Vultures of Society"
"The Misleading Lady"
"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"
"A Daughter of the City"
"The Alster Case"
"The Raven"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Man Trail"
"A Bunch of Keys"
"The Blindness of Virtue"
"In the Palace of the King"
"The White Sister"
"The Slim Princess"
"Graustark"

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY
V L S E
LUBIN

"'Live and Let Live' Policy of V. L. S. E., Boon to all Exhibitors," Says Big Western Manager

O'Klare Theatre

EAU CLAIRE, WISCONSIN

HOME OF GOOD PICTURES, SANITATION AND PURE AIR

HOUSE OF ALL FEATURES AND STRONGEST ATTRACTIONS

V. L. S. E. Inc.,
1600 Broadway,
New York.

Gentlemen:

Having been one of the BIG FOUR FAMILY for a period covering more than six months, I feel it my duty, in behalf of the O'Klare Theatre to express to you what we think of V-L-S-E service.

I can frankly say that I do not know of any film service in existence that is better equipped to meet the demands of the Twentieth Century "up-to-the-minute-exhibitor" in every way, shape and manner than you people are.

First: Your policy of making a distinction in price of your features; namely, classing them in "A" "B" and "C" order, grading the rentals accordingly, has not only appealed to me as one of the greatest assets for the exhibitor, but I believe I share the unbiased and unanimous opinion of all exhibitors who are using your wonderful service.

Second: Your idea of making larger features; i. e., eight, nine and ten reels for special service, and selling same according to their box office value, will prove one of the greatest stimulants that has ever been accorded any exhibitor, providing said exhibitor has awakened to this fact, and understands how to properly conduct and run large special features.

Third: The ever courteous treatment we have received from you, demonstrates that you do business on the square. You have not taken issue each time some opposition house has offered you more for your service and made life miserable for your present customer; but that on the contrary you stick to your customers and allow them to breathe and live with you.

This is one point upon which I cannot give the BIG FOUR FILM CORPORATION too much credit and I believe thousands of exhibitors in different parts of the country have met with these same conditions and if they are looking for HIGH GRADE FEATURES, SQUARE TREATMENT, together with "LIVE AND LET LIVE" PRICES, they can surely find relief by joining your FAMILY.

With best wishes for your continued success, I beg to remain

Very truly,

O'K Theatre
By W. J. Schwalm

BRANCH OFFICES

Atlanta
75 Walton St.

Boston
67 Church St.

Chicago
Adams St. and Wabash Ave.

Cincinnati
129 West 7th St.

Cleveland
2077 E. 4th St.

Dallas
1900 Commerce St.

Denver
1433 Champa St.

Detroit
502 Peter Smith Bldg.

Kansas City Mo.
12th & Walnut St.

Los Angeles
643 So. Olive St.

Minneapolis
608 N. First Av.

New York City
1600 Broadway

BRANCH OFFICES

Philadelphia
229 N. 12th St.

Pittsburg
117 Fourth Av.

San Francisco
986 Market St.

Salt Lake City
129 E. Second South St.

St Louis
3630 Olive St.

Seattle
415 Olive St.

Washington D. C.
811 E. Street N. W.

New Orleans
342 Baronne St.

Syracuse
117 Walton St.

Toronto
15 Wilton Ave.

Montreal
204 St. Catherine St.

RED SEAL SELIG PLAYS

V. L. S. E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

IS HUMANITY IN THE GRIP OF EVIL
?

The Grip of Evil

A MASTER PLOT
IN 14 CHAPTERS

Released July 17th

Pathe is proud of the world's greatest serial, "THE IRON CLAW"
Here is its worthy successor

"The Grip of Evil" is founded on the views of the nation's leaders—Governors, Senators, Mayors, who have answered the question

Is Humanity in The Grip of Evil?

This is the theme, so big and daring that the opinions of the country's greatest thinkers clash in considering it.

Pictures that are startling, thrilling, filled with love, mystery and suspense, advertised by a $100,000 Campaign to pack your house, Mr. Exhibitor

FEATURING JACKIE SAUNDERS AND ROLAND BOTTOMLEY

PRODUCED BY BALBOA

Booking Now! Don't Wait!

PATHE

10,000,000 people are reading the story of PATHÉ'S GREATEST SERIES

WHO'S GUILTY?

in the newspapers

¶ - The best papers everywhere are publishing the story.

¶ - That means big business for the Exhibitor.

¶ - There's a newspaper in your town that will be glad to print this story, thus greatly increasing your receipts.

¶ - This greatest of all series, produced by Arrow, has been novelized by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow one of the famous writers of the day

¶ - Speak to the Manager of the Pathé Exchange serving you - he will show you how.

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

Pearl White and "The Laughing Mask"
The most popular figures in Filmdom

The audiences of 84 theatres in St. Louis and East St. Louis are wondering "Who is The Laughing Mask"

in

PATHÉ'S GREATEST SERIAL

THE IRON CLAW

"The serial with unnapproachable record"

Produced by Feature Film Corp'n
Edward José, Gen'l Director

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

IT'S A GOLDBERG

animated cartoon and it's released by

PATHÉ

the Week of July 3rd

That's all you want to know!

MAKING A CARTOON FILM FOR PATHÉ

Goldberg is GOOD and the whole world knows it!

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

Alice Brady
Carlyle Blackwell
Gail Kane
Robert Warwick
Kitty Gordon
Holbrook Blinn
John Hines
Ethel Clayton
Muriel Ostriche
Frances Nelson
Doris Kenyon
Arthur Ashley
Mollie King
Alec Francis
Clara Kimball Young
House Peters
Clara Whipple
William A. Brady in association with WORLD FILM CORPORATION
Presents
HOLBROOK BLINN
with ALMA HANLON & ELEANOR WOODRUFF
"The Weakness of Man"
Directed by BARRY O'NEIL

THIS TRADE MARK

WORLD PICTURES

STAMPS A FEATURE BRADY-MADE

The seal that stamps a PICTURE DEPENDABLE

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| ALICE BRADY | In | "La Vie de Boheme" |
| | In | "Tangled Fates" |
| ROBERT WARWICK | In | "Sudden Riches" |
| ETHEL CLAYTON and CARLYLE BLACKWELL | In | "His Brother's Wife" |
| MOLLIE KING | In | "Fate's Boomerang" |
| FRANCES NELSON ARTHUR ASHLEY | In | "What Happened at 22" |
| CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG | In | "The Feast Of Life" |
| KITTY GORDON | In | "The Crucial Test" |
| HOUSE PETERS | In | "The Closed Road" |

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
in "Flirting With Fate"

AGAIN TRIANGLE exhibitors are offered the opportunity of presenting to their patrons that irresistible star, Douglas Fairbanks For the week of July 9th one of the releases will be "Flirting with Fate" with Douglas Fairbanks as the star. Here he again repeats the success he attained in his previous TRIANGLE PLAYS—"The Habit of Happiness," "His Picture in the Papers," and "Reggie Mixes in."

WHEN this picture was shown at the Rialto Theatre in New York recently New York critics declared it to be one of the best in which Fairbanks had ever appeared.

The popularity of Fairbanks is unquestioned. Many exhibitors have proved that the prominent display of Fairbanks' name will do more to increase box office receipts than almost any other one thing.

That irresistible "pep" and personality of the star, so long famous on Broadway is intensified in motion pictures. So vivid are his pictures that you feel you are right on the screen with Fairbanks during every moment of quick action.

TRIANGLE

"FLIRTING WITH FATE" is far different from any other play in which Fairbanks has ever appeared.

Disheartened and discouraged because the girl he wanted to marry found him practising proposing on another girl and in pique became engaged to another man, he decided life wasn't worth while and hired a professional assassin to end his life.

But when the girl changed her mind Fairbanks discovered that he didn't want to die, but then unaware of the disguise his assassin would adopt he was unable to locate him. His adoption of a disguise of his own, his flight from all apparent danger will keep your audience laughing for a solid 100 minutes.

PICTURES in which Douglas Fairbanks appears are released only by the Triangle Film Corporation. If you are an exhibitor and have not received information regarding the cost of their presentation at your theatre why not use the attached coupon for information? There will be no obligation on your part and it is just possible that you may find a way to secure increased profits. Suppose you mail in the coupon today.

Other TRIANGLE PLAYS to be released at an early date will be

July 16th, Dorothy Gish in "The Little School Ma'am"
July 23d, Bessie Love and DeWolf Hopper in "Stranded"

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION, 1459 Broadway, New York City

PLAYS

W
Triangle Film Corp.,
1459 Broadway, N. Y. City
Gentlemen: I am an exhibitor and am interested in the presentation of TRIANGLE PLAYS. Please place my name on the mailing list for the Triangle Weekly and send me all other information.

Name .....
Theatre .....
Capacity .....
Address .....

Uncle Sam on the Mexican Border

¶ The attention of the nation is centered upon Mexico.

¶ For weeks to come your theatre will be crowded with people hoping eagerly to catch a glimpse of the boys on the border.

¶ We are all for America first; but—aside from the spirit of patriotism—many of your patrons will have friends at the front.

The Hearst International
News Pictorial

is the newspaper of the screen. Thousands read the Hearst papers daily for news from the front, and thousands see the corresponding front page pictures in the HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL.

¶ With trained and hustling cameramen at El Paso, Brownsville, Galveston, Columbus and Laredo, backed by the greatest newspaper organization in the world, the Hearst International News Pictorial is in a position to get to you first with the latest and most interesting news pictures.

¶ Don't you think it would be a good idea to get in touch with this world-famous organization—to place before your patrons twice a week a real live news reel?

¶ You can make a hit with your people by giving them the Hearst International News Pictorial.

The International Film Service

no. 2 COLUMBUS CIRCLE

CREIGHTON HALE

of

THE IRON CLAW

and

THE EXPLOITS OF ELAINE

will be presented with

LINDA A. GRIFFITH

IN A PHOTO DRAMA OF UNIVERSAL APPEAL

DIRECTED BY

FRANK POWELL

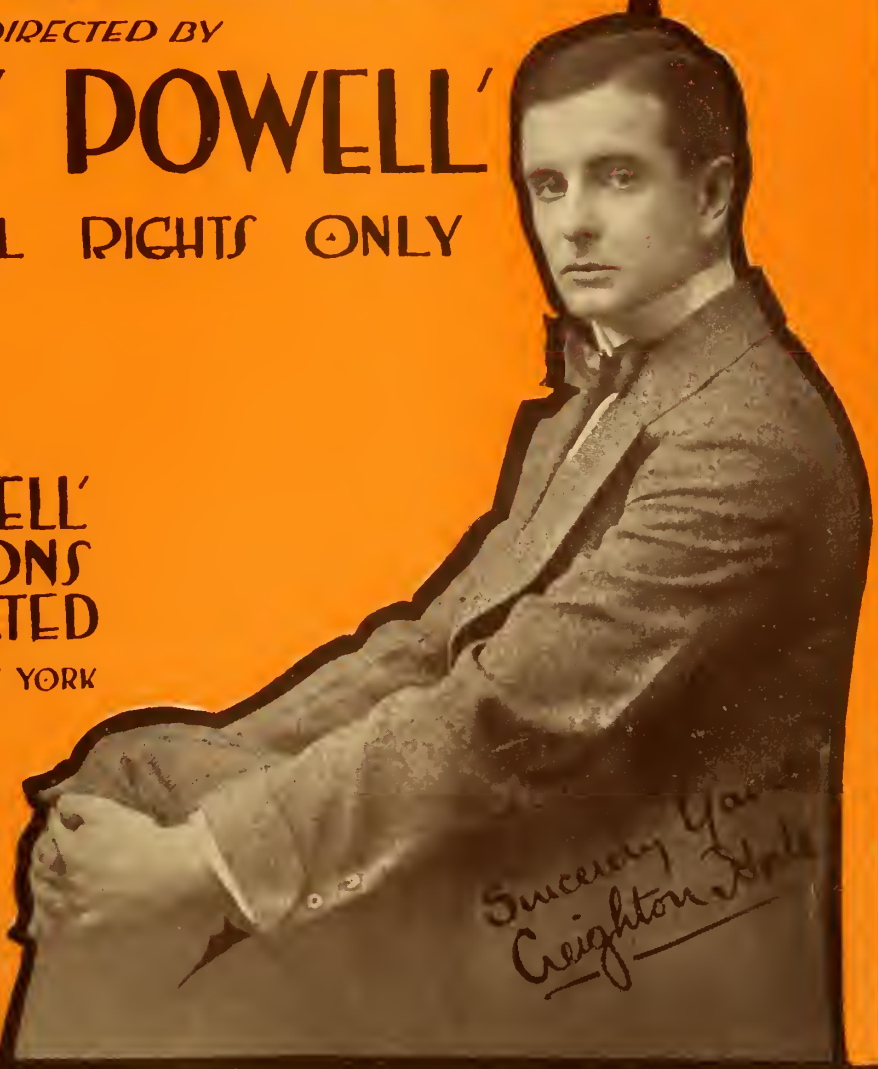
TERRITORIAL RIGHTS ONLY



FRANK POWELL PRODUCTIONS INCORPORATED

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK

MR. FRANK POWELL

DIRECTOR OF

A FOOL THERE WAS
THE CHILDREN OF THE GHETTO
THE WITCH
OFFICER 666
THE FOURTH ESTATE
A WOMAN'S PAST
THE STAIN
PRINCESS ROMANOFF
FROM THE VALLEY OF THE MISSING
THE CHAIN INVISIBLE
THE CORSAIR
THE GHOST
THE TAINT
THE OTHER SISTER
JANE SHORE

WILL PRODUCE

FEATURE PLAYS STARRING

CREIGHTON HALE

TERRITORIAL RIGHTS ONLY

FRANK POWELL
PRODUCTIONS
INCORPORATED

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK

MUTUAL CHAPLIN SPECIALS

Showing

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

at his best

MUTUAL CHAPLIN

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

in the Mutual-Chaplin Series has a new value. In each of the years you have known him he has been steadily adding to his popularity until to-day he is the best known and most followed man in all the world. But, while he was building up reputation he was also gaining in skill. Each succeeding season found him a better actor—a surer comedian.

This year under the Mutual environment he has acquired UNCTION—that indefinable something which marks the difference between the bread worker and the true artist.

To-day a hundred million people will agree that Charlie Chaplin as he appears in the Mutual-Chaplin pictures, "The Floor Walker," "The Fireman," "The Vagabond," and the other nine still to come, is, beyond all comparison, the greatest laugh maker that ever lived.

MUTUAL PICTURES

FOLLOW THE FLAG WITH THE MUTUAL WEEKLY

Arouse your patrons to patriotic fervor by giving them the

First Pictures From the Front

The Mutual Weekly has a cameraman with the Navy at Vera Cruz and cameramen along the border with the Army.

You can't keep up with big events and big exhibitors unless The Mutual Weekly is on your program. It's truly the Reel of Scoops.

Other Great Gaumont Single-Reels

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"—Scenic, with U. S. Government film of national parks. On same reel with

KARTOON KOMICS—Animated comicalities of current events by Harry Palmer.

"REEL LIFE"—The Mutual Magazine in Film. Bears the same relation to a magazine that The Mutual Weekly does to a newspaper.

Gaumont Dramas

"THE HIDDEN FACE"—Starring Alexander Gaden and Iva Shepard. On the screen now.

"GATES OF DIVORCE"—Gertrude McCoy in a stirring story of society and its wolves in New York City. Released July 20.

Gaumont Co.

FLUSHING, N. Y. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

ARE YOU IN ON THE

Now Booking

FLORENCE TURNER
IN FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD

NUMBER 1
OF THE SPECIAL
Florence Turner
PRODUCTIONS
FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD
IN 5 ACTS

A Magnificent Dramatization of the Celebrated Novel by the Dean of English Literature, Thomas Hardy, O.M.

AUGUST 17
A WELSH SINGER

SEPTEMBER 14
The FIRST SETTLER'S STORY

ARRANGE WITH YOUR MUTUAL
SET OF SIX FLORENCE

Produced by the
TURNER FILM COMPANY

FLORENCE TURNER MONEY !!

NUMBER 2

OF THE SPECIAL

Florence Turner PRODUCTIONS

DOORSTEPS

IN 5 ACTS

Henry Edward's Great Comedy-Drama Stage Success presenting the Famous Star in Four Marvelous Characterizations

OCTOBER 12

SHOP GIRLS

NOVEMBER 9

REDEEMED

Released July 20th

FLORENCE TURNER IN DOORSTEPS

EXCHANGE FOR THE COMPLETE TURNER FEATURES

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTIONS

MUTUAL SPE Gigantic

CIAL FEATURE

Climaxes!

Electrifying events punctuate every powerful chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine." Thomas Chatterton and Juanita Hansen, the popular co-stars, stampede audiences with remarkable deeds of daring! Mine explosions, storms, wrecks are pictured with tremendous photographic effects of fascinating fury! In Chapter Eight, released July 10th, Hope rescues Cleo from a terrific railroad tunnel smash-up — then both are caught in the collapse of a building demolished by an earthquake. These are gigantic climaxes that bring big crowds!!

Read Exhibitors' Enthusiastic Letters!

Here's a proved success — a record-breaking success! Why not get the same big profits these keen film judges are making?

American Film Co., Inc., Presents

Directed by George Sargent The Film Novel of the Hour!

BOOK This Great Crowd-Winning Attraction TODAY!!

Boost your business — boom your theatre — bulge your box-office receipts. Make your dull night the busiest. Smile in bad weather. Here are sure profits — fifteen weeks of them — one smashing two-act chapter released each week. RUSH your reservation to us at once. Get started now!

Apply to "The Secret of the Submarine" department of any Mutual Exchange or at Mutual Film Corporation, 71 W. 23d Street, New York City

American Film Co., Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President Chicago, Ill.

Special! Over 1000 of the country's representative newspapers are publishing for millions of readers E. Alexander Powell's absorbing, thrilling novelization of "The Secret of the Submarine."

New York World — Boston Herald — Baltimore American
Buffalo Courier — Pittsburgh Gazette-Times — Cleveland Leader
Chicago Herald — Indianapolis Star — Milwaukee Journal
St. Louis Times — New Orleans Item — Dallas Journal — Omaha Bee
Salt Lake Telegram — San Francisco Chronicle — Los Angeles Record

AND 1000 OTHERS

A Winner!

NORTH END AMUSEMENT COMPANY

Evansville, Ind., June 22, 1916.
Mutual Film Corporation,
Indianapolis, Ind.
Gentlemen:

At the time of the showing of the first three chapters of "The Secret of the Submarine to the local exhibitors, I remarked that it undaubtedly would prove a winner. A look at our box office statements for the faur Tuesdays we have run this serial will prave that I was nat mistaken; in fact, I have been very agreeably surprised at the returns the serial is showing and every indication points to it proving one af the best paying as well as mast interesting of the many serial subjects we have run.

In conclusion, I wish to add that no exhibitar will make a mistake by booking this wonderful subject as it is af timely interest, splendidly cast, replete with strang dramatic climaxes and, in short, everything that a serial subject should be.

Wishing yau every success with "The Secret of the Submarine," I beg to remain.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS. SWEETON

Far Superior to Anything Ever Booked!

Omaha, Neb., June 11, 1916.
Mutual Film Corporation,
Omaha, Neb.
Dear Friends:

I am now running "The Secret of the Submarine" picture with greater success than I dared anticipate and causing more comment than any serial I have ever had the pleasure of running.

Taking it from a photoplay standpoint, it is far superior to anything I have ever booked. Adding the educational factor, it is way beyond anything on the market. The teachers, principals cnd scholars of the schools and high schaal have taken hald of it as it enlightens the pupils ta the inner warkings af ane af the great wonders of our age, "The Submarine," and I anticipate, with their co-aperatian, that it will be a recard-breaker fram a box-office viewpoint.

I thank you for your co-operation in working up the public interest, through newspaper publicity, etc., and beg to remain, Yours respectfully
(Signed) HARRY V. SIDE.

Great Drawing-Card!

NICHOLAS THEATRE

Council Bluffs, Ia., June 19, 1916.
Mr. E. W. Jansen,
"The Secret of the Submarine" Dept.,
Mutual Film Corporation,
Omaha, Neb.
Dear Sir:

In reply to yours of the eleventh in regards to "The Secret of the Submarine" serial, I find it is a great drawing card—not anly the children, but older people as well, are taking a wonderful interest in it—persanally I have not had a chance to watch a number thraugh.

As to my advertising, all I did was to use a slide in advance and some one-sheets.

Yours very truly,
MRS. NICHOLAS AMAS.
E. G. B.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Nugget Jim's Pardner

This is a virile two-part "Mustang" drama directed by Frank Borzage. Anna Little, Frank Borzage and Dick LaReno portray typical frontier characters in an intensely interesting screen story. Released July 14th.

Love's Bitter Strength

A two-part "Flying A" drama based on the story of a loving wife who loses her memory through injury suffered in an automobile accident, and strays to the home of a farmer who innocently falls in love with her. Edward Coxen, Lizette Thorne and George Field are featured. Directed by A. Hollingsworth. Released July 10th.

Quicksands of Deceit

This three-reel "Flying A" drama, featuring Vivian Rich, is one of the best opportunities Miss Rich has had to prove her ability as an actress. A self sacrificing love is the basis of the story, with plot and action exceptionally well carried.
Directed by Frank Borzage. Released July 13th.

Two Slips and a Miss

Carol Halloway and John Sheehan are presented in this laugh-making "Beauty" comedy—a bathing beach story with many sub-plots and laughable episodes.
Directed by Archer McMackin. Released July 12th

The Rummy Act of Omar K. M.

This "Beauty" comedy with Orral Humphrey is a travesty on the poem of the great Omar. "Omar" dreams—but his hatched-faced wife "pours cold water on the warmth of his ardor."
Directed by Orral Humphrey. Released July 16th

These are exceptionally strong offerings, and assure the prosperity of exhibitors who book them. SECURE YOUR BOOKINGS TODAY.

All "Flying A," "Beauty" and "Mustang" productions are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by the Mutual Film Corporation.

American Film Co., Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President, CHICAGO, ILL.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Stung, By Gum!

When a farmer has two daughters, one pretty and the other unattractive, strange things are apt to happen. They do happen in this VOGUE comedy in which Rube Miller plays the part of the "Village Constabule", with Madge Kirby as the pretty daughter. Rube's antics as a deep-dyed, plotting "vilyun" will bring uproars of laughter.

Directed by Rube Miller Released July 11th

A Deep Sea Liar

Ben Turpin and Paddy McQuire are so well known that it is hardly necessary to any more than announce the fact that they are again destined to make millions laugh at their new and unique comics as filmed in this, their latest VOGUE comedy.

Directed by Jack Dillon Released July 16th

Slapstick With A Reason

VOGUE comedies are centered in the "spotlight of popularity." The photoplay-going public knows the VOGUE brand of legitimate, laugh-making fun. BOOK YOUR VOGUES TODAY—and PLAY TO PACKED HOUSES.

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

VOGUE FILMS, Inc., Gower and Santa Monica, Los Angeles California

STATE RIGHTS SELLING RAPIDLY for

The Fall of a Nation

By Thomas Dixon and Victor Herbert

THE GREATEST PATRIOTIC SPECTACLE EVER STAGED

America Attacked—Real 42-Centimetre Guns in Action—A Foreign Viceroy Our Ruler at Washington—The Union Rescued by the Boys in Khaki—An Army of Patriotic Women Rises as by Magic to Aid Them—A Modern Joan of Arc Points the Way—America Unprepared is Succeeded by America Ever Ready.

Current Showings in First-Class Playhouses

LIBERTY THEATRE, NEW YORK
ILLINOIS THEATRE, CHICAGO
AUDITORIUM, LOS ANGELES
CORT THEATRE, SAN FRANCISCO

A Complete Line of Pictorial Paper from the H. C. Miner Lithograph Co.

Tabloid Versions of the Music (16 Pieces and 3 Pieces) Now Being Prepared by Victor Herbert.

Note

THE FALL OF A NATION is timed to the present crisis in world affairs. The very National Guardsmen who manned the guns and dared the wild cavalry rides in the picture are now at the Mexican front resisting the onslaughts of bandits and guerillas. IT RINGS WITH SINCERITY AND TRUTH. Book it immediately, as it will arouse the old-fashioned Star-Spangled Enthusiasm in Your Audiences.

State Right Buyers and Greater New York Film Exhibitors please communicate with this office immediately

ADDRESS:

National Drama Corporation

Phones: Bryant 6397, 6398
Cable Code Word. Naldrac

ED. V. GIROUX, General Manager

1480 Broadway, New York

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

announces

A New Era in Motion Pictures

This combination of the two greatest feature producing companies assures a bigger and better

Paramount Program

The new corporation's roster of stars includes the greatest aggregation of stage and screen favorites ever assembled in the history of the photoplay art—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Mary Pickford | Geraldine Farrar | Marguerite Clark |
| Pauline Frederick | Marie Doro | Blanche Sweet |
| Fannie Ward | Hazel Dawn | Lou Tellegen |
| Wallace Reid | Mae Murray | Cleo Ridgely |
| Ann Pennington | Owen Moore | Louise Huff |
| Victor Moore | Valentine Grant | Frank Losee |
| Theodore Roberts | William Courtleigh, Jr. | Sessue Hayakawa |
| Anita King | Donald Brian | Thomas Meighan |

FAMOUS PLAYERS–LASKY CORPORATION
485 FIFTH AVENUE

ADOLPH ZUKOR, PRESIDENT
JESSE L. LASKY, VICE-PRESIDENT
SAMUEL GOLDFISH, CHAIRMAN, BOARD of DIRECTORS

DANIEL FROHMAN, CECIL B. DEMILLE } PRODUCING MANAGERS

VALENTINE GRANT
FANNY WARD
MARY PICKFORD
MARGUERITE CLARK
WALLACE REID
PAULINE FREDERICK
MAE MURRAY
ANN PENNINGTON
THEODORE ROBERTS
OWEN MOORE
DONALD BRIAN
THE FAMOUS PLAYERS
ROSTE
INCLUDES TH
AGGREGATIO
STAGE AND SCREEN ASSEMBLED IN THE MOTION

LASKY CORPORATION'S

OF STARS
GREATEST ## OF CELEBRATED
FAVORITES EVER
HISTORY OF THE ## PICTURE

PARAMOUNT EXHIBITORS—

"Twenty-three Years More of Prosperity and Prestige"

Paramount takes pleasure in joining in this announcement of the merger of two of the four great producing companies, Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas, which provide its program. The announcement is as important to you as it is to Paramount.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

"The trademark of the highest and most consistent quality of photoplay production."

PARAMOUNT EXHIBITORS—

"Twenty-three years more of prosperity and prestige"

The announcements on the preceding pages guarantee to you:

1. That the great producers who have made the names of "Famous Players" and "Lasky" criterions of the feature film will remain permanently on the Paramount Program, under a combination of circumstances peculiarly favorable.

2. The perfection of photoplay productions which will be possible with the union under one artistic management of this wonderful aggregation of favorites of stage and screen, and—

3. Twenty-three years more of prosperity and prestige.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE & FORTY FIRST ST
NEW YORK, N.Y.

"Distributing Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas Productions."

PALLAS PICTURES

PRESENTS

MYRTLE STEDMAN

IN

"THE AMERICAN BEAUTY"

RELEASED JUNE 29th

ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

PALLAS PICTURES are Paramount

The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.

presents

RITA JOLIVET

in

"AN INTERNATIONAL MARRIAGE"

by George Broadhurst

Released July 24th.

---

VIVIAN MARTIN

in

"NELL OF THUNDER MOUNTAIN"

Released August 14.

---

LENORE ULRICH

(Star of "Kilmeny" and "The Heart of Paula")

in

"THE INTRIGUE"

Release date to be announced.

---

EDNA GOODRICH

(Star of "The Making of Maddalena")

in

"BODY OR SOUL"

Release date to be announced.

Released on the Paramount Program.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Paramount Pictures

Music

Specially arranged music for each feature beginning with release of April 3, 1916, is available at a small rental. Whether you have a full orchestra or only a piano, this specially arranged music will add greatly to the effectiveness of each feature.

Ask our exchange.

WEEK'S RELEASES

Daniel Frohman presents

DONALD BRIAN in THE SMUGGLERS

produced by
Famous Players Film Co.

Jesse L. Lasky presents

BLANCHE SWEET in THE DUPE

produced by
Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co.

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL-PICTURES NO. 22

"Munich, the Magnificent."

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS NO. 22.

Don't Cheat Yourself—How Many Families Can Save $100 a Year?

Better Babies—Education of the Senses.

Psychological Tests—Can you remember names and faces? Munsterberg.

Working Out With the Police Dog.

A Moment in India.

PARAMOUNT-BRAY ANIMATED CARTOONS NO. 27.

"Farmer Al Falfa's Watermelon Patch."

Write Our Exchange Today

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

5418

READ WHAT DETROIT'S BEST THEATRE SAYS ABOUT

George Kleine's Greatest Cinematographic Achievement
By Arrangement With F. Ziegfeld, Jr.

Miss BILLIE BURKE in GLORIA'S ROMANCE

Supported by HENRY KOLKER
A Motion Picture Novel by Mr. & Mrs. RUPERT HUGHES

A. ARTHUR CAILLE, PRESIDENT — FRANK A. WESBROOK, VICE-PRESIDENT — HENRY J. GUTHARD, SECRETARY-TREASURER — M. W. McGEE, MANAGING DIRECTOR

The Majestic Theatre Company, Inc.

HIGH CLASS PHOTO PLAYS

THEATRE LOCATION WOODWARD AVENUE AT WILLIS

MAJESTIC THEATRE BUILDING
PHONE GRAND 100

ONE OF THE LARGEST AND MOST COMFORTABLE GROUND FLOOR THEATRES IN THE WEST. SEATING CAPACITY, 2150.

DETROIT, MICH., June 21, 1916.

George Kleine,
166 North State St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

As per agreement with Mr Smith, we are pleased to enclose statement of daily receipts of this theatre starting Sunday, May 21st and ending Saturday, June 17th.

We are pleased to state that this wonderful star has greatly improved our patronage. With the exception of two days we have played to capacity and besides turning hundreds away. It is not only the extra money that this feature has earned us that pleases us so much; it is the many thousands of new customers that she has brought us.

With best wishes for the deserved success of this great feature, "Gloria's Romance", we remain

Yours truly
THE MAJESTIC THEATRE COMPANY INC.
F. A. Wesbrook
VICE-PRESIDENT

FAW/WS

"Turning Hundreds Away!"

Here's evidence of the tremendous success of Gloria's Romance—an unsolicited letter from Detroit's leading theatre! Read it! If you're interested in bigger box-office receipts, book this big feature NOW! Twenty chapters — a new feature chapter every week. Get this magnet for the hot weather business! See your nearest Kleine Exchange or write

GEORGE KLEINE
805 E. 175th Street
New York City

Lewis J. Selznick

Announces

By Arrangement With

GROSSET & DUNLAP

Publishers

A SPECIAL

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

EDITION OF

"The Common Law"

BY

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Illustrated with the Original Gibson Drawings, Portraits of Clara Kimball Young and "Stills" From The Picture

TO BE SOLD EVERYWHERE AT FIFTY CENTS

A Copy, Autographed by Miss Clara Kimball Young, Will Be Sent Free to Every Contract Exhibitor in the United States and Canada Upon Request.

---

TEN MILLION PEOPLE HAVE READ THIS GREAT NOVEL

TEN MILLION MORE WILL READ THE

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

SPECIAL EDITION

TWENTY MILLION WILL WANT TO SEE THE STORY ON THE SCREEN

---

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG FILM CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, President ALBERT CAPELLANI, Director General

SEVENTH AVENUE AT FORTY-NINTH STREET - - - NEW YORK

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS are careful buyers

— and appreciate the high average attained in EQUITABLE PRODUCTIONS

HENRY KOLKER IN "The Warning"

HELEN WARE IN "The Price"

CHARLES CHERRY IN "Passers By"

JULIA DEAN IN "The Ransom"

FRANK SHERIDAN IN "The Struggle"

MARGARITA FISHER IN "The Dragon"

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG IN "Trilby"

LENORE ULRICH IN "The Better Woman"

MARY BOLAND IN "The Price of Happiness"

JANE GREY IN "Man and His Angel"

LILLIAN LORRAINE IN "Should a Wife Forgive?"

FLORENCE REED IN "The Cowardly Way"

ADELE BLOOD IN "The Devil's Toy"

You Can't Go Wrong "THEY STACK UP WELL"

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

RELEASING THROUGH

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

The Social Pirates

If you would know "series satisfaction"—the joy of showing a series that hasn't a single disappointing episode, book "The Social Pirates" at your General Film Exchange today. There isn't a weak link in "The Social Pirates" chain of fifteen two-reel episodes—each is a smashing feature in stars, stories and production—each a sure-fire independent hit.

Featuring

MARIN SAIS and OLLIE KIRKBY

By GEORGE BRONSON HOWARD

A Line of Publicity Aids That Will Delight You With Its Completeness

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 WEST TWENTY-THIRD ST., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

Moving Picture World

Vol. 29, No. 3. Convention Number July 15, 1916

The Evolution of Exhibiting

Stories of the Early Days of Picture Shows Gathered by Moving Picture World Correspondents; Told by Men Who Entered the New Field of Amusements in America at the Beginning of Things from Tents and Stores to Magnificently Appointed Theaters--Humble Starts Made by Those Who Are Now Leaders in Fifth Important Industry of the United States.

AUTHORITIES differ as to the exact time when the first motion picture theater was opened, as to where it was located and who was the owner thereof; but then authorities are not agreed upon many other and more important events of this world's history, so why should they not differ on this question? At any rate, the writer is not going to quarrel with the "authorities," and has, for the purposes of this Convention issue of the Moving Picture World, accepted every story submitted at face value with full knowledge of the well-known fact that showmen are given to "drawing the long bow," or, to use a modern term, "shooting the bull."

For the most part the stories of the early beginnings of motion picture exhibiting have been collected by the Moving Picture World's corps of correspondents, gathered first hand from the men who took part in those beginnings in the several localities regarding which they speak. Some have been written by the men themselves, but the incidents related are largely from recollection and the dates are not, in all cases, supplied with accuracy. From the data at hand the exhibition of motion pictures did not receive serious attention by our amusement promoters much longer ago than twenty years. Desultory attempts were made, undoubtedly, a year or two prior—1894—but the degree of perfection of the apparatus used for projecting a picture was not sufficient to make the effort satisfactory to the public or to the promoter of the enterprise. With the development of the projecting machine and the electric light objectionable features were overcome, obstacles were surmounted and the business progressed to its present remarkable proportions. Exhibitors have evolved from the peregrinating showman to motion picture theater magnates—business men of the first rank of ability and of wide interests.

It is interesting to note the various steps of this development. Motion pictures were at first a vaudeville "headliner"—a world's wonder that drew the curious by thousands; but it quickly degenerated into the "chaser"—the last number on the bill, a position which none wanted, and used to drive the people out of the house. The light was uniformly bad in those days and the film was almost uniformly "rainy" and indistinct, a condition which compelled the audience to get out as a measure of self-protection.

From the vaudeville house the picture went mainly into tent shows and the "black top"—a tent of which the top canvas was dyed black to keep out the daylight—came into vogue. The black-top picture show followed fairs and carnivals, was set up in amusement parks or traveled from town to town independently. This period was in the early 1900's and continued until 1908. There were thousands of "black-tops" all over the country, as many as twenty being under one management. One of the most successful "black-top" picture men was Archie Sheppard, who operated principally in Eastern towns and in 1907 opened the Old Manhattan theater on Sixth avenue near 32d street, New York, as a picture theater. Bill Swanson, now owner of some of the biggest and finest picture houses in the world, knows a lot about the "black-top."

The only effort made at this time to put the motion picture on the plane of high class entertainment was made by Lyman Howe, who made week stands in some of the best legitimate theaters of the country and sold admissions at one dollar each. He put on a special program made up of the very best pictures obtainable, accompanied by music, effects and a lecture when the subject required. He is still in business, with headquarters at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., but the modern picture theater has cut into his patronage to a considerable extent.

Efforts were made during 1903 and 1904 to establish small picture shows in vacant stores, but the movement in this direction did not gain public favor until the advent of the famous Hale's Tours in 1905. More is said about this device in another column, but it was important because it foreshadowed the present success of motion picture exhibiting. It was the kindergarten of the business in reality, because it interested the public in pictures by the simulation of a trip on a Pullman car in very much the same manner as we interest very young children in their A B C's by the use of lettered blocks and other objects. Thus people were taught to go to the picture show and presently store shows without the Pullman car device as a coaxer sprang up in ever-increasing numbers.

Among the men prominent in the motion picture business today who date their beginning to the "store show" are John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, who tells of investing $450 in a store show in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1905. Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Company, had a "store show" in Chicago about the same time. Adolph Zukor, of the Famous Players Film Company, located one at an early date on Fourteenth street, near Broadway, New York, and still owns it, we believe.

"Pop" Lubin had a string of picture shows in Philadelphia.

"Store shows" as mentioned here were of a more or less permanent character. The store room was fitted up, elaborately sometimes, with special decorations; the seats were fixed to the floor; a stage or platform was built in and a booth was built for the machine. The front was altered to afford a sort of lobby and was sometimes very elaborate. The seating capacity varied from 150 seats to three and four hundred. The admission price was uniformly five cents.

Probably the first "store show" was opened by William T. Rock, until very recently president of the Vitagraph Company, in New Orleans, La., July 18, 1896; but this event did not presage the big movement in that direction which came later. More is said about Mr. Rock's picture career elsewhere.

Shows in store rooms were conducted by William A. Brady, who had some early fight pictures, and in 1905 Mr. Brady bought the rights for Hale's Tours for the East. Herbert Miles controlled a string of "store shows" in New York and other eastern cities in 1907.

Back in 1904 and 1905 L. M. Crawford of Topeka, Kas., controlled a circuit of theaters in Kansas. To provide an opportunity to do a profitable business in the hot summer months when closed theaters were too warm to be tolerable in his territory Mr. Crawford devised the "airdome," which was a canvas enclosure with an open air stage and auditorium. The idea was quickly adopted for the purpose of exhibiting pictures during the summer months. O. T. Crawford, son of L. M., was associated with his father at the time. Later he engaged in the picture business in St. Louis, and that city became noted for its airdomes. This idea spread quickly to all parts of the United States and the "airdome" is the most popular hot weather picture theater today.

The necessity of providing greater safety for patrons of picture theaters and better sanitary conditions in the theaters themselves has within recent years driven the "store show" out of business. Supplementing the suppression of that type of show has been the building of houses constructed especially for the exhibition of pictures. These temples of the new amusement are so far superior in appointment and suitability to the old "store show" that the public deserted the latter place for the new and better house, being willing to pay the higher prices of admission for the sake of comfort and the more wholesome atmosphere provided.

Probably the first and, at the time the finest exclusive picture theater built, is the Regent Theater in New York. It cost more than half a million dollars. It was at the Regent that S. L. Rothapfel made his reputation as a successful conductor of high class picture theaters. He since opened the Strand in New York and later the Rialto, of which latter house he is now the manager. Many motion picture theaters of this ornate class have since been built throughout the United States. They represent the last word, up to this writing, in the housing of the motion picture.

A little more than twenty years have been required to bring about this condition, the greater part of which has been accomplished in the past ten years. The writer will not say that the last stage of perfection has been reached, but the present average is good. The worst is not to be despised and the best something of which to boast.

Our little symposium of reminiscences is commended to our readers for their entertainment. We have touched only the high spots, since it would be impossible in the space alotted to print the whole story. It doubtless does contain many inaccuracies, yet it will be found interesting. Our readers who may be able to give us more facts or to correct any mistatements of fact are invited to communicate their information for future publication.

The Inception of the "Black Top"

William H. Swanson Relates An Interesting Story of One Phase of Early Motion Picture Exhibition.

IN passing through Crawfordsville, Indiana, in the spring of 1897, I witnessed the Bostock Mighty Midway set up on the streets and it was my first glimpse of a street carnival. The thought immediately entered my mind that if motion pictures could be shown under a tent that they unquestionably would be the sensation of tented street fair attractions.

Being on my way to Chicago, upon arrival there I called on old Mr. Murray, the head of Murray & Company, at that time reputed to be the largest tent makers in the country, and I explained to him that I wanted a tent made with black canvas and lined with black cotton cloth. His reply was, "My boy, you must be crazy. In the first place there is no such thing as black canvas; in the second place you never could darken a tent sufficiently to show moving pictures."

However, after a week or ten days' effort and persuasion and, incidentally, a $100 deposit, I persuaded Mr. Murray to send a sufficient amount of white canvas to Cleveland, Ohio, to be dyed black. Mr. Murray told me I was buying this tent entirely at my own risk; that in order to dye the canvas black it was necessary to use muriatic acid and that the acid would rot the canvas.

Nevertheless we sent it off and the job was done. The opening stand, with the very first black top that was ever put up, was then made at Booneville, Ind., in the month of July, 1897, at a street carnival promoted by that oldtimer (now deceased), Will S. Heck, of Cincinnati.

I recall distinctly that the show occurred on Monday night and myself and worthy crew of assistants waiting and ready to give the first show in order to take in sufficient money to pay the dray man and visit a nearby lunch counter, having spent my entire bank roll in equipment.

Owing to the extreme difficulty in trying to convince people of the nature of the show or what a moving picture meant, it was fully 9.30 or 10 o'clock before I was enabled to persuade ten or a dozen people to buy tickets. Before the second show was attempted the grand rush was made for the before mentioned lunch counter by the entire crew of the Black Dome, consisting of myself and one other young man, the ticket seller, who likewise was boss canvas man.

Matters proceeded very nicely until the following Thursday. Business took a tremendous boom, when on Thursday afternoon about 2 o'clock there occurred a tremendous rain storm lasting for about an hour, after which the sun came out and in less than an hour my former "Black Dome" loomed up with as brilliant a white as any tent in the aggregation and the gutters were literally flowing with black ink.

William H. Swanson.

That rain storm put a termination to black tents for about four weeks, during which time I visited Goss, the tent maker in Detroit, who agreed to build me a black top in which the color would stick and with which I finished the season.

It may interest you to know the names of some of the pictures shown at that date. Of course there was no such thing as titles and no picture was over forty-three feet in length. I had the "May Irwin and John Rice Kissing Scene," "A Narrow Escape on the B. & O. R. R.," "The Cock Fight," "Fun in a Barnyard," "Coon and a Watermelon," a one-round prize fight and Selig's famous masterpiece at that time, which was considered a screaming comedy, "The Tramp and the Dog," and a few other short subjects, one of which was the concluding picture, "The Bathers of Milan." In reversing the handle of the projector the bathers were made to appear to jump back out of the water on to the springboard. This was one of the marvelous mysteries of the time, in the minds of the spectators, as well as best comedy.

The line up of paintings, which were on a sideshow order, consisted of two 8x14's and a marque for an entrance "and how the patrons did perspire on the interior of the Black Top."

I actually had the entire United States to myself that year and, as will be remembered, the following year being the year of the Spanish War, it truly was a harvest for your humble servant; showing such pictures as Dewey aboard the flagship Olympia, Battle of San Juan Hill (fake, of course), the sinking of a Spanish torpedo boat, the Red Cross nurses at work on the field of battle, the naval battle of San Diego, General Funston's battle with Aguinaldo, the Filipino chieftain. Most of these naval battles took place on a small lake in Wisconsin. As to the location of the land battles, I refer you to "Pop" Lubin, Bill Selig and the Edison forces of that time. You can accept my word for it, however, that none of the pictures depicted were taken within five hundred miles of either Cuba or the Philippines.

It was easy to get money at that time with a string of paintings, five on each side of the doorway in lurid colors, size of paintings, 10x16 feet, showing all the "terrible ravages of destructive warfare?" Of course, the show would not be complete without terminating it with a Hoochie-Coochie dance in pictures made by Edison Company.

The famous outside spieler, Col. Edward (Windy) Hughes was my "talker" and the extent of the requirements was the yelling of "Hi! Hi! Look! Look! War show. Movin' pitchers going on all the time. Buy tickets here. The big feature of all times, 10 cents." Windy could yell this with some degree of lustiness, believe me.

About the middle of this season the wise tent makers began advertising black tents and this was the year that old Jim Sturgis (since deceased) and old Jack Shields, who is still in the Black Top business; Tubby Snyder and Edwin S. Porter (formerly of the Edison Company and later part owner of the Famous Players Film Company, and my present partner in the Photo-Chrome Film Corporation), and J. B. Morris (since deceased), all "broke into" the Black Top business this year and I can recall today with some considerable humor of a certain secretary of the County Fair at Center Lake, Mich., who sold me the exclusive Black Top concession for his County Fair. Imagine my surprise upon arriving at Center Lake to find all of the above enumerated Black Top shows on the grounds, each with an exclusive concession. In reply to my demand on aforesaid secretary for an explanation in the violation of his exclusive concession to me in booking all the other Black Tops in there he explained that he did so because he wanted to see them all in order to see which was the best show for his guidance in booking for the following year. It cost all of us some little money to satisfy his curiosity.

This was my last year in the Black Top business, as I figured that as a consequence of the great number of people who were overcome with the heat, particularly in the afternoons, inside the Black Tops, that the following year would be a "bloomer" that the people would not patronize on account of the lack of ventilation. However, in laying around the following winter, waiting for spring to open up, a happy thought struck me of building a tent of red canvas lined with black cloth with properly protected ventilators in the "top" and have for a front four gilded poles with banners painted containing only the words, "The Red Dome," and sewed on to a mesh net. This front was gotten up in this manner for the purpose of allowing the public to see the color of the tent.

My partner in the Red Dome enterprise was William N. Selig, who afterwards sold his interest to Fred Barnes, the booking agent in Chicago, who in turn sold his interest to Henry Hunt, a musical artist of the team of Garden and Hunt, of the Nickel Plate Minstrel Show. At Jackson, Tenn., in October, 1899, I purchased Hunt's half interest for $10,000 for an outfit that originally cost $1,700. The exhibition in the Red Dome consisted of 2,000 feet of motion pictures, the singing of the "Holy City" by an illustrated song singer, poses plastique, fire and serpentine dancing staged with proper electrical effects, electric glass water fountains on each side of the stage, a spray of water from the proscenium on which stereopticon slides were projected, silk rags with electric fans underneath and gelatine red effects thrown on them while they were blown in the air from the stage floor by means of the electrical fans underneath.

Among other carnival show men I was considered rather a chump for giving the public so much show for the price of admission, but it is interesting to me to remember that on Saturday night when everyone else was tearing down the Red Dome side walls were stretched as tight as drum heads, caused by crowds inside, and that I did a gross business of $72,000 in two seasons.

At about this time Ed. Porter put out his famous picture, which was undoubtedly the starting of the present moving picture popularity and the first long motion picture ever produced, "The Great Train Robbery." From that point on, the history of Black Tops is of general knowledge, and in conclusion I will say that without doubt the efforts of the early Black Top motion picture exhibitors advanced the picture business more rapidly than any other single effort known to the industry. W. H. SWANSON.

---

Elevator for Balcony Patrons.

The Willis Wood theater, at Eleventh and Baltimore avenues, is the largest moving picture theater in Kansas City, Mo., and has a distinguishing feature. Consisting of a first floor and two balconies, the seating capacity is 1,650. Its unique feature is an elevator, the only one in a Kansas City theater. The Willis Wood was formerly the home of the highest type of stage dramas, but deteriorated to a burlesque house. After complete alterations and extensive improvements had been made, it was transformed into a moving picture theater, one of the finest in Kansas City.

New York City Holds Record for Earliest Exhibiting

Story of the Introduction of Motion Pictures in America Told by Epes Winthrop Sargent (Chicot).

PROBABLY the first exhibition of pictured motion by means of film in New York City was on the west side of Broadway, just north or south of 28th street. It was to the north, if the writer's memory serves, that there existed a penny arcade with phonographs, stereopticon pictures, battery, lung and weight testing machines, and here were installed, in the winter of 1893, four of the machines that earlier were used in the Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

These were the coin-actuated devices perhaps four feet high and about eighteen or twenty inches square. You dropped in a five-cent piece and applied your eyes to the peep holes to see a dimly lit and sometimes crudely colored photograph. Two of the early films were Minnie Renwood in the serpentine dance that she copied from Loie Fuller, and the Sisters Leigh in their umbrella dance that anticipated the present bare-legged dance craze by a full fifteen years. The film was but slightly magnified and the results in general were not satisfactory. One saw the device once and was contented to pass it by thereafter.

It was in 1895 that there came reports that the films were being adapted to the magic lantern. The always unreliable Talbot gives the date of the first English exhibition as the Robert Paul Theatergraph in the spring of 1896 with the Lumiere second, but if Paul had such a device on exhibition it is evident that the English amusement press was strangely silent in the matter. Because of the theft of some of his files for about that time, this writer cannot speak definitely, but it is his impression that the Lumiere Cinematographe was the first machine to be shown in London, late in 1895 or very early in 1896. Certain it was that the Era and the London Music Hall of those days treated the Cinematographe as an absolutely novelty, and certain it was that mention was made of the Lumiere machine in 1895. It was shown in London by Felicien Trewey, and it undoubtedly was he who first added sound effects to the exhibition, for the first reports of the device dwelt on the oddity of motion without sound and later spoke of the addition of sound effects. Trewey will be remembered by old New Yorkers as a shadowgraphist and novelty entertainer in the days when Koster & Bial had their place on 23d street.

First Show at Keith's Union Square.

According to that same Talbot the Cinematographe was first shown in New York at the Eden Musee in the fall of 1896, but here here is documentary proof of his error, for the first showing was at Keith's Union Square theater on June 29, 1896, and this was the first public showing of a picture machine in New York City. The writer still has his invitation to the press view which is dated Friday, June 26, and reads:

> "The pleasure of your presence is requested at a private exhibition, the first in America, of the famous Lumiere Cinematographe, to be given at this theater tomorrow, Saturday forenoon, at ten-thirty o'clock."

It is signed by J. Austin Fynes, then resident manager and later one of the foremost of the pioneer exhibitors.

This was not the first showing of motion pictures in New York. The Latham and Jenkins-Armat-Edison machines had been shown privately and the Vitascope had already become an exhibition possibility out of town. The Keith Circuit had the Vitascope in its Boston and Philadelphia houses in the spring, but was unable to make a satisfactory deal for the New York rights. The late B. F. Keith, then traveling in Europe, sent over the Lumiere machines and the Vitascope was droped from the circuit. In passing it may be interesting to note that Mr. Keith took a camera with him on his tour of Europe, but brought nothing but several thousand feet of spoiled film.

It is one of the amazing things of the picture business that few of those engaged therein have ever been able to foresee its vast developments. It may be that even now the utmost developments are unforeseen. At the press view at Keith's there were present a handful of reporters and a few who specialized in theatricals. These included Burton, then of the Morning Sun; Maurice E. McLoughlin, then of the Dramatic Mirror; Hill and Whitton, of the Clipper, and this writer for the Dramatic News. At the post mortem that was held in the old Morton House bar following the showing, the best that anyone would say was that it might be an exhibition possibility for a year, and some estimates fell as low as three months—and that was twenty years ago! Later on the same prediction was made of the store show and in turn many viewed with dismay the erection of so many pretentious places of exhibition that followed the store show because they would all be dead waste when the fad had run its course.

The first formal performance of the Cinematographe was June 29, when it came well down on the regular program as benefited the headlined attraction. It was not easy to tell from its reception how it really did appeal to that first audience. Many seemed to regard it as some fake, and others, better informed, viewed with wonder but offered scant applause. The films were not particularly interesting, the best liked being the Dover Pier with a high tide breaking over the wall and a picture of the two Lumiere children; indeed, it was the subjects that later caused the Cinematographe to be dropped in favor of the Biograph. What was wanted then was local views, and the pictures of Dead Man's Curve, where the Broadway cable cars had to make the run from 14th to 15th street without loosening the grip, and the six o'clock rush at Brooklyn Bridge were received with greater favor than European landscapes, the Lumiere employees leaving the factory or glimpses of the Exposition at Geneva, Switzerland.

Close on the heels of the Cinematographe came the Eidoloscope at Koster & Bial's; an effort to trade on the name of Edison. They were then giving the evening performances in the roof garden and this would seem to be the first open air projection of record. In the fall Oscar Hammerstein opened his new amusement enterprise, now the New York, and its variously named sister theater, but then known as the Olympia and the Lyric. Here was first shown the American Biograph, and the star feature there was the showing of a fifty-foot length of William McKinley, then the Republican Presidential candidate, on the lawn of his home at Canton. This was the first use made of the motion picture as a campaign device.

Advent of Biograph.

The Biograph was the first of the "dog" or "beater" type machine. It used a film 2 inches high and 2 11/16 inches wide and was without marginal perforations. The taking camera was an enormous affair and was run by an electric storage battery. This company also owned patents on the Mutoscope, employing enlargements of these films. This was then a five-cent device and some years later the senior Wallace McCutcheon declared that here and not in the projection machines could be found the real sources of profit, and, indeed, at a later date William Rock of the Vitagraph was more heavily interested in coin-operated machines than in projection devices and he owned the franchises for all slot machines at both Dreamland and Luna Parks at Coney Island.

The Biograph later on changed to the standard sized film as its wide film could not be used by others nor could the smaller film be used in its own machines. Even in the early days it was noted for its photography and its picture of the Empire State Express was a classic. Another was a picture of the West Shore Railroad at Haverstraw, N. Y., in which the camera, mounted ahead of the engine on a flat car, was run through a short tunnel; evidently the first of the pictures to be made in this manner. Most of the Biograph subjects, however, were short farces, suited to the Mutoscope and in which Wallace McCutcheon, Jr., now with the Allies in France, was the chief boy comedian, and Thomas and William Jefferson and even Joseph Jefferson himself were other players; indeed, the prevalence of Tom and Willie Jefferson became a newspaper joke—and they got less money than they command today. C. B. Jefferson was interested in the company as a stockholder.

Rock, Smith and Blackton Appear.

Out of town the state-rights men had been busy with the Vitascope, but they were hampered by a lack of subjects for a change. It was the custom then to exchange films that had grown stale in one show, and William Rock, one of the pioneer exhibitors, made his headquarters in his billiard saloon in what was then Hammerstein's Columbus theater, but now is known as Proctor's 125th Street theater. J. Stuart Blackton, then a vaudeville player offering a quick sketching act, and Albert E. Smith, a magician, used to exchange films with him, and it was their experience in the shortage of films that led them to combine their forces and engage in the manufacture of subjects as the Vitagraph, starting in some small rooms at 140 Nassau street with a platform on the roof for the stage. Blackton, an artist of real ability, painted the scenery, while Smith wrote and acted in most of the plays. Smith was the first to make real trick pictures in this country on the lines of the George Melies product.

Siegmund Lubin, in Philadelphia, was another who undertook to supply subjects, and his "reproductions" of famous prize fights were clean-up material for the picture promoters. He had a number of machines out through the country and later went in heavily for picture theaters whereaver a location could be had and he was probably the first to use pressed steel fronts to make the store fit-ups look more like theaters and give the suggestion of permanency. The Victoria and Palace theaters in Philadelphia, still two of the finest in that city of fine houses, were his, and at one time he had a dozen within reaching distance of his office and others as remote as Richmond, Cincinnati and the Mohawk Valley. So firmly did he believe in good fronts that he broke the lease of the Park theater, Brooklyn, when he was not permitted to make over the entrance.

In the early days the duplication of subjects was so common as to be regarded almost as legitimate. Arthur D. Hotaling tells of a time when he represented the Lubin interests in New York and a man came in to order a print. He was so overanxious to get a good print that Hotaling's suspicions were aroused and he followed the man to the Edison offices. Some days later, when the print was delivered, he again made his way to the Edison office and dropped in on Arthur White, who was examining the print, with the suggestion that any time a print was wanted for duplicating he would see to it that it was an extra good one.

From 1896 to beyond 1900 the pictures were regarded as good only for vaudeville programs and for special traveling exhibitions. Most of the manufacturers in addition to selling film subjects also rented machines to the theaters. The Biograph was the Keith machine and supplied a machine and operator with a couple of new subjects each week for a fixed price, retaining a subject on the program for several weeks, since a program ran from ten to fifteen numbers, all short lengths. Vitagraph was installed in the Williams and other houses, including Hammerstein's, and the Edison machine, in 1898 did a good busines as the Wargraph in the Proctor houses, which had first put in Biographs, but lost them on account of the objection of the Keith management. In those days the Biograph was so standard that it gave its name to pictures as a generic title. Following the war the Edison machine was dropped in favor of the Kalatechnoscope, run by William Paley, who did not manufacture film subjects, but bought in the open market.

First Store Show.

The first store show in New York was a prize fight picture. The exact location is a mystery, but Arthur D. Hotaling believes it to have been at 204 Broadway, and remembers that it was a couple of steps down from the sidewalk. New York did not take kindly to the store show, and little was done in this direction. It was not until 1905 that the store exhibition came back to New York.

In the west the "Biograph theater" had become standard. There on the coast the chief expense of a bill was the transportation of the actors, and managers were quick to see that the films were an acceptable substitute and there came into being a mongrel form of pictures and cheap vaudeville that give rise to the picture-vaudeville house as we know it today. In the east the scheme was less in favor, but about 1905 Hale's Tours came out. This was an adaptation of an old amusement park device which consisted of a condemned street car, mounted on rollers, and a double panorama, one for each side of the car. When the car was filled, the wooden rollers would be started, giving the effect of motion while the patrons looked out on either side to see the fleeting panorama. Hale adopted the car idea with the observation platform for a "front," but replaced the panorama with a screen at the forward end on which were thrown scenics taken from moving trains. Some of these were specially made, but to these were added all the available material from other catalogues. The Keith management, for instance, had a special train at its disposal for a tour of the White Mountains, and the Canadian Pacific gave the free use of a sleeper, diner, baggage and flat car and an engine for three months. A lot of this material had accumulated, but even with the Hale cameras working, the same trouble of frequent change eventually sounded the knell of the Hale device. It is interesting to note that William A. Brady, now head of the World's Film Co., held the New York rights and was otherwise interested in the company. His chief location in New York was on 14th street, just west of Broadway, next the Arcade, which at one time William Rock coveted as a location. It is still occupied as a picture theater.

The picture theater proper was of mushroom growth. Almost over night they seemed to spring up. Two of the early ones were on 14th street between Third and Fourth avenues and Sixth avenue just above 14th. The day the former opened it was visited by William Hammerstein, Percy G. Williams, William Morris, S. Z. Poli and other vaudeville men, none of whom realized then the vast exhibition possibilities of the idea.

The store show in those days was elemental in the extreme. All that was required was a cloth screen, a rented piano and some folding chairs, a machine, a ticket booth and some roll tickets. Generally some music publisher supplied the pianist-singer who boomed that house's songs. In addition to the illustrated songs there were three to five subjects, and these were the old short lengths, running from 50 to 75 feet. Admission was invariably five cents.

Early Owners Did Not Stick.

They seemed scarcely more permanent than the old temporary exhibition, but somehow they stuck and multiplied with the fecundity of the rabbit. One of the leaders was J. Austin Fynes, who had introduced the Cinematographe to New York and who was but lately general manager for the Proctor houses. He had always strongly favored the pictures and now he brought real showmanship to this phase of the business. He leased some regular theaters and planned to build others. As an example of how things were done, he opened one house in Harlem on a Friday and was clear of his investment Monday night. Saturday and Sunday business paid for the alteration and Monday covered the running expenses. But Fynes saw most in the real estate end of the game. He did not keep his theaters, of which he had a dozen at one time, but kept turning his money over, and disposing of the houses as they were established. Not far from the Harlem house already mentioned was the man who was to better realize the possibilities, for then Marcus Loew ran a penny arcade on 125th street. Lubin sold out a majority of his houses to Felix Isman, of Philadelphia, in order to concentrate on his manufacturing, and Isman had also backed the William Morris enterprises, which failed. He turned the later over to Loew. Then came the Fox houses and the rest is not history but current news.

Half a dozen times the apparent stability of the business has been questioned and there are never lacking those who still forsee ruin just around the corner, but always the exhibition of pictures has progressed, and never have those in the business realized in advance the next move. Ten or fifteen years ago Sheppard S. Friedman, of the Morning Telegraph, started to "roast" pictures out of the vaudeville houses. This writer had waged a successful war upon musical acts playing the Miserere, and Friedman, following him as vaudeville critic of the Telegraph, sought for something to replace the "Miserere gag." He pitched upon the pictures and argued that it would be a simple matter to drive them from the bills, and yet the picture advertising today is more profitable to the Telegraph than the vaudeville patronage and the pictures not only still stand in the vaudeville houses, but are more used. It has been the same all along the line. It probably always will happen that a new development will bring out a new angle and a more important position will evolve. EPES WINTHROP SARGENT.

ERNEST WARDE TO DIRECT FOR THANHOUSER.

Ernest C. Warde has made such a success in the direction of "Silas Marner" and "King Lear" with his distinguished father as the star that Edwin Thanhouser has specially engaged him to direct a series of classic features which are to be exploited in a big way. Ernest Warde is a disciplinarian and employs none but experienced actors. The son owes much of his present success in the silent drama to his parent's stern tuition in the spoken drama. Years ago the father directed the son, today the tables are turned and the son directs the father. There are not very many businesses or professions where this could happen.

RYAN MAKING AMATEUR PHOTOPLAYS.

Donald Ryan, formerly of the dance team of Ryan and Laidlaw, known as creators of the "Waltz Amoreux" when the society dance craze was at its height, has gone into pictures as director with the McHenry Film Corporation, of Akron, Ohio. With Frank Bender as cameraman he is working through northwestern Pennsylvania producing amateur photoplay comedies in which the beaus and belles of the different towns are featured.

"Hale's Tours and Scenes of the World"

Novel Device Invented by George Hale that had Much to do with Winning the Public for Motion Pictures--Forerunner of the "Store Show."

IT WAS wonderful what a strenuous means had to be taken to entice people into moving picture shows ten years ago. And it is illuminating to remember that the highest class of attractive adjuncts were the most profitable and had the best influence on the development of the industry.

The "Hale Tours and Scenes of the World" scored the first real success in the moving picture business—and it used more queer devices and provided more ornate and expensive outer dress for the show houses than any of the early enterprises. It performed two distinct services—it "slipped over" the exhibition of moving pictures on the public that didn't know anything about them, thus forcing them to see and so to like moving pictures; and it demonstrated that tasteful and attractive exteriors could maintain a high-priced show, where cheap exteriors and equipment caused the failure of low-cost shows.

Front View of Hale's Tours.

Two Kansas City men, George C. Hale and Fred W. Gifford, saw early the brilliant future of moving pictures; and they realized, too, that the public would have to be educated to them. Those were the days when the popular park entertainments were "rides"—the scenic coaster, the chute the chutes, the Figure 8, the loop the loop. Hale and Gifford tried to hook up the favor of these devices with moving pictures—and they succeeded admirably.

The first essential was that a "ride" be provided. So they invented a complicated device which gave a ride in a Pullman car, the passengers incidentally viewing the scenery as though looking ahead of the train. The "house" was a life-size car roughly resembling a Pullman; the car was open at one end, across which was stretched a curtain, and the pictures were thrown on the screen from the reverse side. The pictures shown had been taken from the front end of a train in motion. The reproduction was "life size," and the track disappeared under the Pullman in a startlingly life-like manner. After the people had seen the picture they were dazed by the novelty of the experience—but the thing that made the memory stick—and caused them to advertise it to their friends—was the "ride" feature.

For the car felt to the passengers as though it were actually traveling on the rails, through the scenes shown on the screen. The car tipped from side to side rounding curves, or seemed to be rising on a grade; its speed was quickened or retarded (an effect secured by the whistling of imitation wind, or the modulation of the rocking of the car); the brakes jolted when the picture showed objects no longer "moving this way." The train bell rang, the locomotive whistle shrieked warnings as crossings were neared, and the air exhaust was plainly heard as the train pulled to a stop. The train thundered along in the shadow of towering mountains, roared over high trestles, through long tunnels, and slid smoothly through great fields of waving grain. On the cog roads up Mt. Pilatus in Switzerland, or Mt. Lowe in California, the grind of the wheels gave a correct impression of the real situation. There was intense realism every moment. It was difficult to realize, after such a ride, that one had not actually been in Switzerland, the illusion was so perfect. It was startling to be shunted from the luxurious Pullman out into a noisy, crowded park or busy street.

An elaborate equipment of levers, pulleys, wheels and sound-making devices was necessary to attain all these results. The first cars built were "operated" by hand—the physical task being extraordinary. Most of the cars built, however, were designed for electrical operation, though there were still dozens of effects that had to be secured by manual work.

The first plant was built at Electric Park in Kansas City. It was a two-car "house," with an ornate stucco front, and cost $7,000, including the projection equipment. Admission was 10 cents; and each car was more or less filled—about 60 passengers—twenty to 75 times a day. The income from the two cars was about $500 a week. Later cars had seating capacity of 65 to 72, or 130 to 144 for two cars. This was in 1905, after a year of experimenting with models, after three years of working out the original idea conceived in 1902.

Immediately, however, the tours "took." John Long installed one at Denver. Others were placed in Portland, Seattle, Spokane, California, Winnipeg, Toronto, Mexico. William A. Brady in 1905 bought the rights for ten Eastern states. In 1906 Ward Gifford, representing the owners, went to Europe to install plants, and thence to Johannesburg, South Africa to South America, and other parts of the world. There were shows in Hong Kong, China. In most cases territorial rights to the use of the invention were sold, and the company supplied men to help installation.

The tours had wonderful success on State street in Chicago. The corner of Fourteenth street and Broadway, New York, was the site of the first tours in the metropolis. Here the police, apprised of weird and awful noises, and noting the mysterious covering of the glass front of a storeroom with paper, made a raid, but left laughing; that was before the ornate front was installed. In New York Wade Mountford and Dick Slater and other Western newspaper men on New York papers got the story of the new enterprise—and played in it the dailies as a sensation. The big stories attracted worldwide attention, and amusement park managers wired for rights. In Boston J. D. Hopkins, owner of the Boston theater there and of the Forest Park Highlands in St. Louis, installed the tours.

There were moving picture shows in London before the tours arrived—but there were no successful ones. There was a show with a cheap front, running at tuppence, on Mile End Road in the shipping district. "They"—amusement men—laughed at the invaders, who were spending a lot of money for a fine building and beautiful entrance, were going to charge six pence—and abolish the class distinctions. "First class won't sit with third class," they said. But the Americans put on the show on the "American" plan—and it "went over" in great style. Costermongers and silk-hatted gentlemen waited in line for a chance to sit together to see this kind of moving picture show. And they paid six pence, or twelve cents in American money, to see it. The tuppeny show quit.

Charles Urban had a strong hand in the London success. He had a part in the establishment of headquarters for films and equipment on Wardour street. They "pulled some real stunts"—they took pictures of the Derby, developed the film on the way back from the races, in a box car, producing them the same night at the Alhambra.

Several other men, in England at that time, were largely responsible for the success of the tours and with laying the foundation for the permanent success of the industry. Among them were Lacy Downs, F. C. I. S.; J. R. Pakeman, a member of the London county council; Harry E. Le Marchant, George Wishart of Portchester, N. Y., and Fred Whitney, also famous as the producer of the "Chocolate Soldier" and other hits. "Pony" Moore was largely responsible for the success in Paris.

Some moving picture exhibitors think they have enough trouble nowadays over police and fire regulations. They ought to have been with the men who installed the tours in London. The walls had to be made of steel and covered with asbestos; there were extra exits to be provided and dozens of minor things to be done before the show could open.

The greatest trouble in those days—10 years ago!—was to get films. At first Hale and Gifford got a few from Pathe, but most of the pictures were produced to order. Hale and Gifford sold to exhibitors pictures they had bought or produced; and they bought back films after they had been used. Exhibitors exchanged films and sold to each other, being put in communication by Hale and Gifford. The first cost was 15 to 22 cents a foot. It was the practice to run one picture a week. Eventually more than 300 tours were running in the United States alone that the firm had installed, besides perhaps 200 more that the purchasers of state rights had built. They created the substantial demand that made necessary the organization of exchanges.

Hale and Gifford profited greatly by their enterprise. It is said that they were paid $100,000 for the British rights. As the moving picture industry learned its lesson, and took full advantage of the public interest thus artificially aroused, the Hale Tours declined; it was no longer necessary to give the people an excuse for visiting a picture show.

The "lesson" learned was that the moving picture would draw greater attendance from all classes of people if the scene of its exhibition were made attractive and some money spent on "front" and interior. An incident of this lesson was that a 10-cent show under such conditions was more profitable than a 5-cent show under cheap conditions.

George C. Hale is still living in Kansas City. He had already become famous as the great fire chief of Kansas City, who had taken part of his fire-fighting equipment of men, vehicles and horses to London, won international prizes, and had made a tour of the world with them. He is now making fire-fighting apparatus. Mr. Gifford was a leading member of the Missouri bar. His son, Ward Gifford, who installed hundreds of the plants, is a newspaper writer in Kansas City.

B. S. BROWN.

Vancouver, B. C., Started with "Hale's Tours" in 1905

Humble Beginning of J. D. Williams Has Developed to a Business of Considerable Proportions--Some Beautiful Picture Theaters.

THE dawn of the moving picture in British Columbia was much the same as in other parts of the continent, and occasioned the same wonder among those of the inhabitants who were sufficiently curious to pay real money for the privilege of looking upon something which they had never seen before. The first Vancouver entertainment in which films played a part was established on Cordova street in the year 1905, by J. D. Williams, now a leading Australian vaudeville and moving picture magnate, who installed one of the "Hale's Tours," which made their appearance at about that time, and consisted of an imitation railroad passenger coach in which the enchanted patrons sat in regulation car seats, and with eyes and mouths wide open, gazed fixedly at a sheet hung at the forward end. On this were projected scenes taken from the moving trains or street cars, and the effect of actual locomotion was heightened by the activities of a busy attendant who stood outside and joggled the structure at frequent intervals.

James D. Williams.

There was a noticeable tendency on the part of those seated down in front to arise and shout warnings to careless pedestrians who were apparently about to be run down by the cameraman, and they still tell a good story of one depraved individual who became a steady patron in the hope of being present when some such exciting accident should occur, or perhaps even when the well-kown Mr. Hale's tour should be brought to a thrilling close through one of those collisions which always seemed to be on the point of happening.

Run in connection with a Mutascope arcade, the car show was a financial success from the start, and for a time enjoyed a monopoly of the business. Before long, however, small store shows began to make their appearance. Bears & Tripp opened the old Bijou, and the Crystal was started by Mr. Williams. This is the oldest house in town still running, and is now giving six or seven reels for 2½ cents, each purchaser of a ticket at five cents being given a coupon good for a second admission within the week following.

A month later the Royal theater was opened by J. R. Muir, now the president of the Dominion Theater Company, Ltd., and the earliest pioneer among the present-day exhibitors of the city. The Royal, which later was re-named the Rose, was fitted up with four hundred kitchen chairs, and gave programs of from two to three reels, consisting principally of Kleine pictures, for which Mr. Muir had the agency, and some Pathe subjects, which were controlled in this territory by J. A. Schuberg, now a leading Winnipeg exhibitor. The praises of the show were sung continually by a paunchy individual who went to such particular pains to assure passersby that they were just in time to see the entire performance that he eventually came to be known as "Old 'Just in Time,'" and his proper name was lost sight of. This was probably intended in the scheme of things, however, as Mr. Muir is unable to recall anything else in regard to him that was at all proper.

J. R. Muir.
Manager Dominion Theater,

The Star theater on Main street and the Elite on Cordova street were opened about this time, and a little later on, in 1907, J. R. Muir made a considerable advance over anything else established up to that time when he built the Maple Leaf theater on the site of the present Maple Leaf, but occupying a smaller plot of ground. This was the first local moving picture show housed in a building put up for that purpose, and although kitchen chairs still were used in lieu of something better the house was a marked improvement over its predecessors and had a seating capacity of five hundred.

Practically all houses featured illustrated songs at this time, and J. M. Robertson, then the singer at the Maple Leaf and now manager of the Dominion theater in Victoria, was one of the leading entertainers in this line.

In the year following the erection of the Maple Leaf Mr. Muir, in association with J. H. Quan, opened the Majestic, which was the first Vancouver film theater equipped with opera chairs, and gave the natives something to talk about. For some time Mr. Muir retained his interests in the three houses which he had established, and the business done was very heavy. Later he sold out to his partner, Mr. Quan, but continued to manage the houses until Mr. Quan in turn disposed of his interests to William Brown.

W. P. Dewees.
Manager Rex Theater, Vancouver, B. C.

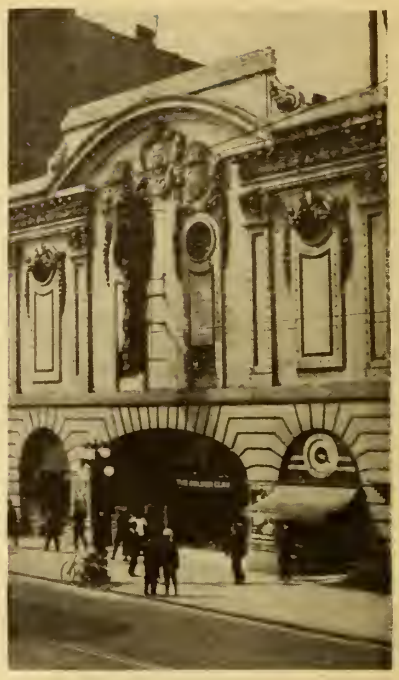
Directly following the opening of the Majestic, W. P. Dewees, the present head of the Rex Theater Company, opened his first local house, called the Royal —the second Vancouver theater to bear that name, and situated on Hastings street, near Abbott. Seating capacity here was 240, and films were secured from the old Kinetograph company and from Pathe. Two reels were shown for ten cents and an orchestra was sometimes engaged for special occasions, although a piano usually furnished what music was required.

Mr. Muir now spent $15,000 in remodeling the Maple Leaf, putting in opera chairs and increasing the capacity of the house to 670, while after seven months in the Royal Mr. Dewees opened the Princess, which marked a still further advance in the type of houses devoted to moving pictures. Independent service was used here, and the Princess developed into one of the most phenomenal money-makers in this section, playing to capacity houses nightly for a long period, and only letting down when other houses increased so rapidly that competition became an important factor in the situation.

In 1909 Douglas Creighton organized the National Amusement Company, and the National theater was erected. During this and the succeeding years a very large business was done with programs comprising pictures and small-time vaudeville at ten cents admission.

W. P. Nichols, the present general manager of the National Amusement Company, also entered the local field at about this time through the purchase of the Bijou theater on Carrall street, but did not enter the National Amusement Company until early in 1914, when he secured the controlling interest and became managing director. In the meantime, however, both Mr. Nichols and Mr. Creighton had secured additional houses in other cities — the former, in North Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo, and the latter, houses in Victoria and Nanaimo.

Contemporaneous with the National and Bijou several new store shows sprang up, and many of them soon disappeared. The Savoy and the Province on Hastings street and the Granville on Granville street were in this class, and several of the earlier houses also dropped out of existence.



Rex Theater, Vancouver, B. C.

James Pilling.
Manager Orpheum Theater, Vancouver, B. C.

Late in the year 1912 J. R. Muir gave Vancouver its first pretentious photoplay house, when he opened the Dominion theater. It is owned by the Dominion Theater Company, Ltd., of which Mr. Muir is president, as well as being the active manager of the house. The Dominion is a beautiful brick and reinforced concrete theater costing in the neighborhood of $70,000, and occupying a position on the edge of the business district, well toward the fashionable West End.

The Rex theater at 25 Hastings street West is owned by the Rex Amusement Company, Ltd., and W. P. Dewees, managing director, is in control of the house and its policy. This theater is the finest yet built in western Canada for the exhibition of moving pictures, and represents the personal ideas of Mr. Dewees as to what a modern photoplay theater should be. Throughout the construction of the building he exercised the functions of a supervising architect, and the result is an imposing tribute to his ability in this direction. The Rex is the newest of the Vancouver houses, having been completed in the fall of 1913 at a cost of $130,000, and the entire arrangement of the house, as well as the quality of its appointments could hardly be improved upon. Mr. Dewees is managing director of the National Film Service, distributors of the Triangle program in western Canada.

Following the opening of the Dominion the next of the fine downtown houses was the Kinemacolor, or as Dominion Theater, Vancouver, B. C.

Hector Quagliotti.
Manager Colonial Theater, Vancouver, B. C.

it is now known, the Colonial. This theater was financed by a group of local capitalists and, as indicated by its name, was the home of the colored pictures; but after a period of six months a demand for dramatic interest in the films forced the elimination of Kinemacolor, and black and white subjects were gradually substituted. At the end of a year, however, the promotors had lost $92,000, and Hector Quagliotti assumed the management of the house, purchasing the equipment at auction. Under the new management the Colonial became an almost immediate success, and has always kept among the leaders in point of attendance.

At about this time the Columbia theater was built by the National Amusement Company, and became the stand of the shows which had formerly played the National.

The Orpheum theater, the local house of the Meyerfeld & Beck interests, but for the past year devoted to moving pictures, is a magnificent theater with a location second to none and a seating capacity of 1,700, which is considerably in excess of that of any other Vancouver house. The manager is James Pilling, former member of the Bostonians, actor, authority on hokum, past manager of a score of theaters, and a thorough showman with a record of twenty-five years in the amusement business. The Orpheum was erected two years ago on the site of the old Vancouver Opera House, and is one of the very finest theaters in western Canada.

The Globe, now controlled by the National Amusement Company, was at one time under the management of S. B. Taube, who at the same time handled the distribution of the Famous Players product in British Columbia and is now manager of the Universal office in Montreal. The Globe is now in charge of Douglas Creighton and seats about 850.

As regards the future in Vancouver, exhibitors generally are agreed that a readjustment involving the elimination of some of the smaller houses is the only immediate solution of a problem that is becoming increasingly serious. Many thousands of men have left Vancouver for participation in the war, and the families of many of these have proceeded to England to be nearer to their soldiers who are either completing their training in that country, or have gone across to France. The serious financial depression which began here before the war has also been a factor in causing many others to leave the city, so that Vancouver has probably equalled, if not exceeded, the Government's estimate of a 25 per cent. decrease in the population of the province within the past two years. During this period not more than one or two small houses have closed, so that the patronage of theaters is spread out considerably thinner than formerly.

E. C. THOMAS.

Spokane, Wash., Dates Its First House From 1908

It Was the Empire, Opened by B. W. Copeland--Now Has Several Beautiful and Costly Picture Theaters.

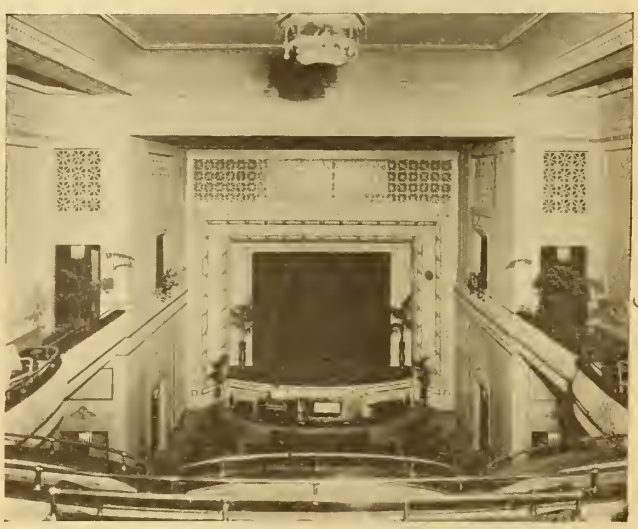
SPOKANE, Washington, has witnessed rapid advancement in the moving picture field since its first straight moving picture house was opened under the name of the Empire in 1908, as a Cineograph house which is now the Rex theater, managed by B. W. Copeland, and from that has grown the present situation with the Clemmer and Liberty elaborately furnished and decorated and with special lighting systems followed by the Casino, Class A, Lyric, Majestic, Best Show, Empress, Unique and the Gem. Added to these may be the Strand, which is mainly a picture house, and the Hippodrome and Pantages also show pictures together with vaudeville acts demonstrating that they are obliged to cater to the picture loving public to aid in attracting the people to their places of amusement. The Cineograph people had another place on First avenue at the same time they had the old Empire, which has since disappeared, according to Mr. Copeland.

Ralph Ruffner.
Manager Liberty Theater,
Spokane, Wash.

The Empire was opened August 22, 1908 with receipts for the first night, at 10 cents per person, of $178.70. Mr. Copeland came here from Philadelphia, Pa., in 1912, and took over the Empire after which he remodeled and redecorated the interior and had a nice lobby arranged, then opened it as the Rex, as a five-cent house which it has remained since with one or two exceptions when 10 cents was charged for special pictures. He opened in May, 1912, and on the first night from 6:30 o'clock took in $95 and on the second day took in $154.20.

Probably one of the oldest men engaged in the moving picture line in this section, at least as pertains to years of service in it, is James McConahey, manager of the Best Show, which was formerly the Dreamland. He first engaged in the business 20 year ago showing slides, according to his own statement, later toured the northwest with an outfit showing pictures in halls, store rooms or wherever he could get place for the exhibition. Additional to this he has operated picture studios and more recently has been taking moving pictures in addition to managing the Best Show. He took over the Dreamland in 1912 and re-named it the Best Show.



Liberty Theater, Spokane, Wash.

The Liberty theater which cost $135,000 is owned by the Liberty Amusement Company, of which Frank T. Bailey of Butte, Montana, is president and Ralph Ruffner general manager, was opened January 25, 1915. Manager Ruffner reports that the house has continued to do a good business since it was opened by William Cutts, who superintended the construction and was for the first 16 weeks its general manager. He has since engaged in the real estate business in Montana.

Manager Ruffner is enthusiastic over the midnight matinees he has initiated in Spokane and said, "The prospects for the moving picture business could not be better. We are playing to capacity houses."

The Casino theater was opened in 1907 by the late John H. Clemmer, a pioneer in the moving picture industry in the northwest. Upon his death in 1911, Dr. Howard S. Clemmer, his son, took it over and managed it until last year when he opened the new Clemmer theater. Will T. Reed is now managing the place, which is owned by the Clemmer estate. John H. Clemmer also opened the Clem theater, now the Class A, in 1909. Dr. Clemmer sold it to Lee S. Forbes of Seattle in January, 1915. C. E. Stilwell took over the place in April of this year and is doing a good business. He also owns the Unique theater.

Dr. Howard S. Clemmer, formerly a dentist and a native of Pennsylvania, opened the present Clemmer theater, February 22, 1915, and although a palace of beauty the cost has never been announced.

Dr. Howard S. Clemmer.
Manager Clemmer Theater,
Spokane, Wash.

C. E. Stilwell, now manager of both the Class A and the Unique, has been in the picture business for the past four years. He bought what was the Fun, a burlesque house at that time and changed it to the Unique as a moving picture house.

A. H. McMillan, manager of the Majestic, has been in the moving picture business about six years. He started in Duluth, Minn., later worked in the Majestic and took it over eighteen months ago. He said: "I attribute my success to honesty with the public and not over advertising anything. I occasionally give a picture which is in reality a high priced picture without making any extra charge to patrons and the price is five cents."

J. W. Allender, who with E. P. Gregory owns the Lyric theater, has been an operator and otherwise engaged in the business for 10 years. He has been in Spokane since 1908, and he and Mr. Gregory took over the Lyric in February, 1915. He reports that the house is paying nicely. It was opened as a moving picture house in 1911.

Competition has continued keen between both the Clemmer and the Liberty since those houses opened. The Liberty has a Hope-Jones unit orchestra installed also a unaphone and occasionally reverts to an orchestra. Both are handsomely decorated inside with pretty rest rooms for women and the Clemmer has a smoking and rest room for men also. The Liberty cost about $135,000, but the cost of the Clemmer has never been made public. The Clemmer has been successful with a special Saturday morning show for children and has run some of the largest productions including "The Birth of a Nation."

Clemmer Theater, Spokane, Wash.

The Liberty is now running a midnight matinee three nights a week and Dr. Clemmer has put out his book the Klemmerklink for children. The Clemmer has a Kendall Organ installed and both have the latest type of ventilating plants, cooling and purifying the air by the water system in the summer, and no dust is taken into either place by this means.

S. C. PATCHIN.

Denver, Colo., One of Our Greatest Picture Towns

Wonderful Development of Motion Picture Business in the Ten Years Since First House Was Opened There.

THE moving picture industry in Denver is ten years old. It was on the twentieth of June, 1906, that the first photoplay was reproduced on a screen in an inconspicuous little theater located on Sixteenth street opposite the post office and known as the Theatorium. The moving picture was a novelty at that time, but it did not create the sensation that might have been expected of it in view of subsequent developments.

The Theatorium was opened by the Moore & Greaves Amusement Company, of which G. H. Greaves was the manager and active head. It seated 400 persons and the accommodations were ample for those who cared to risk a nickel on what was then looked upon merely as a freak of photography.

From an inauspicious start the little theater grew into a thriving business proposition. Its first real rival was the Denver theater, which was opened in 1907 in the same block on Seventeenth street, one square east. The Denver seated only 240 persons. It was owned and operated by S. L. Baxter.

Both Greaves and Baxter made money on their ventures, but it came in small dribbles as might be imagined, knowing the capacity of their houses and taking into consideration the fact that they were operating on a five-cent admission basis. They were looked upon as "easy marks" for putting their money into ventures that could do naught but fail. They kept plugging away with their little houses on the side streets, while just around the corner from the moving picture theaters was Curtis street, with its half dozen vaudeville, melodrama and novelty theaters doing a land office business at prices ranging from ten cents to $2.

Finally another year rolled 'round and those who had heretofore sneaked into the moving picture houses, fearful that they would be seen, were found standing in line in front of these same theaters eager to get inside. Inability to take care of his increased business caused Owner Baxter of the Denver to seek larger quarters. He purchased the Novelty theater on Curtis street, then operated as a cheap vaudeville and variety house and having a capacity of 600 seats. This marked the first showing of moving pictures on the thoroughfare that is now known from coast to coast for its many high class photoplay houses and their wonderful illumination.

G. H. Greaves.
Secretary the Greaves & Moore
Amusement Co., Owner of Princess Theater.

Greaves followed Baxter onto Curtis street in 1910, when he erected the present Princess theater, which has a seating capacity of 1,300. It was the first theater built in Denver for the express purpose of exhibiting moving pictures. A year or so later and Baxter, finding it impossible to accommodate his patrons, took over the Old Curtis Street theater, then the home of melodrama, and converted it into a moving picture theater. Here he had 1,000 seats. Then in 1913 he completed work on the New Isis at a cost of $115,000, and was able to accommodate 1,800 persons at one performance.

In the meantime the Paris theater, with a capacity of 2,000 seats, had been erected on Curtis street and most of the vaudeville and other show houses had turned to pictures. The popularity of the screen drama also had spread to the residence sections and new theaters were opened in all sections.

J. R. Claypole.
Owner Ozz Theater, Denver.

Today, ten years after the first pictures were shown in the city and less than eight years after they came to be regarded as a legitimate amusement, Denver has forty-five thriving, prosperous photoplay houses.

Within the last two years two large first class houses have been erected on Curtis street, known as "Movie Row," and another is under construction at the present time. In the residence sections two large modern theaters have gone up with the third in the building.

Not the least interesting feature in the history of the motion picture exhibiting industry in Denver is the fact that the two men who were the pioneers, the original pathfinders in the business, are now the owners of the city's two best theaters.

George H. Greaves, of the Moore and Greaves Amusement Company, antedated Samuel L. Baxter by only a few months. Greaves started the first show, but Baxter was first to break in on Curtis street. Greaves was the first to erect a building for the express purpose of exhibiting pictures, but Baxter later put up a larger and more costly structure. From the beginning it has been a friendly race between these two pioneers to see which could make the greater strides in the betterment of the moving picture show. They have been leaders in every forward movement and today are operating theaters in adjoining blocks on Denver's Great White Way and each is enjoying prosperous patronage.

Princess Theater, Denver.

Mr. Baxter has confined his activities to Denver and to one theater, the New Isis. His every effort has been to improve this house and today it is regarded as one of the most comfortable, well ventilated and up-to-date in the United States.

Thompson Theater, Denver.

On the other hand Mr. Greaves has divided his attention among a half dozen cities in the Rocky Mountain region. In addition to having opened the first house in Denver he owns the distinction of having been the pioneer exhibitor in Cheyenne, Wyo., Larimie, Wyo., and Colorado Springs, Colo. He opened houses in the two Wyoming houses early in 1906 and in Colorado Springs a year later. He is still operating in these theaters in addition to one in Pueblo. In each of these places he has erected new and modern houses within the last three years.

The Princess theater in Denver is his largest and most important holding. It was opened to the public October 11, 1910, and was the first modern moving picture house erected in Denver. It was operated as a five-cent house, showing various brands of pictures until December, 1914, when it was inaugurated as a Paramount house and the admission prices advanced to ten cents for balcony seats and fifteen cents for the ground floor.

The Princess maintains its high standard of picture productions with music furnished by an augmented orchestra, of which the leader is Signor Raefello Cavallo, regarded as the dean of musical conductors in this section.

The New Isis, owned and managed by Samuel L. Baxter, who with Greaves is Denver's oldest exhibitor, is regarded as Denver's best moving picture theater. It is one of the largest, is strictly fireproof, is equipped with the newest and best ventilating system, is elegantly decorated within and without, has a $40.000 Wurlitzer Hope Jones Unit Orchestra, and with all shows only high class features. The New Isis stands as a monument to the thrift, business ability and far-sightedness of its owner.

Mr. Baxter came to Denver from the East.

Samuel L. Baxter.
Owner Isis Theater.

in 1907. He had been a cattleman and dealt somewhat in lands. He first made a trip to Los Angeles with the intention of settling, but finding no suitable opening finally arrived in Denver. He believed that the amusement business offered a promising field for investment and he decided to risk a portion of his capital of $22,000 in a moving picture theater.

Denver's moving picture row now extends two blocks along Curtis street, the city's main thoroughfare. Beginning at the east end is the Iris; directly across the street is the Paris and on the same side is the New Isis with the Plaza opposite. In the next block is the Strand with the Princess within a few doors. Across the street is the Colonial. Around the corner on Sixteenth street is the Lyric which was built on the site of the Theatorium, Denver's first picture theater. Across Sixteenth street from the Lyric is the Tabor Grand and on Curtis below Sixteenth is the Rialto. There are five other houses in the downtown section on Larimer street—the Joy, the Fun, the Grand and the Annex, all with small seating capacity and five-cent houses.

Denver boasts of a number of very fine neighborhood houses and there are many good houses in the outlying districts.

E. C. DAY.

Where John R. Freuler Got His Start in Pictures

President of the Mutual Was Half Owner of the Comique in Milwaukee--His Initial Investment Was $450.

THE other day John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, found among old papers a photograph of his first moving picture venture, which was the now dark and forgotten Comique theater on Kinnickinnic avenue in Milwaukee.

The little store front theater opened in the early half of the last decade introduced Mr. Freuler to the motion picture business; then led him into the establishment of the Western Film Exchange of Milwaukee, which grew into a system of exchanges under that name, and which in turn grew into the Mutual Film Corporation. Along with the growth of the distributing interests of Mr. Freuler came the establishment and rapid growth of a number of other important interests, including a number of large motion picture theaters in important centers and big film making concerns. Mr. Freuler is interested in the American Film Company, Inc., of Santa Barbara, the Lone Star Corporation, which makes the Charles Chaplin Mutual specials; Thanhouser Film Corporation, Majestic-Reliance, Vogue Films, Inc., States Film Corporation, North American Film Corporation, Signal Film Corporation and the New York Motion Picture Corporation. In addition, he holds important interests in a number of other concerns in the picture making business.

John R. Freuler.

The development of these various concerns, in so far as the Freuler influence is concerned, may be traced back to his interest in the business created by his connection with the little old Comique on Kinnickinnic avenue, which was opened December 5, 1905.

Mr. Freuler, chatting with a friend, told the story of the Comique with many a smile, recently.

"I was well established in the real estate business in Milwaukee and with no concern at all about the pictures," said Mr. Freuler, "when I got pulled into the film business. It happened just as those things always do, by a chance circumstance.

"A man owed me a small sum of money which he found it difficult to repay. He felt greatly obliged and anxious to do me a good turn. This chap had a friend who was traveling with one of those old fashioned portable picture outfits and a few reels of film. This traveling picture showman wanted to establish a theater. My debtor friend thought it was a chance for me. He introduced the showman to me at my office in Milwaukee one day. I was induced to put up $450 in cash against this showman's equipment—which, by the way, was worth, I expect, about $125 then. So we became partners in a 'theater.' The showman established the theater —a 'store show' and I watched my little investment from afar.

"It was not very important to me and frankly I was not exactly proud of my share in the picture business then. I used to motor by the place with my family and always kept my head turned the other way lest the folks discover by my eyes I was interested in the 'Comique'—the 'nickel picture show.' I felt some way that my position as a partner in a picture show would not make a hit in our 'set.' I used to slip down the street and drop my nickel and duck into the theater to see the show at night.

Comique Theater, Milwaukee, Wis.

"Of course, the 'Comique' prospered, but my partner always seemed to find enough relatives to put on the payroll to keep the earnings from becoming profits. In the end I had to buy him out to save my $450. Then I had to supervise the running of the theater. I got interested in selecting pictures. That gave me a peek at the exchange business. The man who gave the 'Comique' film service wanted me to go on his bond so he could get more film to distribute on his circuits. I had to investigate the business. That gave me a notion I would like to be in it. From that the Western Film Exchange was born. The rest of the story is more recent history known to everybody.

"I am prouder of the business now than I was the day I became a partner in the 'Comique.'"

TERRY RAMSAYE.

NEW HOUSE AT TUCSON, ARIZ.

Tucson, Ariz., has just acquired a new picture theater. It is on West Congress street and is called the Pima. Many up-to-date features mark the construction and equipment of the new house and the best pictures obtainable will be shown.

Rock, Smith and Blackton Were Pioneer Exhibitors

Founders of the Vitagraph Company of America Really Got Their Start Showing Pictures--Had a Large Circuit of Houses.

ONE of the earliest exhibitors of motion pictures was William T. Rock, better known to the trade as "Pop" Rock, who was for years the president of the Vitagraph Company of America, but who has now retired from active participation in the manufacturing business. It was out at his delightful summer home at Oyster Bay, Long Island, that "Pop" related the story of his beginning in the picture business a few weeks ago to a representative of the Moving Picture World. We relate it here as nearly as possible as he told it:

THE ORIGINAL VITAGRAPHERS,
"Pop" Rock, Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton.

"My start in the picture business was made in 1896; it was this way; Raff & Gammon, then doing business at 45 West 28th street, New York, had the state rights for the Edison Vitascope machine. I was handling arc lamps at the time and had been called in by them to do some electrical work. They asked me to take some of their Vitascope territory, but the best they had to offer was Louisiana as all the rest had been sold. I took that state for $2,500. The Vitascope, by the way, was the Armat machine which had been perfected by Edison and was then showing at Koster & Bial's old place on West 23d street.

"I took my machine and started for New Orleans. We had the "May Irwin Kiss," and a lot of scenic stuff; the McKinley picture. Bill Reid was my operator. I made a contract with the West End Park for four weeks and we packed them in, renewing my contract and continuing to play the West End for several seasons.

"July 18, 1896, Wainwright and Rock (Walter Wainwright was my partner) took a storeroom in New Orleans at 623 Canal street. We fitted it up as a showroom with chairs and a projection booth. We ran this show from July to October. We also showed pictures in Jake Greenwald's theater. Our profits on the summer's business were about $2,000 for each of us. We were the only state right owners out of about forty who made good with the Vitascope; all the others went broke on the deal. I attributed our success to the fact that I knew something about electricity and Bill Reid knew how to handle film.

"I was always on the lookout for new film which was scarce in those days. I remember getting a lot of pictures from Charles Urban. They were advertised in one of the theatrical papers and I wired Urban to ship them to me. He did. That was just at a time when opposition to my show at the West End was threatened by opposition at another park. But I got the pictures and the other fellow had to close at the end of his first week.

"When we got ready to leave New Orleans in the fall of 1897 I had about 600 subjects. Of these I traded 300 to some people in Texas for a lot of diamonds. Returning to New York we played everything all the way up.

"In New York I had my film in a room back of my billiard and pool room on 125th street. One evening a young fellow wearing a long coat and a high hat came to see me. That was my first introduction to Jimmie Blackton. He wanted to trade some films with me. He and Albert Smith were showing in halls and clubs at the time. After a year or so we pooled our interests and the Vitagraph Company was organized."

For a long time after the forming of this partnership the three Vitagraphers were the leading exhibiting firm of the country. They supplied pictures to a number of vaudeville theaters as well as playing special engagements at clubs and lyceums. The company continued in the exhibiting business until the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company, and the General having some seventy-five houses on its list for service at the time that branch of the business discontinued and the company went in for straight manufacturing.

"Pop" Rock is one of the very few of the early motion picture men who has profited by his good fortune. He has always been a careful investor and as fast as he took down his profits he put them into good securities or real estate until today he is able to reckon his accumulations away up in the millions of dollars.

The Vitascope, Opened at 623 Canal Street, New Orleans, La., by "Pop" Rock.

Arthur Hotaling Recalls the "Good Old Days"

Tells an Interesting Story of His First Experiences with Motion Pictures-- Recollections of Lubin.

TODAY many of the big producers seem to be breaking into the exhibition end through their productions. I went the other way about and broke into production through the exhibition end, but I started almost before there was production and long before there were producers.

It was in the very late spring of 1896 that I went down to Atlantic City to see what might be doing. I was not so old that it bothered me any, but the year before I had had a living picture show on the Boardwalk and dropped down to look the ground over. It was there I met motion pictures for the first time. I paid my ten cents like the rest to look them over, but the front of the house interested me more than what I saw inside. There was just one strip across the front that called attention to "Edison's latest invention, the Vitascope," and the box office man sat huddled in his little pen indifferent to everything but the occasional demand for a ticket. I spent the rest of the evening in front of the place, lamenting the lack of showmanship, and the next morning I hunted up the owners, two brothers named Kiefaber, who had a butter and egg place for a real business. I told them what poor showmen they were, with all the confidence of my youth and they agreed with me; so it was easy to come to terms and I went to work for them.

Arthur D. Hotaling.

As a showman one of my best assets was an ability to handle a brush, and the first thing I did was to plaster the front with banners. The two star films were Cissy Fitzgerald in her dance and the John C. Rice-MayIrwin kiss, and I decorated the front with these in vivid color. Then I fixed the entrance so that the curtain could be drawn back to display the screen. If we saw any one in the crowd getting interested we would drop the curtain and he would have to pay his dime to see the rest. Generally, though, we would show part of the Fitzgerald picture and I would make a "spiel" about the kiss picture, which was from "The Widow Jones," then a recent Broadway hit. Business picked up.

The Kiefabers called themselves the National Edison Vitascope Co., with Dr. S. Ridgway Kennedy as general manager, and they had bought from Rath and Gammon the rights for New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland and Illinois. Rath and Gammon had an office next door to the New York Clipper in those days, I remember. In Boston they were showing in the Keith theater, but presently this machine was taken out in favor of the Lumiere device. Later on I took it out of storage to a store, but Boston did not want to pay ten cents, when for fifteen more they could get that and the entire Keith vaudeville program. But that is getting ahead of the story.

In Chicago they had a machine in Col. John D. Hopkins' house, and I believe that he paid $250 a week for the machine and operator. It was stipulated that he was to have so many changes a week, by paying for them, but, though this was written into the contract, it was not possible to make good. Subjects were still mighty scarce. I think they had to pay about $20,000 for the four states.

September came and with it the end of the season at the shore. The Kiefabers prepared to put the machine in storage for the winter, but I persuaded them to tour the state, and opened in Newark. It was pretty hard sledding. The public did not know what pictures were and apparently did not care ten cents worth. I did not want to send back for money because I had promised a lot, and for a life saver I fell back on the old familiar device of the County Fair man—the "blow off." Word was passed that at half-past eleven in the evening we would run a show for men only, and the boobs used to begin to gather shortly after ten. It was the old Fatima "cooch" dance, mild enough, but it seemed to satisfy. After a couple of weeks in Newark I opened up Paterson, as well, both shows being store locations. After a while they seemed to take hold better and we began to make some money.

There was a pleasant-faced, well-dressed young chap who used to hang around the Newark place looking for a job. He came of good family and had been educated as a dentist, but he wanted to get into the show business, and when a new ticket seller was needed we put him in. That's how Fred Mace broke into the game. I used to think that a frock coat and a silk hat was the indispensable uniform of the showman. Fred liked silk hats, too, and more than once I had to wait until he brought the hat back before I could go out myself. When these shows were running properly I took a machine over to Jersey City, and from there dropped down to Baltimore.

Siegmund Lubin.

I got back to Baltimore in time to make a deal with a couple of local men—father and son—to open in Meeta Park for the summer, but the early summer was damp and cold and the Sundays worst of all, it seemed. The bankroll could not stand the strain, and I took the machine back to Atlantic City and turned the stuff over to the Kiefabers.

The summer of 1897 was just getting under way and Fred Chaplin had a Kinetescope in a store. This was the second of the exhibition Kinetescopes, the first being practically the same as the Vitascope, except for the name. This was a smaller model, a very light machine. It was called an Edison machine, and it might be added that the Eidoloscope was not an Edison machine. This latter used a different film, and was the only machine I recall that ran the film up instead of down through the head. The Kinetescope was handled about as the Vitascope had been, and I quickly hooked up with Chaplin and made the place over into the semblance of a show shop. I was relief operator, announcer, assistant manager and half a dozen other things. One afternoon Chaplin told me that there was a man with some films he wanted to sell, and I went over and had a look at them. At first glance I saw they were copies and said so. The salesman shrugged his shoulders and said they were all doing it. I told him that the originals were poor enough to run through the machine, let alone dupes, and that there was nothing doing.

He did not argue, but as he turned away he slipped something into my hand with a request to buy a drink when I was not so busy. I looked at a five-dollar bill and called after him to come around next morning when I could look at them more carefully. He came around promptly, and as we needed a change of program we bought some of the best. When the deal was concluded he gave me his card with the remark that he made films and might be able to use me when I should be through at the shore. The card read "S. Lubin." It was my first meeting with the man for whom I worked nearly eighteen years.

When the season ended I looked up the Kiefabers, who had their machines stored in the loft over their dairy. I told Kiefaber I might be able to make some money down in Maryland, and he told me to go ahead. "You may make enough to get along," he said. "If you make more than you want, you might send me a little for rental." That was the way of the exhibiting business in those days.

On my way to Baltimore I stopped in to see Mr. Lubin, but he had nothing at the moment, though he took my Baltimore address, and promised to keep me in mind. I did not have the money with which to fit up a store in Baltimore, so tried to make a deal with some theater, and had almost closed a deal with the Auditorium, but I wanted a contract for at least four weeks and they would sign no contract. While we were still arguing I got a wire to come to Philadelphia. I shipped the machine to Kiefaber and went back to Philadelphia, where I was sent to Louisville to run a machine in the Bijou, then the home of a stock company run by a lot of inexperienced men. My salary was to be $30 a week. I had asked $25, expecting to be beaten down to $20, or perhaps $18, but instead Mr. Lubin promised me $30.

At the end of the first week the management told me they had sent the check to Philadelphia. It was rather embarrassing to me, but I could tide over to the next week, but when the next Saturday came and the same mistake was made I went around to the bank and found that there were no funds. I wired back to pay no attention to checks, attached the box office, and sat in the chair and sold tickets until three hundred dollars came in. Then I wrote in what I had done and sent in a draft, less my three weeks' salary. I got a letter from Philadelphia approving my action, and I was all swelled up. At the end of the week I took the machine and headed for home.

I hung around there a couple of days, expecting to be told to do something. Then a man came in to buy a machine. Mr. Lubin looked around and his eyes fell on me. "How long have you been here?" he asked. I told him two days. He turned to the customer. "Here is a man who has been here two days," he commented, "but you will see that he runs the machine well. It is so simple a child can run it. Come; I will show you."

I followed them downstairs with no small misgivings. It was almost impossible in those days to hold a film on the sprockets without the use of glue. I ran down about fifteen feet and off it went. I threaded up again and it took an encore and another. That was the finish. I was sent upstairs in disgrace, and the last I heard was Mr. Lubin telling the prospect that I must be a certain specified sort of a fool, since a child could run the machine, and would he come upstairs and look at the catalogue.

He had sold the machine and was standing by the door as I headed out to look for a new job. I was hot clear through. After the flattering letter to Louisville, the names he had called me were too much. "Where are you going?" he demanded. "Out," was my brief reply. "You don't want such a fool to work for you." He smiled and put his arm about my shoulders. "My boy," he said, "it was the man who was a fool. He could not understand if I told him the film would come off. What does he know about such things? I take him downstairs. If the film stays on I sell him the machine. If it comes off I tell him you are a fool—and I sell him from the catalogue." That put the matter in another light, and before the machine was perfected we had worked up a really artistic little sketch and always I was the new boy who had only been there a couple of days.

As a matter of fact, people of all sorts bought machines in those days, and it was impossible to make most of them understand that perfection had not yet been attained. A man would come off the farm to make his fortune as an exhibitor, and he did not have to sell the farm, either. For $75 he could get a head and a lamp, a handful of carbons, four or five fifty-foot films, a sheet, some tickets and a few lantern slides. All he needed was the location. That was the upset price, but more film would sometimes run the equipment up to three or four hundred dollars, and more than once it would be offered back for fifty or sixty dollars a few weeks later, when the purchaser found that exhibiting offered its own problems. Smaller machines like the Optigraph were cheaper. The Optigraph was so small that when I was representing Lubin in Chicago in 1900 I used to have one for a paper weight, and would pick up the tiny projector to show a prospect what a small machine really was if he objected to the size of ours.

After the Louisville experience I stopped the active exhibiting, though every little while I would be sent somewhere to look after a machine for the company. I remember one summer I put in at Ocean City. The show was on a pier and business was not very good because the manager was not good, either. As the season progressed he got into the habit of handing out bad checks now and then. I was told to stick along and get what I could, but those bad checks sat heavy on my mind. As the season neared an end I told the manager that, as a sort of farewell offering, we would let him have a print of the reproduction of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight free of extra cost for one night. I even threw in several dollars' worth of paper to post the boards, and about the whole town packed onto the pier. It came time for the show, but I was still busy in the candy concession I had at the entrance, and the films were under the counter. The manager urged me to hurry in, but I waited until the audience got good and impatient and some had begun to cry fake. When they were all wrought up I showed him the bad checks and demanded that they be made good before I took the film to the booth. It certainly hurt that man to buy dead horse, but the owner of the pier was his partner and knew that if he did not show the fight there would be no pier for next season, so he gave in with as good a grace as he could. It still left him money, but he never thanked me for my "gift," and he did not kiss me good-bye.

My last essay at exhibiting was about 1906, when Mr. Lubin took over the Park theater, Brooklyn. They would not allow him to change the front to the familiar stamped metal, and so the lease was given up and my exhibition days ended. I had had one season with a circus and a black top, and a lot of excursions about the country, filling in between as salesman, laboratory worker, operator and demonstrator, but now I settled down to producing. The business was getting better organized and in more expert hands. For some years I would go out now and then with some films for a church or club show, but there were no more week stands. I had two years of the very first of the exhibiting, and it was no joke. We worked a lot harder for the dimes in those days than we have to now, and we did not have the tools to work with, either. ARTHUR HOTALING.

Kansas City, Missouri, First Theater Still Running

Also Claims to Have Smallest Motion Picture Theater in United States-- Home of Hale's Tours.

THE oldest theater in Kansas City is the first theater in Kansas City. With the unusual development and reconstruction that has gone on in the last decade in Kansas City the fact that the same building is being used for the same purpose is rather remarkable. This house has changed hands but once, the first proprietor selling to the present owner, Harry Fogel.

In 1898 Carl Mincing brought an old Edison moving picture to Kansas City and, on the second floor over a penny arcade he owned, established the Arcade theater, at 720 Main street. The equipment was not extensive, consisting of a machine, a very poor screen, a platform for the machine, 200 ordinary folding chairs, and an orchestra organ, the first of its kind in this section.

One reel per show was the extent of each performance, the length varying from 50 to 300 feet. Generally the shows lasted fifteen minutes, with a similar intermission so as to allow the operator time to rewind the film. About fifteen shows per day were given, which were attended to by the same force of helpers. In the beginning each picture was shown until the film wore out, but as the industry became more active changes came oftener, and for some time one week was the limit for a single picture.

The admission charged was five cents, and each performance found the house packed. The theater was a money-maker from the first day, but the past several months has seen a loss. More competitors each month increased rental of films, and a change in the division of the city have all been felt by the Arcade. It will close its doors very soon, but in its day it was the attraction spot of the city.

Sapphire Theater, Kansas City, Mo.
The Smallest Motion Picture Theater in That City.

The Arcade, Kansas City, Mo.
The Oldest Motion Picture House in That City.

The oldest exhibitors in Kansas City are father and son—O. P. Rose and O. D. Rose. Beginning at 12th and Grand avenue, about 1906, with the Electric theater, these two men have been in the moving picture business continually, with the exception of two years, and now own the Warwick, one of the highest-class suburban theaters.

The career of father and son in the moving picture industry would in itself make a good story for a scenario. In just six months after opening for business, with a seating capacity of 130, it was necessary to enlarge; and for seven years the Roses controlled the Electric, retiring for other business. They were not out of the game long, and in 1914 purchased the Warwick, at which place they are now located.

An interesting story of the beginning of the motion picture in Kansas City is told by the young Mr. Rose. "We gave one reel a day, generally about 450 feet long. As soon as we would show it the operator would have to start to rewind by hand, as the film fell on the floor under the machine, necessitating a long intermission. We made but one change a week, and worked the same shift every day from 10 A. M. to 11 P. M. We played to 500,000 persons each year. We were sure of this, because the tickets were purchased in lots of one million and ran out every two years. Our advertising was done by means of a phonograph in front of the theater, used as a "bally-hoo." Many were the funny experiences we had with people who believed we were endeavoring to swindle them. Our music consisted of a five-piece orchestra, sometimes larger, and generally four singers who sang illustrated songs.

"I never expect to do the business now that was done then. To do so it would be necessary to have a downtown house of two or three thousand seats. Additional expense would also cut down revenue."

In addition to their property at the Warwick, the Messrs. Rose conduct the Central Motion Picture Company, doing the developing for several producing companies in this section. They have their own laboratory, screen and cameramen and, in fact, one of the best equipped plants in the west.

The smallest moving picture house in Kansas City is in the heart of the business district and has as competitors the newest house in the city and two others, all of which are located in the same block. The theater is the Sapphire, at 107 East 12th street, which seats 185 people. The house has been in its present location since 1908, but A. E. Elliott, present manager and owner, did not get hold of it until October, 1913. The Sapphire is a success without any possible doubt. So much confidence did the owner of the ground have in Mr. Elliott and the Sapphire that, without one dollar security, Mr. Elliott was able to obtain a 99-year lease on the property. So it looks as if Kansas City will have its midget showhouse for some time to come.

As many as 3,000 people per day have witnessed shows in this little theater, making nearly eighteen performances per day necessary. Regular patronage is assured by this house, which makes a specialty of showing serials, and which has had first downtown run on every large Universal serial ever released. Here is another remarkable fact: Five cents is the admission fee most of the time. Special pictures and features bring an increase. Taking it all in consideration, it looks as if some larger houses might well adopt some of the policies of this little playhouse, if they are after real success.

Wonderful strides, far exceeding the most optimistic expectations of the pioneers, have taken place in the moving picture industry in Kansas City territory. And every step has been for the good.

When motion pictures were first introduced to Kansas City near the year 1898 people were at first sceptical regarding them. But after the novelty wore off, regular patrons came, such as now patronize the houses. More theaters sprang into existence; exchanges began selling film, and other advancements made soon proved for the betterment of the film world.

In Kansas City the idea was originated by George Hale and F. W. Gifford, who took the Hale Tours and Scenes Cars over the entire world after showing them at Electric Park here. The first theater was opened up here in 1898 by Carl Mincing. Following his early career, the observer finds the name of A. D. Flintom very prominent. Mr. Flintom soon purchased this house from Mr. Mincing, and shortly afterwards organized the first exchange in this city. From that time on the trade has picked up until Kansas City is now one of the most important distributing points in the United States.

It is estimated that there are nearly 100 houses in Kansas City, the largest seating nearly 2,000, the smallest but 185. Exchanges total to 22 and supply houses to 10.

B. S. BROWN.

ARDMORE, OKLA., TO HAVE NEW HOUSE.

Helback & Cox, proprietors of the Theatorium and Majestic theaters of Ardmore, Okla., have secured the location for a new picture theater in that city to be erected at the corner of West Main and B streets. Plans now being prepared provide for a seating capacity of 1,200 persons. It is hoped to have the house ready for opening in October.

Baltimore Has Long List of Motion Picture Pioneers

One of the First Towns in the United States to Open "Store Show"--Pearce and Scheck had an Humble Beginning--Other Leaders.

STRANGE as it may seem to the many exhibitors who will read this article, still it is true, when I make the assertion that the germ thought for the real original idea for the exhibiting business in Baltimore, which took root, and eventually made such strides, was originally brought forth in Paris, France.

At the time I speak of, no motion picture theaters were yet thought of being built, not only in Baltimore, but also in all the United States, and the promulgation of such an idea was frowned upon when at last it was put forth as being impracticable by two of the biggest men now in the industry, Power and Rock.

First Headquarters of Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert Street, in 1905.

It came about in this way. Nat Keene, who now manages Pearce & Scheck's Victoria theater, was touring through Europe with his sister in 1902. They stopped over in Paris for awhile and one day Mr. Keene went out for a stroll along the Boulevard Des Italiens. When not far from the hotel he suddenly noticed a large crowd around a building, the lower part of which was used as a sort of arcade. A ballyhoo was gesticulating and shouting at the top of his voice. Approaching nearer he found that the man was advertising the wonderful and marvelous invention of the age; the cinemetograph. Mr. Keene's interest was aroused at one. He approached nearer the crowd and found out that the show was being run by one Robert Houdey and the admission was a demi-franc (ten cents). One of the unique features of the outside show was the showing on a screen of a hand writing out "Admittance, ten cents" in French.

Purchasing a ticket and pushing his way to the front Mr. Keene found that he was not immediately to be rewarded by seeing the pictures; but that the crowd was ushered up a flight of stairs into a large room in which they were held until the crowd in the exhibition room having seen the pictures were dismissed. The exhibition room seated 100 and it took about 20 minutes to see the whole show as there was some magician work also. After the show was over the crowd was ushered to a back stairway where they were dismissed and the crowd in the waiting room took their places. Thus a crowd was always waiting.

Then Mr. Keene figured a little bit. "Why," he thought, "can't I do this same thing in Baltimore, where a show of this kind would be even newer than it is here? This man turns ten dollars to his account every twenty minutes, which figured out as the show is continuous from ten a. m. to eleven p. m., would mean $330 a day."

When Mr. Keene reached the United States, the first people he went to see in regard to the venture he wished to undertake were Nicholas Power, who was then located on Nassau Street in New York City and had just two rooms as his offices and workshop, and Mr. Rock. At this time Mr. Power was selling stereopticons and was experimenting on a patent shutter. Mr. Power discouraged the idea of starting a theater for moving pictures at this time. "Pop" Rock was next interviewed in his Vitagraph offices just across Nassau Street from Mr. Power. The Vitagraph Co. at this time owned quite a number of machines—about twenty. Mr. Rock was a little more encouraging, but although he said he would furnish the machines for the enterprise he would not back the theater proposition.

Philip J. Scheck.

Mr. Lubin was next interviewed but with the same result, and finally Mr. Power introduced Mr. Keene to George Poole and they bought an outfit for $60, consisting of a black tent, a machine and some film. They were to divide evenly on the proceeds and started out as "The Keene and Poole All-Star Act," featuring the "Keeneograph Moving Pictures." They finally broke up in New England with about $1,000 profit.

This then was really the outcome of the first idea to place a moving picture theater in Baltimore. The will power was there and the force to go ahead, but the backing was lacking and so it was not until some years later that the first picture house was opened to the public in Baltimore.

The Pioneers.

The names which lead in the list of the pioneers of the moving picture business in Baltimore are those of M. S. Pearce, Phillip J. Scheck, T. J. Bohannon, Harry Lewy, J. Howard Bennett, William Fait and C. E. Whitehurst.

M. S. Pearce.

Nat. Keene.

T. J. Bohannon.

J. Howard Bennett.

All of these men are still in the business, with the exception of J. Howard Bennett, and he has just sold his large theater, the New Pickwick, because he will in the future be obliged to give his full time to the pottery business of his father.

I will have to take them separately in order to show just how the business made such headway. It seems that Bohannon & Lewy and Pearce & Scheck started out in the same way and finally, seeing what a scope the future would take in, took it up as a business.

Pearce and Scheck.

Philip J. Scheck was a church singer and a machinist by trade. The partner with whom he finally cast lots and has never had cause to regret it was Marion S. Pearce, who was an electrician by trade. Pearce had a machine for showing moving pictures and six sets of song slides and Scheck furnished the capital, which was $200, for a half interest in the project. The first year after they had become associated they booked eleven shows. This was in 1903. These shows were mainly given in the churches and lodges of Baltimore. Then they branched out and the next year, 1904, one hundred shows were booked all through the state of Maryland. In the second year of this business the capital invested amounted to $400, and after covering all expenses they had $150 profit. Finally, in the early part of 1905, they became so popular that they booked in one week thirty-six shows at churches and lodges.

M. E. Fuld.

The projection machine was run entirely by gas, and they used to use a bag to catch the film, instead of a magazine. One evening they were just about to commence the performance at a lodge when the building inspector of Baltimore, who was present, asked them where their magazine was. They answered that they had none. The inspector said they could not go on with the show, and so, even though they had been running for some years without a magazine, they were forced to give up the entertainment for that night. It was a severe lesson in preparedness.

The First Theater.

In the place where Lubin's theater now stands at about this time there was situated a penny arcade. This arcade took up one-half of the ground floor and on the other half a Mr. Brown fitted up a moving picture parlor with 35 seats, which had been bought from the old Y. M. C. A. On the opening day, before any of the show had begun, a fire broke out in the operating room and the place was closed. This affair was what originally caused the frame building law in regard to moving pictures to be enacted.

After the fire, Mr. Brown was practically a bankrupt, owing to the fact that he had no capital with which to continue the business. Pearce & Scheck were approached at their headquarters on North Calvert street, and, realizing the worth of the proposition that Mr. Brown offered them, they bought out the place, refitted it and started into the exhibiting business in good order.

They rented most of their film from P. L. Waters, of New York. The cost for this service was $25 a week. Two reels were furnished and the changes were made on Mondays and Wednesdays. The admission was five cents. The number of employes consisted of one doorman, two operators, one usher, one ticket seller, and the total expenses weekly were $125, including rent.

A unique arrangement in this theater was that the audience was admitted by the front door and then they left by a back door which admitted them to the penny arcade in the next room. The theater was managed by Pearce & Scheck.

William Fait.

J. Howard Bennett.

J. Howard Bennett was originally in the pottery business with his father, who was one of the pioneer potters of America. In the year 1906 he was attracted to the moving picture business and started in to exhibit pictures in a room where the Little Pickwick theater now stands. His partner at this time was a Mr. Baum, and the firm name was Bennett & Baum. One of Mr. Bennett's strongest principles has been to think for himself and never copy after others; he blazed his own trail as an exhibitor in Baltimore.

He took a special course in light and optics and is considered an expert in the work. For a long time he operated a moving picture camera for taking local scenes of interest, developing the films himself, as he possessed a complete equipment for this work. He holds an operator's license and is a master electrician.

Harry Lewy.

The Second Theater.

The second theater to be built in Baltimore was erected by Mr. Bennett where he first began showing pictures. It was called the Little Pickwick and was built in 1907. Before this theater was built I will give an idea of how the show was run in the room Mr. Bennett had leased.

The service consisted of one reel a day from the Chicago Film Exchange at a cost of $4 per day. He ran the reel off in twenty minutes on days except Saturday and on this day he allowed twelve minutes to the reel. On Saturdays he would exhibit to six and seven thousand people. He had no music and employed one doorman, one cashier, one operator, not licensed, and used a phonograph. The seating capacity was 112 and the weekly expense was less than $100.

Wizard Theater, Baltimore, Md.

Bohannan, Lewy and Fuld.

While M. E. Fuld did not become actively associated with T. J. Bohannan and Harry Lewy, when they first branched out into the exhibiting business, still he has been very closely related to the enterprises of these men.

As I have stated, the entrance of Bohannan & Lewy into the business is very similar to that of Pearce & Scheck. T. J. Bohannan was employed as a superintendent in the Chloride of Silver Dry Cell Battery & Voltamp Electric Company in 1901. M. E. Fuld was, at this time, and still is, the president and general manager of this company. They were located on Eutaw street, and directly opposite them Harry Lewy had an electrical supply store.

One day Mr. Bohannan, knowing that Mr. Lewy was something of an expert in the photography line, approached him on the subject of combining their efforts to give moving picture exhibitions in the churches and lodges of Baltimore and its suburbs.

The plan looked plausible to Mr. Lewy for he knew Mr. Bohannan to be an expert electrician. So they obtained an Edison projection machine and several reels of pictures ranging from eight to ten short subjects of 50 and 100 foot lengths, to the reel. The partnership was formed and they were to divide evenly.

Great success was attendant upon this entertainment work, which they carried on supplementary to their other employment and only on one occasion did they have the least trouble with their projection and this was caused by a leaky gas tank.

In the year 1905 Mr. Bohannan and Mr. Lewy took up the retail end of the electrical novelty business and it was during this year that he and Mr. Lewy built the first moving picture camera that was ever used in this city and they were the first local moving picture camera men in the city. This camera was built in such an expert way that it was in active use until a few years ago.

They continued the church and lodge work until 1906, when they examined the field to find a suitable place to locate a moving picture theater. They were finally able to negotiate the renting of part of a vacant store on North Eutaw Street above Mulberry, and their intention was to rebuild it as a theater. The plans were drawn up, but they found that on account of not having the proper rear exits required by the law they had to abandon this project. Before another place could be found by them, two other theaters, already mentioned, had been started. However, a site was finally located and they built the Wizard theater and this theater was the first one in Baltimore to be given a name. Also Bohannan and Lewy were the first people to use sound effects and talking behind the screen.

In 1909, when Great Wizard was built on West Lexington Street, Mr. Fuld joined the firm as an active member. Only on one occasion have they had the slightest trouble in regard to censorship and this was caused by some people making a complaint against a picture which, after it had been viewed by representatives from the police department, was passed as O. K. They have always upheld clean pictures and would not allow any other than first class productions in any of their theaters.

The film they exhibited at their first theater was secured from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia; from the Vitagraph, Edison, Lubin, Pathe and Selig Companies. Two changes were made a week, on Mondays and Wednesdays. The rental for this film averaged $50 a week, the people they employed consisted of one doorman, two operators, two cashiers, two ushers, and the total expense including rental was $175 weekly. The seating capacity was sixty-six.

William Fait.

William Fait has been in the exhibiting business for nine years. His reason for entering it came about when Charles L. Hehl, who had built the Liberty theater on North Liberty Street found that it was not a paying proposition. This theater was built in 1906, and after it had been unsuccessfully managed for some months, Mr. Fait took over the management of it. The stock at this time was not worth 20 cents on the dollar. He managed this theater for three years and it was then sold for $8,000, the profit being $4,000. This theater was about the eighth one erected in Baltimore. They employed one doorman, one cashier, one piano player, one operator, one usher and a janitor. The show consisted of two reels a day rented through the exchanges of Pearce & Scheck and Tom Moore of Washington. The seating capacity was 140 and the total expense weekly was $225 including rental.

When Mr. Fait took over the management, he realized that he had to make some inducement to get the people off the main business street, Baltimore Street, so he began showing three and four reels. The crowd began to come and the other exhibitors raised a cry and looked upon him as a blacksheep. They reported him to the General Film Co., thinking this would stop it, but the move fell flat.

He was the first man to start poster work in Baltimore in regard to advertising pictures. The posters he used were hand done and for a time he was the only man used them. Also, at this time he was laughed at by some of the others because he started what is known as "playing the pictures," by having his pianist play suitable selections for the pictures.

At this time the Maryland Exhibitor's League was formed, the members being: T. J. Bohannan, Harry Lewy, J. Howard Bennett, Charles E. Whitehurst and William Fait.

Branching Out.

The accounts that have been given show how the business was begun and the pillars of the industry. From the year 1907 until the present things seemed to have moved with the rapidity of a lightning flash. But the pioneers seemed to foreshadow this and kept pace with the times.

Pearce & Scheck began many operations on a larger scale. Some of the theaters they opened were the Arcade, the Ideal, the Amusea, West branch Y. M. C. A., and a circuit was gradually formed embracing the cities of Hagerstown, Frederick, Salisbury, Winchester, Martinsburg, Laurel, Del. and Washington, D. C. Finally, however, larger theaters were built in Baltimore and the others were sold. Among these are the Leader, the Victoria, the Grand, large interests in the Hippodrome, the new Walbrook, and total owners of the Hartford Avenue enterprise now under construction.

Bohannan & Lewy, after they had operated their first enterprise successfully for some time, built the Wizard on Lexington Street, now the Picture Garden; then the Wizard on Light Street, and a theater in Pork, Pa., known as the Wizard. In June 1909, ground was broken for the erection of the Great Wizard and it was at this time that Mr. Fuld joined the forces and the firm became Bohannan, Lewy and Fuld. The Great Wizard was opened in October 1909.

Charles E. Whitehurst had many enterprises, the first being the Red Moon on West Baltimore Street, and his last being the New and Garden theaters, both companies of which he is president.

The Little Pickwick theater on West Lexington Street, was built by J. Howard Bennett in 1907, and in 1908 work was started on the New Pickwick on North Howard Street. On September 29, 1908, this theater was opened with Camera-phone pictures.

If their ever was a man in the moving picture business who has done his utmost to help the industry, that man is Mr. Bennett. When the big Moving Picture Ball was held in Baltimore, it was he who was the chief engineer in the arranging of it.

Managers Who Started Early.

Among the managers of motion picture theaters who started in the early days of the business were Lewis A. DeHoff who began with the Red Moon theater as electrician. Later he went to the Carrollton as manager and operator; was for three years branch manager for the General Film Company and finally manager of the New theater.

Arthur B. Price began in a minor position with the Wizard theater in 1907. He is now manager of the Mt. Royal theater.

O. D. Weems began as a singer at the Red Mill theater and managed several theaters before becoming connected with the Mutual exchange which he now represents.

Edwin Powell came into the business with J. Howard Bennett and is now manager of the New Pickwick. Bernard Depkin, Jr., also joined with Mr. Bennett and is now manager of the Parkway.

Benjamin is now manager of the Red Moon theater, 20 West Baltimore Street.

Other managers who may be numbered among the later arrivals in the field are: Wm. Tyler, Lubins; T. Goldberg, Goldberg; G. L. Wonders, Wilson; L. Benesch, Excelsior; H. C. Jorio, Dream; Levin Bros., Little Pickwick; E. Riggs, Purity; C. E. Anderson, Grand theater, Highlandtown.

J. M. SHELLMAN.

---

Going Up the Musical Scale.

One interesting development in connection with the moving picture industry in Kansas City, Mo., is that of music accompaniment. The first moving picture house in Kansas City, the Arcade, had for the entertainment of its patrons an electric orchestra organ, such as one sees now at a country fair. This was displaced by a piano and traps. When better pictures began to make their appearance, there was also an advance in the quality of music. A violin was added in some theaters. Finally, a five-piece orchestra came into existence. Over a year ago when the Willis Wood theater opened, the people of the city were astounded at the announcement that a large orchestra would play for the benefit of the patrons. The highest perfection of the musical accompaniment was when that theater put on a 30-piece orchestra for "The Battle Cry of Peace" and "The Birth of a Nation."

At present, the Royal and the Regent, each with a ten-piece orchestra, lead. The Gillham and the Apollo, with five musicians each, follow closely. Other houses having orchestra music are the Glory and the Linwood.

Philadelphia, Pa., Lays Claim to an Early Date

Says Dr. Coleman Sellers Invented First Projector in 1858--Lubin, Mastbaum and Others Also Ran.

THERE is no American-born citizen, and comparatively few of foreign birth, in the United States today who does not know in more or less detail the prominent place that the city of Philadelphia occupies in the history of this country. Like unto its inseparable connection with the history of the United States is Philadelphia's relation to the moving picture industry in America.

Besides being among the first centers to exhibit the moving picture, it was in Philadelphia that Dr. Coleman Sellers, a Philadelphian, conceived the ideas for and built the first moving picture machine in 1858, which device, though crude, formed the nucleus around which the moving picture industry of today has been developed.

Stanley V. Mastbaum, Founder of the Stanley Co.

In speaking of the history of the moving picture industry, so far as Philadelphia is concerned, the names of two other men instinctively come to mind. They are those of Sigmund Lubin, who, although today a film manufacturer exclusively, was this city's earliest exhibitor, and Stanley V. Mastbaum, at the present time the king of local exhibitors.

The first public showing of a moving picture on a screen in Philadelphia was made in the old Bijou theater, on Eighth street, below Vine, just fifteen years ago. This demonstration was made as a side attraction at the Bijou theater, then conducted by the B. F. Keith Company as a vaudeville house. The exhibition of this film was accompanied by a lecture given by G. Van Horn, of the firm of Van Horn & Son, famous costumers of this city.

From this showing, men then interested in theaters and like places of amusement realized the possibilities afforded by the moving picture as the means of entertainment; and, shortly following, theaters showing moving picture's exclusively were established. Although the title of moving picture theaters has been used by the writer to describe the first places in which moving pictures were exhibited as a show, it must not be taken that these places of amusement were anything like the palatial moving picture theaters of which Philadelphia now boasts. In fact, they were more or less simply dance halls and renovated store quarters.

It was during this period that Sigmund Lubin, Philadelphia's first large exhibitor, hit upon the idea of raising the standard of the houses in which moving pictures were to be exhibited. The necessity of these improvements dawned upon Mr. Lubin as a result of his being a manufacturer of films at that time.

In order to carry out his idea of what the moving picture theater, as a playhouse, should be, Mr. Lubin erected Philadelphia's first large moving picture theater, which was located on Market street, in the heart of the city's business district, and which was later destroyed by fire. The erection of the first Lubin theater served as an incentive to other exhibitors of the day and the building of many similar houses followed.

The popular admittance fee of five cents prevailed among the local exhibitors for several years. Certain of the smaller exhibitors attempted with varying success to charge ten cents for exclusive moving picture exhibitions. This, however, did not become general at this time with strictly moving picture shows as an attraction. To further hinder the proposition of increasing the admittance to moving picture shows in Philadelphia, the cheap vaudeville house had its inception in the local amusement field at that time. With the idea of cutting into the business of the moving picture exhibitor, these houses began showing, in addition to the vaudeville program, several reels of pictures.

For some time following the establishment of the cheap combined vaudeville and moving picture shows, it was nip and tuck between the real exhibitors of moving pictures and these establishments, for the upper hand. Considering their ordinarily limited means and facilities, the legitimate moving picture exhibitors "stuck bravely to the ship"; but, in view of the previously mentioned handicaps, were making comparatively slow progress in the fight.

Heavy reinforcements were swung to the support of the cause of the exhibitors when Stanley V. Mastbaum and Alexander R. Boyd, with their unlimited financial resources, entered the field in 1912. They had determined that a beautiful modern theater, exhibiting the finest photoplays procurable, and charging an admission of ten and twenty cents, could not only be made to hold its own, but could be developed into a money-making proposition. Many people hooted the idea, and when it was announced that the Regent theater was to be erected at Sixteenth and Market streets Messrs. Boyd and Mastbaum were voted temporarily insane.

That such was not the case has been proven by the wonderful success of this venture. The Regent theater was not merely "put over," but was put over in such a manner as to fairly startle local theatrical circles. Immediately following this achievement, Stanley V. Mastbaum organized the Stanley Company for the purposes of establishing moving picture theaters even superior to the Regent.

Plans were immediately drawn up for the erection of the most modern and beautiful of Philadelphia's moving picture theaters—the Stanley, 1620 Market street. This theater is one of the most handsome and costly structures of its kind in the United States and represents the skill of master mechanics of many trades.

Stanley Theater, Philadelphia.

The policy of the company in operating the Stanley theater is one embodying sound business principles. No seats are reserved, and it is a common sight to see well-known Philadelphians standing in line before the ticket office. The employees are immaculately clad, well paid and are the recipients of a bonus paid yearly from the profits of the company. No employee of the theater is allowed to accept a tip of any description, and anyone visiting the theater is assured of the most courteous treatment.

That photoplays of class are in themselves sufficient to maintain the popularity and continuous success of a modern moving picture theater with no adjunct of vaudeville or other extraneous features has further been substantiated during the past year in the case of the Palace theater, 1214 Market street. Up until this time, a year ago, when Stanley

V. Mastbaum took over this playhouse, a combined bill of vaudeville and film plays was in order, and dire prophecies of disaster were made when Mr. Mastbaum announced his decision to do away with vaudeville as an attraction and make the Palace theater a strictly photoplay house. The prophecies could not have been proven more erroneous, for the theater today is enjoying a patronage and prosperity at least 100 per cent. greater than it was one year ago, while the popularity appears to be constantly growing.

Another moving picture theater of which Philadelphia may well be proud is the Arcadia theater, 1529 Chestnut street, representing an investment of $650,000. This playhouse is operated and owned by the Cecelia Amusement Company, of which Alexander R. Boyd is president, and is claimed to be the finest photoplay theater of its size in the entire world. An examination of the interior of the Arcadia reveals that every device and convenience that human ingenuity could suggest has been incorporated in the building.

As a result of the advancement made by the moving picture exhibitors, both with regards to their theaters and the selection of the films shown, the photoplay houses have not only overcome the problem resulting from the inception of the cheap vaudeville playhouses in Philadelphia, but have made a serious inroad into the profits and trade of the older playhouses, where the best productions are staged. While within the past four to five years the local moving picture theater industry has advanced to a stage of apparent perfection, the consensus of opinion of the foremost members of the exhibiting and film-producing branches of the local trade is that still greater ends will be accomplished by the moving picture interests in the Quaker City during the next few years. Stanley V. Mastbaum, president of the Stanley Company, in speaking to me of the present trend of affairs here, said:

"After a trifle more than two years of uninterrupted success and the patronage of the very highest class of playgoers, after the most careful study and investigation of every detail, and consideration of every suggestion made, I cannot see now where we could have builded better, made any additional improvements or better gauged the wishes of the public."

C. H. CONGDON.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Registers a Few Exhibitors

Florence and Trent & Wilson Were Early Exhibitors--Hodkinson Had Exchange There--Swanson in Largest Deal.

THE exact date on which the first motion picture was shown in Salt Lake, after the first days of exhibiting the "wonderful new invention," cannot be learned. However, as a starting point, in 1905-06, or perhaps earlier, "Pop" Young controlled a chain of small theaters throughout northern Utah and southern Idaho and, in connection with his "variety" bills and repertoire performances, gave short reel exhibitions.

In 1907 the first bona fide motion picture theater was opened in Salt Lake City by Trent & Wilson who, with Max Florence, were the real pioneers of motion picture exhibition in this city. The Trent & Wilson house, called the Electric, was opened in the Brooks Arcade on State street about three or four days before Max Florence opened his "Red Theatorium" on Main near Third South street.

A year or so later, the Empire was opened by William and Charles Minor, though, after indifferent success, it was sold to Harry R. Rand, this transaction marking the advent of "The Rands" into motion picture activities in this section of the country. Harry Rand and his son, Walter, the latter now representative of the Triangle Film Corporation in this territory, later opened the Rand theater on Main street, now called the Jitney.

In 1908-09, minor theaters known as the Gem and the Elite were opened, the former by James Bradbury and the latter by Max Florence.

Trent & Wilson, in the meantime, had started the Trent & Wilson Film Exchange, and their next theater was the Isis, opened in 1910, at that time the most pretentious motion picture theater in this section. In 1909 the Midgleys, later to become the foremost figures in the local exhibition field, opened the Casino theater. This house was equipped with a very ornate copper and brass facade, with the name of the house carried out in big electric letters on a framework arch. It may be mentioned that after the Casino went out of business this front was purchased by an exhibitor in Gunnison, Utah, a town of less than a thousand population. Needless to say, the brasswork, as installed on the front of the house in Gunnison, is the most striking thing about the town and hits the visitor "right in the eye" when yet some distance from the hamlet.

Max Florence, who had been constantly extending his interests, opened the Luna in the meantime and in 1909 figured in the first large motion picture deal consummated in Salt Lake. He purchased the Isis and the exchange business from Trent & Wilson and started the Max Florence Film Exchange. The same year, the Progressive Film Exchange of Oregon, headed by W. W. Hodkinson, ex-president of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, consolidated with the Florence exchange and the concern was purchased by the General Film Company, Mr. Hodkinson coming from Ogden as manager, and Louis Marcus, now president and general manager of the Notable Feature Film Company of Salt Lake and Denver, becoming assistant manager. A short time later, when Mr. Hodkinson went to the Pacific coast, Mr. Marcus became manager. Mr. Marcus, who became identified with Max Florence soon after his arrival in Salt Lake, going to work as an operator, had been manager of the Max Florence Exchange.

The same year, when the Bungalow theater, owned by Max Daniels, was gutted by fire, it was purchased by Florence and opened as a motion picture theater. The Bungalow may be mentioned as one of the most important structures of its sort in this city, as it has passed through an exciting career of three disastrous fires and several hands and is now the beautiful and entirely fireproof Rex theater of the Swanson Circuit. After the second fire, the Bungalow was rebuilt by Daniels for the Rands and was reopened as the Daniels theater. As such, it suffered from a third conflagration and stood idle until purchased by William H. Swanson, who at that time owned the Rex Film Exchange, and was again opened, this time as the Rex. The Bungalow theater was built originally for the John Cort enterprises, but, when that temporarily fell through, became a stock theater and was the house in which Willard Mack first gained popularity as a stock actor and playwright.

Florence passed from motion picture affairs in Salt Lake in 1909-10, but at his height was owner of the Bungalow, Lyric, Luna, Isis and Elite theaters, in addition to the film exchange that formed the nucleus for the local office of the General Film Company.

In 1910 the Midgleys leaped into fame as exhibitors by building the Liberty theater, then the finest house in the West, in which was installed a very small pipe organ. This instrument, however, was a distinct innovation and was the wonder of the city. The big Liberty became one of the display places of the town.

About the time the Liberty was opened, the Mission theater was built for the Sullivan & Considine Circuit. For some reason, the S. & C. Circuit failed to open the house and it became a moving picture theater and continued as such for about two years. A stock company attempted to reopen the house but the deal fell through and the theater remained dark a year or so, when it was reopened as the Broadway, and as such is today one of the most popular houses in the city. It reopened under the management of Ralph Schayer and later was directed by A. J. Davis.

The Photoplay theater is one of the smaller houses of Salt Lake that has enjoyed continued prosperity for several years. It was built by some ranchers and later sold to Mrs. McGrath, its present manager. The Princess, the first neighborhood house in the city, was opened in the suburb of Sugar House about eighteen months ago by John Jimpson. It is now owned and managed by George M. Wood, who purchased the house last year. The Mehesy theater is one of the most prosperous in Salt Lake and is named after its owner and manager, Edward Mehesy. It has one of the best locations in the city and its programs are unsurpassed, though it has little more than the average seating capacity.

The building of the big American theater in 1913 stands out as a distinct feature of exhibition in Salt Lake. The construction of this monster house, which, until a short time ago, stood as the largest and finest motion picture theater in the world and is now in the top rank of luxurious houses, left the exhibitors and magnates in this part of the country

"gasping for breath." To the nerve of the Midgleys is due the fact that the American theater has been for three years one of the proud possessions of Salt Lake. It was the first house to install one of the larger organs and a big orchestra, and by completion of the recent additions to the organ, now has the largest instrument in the city, excepting only the gigantic organ in the "Mormon" tabernacle. Prof. J. J. McClellan, noted organist at the tabernacle, is special concert organist at the American.

Several months after its opening, the American was sold to an Ogden corporation, which now owns the Alhambra theater in Ogden, and Harry A. Sims became the managing director of the American and Liberty, which latter house was included in the sale. A few months ago the largest deal on record in this city brought the American, Rex and Liberty theaters under the ownership of William H. Swanson.

Last February, the Paramount-Empress theater was opened and has been the proverbial "howling success" since its premiere. The Paramount-Empress was originally the Empress theater, playing the Sullivan & Considine vaudeville, later being leased to the Marcus Loew Circuit, and still later used as a stock theater. When Paramount Pictures sought a permanent home in this city, the Empress was purchased and remodeled and opened under the management of Homer E. Ellison, one of the most successful exhibitors in the West. Mr. Ellison came to Salt Lake from Denver, where he was manager of the Princess and the first man to make the higher-priced houses pay in the Colorado metropolis. The Paramount-Empress recently installed a large organ, which is played by Edward P. Kimball, assistant tabernacle organist. The orchestra is under the direction of Willard Weihe, celebrated violinist.

Recent changes in the field of exhibitors are to be noted. A few weeks ago, H. E. Ellison took the general supervision of the Swanson interests and moved his headquarters to the American theater, from which he directs the widespread activities of the circuit. George E. Carpenter succeeded Mr. Ellison as manager of the Paramount-Empress. Mr. Carpenter also is editor of "Real Reels," the house organ of the Notable Feature Film Company. The Liberty, by recent shifts, is now under the management of E. C. Schmidt, who was publicity man for the Swanson theaters, and the Rex is directed by W. M. Tobin. The Isis recently has come under the control of Harry A. Sims. H. W. PICKERING.

Bangor, Maine, Had One of the First Keith Houses

It Was Built in 1906, Called the "Nickel" and Was the Beginning of Much Picture Theater Building in Maine.

BANGOR'S first moving picture theater was The Nickel, opened in August, 1906, in a modern building that had just been completed. The builder, John R. Graham, had made arrangements with the Keith interests for the opening of a moving picture house in the new block and, as a result, the best skill of architects was brought to bear to make a theater that would compare very favorably indeed with any then in existence for showing film productions. So Bangor was particularly fortunate in having a splendid new house for its early motion picture plays—not its first pictures, for they had been shown in the old Opera House on Main street as far back as 1899.

Stephen Bogrett.
Manager Park and Bijou Theaters, Bangor, Me.

To say that the good people of Bangor regarded the venture of establishing a new theater especially devoted to motion pictures as a radical and not altogether prudent step would be mildly to express their sentiments. For 23 years the old Opera House and Norumbega Hall had supplied the amusement needs of Bangor. Another hall, Union theater, had unsuccessfully competed and was finally closed to stage productions and used for boxing exhibitions, bowling alleys and other amusement ventures in succession. And, thought Bangor, the moving picture was only a temporary fad anyway, never having the ghost of a show to compete with the speaking stage, so how could any sane minded capitalist be foolish enough to sink thousands of dollars in a theater that made no provisions for ordinary theatrical productions?

Bangor attended the Nickel first out of curiosity and liked the pictures so much that the new house became a bonanza. The programs were short; people could come in any hour of the afternoon and evening and see the beginning of a picture showing people chasing a miscreant colliding with a policeman. There were no dramas at first—mostly scenes of upsetting a convenient pan of flour, etc., also views of scenery taken from the front or rear end of a train. But these captivated the theatergoers and so rapidly did the pictures improve that the people kept on coming and are still to be seen at the local photoplay houses in large numbers.

Despite the wonderful developments in the moving picture world, the greatly increased cost of pictures and the art of the actors, Bangor managers find that even with their steady patronage of today, their profits cannot compare with the pioneer days of moving pictures in this city. With the short program, people were coming in without regard to what the time of day was; they would stay a half an hour or an hour and others would take their places. Now they come when the feature picture is about to start—not so often at other times.

The idea of paying only a nickel for amusement was also very attractive to those who had formerly considered the "ten, twenty and thirty" the limit in cheapness for amusement cost. The novelty and all other factors mentioned combined to keep the Nickel and the other theaters that started up shortly after crowded all the time. The cost of reels to the managers was much less than it is now and the general expenses lower than at present.

A Mr. Howe was the first manager of the Nickel, and he was succeeded by several managers in rapid succession. Early in 1907, James P. Forrest, a Bangor theatrical manager of considerable experience, became manager, and held that position for two years, with credit to himself. In May, 1909, Stephen Bogrett, a manager of experience, came to Bangor to succeed Mr. Forrest as manager of the Nickel. Mr. Forrest took over the management of the Gaiety theater, which was established by the Keith interests in Norumbega hall.

Both the Nickel and the Gaiety, the latter devoted to vaudeville with moving pictures, prospered greatly until a day that will always be remembered in Bangor's history, April 30, 1911. On this day a $3,000,000 conflagration struck Bangor and it wiped the Nickel and the Gaiety out so utterly that nothing but the office safes remained to show that there had been a theater there. This concludes the history of the first Bangor motion picture house.

Inspired by the success of the Nickel, three other houses opened in 1908 and 1909. The Graphic on Exchange street, was opened by Grant & Burns and has been a successful theater since the day it first began operations. The Graphic seats over 800 persons. In 1909, J. C. Herlihy and a Mr. Freeman opened the Gem theater on Exchange street, opposite the Graphic. It seemed to be small, but seated fully 700 persons. Harry Bolton, a manufacturing jeweler, opened the Union theater, on Union street, in 1909.

The Gem had a fairly large patronage, but did not prove to be a permanent success. Later it was leased to Abrams & Green, an amusement syndicate that now controls theaters in Bath, Gardiner and Portland, Maine, and has the New England rights of the Famous Players films. Abrams & Green did not keep the Gem long.

After the fire of 1911, the Gaiety was transferred by the Keith Co. to the Gem, which was renamed the Bijou. With vaudeville and moving pictures, it became such a success that it was rebuilt and greatly enlarged by the Keith interests. It is a copy of the Philadelphia Keith theater. Of concrete and other permanent forms of construction, it is absolutely fireproof and sanitary. There is no better theater in New England than the Bijou of Bangor, Maine. It is now and always has been under the management of Stephen Bogrett, except for a few weeks in the fall of 1915, when Mr. Bogrett exchanged positions with A. P. Bibber of the Lewiston theater for a short time. Bangor people were glad to see Mr. Bogrett back again.

The Union theater, opened by Harry Bolton, later became acquired by the Acker Amusement Company, which controlled small houses at St. John, N. B., Canada, and at Halifax, Nova Scotia. There were several managers, including Messrs. Carroll, Snow, Greene and Blood. It remained under the control of Ackers, showing vaudeville and moving pictures until April 29, 1911.

When the Nickel theater was destroyed in the fire of 1911,

Park Theater, Bangor, Me.

Howard Atkinson was then manager, and he leased the Union theater for the Keith interests, taking possession a few weeks after the fire. The Nickel did a thriving business here until December, 1914, when it was transferred to the Star theater.

Pope D. McKinnon, in 1913, built the Star theater, a brick building in the heart of the city, at the corner of State and Park streets. It seated 1,200 people and was the largest building devoted entirely to moving pictures north of Portland. Opened on Christmas Day, 1913, it was more or less successful under the management of Arthur Allen and others until finally acquired by the Keith company on Nov. 28, 1914.

The Keith company beautified the theater considerably and changed its name to the Park. Since opened under the new management, it has been a success. It is the only Bangor house that charges ten cents admission for adults and five cents for children.

The Palace theater was opened in 1911 by Pope D. McKinnon on Exchange street. At first it had a great vogue and was highly profitable, but in recent years it has not been a great moneymaker. Its seating capacity is 400. It is now under management of the Acme Amusement Co., John Goodwin, treasurer.

No mention has been made of the Bangor Opera House as a moving picture theater, but in the interim between road productions and stock companies, it was formerly used for moving pictures. On January 28, 1914, it was totally destroyed by fire, two firemen losing their lives by falling walls at the time.

At present the moving picture needs of Bangor theatergoers are well supplied, and it may be said without fear of contradiction that there is no demand for another house. Bangor is a commercial city, with few industries and no rapid growth in population. When moving pictures first came to Bangor, people from surrounding towns helped fill the theaters in this city. Now every small town in the vicinity of Bangor has its moving picture house and Bangor no longer draws from its neighboring towns. The combined capacity of the four moving picture houses is now 3,600, which means that at four performances a day, 12,400 people can be accommodated, or 24,800 in two days. As the population of the city is only slightly over 26,000, it can be seen that if every man, woman and child in Bangor desires to attend the shows at the local houses during the two days that programs are on, they can be accommodated.

JOHN FLANNAGAN.

FLINTOM IN ON GROUND FLOOR.

President of Kansas City Feature Film Company Was Part Owner of First Picture House.

NO HISTORY of the birth of the moving picture industry in Kansas City, Mo., could be complete without mention of A. D. Flintom, now president of the Kansas City Feature Film Company. Not only was Mr. Flintom part owner of the first moving picture house in Kansas City, but he was organizer of the first exchange in this territory.

Coming from his birthplace in Lawrence, Kan., to Kansas City, in 1900, Mr. Flintom went to work for a local bank, where he soon became chief clerk. Six months after his arrival he became interested in the Yale Amusement Company, then owned by C. F. and J. F. Mincing, now at Leavenworth, Kan. At that time this company was operating a small penny arcade at 720 Main street, which is still there, and on the second floor of which was located Kansas City's first picture house. Mr. Flintom became financially interested in the company.

A. D. Flintom.
President Kansas City Feature Film Co.

His next step was to help organize the Yale theater, at 706 Main street, seating 450 people, showing vaudeville and moving pictures. This was the first house west of New York City to show combination vaudeville and motion pictures, although shortly afterwards the Orpheum began to close its performances with a short reel of pictures. Mr. Flintom quickly saw the future of this business and with his partners opened a second show at 1116 Main street, also on the second floor, known as the Automat.

About 1906 Mr. Flintom foresaw the need of an exchange in this territory. Previously to this all pictures shown had been released out of Chicago by Eugene Cline. Coincident with this, Mr. Flintom and friends purchased the interest of the Mincings, and in a very short time organized Kansas City's first exchange, calling it the Yale Film Exchange. This was at Eleventh and Main streets. Soon afterwards larger quarters were necessary, and the organization moved to the northwest corner of Seventh and Main streets.

In 1909, 1910 and 1911 the moving picture business was just about to go on the rocks, according to Mr. Flintom, when the exchange men throughout the country organized at Pittsburgh, under the name of the Film Service Association. That was a turning point for the betterment of the trade.

Mr. Flintom eventually sold out to the General Film Company, and acted as manager of their St. Louis and Kansas City offices. All this time the demand from the public was for better quality in pictures. To satisfy this cry Mr. Flintom organized the Kansas City Feature Film Company, which is the largest feature handling firm in this section of the country.

B. S. BROWN.

It Pays to Advertise.

The most daring of the Kansas City, Mo. exhibitors is Joseph Gilday, manager of the Willis Wood theater. As head of the largest picture house in Kansas City, Mr. Gilday is kept busy springing surprises on his competitors and making records. At the present time he is conducting the most extensive advertising campaign for moving pictures ever promoted in this part of the country. He is spending over $20,000 getting publicity for the Billie Burke serial. And he is getting it too, as the crowds at the Willis Wood will indicate. Mr. Gilday is the manager who holds the record of consecutive runs in Kansas City for any production. He made this when he booked "The Battle Cry of Peace" for six weeks and "The Birth of a Nation" for five weeks. He is now putting on "Gloria's Romance," the first serial he ever presented and it is drawing well. Mr. Gilday has been in charge of the Willis Wood since 1914.

Prosperity at Royal.

The most successful downtown theater in Kansas City, Mo., is the Royal, on Main between Tenth and Eleventh streets. This house, which was opened in June, 1914, has a seating capacity of 750, which includes a balcony. The admission price never varies from ten cents. A ten-piece orchestra is a feature. The Royal has been a great success from the opening day and is the admiration of every moving picture theater owner in the Kansas City territory.

Cincinnati's Contribution to Ancient Picture History

Gives the Palm to Ike McMahan as the First Exhibitor in that Region-- He's Still at It.

AS TIME goes, nothing in the moving picture business is old, and this applies to Cincinnati as well as to any other city; but, at the same time, Cincinnati may claim some degree of antiquity, comparatively speaking, as a moving picture center, for the reason that at least one of the now prominent figures in the theatrical world started in the Queen City, where he was, as far as can be learned, the initial exhibitor of moving pictures. And the prominence since achieved by the city as one where there are many prosperous houses dates from that time.

It was something like fifteen years ago that Marcus Loew, the theatrical man referred to, was running a penny arcade on the south side of Fountain Square, where the Star moving picture theater now stands. The penny arcade did an excellent business, it seems, but Mr. Loew, being always on the lookout for some means of making business better and attracting that many more people, one day discovered what struck him as a first-class stunt in this line. It was across the river, in Covington, Ky.—at 521 Madison avenue, to be exact—that he found in full and prosperous operation what seems to have been the very first picture show in or around Cincinnati.

I. W. McMahan.
President McMahan and Jackson, Cincinnati.

"It was literally a one-man house," Mr. Loew has told many times since, recalling his visit to the little house. "A chap was running it single-handed, over the Hackstead arcade, which was the thing first drew my attention to it. If a picture show could thrive over an arcade in Covington, I didn't see why one couldn't do well over mine. At any rate, this exhibitor was his own operator, ticket taker, and, I have no doubt, his own porter. People flocked to see the show, which usually consisted of a single reel, and the idea appealed to me so forcibly that I promptly adopted it at the Fountain Square penny arcade."

And that was one of the very first, if not the first, picture shows in Cincinnati. Incidentally, it may be stated that the Covington enterprise referred to was run, at the time Mr. Loew saw it, and had been founded by "Ike" McMahan, of the theatrical firm of McMahan & Jackson. He freely admits it, and points with pride to the fact that the little show was clearing him forty or fifty dollars a week, which, as he asserts, is something that many a more ambitious enterprise nowadays cannot claim.

In a letter to Marcus Loew referring to an interview in which Mr. Loew recalled the incident, Mr. McMahan corroborated the matter, and said that he started the show after an unsuccessful season with a traveling theatrical company which his firm was running. The moving picture business, then in its infancy, appealed to him as a possible chance to tide over a few months; but it proved so successful, in the rather crude effort which was made, that the firm has been in moving pictures ever since, at one time operating an extensive chain of houses in Cincinnati and other cities in the same section.

At any rate, it is pretty well established that the Loew show over his penny arcade was the first house operated in Cincinnati, although there are some who maintain that a small house on West Fifth street, started by "Ed" Bernardi and Tom Riley, was the first. However, the dates are difficult to establish accurately, and the West Fifth street house in question, it appears, did not last long, although Messrs. Bernardi and Riley have since been and are still prominent and successful figures in Cincinnati moving picture circles.

There was a considerable hiatus between the finish of the Loew arcade and picture show on Fountain Square and the construction on the same site of the present Star theater, so that the operation of a picture house at that place can hardly be said to have been continuous. This leaves to the Gem, 214 West Fifth street, the honor of being the oldest house in Cincinnati in continuous operation. Besides, it was started not long after the Loew show, fifteen years ago or thereabouts, by McMahan & Jackson, the success of the Covington and Loew arcade picture shows having given the firm the idea that there might be more money in the business than anybody had yet discovered.

The house was started as the Ohio, with a seating capacity of 300. It still has the same capacity, and even the same identical chairs which were installed in that prehistoric period. It has always been a good money maker, and while the rising tide of investment in the business has made it possible for other promoters to acquire more centrally located sites, closer to Vine street, the house bids fair to keep on doing business at a profit for some years to come. It was purchased several years ago of McMahan & Jackson by Huss Bros., who are themselves actively interested in several other houses.

Another house, in the same block, started by the same firm, was probably the next house to be placed in the field, and it also is still doing business. It was started as the Orpheum about a year after the Ohio, or Gem, and is now called the Dreamland. It seats 240 people. The Alhambra, on the Fifth street block between Race and Elm streets, was started by McMahan & Jackson about five years ago, being the third of the several handsome houses in that block which are now doing business, the Lubin being the first and the Colonial next. The Alhambra was disposed of to William Gruber, who is still interested in it, with Charles Weigel as the manager in charge.

The Lubin, referred to above, which has from the first been a popular house, made its bow to the public about eight years ago, being built by Hennegan Bros., with whom Sigmund Lubin, from whom the house took its name, was interested. Three years later the Hennegans acquired Mr. Lubin's interest, and have since remained sole owners, through the Lubin Amusement Company. The original seating capacity of the house was 300, and this was increased to 340, the present capacity, which is regularly crowded, the management, in fact, being handicapped here as are others in the same block by the impossibility of securing more space.

I. Libson, for several years one of the leading exhibitors in Cincinnati, came to the city eight years ago from Pittsburgh, and with John P. Harris, of Pittsburgh, with whom he had been associated, and Harry Davis, of the same city, organized the Libson Amusement Company and built the Bijou on Fountain Square. This little house, seating 390 people, is another on the honor roll of those which have done business without interruption ever since starting; and as the location could not be improved upon, indications are that it will continue to do business indefinitely, unless by some means its place is taken by a larger house.

The Family theater, on Vine street, between Fifth and Sixth, was the next house in which Mr. Libson became interested. It was opened about six years ago by the Cincinnati Family Theater Amusement Co., which built it, with Mr. Harris as president. It succeeded or, more accurately, took the place of the famous, or infamous, music hall operated in the same building by a well-known Cincinnati politician. The music hall was eliminated, and the construction of the Family theater gave the public in its stead clean and wholesome amusement.

The house is much the largest in the downtown section constructed for use as a moving picture, and one of the largest of that class in the city, as it seats 1,200 people. An unusually roomy balcony is responsible for much of its capacity, enabling it to handle the big houses which prevail, especially in the evenings and on Sundays and holidays, without difficulty. The floor of the house is so pitched that a perfect view of the screen is possible from every seat, and the balcony is quite as good as the main floor from this standpoint. An intermediate floor at the front gives space for the manager's office, while retiring rooms downstairs for both sexes, bubbling fountains and up-to-date decorations and equipment make the house one of the cleanest and most attractive in the city. Up to about a year ago the Family was devoted to the program made up of one- and two-reel subjects, with an admission price of five cents, but since that time has been showing features at the usual charge of ten cents, with conspicuous success.

The Strand theater is another enterprise in which Mr. Libson is interested. It—the house, that is—had an eventful career before reaching its present successful and dignified position as the first-run house for the Paramount program in Cincinnati. It was opened as the Strand in November, 1914, after thorough remodeling, succeeding the Gayety, a variety house which had done business for only a comparatively short time. No hoodoo appeared to attach to the location on Walnut street, however, which is in fact excellent, being in the same block with the B. F. Keith theater, and business has been uniformly good since the Strand was started.

There was another Gayety in Cincinnati a few years back, this being the name first borne by the Star, on Fountain Square, referred to above as standing on the site of the former Loew arcade. The original Gayety was opened seven years ago, a year after the Bijou, its nearest competitor, by Ed. Hart & Co., the name being changed to the Star when the burlesque house was opened under the same name. Like its neighbor, the Bijou, it has always done a big business at its five-cent admission charge.

"We handled as many people at the Bijou during the first few years of its life as any of the big houses do now," declared Mr. Libson. "In those days we gave a show consisting of one reel, running it in twelve minutes, for five cents. This kept people coming, and receipts and attendance ran up into astonishing figures."

The number of suburban houses in and around Cincinnati is legion, and it is a question whether anybody knows just when this or that one was started. One of the most interesting, however, beyond a doubt, is the house now known as the Arcade, in Elmwood place, on Carthage Pike. This house, like a good many others in Cincinnati, was started by McMahan & Jackson, the building being used originally as the Elmwood town hall; and it was about thirteen years ago that it was first used as a theater, being leased by the firm from the fire department of Elmwood, which controlled it. When the property was sold by the department, about ten years ago, McMahan & Jackson lost it, but it has since been operated continuously as a picture theater.

KENNETH CRAIN.

Buffalo, N. Y., Names Mitchell Mark as Favorite Son

Says He is the Man Who Made the Town Famous in Motion Picture History-- Other Old Timers.

BUFFALO has the distinction of being the home of Mitchell H. Mark, whose interests and those of his associates include the Strand theater, New York, the Victoria, Elmwood and Strand theaters, Buffalo, the Strand theater, Syracuse and other houses in this state and in New England.

Mr. Mark's name will always be associated with the early history of moving pictures in Buffalo, because when the industry was in its infancy and had not passed the experimental stage, he conducted a moving picture theater, twelve feet wide and fifty feet deep, in the basement of Ellicott square, this city. Mr. Mark simply "coined money" with the project.

Mitchell H. Mark.

Mr. Mark did not begin life as a poor boy. Henry C. Mark, his father, was a prosperous business man of Greenville, S. C., just after the Civil War. In Mitchell Mark's fifteenth year it was thought that he would "follow in father's footsteps," but the young man had other plans and he told Dad so. His father's country stores, six in number, and his 1,000-acre cotton plantations with alluring possibilities of wealth could not hold the boy. The outcome was that Mr. Mark, Sr., declined to favor his aspiring son's journey along the Great White Way in New York. In 1877, with a five-dollar bill in his pocket, good clothes on his back and hunger in his stomach, he landed in the great metropolis. All day he tramped Broadway in search of a job. Later in the day Mitchell walked into the wholesale hat store of Young Bros. and demanded work. He landed the position and the first week his salary was $4.50.

A Bent for Original Publicity.

Mr. Mark later opened a hat store at 73-77 Seneca street, Buffalo. He cleaned up every spring and fall by throwing what hats were left from the roof of his store to the waiting crowd.

Mitchell Mark was associated in these old Buffalo days, as he is at present, with his younger brother, Moe Mark. The Mark firm advertised with humanitarian methods, feeding the kiddies ice-cream bi-weekly during the summer, and forming a bread and coffee line for the unemployed in the winter. They were the pioneers of freak advertising in Buffalo, and some of their methods, which would pass without comment today, attracted much attention.

In 1893 the ladder of success slipped on the greensward between Niagara Falls and Tonawanda and threw Mitchell H. Mark off. He picked himself up, having dropped every dollar he had in the purchase of a real estate bubble. One day some men wanted to get back to California and offered to sell a store full of phonographs to Mr. Mark. The success of this one small venture set him to thinking along a new line which later made him famous—moving pictures.

Starts His First Picture Show.

The next move was a basement moving picture theater in Ellicott Square, Buffalo, which netted the interesting sum of $18,000 a year in a spot twelve feet wide by fifty feet deep.

In 1907 Mr. Mark opened the Theater Comique of Boston, Mass., one of the first moving picture theaters in the country. Then he was soon known as one of the leading exhibitors of the United States.

The New Victoria theater, Buffalo, one of the handsomest in the country, is Mr. Mark's favorite, although he built the New York Strand and other magnificent theaters. It is his idea, cherished largely by himself, and is up to the minute in equipment and construction. The Victoria is located in a fine West Side residential district. In regard to this house Mr. Mark said, "The people out here were loyal patrons of my little Victoria theater, my former house in this neighborhood, and I decided to give them one of the handsomest theaters that could be built—the New Victoria."

---

BUFFALO'S FIRST TEN-CENT EXHIBITOR.

"Jim" Wallingford Started With Keith's and Eventually Controlled Eight Theaters.

CLOSELY coupled with the early history of the moving picture business of Buffalo is the name of "Jim" Wallingford, general manager of the Grey Amusement Company, which has a moving picture theater at 263 Main street. Mr. Wallingford has the distinction of having opened the first ten-cent moving picture theater in Buffalo. This was Keith's, located near Mr. Wallingford's present house. His plan to advance the price of admission was soon followed by other local exhibitors. Mr. Wallingford also installed a pipe organ in Keith's. This was the first pipe organ placed in any moving picture theater in New York state. He is no longer connected with Keith's, which is now a five-cent house.

At one time Mr. Wallingford had eight moving picture theaters under his control. He reports that he was the first in the city to see the possibilities of Charlie Chaplin as a film comedian. A few years ago Mr. Chaplin appeared in person at Shea's vaudeville theater, Buffalo. The act was entitled "A Scene in an English Music Hall." Chaplin acted the part of an intoxicated man in a box at the "make-believe" theater.

Jim Wallingford.

Of course his antics caused a storm of laughter and Mr. Wallingford was among those in the audience who were delighted with the turn. Shortly afterward Mr. Chaplin appeared in the Keystone comedies, not as a lead, but playing back of Ford Sterling. Mr. Wallingford recognized on the screen the laughmaker, who had appeared in person in Buffalo, and immediately began "to play up Chaplin for all he was worth." Mr. Wallingford placed in front of his theater several Chaplin banners and had enlargements made from the Chaplin picture as it apeared on the film.

According to Mr. Wallingford, if you educate your patrons to depend on a good show, they will continue their patronage, which will quickly fall away if this condition is reversed. Mr. Wallingford has been a firm believer in the power of novelties. His efforts in this line have been rewarded by steady attendance at his theaters for years.

THE PASSING OF THE BIJOU.

After Ten Years of Prosperity, Buffalo's Popular Little Theater Gives Place to New Building.

ROBERT H. TIFFT, head of the Tifft Theater Corporation, was the last owner of the Bijou Dream, one of the first picture shows in Buffalo, located at Main and North Division streets. Particular interest is attached to this theater, because it was closed permanently on June 3, 1916. The building will be razed and the site and additional space will be used for the location of a handsome structure for the Bank of Buffalo.

Although "bushels and bushels of nickels" have poured into the box office of the Bijou for many years, it was believed the site was too valuable to be used for a theater of small capacity. The Bijou will therefore pass into Buffalo's moving picture history as only a memory.

Robert H. Tifft.
Last Owner Bijou Dream Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

When Mr. Davis opened the Bijou in 1906, the money spent on the front and interior of the building was a revelation to Buffalonians at that time. The front was a mass of electric lights and the terra cotta and mural decorations aroused great wonder and interest. G. W. Erdmann, who afterwards managed the Elmwood theater, Buffalo, was among the first of the Bijou managers. At that time it was customary to supplement the moving picture programs with singing. Mr. Erdmann, who was a good singer, furnished vocal selections in addition to his managerial efforts. Moving pictures have been the only attraction at the Bijou for the past five years.

J. H. Beaver later took charge of the theater, and in September, 1914, sold it to the Tifft Theater Corporation, headed by Robert H. Tifft. Mr. Tifft reports he increased the receipts 100 per cent. the past year.

"On the advice of John Oishei, manager of the Teck theater, Buffalo, a Shubert house," said Mr. Tifft, "we enlarged the lobby, and replaced the 'circus front' with dignified decorations. Mr. Oishei sent me Harry Byrne, of the Teck theater, and under Mr. Byrne's management the Bijou was put on its feet. We had fourteen shows a day, from 9 o'clock in the morning up to 11 o'clock at night.

Bijou Dream, Buffalo, N. Y.

"We sold tickets up to 10.45 in the evening, and had regular patrons who came at 9 o'clock in the morning. Between that hour and 10 o'clock in the evening we seldom had less than 100 persons in the house. The building is only 25 feet by 70 feet, and no person in the audience could get more than twenty-five feet from an exit. Despite the millions who visited the Bijou, the crowds were always well handled, and I am glad to say no serious mishap ever marred the success of the theater. During the past year the Bijou was known as a Chaplin house because we featured a Chaplin picture every day."

The closing of the Bijou is an emphatic sign of the tendency of the "half million or million dollar moving picture palaces" superseding the smaller five-cent houses in Buffalo.

J. A. McGUIRE.

FRED T. SCOTT, A DIPLOMATIC MANAGER.

One of the best known moving picture theater managers in Kansas City, Mo., is Fred T. Scott, who directs the fortunes of the Apollo theater, 3227 Troost avenue. The Apollo takes its place at the head of the suburban picture houses and one can see in just what place Mr. Scott ranks. He is a hustler in every sense of the word, and in addition to being one of the best known of the managers is also one of the most popular, and there are a lot of moving picture theaters in Kansas City. Every night you go to the Apollo you will find Mr. Scott near the entrance listening to the compliments being showered on this theater, and sometimes he will be soothing an annoyed patron who came about thirty minutes later and could not find an empty seat in the house. But this latter class is just one reason for Mr. Scott's success. He is diplomatic in every sense of the word. And when he talks to you and tells you what a wonderful program will be shown at the Apollo tomorrow night, that genial smile of his and that spirit of friendliness simply carry you away. You hurry to the box office and stand in line to get a glimpse at a picture show in one of Kansas City's best theaters, guided by one of Kansas City's ablest managers.

Fred T. Scott.
Manager Apollo Theater, Kansas City, Mo.

Cleveland, O., Boasts of Some "Pioneer" Picture Men

The Bullocks Were There in 1904 and Are Still Going Some--Megown is "Old Timer."

ONLY about half a dozen of those who were in the motion picture business in the "pioneer" days in Cleveland, are still picture men, others having died, or gone into a less nerve-racking business. Among these "pioneers," in the picture game as early as 1904 or 1905, are Sam Bullock, Louis Becht, Frank M. Kenney, W. J. Slimm, H. A. Rosenberger, George W. Heinbuch and Fred J. Schad.

The first picture theater in Cleveland, the American, was started in November, 1904, by William Bullock, brother of Sam Bullock. The American was located on Superior avenue, near East 6th street, in the heart of the downtown section. It seated 320 persons and was regarded as a marvel of up-to-dateness, as the box office receipts showed nightly.

Frank M. Kenney, Treasurer Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

Bullock being the son of William Bullock, a veteran magic lantern and dissolving view operator widely known in England, he fitted into the moving picture business as naturally as if he had been born in it. As part of his equipment in the American, Bullock brought with him a few hundred stereopticon slides to supplement the moving picture machine and limited number of reels then obtainable. He also delivered lectures or travel talks with the pictures, and showed many films which he himself had made in Yellowstone Park, the Grand Canyon and other parts of the west. Within a few years, Bullock cleared enough to quit the business and went west where he bought a ranch. Today he is living in Los Angeles.

Within a year after Bullock opened the American, there were about half a dozen picture theaters in Cleveland, principally what were known as "store" shows.

One of the first men to open a "store" show was Frank M. Kenney, treasurer of the Northwestern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and Ohio vice-president of the national organization. In 1905, Kenney opened the Clark theater in a store room near Clark avenue and West 46th street. For nearly four year, Kenney operated this theater with only 125 seats, but the place was always crowded and Kenney refers to this period as "those good old days." In 1909, Kenney built a modern 400-seat house opposite his store show, and is still operating this theater, known also as the Clark. His original theater was one of the first to invade the west side.

Sam Bullock Began Early.

While William Bullock was operating the American theater, his brother Sam Bullock was "breaking into the business" with him. When William Bullock left Cleveland for the west, Sam Bullock opened the Temple theater, at West 25th street and Detroit avenue, in September, 1907. Outgrowing this 200 seat house, Bullock then went into partnership with another man and opened the Madison theater, a 200 seat house at West 72nd street and Madison avenue, and the Brookside Airdome opposite Brookside Park. After operating these two houses for a season, Bullock with two other men, now retired from the business, opened two theaters on St. Clair avenue and bought the Grand theater on Lorain avenue, near West 25th street. Later he purchased the Grand from his partners and ran it until 1909, when he sold it to a former partner and opened the Columbia theater, Sam Bullock, with Ernest Schwartz, and others, then organized the Erie Amusement Company, and took over the Casino theater at East 71st street and Kinsman road, the Erie at East 31st street and Woodland avenue and the Columbia. The Columbia was later sold to the Columbia Amusement Company and Bullock retired from the Erie Company. For the past two years he has managed the Columbia and the Boulevard theater at 9904 Lorain avenue.

Louis H. Becht, now owner of the Mall theater, Superior avenue, opened Dreamland, on Euclid avenue, which is the oldest downtown picture theater still in existence, in 1908. He was there two years when he opened the Mall where he now is. At that time the American had ceased to exist.

Becht Building a "Duplex."

Now Becht is spending $100,000 on a new Mall, to be a duplex theater, each auditorium to seat 650 persons and have both entrances from Euclid avenue, which run parallel. This house will be ready for opening about Nov. 1. The present Mall, one of the most popular downtown houses, seats 300 persons.

George W. Heinbuch, now proprietor of the Superior theater, started a store show under the same name at 8607 Superior avenue, April 26, 1906. The seating capacity at first was only 110, but in the four years Heinbuch remained there, the house was enlarged to seat 210 persons. The present Superior theater was opened in 1910. It seats 600. Heinbuch also ran Shadowland at 6410 Superior avenue, for a year, in conjunction with the Superior. Shadowland has ceased to exist.

W. J. Slimm, proprietor of the Marquis theater, 1755 Crawford Road, another "pioneer," started the Hough Avenue theater, 8521 Hough avenue, in 1909. This was a store show with only 200 seats but Slimm is still highly enthusiastic over the success he attained at that time. He remained in the Hough until 1912, when he took over the Marquis, then a new house seating 400. Before he became an exhibitor he was a stock broker.

About the time Kenney, Becht, and Slimm entered the business, H. A. Rosenberger, of the Enjoy-U, West 77th street and Lake avenue; George Heinbuch, of the Superior theater, 8303 Superior avenue; and Fred J. Schad, of the Gordon Park theater, 7115 St. Clair avenue, started houses near their present locations.

Original Theater, Clark Avenue and West 46th Street, Started by Frank M. Kenney in 1905, Cleveland, O.

Though Charles A. Megown, of the Cameraphone theater, is not one of the Cleveland "pioneers," he has been in the moving picture business longer than any Cleveland man and has had many years of experience as a showman.

Megown Is "Old Timer."

As early as 1898, Megown was operating a traveling motion picture show with an old Edison machine and acetylene gas tanks. Megown traveled through Pennsylvania and Ohio with this outfit, showing in schoolhouses and making a good living. Then beginning about 1902, he handled a moving picture outfit with a carnival company, until he opened a store show on Vine street in Cincinnati. After a year in Cincinnati, Megown went to Chicago where he opened the Swanson theater at 39th street and Cottage Grove avenue,

In 1911 he came to Cleveland and opened the Camera-phone theater at 736 Euclid avenue, which he now runs. Megown is special representative of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and one of the hardest workers in that organization.

W. H. Miller, manager of the Olympia and Haltnorth theaters, opened the first picture show in Lorain, O., in 1903. He remained there for three years before coming to Cleveland. The theater in Lorain was a 250 seat house called the Amuse U. Miller remodeled it twice before he sold the house.

Present Clark Theater, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Standard theater, 813 Prospect avenue, is one of the largest and most popular of the downtown picture theaters in Cleveland. Joseph Grossman, who with his wife operates the theater, opened it just two years ago. The Standard was the first downtown house to charge ten cents admission, and is the only house which runs its entire program for a week. Grossman books Fox first run features with twenty-one days protection, and declares his S. R. O. sign works overtime. The Standard seats 700.

When Grossman opened the Standard, failure was predicted because of the fact that the entrance to the house is one of the longest in the city. Grossman overcame this allegedly objectionable feature by artistic treatment of the entrance. In observance of his second anniversary, he has just had the lobby transformed into a rose bower, by the use of trellis work and thousands of artificial flowers.

One of the largest and prettiest theaters in Cleveland, built originally for pictures, is the Alhambra, at Euclid avenue and East 105th street. The house now seats 1,100 and during the summer a balcony with 400 seats is to be added. The house was built five years ago.

Originates Children's Matinees.

Jack Greenbaum, manager since the Alhambra-Doan Company took over the theater, fourteen months ago, originated the "children's matinee" idea in Cleveland. Special programs for children are shown every Saturday. School teachers aid Greenbaum in the selection of the pictures for the children.

The Knickerbocker Theater, 8315 Euclid avenue, boasts of the most exclusive patronage of any Cleveland picture theater. Emery M. Downs, who manages both the Knickerbocker and the Metropolitan Theater, says high class music and the best obtainable pictures have built up this reputation.

All the ushers in the Knickerbocker, which has 1,100 seats, are college boys, from either Western Reserve University or the Case School of Applied Science.

Morris Spitalney's orchestra provides music with the pictures. The Knickerbocker charges 10, 20 and 35 cents for admission.

The Gordon Square Theater at West 64th street and Detroit avenue, built four years ago, was at that time the largest theater in Cleveland built primarily for pictures. It seats 1,250 people. Harry DuRocher manages both the Gordon Square and the Liberty Theater, the latter built a year ago, seating 1,500 people. Both houses have orchestras.

HUBERT PERSONS.

St. Louis, Missouri, "One of Our Best Picture Towns"

Had 250 Picture Houses in 1909, but Less than Half as Many Picture Theaters With Greater Capacity Today.

A MAN with a droop to the corners of his mouth, a look of pessimism and I-told-you-so plastered all over his countenance, stopped us on the street the other day.

"Look-a-here," he said, "did you know that this moving picture craze is about to pass? In 1909 there were more than two hundred and forty-five theaters in this town, while to-day—" he stopped to allow a shudder to pass over his frame, "to-day, there are only a very few over one hundred."

This pessimist is right, his figures are correct. These chaps usually do have the right totals, but they never get beyond that; their reasoning is all on the surface, and as soon as we got our statistical breath we proceeded to upset him with some figures of our own. We slammed into him with the fact that the one hundred and odd theaters in St. Louis to-day have a greater seating capacity than all of the houses that flourished six years ago combined.

We poked him in the arithmetical ribs and called his attention to the fact that one theater alone, the New Grand Central, cost as much to build and equip as twenty of the shows that went to make up his big total. We thumped him on the chest with the long and bony index finger of a hungry scribe and mentioned the names of twenty-two houses to-day that will hold as many people as one hundred and fifty of his six year ago theaters. We spoke feelingly of the fact that but few of the houses he mentioned had all picture bills, but most of them interpolated bad vaudeville and worse amateur acts between their reels.

We drew a deadly parallel between the equipment of the old time nickel show with its unattractive front and foully ventilated interior, and the luxury, comfort and sanitary condition of the houses of to-day, with their Persian rugs and soft footed and gentlemanly ushers, and the air of refinement and high class that prevails in almost every house in town. We staggered him with a list of names: The King's, the Delmar, the Lindell, the American, the Cinderella, the Pageant, the Shaw, the Knickerbocker, the Lafayette, the Juniata, the Cherokee, the Arsenal, the Mikado, the Mogler, the King Bee, the Plaza, the Majestic, the Cravois, the Webster, the Cabanne, the Strand, the Royal, the Congress, the Lyrics, the Plymouth, the St. Charles, the Arco, and many more, each suggesting the best in modern theaters, and in fact just when we were really getting wound up about right, the Pessimist faded down the street, his coat tails flying signals of defeat.

St. Louis One of "Best Towns."

St. Louis is recognized as one of the best moving picture towns in the country. The growth of the industry has been very rapid. Of course the town passed through the usual period when any vacant store room and a handful of chairs was considered good enough for the exhibition of pictures, but these early exhibitors, who started on shoe-strong capital, saw the possibilities of the pictures and put their earnings right back into the business, and enlarged their houses or built new ones. Men with brains and vision entered the game and the mushroom period soon passed. To-day there are not three closed houses in the city, and new places are going up at the rate of five or six a year.

Many of the men who started out with a small room and a few chairs are the picture magnates of today. Many, too, have fallen by the wayside.

The honor of starting the first show in St. Louis lies between one Goldgrabber, and the Miller brothers, old showmen of the circus type. The establishment of the two houses was almost simultaneous, and both were on Franklin avenue. Goldgrabber did not live up to his name, it seems, at any rate he did not grab enough gold out of the business to make him keep on in it.

His projection machine fell into the hands of John Karzin, who opened a place at 1528 Market street, eleven years ago. Karzin operated the place for a while with a partner, who afterwards sold out his interest to Karzin and drifted out of the business.

Karzin kept on and is successfully operating as the owner of the Casino, and the Royal, just across the street from one another on Market street, as well as being the president of the McKinley Amusement Company, which controls the Majestic, a big house of the best type at 10th and Franklin avenues.

Gentner a Pioneer and a Fighter.

John Gentner is another pioneer, and one of the first exhibitors in St. Louis. Mr. Gentner acquired an old blacksmith shop at 22nd and Market street, and turned it into a theater, with a hundred seats. The place soon became too small, and had to be considerably enlarged for the increased business that came to it. This house, the Retina, is probably the only theater that has run continuously from the beginning of the establishment of pictures in St. Louis without change of name, ownership or management. Even while the house was being remodeled, the performance was not interrupted, and the audience sat and watched the films to the accompaniment of the carpenters' saws and hammers.

Mr. Gentner was one of the first managers to organize the exhibitors into a protective league, and he is now president of the Theater Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Protective Association.

Gentner has also been a fighter against censorship, and as early as four years ago had thousands of booklets printed, giving exhaustive data on the subject, which he distributed to his audience. Gentner has many interesting reminiscences of the early days, and tells of the time when he ran "The James Boys of Missouri," a two reel thriller based on the exploits of Frank and Jesse James, the outlaws. "I gave 27 shows a day and all the time the house was packed and the sidewalk jammed with people waiting to get in. I had a singer who sang a song with each performance. I wonder how she did it, but she came up to the scratch with her 27 songs a day for a whole week, and was just as fresh and in as good a tone at the finish as she was at the start," said Mr. Gentner.

The first show in the down town shopping district opened on Broadway between Market and Walnut streets, and was the evolution of a penny arcade.

E. A. Schwartz, manager of the St. Charles theater at the present time, was the manager of the house, which was called the Scenic, afterwards the Little Hippodrome, then the Sun, and now flourishing as the Dixie.

The Lyceum, on Sixth near Walnut, was opened about the same time by Frank Talbot, of Hippodrome fame. Schwartz used one reel for five cents admission, but his competitor at the Lyceum gave his patrons a smashing big program of two reels and felt justified in collecting a dime for it.

"Most of the films those days contained six and seven subjects to the reel; a little slap stick comedy, a bit of travel, some scenic stuff and maybe a boxing contest or a dog fight. When we got a film with two subjects on it was thought we had a feature," said Mr. Schwartz, in talking of his early managerial experiences. "There were no exchanges; we got our films from O. T. Crawford, who had about fifteen or twenty reels in a small room.

"We just went into Crawford's place and looked over his subjects and took what we wanted. The exchange was as yet unborn."

It is worthy of note that this small room of which Mr. Schwartz speaks afterwards became the Swanson-Crawford Film Exchange, one of the biggest distributing centers in the country.

Theaters began to spring up over night about this time. The Gem was built across the street from the Lyceum. This place was the biggest in town for a while, and proved to be a gold mine for its operators, Crawford and Talbot.

Sievers Had "Talking Pictures.

Then William Sievers opened the Grand Central at the corner of 6th and Market. Mr. Sievers brought the first talking pictures to St. Louis.

"They were very popular for a while," said Sievers, "but the poor actors had a hard time of it. Moving picture players did not speak their lines as much as they do now, and the willing actors behind the curtain were often compelled to remain silent when they might have supplied the most thrilling words to the action if the players had only opened their mouths and said something when the film was made. Motion picture acting in those days ran largely to pantomime and gestures, and when the performers did speak they never said enough or talked long enough to give the "talkologue" people chance to get in really good work."

The writer remembers seeing a talking picture at the Grand Central. There was a thrilling scene where the innocent young man was accused of murder, and at the trial scene where he was charged with the crime, and should have given the talker behind the curtain a chance to say "Not guilty" in ringing tones, he only compressed his lips and shook his head with a look of truth-will-out-some-day expression on his face. But when the heroine rushed in with the "papers," that proved his innocence he turned his back to the audience while he folded her in his arms—and then the actor, bursting with speech back behind the curtain, got his chance and made the most of it.

About this time many big and pretentious houses began to open. J. W. Cornelius built the Lyric, between Pine and Chestnut, on Sixth street. The Lyric seats less than a thousand, but it is splendidly equipped, and has been one of the most successful theaters in the city. Mr. Cornelius also operated the West End Lyric at Delmar and Euclid, and the Royal, a new house on Sixth street, up to the time of his death, which occurred on June 9, at Hot Springs, Ark.

In 1913 Wm. Sievers went out to Grand and Lucas avenues, thirty blocks away from the down town district and began the erection of the New Grand Central theater, a big 2,000 capacity house, to be devoted entirely to pictures. At this time vaudeville was still the rule in nearly all theaters. Many people thought this a daring project, but Sievers had faith in the business begot from his success at the downtown house, and the theater was made one of the show places of the town, at a cost of $175,000, and equipped with every modern appliance known to theater building, including an elaborate cooling, heating, and ventilating system and a huge pipe organ. The place soon became the talk of the town and country for miles around.

Crawford Promoted Many Houses.

O. T. Crawford is another name that has been writ largely in the history of moving picture development of the town. Crawford promoted a number of big houses, among them the Cherokee, the Gravois, the Mikado, the King's, the Delmar, the Novelty, and many others. Mr. Crawford has disposed of his interests and is not now actively engaged in the exhibition of pictures.

During the last year and a half a number of new houses, all of splendid proportions and a credit to the community, have gone up. These include the Pageant, the Shaw, the Webster, the Mogler, the Royal, the King Bee, and several others.

Michael Nash, owner of the King Bee, is another old timer that has helped to build up the business to its present standards. Mr. Nash was one of the very first exhibitors. He operated a small show on Franklin avenue, in the early days, and afterwards established a tent show on the corner of Jefferson and Howard streets. A little over a year ago he built the King Bee, a fine house with a large seating capacity and fully equipped with the latest improvements.

Joe Mogler is another name that is linked with the early days. Mr. Mogler was one of the pioneers, and had shows in various parts of the city. He has been a very successful exhibitor, and now owns the Mogler, a 2,000 seat house at 9th and Bremen avenue, one of the finest neighborhood houses in the city.

St. Louis is noted for the number of its magnificent neighborhood theaters, located thirty and forty and even sixty blocks from the downtown district, all as elegantly finished and equipped as those in the business section, and all are in a flourishing condition.

That the motion picture business has damaged the legitimate houses, is certain. A few years ago there were ten houses devoted to road shows. Now, outside of the Standard and the Gayety, both burlesque houses, there is left only the Olympic and the Shubert. The American went over to pictures a short time ago, and the Olympic, the old war horse of thirty years standing, while it is still running legitimate attractions, no doubt made more money on the "Birth of a Nation" films—which broke all records for long runs in the city—than it made on many a road show.

The Garrick, another legitimate house, is dark, and only opens its doors to a state rights film now and then.

The Columbia and the Grand and the Empress still do a nice business with vaudeville, but right now the Columbia is keeping its doors open in the otherwise closed season with films.

Much might be written about the whimsical side of the St. Louis film history. Mike Nash, John Gentner, Joe Mogler, William Sievers, E. A. Schwartz, John Karzin, Pohlmann and Zimmerman, and many others of the pioneers are rich with reminiscences.

A. H. GIEBLER.

Louisville, Kentucky, History Covers but Ten Years

Claims Second House in Country to Have Regular Moving Picture House Front-- Has Fine Theatres Now.

LOOKING back over a period of ten years, both lean and fat ones, the growth of the motion picture industry in Louisville has been truly remarkable, or, using a stronger adjective, wonderful may be given the preference. The motion picture industry, formerly commonly referred to as the "movies," has leaped forward in leaps and bounds, until it has developed into one of the greatest industries of the entire country. In place of one or two insignificant storerooms, the industry now controls about thirty-five photoplay houses in Louisville alone, many of which cost in excess of $50,000 to build. In fact, to the pioneers may be applied the quotation, "They Builded Better Than They Knew."

It has been within the last few years—within the memory of those among us who are still young—that the moving picture, or the "acting picture," was announced for its initial appearance at the old Masonic Temple theater, located at that time at Fourth and Jefferson streets, but long since dismantled. The new wonder was there demonstrated between the acts played by the Meffert Stock Company, of which Oscar Eagle, now a prominent man and World Film producer, was leading man. It was also at this theater that D. W. Griffith first broke into theatrical circles, starting as a supe. Among the first photoplays seen, if not the first, was a spectacular one entitled "The Great Train Robbery," which was unusually popular because of the realism it presented in melodrama, and melodrama was at its height in those days. Closely followed "The Female Dispatcher," another lauded production made by the old Biograph Company.

The First Moving Picture Theaters.

The moving picture industry took up its first home in Louisville at Fifth and Market streets, in the Dreamland theater, opening April 6, 1904. This theater is said to have been the second in the country with a regular moving picture front. A small storeroom was converted, the front painted white, and many incandescent lights installed. It was operated by Irvin Simons, Sam Lorch and Alex Kraemer. It probably seated about 150 people. In 1906 the Columbia, later known as the Bijou, was opened on Fourth, near Market, by William Riechmann, then manager and press agent for Hopkins theater, and Fountaine Ferry Park. This theater seated about 250 people, had a very elaborate front, and was the last word in moving picture construction of the day. One or more barkers were always on the job to allure loose dimes into the amusement house.

Judge W. Allen Kinney.

The largest photoplay house in the world in those days fell to this city when Hopkins theater was opened with photoplays in 1908, after having run as a vaudeville house for years. It was operated by O. T. Crawford, of St. Louis, who was interested in some smaller theaters and a local film exchange, and J. D. Tippet. The house had a seating capacity of 2,400 on the first floor, balcony and two galleries. After a successful run of several months the house was taken over by an Eastern concern, which controlled the lease. Later, under the management of Edward V. Dustin, now with the International Film Company, this house cleared $20,000 during a run of nine months; the news leaked out and small concerns began springing up everywhere. The theater continued to operate successfully until destroyed by fire less than two years ago.

Shortly after the Dreamland was opened a concern leased a building on Fourth street, near Walnut, and painted up an entrance representing two passenger cars. Travel scenes were shown on the inside of the theater, and, while of a great educational value, did not prove profitable. A similar show was given at Fountaine Ferry Park for one season.

The first house "out in town" was near Fourth and Walnut streets and was known as the Crystal theater, operating at Dreamland, Louisville, Ky.

First Motion Picture House in that City.

five cents. This theater was conducted by William H. Wassman, now a prominent exhibitor of Nashville, who operates the Crystal and Knickerbocker theaters. This house was dismantled when the lease expired.

The first theater in the residential district was opened in 1907 by the Broadway Amusement Company with a capital stock of $700. The original house cost less than $1,000. The first year's dividends were so stupendous that every one began looking for chances to take stock or open new houses. The Broadway theater of today cost $75,000 to build, was completed about a year or more ago, and the original stockholders are at the head of the Broadway Amusement Enterprises, a concern which controls eight houses in Louisville and others out in the state, representing a real estate value of over a quarter of a million dollars.

Judge W. Allen Kinney and Irving Simons obtained control of the Dreamland shortly after that house was opened. Later the Princess Amusement Company was organized and operated the Dreamland, the Bijou-Dream, and built the Casino, at Fourth and Green. The latter house is still in operation. The company also took over the Marvel theater, at Fourth and Jefferson streets, later known as the Princess. The Marvel ran the "Passion Play" for one solid month and did nicely. The Princess endeavored to show talking pictures, with a phonograph attachment, which proved a flat failure. Later the Princess was dismantled and the Orpheum built. The Princess Amusement Company today operates the Casino and Orpheum, and Judge Kinney is also at the head of the Star Amusement Company, which operates the Star theater, at Fourth and Jefferson streets.

In 1908 Louis J. Dittmar, salesman for a Cincinnati shoe house and resident of Louisville, started the Majestic Amusement Company, which is today one of the leading theaters of the Central West. At the time the theater was started the pictures were shown from behind the screen, and many people claimed that it would not be a success. However, it proved successful, and the house was twice remodeled to its present seating capacity of 1,200. In the early days there was a great deal of rivalry, knocking, etc., and trouble in getting films.

From one house in Louisville with a daily attendance of probably one hundred, its seating capacity, the industry has grown until the combined attendances at the various houses oftentimes amount to over 50,000 admissions in a single day. It is estimated that about 250,000 people out of a population of about 265,000 favor the theaters weekly.

Among the most experienced moving picture exhibitors of Louisville, and the ones who have done much toward giving the public a good run for its money, are Judge W. Allen Kinney, of the Princess Amusement Co.; Louis Dittmar, of the Majestic Amusement Co.; Joe Steurle, Louis Steurle and Fred J. Dolle, of the Broadway Amusement Enterprises; M. J. Switow, of the Switow Amusement Co., and Max L. Simons, connected with the Olympic, Hippodrome and Aristo theaters.

Louis J. Dittmar.

The Broadway Amusement Enterprises was organized about a year ago to facilitate handling the many interests controlled by the original Broadway Company. This concern handles all of the affairs of the company's string of theaters at its offices over the Alamo theater, owned by the Fourth Street Amusement Co. All film bookings, contracts, etc., are made through the Enterprises company, which is in reality a sort of booking office, ably managed by Fred J. Dolle. The company controls the largest and finest string of theaters in the South, among which are the Alamo, seating 1,100; the East Broadway, 1,300; the Ideal, 1,200; the West Broadway, 700; the Rex, 450; the Crown, 700; the Baxter, 450, and with an airdome seating 1,500; and the Walnut, with a seating capacity of 1,000. Films which are booked for showing at the downtown houses in many cases are later run in the outskirts houses. The Walnut, Alamo and Rex represent the downtown theaters.

M. J. Switow, head of the Switow Amusement Company, for several years has been a leader and a very interesting figure in moving picture circles. Mr. Switow, so the story goes, at one time operated a small restaurant in southern Indiana. Becoming interested in moving pictures, he installed a machine, placed a screen at the rear of the restaurant and at night converted the place into a small picture house, which did fairly well. He decided that if he could make money with a small one-horse show he could do well in a larger city. One night after the show was over, and following a hard day, he dropped asleep in the restaurant, and had a dream in which he fancied he saw a large moving picture house, seating hundreds of people. Later, when the Switow Amusement Company, of Louisville, began building houses, Mr. Switow began naming his theaters "Switow's Dream." The company has built and operated many theaters in Kentucky and southern Indiana, and Mr. Switow promoted the Alamo theater and also the Strand, of Lexington, one of the largest theaters in the state.

Majestic Theater, Louisville, Ky.

The Preston Street Amusement Company and the Baxter theater operate combined airdomes and closed houses, enabling them to handle as large or a larger summer business as in the winter time. Most of the outskirts theaters have a seating capacity of at least 500, while the seating capacity of the regular moving picture theaters of the city combined is estimated at about 30,000, while several of the old theaters and the Keith house operate with pictures in the summer time or spasmodically. All told, there is a moving picture seating capacity of nearly 40,000 in the city, if all the available theaters were operating.

According to the opinion of the leading exhibitors, Louisville at this time has about as many moving picture theaters as the city can support, and there is not much room for enlargement at this time. The Strand theater, with a large seating capacity, recently closed its doors, as the business was not to be had, and a great deal of the best film service is sowed up.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

Detroit, Michigan, the Home of the Famous "Duplex"

Unique Development in Motion Picture Architecture--Many Pioneers Started in Business There.

THE history of the moving picture industry of this city is unusually interesting for more reasons than one. In the first place, one of the leading exhibitors of this country had his real start in the city of Detroit, that was Mitchell Mark, who controls the Strand theater in New York, and other moving picture houses throughout the east.

The first moving picture theater in Detroit was opened by the late Arthur Caille on Monroe avenue and was known as the Casino; associated with Mr. Caille in this enterprise was John H. Kunsky, who now controls a chain of eight motion picture houses in this city. About the same time that the Casino opened, Wililam F. Klatt opened the Bijou theater also on Monroe avenue; on the first floor he operated a penny arcade while the theater proper was upstairs. Both houses ran continuous from 9 o'clock A. M. to 11 o'clock P. M., with a five-cent admission price. Not long thereafter the Princess was opened by the Princess Amusement company, of which Mitchell Mark was the "whole thing." This is the only pioneer moving picture theater that is still in operation, both the Casino and the Bijou having discontinued business about a year ago.

After the opening of the Casino, Messrs. Cahille and Kunsky branched out and opened other houses. About three years ago Mr. Kunsky bought out the interests of Mr. Caille, which included the Casino, the Empress, the Majestic and the Columbia. Mr. Kunsky after getting the full control of these houses continued to expand until at the present time he controls the Empress, Columbia, Garden, Liberty, Washington, Alhambra, Royal and Strand theaters. For a number of years he also conducted a film exchange, releasing all Paramount Pictures, but he has practically given up the exchange department for the present in order to give more time to his other interests, and particularly his latest enterprise, the Madison theater, which he is erecting at the corner of Broadway and Grand Circus Park, will seat about 3,000 people and will be his finest house. It will be ready about the first of November and will be exclusively for motion pictures. Associated with Mr. Kunsky in the conduct of these enterprises is George W. Trendle, who has been an important factor in the success of Mr. Kunsky; he has guided him at all times legally and otherwise, and the combination of two men of the Kunsky and Trendle type is "hard to beat."

William F. Klatt has been an extensive operator in the moving picture business. After the Bijou opened he branched out and started houses throughout the city. At the present time he operates the Vendome on Grand River, the Gratiot on Gratiot avenue, and the Rosedale on Woodward avenue. He is also building the Regent theater at Woodward and Horton avenues, which will accommodate about 3,000 people and which will be the largest outskirt theater in Detroit.

A. J. Gilligham.

Detroit is proud of having two of the most unique theaters in the United States—other cities may have similar houses by this time, but Detroit takes the credit for having them first. We refer to the Majestic, an amphitheater at Woodward and Willis avenues, and the Duplex, at Woodward avenue and the Grand Boulevard. The Majestic seats about 2,000 people and was erected through the efforts of the late Arthur Caille. It has been called by "men who ought to know" as the finest moving picture theater in the United States. It is certainly the most popular theater in Detroit. The present officers are: Frederic G. Austin, president; Frank A. Westbrook, vice-president, and Henry J. Guthard, treasurer. The house manager is M. W. McGee, formerly of New York City, and right here a word of praise to Manager McGee, who certainly knows what his patrons want. Although located about one mile and a half from the downtown district, the Majestic draws its patronage from every part of Detroit and suburbs.

The Duplex theater is exactly as its name implies—a theater with two auditoriums. The object of the Duplex is that people may see all features from the beginning. When the feature once starts, the doors are closed and no further admissions are allowed. While the feature is being shown in No. 1 auditorium, the comedies and other pictures are on the screen of No. 2 auditorium. Just as soon as the feature finishes in No. 1 auditorium, it is transferred to No. 2 auditorium and the doors are likewise closed there. In this way there are no interruptions while the feature is being shown in either auditorium. The idea is an excellent one and seems to be working out very satisfactorily at the Duplex, where the business is getting better each week. The manager of the Duplex is Charles W. Porter, an old-time showman, who for some three years was manager of the Miles vaudeville theater in Detroit and who originated the idea of giving two hours of motion pictures gratis preceding the afternoon shows on week days.

Another pioneer in the moving picture industry is A. J. Gilligham, of Detroit, who operates the Empire theater on Woodward avenue, and who is also president and general manager of the Gilligham & Smith Enterprises in Grand Rapids, Mich., operating six houses in that city. Mr. Gilligham was, until recently, manager of the Detroit office of the General Film Company. Before engaging in the exhibiting end of the motion picture business, Mr. Gilligham was for many years connected with circuses and road shows. He has accumulated vast interests in Detroit and Grand Rapids during the past ten years, and it is to these interests that he will devote more of his time in the future. He has just opened offices on the third floor of the Empire theater building.

And just a few more words about the Princess theater, on Woodward avenue, between Congress and Larned streets. It is now operated by the Princess Amusement Company, of which J. E. Thomas is president. The theater is in charge of L. A. Chapeton, who formerly was operator at the same house. The Princess was erected in about 1907 and was the first strictly motion picture theater in the city—that is showing pictures exclusively, both the Casino and Bijou showing pictures and a little vaudeville. The Princess seats 316 and the original embellishments are still there, although each year or two they are done over. The Princess was the first house to put in Universal service, and it has been a Universal patron continuously ever since the beginning.

Another pioneer is Art Blankmeyer, who operates the Grand Circus theater, 301 Woodward avenue. Art has been dabbling in both the exchange and the theater end of the business. Phil Gleichman and W. H. Goodfellow were also pioneers in the moving picture business in Detroit.

Henry J. Guthard, treasurer of the Majestic theater, has become quite a factor in the theater end of the industry in the past two years. He is also operating the Fine Arts and the Norwood theaters in Detroit, and the Marx and Majestic theaters in Wyandotte. With the late Arthur Caille, he had extensive plans for the future that would have materially increased his list of theaters, but these plans have been dropped at least for the present.

A word of commendation is justly due to Harry I. Garson, managing director of the Broadway-Strand theater, on Broadway near Gratiot avenue. Up to the time Mr. Garson leased this house, about eighteen months ago, the Broadway-Strand had been a complete failure under the lease of about a half dozen good showmen. The owner was having plans drawn for tearing down the structure or remodeling the same into stores and offices, when Mr. Garson came to town in search of a theater. He was able to convince the owner that under the proper management the Broadway-Strand could be made successful. The owner said, "Go ahead and see what you can do." Mr. Garson made good from the very start. He installed a twenty-four-piece orchestra, a huge Wurlitzer pipe organ, and gave a varied program, with big features as the main attraction, each week. He announced that all attractions would run for a full week. Many people predicted that Mr. Garson would never "put it over," but he certainly proved that there was a way to make the Broadway-Strand successful; it has been successful ever since, and is now considered one of the leading theaters of Detroit.

Princess Theater, Detroit, Mich.

The remark has often been made by outsiders that Detroit is the best motion picture town in the United States and that it has more fine, large theaters in the outskirts than any town in the country, for its size. JACOB SMITH.

---

A Progressive Exhibitor.

Frank L. Newman, the owner of the two newest downtown moving picture theaters, heads the list of exhibitors in Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Newman installed features in his Royal theater, opened two years ago, and has made it a show spot of the city. On March 25 last, he opened the Regent, on East 12th street, having erected a handsome building. He is in the front of every progressive movement for the betterment of the industry and is recognized among the exchanges as one of the most successful exhibitors in the history of Kansas City.

San Francisco, Cal., Dates Back to the Year 1894

Peter Bacigalupi was First Dealer--Greatest Development Has Come Since the Earthquake and Fire of 1906

ONE of the pioneers in the moving picture business on the Pacific Coast is Peter Bacigalupi, of the firm of Peter Bacigalupi & Sons, 908 Market street, San Francisco, now handling phonographs and automatic musical instruments. Mr. Bacigalupi was interested in the moving picture industry from 1894, when the first machines were brought here, until the great fire of 1906, when he turned his attention to other lines. His memory is clear on the early days of the industry and he has some interesting relics to show of the pioneer days. Among these are business cards he had made shortly after the first films were brought to the Coast. Whenever a film became torn or badly worn it would be cut up and a section pasted over a hole cut in a business card, making a souvenir that was in much demand in those days. One of the most interesting relics in his possession, however, is a card establishing the date when moving pictures were first shown here. This reads as follows:

San Francisco, June first, 1894.

This is to certify that Captain John F. Ryan, United States Government Diver (a Christian), was the first man who paid to see the Edison Kinetoscope west of Chicago.

(Signed) HOLLAND BROS.

This was written in the back of a business card bearing the following wording:

Edison Kinetoscope,
Holland Bros.,
Ottawa, Canada.
Foreign Agents.
Represented by A. Holland.

"When Holland Bros. brought the Edison Kinetoscope to the Pacific Coast," said Mr. Bacigalupi, "I closed a deal at once for the five machines they had, paying $2,500 for them. These were set up in a store in the Chronicle Building at Market and Kearney streets and people stood in line to see the pictures, paying a fee of 10 cents. This was before a screen was used, one person monopolizing a machine during the run of the film, which was, of course, very short. Backed by himself and others E. H. Amet of Waukegan, Ill., commenced the manufacture of a machine called the Magniscope, but only a few were made.

Peter Bacigalupi, San Francisco, Cal.

"Walter Furst was the first man to have a five-cent show here, his house being located on Market street about where the Odeon theater now is, this being known as the Cinegraph. At first vaudeville was given upstairs and when the performance here was over the audience would go to a room below where moving pictures were shown, everyone standing to see them, there being no seats. At first ten cents was charged, but later the vaudeville was eliminated and straight pictures were shown at five cents.

"One of the first attempts to use a screen in connection with moving pictures was made by a man named Wright who came here from Portland and worked for the late Charles L. Ackerman, the attorney. He took one of the coin-in-the-slot machines, turned it on its side and with but a few changes threw a picture on a screen. He later opened a theater on Market street, near Ffith, where the Lincoln Market now stands, and this house, with the one conducted by Walter Furst were among those destroyed by the fire of 1906.

About 1898 D. J. Grauman entered the field, after working for Walter Furst for a time, opening the Unique theater on market street, near Mason. He made a big success of the business and bought a large part of the films I was importing at that time. In 1900 I made a visit to Paris and bought a large quantity of Pathe, Gaumont and other foreign films and sold most of these to Mr. Grauman upon my return. Most of these films came in lengths of from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet and sold at about $25 for the shorter lengths. Some of these early subjects would be very interesting now. For instance, among the first films shown here were some featuring Ruth St. Denis, the dancer, Sandow and Anna Belle Moore.

"Among the first Biographs brought here was one showing Pope Leo XIII. I brought this to the Orpheum and at the same time brought John Brandlein, an operator, to the city, and he is still to be found here. The pictures of Pope Leo were also shown in Metropolitan Hall on Fifth street, but although they were excellent, about the best that had been shown here up to that time, the attendance was very light. Mrs. McEnerney, wife of the well known attorney, was an enthusiast over this picture, and saw it many times.

Unique Theater, Seattle, Wash., First Picture House of Miles Bros., Herbert Miles in Lobby.

"At the time of the fire of 1906 my headquarters were at 786 Mission street, up to then, and I was doing a big business in moving pictures, Edison machines and penny arcade goods. I operated two of the latter, one being on Market street, at Stockton, and the other in the historic old Bella Union theater on Kearny street. When I lost the Edison agency it was taken over by George Breck, the supply man."

Miles Brothers Made Early Start.

ALMOST every one who has been connected with the moving picture business in any way at San Francisco during the past fifteen years knows of Miles Bros., now located at 1145-47 Mission street, and of James A. Sciaroni, manager of the concern. This firm has been engaged in the making of moving pictures, in exhibiting and in exchange work, and is now confining its operations largely to commercial work, for which it enjoys a splendid reputation.

"The first venture of Miles Bros. in the moving picture field," said Mr. Sciaroni, "was in the late nineties, when they went into Alaska and made the first successful pictures secured in the territory, going in by Skagway and out by way of the Yukon. An Edison expedition covered the field a year earlier, but got only about one reel of good pictures out of thirty thousand feet.

"When they came out of the territory they went to Seattle and opened the first moving picture house there in November, 1901, fitting up an old store on Second avenue, between Union and University. In the picture I took of this theater Herbert Miles can be seen standing in the entrance and at the side is Thomas Crahan, formerly the Edison representative at Seattle. This theater had a combined seating and standing capacity of 160 and often we took in as much as $160 a day, with a ten-cent admission. Seattle was wild over Alaska and the gold fields, and the pictures we had were great drawing cards, it being necessary to change the program only about once a month. We stayed there but four months and then had to get out as the building was to be torn down. It was impossible to get another suitable store, so we came to San Francisco and started a film rental business at 116 Turk street. Later a move was made to Market street and a big studio was opened and a fine business was being done when the fire of 1906 occurred. Since then the firm has done commercial work mostly. Its experience in the exhibiting field is confined to four months at Seattle, where I operated the machine."

Herbert E. Miles.

"Al. Williams, who now makes slides, was one of those to get into the moving picture business here at an early date, but "Pop" Furst had the first house. Just before the fire of 1906 he turned this into a nickelodeon, but it was not as successful as when he charged a higher price. Grauman's Unique theater, also on Market street, was one of the next to be opened. Vaudeville and moving pictures seemed to have started here first and spread to the east, but the nickelodeon idea originated there and came to the Coast later. At one time San Francisco was quite a distributing center for films, shipments being made as far away as Chicago and New Orleans."

Mr. Scironi has a most commendable hobby, this being the making of moving pictures of children. He has taken many pictures of his own two fine youngsters and has interested others in this, feeling that in later years these will be greatly treasured. His many friends in the trade will be glad to know that he is recovering from the serious illness of a few months ago and is attending to his duties as usual.

D. J. Grauman Early in the Game.

A REVIEW of the early days in the moving picture industry in San Francisco would be incomplete without a reference to D. J. Grauman, who has continued his connection with the business until the present time. Shortly after the first moving picture show was opened here Mr. Grauman arrived from Alaska, where he had been working off a touch of the gold fever, and for a time was with "Pop" Furst, who had a small theater in the very heart of the city. Shortly after he became settled here he took over a store on Market street, between Mason and Taylor, and here was opened what Mr. Grauman believes to be the first ten-cent vaudeville house in America, the Unique theater, moving pictures being one of its leading attractions.

"When I first began showing moving pictures," said Mr. Grauman, " a hundred foot subject was regarded as being a long feature. Most of these came from France and England, and some of them were splendid pictures, as would be shown if run through a modern machine. Everything had to be bought outright and as there were but few made it was necessary to run them for a long time. People saw the same subjects over and over again, but there was never any complaints on that score. My stock of pictures was quite extensive and frequently I had from $3,000 to $5,000 tied up in these, an item of expense that the present day exhibitor knows nothing of.

"One of the funniest subjects ever shown at the Unique theater was a French picture known as 'A Trip to the Moon.' This created quite a sensation at the time and I showed it a great many times. In time Edison started making pictures, but the first ones were poor in quality and it was some time before they reached the standard set by the foreign makers.

"When the Unique theater was opened, about eighteen years ago, five acts of vaudeville and about 100 feet of pictures were given for ten cents, and the vaudeville acts were not the lengthy kind seen today. Short shows, short intermissions and no delays between the acts were the order of the day and there were always crowds waiting to get into the house. This little theater is quite a contrast to the Empress theater of today where eight acts of vaudeville and five reels of moving pictures are given for the same price of admission, ten cents."

Following the fire of 1906, Mr. Grauman re-opened for business in the Fillmore street district and when the downtown district was rehabilitated, opened the Imperial theater on Market street, which is regarded as being one of the finest moving picture houses in the city at the present time. He is now associated with his son, Sid Grauman, in the management of the Empress theater.

The Lessers Arrive.

IRVING LESSER is not to be classed among the old-time film men of San Francisco, as he is really one of the youngest men in the business, but he became identified with the industry immediately following the great fire of 1906 and has been connected with it ever since. "One of the first moving picture houses to be opened after the fire," he said, "was the Star theater of Sam Gordon, at Post and Fillmore streets. Then Edwin T. Emery opened one at Sutter and Steiner streets, and my father, Lesser Lesser, started one in the Mission district, shortly afterward opening a film exchange in the rear of the penny arcade adjoining. My father's house was called the Union, as he refused to ride in the street cars during the great car strike following the fire, but patronized the busses used by the union men. My part in this business venture was handling the Cornucopia concession in the theater. Sol. L. Lesser started in the business in 1907 in the exchange conducted by the Nickelodium Company, as my father named the firm.

"We soon had to move from the Mission and took a place at 1437 Fillmore street, but outgrew these quarters. Then we went to 964 Market street and about this time bought the first Imp reels, with Mary Pickford. In two years' time we moved again, this time locating at 44 Golden Gate avenue, but shortly afterward we went to 166 Golden Gate avenue and entered the supply business, in addition to handling films. In 1912 we secured the Mutual program and moved to 234 Eddy street, our present quarters. The name of the concern was changed to the Golden Gate Film Exchange in 1910, when it was incorporated. About two years ago all of our interests in moving picture theaters were disposed of."

Irving Lesser has been manager of the Golden Gate Film Exchanges, Inc., for the past year, being one of the youngest managers in the business here.

AFTER THE QUAKE AND FIRE.

San Francisco's Best Picture Theaters Have Been Built Since That Calamity.

DURING April of the present year San Francisco observed the tenth anniversary of the great fire which swept away her entire business district, as well as a large part of the residence section, with the total destruction of forty-five thousand buildings and a property loss estimated at nearly $400,000,000. At this time the moving picture industry, while not exactly a new one, moving pictures having been shown here as early as 1894, was just commencing to attract attention and the losses sustained were very limited. However, this disaster had a marked bearing upon future developments and conditions in the exhibiting field here are vastly different today than would have been the case had the city not suffered this severe blow. Instead of one great business district, as is the case in most cities, San Francisco is now supporting three and her suburban houses are among the finest to be found in any city in the world, regardless of size.

Immediately following the great disaster of 1906 a wonderful business district sprung up almost overnight along Fillmore street, formerly a residence section with a few stores. Great business houses opened there in temporary buildings, banks established themselves there and this thoroughfare became the Market street of the city. With millions of insurance money pouring into the city and the commencement of rebuilding work, wonderful prosperity ruled and there was an immediate demand for amusements. Theatrical magnates who had formerly been engaged in business in the downtown district erected large fireproof houses here, and these paid for themselves within a short time. In the Mission district, which also escaped the flames, almost identical conditions prevailed, although growth was slower there and but few large theaters were erected. Within a year business houses began to remove downtown and in two years' time large theaters were in course of erection there to take the place of the ones in the outlying districts.

In the course of time the downtown section was entirely rebuilt, but the stores and big theaters erected in the Fillmore and Mission districts remained and have been added to since then as they are in the centers of thickly populated residence sections. The seating capacities of the moving picture houses in these two districts alone exceed those of the theaters in the downtown section, which, however, is rapidly coming into its own.

The Downtown District.

Moving pictures were shown at the Orpheum theater on O'Farrell street about twenty-two years ago, or twelve years before the great fire, and were later shown at the Unique and Novelty theaters and other vaudeville houses. The first nickelodeon was one on Market street started by Walter Furst and this also had its inception as a vaudeville house with pictures shown in a room below the regular theater, the patrons standing up to see the show which lasted but a few minutes. A few months before the fire a second moving picture show was opened further up Market street on city property, where the Lincoln Market now stands, and as far as the writer remembers or can learn these were the only two exclusive moving picture houses destroyed by the fire.

The first moving picture house to be opened on Market street following the fire of 1906 was the Silver Palace, just above Third, with a seating capacity of about 400. This house, which was conducted by the late Benjamin Michaels and Harry M. Lichtenstein, was fitted up at a heavy expense and at the time was considered quite a wonderful place. It is still being operated and is now under the management of N. K. Herzog, who also has charge of the Pastime theater in the same block. Both of these houses make a daily change of program and charge an admission of five cents.

Probably the second house to be opened on Market street was the Gold Palace of I. H. Lichtenstein, about opposite Sixth street. This, however, did not prove to be a success. Then came the Unique theater on Market opposite Grant avenue. This house occupied the entire building in which it was located and was the first one that was not merely a converted store. It is still conducted by the same company that originally built it, in conjunction with the Odeon theater a few doors below, under the direct management of Joe Huff. Both of these places have been kept thoroughly abreast of the times in the matter of equipment and furnishings and a little over a year ago changed from a five-cent to a ten-cent policy. Paramount pictures are now being shown, together with Chaplins, of which a feature are made. These houses have a combined seating capacity of about 700.

The Portola theater on Market street, near Fourth, is one of the most interesting houses in the city. When first opened it was devoted to vaudeville and moving pictures, but has been showing the latter exclusively for several years. Under the able direction of Eugene Roth it was been made a great success with its never varying policy in regard to prices and the selection of attractions. It has a seating capacity of 1,100 and has shown many of the greatest films produced, at ten and twenty cents. So marked has been the success of this house that a company known as the Market Street Realty Company has been formed to erect a moving picture theater at Fourth and Market streets with a seating capacity of about 3,000, this house to be one of the finest in America. This company has taken over the Portola theater, as well as the Market Street theater, two blocks further up the street. This latter house, which has been conducted since its erection by Hallahan & Getz, has a seating capacity of 1,100, so that when the new theater is ready Mr. Roth will have charge of three houses within two blocks, with a total of about 5,200 seats.

The Imperial theater on Market street, above Sixth, has ben open for about four years. It has a seating capacity of 1,650 and shows Paramount productions exlusively at ten, twenty and thirty cents. Its fine music has been supplemented of late as an added attraction by beautifully designed stage sets and vocal talent, resulting in an artistically balanced entertainment that is bringing fame to its manager, J. L. Partington.

The Turner & Dahnken Circuit is firmly intrenched in the local field with the Tivoli theater, which it has conducted for almost three years with marked success. This house, the realized dreams of "Doc" Leahy, proved a failure as the home of grand opera, after a trial of eight months. It is a magnificent theater, representing an investment of more than half a million dollars and has a seating capacity of about 2,000, with admission prices of ten and twenty cents. It is located on Eddy street, near Mason, just a block from the headquarters of the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, which now has houses in three Pacific Coast states.

The Edison theater on Powell street, near Market, has been conducted for about seven years by the Edison Motion Picture Company, of which H. J. Gosliner is president and manager. It has a seating capacity of 400 and is located in a fireproof building. It was one of the first exclusive moving picture houses here to advance its prices from five to ten cents.

Within a short time after the fire of 1906 several moving picture houses were erected on Market street in the vicinity of Seventh. The Maio Biograph, conducted by Charles Maio, is one of the few that has continued under the same management since then. This is a five-cent house with a seating capacity of 300 and a daily change of program. The Panama theater across the street is of similar capacity and is conducted along the same lines by Mrs. Collins, the owner of the property. The Empire theater is conducted by J. D. Gibbs and F. M. Gibbs, whose connection with the moving picture business dates back to the early days in the business. This is a 300-seat house with a five-cent policy. The Elite theater on Market street, opposite Seventh, is operated by Sam Davis, under the management of S. N. Kanner. It has a seating capacity of 300 and is one of the few small houses to show moving pictures at ten cents and to run them for more than one day. Features that have been a marked success are shown here from five to seven days at ten cents.

The Peerless theater on Third street, near Folsom, is owned by the Sunset Amusement Company and is conducted under the management of A. Goldberg, who is also vice-president of the concern. Fully ninety-nine per cent. of the patrons are men and smoking is allowed on one side of the house. The house has a seating capacity of 307 and was opened about five years ago. Triangle and open market pictures are shown at five cents on week days and ten cents on Sunday.

The latest and one of the largest houses to enter the downtown field is the Rialto theater on Market street, above Seventh. This theater occupies the site of the old American and is conducted by the Western Theater Company, under the management of Howard J. Sheehan. It has a seating capacity of 1,600 and is showing a Metro program, with an International Film Service serial and news pictorial at ten, twenty and thirty cents.

The Fillmore District.

The Lyric theater on Fillmore street, between Turk and Eddy, was erected several years ago, but only recently was devoted to moving pictures. This house was formerly a part of the Chutes and after that amusement enterprise went out of business was dark for a long time. It was recently turned around at a heavy expense and an entrance installed from Fillmore. It has a seating capacity of 1,100 and is conducted by Ackerman & Harris, under the management of Charles Cole.

Kahn & Greenfield have a splendid foothold in the Fillmore district with the New Fillmore and Progress theaters located within a block of each other. The former is one of the finest houses in the city and was opened a little more than a year ago. It has a seating capacity of 1,000 and features the Paramount program at ten cents. Joseph E. Levin is manager. The Progress theater nearby was recently remodeled and the price of admission raised to ten cents, Triangle and Metro services being used. It seats 800. For a time Kahn & Greenfield also had two other houses in this district, but disposed of these in order to give more attention to the two largest ones.

The Garrick theater on Ellis street, near Fillmore, was erected immediately following the fire of 1906 and was used by the Orpheum Circuit pending the construction of its downtown house. It has a seating capacity of 1,600 and is now conducted as a moving picture house by Von Hagen Bros., at an admission price of five cents.

The Princess theater adjoining the Garrick was also erected immediately following the fire and is now devoted to pictures and vaudeville by Bert Levey, under the management of Joe Langley, programs being changed on Sunday and Wednesday. It has a seating capacity of 1,200 and the admission price is ten cents.

The Haussler theater on Fillmore, near Sutter, was one of the first moving picture houses to be fitted up following the fire. It is conducted by Walter Haussler, who owns the property, and presents much the same appearance as it did nine years ago. The seating capacity is 400 and a five-cent admission is charged.

The Class A theater next to the Haussler is also an old-time house. It is located in a fireproof building and has a seating capacity of 400. The lobby is reached by a flight of stone steps, but this seems to be no drawback to its success. It is a five-cent house featuring General Film Service and is conducted by William Wethered.

The All-Star theater, with a seating capacity of 670, is located on Sutter street, just around the corner from Fillmore. It, also, is a five-cent house and makes use of a pick-up service. It is conducted by Morris Atlas, who also has the Flag theater in the North Beach District.

The Republic theater at Sutter and Steiner streets, now conducted by Sol Fisher and William Fest, was built for the temporary home of the Alcazar following the fire of 1906. It has a seating capacity of 1,200 and is now given over to moving pictures and vaudeville. Two matinees are given here each week under the auspices of the Children's theater.

The Mission District.

The Mission District is the oldest part of San Francisco and the Mission Dolores, built by the Franciscan fathers, is still standing as a cherished landmark. Much of this section was spared by the fire of 1906 and since then there has been a wonderful growth, its business section being the largest rival to Market street. Its finest house is the New Mission theater opened in May by Kahn & Greenfield and managed by Robert Abraham. This theater has been described as being the most beautiful suburban house in America and is wonderfully equipped. It has a seating capacity of 1,800, of which all but 300 is on the ground floor. Paramount productions are shown here among others and a straight price of ten cents is maintained.

The Majestic theater on Mission street, near Twenty-first, is conducted by Lahm Bros., under the management of B. Muller. It makes a special feature of its William Fox program and changes bills three times a week, offering vaudeville on Sunday at a uniform price of ten cents. The house is of splendid construction, has a balcony, and can care for 1,000 patrons at a time.

The Peoples theater nearby was erected shortly after the fire of 1906 and was for a time devoted to vaudeville, but now shows moving pictures exclusively. Late last year it was taken over by Bradley & Ekstrom, who show a General Film service. The building is of brick construction and has a seating capacity of 362.

One of the oldest theaters in the Mission District is the Grand on Mission street, near Twenty-second, conducted by the Grand Theater Company, headed by R. A. Floodberg. This concern took the place over recently and is featuring the Triangle service at ten cents. The program is changed three times a week. The house has a seating capacity of 700.

The Sherman theater, across the street from the Grand, is also an old house, said to be the second oldest in the city devoted to moving pictures. It is conducted by Mr. Gernhardt as a five-cent theater, four changes of program being made each week. Universal service, a Mutual serial and open market features make up the programs.

At the other end of the Mission District is the Victoria theater, located on Sixteenth street. This is an 800 seat house with a balcony, erected a few months after the fire of 1906 and conducted for the past year and a half by H. S. Levin. Triangle and Paramount services are used, together with a serial, four changes being made each week. The price of admission is ten cents for adults and five cents for children.

A block from the Victoria is the Opal theater conducted by W. Stierley and John Hetzinger, who have had the house for the past two years. Here a four-reel program, which is changed daily, is shown for five cents, Universal service being used. The house has a seating capacity of 248.

There are a number of other districts in San Francisco where large moving picture houses are located, notably on Polk street, where there are a half a dozen theaters within as many blocks, the Richmond District, the Sunset District and the Haight Street District. The wonderful growth of these sections, following the disaster of 1906, interfered to a marked degree with the development of amusement enterprises in the downtown district. During the past year, however, there has been a great revival in downtown building and San Francisco will soon be able to boast a number of beautiful first run houses. An immense theater will be erected at Fourth and Market streets as rapidly as the work can be done. The St. Francis theater on Geary street, a small but beautiful house, will be ready soon. Work is under way on a theater at Ellis and Mason streets and another house is being planned for Market street.

T. A. CHURCH.

---

NEW GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., HOUSE.

A new motion picture theater, known as the Michigan theater, and located at Michigan street and Grand avenue, N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., was recently opened. The owners and operators, G. H. and C. W. Budde, also are owners of the Alcazar theater on Bridge street, N. W. The new picture house is one of the largest of the outlying theaters, having a seating capacity of 650. The decorations of the cosy interior are rose and steel gray, and ample provision has been made for the comfort of the patrons.

---

CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP AT ELMIRA, N. Y.

J. M. Budington has sold the Grand theater on East Water street, Elmira, N. Y., to Charles Ross. The Grand has been undergoing some improvements, including a new screen. Mr. Ross, the new proprietor, is no stranger to the motion picture devotees of Elmira, as he has been at the Colonial theater for sometime past, he having the pop-corn privilege there.

Mr. Budington has not yet determined just what will be his future course, although he has in mind securing another theater in some other city. He has been connected with affairs theatrical in Elmira for several years, and has met with unusual success. He has pleased the patrons of his theaters, and will continue to do so in whatever city he locates.

---

MAHER SAYS: "FIRST IN CHICAGO."

James H. Maher, now associated with William Steiner in the Photo Drama Company, New York, claims that he is the first picture theater man in Chicago, having owned and managed the Chicago theater at 368 State Street in 1904.

---

H. F. NIEL VISITS NEW YORK.

H. F. Niel, manager of the Majestic theater, Birmingham, Ala., one of the largest photoplay houses in the South, was in New York City recently on business. Mr. Neil will be in charge of the Southeastern Film Exchange, which has headquarters in Birmingham.

New Orleans, La., Records Wonderful Development

The Pearces, Fichtenberg and Shear Given Credit --Great Enterprise and Forethought in Their Building.

WHEN a stranger arrives in New Orleans and asks the first person he meets to direct him to the office of a veteran film man, he'll be escorted to Josiah Pearce & Sons, just above their magnificent Trianon theater, if he happens to be walking in Canal street on the uptown side. If he happens to be perambulating along the downtown side of the widest thoroughfare in America and makes a similar inquiry he will be led to the Plaza theater in Canal street, at the intersection of Dauphine, and like as not the film stranger will encounter the genial countenance of Herman Fichtenberg in the lobby before he reaches the elevator. Quite a different story if he happens to be in one of the streets above Canal. In this instance, nine passersby out of ten would point out the busy shop at 914 Gravier, where Al G. Shear holds a business levee all day long during business hours.

J. Eugene Pearce, supervising head of the New Orleans interests of the Pearce Syndicate; Herman Fichtenberg, head of the moving picture enterprises all over the South that bear his name, and Al G. Shear, New Orleans manager of the Consolidated-Universal exchanges—these are the three New Orleans men who cut their eye teeth in the moving picture game long, long ago, when a moving picture show was a distinct novelty rather than a logical enterprise placed on a desirable location.

And when the correspondent for Moving Picture World went around to gather a few reminiscences from these Southern veterans, he jumped at the natural conclusion that they wouldn't be very hard to get from men who were full-fledged exhibitors and exchange men eighteen months before Moving Picture World came into existence. Take Josiah Pearce, for instance, who brought his two sons, J. Eugene and Frederick W., to New Orleans in the winter of 1905 to investigate amusement possibilities. It was the Pearces who built the first moving picture show in New Orleans—the first in the far South, in fact. It was the Electric theater, at 926 Canal street, and it is still doing business at the old stand, although moving picture men noted a few weeks ago with a tinge of sadness that a hotel building syndicate have purchased the property on which it stands and will demolish it during the winter of 1916.

It is not often that J. Eugene Pearce finds time to attend a banquet, but when the film colony of New Orleans celebrated a short time ago Mr. Pearce was a guest of honor. Mr. Pearce surprised his friends by giving them a story how his father and brother and he had broken into the game in New Orleans. Incidentally, Mr. Pearce settled beyond dispute who built the first honest-to-goodness picture show in the city. Heretofore, it was thought Herman Fichtenberg held this honor, although "Fich" was not long in following the theater building game. Let Mr. Pearce tell his own story, prefaced by the writer's remark that today he is one of the richest men in New Orleans, and he made it all through his New Orleans theaters:

Where the Pearces Began.

"My father, Fred and myself arrived in New Orleans in the fall of 1905," Mr. Pearce began. "We had achieved some little success in operating an amusement park in Pitsburgh, and we had looked over the Texas field. Then we cast eyes on New Orleans. Moving pictures being unheard of in that year, except through newspaper accounts, we thought we would treat Orleanians with a genuine moving picture theater. So on Canal street we built the Electric theater. It was the only one south of Cincinnati and the fourth in the United States. At that time the only three in existence were two in Chicago, one in Pitsburgh and one in Cincinnati.

"Many were the trials and tribulations we had in those days to secure pictures. How well do I remember Miles Brothers, of New York, from whom we secured the first pictures ever exhibited in the South. Then there was Swanson in Chicago and Eugene Cline in Chicago. The Pearces were among the first customers of these old concerns. What a contrast to these days of million-dollar pictures, programs, open market and state rights buying!"

The Electric theater was a success. So many nickels and dimes poured into the coffers of the Pearces that they built a second house, the Dreamland theater, in St. Charles street, in 1906. These were rather small affairs, just to feel out whether the vogue of moving pictures would last, and so was their third theater, The Grand, 1033 Canal street, which was built during the following year. With the success of their three small houses came a determination to build bigger and better. After three years of prosperity the Bijou Dream was constructed in St. Charles street at a cost that most everybody figured would prohibit profits from the venture. The sum of $25,000 in a moving picture theater six years ago was a mighty big wad to throw away, people thought.

At a cost of $45,000 the Pearces built the Trianon theater, at 814 Canal street, in 1911. It seated 500 people, and was the last word in moving picture theaters—in 1911, remember. The Tudor theater, the latest Pearce project of importance, was erected in 1913 at a cost of approximately $85,000. It seats 700 people. Along about the time the Tudor was built, perhaps a year before, audiences began to demand better pictures, and the producers began to feel this demand. New companies were launched and the Pearces had a man in New York to gather in the latest and best releases for their New Orleans houses. This one feature counts a great deal in the success of the Pearces. They maintained a Northern representative when there wasn't a single exchange in New Orleans, and they do it to this day, when every producing company of any consequence has an exchange in the Crescent City.

So the Pearces made a big success in New Orleans. Perhaps a bigger success in this city than in Denver, Springfield, Mass., Ocean View, or Lexington, in all of which cities they maintain extensive amusement parks. When Eugene Pearce was asked what had built up the success of his "happy family," he said: "Clean pictures. We have always shown clean pictures, and always will. We 'screen' all doubtful pictures before they go on at our houses."

In reviewing the activities of the Pearces it is distinctly apropos to mention that as nothing stands still, but either progresses or goes backward, the Pearces are progressing. A theater that will eclipse anything they have yet built is beyond the possibility stage, and will be erected in Canal street probably within the year, or when a desirable Canal street site is secured. Only a few weeks ago the Pearces opened their Newcomb theater, at 908 Canal street, a pretty little bandbox house that nevertheless cost $25,000. The Newcomb is their seventh house in New Orleans, and gives them the distinction of being the largest operators of theaters in the South. The Pearces are substantial citizens of New Orleans. Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, Sr., are still living and take an active part in the direction of the Pearce interests. Fred W. Pearce spends most of his time traveling between the various cities in which the Pearces hold amusement interests. J. Eugene Pearce is a prominent clubman, yachtsman, takes part in a number of civic movements, and his advice is sought after and taken by many men in the business. It is getting to be almost an adage in the Crescent City that anybody ever connected with the Pearces usually branch out for themselves and make their own mark in the picture game. At least two former employes now are prominent. One is Al G. Shear and the other P. O. Blankenship, head of the Isis Amusement Company of New Orleans.

Where Fichtenberg Came In.

Before moving pictures ever came to New Orleans this city was content with another novelty. This novelty was "moving pictures," but of a different sort. It was Herman Fichtenberg who pioneered in penny wonderlands. Herman got his start on the pennies which were dropped into funny little machines at 711 Canal street. You dropped your penny in, and you turned a crank, and in about three or four minutes it was time for another penny. Also there was a hat you were privileged to blow off Cholly's head after you dropped the most insignificant coin Uncle Sam ever turned out into a designated aperture. Once a fat man grew exhausted over various blowings and an ambulance was called. It was as good as the best press agent stunt ever pulled off, and it brought Herman some publicity that he cashed in on. But that's another story.

From a penny wonderland that was doing good business to a moving picture show on the second story—imagine a moving picture show nowadays on the second story!—was the first step in the success of Herman Fichtenberg. I almost forgot to mention that if ever Herman Fichtenberg goes broke, which he won't, he'll be even, because he started in on fifty dollars capital—borrowed it, at that. The first picture Herman Fichtenberg showed was "The Passion Play" and he had a barker on the outside! But in those days motion pictures were so new that they needed somebody to explain them to the crowds. Fichtenberg showed "The Passion Play" for a nine weeks' steady run. The crowds that saw his initial picture induced him to keep up the picture show that had been an experiment. Today, eight or nine years later, Herman Fichtenberg is watching the process of erection of his newest house, the Globe theater, in Canal street, upon which he will spend $100,000. The Globe is Mr. Fichtenberg's twentieth house, or thereabouts. He has four more in New Orleans and others in Vicksburg, Houston and Pensacola.

Al G. Shear.

Whenever anybody in the New Orleans film colony needs a friend, or even a pal for a couple of hours, he calls around in Gravier street on Al G. Shear, manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company, which distributes Universal films in this territory. Al is the one man in New Orleans who is at once exhibitor, exchange man and supply man, and he gets away with all three jobs nicely and still has time to spare to be toastmaster of every film gathering locally. Mr. Shear is one of the oldest film men in New Orleans, in point of service, of course, since he has been handling films down here since 1906. In that year Mr. Shear managed the Importers' Film and Supply Company, which was a Josiah Pearce & Sons enterprise. For a while it was the only exchange here. Then along came one of the bigger companies and absorbed the Importers, and right after that we find Mr. Shear in the Consolidated office, but only for a short time, for, with Herman Fichtenberg, he launched the Feature Film Company, which bought state rights. In 1912 he came back to the Consolidated as manager, and has been there ever since. He entered the exhibition game several years ago. He has one of the niftiest suburban houses in the city, the Carrollton theater. In his spare moments Mr. Shear acts in an executive capacity for several New Orleans film associations. He was honored with the presidency of the old Film Trades Club, which was the pioneer exchange man's organization, and he is on the executive board of the Southern Motion Picture Trade Association. Outside of this, he is probably the most popular regular program man in the Southern territory, and, last but not least, he led the fight against the tax assessor's office for reduction of onerous rates on films stored in exchanges.

Exhibitors who contemplate building new houses in New Orleans find food for thought in the fact that this city, with a population of 370,000, has seventy moving picture theaters in operation. Twenty of these were built in the last six or eight months. A wiseacre sagely remarked at the beginning of this present season that there wouldn't be business enough for them all, but business through the summer has held up remarkably well considering the multiplicity of the theaters and the numerous counter summer attractions. Despite the unprecedented development of the past year, there are a number of other big motion picture projects in sight. These include Herman Fichtenberg's new $100,000 house in Canal street; the Pearces' new theater, which will be built some time in the near future; the Columbia Amusement Company's new house in St. Charles street, work on which will start October 1; and the magnificent Strand theater in Baronne street, which will be operated when finished by the Saenger Amusement Company. GEORGE M. CHENEY.

Atlanta, Georgia, Claims Nineteen Model Houses

First House Opened in 1906 with a Seating Capacity of 150--Now the Nineteen Seat 12,000

ATLANTA, Ga., can boast of as many handsome moving picture theaters as any city of its size in the country. The Southerner is one who complains not. When pleasure bent, he must have the latest and very best, combined with comfort. If at night he usually carries the wife and children, and if the above requirement are not given him, he cuts from his place of amusement the theater at fault. Therefore Atlanta's nineteen moving picture theaters are models; the seats are the very best; ventilation perfect; employees courteous and efficient; electrical equipment the best money can buy; while first run pictures is a necessity.

The seating capacity of Atlanta's nineteen theaters is 12,500.

In November, 1906, Atlanta's first moving picture theater was opened by S. P. Robbins, on Viaduct Place and was known as the "Viaduct." It gave fifteen minute shows with single reels and had a seating capacity of about 150. It was poorly ventilated, but was a success, from a financial point of view.

February, 1907, a company composed of L. P. Daniels, S. P. Robbins and L. H. Lansdell, opened at 46 Whitehall, what was known as the "Twin theaters." A board partition divided the theater, and a fifteen minute show was given on each side, at a 5 cent admission. L. J. Daniels, a successful clothing merchant, financed the theater and for several years it was the leader. A graphophone was placed in the lobby; this was looked after by a negro boy, who did his work so well, that department stores within the block, threatened all manner of injunctions. Mr. Daniels was firm in his belief that a theater without music was a failure, and he compromised the matter by muffling the horn of the instrument with a ball of cotton, and restricting the music to certain hours.

In the fall of 1907, two theaters were equipped on the north side, both on Peachtree Street, the Pastime and the Elite.

November, 1908, two prosperous furniture men, John and Gus Evins were in business at 98 Whitehall Street. They saw the prosperous future in moving pictures, and partitioned off a portion of their store, equipped it with the best and started the Vaudette theater. From the start their theater was a success, and was patronized by the elite of the city. L. F. Henderson, was their first operator: Mr. Henderson operated the first moving picture machine in Atlanta, and has remained with the Vaudette, being at present the chief operator of this theater. December 19th, 1908, the Vaudette was incorporated. Three years ago, on account of an advance in rental and in order to accommodate this growing patronage, they moved to their present location, 74-76 Whitehall. The seating capacity is 750.

John and Gus Evins and L. F. Henderson, of the Vaudette, and M. Glenn of the Strand are the only pioneers, who are still in the business. Mr. O. P. Hall, at present manager of the Grand theatre, was connected with the Vaudette in its infancy as a singer and musician.

In 1908 many small theaters sprang up, but soon went out of business: poor equipment, and inefficient operators, as well as old pictures, caused the decline in patronage. During this same year "The Savoy" on Peachtree was opened by a theatrical man named Posey. It started well but declined. It was bought by William Oldknow, at present the head of the Consolidated Film & Supply Company, and became the home of the Universal Films. Mr. Oldknow's fine business training and judgment brought the Savoy to a high state of efficiency, and it was for years and is at this time, one of the best patronized theaters of the city. Mr. Oldknow, sold his interest in the theater in 1915. Mr. Oldknow also opened and run the Alkazar theater on Peachtree for a number of years. This theater has been closed.

In 1911 Frank Montgomery opened the Montgomery theater on Peachtree, and later sold it to Lynch & Company. The name has since been changed to the Georgian theater.

Then came the Strand, the two Alamos, the Victoria, the American, the Bonita and others.

The neighborhood theaters, as they are know, are four. These theaters are well equipped and located in residential districts. These theaters are patronized mostly by women and children and are a success financially.

Atlanta's newest theater is the Piedmont, it has a seating capacity of 1,000. Under the able management of Ralph DeBruler, it is rapidly pushing to the front. Its equipment is the very best, its pictures first runs and has an orchestra of ten pieces.

25,000 Atlantians patronize the 18 theaters daily.

Atlanta also has three moving picture theaters patronized by negroes. It is said the equipment and pictures are the best. A. M. BEATTY.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Has a Record Date for "Store Shows"

Harry Davis Was a Real Pioneer and Set a Rapid Pace--Rowland and Clark Big Factors.

A REVIEW of the history of the exhibiting business in Pittsburgh must logically begin with the discussion of one man, the father of the moving picture theater, Harry Davis. The name of Harry Davis stands forth more conspicuously in this field than that of probably any other individual, not because of his extensive interests at the present time but because he was the first to see the limitless possibilities of the screen.

Mr. Davis opened the first moving picture theater in the city on Smithfield street, two doors from Diamond street, Pittsburgh, in the year 1903. He named the house The Nickelodeon, and thus coined the title that has clung to the picture theater through all the steps in its development. The last part of the word Nickelodeon Mr. Davis derived from the Greek "odeum," meaning theater, and combined it with the word "nickel," which was the admission price charged. The Nickelodeon seated 200 people and, despite the small capacity, was considered a veritable "gold mine" from the very beginning. The house was open from 8 o'clock till midnight and the shows lasted only fifteen minutes to half an hour, in which manner entertainment was provided for from three to four thousand people daily.

Harry Davis.

One of the most notable features of The Nickelodeon was its music. Not that a symphony orchestra, or even a pipe organ, was as yet even dreamed of by Mr. Davis as a possibility for moving picture accompaniment. The musical setting was supplied by a lone pianist—who was none other than the well-known composer of popular melodies of to-day, Harry Carroll. Mr. Carroll, who had not yet written "Within the Loop" nor his ballads such as "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," received the staggering salary of $6 per week. It may be noted in passing that Mr. Davis this season paid Mr. Carroll $600 for six days' appearance in vaudeville at the New Davis theater, also located on Smithfield street, Pittsburgh.

Davis Promotes Many Nickelodeons.

Within a year after The Nickelodeon was opened Mr. Davis had some eight or ten Nickelodeons scattered about in the different sections of the city. While The Nickelodeon was the first moving picture theater in the world, Mr. Davis does not have the distinction of having opened the second, which was established in Warsaw, Poland. A certain Pole, whose name is not recalled here, passed through Pittsburgh shortly after the opening of The Nickelodeon and carried back with him the idea which he immediately put into effect. Another year saw the establishment of Davis picture theaters in Philadelphia, Pa., Rochester, N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y., Detroit, Mich., beside a total of seventeen in the Pittsburgh district alone.

Mr. Davis recognized not only the scope of possibility in presenting the moving picture to the public, but saw with equally wide vision the necessity of developing the possibilities of the photodrama itself. In 1906 he launched upon the manufacture of films and opened in Pittsburgh one of the first studios in America. For a time his leading man was Gilbert M. Anderson, of future fame. This project was dropped by Mr. Davis with the entrance of several of the larger producing companies into the field. At the present time he has considerable interest as stockholder in a number of the leading film manufacturing concerns in the country.

Within the past few years Mr. Davis has turned his attention to his many big theaters in Pittsburgh and elsewhere for the production of vaudeville and the legitimate drama, and has discontinued all but two of his moving picture theaters. They are the Lyric and the Temple, which are among the best of Pittsburgh's fine array of downtown houses.

The Lyric theater, which is now the oldest exclusively picture house in Pittsburgh, was established by Mr. Davis in 1907, in his handsome Grand Opera House building, which had just been completed, on Fifth avenue. The Temple theater, on Federal street, old Sixth street, opposite the Alvin theater, was erected by the Harry Davis Enterprises Company in 1913. Both houses are equipped in an up-to-date manner, are well-arranged and handsomely furnished. Feature pictures are shown daily at 10 cents admission. The doors of the Temple and Lyric are open from 9:30 in the morning till 11:30 at night, and being located on the two busiest thoroughfares in the city handle large crowds.

The Grand Opera House inaugurated its summer season of high-class pictures in May, thus continuing the policy that has met with tremendous success for two years past. This playhouse is one of the largest and finest in Pittsburgh, seating 2,100 people. The Grand is the home of the Harry Davis Stock Co. during the theatrical season. It was in this house that Mr. Davis introduced for the first time in Pittsburgh the use of a symphony orchestra for moving pictures two years ago.

Rowland and Clark Take a Hand.

To mention moving pictures and the photoplay house without taking into consideration Rowland & Clark, Richard A. Rowland and James B. Clark, to be exact, would be much like presenting "Hamlet" without the melancholy Dane, as at the present writing the greatest number of large and up-to-date theaters in the Smoky City bear the RC monogram and fly the Rowland & Clark banner. The brilliant history of this concern is in itself the history of the picture theater of the higher type.

To go back to the inception of the Rowland & Clark "chain" one must visit the very sources of the film business.

In April, 1906, the business association between Mr. Rowland and Mr. Clark first came into being, in the form of the Pittsburgh Calcium Light & Film Co. As can be seen from the firm name, calcium, or "spot lights," has an important bearing on the business, in fact it was the successor to the Pittsburgh Calcium Light Co. of which James R. Rowland, Richard A. Rowland's father, was the founder. At his death the son came into charge, and then it was in connection with James B. Clark that the Pittsburgh Calcium Light & Film Co. was formed.

Talking about those days, Mr. Clark says it was quantity, not quality with moving pictures when they first came out. "We bought our films outright from firms like Pathe Freres and Melies, and we paid so much a foot for them. We did not have to look over the picture to see what it was all about before taking it. The producers got out a catalogue with the lengths and description of the pictures and we ordered from that, and we ordered the book through several times. Melies were mostly trick pictures. We had no trouble in renting our purchases. In fact the exhibitor was very glad to get anything he could. Our experience in the exchange end of the business extended from the Pittsburgh Calcium Light & Film Co., to the Pennsylvania Film Exchange, the Columbia Film Exchange and then later to the Independent Film Exchange and the Pittsburgh Photoplay Co."

"How did you come to go into the exhibiting business?" was asked of Mr. Clark. We had already learned from his business associates that before going into the film game Mr. Clark was in the accounting department of a large wholesale house in Pittsburgh, and his knowledge of figures and what they really mean is wonderful, as is his talent for organizing and assimilating details. He knows every twist of the business and, through his intimate knowledge of men and conditions, is responsible for a large part of the Rowland & Clark "luck," which to those in the business is recognized as resulting from thoroughness and attention to essential details.

In reply to our query, Mr. Clark continued, "When we sold our Exchange, the Pittsburgh Calcium, both Rowland and myself had a lot of time on our hands. About this time, in payment of a debt, we acquired the Colonial theater in Wilkinsburg, a suburb of Pittsburgh about eight miles East. Then I secured the Oakland, a 299 seat house on the Oakland district. This was in 1911. In those days we ran a two reel show at 5 cents admission, and they stood out to the curbstone evening after evening. I was one of the first to install two machines to eliminate 'One minute please, changing reels.' It was then really that the present motto of our houses came into existence, although it was not crystalized for five years to come, 'Build up to standard, not down to price.' Perhaps Carnegie's habit of scrapping a comparatively new machine in favor of one which would do the work better and cheaper had its effect, as the Steel King's policy appealed to me strongly. At any rate, the Oakland was profitable, and I looked for new fields. I had a small property on Butler street, in Lawrenceville, and built a theater there. It also was popular and shortly afterwards we enlarged to a capacity of about 750, and remodeled it into a first-class theater. This is our present Arsenal. Rowland about this time trected the Rowland in Wilkinsburg, and believe me, he set the pace for theaters in this house. It was built, however, without pictures exclusively in view, as it contains a stage, fully equipped, and ran vaudeville as well. Now it is exclusively pictures.

Richard A. Rowland.

"Later I took over a dancing pavilion within a half block of the Oakland, on the same street, and fited it up as the Schenley Photoplay theater. Our policy here was practically the same as at the Oakland, until the time the feature pictures came in, when we ran them three nights a week. In 1914 Mr. Rowland and myself erected the Regent, at Penn and Highland, what my advertising man insists on terming 'Pittsburgh's Finest Motion Picture Theater'—and from what everyone telsl us, I guess he is right. This theater was built exclusively for pictures, seats 940 and, if I do say it, is the standard for picture theaters, at least in this section of the country. This house was opened in November, 1914, and a month later I opened the Belmar in Homewood, which was being erected the same time as the Regent. This house is often called the 'Little Regent.'

"In August, 1915, the Bellevue Amusement Co. in which I had owned a stock interest came under my exclusive control, and we started operating the same on the lines which had proved successful in our other theaters. The business in Oakland had continued loyal, and it has always been my desire to erect a theater of which Oaklanders could be proud. The Oakland Amusement Co., which had erected a magnificent six-story building for use as an athletic club and natatorium, at Forbes and Atwood, just a stone's throw from the Oakland and the Schenley Photoplay theaters, ran on the rocks financially, and we came to an agreement by means of which they remodeled so that the first three floors were made into a moving picture theater. This was opened for business on February 5 of this year, and is a worthy member of our chain."

"To what do you attribute the success of your theaters, Mr. Clark?", we asked. "Well, young man," he answered with a quizzical smile, "that's putting it pretty straight. It's rather hard to figure. I suppose that if you get a first-class theater in a location that's right, keep your house perfectly clean and up-to-date, have the right man on the ground to manage and give him the proper office-cooperation with advertising that reaches the people, and then play the best pictures that are available, there is not such a trick in getting by.

"But," he continued, "I have a couple of youngsters, and to tell the truth, I do not know which is easier, to raise two lively 'kids' or take care of the same number of picture theaters." The fact that Mr. Clark is on the job personally in the office and at the theaters in the evening, more than likely has something to do with it.

The name Rowland & Clark came into being about a year ago, at which time Mr. Clark decided upon broader advertising and publicity lines and engaged M. J. C. Kornblum, who had been doing press work for the Regent, to devote his entire time to the publicity work of all the theaters. Shortly before, J. P. Donovan, who had been manager of the Arsenal and other houses for Rowland & Clark and was then managing the Regent, was promoted to general manager to supervise all the theaters. With these two as headquarters men, Mr. Clark could give more time to the broader matters of policy connected with his various interests.

Among the very distinctive moving picture houses in Pittsburgh is the Cameraphone theater, at 6202 Penn avenue, East Liberty. The Cameraphone is aptly termed in its advertising matter "The Theatre de Lux." It is located in a bustling business section, but is closely adjacent to the beautiful and exclusive residential district known as the East End.

Kester and His Cameraphone.

The renown of the East Liberty Cameraphone is only exceeded by that of its owner—H. B. Kester, president of that progresive organization of exhibitors and film men, the Pittsburgh Screen Club. Mr. Kester's personal attention to details in the daily management of his house, his close study of the demands of the public and his ability to provide always and all ways the very best and most up-to-date are some of the things to which the signal success of the East Liberty Cameraphone can be attributed.

The entrance of H. B. Kester into the exhibiting business in Pittsburgh was with the famous, but short lived, talking pictures. In 1908 T. M. Barnesdale, the backer of the project, came into the local field with five Cameraphones. Three of these were used for the talking pictures, while two were given over to the showing of regular films. One of the talking picture theaters was the present East Liberty Cameraphone, and later came under the management of H. B. Kester. The second was on lower Fifth avenue, what is now the Downtown Cameraphone. The third was in Carson street, on the South Side.

James B. Clark.

After a few months the talking pictures went out of existance and the three Cameraphones used for that purpose passed into different hands. Mr. Kester, with W. C. Beatty, took over the East Liberty Cameraphone, which was then a 400-seat house. The partners also purchased the Downtown Cameraphone and the Cameraphone in Cleveland, Ohio. Later the Cleveland Cameraphone was sold, Mr. Beatty took over the Downtown Cameraphone and Mr. Kester became the sole owner of the East Liberty Cameraphone.

The success of the East Liberty Cameraphone was gratifying from the start and in 1910 the seating capacity was increased to 700. New ideas were incorporated, with the steady rise in the standards of the business. In 1914 the growth in popularity of the theater justified another addition, which raised the number of seats to 900, the present capacity of the house. At all times showing the best pictures obtainable and keeping his theater at the top in point of attractiveness and comfort, Mr. Kester was quick to see that the better class of moving picture goers are always willing to pay for the best. He was the first exhibitor in the Pittsburgh district to charge 10 cents admission and was the first to raise his price to 20 cents. MANLEY.

THEATER COMPANY FORMED AT LIMA, O.

The De Luxe Theater Company has been incorporated for the purpose of operating a motion picture theater at Lima, O. Capital stock is set at $10,000. The company has not yet decided whether a new theater shall be built here or whether negotiations will be opened for the purchase of one of the present houses. The incorporators are A. Ritzler, manager of the Lima Automatic Piano Company, and Edema B. Ritzler, Ira F. Wright, Ione W. Wright and Oliver Kies.

New England Figures Theater Values by Millions

Credit Given to Frank Howard for the Beginning That Has Grown to Such Great Proportions.

NEW ENGLAND with its one thousand handsome motion picture theaters is today one of the largest and the most prosperous moving picture districts of the world. There is said to be $100,000,000 invested in the moving picture business in the New England States and every week, in spite of the fact that the six New England States are supposed to be thoroughly well covered as to picture houses, new houses are being opened. Probably no other business in New England's history has developed so swiftly, so thoroughly and with so great investment of capital as has the moving picture business of New England.

Frank J. Howard.

It was twenty-two years ago that the first moving picture was shown in New England. And it was but thirteen years ago that the first moving picture film was rented in the New England district. Today there are fifty-five magnificently furnished and equipped moving picture houses in Boston alone and there are twenty well-organized film rental exchanges. The amount of film they handle is enormous and their weekly receipts from film rental is more money than the moving picture business took in during the first ten years of the business in New England.

The story of the growth of New England's moving picture business is a tale of struggles, hardships, humor and successes that are worthy of a scenario of its own. And the hero of this scenario is Frank J. Howard, connected with the Gordon-Lord people in their chain of Olympia theaters, whose office is at room 60, 3 Sculley Square.

Of the pioneers of the film industry in New England Mr. Howard is one of the few of the hundreds of men who broke into the business in the 90's, who stuck to the game and who came through to realize substantial success as a reward. The career of Mr. Howard in pictures is one of the romances of the industry in New England.

Today Mr. Howard is more active than ever in the promotion of the business. He is a sturdy, handsome, quiet man, in the latter 50's, and still doing all he can at all times to further the interests of the moving picture industry, to secure better pictures and better service for the public and the distributor, and to keep up the high standard which the moving picture industry has attained.

Mr. Howard gave an hour of his time on one of his busy days to welcome the Moving Picture World representative and to relate to him some of his early experiences in the moving picture business. Part of Mr. Howard's story is told in his own words.

The moving picture business in Boston and New England had its origin in a little store on Boylston street, close to the corner of Washington street and what is now the main lobby of the Hotel Brewster. Here in the winter of 1894-5 Mr. Howard and Charles Sheafe, as partners, opened the first motion picture house in New England. The machine they had was one of the very first Edison Kinetoscopes. It was a big box-like affair and the average reels were 42 feet.

The first two films shown in New England were "May Irwin's Kiss," and "The Empire State Express." The first moving picture show consisted of 82 feet of film. A little later this was extended to 600 to 700 feet per show. The price charged was ten cents.

The show house consisted of a plain store. the window light shut off by dark colored paper tacked over the glass; the screen was a plain cotton sheet, and the seats were kitchen chairs bought at a second-hand store at a reduced price. The operator stood on a table at the back of the hall. The show lasted about 20 minutes. The film ran out of the machine into a waste basket. The film at that time cost 40 cents a foot. Today it costs about 10 cents a foot in spite of the increased cost of material and production.

Right after the "May Irwin Kiss" and the "Empire State Express" came the Courtney-Corbett fight picture. Then in turn came the "Seminary Girls," a 150-foot film, which, to the moving picture managers of the day, was considered the greatest film that could ever be produced. Its production marked a new era they considered in the making of moving pictures. It pictured a dozen or more seminary girls, dressed in pajamas and night gowns, fighting pillow battles, etc., and for action was all to the good.

The same winter that Messrs. Howard and Sheafe were running their picture house on Boylston street, two other stores were opened as moving picture houses, one on Tremont street by the Read Brothers, both of whom have passed on, and one on Boylston street. The first moving picture operator in New England was Harry Rosendorf, who for years was an operator in Boston, and who has an interest in a motion picture house in New Hampshire.

For the first eight months of 1896 no new moving picture subjects were received, but Howard and Sheafe continued to run their moving picture house, using the same subjects day after day, and people from all over New England came in to see the wonderful moving pictures.

Messrs. Sheafe and Howard then parted company and Mr. Sheafe retired from the business. Mr. Howard opened up the first film exchange in New England in the Jefferson Building, at 546 Washington street. He ran the moving pictures in connection with a nickle-in-the-slot business. During his spare time he exhibited the moving pictures before clubs and societies about New England.

The development of the business during this period showed two strange tendencies. The moving pictures were not taken up by the theatrical managers, but were promoted by the nickeleodian managers. At this time—1896 to 1900—the thousands of nickel-in-the-slot machine emporiums throughout New England had seen their best days and were beginning to show decline. It was therefore to the moving pictures that these men turned.

During this time the moving picture business was practically at a standstill. It had its up and downs. This was the climactic period of the industry. Edison was practically the only producing company and subjects were few and far between. It was at this time that foreign films began to come in at odd periods.

The development of the industry was very slow between 1895 and 1905. During this time Mr. Howard was selling Edison machines and selling film. His customers came principally from shoe workers, grocers, textile hands, and others from the mill towns, who, hearing of the new moving pictures, came to Boston, bought an outfit with a couple of films, and started in the show business. Ninety per cent. of these ventures were failures. Principally from the fact that the men had no knowledge of electricity, knew nothing of the moving picture machine, were in total ignorance of the show business, and in fact, were totally unfitted for promoting any amusement enterprise.

Out of this number, however, were developed a few men who today are known through the moving picture industry. Most of the men came back to Boston broke, re-sold their machines and films, to someone as incompetent as themselves, and went back to their trades, convinced that the moving picture business was a snare and a fake and would "never amount to nothin.'"

It was in 1903 that the vaudeville houses first opened their doors to the moving picture film. It was customary for these houses to hold their best acts for the end of the program. This was to hold the audience. But in those days there were not the all-night cabarets and dance halls to attract the theater-goers to make an all-night of it; so they were in the habit of getting up before the end of the show and going home. This annoyed patrons who wished to see the best acts at the close of the program.

The vaudeville man was looking for some attraction that would make his show longer and at the same time not detract from his best acts. He tried out the moving picture. It proved a success. He did not seek the moving picture as an added attraction by merely a means by which he could hold his audience for the best vaudeville acts and then let his audience get out while there was still some attraction going on. The moving picture, with the house darkened, just filled the bill.

Mr. Howard was the first man to rent films to the vaudeville houses and for years they were customers of the Howard Film Exchange.

It was twelve years ago that the first moving picture theater was built in Boston. This is the Comique at Scollay Square, which is still doing a big business today. This marked the latest era of the moving picture industry in New England—the moving picture house.

This house was opened and owned by Mitchell Mark of Buffalo, who now owns the Strand theater in New York City, and has become one of the great men in the moving picture industry. Mr. Mark is an example of the nickel-in-the-slot machine man who took up moving pictures with great success for at the time he built the Comique he was head of the Automatic Vaudeville Company.

With the moving picture house of 1904 and 1905 came better and more moving picture subjects; new machines with better equipment, and in fact, the modern moving picture business found its development from about that time.

Massachusetts was the first state to enact moving picture laws. In 1907 there had been moving picture fires in Lynn and Salem, one closely following the other. This caused a scare and with the Legislature in session a law was passed licensing motion picture operators. Mr. Howard was one of the first men in the state to receive a license to operate a moving picture machine.

Some very amusing stories are told by Mr. Howard in connection with his early experiences in the moving picture business. Here are a few of them:

"When we first opened our Boylston street house," he said, "one of the first films was of the Courtney-Corbett fight. It was just after this that Corbett was knocked out by Fitzsimmons. We advertised 'The Great Corbett Fight.' We did not state which one. One day a man stopped at the door and said, 'You had better fix that machine. There's something the matter with it. Corbett knocks out Fitzsimmons instead of Fitzsimmons knocking out Corbett.' He supposed he was seeing the Fitzsimmons fight and that the mechanism of the machine had caused the error."

Mr. Howard also relates this story of a film that went astray.

"The Edison Company got out a film showing a panoramic view from the front end of a New York elevated train. A moving picture man in Lawrence asked me to get the film. I received it and it was reshipped by Adams express to Lawrence. The moving picture manager said he had not received it. I called the Adams express and complained that a 150-foot film of the New York Elevated had been lost. A few days later another agent came in and said a great mystery had just been cleaned up. He said that for four days the company had been looking for a 150-foot section of the New York elevated structure and were corrected only when told by a man at North Station that the Lawrence man was looking for a moving picture film of the structure not the structure itself. Moving picture film was so little known at that time that the film matter had gone right over the heads of the other employees."

Mr. Howard got some unique complaints in regard to the films he sent out to New England showmen. One man complained that every film he got in one shipment had a big wrinkle across the middle of the film. Come to find out the trouble was in his screen which was hung loosely, the wrinkle being in the screen instead of the film.

Mr. Howard is the inventor of the carrying case for films. In his early experience in film rentals he did not get his films back promptly. When he called people who had rented films on the 'phone, their usual reply was "I'm all out of string," or "I haven't board to box them up in." This delay meant money to Mr. Howard as the idle films were a dead loss.

He finally secured a leatheroid carrying case in which he shipped a film. It met with instantaneous success and the carrying case is now a feature of the business which could not be dispensed with.

Since the coming of the Moving Picture World into the film business the modern progress of the business has been thoroughly followed. Among the men whose names appear in the reports from New England are F. H. Vine, New England manager of the International Film Service, and Harry Campbell, manager of the New England district of the Fox Film Corporation. Both these men were associated in the early beginning of the moving picture industry in New England, Mr. Vine as a clerk for Mr. Howard at the first film exchange opened in Boston, and Mr. Campbell, who was started in the moving picture business by Mr. Howard.

Readers of the Moving Picture World do not need to be told of the other big men who have made recent history in the moving picture business. Their names are familiar to all Moving Picture readers.

From the little store on Boylston street, where the motion picture business was born, has grown fifty-five of the finest, best managed and successful moving picture houses in the country, right in Boston. The kitchen chairs have given way to fine orchestra seats, comfortable and roomy. The noiseless room has given way to magnificent music from great pipe organs, and complete orchestras and singers from even the grand opera stage to fill in between the pictures. The operator who stood on a table and ground film into a waste basket is now housed in a comfortable, well ventilated booth. His film is guarded by the most modern means for fire protection. He is licensed by the state as an experienced operator, and recognized as a high class workman and in a class of his own. The little barren store with its windows covered with black papers has given way to magnificently decorated auditoriums, gems of the scenic art, comfortable and attractive to the eye, and the best ventilated public gathering places in the world. The Park and Fenway theaters are two examples of the highest type of modern moving picture theater construction.

The little film exchange that Mr. Howard opened in the old Jefferson building has given way to a whole block of moving picture exchanges that are the highest type of modern fireproof construction, handsomely appointed as to offices, and containing fireproof vaults for the films. This square is bounded by Pleasant street, Tremont street, Ferdinand street and Columbus avenue.

The scenario editor could now throw on the screen $100,000,000 and it would fittingly end this scenario of the moving picture industry of New England and its development.

WILLIAM M. FLYNN.

WHO MADE THE FIRST PICTURE?

Honor Is Claimed for Dr. Coleman Sellers—Records at Washington Support Inventor.

By Wilson Franklin Bleloch.

LIKE many other inventions of world-wide importance, there has long been a discussion as to who should receive the credit for inventing the first moving picture machine, and the majority of people attribute such laurels to Edward Muybridge. Records of unquestionable merit, however, clearly show that the honor belongs entirely to Dr. Coleman Sellers, a native of Philadelphia, and a man of international reputation. Many scientific truths are the result of his exceptionally brilliant efforts and he was noted as a genius whose efforts were not centered in any one direction, but were manifold and included many fields of endeavor. He served for five years as president, and for twenty-three years as professor of mechanics at the famous Franklin Institute of Philadelphia.

During his first experiments, Dr. Sellers used the members of his immediate family as models. He not only produced the first moving picture, but went another step forward by inventing a contrivance by means of which to exhibit the pictures when they were completed. This machine, simple as it was, marked a forerunner for the thousands of projecting machines which were to follow and was produced not only to illustrate how motions were made, but to enable the manufacture of actual moving pictures. This fact may be corroborated by reading Mr. Sellers' personal description that was presented with the pictures and instrument at the Patent Office in Washington on February 5, 1861.

In this description he delves at great length into the motives which accentuated his efforts along this line and proceeded to establish the point that he was actually the inventor of the first moving picture and moving picture machine ever known to the world. He accompanied his article with several sketches of his projecting machine and the ideas involved are shown to be of a wonderful nature. Anyone who has read this letter or is conversant with the situation cannot fail to give Coleman Sellers credit for being the inventor of the moving picture and also of the moving picture machine.

"GO TO IT," SAYS B. S. MOSS.

Following in line with the rapidly increasing procession, B. S. Moss, motion picture producer and showman, has issued an order that all employes responding to the call to the colors will suffer no diminution of pay throughout the period of their absence and that their positions will await their return.

Portland, Oregon, Looks Back Over Ten Years

Has Many Excellent Motion Picture Theaters Some as Fine as Any on the Pacific Coast.

PORTLAND, OREGON, is reputed to have the finest array of photoplay theaters of any of the cities on the Pacific Coast considering its population. This statement is based on the fact that the homes of photodrama in Portland were built for that purpose within the recent years that the new art has grown to its present magnitude and are not rehabilitated broken down theaters that once housed "legit" and burlesque shows. The transition from the "store" show with its slat bottom seats to the temple of photoplay where the silent drama now sways its beholders amidst the surroundings that the word "temple" indicates, was so rapid in Portland that it has left in its wake but few mediocre theaters too good to tear down and too shabby to properly meet the competition of the newer houses.

Edwin F. James.
Majestic Theater, Portland, Ore.

The city is well supplied with motion picture theaters. Of the forty theaters within the city limits about ten are located within the so-called theater district and the balance are distributed in the suburbs and the downtown portions of the city.

A pioneer in the motion picture theater business in Portland is conceded to be a person who was engaged in the business from five to ten years or so ago. Many of the pioneer exhibitors are still in the city engaged in some branch of the industry, either as exhibitors or exchange men. Sol. Baum, of the old Imperial Amusement Company, manager of the old Casino on upper Washington street and leading spirit in the old exhibitors' league, now manages the Bluebird office in Portland. B. J. Sperry, of the old Brooklyn Amusement Company, is manager of the Portland Pathe office, and Fred Simonton, who operated the Princess, now conducts the Standard Feature Film Company. Gus Metzger, also of the Imperial Amusement Company, is now general manager for Universal in this territory and S. Morton Cohen, the organizer of the company, is now the exponent of "photoville" in the Pacific Northwest. Walt Wessling, who was associated with Mr. Sperry, is now manager of the Pathé exchange in Cincinnati.

E. J. Myrick.
Manager Columbia Theater, Portland, Ore.

I. Lesser Cohen, who today is secretary of the Portland Amusement Company, controlling the Globe, Casino, American and Burnside theaters, exhibited the first moving picture in Portland. This happened in 1897 at Cordray's theater, Third and Yamhill streets, after which Mr. Cohen and the men associated with him took the outfit on the road and showed it as a novelty in conjunction with vaudeville acts.

It was in 1908 that the moving picture alone became a form of entertainment. This was at the Nickelodeon at Sixth and Alder streets. The show was opened by a man whose name has been forgotten on film row, but who sold out soon aften opening to A. B. L. Gelterman, who conducted it successfully for a long time. One reel constituted a show and five cents was the price of admission.

Graham J. Holtzclaw.
Owner Circle Theater, Portland, Ore.

Then S. Morton Cohen entered the Portland field with the Imperial Amusement Company and operated the Hippodrome, Orpheum and Casino, all of which have passed out of existence. The company inaugurated song slides and later when the Star and Arcade were opened by the company, vocal and musical acts were added and the price of admission in the last named two houses was raised to ten cents. The Star was the first real theater built to house pictures and is now running under the name of the Pickford.

The Peoples Amusement Company, the strongest motion picture theater corporation then in the Pacific Northwest, was then formed. This corporation was headed by S. Morton Cohen and controlled at one time over thirty theaters. The Peoples theater, the finest picture theater on the Pacific Coast at the time of its construction, was built by the new company. S. Morton Cohen sold his controlling interest in the Peoples Amusement Company in 1910, returning to Portland six years later to open the Strand theater and inaugurate the Pacific Photoville Circuit, now a prominent factor in the exhibiting end of the industry on the Pacific Coast.

The Globe was the next real photoplay house built after the Peoples and houses the first organ on the coast built for pictures and voiced for the building.

Edwin James, owner of the Majestic, built in 1911, has stayed with the same house and the same location perhaps longer than any other exhibitor in Portland. Coming from Seattle in 1910, Mr. James opened the Majestic, seating 350, in a storeroom on Fifth and Washington streets and after nine months opened the present Majestic with 1,050 seats at an expense of $62,000. The Peoples Amusement Company then controlled most of the theaters in the city and also the Amalgamated Film Exchange. They had a monopoly on the film service and the Majestic was compelled to add musical attractions to what films it could get to meet the competition. The Majestic first introduced features to Portland, the initiating film being "The Fall of Troy," two reels. A rental of $150 per week was paid for the picture and was considered a big price at that time. The Majestic installed a theater organ, one of the few on the Pacific Coast at the time and the Star across the street also put in an organ, the two theaters starting organ music on the same day. Graham T. Holtzclaw is another old-timer who has always been a leading factor in the exhibition game in Portland. He opened the Savoy on the East Side about seven years ago and later opened the Pictureland and the Cineograph, also on the East Side. He afterwards acquired the Circle and has since confined his efforts to the management of this house. Mr. Holtzclaw is vice-president of the Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association.

Among the old time exhibitors who have left the city, is Melvin G. Winstock, who managed the Peoples and the National, and was considered one of the big men in the game. Mr. Winstock was last heard of in Seattle. D. C. Burkhart, one of the former managers of the Peoples Amusement Company's houses, is now out of the game entirely except for being a regular reader of the Moving Picture World.

Portland's largest photoplay theater is the T. & D., recently opened by Turner and Dahnken. Its seating capacity is 2,200 and its manager is M. O. Leonhart, formerly of Berkeley. The handsomest theater is undoubtedly the Columbia, built in 1912 by Foster and Kleiser and now leased to Jensen and Von Herberg, of Seattle. Its manager is E. J. Myrick, who has made the house one of the most popular.

Portland's East Side, the residence portion of the city, is well supplied with photoplay theaters. Among the fine suburban houses are the Alhambra, the Sunnyside, the Union Avenue, the Broadway, the Crystal and the Tivoli. William Graeper, manager of the Union Avenue, is an active worker in the Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association, and Martin B. Donovan, of the Portsmouth, is one of the pioneers in the business, having operated theaters on the East Side for many years. Prominent among the suburban theaters on the West Side are the Ideal, managed by Al. Sather, formerly with the Peoples Amusement Company, and the Nob Hill. The Portland Amusement Company operates three theaters in the workingmen's district.

There is no immediate prospect of additional theaters being erected in Portland. In fact it is conceeded that there is already an excess of seating capacity nothwithstanding the fact that Portland is an excellent photoplay theater city. During the past theatrical season there has been but one theater playing road shows and one stock house to supply the people's demand for drama. Perhaps this condition has resulted from the great number of photoplay theaters, or perhaps the lack of "legit" houses has caused so many photoplay theaters to blossom forth. A. NELSON.

Toronto, Canada, Claims Birthplace of "Little Mary"

That's Something in Motion Picture Lore, but Canadian Town Has Good Theaters, Too.

TORONTO'S connection with the moving picture industry really began twenty-odd years ago with the birth of Mary Pickford in a modest little home on University avenue, Toronto, but it was not until seventeen years ago that Toronto amusement-seekers saw much of the projection of pictures of the continuous sort. And Toronto is still seeing its first of this and that in moving picture art. For instance, it was, comparatively speaking, very recently that local prominent citizens began to feel the "gaze" of the moving picture camera's eye and the presence of camera men at a local event sometimes almost eclipses the importance of the occurrence itself because Toronto, and all Canada, has been practically overlooked by news photographers until very recently.

In spite of some undevelopment, however, Toronto has its real moving picture pioneers. In point of experience, the oldest projection machine operator still in the business in Toronto is George Mehl, who screened French pictures in Shea's Yonge Street theater seventeen years ago. He is now chief operator for Shea's new vaudeville theater in Toronto, and other veterans around town are proud to relate that they received their first instructions from him. The pioneer exhibitor of Toronto is John Griffin, who started opening up store shows twelve years ago until he became the owner of some twenty-five theaters throughout Ontario. His circuit now consists of thirteen houses, two of which are located in Toronto.

Oldest Exchangemen Still Busy.

The oldest exchangemen still in the game, though young in years, are J. J. and Jules Allen, now the controlling hands in the Paramount Pictures Corporation, a two-million dollar Canadian company. These magnates, incidentally, threw their hats into the cinema ring ten years ago when they opened the first picture theater in Canada outside of Toronto and Montreal. This was at Brantford, Ontario, which now has a population of 25,000.

Toronto's very first film exchange was the Dominion Film Exchange, which was opened at Queen and Victoria streets, in 1907 by a Mr. Thompson, who has since left the city. The Allen brothers opened the Allen Amusement Company in Brantford in 1908 and the Kleine Optical Company was also one of the early exchanges here. The Gaumont followed quickly, but this business was bought out by the Mutual Film Corporation when W. Campbell, who is now looking after Bluebird interests in Toronto, took charge of the new Mutual Branch.

Toronto drew its first and only moving picture producing company in the summer of 1914 when the Conness-Till Film Company was organized. A studio was established at Swansea, a suburb of this city, but only three or four film dramas were completed before a fire wiped out the whole plant in March, 1915. These Toronto-made pictures are still being screened, their most recent projections being in England, where they have been advertised as Canadian productions.

Moving picture films have been censored in Toronto for the whole Province of Ontario for the past six years, the first censoring taking place on January 6, 1910. The original censor board consisted of G. E. Armstrong, Robert Wilson and O. Elliott.

Two members of this board, Armstrong and Wilson, remain, John Burns replacing Elliott when the latter was transferred to the moving picture branch of the Provincial Treasurer's Department, which was established in May, 1912, with R. C. Newman in charge. Mr. Newman has been in command of the mechanical crew of Shea's vaudeville theater for many years previous to his Government appointment, and had built the sets for many Canadian houses.

In Ontario last year there were 355 moving picture theaters under license and fifty-five other theaters, such as town halls, auditoriums, were also licensed to have picture shows. Of the 355 houses, catering to 2,500,000 people in the Province, eighty-two were Toronto theaters. In 1914, previous to the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, there were 366 moving picture theaters in Ontario. This year, 1916, will probably see a greater number of houses than in the banner year of 1914. The licensing of picture theaters by the Ontario Government began in 1910.

Saw Pictures Made in 1904.

The very first continuous pictures were "snapped" in Toronto in April, 1904, when the wholesale district was wiped out by a conflagration. These pictures were taken by George Scott of the Melies Company, and the views consisted mainly of flames and a few ruin scenes. This film was screened at many church bazaars and other entertainments around the city during the subsequent year.

It was also in 1904 that pictures of Toronto were taken by Clifford Denham of Charles Urban's Bioscope Company, England, for the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Dominion Government. Denham is now the manager of the new $450,000 Royal Victoria theater in Victoria, B. C. Much colonization work was done for Canada by the exhibiting of the Urban films in the British Isles and in Europe.

There has never been a serious fire in a Toronto moving picture theater and, with probably only one exception, operating booths were used from the start. The exception was at Shea's theater, where the projecting machine occupied a place on the edge of the top gallery and the people sometimes meddled with the machine until a railing was built around it. There was no magazine on the machine and the film simply passed from a roll into a cloth bag beneath. One night the house was practically destroyed by fire and the moving picture apparatus was blamed for the blaze. When the ruins cooled off, however, the film that had been used at the last performance was found undamaged in the bag below the box. Although George Mehl is the oldest operator still in the game here, a predecessor was George Layton, now with a road show, who turned the crank for the inaugural picture projection in Toronto before Mehl took hold.

Among the early operators are W. Redpath, now demonstrator and roadman for the Pathescope Company of Canada, and C. McMahon, now chief operator at Shea's Hippodrome, Toronto, both of whom took lessons from Mehl. Claire Hague of Toronto, now head of the Canadian Universal Company, is also an old-timer. Hague first travelled with a carnival company which hit Toronto about sixteen years back and later he was an employe of the Allens in their first theater at Brantford, Ontario. Another Brantford operator was Ben Cronk who, after ten years in the business, is now manager of the big Allen theater in Calgary, one of the string of theaters owned by J. J. and Jules Allen. The first circuit operated by the Allens included the Wonderland and Theatorium in Brantford, the Princess in Kingston, Ontario, the Star in Berlin, Ontario, and the Star in Chatham. They rented film from Miles Brothers, New York, until they started an exchange of their own in Brantford in 1908. The Allens then moved to Western Canada and became the picture pioneers on the sunset side of Winnipeg. Three and one-half years ago the Allens obtained the exclusive rights in Canada for the Universal, and only two years ago they sold out to the Universal Company, as the latter desired to establish direct connections in the Canadian field. The Allens then took the Paramount program.

John Griffin, the originator of "store shows" in Toronto, opened his first house, the Lyceum, on lower Yonge street, twelve years ago. Within a few weeks Griffin also established the Trocadero on Queen street West, the Auditorium at Queen and Spadina avenue, the Theatorium on Yonge street, and a fifth house further north on Yonge street. Among the operators at these theaters were Walter Schankes, J. McLaughlin, who is a Toronto exhibitor himself now, W. Couvert, at the Universal head office now, W. Buckley, and James Downs, son of the circus man. The electrician for all these theaters was H. G. Jennings, who has been manager of the Mary Pickford theater (originally the Auditorium and one of the first five) for the past two years.

The Original "Store Show" Man.

Some of the features of these first film palaces were electric pianos, phonographs, lecturers and illustrated song acts in which the crowds were asked to "join heartily in singing the chorus." Sometimes the picture part of the show consisted of one and a half reels of film, generally of French origin and very streaky. Special colored glasses were sold by nearby merchants for the moving picture fans, especially those who remained in the theaters for two and three performances. To guard against this habit, the manager of the Comique, an early house, required all patrons to move up one or more seats whenever a person or persons decided they had seen enough and left the theater. One of the young fellows whose duties consisted of starting the piano on the inside and phonograph in the lobby was Sam Glazer, who is now a booker at the Toronto Paramount headquarters.

No theater was complete without a lecturer, who told the crowds what they were looking at, and the man with the best imagination made the best spieler. If any feature was lacking in a picture he filled the vacancy by telling the people what had been omitted. Of course the lecturer described the whole plot. The majority of the store shows of from nine to twelve years back seated about 300 people, but there was one, the Rex theater, Queene Street West, which had only 160 seats. The manager of this house was Lew Burch, who is now a member of a Lew Fields' Musical Comedy company. In Toronto at the present time there is a theater, the Queen's Palace, College street, which has only some 285 chairs.

The changes which have occurred in the lives of many Toronto picture show pioneers are very interesting. Bruce Fowler, who sold tickets at the Auditorium theater, Queen and Spadina avenue (now Mary Pickford theater), has become the secretary-treasurer of the McMahon Vaudeville Circuit. Al. Morgan, a singer, is now an officer of the Canadian Amusement Company at Stratford, Ontario. Al. Price, another singer who graduated from the picture field, is now in high class vaudeville. Nina McLeod, another old-time favorite in illustrated songs, is now doing time in vaudeville. Miss Vera Rossmore, a granddaughter of Denman Thompson, of "Old Homestead" fame, was also a singer in Toronto film houses. Bill Dineen, an electrician for the Griffin shows in the early days, is now mechanical engineer for the Metropolitan Amusement Company, which operates the Strand in Toronto. H. G. Jennings, who is the present manager of the Mary Pickford theater, Toronto, was working in New York theaters when Mary Pickford herself played New York with Chauncy Olcott in "Ragged Robin," and he was so impressed with the child that when the opportunity came to him to name a theater in Toronto he named it after her.

Where "Little Mary" Lived.

At 346 Queen Street West, Toronto, Mrs. Smith, mother of the Pickford stars, conducted a small store for a number of years until little Mary's dramatic ability became pronounced and it was decided to permit her to go on the road. Mary, Lottie and Jack Pickford are widely remembered in Toronto, and their relatives here are quite numerous.

The Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association of Ontario came into existence in Toronto about eighteen months ago and the president of the association is A. Baillie, one of the younger Toronto exhibitors. The Toronto membership in this association is about fifty and the organization is on a sound basis. The present body was preceded by an association, however, which did not endure for various reasons.

Toronto has twelve film exchanges which serve, in each case, practically the whole of Ontario. The headquarters of seven Canadian exchange companies are located in Toronto, making this city probably the most important film centre in the Dominion. The companies with headquarters in Toronto include the Universal, Paramount, V-L-S-E, Fox, Mutual, World and United.

Although Toronto has enjoyed considerable moving picture experience, the local film history is not complete. The city has yet to see an airdome, and only one local theater, the Strand, possesses a pipe organ. It is also said, sometimes, that Toronto does not have a real first-run house, but there are several fairly large downtown picture theaters which are providing the big stuff continuously for the entertainment of the thousands. W. M. GLADISH.

Indianapolis Shows Unusual Growth in Ten Years

Took It Six Years to Wake Up, but It Has Many Fine Houses Now-- Men Who Helped.

IT IS just ten years since C. L. Sutherland of Milwaukee came to Indianapolis and on a plunge opened a moving picture theater in East Washington street, near Pennsylvania street, or in the heart of the downtown district. He called his theater the Bijou. The building he occupied had been used for amusement enterprises for years. Prior to its service as a moving picture theater it contained penny-in-the-slot devices. When Sutherland made the building into a picture house the wise ones around town said he would lose his all. Instead Sutherland made money from the start. Moving pictures had been shown in the legitimate theaters by traveling reelsmen, but it was Sutherland who had the nerve to go up against the film as a permanent business proposition. That was ten years ago. In less than two years Sutherland had five picture theaters running and others had caught the movie theater fever and were helping to reap the harvest of loose Hoosier nickels.

The greatest stride in moving picture theater building had been made in the last four years. Four years ago there were twenty-nine moving picture houses in town. Now there are more than ninety, showing that sixty or more houses have been built within four years.

The introduction of moving pictures in Indianapolis ten years ago has been responsible for many marked changes in the downtown business district. Sutherland's Bijou replaced a penny-in-the-slot amusement parlor. The Vaudette, which occupied a room in the old Occidental Hotel building, also replaced an amusement parlor. In the building that preceded the present News building in Washington street was another Sutherland picture house, the Bijou Dream. Another Sutherland theater was the Mystic.

In a very short time Sutherland success became the envy of the other amusement promoters. The Manhattan restaurant in West Washington street, between Illinois street and Capitol avenue, was transformed into a picture house, the proprietor, by calculation, finding that there was more money in films than in French fried potatoes.

Has a "Movie Lane."

Illinois street, opposite the terminal station, has been found such a profitable location for moving picture theaters that the square between Market and Ohio streets has become popularly known as "Movie Lane." Two years ago Barton & Olson, who now control a string of the finest theaters in the city, opened what was then the moving picture wonder of the city, a $60,000 theater devoted exclusively to the films. The new house seated 800 people and was then rated as one of the best picture houses in the Middle West. The Isis was the beginning of big investments in the moving picture field in Indianapolis and it has paid wonderful returns. At about the same time the Crystal was built. It, too, was a sight for the moving picture fan, then just beginning to become really inoculated in Indianapolis. The Crystal presented the first big illuminated front.

Dickson & Talbott, who succeeded largely to the management of the Sutherland theatrical interests after the death of Mr. Sutherland, five years, ago, invaded the high rent provinces of Washington street to put forth motion picture enterprises. They built the Orpheum in Washington street and made it a ten-cent house, adding to the attractiveness of their picture by employing first-class musical talent. This house proved such a succes that the same firm was brave enough to supplant a prosperous saloon with a second ten-cent house, the Alhambra, in Washington street, just east of Illinois street, or the very heart of the city. This theater had the first pipe organ of the city.

F. J. Rembush.

A step in moving picture exhibiting marking the progress was taken by Bowlby & Cook, when they obtained control of the Bijou, the first Sutherland theater. They had some remarkable experiences in keeping the house prosperous, as it was a little out of the path of amusement hunters, but it succeeded, only recently disposing of their interests for a good sum to Edward Sourbier, who embarked in the business later and made it pay.

One of their plans for keeping up attendance was novel and was a success. It should be tried by other theater owners who are now kicking about attendance. Bowlby & Cook discovered there were hundreds of clerks, bookkeepers, sales people and others in the downtown district who having an hour for luncheon, eat quickly and spent the remainder of the hour in seeing a movie. The old theatrical men saw the value of having the pictures reeled off promptly. Therefore they arranged a running schedule the same as would be used by a railroad. The operators were timed on the films. The running schedule was placed in the machine room and two operators were employed so that no delay would be experienced in the change of films. The film time table also was posted in the lobby of the theater for the benefit of the patrons. In addition to the posting of the schedule the managers obtained a regulation Western Union clock and hung it near the screen. The clock and the film time table made it possible for each quick-lunch patron to know just how much time could be given to seeing the picture. For instance: Jimmy Jones works a block away from the theater. He liked the movies. He has an hour for lunch. When the clock in the office struck twelve the alert Jimmy has on his coat and hat and is away to the neighboring beanery for lunch. He finishes at 12:10. He hustles over to the Bijou, shoots his nickel through the window and is soon face to face with the film. Arriving at 12:12 he finds that he waits only two minutes for a new picture. The next film starts at 12:14. Then forty minutes of pleasure, the film having been selected for the noon-day purpose. It closed just in time for Jimmy to get back to the office in time for the 1 o'clock whistle.

A. C. Zaring.

Irvington was slow to get the moving picture theater. Although there were hundreds of children in this classic suburb, there was no show place. The reason was the children and the belief that the films would corrupt youthful morals. The parents objected until they saw the wealth of good.

Indianapolis has no less than twelve big downtown houses, four having come in the last year. The motion picture has converted three legitimate houses into houses for the film only and has otherwise worked wonders.

Perhaps the most imposing theater of the city is the Strand, under Chicago management. It was formerly the Park theater and catered only to the legitimate trade. The advent of the motion picture and its resultant popularity, especially the big feature productions, brought into existence the Strand. Another of the big theaters is the Regent, in the heart of the downtown district. It is less than one year old, but has enjoyed a liberal patronage. Bingham, Crose and Cohen, successful managers of a string of houses, built the Regent for the "movies." Another big house is the Colonial, under the same management. It was formerly a vaudeville house, but has been a money-maker with feature productions in the motion picture field.

J. M. Rhodes.

Barton & Olson, owners of another string, have recently made the Lyric, a vaudeville house, into a motion picture house exclusively. It is a beautiful little playhouse with dandy furnishings and it draws as well or better, at the box office, as any other theater in the city. Barton & Olson also control the Crystal, recently remodeled into what is the most beautiful interior finish of any of them.

The Indianapolis roll of honor, men who have made Indianapolis a leader in the moving picture field, contains the names of Frank J. Rembusch, patentee of the mirror screen, one of the vice-presidents of the Motion Picture Board of Trade and exhibitor; A. C. Zaring, secretary of the Indianapolis Exhibitors' League; Dr. J. M. Rhodes, always with Zaring, one of the leaders in the fight to stave off evils which meant the death of the exhibition game in Indianapolis.

R. L. JENNE.

WILLIAMS ON SCREEN SACRIFICES NO HUMOR.

Although tradition has it that most comedians on the stage have been a failure in pictures owing to the fact that they are handicapped through the loss of the spoken word, Bert Williams has proved that he is one of the few that "gets over" as well on the screen as he does on the stage.

Bert Williams, Comedian.

In "A Natural Born Gambler," a two-reel comedy produced by the Biograph Company and released July 24 through the General Film exchanges, Bert Williams has lost none of his rich humor. He is funny without leaning toward slapstick.

Chicago Reports Many Variations in Picture Shows

Had Pictures at the World's Fair, but Its First House was Opened in 1904--Many Beautiful Theaters Today.

THERE is little doubt that the first moving pictures ever seen in Chicago appeared during the World's Fair in 1893. These were furnished by the Anchutz Tachyscope and the Edison Kinetoscope.

The Anchutz Tachyscope.

In the Tachyscope a circular glass plate revolved in the cabinet of the machine, and the pictures, or photographs, appeared in succession as it turned, they being placed on the outer rim of the plate. As each picture came into position there was an incandescent flash in the cabinet, which brought it into view. The plate took only three seconds to revolve, so the picture show did not last long in those days.

The Edison Kinetoscope.

The Edison Kinetoscope, the first moving picture machine of a commercial character, and which used film of the regular standard now employed, namely, ¾ by 1 inch, was also a slot machine, the pictures being viewed as the film revolved in a dark cabinet chamber. The film used in this machine was opaque, the emulsion being placed over a ground glass base. Even if the present day film had been used in the machine, it would have been impossible to project it on a screen, as the film had a continuous movement and at that time the ingenious contrivance known as the intermittent sprocket had not been discovered. The discovery of this invention was due to Thomas Armat, of Washington, D. C., and it so effectively met the difficulty which had baffled all his predecessors and contemporaneous competitors that every projecting machine licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co. made use of the device, or of the principle underlying it.

The films used in the Kinetoscope were about 40 feet long, and the pictures appeared just the same size as they appeared on the film, namely, ¾ by 1 inch.

The first Kinetoscope show in Chicago was located in the Ashland Block, on the northeast corner of Clark and Randolph streets, early in 1894. The machines were operated by placing a nickel in the slot, and a rushing business was done.

First Moving Pictures Shown with High Class Vaudeville.

The first moving pictures projected on a screen in America were not shown in moving picture houses, because there were none. They were used as an added attraction in high class vaudeville houses throughout the country. The pictures were furnished together with a machine and operator by various companies. The Vitascope and the Lumiere Cinematograph were first in order to furnish such scrvice. The first Vitascope pictures were shown in 1895, and represented scenic views by the cameraman on the front of an engine in motion.

George K. Spoor's Magniscope Service.

The Magniscope projecting machine, which had been invented by E. H. Amet of Waukegan, Ill., with George K. Spoor, now president of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Co., as financier of the invention, came out in the fall of 1895. Mr. Spoor was then running the Grand Opera House in Waukegan, the management of which he conducted from 1892 to the fall of '96.

The Magniscope service was first furnished to the John D. Hopkins circuit in Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, including the State Street theater, the old Columbia, owned by Frank D. Tate, and the Hopkins Grand, in order, in the cities mentioned. The Schiller theater, Chicago, now the Garrick, was also furnished with Magniscope service in 1896, when vaudeville programs were run in that house under the management of Robert Blei. It succeeded the Cinematograph service in that house, in that year. In the Hopkins and Tate theaters the Magniscope succeeded the old Jenkins Phantascope.

The Magniscope paved the way for the Kinodrome, which was built for George K. Spoor by Don J. Bell, now of Bell & Howell, in the fall of 1897. The first machine was placed in the Grand Opera House, Syracuse, N. Y., then controlled by the Shuberts.

George K. Spoor's Kinodrome Service.

The Kinodrome service established by George K. Spoor became famous throughout the country. It is understood, of and the operator. Mr. Spoor secured his pictures from Edison and through McGuire & Baucaus, 44 Pine street, New York, who at that time imported English films. These English films were made chiefly by Robert Paul, Mr. Houdin and George Melies, and were from 60 to 100 feet in length. They were trick films and took remarkably well.

Types of Films Shown in 1896.

The pictures shown in the Schiller in 1896 were not only scenic. Some of them showed action, such as taking horses out of a burning stable, a scene in "The Buffalo Horse Market," "Feeding the Doves," "Surf Scene at Atlantic City," "Hurdy Gurdy Dance," and "Washing the Nigger Baby." These films, as closely as Mr. Spoor can remember, were from 50 to 60 feet in length.

The First "Store" Picture Show in Chicago.

We now come to the advent of the first "store" moving picture show in Chicago. It can easily be imagined that there are differences of opinion on this question.

Wm. N. Selig, now president of the Selig Polyscope Co., is certain that the Electric theater, located near the northeast corner of State and Harrison streets, and owned by Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, was the first. Mr. Selig was running his Peck Court studio at the time, and was familiar with every happening in the amusement line in that section. It is his recollection that the Electric was opened in the spring of 1906, and that Gustav Hollenberg was the operator.

Hollenberg had been induced to take the position by outside parties, who were anxious to learn what business was done in the new venture. After a few weeks Hollenberg found business so prosperous that he opened another house, called the Chicago, a few doors from Harrison street, on the southwest corner of State and Harrison. This house he afterwards sold to Jim Maher, who came to the city about that time from the west, and afterward became associated with Wm. H. Swanson in the Swanson Film Exchange. It will be interesting to add here that when Hollenberg left the Electric theater to take charge of the Chicago, Bill Swanson succeeded him as operator at the Electric.

Now comes Aaron J. Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, as a claimant for the honor of having opened the first "store" picture theater in Chicago. Mr. Jones is certain that he opened a picture theater on S. State street, where Browning, King & Co.'s store now stands (next to the Palmer House), on Christmas day, 1905. He is perfectly certain of the date, from the fact that the big amusement park, White City, of which he was treasurer and a stockholder, was opened on May 27, 1905. He confidently states that the only other picture theater seen by him in the country before that date was the nickel show, on Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, run by Harry Davis. He visited that theater, the name of which he does not recollect, a month before he opened the nickel show referred to. His lease on the ground was short, however, as he had to get out on May 1, 1906, having leased on the same date the prescnt site of the famous Orpheum, on State street, opposite the Palmer House. This theater was built for high class vaudevillc, and was opened on Oct. 1, 1916. Later, through inability to secure high-class vaudeville bookings, on account of the opposition of the Majestic theater, just around the corner, Mr. Jones turned the Orpheum into a moving picture theater.

Orpheum Theater, Chicago, First High Class Picture Theater.

This was a great boost for moving pictures, as everyone knew that the ground leasc was costly. Business has been prosperous, very prosperous, indeed, ever since, and in the course of time the success of the Orpheum induced exhibitors with capital to get away from the old "store" theater into modern beautiful buildings.

Electric Theater, State and Harrison, First "Store" Theater.

But this is digressing. Mr. Jones, by no means, has the last word in deciding the question concerning the first "store" theater in Chicago. Ike Van Ronkel, well known in film circles as an able exchange manager for many years, entered the business as the owner of the Electric theater, Quincy and Halsted streets. That was on Feb. 1, 1906. Mr. Van Ronkel claims that the Electric theater on State and Harrison was opened by the Riley Brothers, proteges of Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, in November, 1905. Both Mr. Selig and Mr. Van Ronkel are agreed on the ownership of the Electric, and again both are agreed that it was the first "store" picture theater in Chicago.

Mr. Van Ronkel states that the Nickelodeon on Halsted street, 50 feet north of Van Buren, was opened on Jan. 1, modern Newberry theater, 856 North Clark street, which seats 700 people; Harry Cohen, now widely known in film circles as an efficient film exchange manager, and D. L. Noon. He also holds that the Chicago theater was opened in the latter part of February or March, 1906.

Four First Picture Theaters in Chicago.

The data now furnished tends to show that the Electric theater owned by Harry Davis of Pittsburgh, was the first "store" picture theater opened in Chicago; that Mr. Jones' theater, opened on Christmas day, 1905, was the second; that the Nickelodeon was the third, and Van Ronkel's Electric the fourth.

Type of Pictures in Early Theaters.

In all these early theaters sensational pictures were the most popular. Mr. Van Ronkel is certain that he used films 400 feet and more in length of this type at his theater. The most popular at the time were "Escaped from Sing Sing" (Vitagraph), "The Great Train Robbery" (Edison), slap-stick comedies of a primitive kind, and trick films, including "A Trip to the Moon" (Melies).

Aaron J. Jones is certain that he used pictures 1,000 feet in length at his first house, including "The Great Train Robbery," slap-stick comedies, and street chasing scenes, such as Pathe's comedy showing the baker boy with a tray of pastry on his head being knocked down as he hurriedly goes out of the store, and the following mix-ups.

Equipment of Early Theaters.

Folding camp chairs, as a rule, formed the seats in these primitive "store" picture theaters, and in some cases many of the people had to stand. Five cents admission was charged for one reel to a show, and as a usual thing, a phonograph was placed in the lobby to attract the attention of passersby.

George K. Spoor remembers a peculiar incident, which he narrates in connection with the opening of the first "store" show. To the best of his recollection in the summer of 1896 a moving picture show was given in a room of the old Methodist Church building, on the southeast corner of Clark and Washington streets. The operator was Gilbert P. Hamilton, who afterwards was superintendent of the Essanay plant for a number of years. The picture shown was a prize fight or a boxing contest, about 100 feet in length. About the same time Eddy Foy appeared in "Robinson Crusoe," in the Schiller theater, which was then under the management of Tom Prior. The room in the Methodist Church building only seats 30 people, so that the profits were very small; and so the machine, an Eidoloscope, was taken over to the Schiller, and the picture shown during the performance of "Robinson Crusoe."

Edison Machine Used in Chicago's First Picture House.

Muslin screens, either plain or sized, or a white wall, were used as a rule, in all these early theaters, and here it may be stated that an Edison projecting machine was used in the first "store" theater opened in Chicago.

Panic of 1907 Boosts Moving Pictures.

The panic in 1907 gave a tremendous impetus to the moving picture industry generally. During that year five-cent theaters grew and multiplied throughout the country. The scarcity of currency turned the amusement-loving public to the low-priced picture theaters and the oftener they went the more convinced they became that the new entertainment was not only novel, but exceedingly enjoyable and attractive.

Hale's Tours Cars in 1906.

The Hale's Tours cars came in vogue in Chicago in the spring of 1906. Aaron J. Jones put up the first in a store alongside Schaefer's penny Arcade, at 306 South State street (the old number), the Arcade being 308. Mr. Jones simply took out the store front and ran the Hale's car in, admitting people through the front of his store and giving them exit through the Arcade adjoining. The second Hale's Tours show was opened by Mr. Jones later in the same year, next door north of the present Orpheum site. Of course, scenic pictures only were run in these cars.

Illustrated Songs and Pictures.

From the earliest days of the "store" shows, music of some kind was used with pictures. At first the phonograph was favored because of its cheapness. Illustrated songs had been used in entertainment as early as 1904, but they were used first in cheap vaudeville houses. In the fall of 1906 they were first used in picture theaters and became quite a fixture until about 1911, when they began to lose their hold on the better class of houses. They gradually dwindled until 1914, when only few could be found in any Chicago theaters. Several small theaters in small country towns still use them, but their day is over.

Playing the Pictures.

As early as 1909 an attempt was made to play suitable selections on the piano, with drum accompaniment, for the pictures. None of these pianists at that time could improvise so as to catch the theme of the picture accompanied, with the result that patrons with musical ears soon tired of such music and preferred the pictures alone. It was not until men with the calibre of S. L. Rothapfel arrived that real interpretative music accompanied the pictures. That was in 1911 at the Alhambra, Milwaukee. It must not be inferred, however, that Mr. Rothapfel was the only man of this type in the business at that time. There were others who aimed at the same work, but did not succeed in getting into the limelight so strongly.

Cheap Vaudeville and Pictures.

From 1908 until 1911 the progress of moving pictures was seriously retarded by the introduction of cheap vaudeville acts between films. The custom was introduced by managers who had formerly run cheap vaudeville theaters, and who were unable to hold moving pictures at their true value.

It will be recalled that the panic of 1907 added large numbers of new patrons to picture theaters, and that the attendance had steadily increased. Most of these patrons were people of refinement and intelligence and resented being annoyed by vulgar and rough entertainment. They were willing to take pictures at their worth, and that was sometimes pretty low, but they would not tolerate the attempts made by "ham fats" and "low brows" to amuse them.

A campaign against cheap vaudeville was carried on in the old Film Index by the writer for nearly two years, with the result that the managers and owners who did not really like low vaudeville intermixed with their pictures, but who at first had been frightened into its use through fear of having their business diminished by their competitors, soon discarded vaudeville. Their business grew, and in the course of time their competitors learned that they were playing a losing game. Organ or orchestral music and vocal numbers soon took the place of cheap vaudeville acts.

Gradual Disappearance of the Old "Store" Theater.

The survival of the fittest has been forcibly demonstrated in the history of the "store" theater. As the call of the moving picture increased the patronage of the refined class it soon became manifest to exhibitors of intelligence that they must provide better homes for picture entertainment. The new houses were well appointed and equipped. The "dark" house was a thing of the past and health ordinances calling for good ventilation were rigidly enforced.

The old "store" theater could not meet the requirements and it was closed. Even when the small house succeeded in complying with the law, it was soon forced out of business by the larger, modern house which had been built near it. That appears to be the prevailing rule in all large cities and in all cities and towns of importance. The trend is ever toward progress. Better pictures, better projection, better music, better management, betterment in everything is required, in addition to better houses. The public has become enlightened on the whole business and will not be denied.

From 1914-16 a wonderful growth in new modern picture theaters has been shown in Chicago. Three big circuits of new structures have come into being. The largest of these and the most costly is owned by the Ascher Bros., Nathan, Harry E. and Max. The two other circuits are comprised of leased theaters, and are controlled by Alfred Hamburger and Lubliner & Trinz.

On the Ascher Bros. circuit are the Oakland Square, Drexel and Oakwood boulevards; the Columbus, Ashland avenue and 63rd street; Terminal, Lawrence and Spaulding avenues; Caldo, Clark street and Balmoral avenue; Lane, Center street and Lane center; President, 55th street and Calumet avenue; Frolic, 55th and Ellis avenue, and the Cosmopolitan, Halsted and 79th streets.

All of these theaters, with the exception of the President, were built by the Ascher Brothers. The Oakland Square has a capacity of 1,525, and cost $200,000. The remaining theaters have a seating capacity of 1,000 and cost from $150,000 to $200,000 each.

Organs and five-piece orchestras are installed in all the Ascher theaters, and appropriate music accompanies the pictures.

Three new theaters for the Ascher Brothers' circuit are now under construction, and will be completed in September. Each will have a seating capacity of 1,500.

The Alfred Hamburger circuit controls the following houses: Twentieth Century (1,000), 47th and Prairie avenue; the Prairie (1,000), 58th and Prairie avenue; Willard (1,200), 51st and Calumet; Speedway (800), 47th and Indiana avenue;

Albany Park (1,100), Lawrence and Kedzie avenue; Pine Grove (800), Sheridan road and Pine Grove avenue, and the Argmore (800), Argyle and Kenmore avenues. In addition there are seven smaller houses on this circuit.

Each of the larger houses has an orchestra and organ.

The Lubliner & Trinz circuit is comprised of the following houses: The Biograph, 2433 Lincoln avenue; Vitagraph, 3137 Lincoln avenue; Paramount, 2648 Milwaukee avenue; Knickerbocker, 6225 Broadway, and the South Shore, 6855 Stony Island avenue.

Each of these theaters seats 1,000 people, and each has an organ and an eight-piece orchestra. The organs used are known as the Wangerin-Weickhardt, made in Milwaukee. Three other theaters are now under construction and will be completed in September. Each will seat from 1,500 to 2,000 people.

Among the other prominent, singly-owned houses of modern construction, appointments and equipment, are the following, with the names of the owners, locations and capacities:

Parkway (800), 2736 N. Clark street, F. O. Nielsen; Hamlin (1,000), 3822 W. Madison street, Hopkinson Amusement Co.; Dearborn (700), 40 W. Division street, A. Cuneo; Coronado (850), 3972 Vincennes avenue, Louis H. Frank; De Luxe (550), Wilson & Clifton avenues, A. Cuneo; Lake Shore (600), 3175 Broadway, I. G. Ettelson; Avon (1,000), 3325 Fullerton avenue, Sam Katz and Max Hyman; Gold (800), 3411 W. 12th street, S. Gold; Keystone (800), Sheridan road and Dakin street, Chas. Schaefer; Crystal (800), North and Washtenaw avenues, Schaefer Brothers; Buckingham (1,000), 3319 N. Clark street, and Julian (800), 918 Belmont avenue, H. R. Foster and F. M. Teter; La Salle (800), 154 W. Division street, Thomas F. Mitchel and John A. Maselter; Newberry (700), 856 N. Clark street, M. A. Choynski; Beach (1,000), 1504 Hyde Park boulevard, South Shore Amusement Co.; Vista (800), 824 E. 47th street, H. N. Ortenstein; Bryn Mawr (800), 1125 Bryn Mawr avenue, and Regent (700), 6746 Sheridan road, Bryn Mawr Amusement Co.; Crawford (1,000), 19 S. Crawford avenue, J. B. and W. E. Heaney; Shakespeare (1,000), 43rd street and Ellis avenue, United States Moving Picture Co.; Kenwood (900), 47th street and Kimbark avenue, W. McHie; Grand (1,000), 3433 West North avenue, Clarence Lautenslager; Drexel (650), 853 E. 63rd street, Nortman Brothers and Fecher; Clark (1,200), Clark and Wilson, Lessee Jos Grein; California (1,000), 3434 W. 26th street, F. H. Franke; Strand (700), 3029 Lincoln avenue, Nottey and Backer; Kedzie avenue annex (1,000), Kedzie avenue and W. Madison street, Malcolm and Rogers; Orpheum (800), State and Monroe streets, Jones, Linick & Schaefer, and Strand (1,500), Wabash and Seventh street, Strand Theater Co.

The last-mentioned theater, the Strand, has a thirty-piece symphony orchestra, the finest in the city, to play moving picture accompaniment, and the programs are high class.

The Orpheum, on State street, has employed a fine orchestra for a long time, and the pictures are accompanied by appropriate music.

The Parkway has an orchestra of six pieces and a large organ. All the others mentioned, which are singly owned, have an organ and piano. JAMES S. McQUADE.

Adolph Zukor Quit Furs for Films

President of Famous-Lasky Players had a Store Show on Fourteenth Street Long Before He Made Features.

THE first connection of Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, with the amusement business occurred in 1904. It was in that year that through the solicitation of a cousin who was associated with Mitchell Mark in several amusement enterprises out of town that Mr. Zukor gave up his fur business to take an active part in a new amusement venture which the two men were contemplating. Their idea was to erect a $150,000 theater on Broadway at 14th street, the theatrical Rialto of that day, to be devoted to a penny arcade—the first time that the old slot machines, through which one could hear the latest songs and see highly colored stereoscopic pictures, were to be housed in a theater so complete and pretentious. In a comparatively short time a large, attractive theater had been erected, and from the very first performance the novel penny arcade became a tremendous success.

Adolph Zukor.

While highly prosperous, the penny arcade's activities failed to satisfy Mr. Zukor, who had already caught the glamor connected with selling amusement to the public, and was anxious to advance in his new field. In 1906 he therefore sold his holdings in the arcade and became associated with Wm. A. Brady, in a venture called "Hale's Touring Cars," which consisted of little theaters constructed in the form of Pullman cars, from the seats of which one could see motion picture scenic views, the whole being designed to convey the impression that the spectators were riding through the country on a train. Mr. Zukor secured scenes along the most picturesque railway routes in the world, and the idea was a temporary success. Then the public lost interest in the novelty and Mr. Zukor sought about for the next step by which to amuse the fickle public.

The motion picture producers at that time did not take their business seriously. Mr. Zukor converted his penny arcades, of which there were now a goodly number, into photoplay theaters, but after a while he realized that due to the mediocrity of the films he was obtaining, and the reluctance or complete refusal of the motion picture producers to raise their standard, the photoplay would ultimately pass away like any other fad, just as he had seen the penny arcade and "Hale's Touring Cars" pass. This time, however, he resolved to permanently insure his investment, and determined that if he could not obtain better films, he would go out and produce them himself.

It was this resolution that several years later materialized in the formation of the Famous Players Film Company, when he became associated with Daniel Frohman and Edwin S. Porter. This company was organized in the early part of 1912 for the purpose of presenting the famous stars and plays of the stage to the motion picture public, Mr. Zukor believing that the introduction of the better dramatic and personal element of the legitimate theater into filmdom would keep the public the screen had already attracted, win another clientele composed of the better class who had not yet been converted to the motion picture, and at the same time create a definite stimulus for the other motion picture executives.

How this policy, when announced, was scoffed at by theatrical and motion picture producers; how, following the initial presentation of Sarah Bernhardt in "Queen Elizabeth," this company established a record for merit from which it has never departed; how, encouraged by the sensational success of this production and those of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," which shortly followed, it was induced to present a program of thirty feature productions—the first feature program ever released—how this policy soon began to be imitated by numerous other concerns in the business, resulting in the great feature development of the motion picture, and how, due to the expansion of the first thirty features a year, to thirty-six productions annually, and then, in association with Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., and Bosworth, the presentation of a Paramount Program of 104 photoplays a year, is now not only film history, but perhaps the greatest single phase of the entire advancement of the art of the silent drama.

Los Angeles, Studio Center, Has Pioneer Exhibitors

Tally and Clune Picked as Primitive Picture Men—Quinn Qualifies in the Spectacular Class.

THE history of motion picture exhibiting in Los Angeles is rather interesting and covers a long period of years. Thomas L. Tally, the present owner of Tally's Broadway theater, is the pioneer exhibitor of Los Angeles and one of the pioneers of this country. In the early part of April, 1897, Mr. Tally exhibited on a screen in the rear of his phonograph parlor, located at 311 South Spring street, the first motion picture ever seen on the Pacific coast. The projecting machine used was an Edison Vitascope and the first picture ever projected "The Black Diamond Express. Not wishing to darken the phonograph parlor during the exhibitions, the entire light throw from the lens to the screen was enclosed with a big tunnel of wood and black canvas which occupied the center space of the room. The people viewed the picture from the rear and a small auditorium with chairs had been arranged. About 300 feet of films were used for the program which consisted of three subjects, one 50 feet long, one 100 feet and a feature picture of 150 feet.

T. S. Tally.

Most of the subjects were scenic films like "Shooting the White Horse Rapids in Yukon River." Admission charged was ten cents.

From 311 South Spring street Mr. Tally moved a year later to a location on First and Spring streets; from there to Third and Main, and in March, 1905, to Sixth and Broadway. It was here, Mr. Tally says, that the first craze on motion pictures started and people used to be lined up for a block or more to get into his theater. The seating capacity of this house was 500 and considered very large. Admission charged was ten cents. Mr. Tally's Sixth and Broadway house was the first real motion picture theater in Los Angeles and was operated by Mr. Tally for four years when he, in 1909, moved to his present location on Broadway between Eighth and Ninth streets.

W. H. Clune entered the motion picture field in 1908. He built a beautiful theater on the corner of Fifth and Main streets seating 1,000 people. Main street was then the principal business street in Los Angeles and Fifth and Main the heart of the business section. Clune's electrical display on this theater was a real achievement. The theater had an entrance on both streets and over both entrances were built gorgeous electric signs that cost many thousand dollars. The interior of this theater, I have been told, would be hard to improve upon even today. It was most beautifully appointed and unusually comfortable, with wide, luxurious seats. This theater made W. H. Clune famous from coast to coast and was a continued success and a veritable gold mine for four years, when the lease expired and the building was razed to make room for the present twelve-story Rosslyn Hotel.

Mr. Clune followed the erection of his Main and Fifth street house about two years later with the building of his present Broadway theater—the Clune's Broadway—and which is now considered one of the finest motion picture houses on the Pacific coast. This theater has also a magnificent electric sign. It is 30 feet high and 50 feet wide and contains about 3,000 lamps controlled by a seven-story electric flasher. It announces "Clune's Broadway—The Time and the Place." The time is written every minute in three-foot electric figures simultaneously on the sign and in the house. This Clune's clock is a real feature and remembered by people all over the country.

The Broadway seats 900 all on one floor, 200 are loge seats arranged in the back of the house and at quite an elevation. The throw is 112 feet. An excellent orchestra of ten pieces accompanies the pictures. James W. Anderson is the local manager.

The Clune Theater Company, of which W. H. Clune is president, operates at the present time five theaters in Los Angeles and vicinity. The Clune's Auditorium is the largest theater of any kind in Los Angeles. It was built for legitimate drama and grand opera and has a seating capacity of 3,000. Mr. Clune in this theater presents only the very largest productions, and D. W. Griffith's masterpiece, "The Clansman," had here its initial presentation and a record-breaking run for twenty-six weeks.

The Auditorium has a pipe organ costing $30,000 and a regular orchestra of twenty pieces playing to the pictures. The supreme attempt of Mr. Clune and his assistant manager, Lloyd Brown, was the presentation of "Ramona" a few months ago. The Auditorium has a very elaborate sign six stories in height on the top of a nine-story building. It contains over 6,000 lamps and has the largest flasher in the world, making 150,000 contacts per minute.

Outside of these theaters Mr. Clune has one large house in Pasadena seating 1,300 which it is said exhibits the largest picture in the world, the size being 23 by 32 feet on the screen.

The Clune Theater Company also operates a house in Santa Anna, Cal., and a small five-cent house at 547 Broadway, Los Angeles, in which building are the executive offices of the company.

Quinn's Superba is the house next door to Clune's Broadway. It was built by J. A. Quinn and is now operated by the Broadway Amusement Company. It is to the writer's opinion the most attractive house on Broadway. The lobby is built entirely of imported onyx, with columns holding concealed lights. The lobby is most beautifully decorated and has program frames of hammered brass that alone cost over $600. A gorgeous electric sign, 75 by 35 feet, is built on top of the roof. The Superba has a ten-piece orchestra. The seating capacity is 700. B. H. Collier is the local manager.

W. H. Clune.

The Symphony is the next house of importance on Broadway going south from Clune's and the Superba. The Symphony has a very attractive front and rather elaborate canopy. It seats about 750 and is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dubois. The house has a $10,000 Photoplayer and charges 10, 20 and 25 cents in admission.

Almost on the corner of Seventh and Broadway on Seventh street between Broadway and Hill is the Palace Theater. This house used to be located on Broadway between Sixth and Seventh and moved when the lease expired into its present and no doubt better location. The Palace is a small house, seating only 633. It charges 10, 15 and 25 cents in admission, is very cozy in appearance and has a Wurlitzer organ. Dr. H. B. Breckwedel is the manager.

On Broadway, further south, between Eighth and Ninth, on the west side of the street, is located Tally's Broadway theater.

Tally's Broadway is not by outside appearance a very imposing theater. But get inside and you will see a picture properly presented. The projection in the first place is absolutely flawless, steady as a rock, with a beautifully lighted screen which is a pleasure to look at. The chief feature of this house is the music. It has a splendid orchestra and a simply wonderful organ.

Tally's Broadway seats 900 people, and charges 10, 20 and 30 cents in admission. Seymour Tally, the son of the owner, is the house manager, and he is assisted by James S. Randall, advertising manager.

The Woodley is a 900-seat house across the street from Tally's Broadway. The new Garrick theater is also on Broadway and in the same block as the Woodley. This is an exceptionally well conducted and live house. W. T. Smith is the manager.

Two downtown houses, the Main Street and the Alhambra, are both owned and operated by Fred A. Miller, one of the most popular exhibitors in Los Angeles. The Main Street house has a seating capacity of 800, and has a lobby 100 feet long attractively decorated. The Alhambra is the larger house with a seating of 900.

Tally's Broadway Theater, Los Angeles.

In concluding I wish to give more than passing mention to J. A. Quinn. He is, without a question, one of the livest exhibitors in America. He has owned and operated a number of theaters in Los Angeles including the Garrick and the Superba. It was at this latter house Mr. Quinn put on "Hypocrites," which made his reputation as the most spectacular exhibitor of the Pacific Coast. The censor board refused a permit on this film, but after securing endorsements from all the prominent local organizations Mr. Quinn decided to run it and fight the censor board. The advertising campaign on this picture caused nationwide comment, full pages being used every day in the papers. The receipts on the opening week were $8,000, the second week $3,600, third week $4,500 and fourth week $3,600. Admission charged was 25, 35 and 50 cents.

J. A. Quinn.

The next sensational run Mr. Quinn engineered was "Damaged Goods." The censor board absolutely refused to allow this picture to be shown, but after putting up a most desperate fight and incidentally cleaning up the entire censor board, Mr. Quinn exhibited the picture to phenomenal business for six weeks, breaking all records, running all night to packed shows. The "Damaged Goods" controversy was the direct means of abolishing censorship in Los Angeles.

Of the 125 theaters in Los Angeles about 80 are exclusive motion picture houses of which 20 are in the business district and sixty in the suburbs and residence sections of the city. The seating capacity of these houses runs as high as 900. There are one or two legitimate houses now used for the exhibition of pictures that have a larger capacity, but Los Angeles has no "Strand" or "Rialto" houses of large capacity, built exclusively for motion pictures, yet I doubt if in any large or small city in the United States there are as many attractive and well conducted photoplay houses all in a bunch together as in the downtown business district of Los Angeles.

Broadway is the main thoroughfare of Los Angeles. On this imposing street which with its tall buildings and magnificent department stores is truly metropolitan in character, are located several of our finest photoplay houses.

Typical of Los Angeles and perhaps of most of the theaters on the Pacific Coast, is the seating plan. The last ten rows in the house are elevated and converted into boxes and loges. These back seats command the top price of admission, which is generally 30 cents. In some of the theaters like Tally's they have comfortable wicker chairs, which you can move around in the box as you want to. The first 15 rows from the screen are 10 cents, and the center section of the house 20 cents. This seating arrangement in our theaters I consider a distinct advancement over motion picture houses in most every part of the country.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN.

Rhea Mitchell.

BECAUSE of her exceptionally good work in recent American and Signal Mutual pictures Rhea Mitchell has been chosen to head the big company of noted players appearing in support of Richard Bennett in "The Sable Curse." Miss Mitchell will play opposite Mr. Bennett in the role of Mary Redmond, a part to which her gifted personality, versatility and recognized emotional abilities are well adapted. Miss Mitchell's most recent appearance with Mutual was as co-star with William Stowell in "The Man from Manhattan," a five-act production.

Rhea Mitchell.

Miss Mitchell, who is a native of Portland, Ore., entered stage work immediately after quitting school, with the Baker Theater Stock Company of that city. She has played stock in every city of importance along the Pacific coast with the exception of Los Angeles. Miss Mitchell played an entire season in a dramatic sketch over the Orpheum Circuit, a record that stood for a long time. Her first picture work was with the New York Motion Picture Corporation, coming direct to the studio from the Alcazar theater, in San Francisco.

Miss Mitchell for a long time after entering studio work enjoyed a wide reputation as a "stunt" player, nothing being too hazardous in the way of thrills for her to try at least once. She joined the American-Mutual studios some six or eight months ago, and ever since has been appearing in leading roles in feature productions.

NICHOLAS POWER AGAIN HONORED.

Included among the most notable exhibits shown at the Third National Exposition of Safety held at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, May 22 to 27, 1916, was the display of the Nicholas Power Company. Power's Cameragraphs Nos. 6A, 6B, "Road Equipment," the new nitrogen lamp equipment and a model showing comparison of the movement used in the Power's machines and the old Geneva movement discarded by this company some years ago comprised the exhibit of the Power Company. Nicholas Power was awarded the Grand Prize. Including this honor, previous awards received by Mr. Power are:

American Museum of Safety, 1913, gold medal; American Museum of Safety, 1914, grand prize; American Museum of Safety, 1916, grand prize; Panama-Pacific International Exposition, 1915, first grand prize.

C. Francis Jenkins Tells of the First Projector

Made a Crude Machine That Was Used in 1894--Was Joined by Thomas Armat in Perfecting the Device.

JUST how he came to accomplish the wonderful feat which has resulted in the giving of daily pleasure to millions of people throughout the United States, C. Francis Jenkins, inventor of the first motion picture projecting machine as now constructed, is unable to say. He is unable to analyze the train of thought which resulted in the production of a projecting machine, but he gives credit for its inception to his observation of flashes of sunlight reflected from the axes used by a gang of men clearing a right of way in an Oregon forest in the late eighties. Mr. Jenkins had gone hunting and it was from the side of a mountain that he saw the heliostatic reflection from the axes handled by probably a hundred workmen. The idea came to him then to reproduce those flashes by another means.

C. Francis Jenkins.

Familiar with the principles of the camera, he came to a realization of the fact that these flashes could be recorded on a sensitized receiving film by an intermittent successive movement of both shutter and what later developed to be film.

The first machine made was very naturally a camera and Mr. Jenkins utilized this by adapting to it mechanism that would draw the film down before the projecting lens and immediately thereafter operate the shutter, this sequence being rapidly repeated by the operator by turning a crank at the side of the machine. A light was afterward placed behind the box to project the pictures.

Some years later Mr. Jenkins learned that the same idea was being followed by Lumiere of Paris, and, according to the former, curiously enough their work was a duplication one of the other; they were working at approximately the same time and along the same lines, but it fell to Mr. Jenkins to be able to first give out to the world through the scientific papers the fact that he had evolved a machine which would reproduce natural movements in life size projection.

Prior to the time that Mr. Jenkins perfected his invention, Eastman and Walker had placed the modern hand camera on the market and Hannibal Goodwin had invented the flexible film as we now have it.

Mr. Jenkins is very modest and unassuming, and it is a pretty hard matter for an interviewer to get him to enlarge upon the knowledge the writer may have of the subject to enable him to produce in scenario form "The Romance of Pictures." But he took all of the romance out of the play when he delivered the following oration:

"In the operation of a hand camera you simply press a button. That releases a spring and the shutter opens and closes. You have your picture, for the impression was made upon the film during the operation. You wind up your 'picture' by turning a key, and the next section of blank film comes into place. You repeat the operation until you come to the end of the film. All I did in my camera in its broadest sense was to hitch these two functions together so that in turning the crank they would follow each other in proper sequence, and at whatever rate of speed may be desired."

Very simple! All he did was to connect up two factors. Mr. Jenkins puts it very modestly, but that is the way, he says, the machine began.

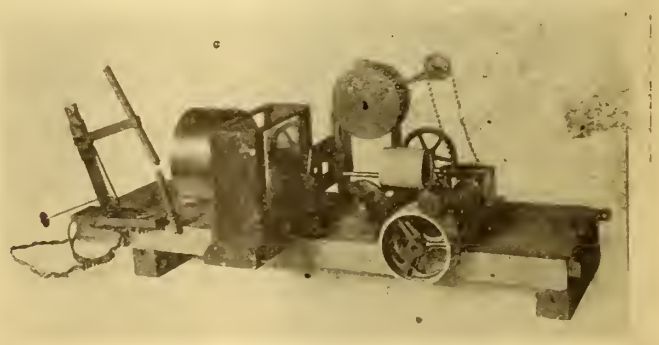
After having perfected his machine for taking the pictures he set about to exhibit them in much the same manner; he learned that to project them on a screen in sort of magic lantern style, the operator must put a light behind the film, throwing its rays through it and the projection lens, and in turning the same crank secure the movement of the shutter and the drawing down of the film. Thus the operator was enabled to reproduce the pictures in succession on the canvas or screen. If that succession is repeated rapidly enough one will see a continuous picture by reason of the persistence of vision, which is the function of the eye.

"But before I went very far with the new invention," continued Mr. Jenkins, "I found that it would be more desirable to make two separate machines—one, the camera for making the photographic negative; the other, a machine for projecting those negatives. The principal reason for this was that I found that a different kind of projecting lens was needed for the projecting machine and a much stronger light than it was convenient to use in a camera box. Naturally, from that time the two machines floated apart, each to perform more successfully its particular part of the whole process."

The first machine used publicly for producing life sized pictures on a canvas was made in 1894 and used in Washington, D. C., the home of Mr. Jenkins. The following year that machine was placed in the National Museum with other interesting inventions of Mr. Jenkins and it is still to be seen there.

In the early winter of 1894-5, Mr. Jenkins met Thomas Armat, who was in Washington attending lectures being delivered in that city. He explained his invention to the latter and in March a contract was signed under which Mr. Armat agreed to finance the construction of machines to be taken to Atlanta, Ga., and exhibited on the midway at the Cotton States Exposition, opening in August, 1895.

In the early days of motion pictures, these men found it extremely difficult to explain to the hundreds of people who wanted to see them just what it was that they had to offer. They could not tell the sightseers just what motion pictures were, so they adopted the plan of inviting the crowds into their exhibition, giving them a show and informing them that those who felt that they had been entertained could make known that fact by contributing whatever they desired, leaving the money at the box office on their way out. "I am glad to say," said Mr. Jenkins, "our confidence in the American sense of fair play was not misplaced and we began to make money, for one person after seeing the show would tell another and we soon got a great deal of such personal advertising. However, after we had been running for some two or three weeks a fire broke out in the negro plantation nearby and the wind blowing the flames in our direction, the building in which we were located was soon destroyed."



First Motion Picture Projector.

The original invention embodied all of the essentials of the projection machine of today. The only real addition has been the three-wing shutter. That eliminates flicker. A one-wing shutter, the blade of which was employed to obscure the light during the time required to pull the film down, gives sixteen alternations of light and darkness per second. This is visible to the eye and causes headaches. Subsequently it was suggested by a French inventor that cutting the light with other blades would reduce the flicker, and the custom today is to employ three-bladed shutters which give forty-eight such alternations of light and darkness per second, and these changes are not conspicuous or visible to the eye.

The development of the projection machine from the early type patented by Mr. Jenkins has included the placing of the arc lamp in what we are pleased to call the lamp house. This is to prevent the escape of light to the curtain or screen and conserves the rays. It was the custom with the first machines to put them in one room and project through an aperture in the wall into another room, on the further wall of which was located a curtain. This gave rise to the projection booth of today. Another later improvement was the inclosing of the films in a fireproof metal magazine to keep them away from the heat of the arc lamp.

The machines of today are neater in appearance; they can be operated with a greater degree of safety, but, taking all of these points into consideration, it is readily to be seen that the present-day projection machines bear all of the earmarks of the original invention. CLARENCE L. LINZ.

Richardson Reviews Past and Present Projectors

Tells of Some of the Trials and Tribulations of the Early Exhibitor.

DID you ever stand on the rear platform of a train that was gliding over the level prairies on a straight track? If you have, you will remember how the rails just back of the track begin apparently to draw together, how the track narrows and shrinks up, and the background seems to pull in after the train until finally the two rails come together and the whole was merged into a haze.

That is the viewpoint of the one who seeks to look back even through the brief history of the moving picture industry. The rails of memory begin to draw together, the background pulls in, and the detail is lost in the haze and blur of the astonishing rapidity of development.

In the beginning many projection machines sprang into existence. Prior to November, 1896, the year which saw the real beginning of the moving picture industry as a theatrical proposition, there had been introduced various projection machines under such names as the Vitascope, the Phantoscope, the Cinematograph, the Kinopticon, and the Bioscope, all of which machines had at that time, to some extent, been used in the variety theaters of New York City and elsewhere.

Mr. Edison was, I think, the pioneer in the actual marketing of a practical projection machine in this country. Mr. Power entered the field with a remodeled Edison machine in 1898, from which year until the beginning of 1902 he experimented with a view to improvement of the projector. During 1902 he began to make machines for the trade.

The Biograph Company entered the field with a projector even prior to 1896. Their first machine was large in size, and used a film three inches wide. Both the Vitagraph Company and the Lubin Company, considerably later on, placed projection machines on the market, as did also the Selig Company, the latter being known as the Selig Polyscope. The Selig projector was first placed on the market in 1899. It used standard film, the same as we have today. In all four models were put out, but in 1911 the Selig Company abandoned the projector manufacturing field and the Selig Polyscope passed into history. The Polyscope was what was known as a "finger feed" projector, meaning that it utilized the claw movement, instead of the familiar intermittent sprocket to pull down the film at the aperture. The Selig Polyscope and a machine known as the "Viascope," manufactured and marketed in Chicago, where it attained considerable popularity in 1908-9, were the only two projectors utilizing this form of intermittent. Another Chicago product, the invention of A. C. Roebuck, of that city, in the Motiograph, which entered the field about fifteen years ago, and still is with us.

In fact, only three of the old-time projector manufacturers are still in the market with a machine, viz: the Edison, the Power and the Motiograph. In point of years the American Standard comes next, then the Simplex, followed by the Baird.

The Pathe Company entered the United States market with its French projector some years since, but soon withdrew. Just prior to the beginning of hostilities on the other side, the Erneman projector, a German machine, entered our market, but the war, of course, quickly stopped their importation.

Of late there have appeared a large number of small projectors, designed for home use, use in schools and by traveling salesmen, but it is not the purpose of this article to go into that.

It is really amusing to look at one of the early types of projectors placed by the side of the models of today. It is like placing a handcar beside a Consolidated locomotive. In the beginning, all improvements, such as magazines, take-ups, lamphouse vent pipes, film guards, fire shutters, etc., were conspicuous by their absence. The reel of film, without any protection whatever, was placed on a spindle, at the top of the machine. When a film was finished it was rewound without removing it from its position on the spindle at the top of the machine, the aforesaid spindle being in fact a rewinder standard which clamped to the machine the same as does now the upper magazine. The film ran down through the machine, without any protection at all, and, in the very early types of projectors ran into a sack, usually an ordinary gunny sack, held by a hoop attached to the front end of the machine table. The machine was usually surrounded by a curtain made of ordinary black calico, which later gave place to the iron-lined room, which was later backed with asbestos. Resistance was sometimes secured by a water rheostat, and sometimes by a very crude rheostat somewhat similar to those in use today, though without any casing or any adjustment.

I well remember one evening when we were running with an outfit of that kind placed on a platform over the entrance to a hall. Several short films had been spliced together until we had a reel of almost 1,000 feet, which constituted the show—admission, 50 cents. The water rheostat was giving considerable trouble, as there was no hose and it was necessary to remove water and add fresh by means of buckets, the same being carried from downstairs. After something like twenty-five feet of the one-thousand-foot film had run into the sack made and provided for the purpose, it jumped over the edge of the sack, slipped quietly and unnoticed down over the edge of the platform and coiled up in a squirmy heap among the audience, ten feet below. Oh, it was a great game in those days, let me tell you, and we got a lot of fun out of it! Later on the sack was displaced in favor of what was known as the film tank, the same being made of galvanized iron, 16 to 18 inches wide by 4 feet long and something like 30 to 36 inches in height. This box acted as a table for the machine and lamphouse, the film passing down through a hole in the top, which had a door held normally closed by a spring. In case of fire the operator was expected to release the spring, whereupon the "door" automatically closed, and I think that is where the original idea of film exploding came from. Imagine a red hot carbon butt rolling into a tank containing 2,000 feet of film (the "tank" would hold 2,000 feet of film and we often ran two reels in before rewinding) lying loosely, in a squirmy mass. If the operator got that trap door shut something had to give way, and it gave way with a bang, too, because that mass of film would be completely consumed in just about thirty seconds, and naturally the volume of gas created was tremendous. The film tank fire door was a very silly idea, though I must say it was no more foolish than are some of the relics of other days which still cling in some localities, as, for instance, the twelve-inch-high-four-inch-wide observation port.

Along about 1910, I think it was, though it might have been a little later, the idea of protecting the film by an upper magazine was evolved, and the upper magazine began rapidly to come into use. Then someone conceived the idea of rewinding the film as it came from the projector, and soon the rewind, and then the lower magazine made its appearance. These improvements were followed in rapid succession by many others, but the automatic fire shutter was, I think, the first fire protection improvement on the projector, it even antedating the magazine and take-up. After the take-up, I believe the lower fire shield was perhaps the next thing. Then came the upper fire shield, improved lamp and lamphouse, and so on through a long line of inventions, many of which were brought about through the insistence of the underwriters and the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity in the City of New York, and the authorities in Chicago and other cities.

In the early days the projection of the picture was of necessity extremely crude, and the perforation of the film was very, very inaccurate. Photography was poor. Film stock varied in thickness. Muslin screens plastered were the only projection surfaces known; the black border was not even so much as thought of. Operating rooms were entirely inadequate in size, almost entirely without ventilation, poorly located, and in no way, shape, manner or form adapted to the use for which they were designed. Operators served no apprenticeship at all; just simply seemed to spring into existence, and their store of projection lore consisted, for the most part, in how to make a very poor splice, and keep some kind of a light on the screen at least part of the time. The picture was, under these conditions, of course, a veritable travesty as compared to the work of the high-class operator of today. Nine operators out of ten had a 25-ampere rheostat, which really only delivered about 20. If the current was alternating, he would sometimes have two of these in multiple.

There are in use in the United States and Canada probably 40,000 projection machines, which, at an average valuation of $250 each, would represent a total of $10,000,000. In the hands of operators are daily placed 120,000 reels of film, valued at $15,000,000.

To project these films probably 700,000 amperes of current are used, which, if we take the average voltage at 100, and the average show day at five hours, represents 350,000 kilowatt hours of energy, or the respectable total of 469,165 horsepower-hours. With current at 8 cents per K.W. hour it costs a mere trifle of $28,000 per day for current used in projecting pictures in the United States and Canada.

Please understand that no accuracy is claimed for these figures. They are broad estimates only, though probably not so very far wrong.

Carl Laemmle Made Start in Chicago "Store Show"

Money Made in the Clothing Business Opened a Little Picture Theatre--Now President of Universal.

CARL LAEMMLE, the president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, landed in New York City in 1884. His wealth consisted mainly in sterling character and unbounded ambition, and faith in the Land of Liberty. He had no money. In the first place, he learned the language of this country while clerking in a drug store in New York. An opportunity of which he took immediate advantage brought him to Chicago, where he secured employment in a department store. The high price paid for labor in the South Dakota harvest fields attracted him, and his $2.75 a day shocking wheat is not one of the least pleasant remembrances of his career.

Carl Laemmle.

During the panic of 1893 Mr. Laemmle went to Oshkosh as bookkeeper in a retail clothing store and it was only a few years before he became manager of the store. He entered into the social and civic life of Oshkosh as well as into its business life, and there are hundreds of people in this Wisconsin city who remember him for his business ability, his genial personality, and his keen interest in everything which went on about him.

After twelve years in Oshkosh, during which time he had saved up a considerable sum of money made from the clothing business, Carl Laemmle came to Chicago with his little pile, to invest in a new line of endeavor. His ambition was a chain of five and ten-cent stores, the idea of a small priced commodity in tremendous quantities having made a very strong appeal to his imagination. As he was looking about Chicago for suitable locations he chanced to see the flamboyant pictures of a moving picture show in operation. The picture show was a novelty to him, as it was to millions of others at that time. He immediately investigated it. This theater was located in the Palmer House block, and was owned and operated by Jones, Linick and Schaeffer. Mr. Laemmle does not remember the name of the theater, but he was so pleased with it, and with the idea of the quick turn over of money to be made in this new business, that he visited it several times. He also went into the only other picture theater in Chicago, the Nickelodeon, on Halsted street near Van Buren. His decision to put his money into the film business was made right then and there, and the whole course of his life was changed. He saw the opportunity and grasped it unhesitatingly.

In a very short time he had taken a lease on the property located at 909 Milwaukee avenue, remodeled it, and opened what was known as the White Front theater, "The coolest 5c theater in Chicago." The opening was on February 24. 1906. The theater contained 214 seats, and was, of course, nothing but a remodeled store. Maurice Fleckles, who later became Mr. Laemmle's brother-in-law, looked after the remodeling of the theater for him.

Carl Laemmle's First Picture Theater.

Later when Mr. Laemmle decided to establish a film exchange of his own, Mr. Fleckles became associated with him, and a little bit later R. H. Cochrane, present vice-president of the Universal, went in with Mr. Laemmle in the exchange, and later in the manufacturing end of the business. This exchange was called the Laemmle Film Service, and was established in October 1, 1906, in the Crilly Building, at Monroe and Dearborn streets. After a few months it moved to 196 West Lake street, where its space was continually enlarged, until its present location was made necessary at 205 West Washington street.

The White Front theater was a success from the very start. Walther Johnson, now manager of the Parkway theater in Chicago, was its first manager, although Mr. Laemmle spent as much time at the theater as he could spare from his other duties. This picture of Mr. Laemmle's first show house was taken on July 24, 1906, one of the hottest days of the year, and shows Mr. Johnson in his shirt sleeves near the entrance. Mr. Laemmle charged 5 cents in his theater, although one other house in Chicago charged 10 cents, and made money at it. But Mr. Laemmle was a merchant and a great advertiser. He believed in letting everyone know about what he had to sell, and as in Oshkosh, where he was known as the largest advertiser in the city, the advertising and the five-cent price packed his house all the time.

The greatest difficulty which a manager in those days faced was getting any film at all to run. The few exchanges in existence were very independent and could afford to be, though they in turn were dependent on the few manufacturers. To supply the great demand for film now became the dominant factor of Mr. Laemmle's life, and made him in turn a successful exchange manager and finally president of the largest film manufacturing concern in the universe.

Mr. Laemmle's first show consisted of one reel of film, and that was only 900 feet long. Each show lasted about twenty-two minutes, and included a song besides the 900-foot reel. Under these circumstances, playing to turn-away business, it was possible for the house to clear as high as $192 in one day, and this is the record for the White Front, though business usually ran around $180. Where is there a 214-seat 5-cent theater which can beat that today?

Mr. Laemmle also owned another house, having acquired it very soon after the White Front, in April, 1906. This theater seems never to have had a definite name. It was located at 1233 So. Halsted street, and like the White Front, was a converted store show. These were the only two houses in which Mr. Laemmle had any considerable interest, and his interest in them soon became secondary to his exchange, and that in turn to his manufacturing interest in the Imp Company.

The later history of the White Front is mainly interesting in that it is now the location of a successful five and ten-cent store. It will be remembered that a chain of five and ten-cent stores was Mr. Laemmle's ambition, when he was diverted by moving pictures, which appealed to him as being a still more attractive small priced investment.

The property, which had a fifty-foot frontage, could have been bought for $40,000. Since then it has changed hands twice, first for $65,000, then for $85,000, and is now worth $140,000. When Mr. Laemmle's lease of the theater was up at the end of five years, the proposition of buying the property came up again, but Mr. Fleckles was very much against the proposal, as he had come to the conclusion, and so had Mr. Laemmle, that the small theater was a thing of the past, and that large seating capacity was essential for the success of a theater, at least in such a prominent location as this one had. Also, the rental was so greatly advanced that it would have been highly inadvisable to sign another lease on the new terms. This closed Mr. Laemmle's active management and ownership of picture theaters. PAUL GULICK.

Our "Hopp" Some Pioneer Picture Man

S. H. Hadley, Now Mutual Advertising Man, Once Ran a Tent Show.

MY PIONEER work as an exhibitor was done with a tent which could stand up about 800 people. The spring of '97 found us opening the season in a small Pennsylvania town where, after driving stakes all afternoon with a sixteen-pound sledge, I took my place at the door and accepted one dime from each native, allowing what seemed like the whole population to crowd past without bothering them with the formality of buying tickets. The performance consisted of five reels of pictures, an illustrated song sung by yours truly without accompaniment, and so-called music played on the fiddle behind the screen, also by yours truly, when he could spare himself from the gate.

A very important number on the program was an explanation of how moving pictures are made, given at some length with a piece of film held high so that the fellows in the back would not rupture a blood vessel trying to get a good peep at it. Oxygen and hydrogen in tanks furnished the light, and sugar barrels received the film as it snaked its way through the machine, frequently sneaking over the edge of the barrel and trying to make the whole round of the tent before interrupting the operator and causing the dreaded waits so trying to the nerves of a "showman." After the performance, the reels were rewound by pounding the edge of each reel at least forty-eight million times. Upon many occasions since then, while entertaining a fire inspector who insisted upon weighing the amount of sand in my fire buckets and measuring the thickness of my asbestos booth, I have looked back with horror at the big projecting machine standing out in the open with the sugar barrels full of loose film and the audience crowding around the soap box throne of the busy operator. We had a couple of little fires, but nobody seemed to get very excited over them, probably due to the fact that the audiences were not well acquainted with what made the pictures move.

S. H. ("Hopp") Hadley.

A whole week in a small town showing the same pictures at every performance was a clean-up for the box office, and the only advertising was a home-made three-sheet on a board at the entrance of the tent announcing "Life Motion Animated Pictures." But of course "moving pictures" were only a fad—a curiosity—and were not to be taken seriously. And right here let's consider another thing. We ran the same pictures for a week in the old tent; Nellie told Annie and Mamma told Dad. Did you ever ask yourself how you can expect to profit by a beautiful motion picture production if you shoot it back to the exchange before Annie and Dad have a chance to see what Nellie and Mamma told them about?

Going back to a yet earlier date, I remember that in 1896 my father, the late Col. H. H. Hadley, surprised the church-going members of society by illustrating a powerful sermon upon the life of Christ with "The Passion Play" in motion pictures. The storm of world-wide criticism brought down upon his head by such an unheard-of proceeding would have overwhelmed a more timid man than the Colonel, but, as he expressed it to me at the time, "This is the age of illustration—pictures—pictures; people love pictures, and now that they can have life motion pictures they'll love them more than ever!"

A year or two later the Colonel preached every night on Young's Pier, Atlantic City, for a whole summer, and the fact that motion pictures made thousands of pleasure-seeking men and women at a gay summer resort crowd into the theater and listen to a sermon for the sake of watching the screen should have brought the theatrical world to its senses several years before most of us woke up.

"HOPP" HADLEY.

MIAMI'S FINE NEW THEATER.

Hickson & Whitener are to build a theater in Miami, Florida, to seat 1,400 persons and cost about $50,000. It will stand on the corner of Twelfth street and Avenue B and will be a magnificent building, up to date and comfortable in every possible detail. The structure will be two stories high, the lower floor being arranged for stores and the upper for offices. The theater auditorium will be in the center of the structure, with an imposing entrance at the corner. Work is to begin about the middle of August, to be completed by December 1.

KATZ DROPS CRANK, PICKS UP BUGLE.

Abraham Katz, the operator of the Bluebird projecting artillery, is also trumpeter in Company B of the Twelfth Regiment, New York National Guard. In time of peace the two jobs work all right together, but in times of war and alarms of war the infantry job comes before the operating one, and consequently Mr. Katz shook hands all around on June 22 and departed for Camp Beekman, with every expectation of being transferred in a few weeks' time to the Mexican border. He has served six years in the regular army in the hospital corps.

Victoria Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

Creditable Work Done by E. L. Hyman, a Youth of Only Twenty-one, in Managing This Progressive House — Has Mailing List of 3,000 — Structure Represents Expenditure of $250,000.

MANAGERS twice his age and with many years' theatrical experience would be delighted with the success of Edward L. Hyman, of Buffalo, who is classed among the "live wires" of the moving picture business. Mr. Hyman has been manager of the New Victoria moving picture theater for the past five months. He is only 21 years old, red-cheeked and full of enthusiasm, and has proved that his showmanship is of the first rank. A picture of Mr. Hyman appears herewith. Photographs of the exterior of the Victoria and a striking lobby display are also shown. This display is termed "a palm room located in the center of the foyer and decorated with natural flowers."

Edward L. Hyman.

Mr. Hyman is a stickler for courtesy. The good example which he sets in giving patrons polite attention is followed by every attache of the house. The ticket sellers, door men and ushers are obliging and their sincere "thank you" indicates that the wants and feelings of everybody in the audience are always considered and given prompt attention.

"We get great results from our mail order list," said Mr. Hyman. "We have 3,000 names on the list, and to these we send our various advertising matter on current attractions. When a person asks on the 'phone about a show we request his or her name and address and immediately send to this patron the latest program. We also run slides, asking the audience to leave their names and addresses at the box office. The very first night this plan was used we obtained 600 names and the list has been growing steadily ever since. Programs of coming attractions are mailed to everyone on this list. We give everyone of our shows a preliminary rehearsal and we have made a close study of the tastes of our audiences and everything we believe objectionable is eliminated."

Victoria Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

At each rehearsal Mr. Hyman sits with Ivan Shapiro, the director of the Victoria orchestra, selecting with him appropriate music for the production. This co-operation has been very resultful, and that the Victoria music harmonizes with the pictures goes without saying.

On one occasion Mr. Hyman played "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

"Before the picture started," said Mr. Hyman, "we dropped our curtain and our orchestra of twelve soloists played the selection bearing the same name. The stage showed a forest scene and the entire stage lights were on. This plan created the proper atmosphere for the picture, which was enthusiastically received.

"When 'The Battle Cry of Peace' was played at the Victoria, we engaged John W. Bolton, director, and his 74th Regiment band of this city to play the supplementary music to the picture. The members of the band wore their military uniforms. We placed cannon and other war munitions in our lobby. The decorations in front of the theater and inside of it carried out the spirit of preparedness. When our slides announcing this picture were run the orchestra played the national hymn, the audience standing and cheering enthusiastically. This created in the minds of those present a desire to see the picture and crowded houses were the result.

"Recently, by request, we brought back an old attraction, William Farnum in 'The Sign of the Cross.' We had a thirteen-year-old choir boy, dressed in a surplice, open the show. With a superior tenor voice he sang 'Ava Maria.' You will recall that in the second or third reel Mercia holds up the cross. At this point we stopped the picture, dropped the curtain and the boy sang 'The Rosary.' The spotlight was thrown on the singer during each selection and the effect was excellent."

The New Victoria, located at Grant and Ferry streets, is in the heart of a fine residential district and was built more than a year ago at a cost of $250,000. The orchestra of twelve soloists occupy seats on the large stage. The house has a three-manual Austin organ. The six ushers, two young women and four young men, are of the refined type and it is easy for them to maintain the Victoria's high standard of courtesy and efficiency. The general admission is ten cents, the boxes and loges being fifteen cents. There are Saturday and Sunday matinees. The owner of the house is Mitchell H. Mark, proprietor of the Strand theater, New York City. The services used at the Victoria include the Paramount, Fox, V-L-S-E, World, Triangle, etc. Mr. Hyman recently gave a benefit performance, featuring Marguerite Clark in "The Prince and the Pauper." Substantial receipts from the benefit were turned over to the Buffalo Orphan Asylum.

Elaborate Floral Display in Lobby of Victoria Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Hyman has an illustrated frame, six-sheet size, in the lobby of the Victoria. Illustrated announcements of current shows appear at the front of the frame. Attractions of the coming week are announced at the back of the frame, so they will be read by patrons leaving the theater. Striking signs and other embellishments are displayed in front of the house.

Mr. Hyman uses effective newspaper and program advertising. At considerable expense he uses plenty of special cuts in his ads, all of which hit the mark. For instance, the first page of his Easter program carried a zinc engraving, showing the proverbial egg, a chicken emerging from the shell and the whole picture surrounded with Easter lilies.

For a year Mr. Hyman was assistant to Harold Edel, manager of the Strand theater, Buffalo. Before he cast his first vote the subject of this sketch gained real success in the moving picture business. There is every reason to believe that his future years will be filled with still greater achievements.

KEENS TO BUILD PICTURE HOUSE.

F. G. Keens is to build a 500-seat photoplay theater in Kearney, Neb. It is to be erected on the site of the Crescent theater which will be razed on July 5. The new structure will be ready for occupancy by September 5 next. F. H. Hoppen, the proprietor of the Crescent, is to be the lessee of the new house.

New Aristo Theater, Louisville, Ky.

An Attractive Yet Unpretentious Photoplay House—Erected at Cost of $36,000—Seats 650—Managed by Henry S. Gilbert—Doing Excellent Business.

THE Aristo theater, of Louisville, owned and operated by the Second Street Amusement Company, is claimed to be about the last word in modern suburban theater building. The theater is located in an exceptionally high class residence district, is most artistic in appearance from the street, is showing the best pictures to be had, and at the same time is not overly elaborate inside. The theater cost about $36,000 to build, and has made good from the start. Announcement of the incorporation of the company with a capital stock of $36,000 was made in December of last year. The incorporators were R. W. Bingham, attorney, former mayor, etc., who is president; J. J. Douglas, a capitalist, vice president, and Max L. Simons, a pioneer moving picture man, as secretary-treasurer. Several other prominent business men are among the leading stockholders. The new Aristo was opened in the latter part of April.

Max L. Simons.

Although the lot is 80x200 feet the house has been set back thirty feet from the property line in compliance with the building restrictions. The front of the building extends seventy feet from A street, leaving ten feet clear on the south side, although the auditorium from wall to wall is only fifty feet. The building is so arranged that there are two storerooms at each side of the lobby, the storeroom on the north side extending back the length of the lobby and foyer, while the storeroom on the south side extends back the same distance, but opens onto a sodded lot which will be used as a soft drink "garden." The 30x80-foot space in front of the building has been plated in grass with a wide concrete walk extending from the street sidewalk to the lobby. At the entrance are two handsome white enamel pedestals upon which are mounted large electric globes.

The New Aristo Theater, Louisville, Ky.

The theater seats 650 persons in the auditorium, which is 50x125 feet. The foyer is 35x12 feet, the vestibule 35x6 feet, and the lobby 35x16 feet. Between the lobby and the foyer are double sets of handsome mahogany doors which are paneled with mirrors. The ticket office is placed in the center of the vestibule, with the vestibule doors opening on each side. The theater is of steel, brick and concrete construction, the roof being of steel truss construction, and the building arranged in panels so that additional panels may be added to the rear, the rear wall carried back, and the seating capacity enlarged as it may be found necessary. The arrangement of the truss roof will also facilitate enlargement of the building, as there is a truss to each panel of the walls, which are of thirteen-inch brick construction. The interior of the building is finished in ornamental plaster in a creamy gray, or natural color. The front of the building is of cut stone and cream enamel brick.

The trimmings of the lobby make one of the interesting features of the new theater. The floor is of tile, while the walls are wainscotted in tile to a height of eight feet. This tile is cream, trimmed in green. From the eight-foot semi-wainscoting, ornamental plaster is used. Six panels, two to each side, and one over each of the vestibule doors, contain attractive oil paintings of the landscape type. A colonial window opens from the lobby into a balcony hallway, and a flower box adds to the attractiveness.

Special attention has been given to ventilation. Six 4x3-foot windows are placed at each side of the auditorium at a height of six feet from the floor, which incidentally has a three-foot pitch in 125 feet. There are also six 4x3-foot windows directly under the ceiling on each side. This upper series of windows is of the pivot type, operated by cords to the floor. Large ventilators open from the auditorium ceiling, and there is also a series of ventilators in the roof which draw off the foul air by natural gravity. A set of fans in the roof ventilators may be used for forced ventilation in extremely warm weather.

Semi-indirect lighting is obtained by means of ten large fixtures, suspended from the ceiling, five on each side of the auditorium. Each light is wired as a separate circuit. There are five panels along each side of the auditorium. Close to the base of each of these panels is an ornamental bracket from which the side lights are suspended, and which support electric fans.

Heating is obtained from a private heating plant in the basement at the front of the building. The vapor system is used, and the radiators are set in cut-ins at the base of the walls, where they are out of the way. There are three radiators on each side, one in the orchestra pit, one directly back of the foyer, and one in each vestibule. More exits are provided than the law requires, there being two at the front, two at the rear and one at each side. These exits open at all four sides of the building, making it one of the easiest houses in the city to empty.

Interior of New Aristo Theater, Louisville, Ky.

The stage and screen arrangement is rather peculiar. A regular proscenium arch, 30x27 feet, is directly against the rear wall, and a dummy stage or platform at the regular height extends out to the orchestra pit. The rear wall has been plastered, and the pictures are shown on a white plaster background which has a first border of black and a second border of red. The pictures show up extremely well on this plaster screen. In the orchestra pit a three-piece orchestra, composed of a piano, violin and violoncello are used. Over the two rear exists are dummy boxes which can be reached only by ladder. Across the front of the stage is a box containing artificial flowers in a border effect.

Arrangement of the seats is such as to allow plenty of room in all parts of the theater. A ten-foot space has been left between the orchestra pit and the first row of seats, in addition to the depth of the dummy stage. The front row patrons are therefore not forced to tire their necks by looking straight up at pictures. There is also a space of eight feet between the back wall and the rear row of seats. The seats are arranged with two long central aisles extending from the front to the rear of the building, the side rows of seats extending flush to the wall. The aisles are 3½ feet wide near the stage, increasing to 4½ feet in width at the rear of the house. A cork floor preparation has been laid in the aisle cut-out in the concrete floors, and there is absolutely no noise made by patrons in the aisles. The seats were made by the American Seating Company, are twenty inches wide, and set thirty-two inches from back to back. They are of ordinary wood and metal construction. All woodwork in the house is finished in mahogany.

The front part of the theater is two stories in height. The operator's booth is located directly over the foyer, while at each side of the operator's room are large offices which extend over the storerooms on the first floor. One of these rooms will be used as the manager's office and storeroom, while the other will be rented. All of the rooms are reached by a stairway and hall opening from the north side of the lobby. The operating room is of solid concrete. The wiring is so arranged that the machines and other electrical equipment are connected to base plugs. The equipment consists of two Powers 6-B machines, power driven, a rewinding system, also motor driven; a large motor and Martin rotary converter, placed in a screened cage, and a spotlight. The throw from the machines to the stage is 125 feet. A toilet room for the men has been placed at the right of the foyer, while the rest room and toilet room for women opens at the rear of the auditorium.

The company has been packing the house ever since it opened. Only first class feature material is shown, and care is taken to pick material which appeals to the best people. Two shows are given every evening, the first starting at 7 o'clock, and the last winding up at about 11 o'clock. The pictures are changed daily. On Sunday there is an extra matinee at 2 o'clock. Admission prices are held at ten cents for adults and five cents for children under twelve years of age. The company advertises its house as "A place of distinction for people of refinement," and also that only high grade films are shown.

A weekly program of the shows to be seen at the theater is distributed to the patrons, and also distributed throughout the neighborhood. Henry S. Gilbert is in charge of the house, while the operating room is presided over by Virgil Winters, who was with the Broadway Amusement Company's theaters for five years.

Apollo Theater, Kansas City, Mo.

How Good Management Turned a Losing Venture Into a Profitable Investment.

FROM the hands of a receiver to the undisputed title of being the most popular and successful suburban house of Kansas City is the record now held by the Apollo theater, 3227 Troost avenue. The Apollo's career is an interesting one, and pictures the development of a fourth-rate house into the highest class of theaters.

In 1911, under the name of the Fisher, the Apollo was opened. It did not prosper and the going was rough, consequently, six months after the first day, the theater went into the hands of a receiver. In April, 1912, Joseph Steibel and F. I. Buckingham joined hands, purchased a quit claim deed to the property and made arrangements to operate the place. The receiver was discharged and immediately Mr. Steibel changed the name to the Apollo and went to work as manager. The theater responded to the experienced and practical hand of this gentleman, who gained much of his knowledge of show business as assistant manager of the Orpheum theater here.

In December, 1915, on account of ill health, Mr. Steibel resigned and relinquished his interest to J. W. Oldham, president of the Wellington Mines, of Colorado, and Fred T. Scott, formerly owner of the Glory, a nearby house, was installed as manager. In March, 1916, at a cost of $10,000, a balcony, absolutely fireproof, was constructed, increasing the seating capacity to 1,040. Plans are now in the hands of architects whereby additional seats to the number of 400 will be added. This is to be accomplished by eliminating the present stage and using space originally designed for dramatic performances within the walls of the Apollo as it now stands. The theater is situated in one of the best parts of town—being located on Troost avenue, one block from Linwood boulevard and two blocks from Armour boulevard, both of which include the home of leading citizens of the city.

The lobby of the Apollo is one of the show places of the theater. Large palms have been placed in secluded corners, bringing into prominence places that would have been neglected and giving the front a very refreshing and pleasing appearance. Large mirrors, each about two feet wide, form part of the wall, running the entire length of the lobby. Four double exit doors open from the theater proper, while two pairs of concrete stairways lead the way to the balcony. Statues of Apollo and Diana, colored in three tints, develop the classical feeling, and their location above two groups of palms increases the dignity of their position. Colored tile, with the name "Apollo" worked in, adds to the effect of this beautiful lobby, while the ticket office, decorated with gold and white trimmings, surrounded by a beautiful brass railing, enhances the richness of the entire front.

The color scheme of the theater is gold, merging into ivory and some wonderful effects have been obtained. Throughout the theater these two colors have been blended together—on panels, on clusters, over exits, on the arch of the stage and in other places so that an exceptionally pleasing sensation is produced. The walls are overhung in festoons, with the names of many of the great artists overhung in panels. The clusters of lights on the ceiling cast a delightful glow over the house during moments when the pictures are not being projected.

A large sum was spent in ventilating the house. Exhaust fans close to the roof of the theater have been so arranged as to change the air every minute and a half. When it is too hot to operate the closed theater the management runs the Open Air Apollo, which is one and one-half blocks distant.

With a body of reinforced steel concrete, and with a roof of the same construction, the Apollo stands out prominently as a model for prospective builders. The concrete booth was erected with the thought of "safety" uppermost. The Apollo Open Air theater is situated at 31st and Troost, the most prominent suburban transfer point. It is most attractive and seats 2,200. Wires, on which have been strung colored lights, are suspended over this out-of-door playhouse.

Apollo Theater, Kansas City, Mo.

When the Apollo first opened, it was thought that one pianist and a trap drummer would suffice for the musical end, but as the class of the place increased so did the music. Various changes were made, until the present owners obtained the professional services of Robert Carleton, one of the best pianists in the city. For nearly a year Mr. Carleton played alone, until one evening the Apollo sprung a surprise on its patrons and presented them with music from a five-piece studio orchestra.

The Apollo advertises in a morning and an evening publication the program for that day printed. No house programs are distributed, but each week from eight to ten thousand tiny pamphlets are distributed over the surrounding territory of the Apollo, within a radius of ten blocks. On this little sheet is to be found the program for the coming week, and nothing more—no advertisements or anything to detract from the fact that the Apollo theater is announcing its coming week's program.

Three women ushers are in constant attendance during all shows, while in the balcony two pleasing young men are always on duty. Then there is Mr. Ralph Levy, who acts as assistant manager and who takes your ticket as you enter the lower floor, while Messrs. Scott and Buckingham are always to be found greeting personally each person who comes to the Apollo. A few words as to the picture policy of the owners will probably shed light on the remarkable success of this theater. Here is the chief reason for its high position among Kansas City houses: No picture is ever shown on the screen of the Apollo unless reviewed and passed on by some member of the organization. This is a rule from which there is absolutely no variation.

Cine Ideal, Santurce, San Juan, P. R.

A Theater Whose Construction Leaves Little to Be Desired for the Comfort of Patrons.

THE Cine Ideal of Santurce, San Juan, P. R., was built recently and called the Eureka Music Hall, but when the moving picture superseded most all other forms of public amusement the name was changed and the class of entertainment was changed at the same time so as to be in line with the needs of the day.

In the Tropics the question of ventilation is important, and in the construction of the Ideal nothing was overlooked that might contribute to the comfort of patrons. Along each side of the building there are doors every few feet, which are left open when pictures are being projected, and there is a constant circulation of air. Around three sides of the inside of the building there is a gallery having only a few rows of seats, and patrons are sure of not being overcrowded. The seats on the lower floor are quickly removable, and in a few minutes the building can be made available for dancing.

Cine Ideal, Santurce, San Juan, Porto Rico.

There is a sunken space for the orchestra, but for the pictures there is a musical prodigy who performs on the piano. He is a youngster still in short clothes and is a wonder. He does not need any music in front of him, and he plays the entire evening without repeating a piece. The theater is in first-class "company," having a church on one side and the Eureka Hotel on the other. The programs are of the same high quality as the building, and good business is the rule. The theater is located at the edge of the residential section of Santurce, and Americans are among its best patrons.

William Baron

ONE of the most interesting figures in Louisville moving picture circles is William ("Billy") Baron, operator at the Casino theater, who can justly lay claim to being the oldest moving picture man in this part of the country so far as actual years of service are concerned. Mr. Baron is fifty-five years old, and has spent a little more than twenty-six years in picture exhibiting or projecting.

Back in 1898 and 1899 Mr. Baron handled stereopticon views at various small assemblages, parties, church affairs, etc., and went out through the state on a sort of barnstorming trip, playing his pictures wherever an opportunity presented itself. In 1901 he went with Ringling Brothers, to operate a moving picture machine, which was one of the headliners of the circus. He remained with the concern for about three years, touring the country from coast to coast.

Shortly after the Dreamland theater of Louisville was opened on April 6, 1904, the operator in charge had a fire, and Mr. Baron took the job. The Dreamland was the first picture theater in the city, and one of the first three in the country to have a "moving picture front."

Mr. Baron, who is one of the topnotchers of the profession today, said that in the old days a man needed about a dozen sets of hands to properly handle an operating booth. For instance, it was necessary to turn the crank with one hand, rewind with the other, and use the foot as a brake to keep the film from running off too fast. In addition to mastering these few jobs, he lectured on the pictures as they were run off, set phonograph records on the machine which played into the lobby opening, and occasionally had to help the doorman in putting out some rowdy.

Mr. Baron was one of the organizers of the local moving picture operators' union, and has been a prime favorite with the entire industry for years. His friend, Col. John C. Forth, who has been an operator for about the same length of time, is now a free lance and works only at odd times. Col. Forth is now in the sixties.

"It doesn't seem possible that we were able to keep things running with those old machines," said Mr. Baron, in glancing over the two fine motor-driven machines and motor rewinding system which he is using now at the Casino. One is a Simplex and the other is a Standard. Mr. Baron has been actively engaged by the Princess Amusement Co. in its various theaters since starting with the old Dreamland which was dismantled years ago.

Majestic Theater, San Francisco, Cal.

Popular Photoplay House Managed by Henry F. Slater for Seven Years—Success from Start.

ONE of the most interesting of the moving picture houses in the south of Market street district of San Francisco is the Majestic theater, conducted by Henry F. Slater, at 365 Third street. Before the great fire of 1906 this part of the city was thickly populated, but following the catastrophe thousands made their home in the Mission district and the downtown section was given over largely to factories and business enterprises. However, in the vicinity of Third street and around Rincon Hill quite a colony sprang up and several moving picture houses were opened, among these being the Majestic.

This house is popularly known as the "House of Universal pictures" and above each entrance in the large lobby appears the Universal trademark in colors. Mr. Slater was in a reminiscent mood when he told of his first connection with the house seven years ago and of his early experience in the business. When he first entered the field as an exhibitor there were but three film exchanges in San Francisco, the one conducted by Turner & Dahnken, that of Miles Bros. and the one of Morris L. Markowitz on Seventh street. At first he showed the so-called "trust" pictures and tells how the first run pictures of this kind were given to a competitor when a larger and finer house was opened in the neighborhood. Immediately after the opening of this new house he canceled his service and commenced showing the independent releases handled by Mr. Markowitz, who is now manager of the California Film Exchange. The manner in which this exchange co-operated with him at the time made a lasting impression on Mr. Slater and he expresses the opinion that its policy of square dealing has done as much to make it successful as the quality of its pictures.

Majestic Theater, San Francisco, Cal.

The Majestic theater is conducted along lines a little different from those of most theaters in this locality. There are no matinees, except on Sunday, when the house is opened at 1 o'clock, the performances commencing at 5 o'clock on week days. The regular price of admission is 5 cents, but when serials are shown 10 cents is charged and the house is usually crowded. Univeral pictures are shown principally, but other makes are booked whenever they appeal to Mr. Slater. All of the Universal serials have been shown here. The "Mysteries of Myra" is also being offered here, it having been found advisable to have two serial nights a week, and this has started off in fine shape, being assisted by a great advertising campaign. The Hearst-International News pictures are also being shown. A complete change of program is made each day and the lobby is used for publicity purposes.

Since Mr. Slater entered the field here he has had no less than five competitors and has made a success where others have failed. His motto is to give the people what they want and to give the business his personal and undivided attention.

The Majestic theater has a seating capacity of about 400 and has two large exits on a side street, making it a safe house. Edison machines are used in the projection room and music is furnished by a Wurlitzer player. The location of the theater is about midway between the business center of the city and the Southern Pacific depot, and transient trade is depended upon but little.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD NEWS REEL for JUNE

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter
J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time may be required to effect the alteration.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 514)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, July 15, 1916

Facts and Comments

IN support of its movement for the banishment of needless nudity from the screen the National Board of Review has adopted a new rule, which provides that hereafter no picture in which the nude female figure appears may be reviewed by a Review Committee of the National Board but must be presented to the Appeal Board. All such pictures will be carefully considered and important reasons for using the nude figure will be required in order that such pictures may be passed. Indeed the whole tendency of the board is to eliminate nudity entirely.

Exhibitors all over the country will approve the policy of scrutinizing and wherever possible excluding the nude from the screen. No subject commands more attention among the men who conduct motion picture theaters. At a recent informal gathering of such men the cudgels were freely wielded against producers who want to sell otherwise unsalable films by an over-emphasis of the nude. "That's the thing that will get the censors after us," said one man who has a very substantial investment in the industry. He spoke the truth, of course.

Nudity is not the only trouble on the screen. We wonder why no attempt is being made to regulate on the basis of existing statutes the making and exhibiting of these thinly disguised sex indecencies which parade as "sociological problems" and what not. The screen is here for the entertainment of the millions to whom it has been sent by the greatest invention of modern times. The screen is not a place for the exploitation of clinical, sociological and anthropological questions except in limited circles and for special plausible purposes.

* * *

COULD you believe it? The so-called vampire picture is thriving most in the censorship states. Ohio and Kansas and especially Pennsylvania through its Catonian sages alias censors let the vampire picture through and not only tempts but frequently compels the exhibitor to take notice of it and reckon with in the composition of his own program. The family sentiment in the motion picture theater (no better definition occurs to us at this time) keeps the vampire salaciousness and stupidity out of the better class of theaters in the non-censorship states, but when a picture is approved by the duly constituted censors there is a presumption in its favor both among the exhibitors and in the eyes of the public.

* * *

A TIMELY communication comes to us from a friend and reader in the State of Washington. Speaking of the war tax he says:

If we must be taxed while many other classes more able to pay are exempt the basis should be on our net receipts instead of on seating capacity. The more prosperous exhibitors could not object to such a plan and the unfortunate ones could not. Take my case: My theater is open three hours a day and there are many seats never occupied. I have scarcely made expenses for a year past. Many others throughout the country are situated the same, yet we must pay the same tax as the thriving ones and those who run four times as many hours as we do. And another comparison: I must pay on my little playhouse half as much as the great circuses are assessed.

It is rank injustice and doubtless the thought of it will guide many hands in marking the ballots next November, both in protest and in the hope of putting a stop to it. Please do not take this as a political document, I am less a politician than almost anything else. One does not need to be a politician to revolt against injustice.

Other exhibitors have in recent letters to THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD uttered similar complaints. We hope the convention will take this matter up and enlist the co-operation of the producers who ought to be as vitally interested in the matter as the exhibitors themselves.

* * *

A DETERMINED effort will be made this fall in Pennsylvania to repeal the state censorship law. Both exhibitors and exchangemen, sometimes aided by manufacturers, have done good work in the eastern and western parts of the state. The convention of exhibitors which was in session in Pittsburgh took up the subject of a repeal. They will seek to pledge legislative candidates on the question of censorship. Public meetings have been held throughout the state, and the daily press with negligible exceptions has given its support to the fight against the follies of censorship.

The Sovereign'st Thing On Earth

By Louis Reeves Harrison

WHOSE fault is it that capable critics in other arts of expression either ridicule "the movies" or persist in referring to "the narrow art of the films?" The limit of our new art is no more that of the screen than the proscenium's that of the stage. The trouble with stories presented through both lies not in the art of expression so much as in what authors are giving to be expressed, and they are not so much to blame, if due consideration be given to the fact that free expression of themselves is constantly opposed by men of the theater.

It is encouraging to those who favor the variety and originality which all audiences crave that relations between "theatric" and "dramatic" are becoming somewhat strained outside of this country. Foreign dramatists are in revolt against the regular formula of stage presentation with its "leads," "heavies," "ingenues" and "character parts." Can it be made possible for an author to freely release a conception of some fine dramatic situation, some idea rich in feeling with a flavor of thought, when his characters are those of real life instead of those suited to the regular theatric formula?

Many of our American playwrights have passed through a good preparatory school of journalism and criticism, and are equipped with a glow of imagination as well as with a vocabulary. Their first plays have some of the vigor of true genius, but they are soon compelled to keep within the regular process, and authors of screen stories are being throttled in the same way, though to understand the nature and destiny of man and reveal him from within as well as from without requires a much higher quality of creative mind than is used in following a formula.

It is just as well for us to keep in mind that the most distinguished playwrights of today, men like Shaw, Galsworthy, Barrie, and Barker, as well as other promising ones who are interpreting contemporary life and the spirit of our times, are dumping theatrics on the dust heap with a gain of dramatic power and of imaginative beauty. Does there exist any other reason than that of false economy why we should go to that dust heap to pick up what the older art has discarded as no longer suited to the demands of modern audiences? Why should an art whose youth and strength should be dressed with appropriate charm wear some other art's castoff clothes?

A man may enter the business of production with the same motives that inspire one to peddle collar buttons and shoe strings with no passionate fondness for what he is doing, though he may be as delighted as a child to see his name on a great feature in whose artistry he plays no part. He is after the revenue irrespective of the fact that the completed work may be of obsolete derivation and bear absolutely no relation to those developments of life to which intelligent audiences are fully alive. He may wake up in the course of time—that is the hopeful side of it—but only when his purse is hit. About that time he concludes to read the papers.

He sometimes finds that producers who have been reading the papers, posting themselves on all registered developments in the new art, have quietly forged ahead to a point where their competition is not to be broken down by any of the well-known financial methods employed in trade to eliminate competition. The production of moving pictures involves constantly-improving artistry in order to keep in the lead

One producer of stage plays read this paper with patience for six months before he entered the new field and he did so with his perceptions alert and his conscience alive. He gave study to the business from as many points of view as a diamond has faces before he made his venture. He was thereafter like a general provided with good maps of the enemy country as well as those of his own. What his conclusions were is unknown, but his work met with a success which caused men long in the game to rub their eyes and shake themselves to make sure they were awake.

Other such men are to come; old organizations will give place to new ones; there will be more than one radical change of method, but all the light that has been concentrated on the subject of motion picture production seems to have failed in one particular. Some of the pictured stories now being shown on the screen exhibit both strength of motive and force of action, yet, strange as it may seem to the superficial observer, they fail to make a big hit on that very account.

Only critics and exhibitors who carefully watch a great number of photodramas feel that there is a common weakness unsounded and not easy to name. Many a well-constructed and intelligently treated play, starting with fine motive and reaching one or another high emotional climax, fails to stir emotion, much less stimulate thought. It might be compared to a highly-polished and keen-edged sword of brittle material. It looks as though it would cut deep, but it breaks down in actual test. The story lacks subtlety as the steel lacks temper. Its strength is all on the surface. Often lacking is that exquisite art of composition which was the secret of the makers of the Damascus blade, and left out is the secret of true genius.

What is left out? There is complex life going on all around us in crowded cities, on the broad sweep of prairie, up among the mountains, and everywhere people are living in bigger and better ways than before. They advance wherever the mists of ignorance are dispelled. Even those who are not highly educated have their range of experience enlarged by travel. They are also gaining ground through the tremendous circulation of live periodicals. Where once was stupidity we find cultivation and discernment. It is up to authors and producers to keep pace with people of growing intelligence.

Higher intelligence does not decrease love of the human story, but it is nauseated by methods which afford a mere surface revelation of character and motive. Neither cleverness in handling the medium, which merely tickles the surface of emotion, nor theatric pretense of deep thought enables us to see beneath the outward manifestations of our spiritual romance and adventure. We are most fascinated when we get at the heart of our own thoughts and emotions. The author must dig deep to find that grand essential to sustained interest in a story, one or another mother-lode of truth.

Some pretty plays please; some comic ones afford a pastime; a few violent moments of life are glimpsed, but there is a restless demand for something bigger and more satisfying. The material is with us, in the very lives we are living, and the public is more than ready; the failure lies with both authors and producers. The only way they can make this new art flower with all that is profoundly interesting to our people is to bring forth in beauty of form "The Sovereign'st Thing on Earth."

The National Convention

By W. Stephen Bush

IN order to understand completely just what the National Convention means we must briefly at least review the past and the course of the events which have led up to it.

The industry in its earliest days was largely if not entirely dominated by the exchanges. Back in 1906 and 1907 the system of leasing films to exchanges was entirely unknown. Exchanges were independent concerns buying in the open market. In those days the producers sent out their solicitors to the exchanges offering their films for sale and making no conditions of sale. If the exchange paid the price the film was the absolute property of the exchange. No exchange was required to buy all the output of a producer because it bought one or two of his make. At this time neither the exchanges nor the producers nor the exhibitors were organized. Everybody was too busy making and counting money. The fishermen were weary with the load of their catch and had hardly time to sort their booty. Competition was mild among the producers, for they found that the public would absorb anything which made a motion picture. Competition was much keener among the exchanges, and the leading men in the exchange business perceived the advantages of organization. The Film Service Association was formed. Important as had been the position of the exchange in the early days it now become dominant. Here was the first proof of the fact that organization means power. Organization means a tremendous advantage over any body of men who are unorganized.

The producers were quick to see this fact. Indeed there is every reason to believe that they had realized it as soon as the exchanges had, but they had fallen to fighting among themselves, and while the fight was going on all thought of organization was of course banished from the minds of the producers. The day came, however, when the producer discovered that while there is strength in union there is weakness in disunion. They stopped fighting among themselves. They stopped feeding the lawyers. They decided to adjust their differences and unite in a strong organization. The very moment they had come to this conclusion the dominant power in the industry began to pass into their hands. There were weak spots in the Film Service Association. The producers found these weak spots, swept the Association out of existence, and because they were now thoroughly organized became the absolute masters of the industry. Again we see the lesson well demonstrated: Organization means power. Organization means control over the unorganized body.

Coming down to more recent history we find that the dominant group of producers must meet competition and a counter-organization. This was the first loosening of the producers' grip on the industry. At first few suspected that the entering wedge had been driven and that absolute dominion of the industry by the producers had become doubtful. Very gradually the power of the producers fell to a lower level until it seemed as it seems today well within its legitimate boundaries. Whatever strength and influence the producers exert in the industry today is still based on the theory and practice of organization.

In all these years the exhibitors had had but a small voice in the councils of the industry. The advantages of an organized body of exhibitors had occurred to several pioneers in Ohio and in Pennsylvania. At first these organizations were purely local affairs. The scope of these organizations under the conditions then prevailing in the industry was necessarily limited. Gradually the organizations, or at least two or three of them, expanded into state organizations and at last the idea of a national organization of exhibitors took root.

This national organization has now been in existence about five years. It has had a troubled career. This surely is not said with even the faintest idea of reflecting on the men who controlled or who worked with the League. On the contrary, I think it is impossible to write a fair history or even a fair summary of the work of these men without giving them credit for their earnestness, their sincerity and their devotion to the cause. The exhibitors are widely scattered, their local conditions are the things most closely to their heart. As a rule it takes all of their time to attend to their business. Only those who have been on the ground themselves, only those who have labored in the cause of the organized exhibitors, can have even a remote conception of the difficulties and the handicaps in the work of organization.

In the coming battles against a common foe the exhibitor is indispensable, and if he is organized he can do the work with increased effectiveness. The near future will make us all see the importance and indeed the absolute need of much constructive work, and to achieve this constructive work the co-operation of the exhibitor is again indispensable. We do not know of a single film man of any prominence who does not heartily subscribe to these sentiments.

The Convention at Chicago will accomplish but little if its members fail to offer their hearty co-operation to every other branch of the industry. Happily we are able to add that the exhibitors so far have done more than their fair share of this co-operation. In all matters relating to any common cause we have found the exhibitor the most intelligent and progressive element in the industry.

The question is raised whether co-operation between exhibitor and producer will or can in any way involve the independence or threaten the identity of the National League. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD believes that such co-operation ought to be had and can be had without in the least imperiling the integrity of the National League as an organization. The National League may have its weak points, it may lack the complete representation which its friends earnestly pray for, but it is with all due allowances the only organization now in the industry which has survived and which has shown splendid elements of vitality. Co-operation does not mean merging, affiliation does not mean amalgamation.

The Chicago Convention will in all probability mean a new departure in a good direction. The mere fact that the desire for organization is growing everywhere gives an unusual significance to and fixes an unusual responsibility on the men who will guide the spirit of the Convention. All narrowness and all selfishness must be buried. If the Convention at Chicago measures up fully to the expectations of its friends it will mark a new era in the internal development of the industry. It will bring nearer to sensible solution every great problem both within and without the industry.

The whole industry has its eyes on the Coliseum. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, which has at all times championed the cause of the organized exhibitor, will record all its proceedings with its accustomed thoroughness, impartiality and accuracy. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD fervently prays for a complete success in the best and fullest sense of the word.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Pennsylvania Elects Sahner President

Convention and Exposition of Keystone State Exhibitors' League a Marked Success—Indorse Board of Trade Plan.

THE Fifth Annual Convention and Exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania, held in the Moose Temple, Pittsburgh, June 26, 27 and 28, was one of the busiest and most successful gatherings in the history of the organization. Among the keynotes of the three days' session were the sweeping indictment of censorship, the appeal for harmony between the different branches of the industry and the unanimous indorsement of Frederick J. Herrington for re-election to the national presidency. There was a representative attendance of exhibitors from throughout the state and neighboring territory, as well as many figures of national prominence and several well-known film stars. The entertainment features of the gathering were varied and most enjoyable.

The opening session was called to order at 11 o'clock Monday morning by G. W. Sahner of Pittsburgh, state vice-president, who introduced City Solicitor J. M. Irons, who welcomed the convention in behalf of Mayor Armstrong, who was unable to be present. The response was made by State President Ben H. Zerr of Reading, who expressed his esteem for Pittsburgh and its warm hospitality. He spoke of the aims of the league and the industry in general and the effort toward achieving these ideals of clean motion picture entertainment. Mr. Zerr reviewed the history of the business in the early days and led up to the present, detailing the improvement that has been shown.

Frederick J. Herrington, president of the National League, made a brief address, as did W. Stephen Bush of the Moving Picture World, both speakers touching on the subjects of organization and censorship.

The meeting adjourned at noon, and the visitors were entertained at luncheon, after which there was a sightseeing tour of the city. The trip proved such a pleasant one that the return to the convention headquarters was delayed until 4 o'clock, when a brief business session was held. The following committees and chairmen were appointed: Credentials, A. J. Barthell; resolutions, Oliver McKee; auditing, G. A. Sahner; press, Edward J. Smith.

On Monday evening Muriel Ostriche of the World Film Corporation and Harry Meyers and Rosemary Theby, now appearing in the series of Vim comedies of the General Film Company, were introduced to the public and met with much favor. They remained during the entire convention. Pictures featuring these stars were shown, including the first of the Vim series, "Housekeeping."

Tuesday's Session.

The first session Tuesday was called at 10:30 A. M. The delegates from outside the city had greatly increased and the second day's attendance was considerably larger than at the opening meeting. About three hundred were present in the auditorium to hear the principal addresses of the convention, the first by Frederick J. Herrington, and the second by Ben J. Sawyer of Cleveland. Mr. Herrington had as his subject, "What the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League Has Done for the Exhibitor."

Mr. Sawyer spoke on "The Pictures and the Press." He described the work that has been going on in Cleveland in coordinating these two great mediums of public information and education, the predominating feature being to broaden the vision and improve the morals of the public through the screen and the press. Mr. Sawyer told of the co-operation of the exhibitor with the press in the promotion of "community interest" pictures and recommended such means of gaining and holding the confidence of the public.

President Zerr added a timely touch of patriotism near the close of this session by announcing that he stood ready, as head of the Pennsylvania League, to aid in forming a regiment of men employed and interested in the motion picture business. The proposal met with an ovation and a number of delegates expressed their approval in short addresses.

The convention reconvened at 2 P. M., and brief reports of the committees were heard. The resolutions committee, through Chairman McKee, submitted the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Be it resolved, that we, the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania, in convention assembled, believe in complete harmony between the producer and the exhibitor, because we feel that such harmony can best be secured by each branch maintaining its own organization and guarding its own identity in all matters affecting the common welfare of the industry. We believe, moreover, in co-operation between exhibitor and producer.

Be it further resolved, that we recommend the formation in the motion picture industry of a Board of Trade or a Chamber of Commerce, and that we believe that the exhibitor should have equal representation in such organization, and that exhibitors' representatives in such organization be elected by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

Be it further resolved, that we record our appreciation of and gratitude for the good work done by the trade papers and the press, which have placed the industry paramount to the individual, and for their untiring championship of the interests of the organized exhibitors.

OLIVER McKEE,
FRED. J. HERRINGTON,
A. J. BARTHELL,
JAMES DELVES,
RALPH WILLIAMS.

Wednesday's Session.

The final day proved the most strenuous of the convention. At 10:30 A. M. an open meeting was addressed by F. H. Richardson, editor of the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World, on the subject of projection and instruction to operators, owners and managers of motion picture theaters. Mr. Richardson's address was enthusiastically received and was followed by an open discussion and questions by many of those present. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Richardson at the conclusion of the meeting.

The meeting for electing state officers and the selecting the convention city for 1917, also for the naming of delegates to the National Convention at Chicago, was called to order by President Zerr at 3 o'clock. Nominations were called for immediately, and G. A. Sahner of Pittsburgh, the retiring vice-president of the league, was named for the presidency. His election was carried by acclamation. Other officers unanimously elected were: Frank Stehle of Altoona, vice-president; James Delves of Pittsburgh, secretary; I. W. Shearer of Pittsburgh, treasurer of the Pittsburgh local, treasurer; Ben H. Zerr of Reading, retiring president, national vice-president.

At the conclusion of the election it was proposed to attach to the office of president a salary of $500 per year, and a motion to this effect was carried.

The following delegates to the Chicago convention were then named: Jerome Dawson, Galitzen; William Fritz of Pittsburgh, C. Peterson of Tamaqua, G. A. Sahner of Pittsburgh, James E. Smith of Pittsburgh, M. J. Franney of Shenandoah, A. J. Barthell of Pittsburgh, P. J. Demas of Pittsburgh, Oliver McKee of Pittsburgh, I. W. Shearer of Pittsburgh. The alternates are as follows: J. Silverman, Altoona; J. Kaiser, Pittsburgh; C. F. McAtee, Mahanoy City; M. Feitler, Pittsburgh; Chris Volmer, Dormont; H. C. Kliehm, Pittsburgh; C. L. Koller, Hollidaysburg; Elmer F. Moyer, Whitehaven; H. A. Victor, McKeesport; W. E. Artzburger, Pittsburgh.

The selection of the place of the next state convention was left in the hands of the executive committee to be decided upon at some later date.

The new officers of the league were then installed by National President Herrington, who made an appropriate address.

The final session was concluded with a splendid indorsement of Frederick J. Herrington for re-election to the National Presidency at the Chicago convention. A. J. Barthell offered the following: "Be it resolved, that Frederick J. Herrington is unanimously supported for re-election at the Chicago National Convention, as we feel that his record of the past year is deserving of the indorsement of all exhibitors."

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Following a brief address by President Sahner, the business session of the fifth annual convention adjourned.

The convention came to a brilliant close Wednesday night with a banquet in the English room of the Fort Pitt Hotel. Preceding the departure from the convention headquarters to the hotel a public gathering was held in the auditorium, during which the film stars staged a playlet showing how motion pictures are made. The performance was hugely enjoyed. About two hundred guests, including many ladies, attended the banquet. President Sahner officiated as toastmaster and addresses were made by Ben H. Zerr, Frederick J. Herrington and Ben Sawyer.

One of the most interesting features of the convention was the exposition, composed of elaborate displays by the leading manufacturers, exchanges and supply houses. The fifth floor was given over to the exposition.

The following concerns occupied booths: Metro Pictures Service, in charge of John E. Davis; V-L-S-E, in charge of Manager Childs; Universal and Bluebird, in charge of John McAleer; Fox Film Corporation, Clyde Eckhardt and George P. McKee; Triangle Film Corporation, W. H. Teeple; General Film Company, Guy Ainsworth and Mr. Pielow; Unicorn Film Service, Jack Kramer; Mutual Film Corporation, George W. Lederer, Jr.; Independent Display Company, Miss Helen Crymple; Ludwig Hommel & Co., Albert Cook; Photoplay Entertainment Co., Frank Martin; the Poster Co., Mr. Bowers; Hollis & Smith, Mr. Hollis and Mr. Smith; Feature Film & Calcium Light Company, Frank L. France; Doubleday-Hill Electric Co.

Chicago Convention and Exposition.

Mary Pickford Day at Exposition July 15, and Days for Essanay, Metro, World and Fox Stars Set, Also for Clara Kimball Young—Coliseum Interior Will Be Magnificent Indoor Garden Scene.

THE Paramount officials have promised definitely that Mary Pickford will be at the exposition and hold court on Paramount day, on July 15, at the Coliseum, with Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick and Hazel Dawn. A Paramount representative has arrived in Chicago with instructions to make due arrangements for the completion of a worthy court booth for Queen Mary and her co-stars.

Through the efforts of Aaron J. Jones of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Clara Kimball Young will have a day to herself for the reception of her many followers. Miss Young is exceedingly popular, as has been proved by the number of important contests she has won by the votes of moving picture fans.

It is an assured fact that Francis X. Bushman will have a day at the exposition with Miss Beverly Bayne, so that Metro will be well represented.

Essanay Day will be a prominent event at the exposition. George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, will spare most of his noted players for the occasion. These will include Henry B. Walthall, Miss Edna Mayo, Bryant Washburn, Richard C. Travers, Ernest Maupain, Sidney Ainsworth, and Misses Lillian Drew and Margaret Clayton. The Essanay Company is also arranging a special day for exhibitors at the Chicago studios, on which a film will be made, one scene of which will include all the visitors.

It is still uncertain whether Charlie Chaplin can come on to the exposition or not, though John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual, will be glad if he can, but, as before stated, it lies with Mr. Chaplin himself as to whether he can get his work far enough ahead to meet release dates so as to be able to spare the time. Mr. Chaplin has thousands and thousands of fans who will be glad to greet him, and he should be willing to work in and out of hours in order to be present at the exposition and meet their wishes.

A World day is also promised by the exposition management, on which William A. Brady and his daughter, Miss Alice Brady, who has become a popular screen star, will be present.

On Fox Day it is promised that Theda Bara will prove that she is not the vampire she is pictured.

Sam Spedon reports that his special train, which will bring many of the Vitagraph stars and members of other producing and distributing companies in New York and Brooklyn, will also be patronized by many of the delegates to the convention. This special train will make all the important stops on the New York Central between New York and Buffalo, from which point it will be run as a special to Chicago. It is expected that Mr. Spedon will request a special day for Vitagraph receptions.

The Coliseum will be transformed into a beautiful indoor garden scene, and every concern that has engaged space will vie to make its booth the most attractive. Thousands of dollars will be spent on their booths by the producers of moving pictures and by the manufacturers of accessories and supplies, in addition to the original outlay made by the exposition managers.

The lighting system that has been adopted for the Coliseum during the exposition will produce some novel and beautiful effects.

There will be music in the Coliseum every afternoon and evening, and in case visitors grow tired of looking at the exhibits they can enter the Annex and be entertained in a model moving picture theater that will accommodate 500. These pictures will be really a daily news film of the doings of the delegates to the convention, of other visitors, and of the great crowds in the Coliseum.

In the studio, also in the Annex, the Monarch Film Producing Company of Chicago and the Emerald Motion Picture Company of Chicago, will have companies at work and visitors will see how pictures are directed.

The Boosters' committee meeting of the Sixth Annual Convention and Exposition, held at the Colonial theater, Wednesday morning, June 28, was very enthusiastic. Numerous valuable suggestions were made by the speakers for the reception and care of visitors, especially ladies, and it will be arranged that all visiting exhibitors with their ladies will be admitted free to the theaters owned by members of the League.

Arrangements have been made with Chicago hotels for the best accommodations possible for visiting exhibitors, and the railroads will do all in their power to make the trip comfortable. The Sherman Hotel will be the convention headquarters. It is centrally located and within easy reach of all points.

Indiana Indorses Rembusch for President.

State Convention Also Favors Dr. J. M. Rhodes of Indianapolis for National Secretary.

AT A RECENT meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of Indiana, held at the Severin Hotel, Indianapolis, a motion was adopted, amid enthusiasm, indorsing F. J. Rembusch, Shelbyville and Indianapolis theater owner, and inventor of the glass screen, for president of the national body. Mr. Rembusch had already announced himself as a candidate for the office, after much urging on the part of friends in Indiana and throughout the country, and had begun an active campaign for the office.

It was known long beforehand that the meeting of the state body would take the action which it did. Mr. Rembusch has had a long experience in the exhibiting field and is closely in touch both with this end of the business as well as others. Indiana men think he would make a splendid executive and they are lining up behind him solidly.

The Indiana delegation is composed of six delegates and six alternates, and some of the best-known moving picture men of the state are named in the list. The delegates are Dr. J. M. Rhodes of Indianapolis, A. C. Zaring, secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Indianapolis; T. J. Sollers of Dana, Ike Beitman of Indianapolis, president of the local exhibitors' league; William Lipps, veteran theater manager of Alexandria, and Mr. Rembusch.

The alternates selected to go to Chicago are Ben Crose, owner of a string of Indianapolis theaters; Mr. Dreyfus of Terre Haute, J. A. Victor of Indianapolis, Hugh McDonald of Washington, D. Hinds of South Bend and Robert Harris of Bloomington.

In addition to the indorsement of Mr. Rembusch the league indorsed Dr. J. M. Rhodes for secretary of the national body. Mr. Rhodes has been a leader in the struggle to put Indianapolis on the map in a moving picture way. He has helped fight the battle when there were dark spots ahead and it looked like a wreck was sure to follow. Labor troubles as well as other troubles, including attempts to censor and restrict the exhibition of pictures, have failed to deter him, and Indiana exhibitors think he is entitled to reward. They showed their high esteem for him when this indorsement was given.

WORLD FILM AT CHICAGO PLANS CAMPAIGN.

"World Film and Brady made" will be well represented at the convention and exposition at Chicago, in July. July 17 has been set aside by the committee as "Alice Brady Day" and under the auspices of one of the leading Chicago daily papers Miss Brady will conduct a series of talks and lectures to aspirants for screen honors.

The Reel Fellows Club will hold a formal ball, at which Miss Brady will be the guest of honor. A number of exhibitors will tender her a luncheon on Thursday of convention week.

Three Candidates for National President

Outline of Views of Fred J. Herrington, Frank J. Rembusch and Lee A. Ochs.

AMONG the active candidates for the presidency of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America is the present incumbent of the office, Frederick J. Herrington, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Herrington has clearly defined ideas and policies.

"My platform," he said, "shall be the greatest good to the greatest number. I believe that every student of affairs realizes the improvement that has come into the League within the last year, and no one, I feel sure, will begrudge us the credit for what the present administration has done. We have brought harmony and peace out of chaos and organization out of anarchy. I believe in a trade organization representing the industry as a whole, but I am opposed to that form of organization where the few attempts to place themselves on a pedestal and control the destinies of the thousands. Let us all go to Chicago with the subject of organization uppermost in our minds. We surely can leave it to the men there assembled to elect such officers as will carry out the wishes of the organization. I would like to see a bureau of information with its executive offices in New York. I believe in a national executive board in which all branches of the industry have equal representation. Such a board in my judgment ought to meet semi-annually to arrange for our national convention and exposition."

Fred J. Herrington.

Other planks in Mr. Herrington's platform are:

The election of a committee on legislation from the two organizations, for the purpose of advancing legislation that will be of the best interest to our business and combat such legislation as is a detriment to the state as well as the federal government.

To place our business on an honest basis where we as business men can establish a credit, and make the prepayment policy as now enforced by some of the exchanges unnecessary, as it is a reflection upon every man in the industry. It reflects upon the honesty of the exhibitor and manufacturer.

Frank J. Rembusch.

Frank J. Rembusch of Shelbyville, Ind., leading figure in moving picture affairs of Indiana, and one of the national figures among the exhibitors, has consented to become a candidate for the presidency of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and his name will be presented to the annual convention at Chicago during the meeting in July. Here is Mr. Rembusch's platform:

We must determine what the people will spend per one thousand inhabitants for motion picture recreation.

We must get away from the idea of so many shows in a town or so much seating capacity. Our figures must be based on investment and overhead expense, whether it is a big show or small.

We must determine what percent of the gross box office receipts we can afford to pay for our film service every week.

We must determine what percent we can charge for depreciation and natural hazards.

We must, above all, determine how we can hold and increase the appetite of the people for pictures because I believe we are losing ground on account of the universally long programs. There should be shows at five cents; shows at ten cents; shows at twenty-five cents, and so on, and the program should be in keeping with the price.

In a general way I believe those who are in the motion picture business at the present time are entitled to remain in the business. They can take good care of it and no new motion picture theaters or producers are needed. I believe the time has come when we must take counsel with each other, determine on facts and figures, and work for a specific standard in everything.

I believe we should discourage the opening up of any more picture houses and I have in mind a definite plan by which it can be done. I believe that we should have the utmost harmony in the attitude of the various organizations toward each other. I would even compel harmony if it were possible. We have been fighting and battling for years and got nowhere. Let's try a little sense and peace.

These are the principles upon which I would make the race for national president of the Exhibitors' League. I am not in favor of anything destructive but everything constructive. I am in favor of putting this business on a basis where everybody connected with the business will make a good living, some profit, so that we can have something laid aside for our declining years and meet our obligations as we go.

Lee A. Ochs.

For national president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Lee A. Ochs of New York is being pushed by his friends on a record of success and a platform which includes constructive policies, calls for fair play and which may be summed up by the slogan, "The exhibitor first, last and all the time."

Mr. Ochs' platform includes:

Equal participation and voice with the manufacturer and distributor in all plans, programs, conferences and movements that affect the industry as a whole.

A campaign of co-operative work that will bring the strength of the National Exhibitors' organization up to one hundred per cent. of the total number of motion picture exhibitors in the United States.

A local in every motion picture center, great or small, in the United States.

One national convention and one exposition or trade show each year to be held simultaneously in the city chosen by the convention. The exposition should be under the auspices of the exhibitors with the co-operation and participation of the entire industry.

The establishment of a credit system that will insure the increase in membership of the league.

The establishment of a bureau of information for the benefit of the league's members.

The establishment of a grievance committee, whose duty it shall be to adjust all differences between exhibitors and other branches of the industry, which committee shall be permanently located in New York, the headquarters of all the large manufacturing, distributing and accessory concerns.

Such progressive legislation, as shall be beneficial to all branches of the industry, whether local, state or national.

Kansas City Screen Club Elects Officers.

Exchangemen and Exhibitors of Missouri City Plan Entertainment This Fall.

PERMANENT organization of the Kansas City Screen Club was effected Friday evening, June 23, at a meeting at the Baltimore Hotel. The club starts off with the purpose of doing something worth while. It is likely that meetings will be held with strong programs and that both the social and the entertaining features will be fully recognized. One of the plans is for a big entertainment this fall, perhaps an extravaganza, at one of the theaters, to be followed by a ball at Convention hall. Moving picture stars will be present.

The officers elected were Frank Newman, proprietor of the Royal and the Regent theaters, president; R. C. Cropper, manager Universal exchange, first vice president; John W. Hicks, manager of the Universal exchange, second vice president; W. B. Glazer, secretary; E. H. Pearson, manager V-L-S-E., Kansas City, treasurer; Geo. H. Bowles, publicity manager, Universal, historian.

Directors, C. W. Hardin, manager Metro; E. E. Richards, of Richards-Flynn; L. S. Landau, F. L. Kiltz, manager Mutual, and F. I. Buckingham, owner Apollo.

Mr. Buckingham reported as chairman of the committee on constitution and by-laws, and these laws were adopted. President Newman will appoint a house committee to arrange events.

Great Tribute to Lee A. Ochs

Two Hundred Film Men, Mostly Exhibitors, Gather at Beefsteak Dinner and Endorse His Candidacy for National President.

VERY close to two hundred friends of Lee A. Ochs, president of the Manhattan and the State Leagues, gathered last Wednesday, June 28, in the Hawaiian room of Reisenweber's Casino at Brighton Beach to do honor to Brother Ochs and to put themselves on record as favoring Mr. Och's candidacy for president of the National League.

Every borough of the greater city had sent its representatives to the dinner to testify to its friendship for Ochs and its appreciation of his splendid work on behalf of the organized exhibitors of the city and the state. The room was beautifully decorated, its atmosphere was most conducive to social gayety and harmless enjoyment, and the breezes which swept the scene of festivities were all that they have been "cracked up to be." At the speakers' table sat William A. Brady, the executive head of the World Film Corporation; Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E; William A. Johnston, Arthur James of the Metro Pictures Corporation; W. Stephen Bush of the Moving Picture World, and the honored guest of the evening, Lee A. Ochs. The center of the table was occupied by J. Robert Rubin, who acted as toastmaster.

The menu was enjoyed as it deserved to be. Rarely has the quality and the service been surpassed in the history of urban or suburban beef steak dinners.

The striking feature of the evening, however, was the rich and refined cabaret, "Splash Me 1916," being the star number on the program. Interspersed with the cabaret were various oratorical performances for which Toastmaster Rubin furnished the introductions. Brother Rubin tried to be alliterative and at times he succeeded. The first speaker was Mr. Brady who combined prophecy with an extended autobiographical recital. Brady was in his best vein, and when he announced that he was finished there were cries of "go on" from all parts of the room. The veteran of many pugilistic and theatrical battles smiled in a canny way when he declined and said: "I know enough about vaudeville to realize that a good performer 'ducks' when he has reached his climax."

Mr. Brady was followed by the "imperial and irresistible Irwin," as Counsellor Rubin wittily described him. Mr. Irwin in his speech dwelt on the growing power of the exhibitor and on the need of constructive co-operation between producer and exhibitor. The next speaker was W. S. Bush, who said he had stood close to the guest of the evening in his struggles for a proper recognition of the rights of the exhibitor and was therefore in a position to speak of his qualities of leadership. Mr. James spoke of the failure of the Board of Trade as a result of its lack of co-operation with the exhibitor. He lauded the good qualities and executive abilities of Mr. Ochs and proposed three cheers for the guest of the evening, whereupon the crowd made the welkin ring and caused the rafters to tremble. His prophecy that Ochs would come back from Chicago as the new president of the League caused a new outburst of enthusiasm.

Isaac Newton Hartstall, the genial Brooklyn exhibitor, was not suddenly summoned to the bar. He and Ben. Title, also of Brooklyn, were responsible for the successful arrangements. Mr. Hartstall was presented with a handsome gold watch and with a beautiful white kimona in recognition for his services in the cause of Oriental dances. There was a riot of merriment when "C. K." opened the parcel and displayed its contents. Benjamin Title was next summoned and presented with a little jewelry. He responded with a poem favoring the candidacy of Ochs and the cheering reminded one of a nomination by acclamation. Samuel Trigger was likewise summoned to the bar, and for his services to the organization was presented with a fine fountain pen. Sam responded in his usual felicitous style. Louis Blumenthal was likewise presented with a handsome gift in recognition of his services in the cause of organization.

In response to repeated demands Mr. Ochs arose and made a nice little speech modestly disclaiming any credit for his work and attributing the success of the Exposition and the prosperity of the cause of the organized exhibitor to the assistance of his loyal associates. He was cheered to the echo.

It was long after midnight before the happy throng dispersed. The verdict of all who were there was unanimous: The finest affair of its kind in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

Edward Brennan Now a Director.

Leaves Metro for Kansas City, Where He Will Head Producing Forces of Keller & Eslick.

EDWARD BRENNAN, who has been appearing in leading roles in Metro plays, has left for Kansas City, where he has accepted the position of director and general manager of the Keller & Eslick motion picture concern. He will begin work the first week in July on an important production called "The Sunflower Princess." This first feature will deal largely with the historical interest of the Sunflower State. Following this initial production, other big features will be made, and offered for distribution.

"The Sunflower Princess" will contain many big pageants in which more than five hundred persons will appear. Two hundred of Kansas' prettiest and most popular girls will participate in the spectacles. They come from every county in the state, and were selected in popularity contests which have been conducted by newspapers and societies. The girls will be guests at the Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City during the making of the picture.

The studio of Keller & Eslick in Kansas City has just been completed. In addition to the spacious studio, they have their own laboratory and developing plant. All features will be completed before they leave the place, and several experts from New York and California have been engaged by the owners to preside over the laboratory work.

Mr. Brennan is eminently qualified to carry on his part of the work in his new position. His long association with Metro assures high class and artistic productions. For a time he was associated with Director John W. Noble in the Metro-Rolfe studios, assisting in the direction of Metro features. He has been seen in the leading roles with Valli Valli in "The High Road" and "The Woman Pays," with William Faversham in "The Right of Way," with Grace Elliston in "Black Fear" and with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "Man and His Soul." Before joining the Metro forces Mr. Brennan appeared in many Mutual features and was known as "Dunbar, the Man of Mystery," in the serial "Our Mutual Girl."

Two Large Feature Companies Combine

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Is a $12,500,000 Concern—Will Enlarge Facilities, Increase Production and Institute Campaign for Foreign Business.

THE greatest merger of producing interests in the history of the motion picture industry was consummated on Wednesday, June 28, when the Famous Players Film Company and the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, pioneers in the presentation of celebrated stars and plays on the screen, formed a $12,500,000 producing combination to be known as the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. By this act the great resources of these two producing concerns are united under one administration and will be employed in the production of photoplays of the highest possible standard of excellence to be released on the Paramount Program, as well as the presentation of special features of greater magnitude.

The officers of the new corporation are Adolph Zukor, president; Jesse L. Lasky, vice president; Samuel Goldfish, chairman of the board of directors; Arthur S. Friend, treasurer, and Elek J. Ludvigh, secretary. The directors are, in addition to the officers named, Cecil B. de Mille, William C. Demorest, Daniel Frohman, Albert A. Kaufman, Frederick G. Lee and Emil E. Shauer.

All the directors are well known in the film industry and have been identified with either of the two companies with the exception of Messrs. Lee and Demorest. Mr. Lee is president of the Broadway Trust Company and Mr. Demorest is president of the Realty Trust Company. The officers of the corporation emphasize the fact, however, that despite these affiliations, none of the capital stock will be offered to the public.

The consolidation of these two oldest feature film producing companies definitely settles the various rumors with which they have been connected during the past few months, tending to indicate other affiliations. It is authoritatively stated that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation will distribute its productions, as the two companies previously have done, through the Paramount Pictures Corporation. This statement was issued by the officers:

"The essential purpose of the consolidation is to meet present conditions in the industry and anticipate the demand for better and more artistic productions. The consolidation will make it possible to utilize to the best advantage the producing facilities and equipment of the Famous Players studios in New York and the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Cal., and therefore offers a vastly increased efficiency over the former conditions. We will thus be enabled to obtain any atmosphere needed for our subjects.

"These two companies were the first to present stage stars and plays in motion pictures, having introduced this policy four years ago when they effected affiliations with David Belasco, Daniel and Charles Frohman and Henry W. Savage for the exclusive rights to produce on the screen the plays controlled by these legitimate managers."

The Famous Players Film Company has released forty-eight productions a year and the Lasky thirty-six, making a total of eighty-four feature photoplays a year for the new corporation in addition to the special productions.

Both the eastern and western studios of the newly formed corporation will be immediately enlarged to enable them to cope with the extended producing activities which are planned by the concern and to facilitate the handling of the more elaborate photoplays which are contemplated.

The consolidation of the Famous Players and Lasky companies for producing purposes is a most natural result as both these concerns have followed the same general policies ever since their formation, becoming even closer in their relations when the Paramount Program was instituted. Hitherto the association has been simply a mutual one for the facilitating of distribution outside of the United States, the two concerns having formed an agreement in 1913 for the joint marketing of all their product in Canada, England, Australia, South Africa and on the Continent. The new combination will mark the beginning of a big campaign for the opening of an Asiatic and a South American market by the united companies. Plans are already under way for the circling of the globe through a chain of distributing points covering every important city in the world not embraced by the Paramount Corporation.

The Famous Players Film Company was formed in April, 1912, and was the first producing organization in the world to be devoted to the presentation of a yearly program consisting of stage stars in adaptations of successful stage plays and great novels.

The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company was organized in November, 1913, and was dedicated to the same principles as those which governed the Famous Players—the starring of stage celebrities in big productions. Under the Lasky management there have been many notable stars introduced to the photoplay screen, the most celebrated of whom is America's greatest prima donna, Geraldine Farrar.

Following as it does so closely upon the announcement of the Famous Players that it has appropriated $100,000 to the obtaining of one hundred photoplay ideas from authors of recognized ability to whom royalties will also be paid and the arrival in New York of the Lasky scenario chiefs to cooperate more directly with authors, this combination of two of the largest producing concerns is a striking proof of the confidence which the officers of these companies feel in the future of the motion picture industry. Particularly is this true in view of the fact that the entire capitalization of $12,500,000 is to be held by the corporators themselves and that none of it is to be offered to the general public for subscription. There can be no clearer indication of the forward strides for which these producers expect to blaze the trail by their combination and unification of effort.

Samuel Goldfish,
Chairman Board of Directors.

Jesse L. Lasky,
Vice President.

Adolf Zukor,
President.

Daniel Frohman,
Of Board of Directors.

Deny Violation of Sherman Law

Patents Company and General Film Make Answer to Action Instituted by Theater Film Service.

NO conspiracy to build up a combination to obtain an unlawful monopoly in the distribution of motion picture films in violation of the Sherman Law was ever entered into or carried out is the substance of an answer filed in the United States District Court by the Motion Picture Patents Company, the General Film Company and several other corporate and individual defendants to the action instituted against them by the Theater Film Service Company of San Francisco.

Prior to 1908, when the Motion Picture Patents Company was formed, the defendants assert the motion picture business was in a chaotic state and infringements of patent rights on projecting machines were common. The patent rights under the Edison, Armat, Latham, Pross and Smith patents were generally disregarded and incessant litigation in the courts ensued to the detriment of the motion picture industry the defendants aver.

"The inventions of said patentees created the motion picture art," the defendants acknowledged in the answer drafted by Coudert Brothers, attorneys for the defendants. And it is contended that these inventors were entitled to fair royalties on their inventions and it was to devise some method of protecting their rights and at the same time establish the motion picture industry on a sound commercial basis that the Motion Picture Patents Company and the General Film Company were organized, the defendants declared.

The answer continues that the Motion Picture Patents Company was formed and acquired the patent rights of Edison, Armat, Latham, Smith and Pross relating to projecting machines and license agreements executed with manufacturers of films and cites the formation of the General Film Company, which acted as distributor of films to the rental exchanges.

In the main the answer sets up a general denial of the allegations contained in the complaint filed by the plaintiff and the defendants ask that the bill be dismissed.

OTHER COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Dintenfass Wins Suit in Equity.

The long legal battle between Mark M. Dintenfass and the Universal interests, comprising David Horsley, Patrick A. Powers, the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, William Horsley, George E. Parker and Joseph A. McKinney, the two latter as voting trustees, reached a decisive stage in the Supreme Court last week, when Justice Goff handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff. The suit in equity involved the tranfer of certain stock certificates on which Mr. Dintenfass claimed an option which was never revoked by the defendants. The verdict in his favor depended upon proof that at the appointed time and place he stood ready to carry out the terms of an instrument in writing dated July 3, 1913.

Five hundred shares of common and 500 shares of preferred Universal stock figured in the transaction. The case has been pending in the courts for nearly three years.

Rowland Sues General Film Members.

Richard A. Rowland has commenced an action in the United States District Court against several corporate and individual defendants to recover the value of preferred stock which he held in the General Film Company alleging that through the acts of the defendants named the value of his holdings in the film company was destroyed.

The plaintiff alleges that in 1908 the defendants determined to destroy competition and build up a monopoly of the motion picture business and to accomplish this object the plaintiff avers the defendants formed the Motion Picture Patents Company and distributed films only to exchanges and exhibitors on their list.

The plaintiff, among other things, avers that the directorate was guilty of mismanagement of the affairs of General Film Company. As a result of the acts complained of the plaintiff alleges the value of his holdings of preferred stock in the General Film Company amounting to $46,000 has been substantially impaired and asks for commensurate damages.

Percival L. Waters Sues Albert E. Smith.

Percival L. Waters, a director of the General Film Company, has begun an action in the Supreme Court of New York against Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, demanding judgment in the sum of $10,000, together with costs and disbursements. The suit grows out of statements ascribed to Mr. Smith, published in several trade papers, following the institution of a suit by Mr. Waters and James B. Clark of Pittsburgh against the General Film Company and others.

Among the items to which Mr. Waters takes exception are "that during most of the time covered by these payments and during which the bill of complaint alleges the company was mismanaged Percival L. Waters, one of the plaintiffs herein, was the general manager of the General Film Company and was active in controlling its business policy" and "that in the suit instituted by the United States Government against the General Film Company et al, both Waters and Clark, the present plaintiffs, were witnesses for the General Film Company and testified to the legal and proper manner in which the business of the company was conducted during the very periods covered by their present complaint."

Mr. Waters charges Mr. Smith, among other things, with causing the readers of the statement complained of to understand that "the plaintiff has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a business man, of a betrayal of trust calculated to expose the plaintiff to the contempt and ridicule of those having business relations with him and calculated to destroy the plaintiff's credit and his well-established reputation for honesty and integrity."

DIXON FILM BEING WIDELY BOOKED.

Insistent demand for territorial rights and booking privileges has followed Thomas Dixon's announcement that because of the Mexican crisis he had determined to make "The Fall of a Nation" available at once to all sections of the country. Small groups of states have already been disposed of by Ed V. Giroux, who became general manager of the National Drama Corporation on Monday, June 26, with headquarters at 1480 Broadway. Several applicants for larger territory are being investigated as to their reliability and qualifications to promote the spectacle on the high plane demanded. In other territory which Mr. Dixon has decided to retain for touring purposes, all applications for bookings are being filed in order of receipt and as far as possible they will receive first consideration when the routes are laid out.

By Labor Day "The Fall of a Nation" will be available in all sections of the United States.

William E. Hamilton.

WILLIAM E. HAMILTON, or as his acquaintances know him, "Billy" Hamilton, is a young film man of great ambition and no little achievement. He entered the industry at a very early stage of his career, being a son of William M. Hamilton, one of the best known Philadelphia exhibitors and a pioneer in organization matters in Eastern Pennsylvania. Young Hamilton started as an operator in one of his father's theaters and later found employment in the Lubin studio, where by quick stages he rose to the position of chief cutter. Expert and capable cutters are rare and much sought after and consequently it was not long before young Hamilton came to New York where he found ready employment with the World Film Company as Assistant Director to Barry O'Neil, the well-known director. Recently Mr. O'Neil and his capable young assistant completed five reels in eighteen days, an achievement which speaks for itself.

William E. Hamilton.

Munsterberg On the Photoplay

By Epes Winthrop Sargent

Wherein the Master of Psychology Tells Picture Producers Things They Should Have Known but Did Not.

POSSIBLY on the argument that a poor beginning makes a good ending, Professor Hugo Münsterberg in his "The Photoplay, a Psychological Study," makes his bow with a remarkably poor introductory chapter. It is to be regretted—and not a little to be marveled at—that a man of his reputation and attainments should have presented as his introduction a perfunctory and rather slovenly rehash of the errors of a book-mechanic, and should have accepted unhesitatingly and trustingly the errors of a hack writer without making any seeming effort to verify his facts. For eighteen pages he perpetuates the misstatements of an untrustworthy and biased writer, but once he comes to deal with the facts at his own command, his faults are forgiven him—almost—for he has written the most sane and enlightening book on the new art of motion pictures that has yet come from the press. Moreover, realizing the popular appeal the pictures make, he has written simply and with the avoidance of polysyllabic words, perhaps additionally realizing that the motion picture directors, to whom his message is most directly sent, are best reached through language within the understanding of the average high school pupil.

Oddly enough, Professor Münsterberg, writing from the laboratory of the scientist and Vachel Lindsay, speaking from the studio of the painter and the sculptor, both drive home the great fact that the motion picture is not the bastard offspring of the dramatic stage, but the legitimate child of drama and story with an entity of its own. Mr. Lindsay says:

> The photoplay is as far from the stage on the one hand as it is from the novel on the other. The key words of the stage are passion and character; of the photoplay splendor and speed.

Here the poet-painter speaks his impressions. Professor Münsterberg is more definite and—if you will—more logical. He says of photoplays:

> They are not and ought never to be imitations of the theater. They can never give the estbetic values of the theater; but no more can the theater give the esthetic values of the photoplay. * * * The drama and the photoplay are two co-ordinated arts, each perfectly valuable in itself.

This is something that should have been realized from the very inception of the photoplay, as it is distinguished from the motion picture, and yet for ten years and more the efforts of practically all directors have been exerted to reproduce stories as stage plays and not as photoplays. Since most of those concerned are either former stage directors or have gained their experience under former stage managers, it is not greatly to be wondered at, but here is the first clear and logical exposition of the fact and of the reasons for that fact.

In his chapter on Memory and Imagination the author makes this difference most clear. He speaks of the performance of the stage, wherein past fact and future hope must alike be dealt with in the spoken word. Particularly in the case of what has gone before the playwright must rely upon the memory of his auditor and not upon the speech which merely serves to recall to memory the incident alluded to. In the cut-back, too, he finds the advantage to lie with the picture, since not memory but the fact is relied upon to gain effect. He writes:

> In both cases the act which, in the ordinary theater, would go on in our mind alone is here in the photoplay projected into the pictures themselves. It is as if a reality has lost its own conscious connection and become shaped by the demands of our soul. It is as if the outer world itself became moulded in accordance with our fleeting turns of attention or with our passing memory ideas.

Later he writes: "Our imagination is projected on the screen," in speaking of a vision of the future that serves to give contrast to the action of the moment. He sketches a situation in which a naval recruit spends his first night aboard ship and points out how much more richly the photoplay may picture the visions of his travels than the stage with its spoken word merely give our own imaginations its cues. The picture realizes what the drama stage, with its limitations of space and settings, can only hint at. To offer another illustration, the stage can give to its patron Claude Melnotte's famous word picture of his villa at Como. The photoplay does not conjure up a half-formed, sketchy image. It shows Como itself in as great detail as the producer may desire. It can realize what words can only suggest.

In the close-up, too, the psychologist finds a most valuable aid; indeed it would seem that he gives an over-importance to its use. In an earlier magazine article he had already written that here was to be found the most striking and exclusive feature of the new art. To the psychologist this device for centering the attention upon a particular object, no matter how insignificant, proves most fascinating, and it would seem that he attaches almost undue importance to this device.

Going into another phase of this subject he writes:

> It is evident that, with the exception of words, no means for drawing attention which is effective on the theater stage is lost in the photoplay. * * * More than that, the absence of the words brings the movements which we see to still greater prominence in our minds. * * * We know from the theater that movement is not the only condition which makes us focus our interest on a particular element of a play. An unusual face, a queer dress, a gorgeous costume or a surprising lack of costume may attract our mind and even hold it spellbound for a while. Such means can not only be used, but can be carried to a much stronger climax of efficiency by the unlimited means of moving pictures.

Here is not a decrier, but a critic; an observer who seeks not to erect new methods and new standards, but who points out the facilities already to hand; who makes plain that for what it loses in sound, the moving picture gains in other directions, including an almost fourth-dimensional liberty of movement from scene to scene and capacity for being in two or more places at seemingly the same time. The theater must always present the full stage. Its chief equivalent of the close-up is the always inartistic spotlight on the darkened stage. Much is lost, in many ways, through the absence of sound, but it would appear that Professor Münsterberg, viewing the field as a psychologist, finds that in the more rapid action of the plot the ability to change scenes at will and the concentration of the attention upon the particular phase or thing that is of interest at the instant the moving picture regains its loss, if not more.

Rather less practical is his suggestion that emotion may be created by means peculiar to photoplay. For example, he suggests that straight action be taken and the frames then misjoined, perhaps in this order, 1, 2, 3, 4, 3, 4, 5, 6, 5, 6, 7, 8, and so on, getting a vibratory effect that will suggest instead of depict emotion. There are tremendous possibilities in the suggestion, but it would seem that in this generation, at least, effects so impressionistic will not be achieved. He sees in this field the possibility, perhaps, of reproducing in the mind of the spectator the actual emotion and not merely the record of an emotion in another. This subject is interesting in a speculative way, but, like some of the suggestions of Lindsay, who speaks of painting, sculpture and architecture in motion, the time is not yet ripe for so radical a move.

Viewing the art from another angle, the author finds realism of a certain sort to be an objection rather than an essential. He argues that the picture should suggest depth, and yet, through its very absence of depth, should gain distinction as a separate form of art. It must be viewed as a picture and not as a colorless, voiceless form of acting of the stage. There must be some sense of unreality just as our interest in a novel is not lessened because we know it is a novel and not the actual viewing of life in its reality. Here seems to be the crux of the entire argument for the new art. It must be recognized that it is art and not a reproduction of nature. The very artificiality of some of the devices must, of themselves, suggest reality, not the reality of life, but the reality of the photoplay. It must be viewed as a photoplay and not as an imitation of the stage play. It must use the artifice of the photoplay and not the artifice of the stage. The stage essays to reproduce life, but the photoplay is unhampered by the trammels of the stage. It does not depend upon the reproduction of life, but it reproduces life in its own particular way. It gives not only the actions of the players, but their thoughts, their recollections and their aspirations by methods natural to photoplay and artificial when translated to the stage. In brief, to the thinker, it is an appeal to the writer to write photoplays and not seek to copy drama form or fiction form. To use the words of the author:

> The drama in which the latter event comes before the earlier is an esthetic barbarism which is entertaining as a clever trick in a graceful, superficial way, but intolerable in ambitious dramatic art. It is not only tolerable but perfectly natural in any photoplay. The pictorial reflection of the world is not bound by the rigid mechanism of time. Our mind is here and there, our mind turns to the present and then to the past: the photoplay can equal it in its freedom from the bondage of the material world.

None of this, we take it, is to be construed as justifying the careless and incorrect use of visions or the abuse of the close-up. It points out the way whereby effects may be maintained, but it leaves to the individual the means whereby these effects may be handled to obtain the greatest good; indeed he says: "The temptation to neglect it (the preservations of the unity of action) is nowhere greater than in photoplay, where outside matters may be so easily introduced or independent interests developed. . . . Nothing has the right to existence in its midst that is not internally needed for the unfolding of the unified action."

It is not possible within the limits of a review to give a competent reflection of the work. The entire book must be read if the idea is to be clearly understood, and not alone read, but reread, by all who are interested in the making of motion pictures, something more than a reflection of the stage. Many books have been written and many more will be written dealing with the errors of pictures and picture makers. Professor Münsterberg not only points to the better way, but he erects sign posts for the guidance of those who would follow his path. He is the first writer to deal with motion pictures as such and not as a debased form of some other art. Beyond an over-emphasis on the close-up and a rather too pronounced prohibition against the use of leaders, he rides no fads, forces no hobbies upon us, but in clear and forceful fashion he dissects the art into its elements. Much good cannot come of his labors until we shall have men to interpret his meanings on the film, replacing the purely stage director, but his work will bear fruit, if not today, in that better tomorrow that must come if the photoplay is to endure.

Smaller Theaters Must Have Variety

Short Subjects With Occasional Features the Right Program, Declares President George K. Spoor of Essanay.

THE backbone of the motion picture industry is strong, short subjects of one, two and three reels. I want it distinctly understood, however, when I make this statement, that I am not discounting the value of features of five, six or even more reels. Each has its place, but the places have largely been misjudged or misunderstood in the past. You hear one man declare that everything must be features and another that everything must be short subjects. In fact, the ground is between. The vast majority of theaters will do better to stick to the variety program of short subjects, while some can only exist by using features.

As everyone knows, the motion picture playhouse sprang into successful existence when the thousand-foot film was born. For some time the majority of playhouses exhibited but one reel, running sometimes as high as thirty or forty shows a day. Those were the halcyon days for the exhibitor who got in on the ground floor.

Expenses were small and the returns large. This was because the business was new and the novelty great. Then the public began to demand better pictures and the exhibitors went on increasing the number of reels, until three was called a feature. There began to appear more definite plots and something of artistry in the pictures.

But the picture business was still in the informal stage. As when only one reel was run, the people never thought of going to a theater at a particular time. They went when they felt like it, or they dropped in when they saw a poster that attracted them, or the name of a star that they were interested in.

There was no planning or getting ready to go to a picture show as there was to the opera or a stage production. It was all a pleasant informality, a come-and-go-as-you-please. This was largely what gave the charm to the pastime.

Then came the super-features with their many reels, that practically were an evening's entertainment. The country suddenly went feature mad. Everyone was turning out features regardless of whether they had facilities or strong stories. Fly-by-night companies got into the field and turned out indifferent or poor pictures, but they had the stamp of features and for a time some of them got by. But again the public began to discriminate. The market was flooded with features and the poorer had to go.

The picture playhouse began to lose its informality. The people began to count on a time when to go to the theater. Naturally no one wanted to begin in the middle of a big feature. Yet it was hard for the exhibitor to set a definite time for his show or for the public to keep track of the time.

The theaters, especially in the outlying districts of the large cities and in the small towns, must run continuous performances. The public could not judge exactly what time the new show would begin. Sometimes they would have to stand in line until the new show commenced. Many would wander away. Others would pass by altogether, not knowing how long they would have to wait. Still others who would formerly run into a theater for half an hour when it was less formal would not take the trouble to plan, to get ready to go to a show.

The time rapidly is coming when the feature and the short reel plays are going to settle to a normal basis. Each has its place and each is going to occupy that place in the picture play world.

I believe that this will make both the feature and the variety programs stronger than ever, because each will settle into its rightful field, without encroaching upon the other.

Strong features, plays that are great enough to stand the prolonged length, will be more in demand, as the weaker features will be pushed out. The features that should normally be two and three reels, but which have been padded into a larger number, will be eliminated.

This does not mean a weakening of the two and three-reelers, for there are just as strong subjects that do not require the extreme length and are better for being concentrated into short subjects. These should be strengthened still more, and the best stars of photoplaydom used in them. The public should have just as good action and just as high a class of players to see in short plays as in features.

The features naturally cost more and will demand a higher price. To be of financial advantage to the producer, also it is necessary for these to have longer runs. In the small town playhouses where everyone can see it in one night it cannot bring in big returns. Not that these theaters can run no features, but they will confine their houses to a variety program so many nights a week, and occasionally give a strong feature, one that has finished its run in the larger houses of the city. It will then be profitable to producer and exhibitor alike.

The large theaters of the big cities will naturally have these features first just as they have the large stage productions, which afterward go on the road. Many of the theaters in outlying districts of large cities and in moderate-sized towns also can plan for so many runs of features with profit. But as I first stated, the small exhibitor who expects to make a success of his house will base his business on the variety program.

I believe there is a crying need for more variety programs, for the old informal, come-and-go-as-you-please theater. I am firmly convinced that the public wants it for a steady diet, with the occasional banquet thrown in.

This will work to the mutual advantage of all. It will aid the manufacturer of the strong and legitimate feature picture plays to realize an adequate return on his investment. It will permit the exhibitor of large features to profit more by a concentration of the field.

The manufacturer, again, will be able to profit on his shorter productions, and the exhibitor of the variety program will get away from the onerous burden of running too many features, and will reap large rewards through establishing the informal playhouse, with its continuously moving throngs.

This I believe is the pulse of the public, and the public pulse must be felt and its indication followed if exhibitor and manufacturer are to succeed.

GEORGE K. SPOOR.

Double Upon "How Britain Prepared."

Patriotic Preparedness Film Playing to Overflow Houses at the Lyceum and Standard Theaters on Broadway.

UNABLE to satisfy the crowds that wished to obtain admission to the Lyceum theater, in New York, where the official British motion pictures showing how Kitchener transformed over 5,000,000 civilians into an efficient fighting force and Admiral Jellicoe's great North Sea fleet, the Patriot Film Corporation has been compelled to place a second print of the picture in the Standard theater, as well as to extend the engagement at the Lyceum theater. The Lyceum had been engaged for a run of four weeks, but, despite the competition of two of the most pretentious pictures, large numbers of people who desired to obtain admission to the house were unable to do so.

The Standard theater has consequently been engaged to take care of the overflow crowds, and since the first performance there, capacity business has been the rule.

Baltimore Operators Hear Richardson

Union Holds Supper and Listens to Moving Picture World Projection Expert–Many Picture Men Present.

BALTIMORE Operators' Union No. 181 had a supper at the Olympic restaurant, Baltimore, Md., on Monday evening, June 26, which was attended by more than two hundred operators, managers and others connected with the motion picture business in that city. Festivities commenced at 11.30 o'clock P. M., and extended well into the next day. F. H. Richardson, editor of the Projection Department of the Moving Picture World, was present as the guest of honor of the occasion and lectured on the subject of projection. After the lecture, which lasted until 1.40 o'clock, A. M., a collation was served consisting of crabs on toast, club sandwiches, ice cream and assorted beverages.

G. K. Howard, president of the Operators' Union, introduced Mr. Richardson, who was given a hearty welcome and who proceeded to flay antiquated methods of management and projection, illustrating by photographs many of his reasons why every new method proposed would save money and make better shows.

"I have a box of shoes with me tonight," said Mr. Richardson, at one point of his discourse. "If any of them fit you, wear them, and if you have corns, I hope they pinch you very hard! I am not here tonight to jolly you along. If I had come merely to do that it would have been absolutely useless to have come! You may not like some of the things I am going to tell you; but I am going to tell you truths that will react for the betterment of the industry!"

The faults of neither managers, exchangemen nor operators were spared by the speaker, who closed by saying that he hoped no one present would think that there was anything personal in his criticism, as it had been given for the benefit of the industry as a whole. President Howard thanked Mr. Richardson for the trouble he had taken to be present and for the information he had imparted.

The affair was a success. Through the efforts of the committee of arrangements, headed by President Howard, the hall was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting and the union emblem was hung just behind the speaker's table. Those present were G. K. Howard, president of the union; Messrs. W. George, S. Isaacson, A. Stewart, O. Niquet, W. Evans, Carrol Bayne, N. C. Haefele, Conrad Hagert, J. Bedford, B. Morgan, A. E. Fisher, F. Susie, K. Martin, C. George, J. Myers, A. J. Stewart, G. Arnold, Banks, Balen, Braul, Barton, Berthold, Collison, Clarke, Carmin, Councilman, Canby, Connelly, Davidson, Dunkle, Dunty, C. and G. Debrick, East, Fadan, Finn, Gregory, Green, Gahan, Gent, Granburg, Hess, Hagart, Hawkins, Hauser, E. Hess, C. King, Kindig, F. King, Keen, Long, Leven, Murray, Morehead, Maurer, Cannatella, Williams, Hyde, Attler, Conners, Nolte, Quede, Read, Ribekof, Gibson, Russel, Sohn, Schneider, Silverman, Steward, Silver, Seamon, Sewell, Seagle, Sullivan, Teddy, Winn, Whitmore, Wallis, Walters, Huke, Grote, Hacker, Gamble, Haxter, Schmidtz, Leight, Stump, Hoffer, Macks, Whalen, all operators.

G. L. Wonders, president Maryland Exhibitors' League; T. J. Bohannan, Joseph Brodie, M. Marcus, M. Berger, B. Flaks, C. Pierce, J. Heintz, R. B. Bradshaw, G. Liebold, F. H. Durkee, L. A. DeHoff, Mr. Halstead, G. S. Benjamin, E. M. Daly, Nat Keene, A. E. Deamon, F. Dusman, C. Hicks, J. Levin, Mr. Wonders, Frank Hoernig, Lat Goodman, H. Durkee, L. Hammond, A. B. Price, N. Burns, G. H. Gaffney, J. L. Rome, Chas. E. Anderson, C. Wasky, H. Anthony, H. C. Jones, H. Hooker. I. Levin, R. Cremen, R. Hall, J. Goodman, H. Reddisch, F. C. Weber, G. S. Barger, H. Emmert, J. J. Hartlove, I. R. Martin, exhibitors.

E. G. Evans and O. D. Weems of the Mutual Exchange and W. F. Ballinger of the General Film Company; C. L. Worthington, vice president of the Fox Film Corporation; Guy Brandt of the International; H. M. Siegel, representing Bluebird and Red Feather features; Lyman Broening, cameraman, of the Famous Players; Charles E. Harper, chairman of the Maryland censor board, and Nelson Baldwin, of the State Board of Operator Examiners.

Universals for the Week of July 10

"The Heart of a Child," a Red Feather, Heads the List–Gene Field's "Little Boy Blue" for July 14.

THE Universal program for the week of July 10 opens with an unusual feature, released as the Red Feather on Monday. This is a dramatization of the famous novel, "The Heart of a Child," by Mrs. Braukau ("Frank Danby"). It is a screen version of the old story of King Cophetua and the Beggarmaid—of the girl of the slums who marries the nobleman in the end and lives happily ever after. On the same day a typical Nestor comedy, "Henry's Little Kid," is laughably told.

On Tuesday, July 11, the feature will be "Nature Incorporated," a Gold Seal two-reel comedy drama, in which Herbert Rawlinson is starred, with Agnes Vernon playing opposite. The Rex release for that day is a special in one reel, called "War Ridden Mexico," depicting some wonderful scenes in that country, secured by the Animated Weekly cameramen upon the scene of the fighting. The program will close with another Matt Moore and Jane Gail Imp comedy, entitled "A Stranger in His Own Home," released in one reel.

On Wednesday, July 12, the feature will be a drama of artistic life, called "A Conflicting Conscience," in which the leading parts are taken by May Emory and Bertram Grassby. The story is a Victor in one reel. "Ignatz's Icy Injury," an L-Ko, will be released in two reels on the same date. The program for the day closes with the Animated Weekly.

"No. 16 Martin Street" is the Laemmle two-reeler for July 13, featuring Dorothy Davenport and Emory Johnson. It is followed by a Big U juvenile comedy, "The Three Brave Hunters," a screen version of the old fairy tale. The program closes with a comedy cartoon by Pat Sullivan, one of his "Sammy Johnson" series, called "Sammy Gets a Job," and a Ditmars Educational split-reel, entitled "Mexican Natural History," which is of timely interest.

"The Little Gray Mouse" is the title of the Imp feature for Friday, July 14. It is in two reels and features Edith Roberts and Harry Benham. A charming version, by Rupert Julian, of Eugene Field's deathless poem, "Little Boy Blue," is the Victor release for that day.

On Saturday, July 15, "The Human Pendulum," a three-reel Bison, with Marie Walcamp and Lee Hill, will be released. The program is completed with a Joker one-reeler, "The Harem Scarem Deacon."

The releases for Sunday, July 16, include "The Crimson Yoke," a two-reel Mexican drama, under the Rex brand, produced by Cleo Madison. Another episode of the comedy series "Baseball Bill," called "Flirting With Marriage," a one-reel Laemmle, written and produced by "Smiling" Billy Mason, follows the feature. The program ends with an excellent Imp comedy, directed by William Garwood, in which he plays the role of a young plumber. It is "Two Seats at the Opera" and is full of laughs.

"QUEEN OF THE ROSES," AT CANDLER.

Something different and something new is promised at the Candler Theatre on Wednesday night when the Rosegraph Film Company will present for the first time in America Ruggiero Leoncavallo's photo-opera "Queen of the Roses." It is adapted from Leoncavallo's opera "La Reginnetta Delle Rose." The promoters of the enterprise at the Candler look to the music rather than the picture to win American success.

A company of the best Italian artists assume the various characters and Leoncavallo's music accompanies every inch of the picture. It will be interpreted by fifty soloists from the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, conducted by Signor Peroni, of the Royal Conservatory of Rome, Italy, who has come to America specially for this engagement. There will be performances twice daily after the opening.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

Proposed Revision of Chicago's Theater Law.

"TIME proves all things" is an old saying, and the closing of the Harper theater, 5236 Harper avenue, some time ago, seems to demonstrate its truth.

The Supreme Court had decided that the Harper being within the prescribed 200 feet, provided by ordinance, from the Hyde Park Presbyterian Church was subject to the rightful revocation of its license by the city. It is now shown that the revocation was made because the owners of the Beach theater, in the same neighborhood, pressed the case in order to eliminate competition.

Five hundred dollars was paid as a retainer by the board of directors of the Beach to the law firm of Schuyler & Weinfeld in order to secure the closing of the Harper, as admitted by Mr. Weinfeld, when he recently testified before the judiciary committee of the City Council that his work for this fee consisted in visiting the corporation counsel's office two or three times and insisting that the Harper be closed.

The following details of the whole matter were recited by Mr. Weinfeld to the judiciary committee:

Ted May, who was manager of the Beach theater, and who has been my client for six years, came to me after the Supreme Court handed down its decision and asked me what I could do to close the Harper.

To use his own words, he said: "If the Harper is closed I'll have a position; now I only have a job." I told him I must be given a retainer. He went to his board of directors, and after some discussion they sent me $500.

I went to see George E. Chipman, then assistant corporation counsel, two or three times. I pointed out the city had no alternative but to close the theater, in view of the decision of the court.

I never talked to any one else in the city hall about the matter, and the license was finally revoked.

Some time afterwards the Beach was taken over by new management and May lost his job. Then he again paid Mr. Weinfeld a visit and told him that he could get a $3,000 job, and that there would be $3,000 for the firm of Schuyler & Weinfeld if the Harper license could be restored. According to his testimony, Mr. Weinfeld replied that it would be unethical to attempt to do it.

In order to prevent injustice being done by an enforcement of the code as it at present reads, the council judiciary committee recommended an amendment on June 26 which provides that the section prohibiting places of amusement within 200 feet of a church, hospital or school shall not apply to buildings already operated or constructed for entertainment purposes. Enforcement of the ordinance as it stands would put out of business over thirty theaters, the Coliseum being among the buildings so condemned.

The amendment was carried in the judiciary committee by a vote of 10 to 6. The matter will be brought before the council shortly.

Since the foregoing was written, the City Council on Friday night, June 30, passed the amendment legalizing theaters which at present are built within 200 feet of churches, by a vote of 47 to 15. This makes possible the immediate reopening of the Harper theater and its removal from the limelight of publicity which has been cast on it for some considerable time past.

Theodore W. Wharton Greeted by Many Chicago Friends.

Theodore W. Wharton, well known for some time in Chicago film circles, chiefly through his successful career as a director with Essanay, was in the city from Monday, June 26, until Thursday, June 29, when he left for the studios of Wharton, Inc., Ithaca.

Mr. Wharton brought along with him six of his company to complete the finishing scenes (which required Chicago atmosphere) of his coming photoplay, "The Black Stork." This photoplay is in six reels, the story of which will be announced later. The members of the company brought on to Chicago included Hamilton Revelle, Edgar Davenport, Misses Elsie Esmond and Jane Fearnley, Robin Townley and George Moss.

Mr. Davenport is the brother of Fanny Davenport and son of the famous E. L. Davenport. He concluded his engagement with Wharton, Inc., in Chicago, and went to New York to rejoin the Rolfe-Metro Company. I had the pleasure of meeting him and of enjoying his pleasing personality.

Miss Elsie Esmond will be remembered as a successful impersonator of Bonita, in "Arizona," although not the original of that role. She played the part here at the Grand Opera House, about twelve or fourteen years ago.

Miss Jane Fearnley was leading woman with "Potash and Perlmutter" for the last two seasons.

Mr. Moss is an old-time actor, "eighty-six years young," as he quaintly says.

Hamilton Revelle, who was at one time the leading man with Olga Nethersole, when she played Sapho in "The Termagant," appeared in pictures some time ago as the lead with Mrs. Leslie Carter in "The Heart of Maryland," and also took the lead in Ambrosio's feature, "The Sins of His Father."

I was glad to learn that the brothers Wharton, of Wharton, Inc., are making a financial success as contracting producers. That they are making a fine artistic success is amply shown in their productions.

The Central Film Corporation Formed.

Aaron J. Jones announced one day last week the formation of the Central Film Corporation, which will handle the Clara Kimball Young features in Illinois, Indiana, western Kentucky and southern Wisconsin.

The directors of the new corporation are Jones, Linick & Schaefer and Nathan Ascher, and the offices of the company will occupy the entire fourth floor of the Orpheum Theater Building, 110 South State street. It is said that the new exchange has involved an investment of over $600,000.

Harry Weiss, who has been assistant manager in the Chicago office of the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., since his resignation as Chicago manager of the Metro office, has been appointed manager of the Central Film Corporation. He will enter upon his new duties on Monday, July 3.

The Clara Kimball Young features will be released once a month and will be in five and six reels.

It is given out that Lewis J. Selznick paid $15,000 for the film rights to Robert Chambers' book, "The Common Law," in which Miss Young will make her debut August 1.

Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions.

Barney Balaban and William Hershberg, owners of the General Feature Film Company in the new Mallers Building, this city, after five years' experience in marketing feature productions on the open market, have formed an organization which will be known as the Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions.

Preparations have been made to handle some of the leading Independent attractions on the market, and they are negotiating for other productions, which will add to their reputation.

Among the subjects which will be offered by the company for early release are: Nat C. Godwin in "The Marriage Bond" (five reels), the first of the Mirror Film Company's releases; the entire output of the Ivan Production Company, Inc., including "The City of Illusion," with Mignon Anderson; "Her Husband's Wife," with Sallie Crute, and "The Faded Flower," with Marguerite Snow. They also will handle the Juvenile Comedy Company's weekly releases; also "The Yellow Menace," a sixteen-chapter story, details of which will be announced shortly.

The staff of the Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions has been increased by twelve new road men, it is announced, and plans are under way to open offices in Milwaukee and Indianapolis.

The Chicago quarters will be materially enlarged. Simeon B. Griever will be general manager and will have complete charge of the distribution of the productions. The company's booth at the exposition will be one of the largest and most finely decorated in the Coliseum.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, states that one of his camera crews, under the direction of W. B. Klingensmith, is now engaged in taking a special two-reel feature showing the round-up at Kildeer, N. Dak. This promises to be one of the largest round-ups in the history of the Dakota section, and many say it will be about the last big round-up that will take place there.

Wesley Smith, another cameraman of the company, took charge of a crew that left last week for an extended trip through the Crow Indian Reservation, where a three-reel picture featuring Custer's last stand will be taken. Afterwards Mr. Smith will film the opening of the Cody gateway to Yellowstone Park and then make a number of special scenic features in the Rocky Mountain National Park and Estee Park.

Another of the Rothacker Film camera crews is out under the direction of W. C. Aldous, taking special pictures illustrating the work of road making. These pictures are being made in the vicinity of Wilmington, Del., for the DuPont Powder Company.

* * *

C. W. Bunn, formerly branch manager of the World Film Corporation at Washington, D. C., has succeeded H. C. Holah, branch manager of Pathe's Chicago office. Mr. Holah has been transferred to Pathe's Minneapolis office. He was very popular with exhibitors and in film circles here.

* * *

Virginia Norden, well-known star of the Vitagraph forces, spent a week or more in this city on her way from Vitagraph's Pacific coast studios to New York City. During her stay, Miss Norden's time and energy were taxed to fill all the requests made by moving picture theater managers to appear at their houses and address their patrons.

* * *

J. J. McCarthy, general manager of D. W. Griffith's attractions, spent several days in the city last week. While here, he made the following announcement: "The next production which will be issued by the Griffith forces is 'The Mother and the Law.' This is the working title of the new Griffith story, but it will be probably changed when it reaches the East. It will reach Chicago about August 15. This spectacular effort is the only thing Griffith has worked upon for the last three years, excepting the eight months devoted to the making of 'The Birth of a Nation.' He has no interest in any other production, though there have been cheap efforts to link his name with attractions now being exploited for the purpose of selling state rights. 'The Mother and the Law' is an original study of a sociological story that covers several thousand years."

* * *

A special wire to the Chicago Tribune conveys news that Nicholas McDonald, a cameraman doing Selig-Tribune work on the border, has again gotten into hot water near Juarez. When the returning American troopers of the Tenth Cavalry who had been taken prisoners by the Mexicans, were about to arrive, McDonald went across the Rio Grande with a camera. He was immediately arrested by Mexican soldiers and faced back towards El Paso. He protested so vigorously at the treatment that the soldiers changed their minds and marched him off to jail, where he remained two hours, when he was released on orders of Consul Garcia. Mr. McDonald planted his camera one inch north of the center of the international boundary and took several hundred feet of pictures as the gallant negro troopers filed across.

* * *

Tom Mix, Selig's famous Western hero in pictures, arrived from the Newhall studios, located about forty miles from Los Angeles, on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and remained in the city for two days, returning Friday night, June 30. Mr. Mix has been at the Newhall studios since December 15 last, with his company, producing Western subjects in one, two and three reels, which are released through the General Film Company. The objeet of his visit was to consult with Mr. Selig on the production of several Western features, from five to seven reels in length, which will be directed by Marshall Neilan in the near future, in which Tom will take the leading parts. The first will be "The Light of Western Stars," founded on the book by Zane Gray, the adaptation having been made by Gilson Willets. This photoplay will be seven reels in length. Following it will be the photoplay "Bob Hampton of Placer," based on the book by Randall Parish, from which Gilson Willets has written the photodrama. This will also be in seven reels. "The Country That Man Forgot," an original photoplay written by Marshall Neilan, will next be filmed, in about five reels. Prominent stars have been specially engaged by Mr. Selig to appear in all these photoplays with Mr. Mix. Scenes of the productions will be made in southern California, North Dakota and Arizona, so as to catch the proper atmosphere.

Mr. Mix is seriously considering joining Uncle Sam's forces on the border. A delegation of Westerners recently called upon him at Newhall and asked him to accept the leadership of a regiment of rough riders. Tom saw service during the Spanish-American and Boer wars, and he says if war is declared against Mexico he will certainly enlist and go to the front, as he has had much experience in the Mexican country.

Tom was recently elected mayor of Newhall, which is a thriving community. He informed me that since his election he has instituted the passage of a speed ordinance for motorcycles and automobiles, and has also brought the little burgh up to date by installing a telephone system.

"The Prince Chap" is almost finished at Selig's Chicago studios, under the direction of Marshall Neilan. It is a film dramatization of Edward Peple's book of that name. Mr. Neilan appears in the title role, in addition to directing the photodrama. Other star players engaged in the production are Mary Charleson, Bessie Eyton and George Fawcett. "The Prince Chap" has an unusually strong love story and a number of beautiful scenic effects.

* * *

W. H. Rudolph, who owns the Illinois state rights for "The Battles of a Nation," informs this office that it has entered its seventh week at Riverview Park, this city, and that the contract has been extended for ten weeks more—quite a record for the picture.

* * *

The following programs have been announced at the prominent downtown theaters in Chicago for the week beginning Sunday or Monday, July 2 and 3:

Studebaker.—"The Weakness of Man" (World), featuring Holbrook Blinn, and based on Tolstoi's "The Living Dead," and the ninth chapter of "Gloria's Romance," entitled "The Shadow of Scandal."

Fine Arts.—Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle will enter their fifth week in "The Whirl of Life."

V-L-S-E Theater.—"The Valiants of Virginia" (Selig), featuring Kathlyn Williams and Arthur Shirley, with short subjects including a comedy, a scenic and an animated cartoon.

Strand.—William H. Thompson in "The Eye of the Night" (Kay-Bee), written by C. Gardner Sullivan, author of "Civilization"; a travelogue; Universal Weekly, and Mutt and Jeff cartoons.

Orchestra Hall.—Blanche Sweet in "The Dupe" (Lasky); Bobby Bumps Flyswatter in a Paramount-Bray cartoon, and the travelogue, "Snapshots from Near and Far." Marion Green, basso cantante, and Dorothy Matheis; harpist, are the soloists. "Soldiers of the World," a one-reel picture selected from Manager Hill's series of "Scenes from Many Lands," will be held over for a second week.

Colonial.—"How Britain Prepared" (Patriot Film Corporation), which opened Wednesday evening, June 28, made a big hit and all indications point to a lengthened run. The city press, without exception, has bestowed much praise on these fine educational war pictures. Louella O. Parsons, photoplay editor of the Chicago Herald, writes of the first presentation here: "'How Britain Prepared' aroused the wildest enthusiasm at the Colonial on Wednesday evening that I have ever seen displayed in any picture house. The Mexican war and the departure of our boys to the front undoubtedly were largely responsible for part of the outburst, though I fancy the inspiring music and the really excellent pictures of England's army and navy had a contributing share in the ovation accorded Charles Urban's plea for preparedness."

LaSalle.—"The Little Girl Next Door" enters on its ninth week, with the crowds still as great as ever.

* * *

H. E. Aitken, president of the Triangle Film Corporation, came on to see the opening of "Civilization" at Cohan's Grand Opera House Friday evening, June 30. A. H. Woods, the New York theatrical producer, who is associated with Thomas H. Ince in the presentation of the big film spectacle in New York and this city, was also present at the Chicago premiere. The show lasted until some time past 11 o'clock. The house was taxed to its utmost to accommodate patrons, and a jam of private automobiles was noticeable out in front long before the presentation concluded. "Civilization" is evidently out for a long run. Chicago photoplay critics are a unit in eulogizing the production and its presentation at the Grand.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

Week of Deaths and Injury

Page Peters, Morosco Player, Drowned; Donald Rayburn, American Publicity Manager, Instantly Killed; Others in Wrecks and Mishaps.

PAGE PETERS, who played heavy leads for the Morosco Photoplay Company, was drowned in the surf at Hermosa Beach, June 22, in spite of the frantic efforts of fellow bathers to save him, as described in detail on another page.

Donald W. Rayburn, publicity manager for the American at Santa Barbara, was instantly killed in the early morning of June 20 when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a telephone pole.

Rayburn was well known in this city, and leaves many friends in the newspaper profession. He was on his way to Santa Barbara when the accident occurred. George Sargent, who was driving the car, is a director for the same company. The couple had made an early start and had prepared sandwiches to eat along the road. At Cahuenga Pass Sargent reached for one of the sandwiches. He was so absorbed in ttaining the food that he failed to notice a sharp curve in the road.

Swerving, the machine veered into a telephone pole at the side of the road. The great pole cracked in the middle, the top section falling directly on Rayburn's head. Sargent escaped with bruises, and hurried the body to the Receiving Hospital in a passing machine. Mr. Sargent was unmarried. He was a graduate of Stanford University and was president of his class at Polytechnic High School. Before entering publicity work he was employed by a local newspaper. He was a member of "The Screamers," a unique club composed of publicity, scenario and news writers.

Francis MacDonald, who married Miss Mae Busch, and who was appearing in a big Universal picture, was painfully but not seriously injured early one morning when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a moving street car. He was thrown and badly bruised, suffering slight internal injuries and severe shock. He was rushed to the Receiving Hospital unconscious, kept there for half a day and then taken to his hotel, where he is now in bed recovering his strength.

Nell Shipman, Vitagraph actress, was injured slightly when she fell from a wharf at the harbor while going through a scene. She was taken to a hospital, where several hours later she recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

Miss Hazelle Hanson, who was among the survivors of the steamer "Bear," which went ashore and was wrecked in a fog on the west coast, told a remarkable story of the sea tragedy and her rescue from drowning. She came here to fill an engagement with a local film company, having left a position with the Continental Film Company in Portland. She said that, despite the plea of members of her family, who attempted to persuade her to postpone her trip from Portland because the steamer was scheduled to sail on the 13th, she determined to leave on that date, in order to keep an appointment in this city.

Efforts to make an automobile jump a span of thirty feet between the wharf and the power schooner Vaquero resulted in four motion picture actors being injured at Los Angeles harbor. Wires that had been strung from an overhead framework to hold up the automobile while going through space gave away and the machine plunged into the harbor.

The actors were all rescued after their cold dip, but the automobile is still at the bottom of the channel. The windshield of the machine was smashed and one of the actors was cut about the face, but his injuries were not serious.

The scenario called for a vessel just leaving the dock with an escaping criminal aboard, and a posse, including the hero, following closely in the machine.

UNIVERSAL PLANT IS BUSY.

Studio a Seething Mass of Busy Humanity with Thirty-six Directors Busy—Studio Overcrowded.

Since the Eastern contingent of the Laemmle forces arrived here, the large plant at Universal City has been a veritable ant hill. Dressing-rooms are at a premium; offices for directors have been built in the old glass studio out of plain flats and spare backings; the stages, with their thousands of square feet, are fought for by the thirty-six directors when they are all there.

Director Lynn Reynolds has completed "The Girl of Lost Lake," a five-reel drama, which will be released as a Bluebird feature. The story is laid in the high mountains among the lakes, hills and the big pines.

There were many bright knights at Universal City this week, for on the 23d the Knights Templars who had been in conclave in Los Angeles invaded the big studios to witness the rodeo and wild west show which had been provided for them by Manager Davis. The studio was decorated in honor of the visitors.

While viewing the show and wandering among the many sets we heard that the Smalleys are filming their photoplay, prepared by Lois Weber, entitled "Saving the Family Name." Mary MacLaren is the star of this production, supported by a big cast.

Elizabeth Janes, six years old, known as "the Seal" and "the California marvel," is now one of the child players at Universal City.

Major General J. Franklin Bell, commanding the western division of the army, was an interested visitor at Universal City a few days ago.

Norbig Starts Again.

The Norbig studio for the first time in many months is now the scene of the company's own productions. Beginning last week, Frank E. Norton, president of the company, started filming a three-reel feature, "Darkness." It is the intention of the Norbig Company to produce dramas regularly henceforth. Harry T. DeVere is in charge of production.

Miss Margaret Darwin, only daughter of State Senator G. W. Cartright, is leading woman. Miss Darwin is from the speaking stage and has never before appeared in pictures.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

Director R. A. Walsh, who has been working for three months on the Fox ten-reeler, "The Honor System," which was written by Henry Christeen Warnack, says his picture is about finished. The company includes Milton Sills, Gladys Brockwell, Charles Clary and Miriam Cooper.

* * *

Director George Cochran, who has been directing at Universal, will make a trip to Lake Tahoe soon to film a big feature for Rex DeRoselli, Marjorie Ellison and Jack Nelson. Mr. Cochran is an old theatrical man, having spent his early life on the stage and lately has been with the Universal.

* * *

Lola May, film actress, was awarded a judgment of $2,163 against the New York Moving Picture Company for a breach of contract. Miss May came to Los Angeles from New York, and after a few months failed to appear for work, maintaining that the weather was so bad she was unable to reach the studio, as no autos could get through.

* * *

A three-night lawn fete will be given for the benefit of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Santa Monica. The committee in charge have left nothing undone to make this the greatest event in South Hollywood district. Many players have volunteered their services, among them being Myrtle Gonzalez, Lena Baskette, Billy Mason, Ed. Lyons, Lee Moran, Fred Mace, Myrtle Stedman, Earl Houk, Tom Wilson, Neil Burns, and Willing, Bently and Willing of the Orpheum, and many others.

* * *

William H. Clifford, well-known scenario writer, has arrived from New York. He is accompanied by Mrs. Clifford and their children. They will remain in Southern California several weeks.

* * *

We have a report that a new moving picture city is projected for Southern California by the Educational Film and Land Company. It is reported that the company has purchased 1,280 acres of land near Daggett, in Mohave desert. The plan is said to include a permanent town, containing one hundred cottages and seven public buildings, including church and school.

* * *

William Hart, formerly publicity man for Keystone, has joined the American scenario staff.

* * *

Eugenie Forde has been transferred to the Mary Miles Minter company, at Santa Barbara, in which she will play society parts.

* * *

George Sargent, who has been directing "The Secret of the Submarine," gave a farewell dinner to the members of that company at a Santa Barbara hotel. Mr. Sargent will direct the new Richard Bennett company, while the Submarine will continue on to the finish of the fifteenth chapter under Frank Thorne. The dinner party proved interestingly reminiscent of several months of happy work on the great American serial.

* * *

William Wolbert of the Vitagraph has been at Catalina Island for the past week, filming the three-reel drama of the South Seas in which Mary Anderson and Webster Campbell have the leads. A pleasure yacht has been chartered and daily trips are made on it to remote parts of the island, where an entire village has been erected far from the "summer boarder" who holds out at the town.

* * *

At the American they are erecting a seven-story ninety-foot tower at the street corner. The tower will be given over entirely to the administration and scenario writer offices. The plans for the building, which will be the highest in the city, have been drawn and show a handsome structure of Italian type. The other improvements on the Mission and State street corner of the American Film plant are now practically complete. They have been planned to harmonize with the big tower.

* * *

Here's a man who does not idle away every minute of his life. He is with the Vitagraph, and while at Bear Valley with Rolin Sturgeon's company, Edgar Keller employed the few hours when he was not in the character of Jean Croisset, the half-breed, in painting scenery. One of his best efforts has been on exhibition at Exposition Park, Los Angeles, in the space devoted to contemporary American painters. Another has been at San Francisco, having been shown at the Fair. It has now been removed to San Diego and accorded a place of honor. As an actor Mr. Keller is compelling and polished; his portrayal of Jean in "God's Country and the Woman" stands out as one of the most effective in the picture.

* * *

The Pals held a big Universal Nite, Saturday, June 24, with Pal Pat Rooney as Guest of Honor.

* * *

Poor Anita King, the Lasky star, who has been suffering from a nervous breakdown, has now practically recovered and was able to preside over the dance given by the City Mothers. Miss King has been obliged to refuse all requests for her appearance to speak before schools and women's clubs for the next month.

* * *

The photographing of the ten-reel historic photodrama of early California, "The Daughter of the Don," by the Monrovia Feature Film Company, has been finished. Cutting is well under way and the picture will have its premiere in Los Angeles about August 1. It has required eleven weeks of continuous work to make the film. The picture treats of the period of the "first" Mexican war, when California was added to the Union. For the present, the Monrovia studio will produce one, two and three reel pictures.

In filming "The Honor System," at the Fox studio, Director Walsh had a big underground opium den in full operation. About sixty engaged in a roughhouse, and the place was raided by a squad of policemen. Chairs and tables were thrown about, and when the scene was finished there were a number of broken heads and black eyes. Mr. Walsh's assistant announced that the scene would have to be retaken because one of the men had laughed. They went back to it with singular good will, considering their physical injuries, and when the scene was again finished it was discovered the laughing one was completely knocked out. When he came to he didn't ask how the accident happened, either.

* * *

Helen Holmes, the original Railroad girl, and J. P. McGowan, entertained the Screamers and other photoplay celebrities at a delightful housewarming recently.

* * *

At the Lasky plant the completion of the Cleo Ridgley-Wallace Reid production is being held up for the lack of an oil well that will gush. Several oil wells have been tried but they all got stage fright and refused to gush at the word of command. Director Melford even went so far as to explode nitro-glycerine, but with the exception of blowing down the derrick, he got only a slight cough.

* * *

A new scenario administration has taken hold at the Flying A. George Wight, publicity man of the American Film Company, Santa Barbara, has been placed in charge of that department, succeeding William Pigott. Wight will continue to direct the publicity work of the studio. He is a New York and Chicago newspaper man and came to the studios from the San Francisco Examiner last February. The American is in the market for the best in the way of good stories by trained writers and well-known authors.

Joe Farnham Marries

JOSEPH W. FARNHAM has announced his marriage to Miss Rose Alma LeCourt which everyone in the picture business will be surprised to learn occurred before Mr. Farnham's departure for Europe in the interest of the Carnegie Peace Foundation, about two years ago. Mr. Farnham started his career in the motion picture industry on the New York Morning Telegraph and became famous as the conductor of the Gordon Trent column. Mr. Farnham has held some big positions with different motion picture manufacturers since his association with the Telegraph. He is now president and general manager of the Amalgamated Photoplayers Service, Inc., at 220 West Forty-second street, New York. Mrs. Farnham was a member of the social set of Orange, N. J., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil M. Lowenthal. We did not think it was possible for Joe to keep a secret so long, but we understand that as the bridegroom is leaving for the Mexican border as a lieutenant in the Connecticut National Guard, they thought it was best to make this announcement. Their honeymoon will be spent in an automobile trip to Brownsville.

Joseph W. Farnham.

Mr. Farnham's associates in the Amalgamated Photoplayers Service are figuring on giving the bride and groom a grand send-off at the Astor Hotel preceding their departure. Many members of the motion picture industry who have long been friends of the bridegroom will also be present to throw rice, old shoes, etc., at the departing bridal couple. The automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Farnham will make the trip to Texas is a gift from the bride's parents. The Moving Picture World adds its well wishes for the future happiness and prosperity of this couple.

Richardson's Ramble

Mounted on His Trusty "Go Devil," He Projects Himself Through Hartford, Holyoke, Troy and Bridgeport.

HARTFORD was a surprise. I had not originally included that city in my itinerary, but circumstances giving a spare day, I wrote Brother L. A. Young, operator Strand theater, asking if the Hartford men wanted me to come. This was but four days in advance of the only day I could devote to that city. Young wired: "Yes, by all means, come," and, short as was the time, gave evidence that whatever errors the Hartford men may or may not make, they are genuine hustlers, and that quality alone lifts them out of the ranks of the ordinary, giving promise for the future.

At the Strand I met Brother Young, and, after attending to our pal, the Go Devil, and becoming duly acquainted with mine host of the Bond Annex Hotel, we proceeded to inspect Hartford's theaters and form a personal acquaintance with their managers and operators.

As a general proposition Hartford operating rooms are lacking in height, breadth and depth; also there is too much light in them; also the observation ports might very easily be improved, both as to location and size, to the distinct advantage of all concerned.

At the Empire P. S. McMahon, manager, G. B. Anderson, operator, the room itself is too small, though its fireproof qualities are excellent. Over each machine blazed an incandescent light, with one more at the rear wall, all, at a guess, 50 watt lamps; nor was this the sum total of this particular sin, for a window at the rear was wide open, admitting a flood of daylight, notwithstanding the fact that a vent flue and exhaust fan supplied means for ventilation. There was a motor rewind, but it is not geared down. The house seats, I was told, 1300, at 5 and 10 cents admission, and listen to this, I was solemnly assured the program consisted of from ten to twenty-five reels. Imagine a twenty-five reel program! I would not believe it had I not been repeatedly assured of the fact. Run at proper speed it would require something like seven hours to project such a show.

W. D. Ascouph manages the Palace, with W. H. Clarkson and J. A. Carlin in charge of projection. The operating room is 9 feet wide by 12 deep, and has a high ceiling. The walls are black half way up, and white above that. The black is good, the white bad. There are two Power's Six As and a spot light, which crowds things sadly, but the absurd feature of this installation is that due to some obstruction, an upper balcony I suppose it was, it is only possible to see about two-thirds of the picture from the operating room, the lower portion, of course. It follows that really high class work is entirely out of the question. In addition to this terrific handicap the operators are obliged to run to "schedule," which is in itself sufficient to absolutely preclude any possibility of really high class work. The manager would, of course, not be justified in expecting good screen results under such conditions. In fact he may consider himself fortunate if he is able to obtain and retain patronage for the house. The location of that operating room ought to be changed at once, placing it on the main floor, if necessary, and the run-'em-to-schedule eliminated.

The Princess, A. C. Morrison, owner, E. E. Bassett, manager, C. J. Bigoness and Lewis Turner operators, has a small operating room, but its walls and ceiling are as they ought to be—black. The room is well ventilated, but there is the all-too-common fault, too much light and ports too small. Two Power's Six B machines shoot the pictures at a mirror screen.

At the Majestic, H. N. Pierce house manager, George W. Sailor assistant manager in charge of projection, I found the owner, L. C. Morrison, a licensed operator, in the operating room helping out, his chief operator being ill—threatened with pneumonia. The room is of goodly size, and the walls dark, but too much light, and daylight at that (matinee, of course), also I saw no means for ventilation except the window to the open air, which compels the admission of daylight at matinees, at the expense of high class projection. The equipment consists of two Power's Six A's and a Fort Wayne motor generator set. The screen is a Mirroroid.

At the Strand, W. A. True manager, L. A. Young and R. E. Lanmesser operators, S. Harris, assistant, I found the best general operating room conditions I saw in Hartford. The room is large, the walls dark, and I am assured that the incandescents are kept switched off, though that was not the condition when I entered. Two Simplex machines and a Fort Wayne motor generator constitute the equipment. There is a basin, with hot and cold water, and, if I rightly remember, a lockable tool drawer for each operator. Taken altogether the Strand has a plant which could not justly be made the subject of much criticism.

At 11 P. M. the operators and managers of Hartford gathered at a dinner which did distinct credit to the occasion. It was good, as evidenced by the clean plates the waiters carried away after each course. During the dinner an operator propounded a very pertinent query. I think he had burned his tongue on something; anyhow he paused to solemnly inquire if the authorities had yet considered the establishment of a special absestos cemetery for defunct operators?

The affair was over at 2 A. M., and all expressed themselves well pleased. The final outcome will, however, depend on how much action is taken to correct the evils set forth. The Hartford men impressed me as distinctly above the average, and there are those of them who are possessed of those qualities which, if used, will or should place them at or near the top of the profession in due time.

Holyoke.

To reach Holyoke from Hartford I passed through Springfield, Mass. I had written the local there offering to stop, but the reply came that they "could not stand the expense." A letter setting forth the fact that there need be no expense at all brought no reply, which would seem to show that the Springfield men are not sufficiently progressive to care to bother with a lecture on projection which more than twenty-five locals have heard and pronounced to be of large value.

At Holyoke the men kindly yielded to my desire for rest and, beyond showing me the artificial dam supplying power to the huge factories, for which the city is "justly celebrated," cut out the entertainment end and let me get a dose of sleep.

At 10.30 the operators and some of the managers gathered in the union hall, where they listened attentively to projection lore until long past midnight, after which a nice lunch was served and all expressed themselves as well satisfied.

The local wrote the Springfield union inviting its members to attend, and, as I understood the matter, lunch was provided for them, but not even so much as a postcard was received by way of reply, and no Springfield men showed up—rather discourteous to a sister local, don't you think? And I happen to know that both Springfield managers and operators stand in need of a shaking up on practically all matters pertaining to projection. I have myself seen some extremely antiquated projection equipment, some very, very poor operating rooms and some mighty punk projection in Springfield, Mass. I did not visit Holyoke theaters except to just glance into the Globe. At some future day when I am passing through I will, however, stop and look the houses over.

Troy.

A ride of 102 miles through the Berkshire hills in what varied from a stiff drizzle to a downpour of rain brought me back into good old York State, and into the city of Troy. where John J. Corcoran, secretary Local Union No. 285, I. A. T. S. E., and E. Wineburg, secretary of the Exhibitors' League, constituted the glad-to-see-you committee. I had negotiated 102 miles of mountain road in four hours and forty minutes. and in the rain at that, therefore again sidestepped visiting any theaters, or entertainment of any sort, and retired to the depths of my temporary happy hotel home. Both Wineburg and Corcoran wanted to do the honors, but physical limitations compelled the refusal of their kindly intended offers.

At 11 P. M. practically all Troy operators, and most of her managers, gathered in the Plaza theater where until 1 A. M. we preached the gospel of improved projection to an attentive audience. I was indeed sorry to be unable to visit the Troy theaters, particularly in view of the fact that, I am told, projection in that city is excellent.

The Troy men are, with a few exceptions, wide awake and progressive. They are pushers who are trying to do the right thing, and an honest effort in that direction makes one leniently inclined toward any possible present faults, for the sake of what lies in the future. I hope to meet the Troy men again.

Bridgeport.

Bridgeport, Conn., Local Union No. 277 sprung a distinct but very pleasant surprise on me. Arriving in that city after a pretty strenuous run, over soft roads from Troy, I retired into the depths of the hotel, pulled the hotel in after me, and there carefully remained in deep seclusion until 11 P. M., when, I had been informed, the men would come for me. At that hour I sauntered forth to find the lobby of the Hotel Stratfield, a very swell example of hoteldom by the way, pretty well filled up with moving picture machine operators and managers, and, after being introduced to the individual members of the local and to the assembled exhibitors, we adjourned to the dining-room, where a banquet which would have done credit to a millionaires' club was served, after which the audience, which comprised practically every operator, and most of the managers, of Bridgeport, listened with what seemed to be deep appreciation until the hour of 2 A. M.

After the lecture was over many of the men came up, shook hands and expressed their appreciation—managers as well as operators. One manager voluntarily addressed the assembly, saying that he believed the lecture would prove to be of large benefit to the industry in Bridgeport, as well as to the individual operators and managers—which was indeed very kind of him. An operator came up and expressed dissatisfaction. After shaking hands he said: "Richardson, I've got a grouch—in fact, I am very much put out that we did not get you here at 8 o'clock and have you talk until 2, instead of only from 12 to 2." Well, I of course appreciate the sentiment which prompted his remark, but the good Lord deliver me from any such stunt as that; two hours is plenty.

The Bridgeport operators and managers are a fine appearing body of men. I think they only need a little shaking up in order to become truly progressive. The operators of Bridgeport are to a considerable extent hampered by the fact that many of the projection equipment installations are very far from being ideal. Some of the machines are of antiquated type; also some of the operating rooms I have seen can only be called that by courtesy, and it requires considerable "courtesy" at that. This, I think, is due largely to the fact that the managers do not realize the importance to them, from the box office point of view, of good operating room conditions, ample ventilation and up-to-date equipment kept in the best of repair. Let us hope the conditions in Bridgeport will be improved in the near future. The manner in which the men went about preparing for the lecture, and their appreciativeness during its delivery was ample proof that they are by no manner of means asleep.

My compliments to the men of Bridgeport. May they live long and prosper.

F. H. RICHARDSON.

The Serial Idea In Porto Rico

"The Iron Claw" One of the Most Widely Advertised Films--Will Be Seen in Every Town and Village of the Island.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, June 21.—For the last few weeks not a town or village of any importance in the island has not been "billed" for the coming exhibition of "The Iron Claw," the big Pathe serial. The film started in San Juan with wonderful success, and its tour of the island promises to be successful in every way. Most San Juan exhibitors are not satisfied with the projection of two sections a week. One theater, Tres Banderas, frankly states on the program that it is impossible to give more than two sections a week, "muy a pesar nuestro" ("much to our sorrow").

The fact is the big serial always pulls a big house for the day it runs, while the same theater with mediocre program expects the same business. Which would seem to carry its own moral: get better films for the other days. One theater here pulled $167 in one evening with a serial, and its manager would consider himself well off with that amount of business every night. The public here has its favorites, and the dainty Pearl White is one of the strongest.

Downtown the Cine Luna has a big lead in attendance. In Santurce the Ideal and the Habana have good crowds. The Borinquen Park theater does a lot of business, being at the shore and getting plenty of air. At the Habana the big success has been "The Adventures of Kathlyn."

"The Red Circle" and "The Black Box" are counted among the big things in San Juan.

In Mayaguez the Empresa Yaguez claims to be doing big things, but its business was lighter for a time, owing to the presence of an opera company. While the Porto Ricans are good patrons of the films, the advent of an opera company is likely to upset the calculations of managers. Francisco Maymon, manager of the Empresa Yaguez, and his able representative, Mr. Freyre, are always after the best to be had in American films.

In San German A. O'N. Sanabria, manager of the Sol theater, was expecting big things from the Pathe serial.

In Ponce the one big bet is Guillermo V. Cintron. Anything he has to do with is reasonably sure to be successful. He keeps things moving for the Cine Habana, and in response to a big popular demand he will have the Pathe show in a few days. As a matter of fact, his programs are always of the best, and there are big crowds at the theater all the time. Mr. Cintron finds time to manage a daily paper, one of the best in the island, and anything he starts he generally finishes. Besides the regular advertising matter sent with the film, he is running an extensive campaign of his own.

It seems to be a fixed habit in the southern countries that no public performance should start until 9 or 9:30 in the evening. "Matinees" start at 6:30. Sometimes a show will begin at 8:30, but in most cases the hour is 9:30. This brings the end of the show about 11:30.

In the Cine Tres Bander as the "gallery" is in one end of the theater. The curtain is in the center of the hall, the first-class trade entering from one end, while the gallery enters from the other. The gallery must read its titles backward. This was done with great success in the old Cine Palacio, Mexico City, but the titles were cut in two and one-half was reversed so as to be readable.

A. Nin Ruiz, who helps his father manage the Ideal, thinks Mary Pickford films would bring good business, and is looking for them. He will soon visit New York.

DOROTHY KINGDON.

AFTER nearly a year's illness resulting from being thrown instead of being allowed to "take her own fall" in "The Governor's Boss," the Baroness van Raven, better known to the screen as Dorothy Kingdon, is considering offers from two or three western companies to resume her screen activities. Miss Kingdon, however, is likely to stay in the east, where she made a multitude of friends during her career with the Pathe, Biograph, Reliance and other compan

Dorothy Kingdon.

Frank Powell, Lawrence McGill, Oscar Apfel and other directors with whom she has worked are more than glad to learn that she has recovered from the effects of her opposite's excess of enthusiasm, and the feeling is shared by her companions before the camera, Rosemary Theby, Mayre Hall, Mary Navarro, Billy Wells, G. C. Bryant and many others, to say nothing of the thousands who have been delighted by her excellent work before the camera.

Miss Kingdon has the distinction of being one of the best dressed women in the profession. This is the natural result of her training on the legitimate stage, where her record was of the best. She has just finished an arduous task with the Allies Bazaar, where she was assisting Mrs. Robert Bacon aind Mrs. Francis Rogers in the booth of the American Ambulance Society, her especial labor being in connection with the disposal of a Pathephone donated by the Pathe Freres.

Spokes From the Hub

By Marion Howard

Pictures Being Shown in Boston Theaters--How and Where the Screen Stars are Shining.

FOR the first time I saw "Jeanne Dore," the Bluebird offering of the Universal with the Divine Bernhardt, and for the life of me I cannot enthuse over the play, the star or the directorship. What a pity to have such an impression go forth by those who maybe see this wonderful actress for the first time and who have never heard her velvety voice.

* * *

"Alien Souls," like "The Cheat," so indissolubly connected with the name of Sessue Hayakawa, was put on here at two theaters and gave the utmost enjoyment all through. Readers have seen it long since and to the reviewers all along the line let me add "Them's my sentiments, tew." Dainty Tsuru Aoki captured all hearts and we were glad that the pistol rebelled and her life was spared. This is one of the plays that will outlive thousands now before us and it is worthy the brand of Paramount.

* * *

One of my friends is a vegetarian and she is highly indignant over the presentation of "His Picture in the Papers" so cleverly done by Douglas Fairbanks and a first class company. In this we find a very clever satire on vegetarians, but I fail to see anything offensive about it. The efforts of the young chap who broke loose from parental wrath to get his picture on the front page and thus make good in the eyes of his dad were funny in the extreme.

* * *

Peggy Hyland made a hit here in her first screen play "Saints and Sinners," put on at the Fenway by the Famous Players adapted from the stage version and a convincing series of pictures directed by James Kirkwood. Perhaps the most convincing feature was the devotion of the gentle father, one of the old school type of ministers, to his young daughter. Like all of the Henry Arthur James stories, it has a heart interest and points a moral.

* * *

For the first time I saw "The White Sister" (filmed) and was disappointed in Viola Allen's camera appearance, for she seemed unable to register and looked quite as old in the first reel as in the last when some years had elapsed.

* * *

I have just returned from the Fenway theater, where I saw three excellent pictures. Two of them, "The Man in the Street" and "The Yellow Hound," I had not heard of or seen reviewed, so presumably they are not new to readers; anyhow they are worth while. I had a treat in the work of Marc MacDermott in the first named, an Edison film, with a situation similar to that of "The Passers-By," in which he scored. Playing in this were Gertrude McCoy and Duncan McCrea. It gives great opportunity for MacDermott's versatility in make-up and was one of the most compelling pictures seen in months. I congratulate the Vitagraph company in securing this capable player, whose work five years as leading man with Mrs. Pat Campbell will be recalled by all playgoers.

* * *

The Exeter is giving us strong attractions and a double bill as well as educational and comedy subjects. We were taken to France the other night into a comb factory and saw young and quite old women at work making all kinds of fancy combs from the very beginning to the final display in the showcase and a pretty girl adorning her tresses with combs like those we had seen made. They are interesting always; so are the Bray cartoons with their good natured satire on fashions, political events, etc. They form a most agreeable diversion from the five-reelers.

* * *

I had the pleasure of meeting Clara Whipple, here with the World Film company and their director, rehearsing in the play adapted from the story of Nathan Hale. Parts of it were done in historic Concord and old Marblehead. Then, too, some of the company went to Onset and to Waltham to make personal appearance at picture houses running the World film pictures. Miss Whipple is so unassuming and attractive that it was worth while to practice "watchful waiting" to meet her when she had a moment to spare. Gail Kane and Bob Warwick are here, too.

* * *

Ever see "Charlie" Stine made up as a woman? Well he is about as funny without being vulgar as anything seen in a long time. Here we have him in one of George Ade's inimitable fables called "The Fable of the Good Fairy With the Lorgnette, and Why She Got It Good." It is also a clever satire on the would-be benevolent women of leisure who parade and patronize the slums. There is also a fine specimen of the hen-pecked hubby who hadn't the courage to propose, much less seek a divorce.

* * *

Nance O'Neil scores again in "The Flames of Johannis," otherwise known as "The Fires of St. John," now adapted for the screen by Alfred Hickman, who has played so long as her opposite. I like the film version rather better, especially in its final suggestion of happiness at last for the self-sacrificing heroine. The double exposures were very skillfully handled with Miss O'Neil playing two parts. Lubin has a winner in this, not because of Miss O'Neil's great popularity the country over, but because it is so well done by all.

* * *

"Gloria's Romance," fourth episode, had a bit of business almost lost on the audience. It was a protest against the old-time methods of treating lung diseases by old fossils called M. D.'s. Gloria had been out late, insufficiently clad, hence a cold and pneumonia which was being treated in the antediluvian style. Enter Dr. Royce (Henry Kolker) who proceeded to roll the bed to an open window and remove at least five blankets from the victim. Result—immediate relief, and we know, cure. It is these little touches which show the skill of the Kleine director.

* * *

As to "The Spell of the Yukon" which I just witnessed, I can give only words of praise, and it strikes me that Breese has done some pretty fine work, despite the handicap of time which makes him altogether too old for a young lover in the first reel; in fact, when he returns to civilization eighteen years later he looks much younger. However, his art is pre-eminent and one forgets a detail like that, as the whole production, with its skillfully arranged titles based upon the lines of the poem by Robert Service (who indulged in some profanity in making clear the points), goes over well. Edmund Breese is in town playing at his old stamping ground, the Castle Square, in a new play, "The Scapegoat," and has been met at some of the runoffs at the Metro offices, where he has a hearty greeting.

* * *

Again I saw "How Britain Prepared," after witnessing it in New York, and four things stand out clearly—the diagram battle, the spirit of Kitchener's men, the women at work in munitions factories, and that splendid review by King George of the Irish troops. Some better advertising seems needed to appeal to the public and more suitable decorations. There is such a thing as having too much "old glory," as for instance seven flags on each side of the boxes, not one of them hung correctly, and with nothing to relieve them, like the field of our flag or the national coat of arms. We are shown a series of British pictures and therefore in compliment to that country why not have at lease one British flag in evidence. It was amusing when "God Save the King" was played to see the house rise as if it was our own national one. As the air was in a medley and was not "America" I kept my seat, much to the disgust of my neighbors, yet no person loves our flag or is more loyal to our hymn and anthem than poor me. I wish every citizen could see this offering and it ought to be of immense interest to young mechanics, for here we are shown how munitions are made. There is a fine spirit all through which makes for patriotism in any land.

* * *

"The Stoning," is a powerful filmed sermon on casting stones and here we have a sane clergyman played by Robert Conness, whom we have not seen in a long time. It was splendid all through, even with the ending, sad as it was, and the final words of the minister came out on the screen with telling effect.

Observations

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

THE motion picture people have had another opportunity to demonstrate that when given a chance for a hearing before legal tribunals in controversies with reformers and censorship agitators on the question of indecency and immorality of their film productions they are almost invariably able to refute the charges made. The litigation in Brooklyn over the film "Where are My Children," has resulted in the court dismissing the complaint. The court witnessed a private exhibition of the picture and in a lengthy opinion decides that, instead of offending the public and endangering its morals, the picture furnishes a strong moral lesson and a vigorous appeal for the suppression of an illegal practice that insidiously undermines society in spite of years of efforts to suppress it. The decison was not rendered by a court of final resort and those displeased with it have more than one avenue for appeal, but it is not likely they will take the case to any of the higher courts.

In justice to the motion picture people reference should be publicly made to a mistaken impression that has been created as to the origin of the suit. Those primarily responsible for it have withheld their identity in order that it might be inferred the picture was so flagrantly indecent as to offend the moral sense of the District Attorney and others officials of Brooklyn. The fact is the District Attorney had not seen the picture and it was announced when the case was started that his inspector acted upon information furnished by parties who did not wish to become known. The motion picture people do not refer to this for the purpose of adding to what the court has said about the picture but merely to cite the shrewdness with which the real complainants operate so they may keep under cover and give a more aggravating color to the case. At the same time the picture people do not dispute the right of the reformers, or informers, to resort to such procedure. Indeed, they are disposed to encourage such action if the real complainants will not come to the front. All the picture people ask is a chance to have their day in court for an impartial adjudication. They will cheerfully submit to any censorship based upon such a procedure, as it gives them an opportunity for a hearing which they cannot get under official censorship regulations. Such cases also help the picture people to controvert the oft repeated statement of the censorship agitators that indecent and immoral moving pictures can only be reached by the enactment of official censorship laws.

* * *

A report from Spokane, Wash., has caused a spirit of chagrin on the part of manufacturers, exhibitors and exchange people who are working for the best interests of the motion picture industry and encouraging hearty co-operation with the municipal authorities in placing the films and their exhibition above suspicion. It is said the Spokane authorities have been aggravated by a few exhibitors failing, or refusing, to remove from films certain parts to which the authorities have objected. This clash is particularly important as the Spokane authorities threaten to meet it with steps towards a system of official censorship. Details of the case are not at hand, but from reports received it presents a condition which has not arisen in any other place. The motion picture people cannot accede to official censorship as a national, state or local measure; but the Spokane incident raises the question as to whether it be good policy to temporarily surrender a point in order to prolong a spirit of unanimity between the exhibitors and municipal authorities. This spirit has heretofore existed in Spokane, the municipal authorities having taken the actions of the National Board of Review as their guide; and in this particular case it appears that the authorities only insisted upon what the National Board had suggested. It has been intimated that the action on the part of the offending exhibitors was not due to an intent to ignore the authorities, or the Board of Review, but to thoughtlessness as to what the effect of their course might be. Such a plea cannot serve to mitigate the offense. To accept it would be an endorsement of censorship which first condemns the manufacturer or exhibitor and then tries him. It is sincerely hoped that the incident will not have any serious effect upon the relations which have heretofore existed between the authorities and exhibitors of Spokane. There are two methods by which the situation can be cleared up without resort to stringent measure of official local censorship—sufferance on the part of the authorities with warning against repetition and revocation of the licenses of exhibitors who fail to heed. In this way the guilty can be adequately reached without burdening the exhibitors who stand innocent.

* * *

All concerned in the motion picture industry are justified in looking upon the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League national convention to open in Chicago on July 12 as one of the most important assemblages in the history of the business. To the exhibitors the supreme question seems to hinge upon the "deposit system." It is certainly a vital question, but the subject that seems to take precedence is whether the convention will endorse the movement to have all branches of the moving picture industry amalgamate in one organization for co-operation in all movements that will defend and preserve the rights of the entire business and give each branch a status by which it may defend itself and co-operate with the others to fight the invaders. With unity of all the branches any dissatisfaction that may exist on the part of one against another can be more easily and favorably adjusted than by an individual campaign. With the slogan that the interest of one is the interest of all the respective branches will be able to adjust all internal differences. At no time must sight be lost of the fact that official censorship is an ever present thrust at the very vitals of the entire business and the only safeguard against it is a united organization. Experience has shown the fallacy of the theory that the censorship question affects only one branch of the business. There was a time when the exhibitors looked upon it as an issue solely affecting the manufacturers because they then viewed it only from a standpoint affecting the monetary imposition upon the makers of the films. They paid little heed to the intimation that this might eventually lead to increased prices to be paid by the exchanges and exhibitors. But there has been a vast change in the calibre of exhibitors since official censorship was first made an issue. This change has directed the exhibitor to a phase of the question that did not occur to him in the early days and he now realizes that censorship attacks not only threaten the treasuries of the manufacturers but also serve as a menace to the box office receipts. Anything with this effect must necessarily be a vital question before the national convention at Chicago. The mutilation or other action that will impair screen stories by incompetent or prejudiced critics and supervisors cuts into the core of the business. If it is not forestalled no branch of the industry will be able to withstand its ravages. Ruined films mean loss of patronage at the theaters. This loss means a falling off of revenue for the exhibitor, the exchange man, the manufacturer, the actors, the projecting machine man, the trade publisher, the maker and dealer in supplies, the poster and ticket maker, the ticket machine maker, the ticket seller and ticket taker, the projecting machine operator and the thousands of other employes in and about all branches of labor directly involved or contributing to the making, handling and exhibiting of motion pictures. It is no longer solely a question as to what the imposition of censorship expense is going to add to the cost of putting moving pictures upon the market, nor what proportion of the additional cost shall fall upon the go-betweens and exhibitors. The art itself is at stake and this jeopardizes even the remotest interest in the industry.

* * *

A pioneer, in speaking of the proposed amalgamation movement, said that even those at its head had not taken in the full scope of it. "Why," said he, "such a step would be so far reaching as to amaze the public. Most people look upon the moving picture business as a source of amusement for the masses at cheap prices and big revenue for the producers and exhibitors. They have not the remotest idea of the number of people who are making a living on the dimes and quarters that are paid in at the theaters. When this amalgamation is accomplished (and I confidently look forward to it) an idea not yet touched upon will occur to the promoters, which is the same concerted action and support on the part of all employes of the various direct and contributing agencies. These people have not as yet realized that they have any interest in the censorship controversies. The defeat of censorship movements are as important to them as it is to their employers. If the employers get together the employes must naturally fall into line with their co-operation against censorship and all other unjust and menacing legislation. Imagine, if you can, the army that will be formed to gain the support of the public to defend and advance the fourth great industry against the invasion of irresponsible or prejudiced reformers and scheming grafters. The moving picture people have been patient and long suffering. Their reward lies in a successful movement for unity."

British Notes

IT is exactly like trying to fit a thirteen-inch shell into the muzzle of an ordinary rifle," said the London agent of a prominent American distributing house to me the other day after a long discussion on the question of over-production of moving picture films. Clearly, the superabundance of feature films and the unsettled situation it has precipitated in the States is finding a speedy reflection here in London. Leaving out of count the exaggerative ramblings of those who estimate the American exhibitors' census at 36,000 proportionately diminish the British number, there are hard, inflexible facts which will have to be tackled sooner or later. Summarising these from the British point of view we have (exclusive of halls used only occasionally for motion picture exhibitions) less than 5,000 motion picture theaters. With the exception of a negligible percentage these halls change their programs twice a week only, while the proportion of American films constituting the average program is freely given as 75 per cent. Now for the other side. For the purpose of this comparison it can be safely estimated that there are 19,000 regular motion picture exhibitions in the United States, quite a number of which change programs daily or more than twice weekly. Then again with the exception of London the British showman's week is one of six days. Above this inexorable evidence comes the admission that even the American market is swamped by over-production. Then what of the British market which receives the whole of this output in addition to home, Colonial and Continental productions?

* * *

It is not surprising that renting exchanges say they are losing money, for the British exhibitor, like his American cousin, refuses to pay anything like his usual price for film hire. Productions which a year ago would have fetched without quibble £75 to £125 for first new bookings in provincial cities are now going for £30, £40 and £50, and are a burden to get off at that. It naturally follows that the producer must be suffering in one of two ways. If he rents his films himself he must lose from this slump in prices, or if he sells his productions to an independent renter he must to keep up with competition, make some proportionate concession in the purchase price. It is a common belief here that the American producer has already made his profits before his films are sent to England, and that he can consequently afford to rent or sell at any price in the London market. Import duties, the increased cost of material, advertising and establishment have, however, now to be taken into consideration and to a degree sufficient to minimise the possibility of net profit transactions. The whole problem so far as this country is concerned looks as though it will find its solution automatically either by a general fusion of producing interests in the States or upon the "survival of the fittest" theory.

* * *

Mr. H. B. Irving, the talented son of that great tragedian, Sir Henry Irving, has been induced by the Ideal Film Renting Co. (the producers of "The Second Mrs. Tanquery") to appear before the camera. He will do so this summer in a visualization of "The Lyons Mail." Miss Ellen Terry, another star in the firmament of the dramatic stage, has been prevailed upon to make her debut on the screen.

* * *

Sir Herbert B. Tree is expected back from his engagement at the New Amsterdam, N. Y., almost any moment now to inaugurate a short season of "pictures" at his own theater, His Majesty's, in the Haymarket, W. The production, will, of course, be the Mutual's "Macbeth," in which he will present himself. Sir Herbert will most likely return to the States in autumn to complete further film productions under the auspices of the Mutual aggregation.

* * *

The sensation specialist of the Harmsworth group of publications again entertained the trade last week. This super-Rabelaisian mental gymnast informs us that hundreds and hundreds of young Americans are invading England to steal the jobs of men in the trade who have been called to the colors.

* * *

The publicity manager of the Trans-Atlantic Film Co., Ltd., Mr. Harold Pontefract, has joined the army.

Subjects Under Production in British Studios.

Adaptations of W. W. Jacobs' Comedies, Kenelin F. Foss, Vivian Gibson, James Brandon, Frank Stanmore, principal players; London Film Co., producer. A drama, Ellen Terry, principal player; "The Lyons Mail," H. B. Irving, principal player; "The Broken Melody," Martin Harvey, principal player; "Kipps" by H. G. Wells; "The New Clown, James Welch, Edward Sass, Manorah Thew, principal players; "The Bachelor's Club," George Robey, principal player; "The Gay Lord Quex," Sir Geo. Alexander, Irene Vanbrugh, principal players; "Lady Windermere's Fan;" "The Fallen Star," Albert Chevalier, principal player; Ideal Film Renting Co., producer. "Ultus and the Grey Lady," Aurele Sydney, principal player, Gaumont Co., producer. "The Economists," Tittell-Brune, principal player; Renaissance Films, Ltd., producer. "A Place in the Sun," Florence Turner, principal player; Turner Films, producer. "The Life Guardsman," Annie Saker, Alfred Paumier, principal players; British Actors Film Co., producer. "The Broken Oath," Kineto, Ltd., producer. "When Woman Hates," British Empire Film Co., producer. "Just a Girl," Daisy Burrell and Owen Naves, principal players; Samuelson Co., producer. "Queen of the Wicked," British Empire Film Co., producer. "The Man With the Glass Eye," Nina Lyn and Henry Lonsdale, principal players; British Empire Film Co., producer. "The Babylon Hotel," Fred Wright, Margaret Blanche, principal players; "The White Boys," Chrissie White, principal player, Hepworth Co., producer. "The Valley of Fear," Samuelson Co., producer; "The Tale of a Shot," Billy Merson, principal player; Globe Film Co. and Homeland Film Co., producers. "Picture of Dorian Gray," Neptune Film Co., producer. "Cynthia in the Wilderness," Eve Balfour and Milton Rosmer, principal players; Pioneer Film Agency, producer. "Beau Brocade," Lucoque Ltd., producer. "Holland's Jinks," Some Films, Ltd., producer.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

ARBUCKLE AND SCHAEFFER PART.

Roscoe Arbuckle, the Keystone comedian, and his technical director, Freddie Schaeffer, go separate ways after July. Mr. Arbuckle goes back to the Californian Keystone studios and Freddie stays in the East. He doesn't care to leave New York this time, as his reputation has been much enhanced by his wonderful work in the Keystone Arbuckle comedies and he has received many lucrative offers.

Schaeffer studied three years under the tuition of Stanford White, and he has also been art director for David Belasco.

He entered the film industry about ten years ago with David Horsley and for several years was with the Gaumont Company. For the past two years he has been manager of the Willat Studios.

MOTION PICTURES FOR THE INSANE.

The problem of entertaining the insane has been lessened by the motion picture. Some of the hospitals of New York have just installed Power's Cameragraph machines for this purpose. The Picture Theater Equipment Company, of 1604 Broadway, New York, reports it has made an installation in the Kings Park Hospital for the Insane that consists of a Power's Cameragraph machine, Power's Dissolver and Special Piteco lens system.

It has also made an installation in the Utica State Hospital of a Power's 6B Cameragraph, equipped with Special Piteco lenses.

Another noteworthy installation made by the company was at the Buffalo State Hospital for the Insane. This also consisted of a Power's Cameragraph machine with Piteco lenses and a motion generator set complete with panel board volt and ammeter and special changeover device.

CONVICTS ROAR AT V-L-S-E. "CARMEN."

Through the courtesy of Joseph S. Partridge, manager of the New York branch of the V-L-S-E., the Essanay four-part Chaplin's "Burlesque on 'Carmen,'" was shown the inmates of Sing Sing last week and, according to all reports, they are laughing yet.

Several of the V-L-S-E. features have been exhibited within the prison walls under the auspices of the Mutual Welfare League, to whom the Big Four gives the films without charge, and the eagerness with which the prisoners look forward to each showing more than repays the Big Four officials for their trouble.

"DIANA" BEING WELL BOOKED.

"Diana," in addition to being booked into the Strand by the Merit firm, has been booked for solid weeks into the Family theater, Buffalo, and a great many of the local New York theaters, the National, Winter Garden and the Burland being examples.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Manufacturers' Publicity.

WALTER H. BROOKS, of the Auditorium, Coatesville, Pa., writes too closely from his own particular point of view, perhaps, in tne letter used here, and because he does the name of the title and company has been deleted, hut he speaks a great truth none the less and one that many manufacturers would do well to hear in mind against the coming of the new day when good film and service to the exhibitor will replace the present release system as a means of disposing of prints. Mr. Brooks writes:

> Am enclosing copy of our program for the current week, together with a specimen of the card throwaway, which I have adopted as a more satisfactory suhstitute for the old-fashioned "hand-hill."
>
> Wish you would take special note of the folder, also enclosed. The little yellow, six-by-six affair—also enclosed—was all I was ahle to get in the line of puhlicity matter from the ——. Therefore, we printed our own, and I am quite pleased with the result.
>
> Too many manufacturers are getting out ahout 90 per cent. of their publicity matter in an effort to "sell" the exhibitor, and not with any idea of making something that the exhibitor can use to "sell" pictures to his patrons. —— is a case of the worst kind. I doubt if the man who plans their stuff ever visited a small-city theater. They all make their plans to fit the "Strand" and the other 99 per cent. of their customers have to fix everything up for themselves.
>
> In the present instance, the six-hy-six affair would have cost me $1.50 per thousand in the quantity I desired. My own printing cost me $10 per thousand, and I will gamble that it is much cheaper, as far as results and true economy are concerned.
>
> Have heen receiving programs from all around, and will acknowledge and exchange with all I hear from.

Please the Exhibitor.

Mr. Brooks sends in his own six-page folder for the feature and the four-page herald offered by the company. The folder is 5½ hy 9 inches, printed in red and blue, in large type. It treats sanely and interestingly the suhject, which is one of vital importance. The smallest type used is an eight point and most of the matter, certainly all of the most important matter, is set in a type that can he read ten feet away by the average man. The company's herald is a four pager, 3¼ hy 6 inches, three colors. There is a space 1 5-16 hy 1 13-16 inches for the house advertising. The front carries a non-committal cut, the name of the film in letters 9-16 inch high, the name of the releasing company and the name of the featured player. The hack page reproduces, rather crudely, the three-sheet and carries a four-line announcement that it is produced hy the company. There is no space here for house printing. Inside is a reproduction of a twenty-eight sheet, which, like the three, is allegorical and not illustrative. There is more talk of the company, a title ⅜ inch high and a description 4½ inches wide by 1 1-16 deep. This has evidently been reduced from an original to an agate measure, fourteen lines to the inch. The matter may he read only through straining the sight. All told, it is about as helpful as a tack hammer would be to a quarryman.

The paper was gotten up to please the hoss. The man who got it up knows nothing whatever about exhibition. This is the trouhle with nine-tenths of all the heralds. The type is too small and the display is too small. There is no argument and no room for house work.

It is the same way with most of the other stuff put out. A manufacturer who does not know, puts out paper designed by a man who knows nothing of exhihition and who cares less. He may be a high class, higher priced Broadway press man, but if he does not know the work he is hired to do he is worse than useless.

Of course it is foolish to argue that a company should he required to put out so ample a line of paper that every one can he pleased. It cannot he done, but the work that is done might at least be done intelligently and with some knowledge of what the exhibitor wants and needs. There is entirely too much hogging of the space for the company and too little for the man who huys the paper. It is only lately, for instance, that the Paramount sheet was left with the last page hlank that it might do the exhibitor some good as well as Paramount. He is supposed to take what he can get, pay for it and say thanks, when he is far from thankful. There is not a company in the country that is thinking of the exhihitor when it plans its advertisements. They help the exhibitor in a greater or less degree, hut the company hogs too much of the space and expects the exhihitor to give puhlicity to it. It is just as easy and just as cheap to give the exhibitor what he wants, and what he wants is not national advertising, which, after all, is little more than a species of polite hlackmail, but stuff that will help get people into his house to see the films he is using. Mr. Brooks has written a hetter herald than anything the company has put out. He knows what the small town house needs. The "Puhlicity Director" neither knows nor cares a curse.

With conditions as they are today, it would pay manufacturers and press agents, too, to think this over and think it over thoroughly. Service that is not service is worse than no service at all. The first efforts in the service direction were good. They are gradually but steadily getting worse all the time.

Again It's New.

The Rowland and Clark houses, Pittsburgh, are always getting at something new. The latest is to set the front page design on its programs so as to give an inch and a half margin at the top. In this space is printed the usual post office mailing permit notice and the rest of the space gives plenty of room for the address. The scheme is so handy for those who wish to mail out without wrappers that the top of the page is reproduced here to give the exact idea. Presumably a paper clip holds the pages together.

Scandal Note.

Suppose that we all get together on the age of Miss Marguerite Clark. She is now twenty-nine. With half the programs calling her twenty-eight and the other half twenty-nine, the dear public is apt to add the two together. Cut out last year's press work and use the 1916 brand.

Letting George Do It.

The Columhia theater, Phoenix, Arizona, does not see the use in doing page advertising when it can practically get it free. It worked a scheme with the Arizona Gazette. Primarily it was supposed to be a test of the drawing value of Gazette advertising. An advertisement was run in any part of the paper that came handy to the effect that any child who would copy a comic picture from the paper and hring it to the office of the newspaper would be given a ticket for a special matinee. There was no foolish prize contest or other clog. Any child could draw the picture and get a ticket. On the designated afternoon the theater was filled at two shows. Then the Gazette ran a full page advertisement ahout its drawing powers (no joke), and puhlished a cut of the theater to prove what it said. Also it had to tell how good the show was. And in addition every child in town that could horrow a lead pencil went home to tell about the Columbia, and at no cost to the Columbia other than one Saturday afternoon's business.

The cut shows the kiddies in front of the theater. The newspaper cut shows the interior packed to the door with children. It is clean cut work for hoth the newspaper and the house. Each used the other, but gave value in return. The one thing that stands out, though, was the absence of the prize feature that most scheme promoters consider so essential. Every child was happy because there was disappointment for none.

White Space.

The Royal, Calumet, Mich., does some effective things with white space, as this advertisement will show. It is on a page with a number of other theater advertisements and the others are full to the rules, and black six-point rule is relied upon to keep them apart. The Royal is the first announcement to attract the eye because it stands by itself. Perhaps more might have been done bad the prices and times been set in a little smaller face to permit the titles and names of stars to be spaced out a little. Otherwise the composition is excellent. Two other advertisements, building up on the Paramount advertising in the Saturday Evening Post, are a little heavier in copy, but they all serve to demonstrate that white space is sometimes more valuable than that same white paper printed over. The entire space allowance could have been filled with the present copy through the use of larger types and it would have been rather ordinary in appearance. As it is, the display builds up on the value of the message and almost causes it to be read. The work is done by Geoffrey Jefferson, whose earlier endeavors with a college town theater seem to have landed him where he has a man-sized job he can fill. One announcement reads that all seats are ten cents unless they are reserved in advance, when the same seat costs 20 cents. And, doubtless, many prefer the higher price with the reservation that goes with it. It is only a question of time when the feature house will be all reserved in the best locations and an advance sale will bold business in bad weather.

Try This.

The Censor, Albion, Mich., has a new back page on its twelve-page folder. It reads:

DO YOU REALIZE WHAT YOU HAVE MISSED?

DO YOU WANT US TO REPEAT?

George Beban
in
"AN ALIEN"

Fanny Ward
in
"THE CHEAT"

and

Marguerite Clark
in
"WILD FLOWER"

If so, put a cross after each or all of your favorites and drop this back page into the box in our foyer.

There is more than one day in a good picture, even in a small town. Work some scheme like that and all signers will feel that they must come and tell others.

That the Idea?

Tom North has a new editor for his V-L-S-E Pals, and in a recent issue the editor is warming up about a walking trip to Los Angeles some of the girls in the Seattle theaters are about to make. He says they intend to make the trip "entirely upon their own responsibilities." It's better than the hackneyed "pedal extremities," at any rate.

Another "Free" Ticket.

The Valencia, San Francisco, sends in a free ticket that is neatly done. The text at a flash appears to be "Free ticket. Admit one. Valencia Theater." In a very small type the added words give: "This is not a free ticket, but you will have to admit one thing. That the Valencia theater is the first to show, etc." We would like to reproduce the card, but it is black on yellow and the engraver puts the "yell" in "yellow." The wording will serve to give an idea. Twelve and eighteen point for the large letters and four points box bead gothic for the rest will work nicely, though the Valencia uses an agate.

To Replace Jo-Jo.

Reel News is the title of the house organ of the Manring and Amuzu theaters, Middleboro, Ky. A recent issue speaks of a third house to be erected on "the location now known as Jo-Jo's hamburger stand." Who was it that said the pictures were going to the dogs? The News is a nice looking sheet edited by Charles O. Brown for the Brown Amusement Company. It runs eight pages and cover, the latter tinted paper. Apparently the same program is run in both houses. Possibly one is a "colored house," since it is announced that there will be no performance there on one evening, on account of Colored School Commencement. The printer does not get a very good display. He could do better by taking out the leads from the running text and giving the extra points to the titles in a display face instead of machine full face. Then the machine bold can be used for the player when there is a star. A section of this program will show a style that is used by scores of others, sometimes because the printer has no small display faces and sometimes merely because he is lazy. The copy is all right, and, given a proper display, this would look very well. A time table and hours of performance also Monday, May 29th.

ORRIN JOHNSON
In the Five Part Triangle-Fine Arts Play
THE PRICE OF POWER"
With Sam DeGrasse and Spottiswoode Aitken.
Tuesday, May 30th.
Daniel Frohman Offers
MISS MARY PICKFORD
In John Luther Long's Beloved Classic
"MADAME BUTTERFLY"
One of the tenderest creations ever adapted for the photo-play. "Little Mary" at her best.
Friday, June 2nd.
Paramount Offers
CHARLES CHERRY
In the well-known legitimate production
"THE MUMMY AND THE HUMMING BIRD"
Saturday, June 3rd.
J. Stuart Blackton Offers
The Screen's Greatest Favorite
ANITA STEWART
In a Six Part Blue Ribbon Feature
Of Russian Intrigue and Heartlessness.
"THE SUSPECT"
Anita Stewart's Triumph! No other picture has afforded such endless appear on the program page, which, with the dated days, makes this page very complete. The editorials are unusually good. Evidently Mr. Brown has served his time at the newspaper desk, and, being able to talk on paper, talks at length. Nearly two pages are devoted to the editorials, and there is a punch to the paragraphs that brings return. The editorials are in front, too, instead of being hidden. Here is one house that realizes that if it talks about itself interestingly, it is saying something that will make for better business than mere chat of the players, though this feature is by no means neglected. Apart from the poor typographical work it is our idea of what a house organ should be. The foreign advertising is confined to the cover pages, which is the better way.

Might Be Changed.

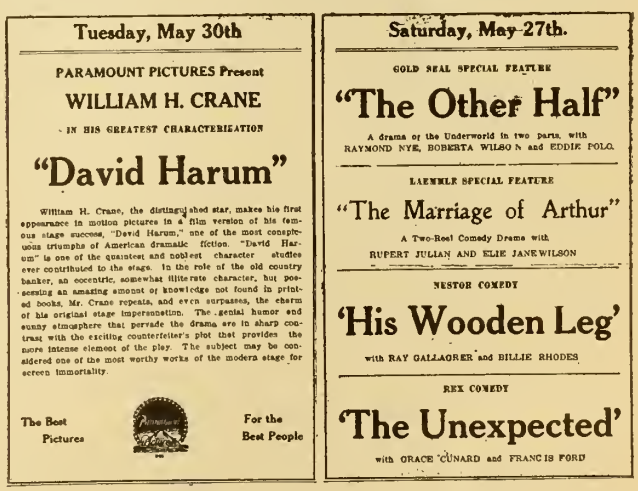
Chandos J. Pruyn, of the McGhie, Columbus, Kansas, sends in his twelve-page weekly program. We think it is left too much to the printer, or perhaps it should be suggested that he and the printer have a chat about the looks of the sheet, because it is not wholly the printer who is to blame. The sheet does not go together nicely. The front page is nicely set with outline type that gives a large letter without undue blackness, but the cut is too small for the space given it. It is one of those star shaped Paramount cuts that do not work in well, at best, and least of all as front page material. Inside the left hand pages to the middle and the right hand pages from there on carry the program, a page to a day. A page to a day would be all right did the matter need the page, but of the two pages shown, only one is filled properly. This is the David Harum page, which is filled to



Tuesday, May 30th
PARAMOUNT PICTURES Present
WILLIAM H. CRANE
IN HIS GREATEST CHARACTERIZATION
"David Harum"
William H. Crane, the distinguished star, makes his first appearance in motion pictures in a film version of his famous stage success, "David Harum," one of the most conspicuous triumphs of American dramatic fiction. "David Harum" is one of the quaintest and noblest character studies ever contributed to the stage. In the role of the old country banker, an eccentric, somewhat illiterate character, but possessing an amazing amount of knowledge not found in printed books, Mr. Crane repeats, and even surpasses, the charm of his original stage impersonation. The genial humor and sunny atmosphere that pervade the drama are in sharp contrast with the exciting counterfeiter's plot that provides the more intense element of the play. The subject may be considered one of the most worthy works of the modern stage for screen immortality.
The Best Pictures
For the Best People
Saturday, May 27th.
GOLD SEAL SPECIAL FEATURE
"The Other Half"
A drama of the Underworld in two parts, with RAYMOND NYE, ROBERTA WILSON and EDDIE POLO.
LAEMMLE SPECIAL FEATURE
"The Marriage of Arthur"
A Two-Reel Comedy Drama with RUPERT JULIAN AND ELIE JANE WILSON
NESTOR COMEDY
'His Wooden Leg'
with RAY GALLAGHER and BILLIE RHODES
REX COMEDY
'The Unexpected'
with GRACE CUNARD and FRANCIS FORD

suggest that the space is needed. In the other page the four titles are so bare of descriptive matter that it looks out of balance. In reduced form this looks better than on the four by six type page. It would be better to take the double middle page for a program for the week, giving the titles and the stars and using the other pages for brief descriptive matter for the individual releases, each being connected with the program by the line "To be shown June 16th." Or, better still, with day and date. The other pages carry a regulation thirteen em column and a bastard measure, the latter being used for advertising outside concerns. Here the advertisements are kept to the inside of the page, as is proper, instead of taking the better position on the outside column. The filler material is not very well chosen. It is easy to take this paper and from the news columns get more than enough of real interest instead of falling back on old jokes. It hardly pays to run a three bank head on a three and a half-inch story. The size of the page does not permit bank heads to be used. Headlines in three or more sections are only for a much deeper page. It is better in so small a page to use only a single line head or at most a single head in not more than two lines. If the double page program is not used, the full page should carry more type, not large type, but more words. The type used to fill the page is too large in proportion to the space and instead of making the subjects seem important, it is apt to have a reverse effect.

Two Sorts.

H. W. Sams, of the Beach, Chicago, uses two programs each week, one a condensed version that runs but four pages, two and three days to the page, and another of sixteen and cover. The striking front of one of the four pagers is reproduced here to show what can be done in one color, if it is done well. The program is about four by six inches, dead white paper, and printed in a real black ink. An ink with more gloss would have been even better, but would have been harder to handle. It is foolish to experiment with two and three printings if you can get a striking effect in black and some arrangement of lines will generally prove more striking than anything you can devise outside of red and black. The twenty pager is a fixed design printed in two colors to get three. It is good, but not as striking as the plain black. If a better effect is wanted, it would be well to give a design somewhat along the lines of the above and print in red and black, red and yellow, purple and green, and other sharply contrasting tones, being careful to get inks that will keep their color on the paper and not sink dead when it gets on the stock. Many inks that look well in can or tube will not look well on the stock, particularly if the latter be absorbent. Mr. Sams writes:

> We are using two house organs because we find that our patrons appreciate having one that discusses shop as well as the straight program. The Beach is a 1,000-seat house in the most desirable neighborhood in Chicago and plays to about 4,500 people a month, the admission prices running from fifteen to twenty-five cents. My great object has been to present something in the program line that is artistic and yet will perform its mission. I have used a great many articles from the World, as you will see, and they have certainly helped. Now I am going to send you my programs and I feel sure you will endeavor to correct my mistakes.

Mr. Sams has not two house organs, for by organ is meant something more than a program, and apparently he has a program for broadcast distribution and his magazine for the more appreciative. Since he uses both, we think that a condensed program would suffice for the twenty pager. Now he uses a page to each change of bill and lets them fall as they will, so they hit the left hand, or less valuable pages. It would be better to have just one page with the entire program listed and have this on a right hand page where it cannot be missed. Then the detail four page program can be sent along with the other, or the space now used for pages can be given to comment. An even better plan would be to give the program in brief and then a running story of two or more pages on the films of the week, not run in program form or as a catalogue, but a gossipy, interesting story. If Mr. Sams has a copy of Picture Theatre Advertising and will turn to page 76 he will get the idea.

We have always questioned the value of recipes and other "boiler plate" stuff. It does not seem to belong in a live program. It is all right in a dramatic theater program, where the sole idea is to give anything that will pass for "pure reading" to conform to the contract requirement, but a picture house is different. The drama house program is generally printed by a speculator who runs several programs. The house is not permitted to make the program work for the management. The picture house gets out its own program and has authority over every line. In such a case it is better to drop padding or at least use film clips. There is a present lack of intimacy. It is too obviously a program and too little a message from the management, and of the features the weekly page written by the manager is the most formal and least effective. This does not mean to be gushy. It is a suggestion that the form of the sheet be changed. Top-heavy headlines should be dropped, the trade advertising should be thrown to the left hand pages and it would be better to cut down to a sixteen and set in a smaller type. Large type leaded never suggests a real magazine but one in which an effort is made to seem much with little matter. This is eight point double leaded and there is too much white showing. One lead would be ample.

To remake the sheet, taking the issue of May 29th. We would make these suggestions. Transpose page two and page one, getting the title where it belongs and moving the advertising to a left hand page. Run a condensed program on page three and give four and five to a running story for the week. Use six for an editorial page with an editorial heading in imitation of the daily papers, only one column in width instead of across page, and run house talk on that and, if possible, the following page. Then run original or clipped film stuff for the remainder of the form. This will get a more practical make-up and if the type is pulled in a little, it will look like a real magazine. And above all, tell about coming features, and tell it interestingly. Whet anticipation and make them ready for the dated announcement. This is one of the chief uses of the house organ.

Chips from Carpenter.

Says the most recent issue of Real Reels:

DON'T TRUST THE PRINTER.

If you are as busy as the proverbial hen with one chick you are never too busy to read your own proofs on all printed matter destined to meet the public eye.

That's a fact, because if you leave it to the printer you will get some weird effects in black and white which will be a veritable boomerang.

For instance: If your Decoration Day Flash reads "Bottle Scarred Veterans" instead of "Battle Scarred" not only is the G. A. R. liable to enter suit for criminal libel, but you will be the laughing stock of your town, and nothing kills anything from a politician to a theater quicker than ridicule.

Mistakes in spelling are criminal with practical dictionaries retailing in your town at 15 cents.

If the printer makes a mistake the public blames you for it. The public thinks you a boob manager and along the same line of reasoning, your theater, a third-rate house.

It is human nature to take advantage of an opening for ridicule. It is too late to rant, ramp and rave after the paper comes out announcing the appearance of Blanche Sweep in "The Thousand Dollar Husband." Even your best friends will take occasion to call you up and tell you that you must be a fine sort of manager if you don't know who Blanche Sweet is. The damage has been done and you have still another past to live down.

Be wise, advertise—and always read your proof. If it is a dirty one insist on a revise before your advertisement goes to press.

Markers.

S. C. Hurley, of the Unique, St. John's, N. B., sends in some book markers that he distributed at a children's matinee with decided success. They are strips of cardboard, two by six inches, with the top corners clipped to break the design. It carries a cut of the comedian in two colors and the sentiment "To mark a page of laughter in the Book of Life," a neat phrase for an inexpensive but pleasing souvenir. Mr. Hurley also sends in a couple of advertisements from the daily papers. One is well set, but in the second, a two and a quarter, two column, the printer uses too much all capital type. As a result only the film title stands out, and this is in part kept down by the too solid

UNIQUE
A 5-ACT DRAMA OF LOVE, ROMANCE, INTRIGUE, ADVENTURE!
BEAUTIFUL IVA SHEPPARD, ASSISTED BY
GERTRUDE ROBINSON AND EARL O. SCHEUCK.
IN MUTUAL MASTERPIECE
"THE HAUNTED MANOR"
GEO. OVEY, the Funny Man, in "ON THE RAMPAGE"
It's His Very Best Effort—Gosh, It's Funny
MON.-TUES. WED—Special Victoria Day—Theda Bara in "A FOOL THERE WAS."

composition. The printer should be argued with. A ten-point full-face caps and lower case for the top line, an eight-point Roman for the second and an eight-point italic for the third would have given the title greater prominence. In the top box a better arrangement would have been to take "Love, Romance, Intrigue—Adventure" for a top line and a smaller "A five act drama" for a second line. The wording is all right in the original, but the printer did not get a good effect and it would have been easier to change the arrangement than the text when it was seen that he did not work it right.

Works for Two.

The Picture News is published at Bellaire, Ohio, for the Olympic and Majestic. It is a revival of an earlier sheet of the same title. The programs appear on the inside pages and lists the coming attractions briefly. The days should be dated, as now one has to turn to the front page to be able to tell what the date really is. The printer is not turning out a very good job, but the text is competently done.

BETTER BUSINESS
Can be made through intelligent advertising.
Picture Theatre Advertising
Covers every angle, gives you copy and suggestions for copy, and shows how the leaders in the game have won their successes. Costs only two dollars and ANY ONE of the hundreds of schemes will bring that much to the house.
GET IT TODAY
The Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticised, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is inclosed.

Another "Stolen" Story.

RECENT comment on supposed thefts stirs Harry Chandlee's recollection, and he writes of a case that most authors would regard as theft were they not in position to know. While he was with the Lubin staff he wrote a story called The Drab Sister. This dealt with a newspaper woman, whose dowdy dressing concealed her good looks and who was accepted by the office, including her editor, as a good fellow. The Editor takes her to lunch, just as he would any man friend, and there meets her sister, no better looking but better dressed. The newspaper woman sets aside her hope of winning the Editor's love and gives her sister the dress in which she planned to make her emergence from the cocoon. Later she saves her sister from disgracing her husband, and the man never knows of the reporter's great love. The story was filmed, but the negative was destroyed a couple of years ago in the fire that did away with much negative and was remade.

Last summer he visited New York and saw The Drab Sister advertised. He went in to see it. It was not the expected Lubin, but a Biograph with much the same plot as his own, though the principals were not newspaper workers and the man, in the end, did realize the great service the unselfish sister had performed for love of him. Later the Lubin story was released as The Other Sister. Both of these stories had been written by staff authors, so there was no reason to suspect theft. It was purely coincidence, and yet a free-lance could not be brought to believe this was so. Mr. Chandlee adds:

> Concerning this same subject, I might add that I have been writing for about eighteen years, and have devoted the last four years exclusively to pictures. At the present time I am a free-lance, and I have sold, I should say, over a hundred plays on a free-lance basis. I have always found editors more than anxious to pay well for scripts which they can use and have never experienced anything which could be pinned down as stealing. I know that when I was with Lubin we were all so delighted to find anything in the open mail which could be used that we felt like bringing the author to the studio and falling on his neck in tears of happiness in addition to paying him top-notch prices for his stories. Herman Blackman was one of our standbys, as were also Elizabeth R. Carpenter, Mildred Mason and Billie Laub. I do not think any of these people, all of whom were real plot builders, have ever made any complaints about stealing, and I don't believe that anyone complains about thefts except those who are sore because nothing has been sold. Of course they don't know that their stuff is bad and the only explanation that they can find for its failure to sell is that it is being stolen. Consequently, when they see a play even remotely resembling theirs they kid themselves into blieving that thefts are the sole cause of their failure.
>
> At the present time I have absolutely no personal interest whatever in defending editors, but nothing gives me such violent attacks of the tizzies as this constant howl about the stealing of stories.

Mr. Chandlee speaks for the Lubin company, which was exceptionally well organized by Lawrence McCloskey, who was big enough to be willing to build up a staff of star men, even though it might mean his personal eclipse. It never did result in that, but he did something that many script editors would not dare do, and had there been a system in other departments as good as the script room there would be a different story to tell. Not all studios welcome the rising stars, but there are few, if any, that deliberately appropriate plots.

Tabbing Up.

When ideas will not come, try practice work. Try and get stuff that later you can use in connection with other material and perhaps you can take one of these and make a full story from it. For example, try to find—

A new cause for a lover's quarrel.
A new cause for unfounded jealousy.
A new proposal that will get over in film.
A new reason for a wife leaving her husband.
A new way to reconcile the parents with a daughter married against their will.
A new way to land a husband.
A new locale for a play available to the studios.

A Sold Synopsis.

(Continued from last week.)

Caprice is living on the memory of the fairy story, fearing Tom Baker and her stepmother, but she spends many hours around the closed retreat of Uncle Tom. She falls asleep there one day with her rag doll in her arms, and when she awakes she finds that it has changed to the most wonderful doll she ever saw. She has dreamt of her fairy prince and she carries the doll home to tell the folks that "A fairy prince brought it to me." Tim sneers at the idea. He says fairy princes are all right in their places, but up in the mountains they don't fit, and he decides to find out where that doll came from. Tim had seen Caprice at the Edmunds lodge many times and his mind, now filled with suspicion, directed his steps. He peered into the lodge and found Jack there. He saw the old rag doll. The mystery of the new doll was solved. He goes back with dire news to Dave. He calls Maria to his aid, and the three decide that to save Caprice "from the city feller" Caprice had best be made Tim's wife.

Caprice's wedding day is hastened. She does not understand. Jack, who loves Caprice, hears of her approaching wedding in despair, but to him she is but a child. Caprice, dressed for her wedding, balks at the last moment when she catches sight of the minister and Tim through the doorway. She goes to her bedroom, takes her doll and bundle, and escapes into the night through a window. She goes to the Edmunds lodge. Jack is away and she climbs through a window and tells her doll they are both safe for the night, as a fairy prince lives there and he'll watch over them. Jack is at Talbert's window peering in at the guests and turns away, realizing that his little girl is lost to him. His silk handkerchief has caught on a rose bush thorn and when Maria discovers that Caprice has vanished Tim, who finds the handkerchief lays the blame to Jack, swearing that he has seen Caprice come from the Edmund shack many times recently. This enrages Dave and both get rifles and start out to get Jack.

Jack, meanwhile, finds that Caprice has stolen his bed. He finds her asleep with her doll. He is at her bedside when rifles crash through the lodge window and the truth dawns on him that it looks mighty bad on the face of things. He is compelled to marry Caprice, and when the wedding party leaves with murderous hate in their hearts Jack sends the girl wife back to bed with her doll and takes a blanket and reposes on the couch.

Dave, family pride and honor striving for mastery against hate, sits all night with his rifle across his knee. Morning dawn brings determination to kill. He starts for the lodge. Caprice has arisen early and has gone to Aunt Susan's. Dave surprises Jack asleep. He points the rifle at his heart, but before he can kill he discovers a note pinned to Jack's shoulder. It is from Caprice, who asks for forgiveness for sleeping in his bed; that she had run away because Maria broke up her home and she hid in his bed to be safe. Dave, realizing that Jack is innocent, sends him on a horse to Aunt Susan's in quest of Caprice. He finds her and takes her home. News of the forced marriage had reached the city ahead of them through Deane. Jack's father threatened disinheritance, and when he saw Caprice with her doll he thought it was a baby and ordered her out, but Uncle Tom finally convinced him that Caprice was a mighty fine little girl and clean throughout.

A year later Jack, through the machinations of Deane, is neglecting Caprice. Deane succeeds in getting him to fall into evil ways and brings him home under the influence of liquor. Deane forces his attentions on Caprice, who battles for honor and summons the butler, who conducts Deane away. Caprice looks upon the helpless Jack. He might have protected her but couldn't and she determines to return home to protect her unborn child. She leaves a note for Jack, saying that search will be useless as she is going to friends in Chicago. Jack goes to Chicago to search for her, without avail. Tragic weeks pass. Caprice's baby is born. To her it is but a doll, as her mind is shadowed by her great disappointment in life. She wanders into the woods, still searching for a key flower that will bring back fairyland to her. A telegram sent by Jack to Dave elicits the help of Aunt Susan, and Jack comes, now clean in mind and body, to seek his darling. Caprice has found her key flower. Exhausted, she sleeps at the signpost at the "Road to Nowhere." Jack has taken the baby and gone in search of her, and as Caprice dreams that a fairy prince is bearing a crown on a cushion to her, she extends her hands to take it, and Jack dissolves in handing her the baby, "the holiest crown that God gives to the pure and good—a crown that will keep them both on the Road to Somewhere." Caprice found her happiness, not beyond the mountains, but right where she lived, and God brought her two greatest joys—a husband and a baby—her crown and her key flower—and the knowledge that to the pure all things are pure.

ORDER NOW

The THIRD Edition of Technique of the Photoplay

IS NOW READY

This is virtually a new book under the old title. More than double the text and with an arrangement especially adapting it for the student. The most complete book ever written on this subject.

By Mail, Postpaid Three Dollars

Address all orders direct to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps, (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 145.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

In your judgment is it better that the operator be compelled to stand up or that he be seated at his machine? Give reasons for your opinion. In answering, lay aside personal preference and consider the question entirely on its merits.

Roll of Honor on Question No. 138.

The Roll of Honor on question No. 138 consists of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; Manuel Nosti, Tampa, Fla.; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, N. Y.; F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas; J. Lewis Arnold, Bellingham, Wash.; Wilson Hays, Barton, Md.; Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal.; C. E. Linstruth, Carthage, N. Y.; O. J. Bean, New Bedford, Mass., and Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Md.

There were quite a number of different methods presented for determining the percentage of increased light. Martin took it from the candle power point of view, whereas the rest worked on percentage after somewhat different fashion, but all arrived at essentially the same result, therefore all were correct as far as they went. But all failed to make note of the fact that, due to the increased size of crater the increase in brilliancy at the screen is never quite in proportion to the increase in amperage, and when we get into high amperage it does not come anywhere near to being in proportion, this fact representing the inefficiency of the optical system.

I am publishing the reply of F. F. Bell, suplemented by the reply of J. L. Arnold, because the latter shows another way of doing it, that is to say, the proof he supplies shows another method of figuring the same thing. On second thought, I will add the reply of W. C. Crawford. It is very short and illustrates the method of finding the percentage increase.

Reply to Question No. 138.

By F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas.

The Question:

If you are projecting a 16-foot picture and it is proposed to enlarge to an 18-foot one, what percentage of increase in light would be necessary to produce the same screen brilliancy? If 35 amperes were used in the first instance, how many would be necessary in the latter?

The Answer:

Figuring that a picture is ¾ as high as it is wide, a 16-foot picture would be 12 feet high, and an 18-foot picture would be 13½ feet high. Therefore, 12x16=192 square feet of screen surface; 13½x18=234 square feet of screen surface; 243—192=51 more square feet of screen surface in the larger screen. Now to find the percentage of increase in the larger screen over the smaller one we must take the small screen as 100 per cent, therefore 51÷192=.26 9/16 of increased area, or, expressed in percentage, 26 9/16%. It then follows that we must have 26 9/16% more light, and 26 9/16% of 35 (Amps.) will be: 35x.26 9/16=9.29 11/16 amperes, which we would have to add to our current in order to have the same illumination on the 18-foot picture as on the 16-footer. In practice, however, we would increase it 10 amperes, which would, of course, give us but very little more increased illumination, and this would make a total of 45 amperes for the 18-foot picture.

Reply to Question No. 138.

By J. L. Arnold, Bellingham, Wash.

A certain given amperage per square foot of screen surface will give a certain definite brilliancy of illumination to the screen, and the percentage of increased light necessary is equal to the percentage of increased screen area. Therefore, the per cent more light needed for the 18-foot picture would be 26.6 per cent. The increased amperes for the 18-foot picture would be 26.6 per cent of 35 amperes, or 9.3 amperes. The total amperes for the 18-foot picture being 35 plus 9.3, or 44.3 amperes.

To prove the foregoing: 35 amperes are used to illuminate a 16-foot picture, means a screen brilliancy of .186 amperes to the square foot of screen surface. Therefore the 18-foot picture would require .186 amperes times 237.6 (area in square foot of 18-foot picture) or 44.3 amperes. The difference in amperage between the 16-foot picture and the 18-foot picture is 9.3 amperes, or an increase of 26.6 per cent. Given any number of amperes for the 16-foot picture the increase in light for the same illumination in the 18-foot picture would be 26.6 per cent.

Reply to Question No. 138.

By W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A 16-foot picture contains 192 square feet; an 18-foot picture contains 243 square feet. This is an increase of 51 square feet, or 51/192=26.5% increase in area. The same percentage of increase in light would be necessary to produce the same screen brilliancy. If 35 amperes were used on the 16-foot picture, 35x1.265=44.275, or roughly, 45 amperes would be neccssary if it was increased to 18 feet.

Curtain Coating.

Minneapolis, Minn., sends in clipping, presumably from some paper connected with the motion picture industry, and asks what I think of it. The enquirer says he has a "canvas screen" and asks "how can I improve my projection?" The answer reads:

> In answering your inquiry, consider the curtain first. Buy three boxes of alabastine, one blue or green, and two white. Blue is preferred to green, but make sure it is the original alabastine. Mix blue with water and paint the back of the curtain. Let it dry and paint the front with one box of the white. After this has thoroughly dried, coat it again with the other box of white. After the second coating dries procure about fifteen cents worth of drop black and paint a border around your curtain, allowing the border to overlap the picture about an inch all around. This entire curtain improvement should cost you no more than $3.00.
>
> Second—Above all use a Gundlach No. 2 lens. This type of lens is quite expensive, but gives the picture about 50 per cent. more light. When ordering be sure and give size of picture and exact length of throw. Measure the latter with a string from the center of your present lens to the screen, remembering that the inches as well as feet are important. Carbons and current are also very important.

As to the screen, the dealer in information does not mention the fact that the canvas should be properly sized before being coated. Just what the blue is for deponent sayeth not. It would have no more effect on the projection than would the gliding of the weather vane on the cupola of the county court house. If the man wants the back side of his screen calcimined blue, however, it won't do any particular harm, but it's rather a waste of good material and energy. As to the black border, why lampblack mixed half oil and half turpentine is exactly as good—and cheaper. As to the No. 2 lens, the statement made is purely foolish, since the question asked said nothing about the size of the picture, length of throw, or lens, and a large lens diameter is distinctly objectionable unless local conditions compel its use. True, there are cases where a Gundlach No. 2 would give 50 per cent. more light, but in other cases, and quite possibly in this one, such a lens would not add anything to the light and would set up other troubles until it was stopped down to the diameter of the light ray at the point it meets the lens.

Another clipping, presumably from the same paper, shows a method of plotting the candle power of the arc lamp. The plot may or may not be correct, but inasmuch as it figures out 37 square millimeters for a 20-ampere crater and at 54 square millimeters for a 60-ampere crater, its correctness is open to very large question. The amusing part of the article is that it says that a certain given candle power at the arc is required to illuminate a cloth screen, using a three-wing shutter. Little knowledge is a dangerous thing, it has been said. This particular dealer in information fails to take into consideration the fact that the amount of light reaching the screen would depend upon many things, as, for instance, the quality of the condensers, whether or not the condensers were the proper distance from the film to suit the diameter of the objective, whether or not the crater was in focus at the spot, whether the three-wing shutter be a 50/50 shutter or something else, and whether the three-wing shutter was set at the focusing point of the light ray or not. The principal trouble with such information as this is that it is misleading. Men are likely to follow it, and then wonder why results are not satisfactory.

Unpleasant Experience.

A theater manager, whom I have every reason to believe is telling the even and exact truth, sends in the following:

> Since my last letter I have had one more unpleasant experience with a union man. I had the business agent, Mr. ————, whom you know, on a still hunt for me, and he finally came forward with a man whom he said was the last word in good operators. This man arrived, and I left the following day for New York to attend the Trade Shows. On my return I found he had vanished between days. On one occasion he was found down stairs "getting a drink," with both arcs burning and one projector running all alone. There were something over one thousand people in the house at the time. I spent more than a day after my return in getting the machines back into the condition they were before he came. A great mess of film scraps was cleaned out of the operating room during the few days he was in charge; nothing seemed to stand in his way of making long and impressive cuts. In nearly every way the man was incompetent, and I am thoroughly convinced that my janitor is a far better operator. Acting in accordance with the rule of the house, three days' pay was held up in lieu of notice. The fact that he waived this sum in spite of the fact that he knew I would be back on the ground the same day he left makes me quite positive that he was one of a party which used the theater, one night, for questionable purposes, to judge from evidence discovered the next morning, though as to that I have no other evidence. Of course this is not for publication. I am only telling you to give you some idea of what I am up against, and ask you as one of the spokesmen and organizers of the operators' unions just why and how do these chaps hold cards? Am I wrong in understanding that a strict examination determines whether or not a man is admitted to membership?

Gentlemen and brothers, I am publishing this letter because it is a bona fide proposition, and such things as this bring shame upon the organization. I am prepared to say that this manager is honest; that he has stated, as nearly as he knows, the exact truth. DO YOU THINK A THING OF THIS KIND IS A CREDIT TO ORGANIZED LABOR? A man who in just a few days litters up the operating room with film cuts; got the machines into a dirty, nasty condition and out of adjustment. No, I am not an organizer of the union, but I have brought many hundreds of men into the organization, nevertheless, and I believe at least a dozen unions have sent their application for charter to the general office through me, or have done the preliminary corresponding with me and have very largely been induced to organize through the efforts of this department. It is therefore disgusting and discouraging to learn of such occurrences. The union in question is a large one in a large city—not in New York City, or I'd fix his clock for him myself in a hurry. This fellow was taken to this theater by the business agent of the union, and given a big send-off as a high class operator. THE UNION CAN OFFER NO VALID EXCUSE, even though the man came in under a transfer card. It is the duty of the organization—the absolute DUTY of the organization to at least have some knowledge of the ability and moral responsibility of its members, and failure to do so cannot but result in such things as this. This matter ought to be very thoroughly investigated hy the organization, and if the man is found guilty as charged, then he should be promptly expelled. He is not a credit to the organization; he is a discredit and a disgrace to it. I stand for the organization of the operator because I am firmly convinced his organization is not only essential to his own welfare, hut also to the welfare of the moving picture industry. I firmly, thoroughly, and absolutely believe, however, that IT IS UP TO THE ORGANIZATION TO DEMAND GOOD WORK FROM ITS MEMBERS. I do not believe there is any use, or any sense in accepting into membership every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along. After thirty years of experience in the labor movement I firmly believe that a good, compact organization of fifty THOROUGHLY COMPETENT men is more powerful than a sponge made up of three times that number of incompetents; moreover, the incompetents in the organization not only disgrace themselves, hut they disgrace the competent men as well. This is some pretty plain talk, but it is rock bottom facts just the same, and, my brothers, you know it is. It is not a pleasure to talk to you this way; far, far from it, but I am sorry to say there are operators' unions in this country which stand in need of a very strenuous house cleaning—with regard to membership, I mean.

From Killarney.

H. G. Fiske, operator of the Killarney Theater, Shamrock, Okla., says:

> I started this letter with intention of renewing my suhscription, but find I have already done so. We have a house seating 350, using a Six A motor-driven projector. Have our own poewr plant, which is an International 12 H. P. engine and 8 K. W. generator, which gives me 40 amperes at the lamp, with about 5 for incandescents, with plenty to spare. We are, running eight day Universal service, including a Red Feather on Sunday, for which we get 5 to 15 cents. Projection around the oil field is, as a rule, very good, and wages are quite satisfactory. I am drawing twenty-five per, though of course I take care of the light plant. On the other hand, I only operate about three hours each night, with a Saturday and Sunday matinee. This is my fourth year. I have not run every machine there is, nor have I stopped learning; therefore believe I will continue to progress and learn something from the department every week. I started in electrical work at Detroit, and took up the operating end as a side line. Two years ago I reversed that proposition. Perhaps you have seen the "Oil Field Pictures" taken at Shamrock. They were shown privately in New York hy Mr. Harry Sinclair of Tulsa. Am enclosing a little card designed to insert in film as I ship them to the other fellow; although running new service I still believe them to he of use. In closing I want to thank you for the excellence of OUR department, and say I am "strong for you."

No, I didn't see the "Oil Field Pictures." New York, my dear sir, is a huge proposition, and special things of that kind are shown almost every day.

The card is very good. Such things as this would help very materially where films are used on circuit, always assuming that the operator does his duty in filling them out.

You must have a generator of rather high voltage. A 70 ampere,

REEL NO. Burden Beaver -

CONDITION { Good / Fair — / Poor 2 -

Misframes ----------

Remarks other side. H. G. FISKE, M.P.O.
Killarney Theatre, Shamrock, Okla.

S K. W. machine would give you more than 110 amperes. If you have a 110 volt generator you are wasting a lot of energy, since you have to break the voltage down with a rheostat, and that is decidedly costly. With a 110 volt generator half the energy generated is wasted in resistance. I appreciate your co-operation and your kindly feeling toward me and the department, and trust I may be able to retain your good will for many years to come.

From Brother Turnpaugh.

W. S. Turnpaugh, Abilene, Texas, an old time correspondent of the department, is here with the following. We are glad to hear from him, being under the impression he had fallen into a hole, and pulled the hole carefully in after him.

> Attached find photograph showing how we do things in Abilene. It is an advertisement of a Triangle Keystone picture we ran in January. You will note that we run 'em right off the bat, too—no old stuff for this small town. Mr. J. E. Hamlett wanted to put out something proper in the way of advertising, and we conceived the idea of building an imitation submarine superimposed upon a gasoline buggy bearing the name of Ford. We were unable to locate a picture of a submarine, therefore proceeded from memory. The photograph shows net result. "It" is 38 feet long and 7 feet in diameter. The picture tells the rest. It was run all over town and made a big hit. The photograph was taken in front of the largest of Mr. Hamlett's theaters. You will see Mr. Hamlett standing at the left side of the picture, partly obliterating the word "the." The operator from Mr. Hamlett's other house is at the opposite end of the craft, and Yours Truly, in a uniform we mooched from the recruiting office, is seen sticking out of what looks like a smoke stack, but ain't. The gink whose head shows is the victim who drove the Ford.
>
> And now, will you please publish this? I will buy mercury taken from the tuhes of old rectifiers. All those who have same to sell please address U. S. Electrolytic & Mineral Company, Box 373, Ahilene, Texas.
>
> Well, I must get busy now, as it is time to start the Six A's again.

I am publishing this, although it is pure unadulterated piracy as against the Advertising for Exhibitors' Department. It's a good stunt, and undouhtedly would prove to be a drawing card. The only suggestion for improvement I can make would have heen to have concealed the wheels of the fliver a little more completely. Those having old mercury arc rectifiers will take notice.

American Projection Society.

Some time ago I mentioned the formation of a society known as the American Projection Society, which organization is chartered under the laws of New York State. This society is intended to be composed entirely of men who are able to prove themselves to he competent, up-to-date operators, and who are, in addition to this, of such character as will do credit to the organization.

As hefore said, this organization in no way impinges upon or interferes with the field already occupied by the union. It is intended to band together high class operators who take pride in their profession and wish to see it advanced to a higher plane.

There is every reason why this organization ought to expand until it covers the entire country, with hranches in every large city, but up to the present time no really definite move has heen made to bring about such an extension of the activities of the American Projection Society.

Since the publication of the article in question the editor has been in receipt of many letters from men who would, in addition to being members of the union, like to belong to such an organization. I am firmly convinced that they should have the opportunity, and that the expansion of the organization, if carefully and properly inaugurated, will operate to very materially help in the elevating of the profession of operating to a higher plane. It's up to the A. P. S.

An Up-to-date Operator.

J. C. Godfrey, Wenatchee, Washington, says:

I am what you would call a small town operator. Am breaking into the department purely on my nerve, but please don't take me for one of the correspondence schools would-be's, because I have been at the operating game for seven years, and have had practical experience with all leading makes of projectors. We have what I consider to be, for a small town, one of the best equipped operating rooms in the state of Washington. The room is 12 feet long and 7 feet wide with a 7 foot ceiling. There are two vent pipes leading to the open air, one of which is connected to the hood on the lamphouse, so that it takes away the heat and carbon gas; the other is for ventilation of the operating room. I have a 95 foot throw, with a 15 foot picture, using 25 amperes D. C. at the arc. We have just installed one of the new Minusa screens and have put in a G. E. rectifier which surely does put up a fine light. I think any exhibitor having alternating current supply will make no mistake in installing a G. E. rectifier.

I am proud to say that I have been a "student" of the department for many years. I have a set of Hawkins' Electrical Guides, which are, in my opinion fine; also the first and second edition of the Managers and Operators Handbook, which are the best works of their kind ever published. Enclosed you will find check in the sum of $4.00 for the third edition. If it contains as much knowledge in proportion to the price as did the second edition, then I don't blame operators for going crazy over it. I believe these books should, by all means, be in every operating room in the United States and Canada.

I am fortunate in that I have a real show man to work for—one who appreciates good work, and pays good wages for the goods delivered on the screen. I get $25.00 a week for five hours each day, which I think you will admit is pretty good for a small town operator. Enclosed find two photographs of my room. The film tank shown is one of my own make. It holds eight reels. The inside is perforated and can be removed from the outside casing, so that a damp cloth may be placed in the bottom of the tank, which helps to keep the film in good condition, particularly in hot weather.

This letter comes from a real operator. Not only does the letter show that, but the photographs prove it. Notice the Hawkins' and the Handbook on top of the rectifier, placed there, of course, for the purpose of photographing. Take note of the wash basin, the radiator, clean towel and rack to hold it, the cabinet, the drinking glass and telephone. All this proves the manager is on the job; that he is willing to provide not only absolute necessities but comforts and conveniences in the operating room. However, both pictures show that the operator himself is not asleep, because these comforts and conveniences are in order; the wash basin is clean; so is the cabinet and the fixtures. The tools are placed neatly and in order, the slides are in neat rack conveniently located. The fuses to the shutter cord show a new stunt, and not at all a bad one. The fuse itself seems to be a standard fuse of the kind commonly used for safety cords, attached to which is a strip of old film which hangs down right where it would very quickly catch fire in case of fire at the machine. The scheme is not exactly ideal, but its a long way in advance of nine out of ten shutter cord fuse installations; yes, I will do better than that and say, ninety-nine out of one hundred. The rewind shown in the first photograph had me puzzled for a moment. I thought the pulley was attached to the film tank, and I could not dope the thing out at all. I think, however, that the pulley is really attached to the bench and runs the rewind shown, the other standard of which is out of sight to the right, there being apparently a hand-driven rewind at the other end of the room, shown in the second photograph. Brother Godfrey is proud of the fact that he is a student, and that is what every operator ought to be, though unfortunately many of them are not.

Arc Explodes.

J. H. Pooley, Toledo, Ohio, writes:

I have been operating for five years, always working with A. C. Tonight I experienced something new. I struck my arc which burned all right when the carbons were very close together, but as soon as I separated them about ¼ of an inch there occurred a rapid succession of loud explosions. These explosions were very pronounced and very rapid. They seemed to take place between the end of the lower carbon and about one inch up to the top carbon. The top carbon was turned to a dark brown where the explosion struck it. This lasted for possibly two minutes, and then did not again occur. The current is 60 cycle A. C. This matter is a mystery to me, particularly inasmuch as the explosions did not have any effect on the light, since the arc burned steadily during the period of the explosions. Have you ever heard of anything of this kind before? I would be glad to learn the cause of this, if anybody knows.

Well, Brother Pooley, I don't understand why there should be an "explosion." I note you say that these explosions were "quite loud," which I presume must be taken relatively. It is no new thing for the current to occasionally crawl up on the carbon, or rather it used to be a common enough occurrence when carbons were imperfect. It simply means for some reason or other the point of the carbon offers high resistance, whereas some spot on the surface of the carbon further up offers comparative low resistance. When the carbons were close together the resistance of the arc was very much lessened, and the voltage was not sufficient to cause the current to overcome the resistance necessary to "crawl up" the carbon, but as one opened the arc the voltage increased and the thing occurred. The explosion part, however, is something else again, and I will have to leave that to our readers.

In describing the foregoing I know I have not been very clear, but I think all the old operators will understand and have experienced that which I have tried to describe.

Here Is An Interesting Stunt.

O. J. Bean, New Bedford, Mass., writes:

If your outside shutter cuts the light ray at its narrowest point, or in other words, is set in the right plane, do you know that if you focus a stereopticon slide on the shutter blade your picture will be in focus on the screen? This may be an old stunt, but it is a discovery to me. If you want to clean your lens during a show this discovery comes in mighty handy. Of course I know you should clean them before the show starts, but the lens may accidentally receive a drop of oil or something may happen to require its cleaning. Now here is a question which, if you think it a good one, you may ask in the department. What would cause halation to appear on the screen, no halation being present in the film?

What you say about the slide, Brother Bean, is not, I think, strictly true. It would, however, be entirely true if the slide occupies exactly the position the surface of the front condenser occupies. This is true because when the picture is in focus on the screen the front surface of the front condensing lens is focused at the dissolving point of the light beam in front of the lens. This point forms the front conjugate foci point, the rear one being the plane of the lens. Your focus would therefore be out just a little in front of the plane of the lens. Yes, I knew that before, but had not thought of using it in that way, nor do I think many other operators have thought of using it in that way, therefore its publication is of value. As to the question, why I am printing it, and will see how many can answer. Frankly, I am not at all sure I can myself, unless it be oil on the film or a very thin coating of oil on the objective lens, such as might be left after wiping off an oily lens, but not cleaning it thoroughly.

He Answers Back.

Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal., comes in with the following:

I have noted Friend Solar's comments, issue of May 27th. No doubt he is correct in contending that astigmatism has very little to do with the action of the condensers. Nevertheless, with an extended light source the conditions which I described in my article of issue April 22nd, do occur to a certain extent, and it was this small bit of knowledge that I wished to convey, since that article may come in handy in another connection some time. In fact, in my reply to Solar's chromatic objections I will show him just how I do that little trick.

Now, Friend Solar's distinctions between astigmatism, coma and side-flare may all be correct, and, if so, constitute just that much more information. I wonder what he means by "side-flare." Maybe he considers the point B (issue April 22nd) to be a virtual reflected image of the point A, whereas I meant it for a real point on the crater. At any rate, if Solar is thinking of anything in connection with the phenomenon of reflection he is wholly in error in his interpretation of the article in question. But, again, Solar may not refer to reflection at all, for he says, in effect, that aberrations at B' are not due to astigmatism, but to angles of incidence and curvature of the lens. I would like to know to what astigmatism is mainly due if not to the obliquity of the angle of incidence of the rays which strike the lens. If he can show any authoritative statement to the contrary I will back down, but not until then. Furthermore, Solar discusses spherical aberration and astigmatism wholly from the standpoint of what happens with regard to the shape of the field, or focal plane of the image, but entirely disregards the structure of the rays from the light source to the image; hence he cannot see any similarity between spherical aberration and astigmatism, although it is made as plain as day in my drawing. Again, Solar seems to think that "astigmatism" and "curved field of the image" can be used substantially as identical terms, pure and simple; but there are many other factors, such as choice of materials in the glass, position of the diaphragm, and other things which have to do with producing a flat field with sharp focus at all its points. In an elementary sense, astigmatism is not curvature of field, but is the blurry effect produced in those points of the image which lie off the principal axis of the lens. The blurry effect increases from the center of the focal plane toward the edges. The curvature of the field is not a normal condition naturally attending this aberration, but is artificially introduced as a means of reducing the aberration. The curved field is the focus of all the circles of least confusion of each elementary beam, such as AA' and BB', and finally flatness of field is obtained by combining two lenses, the curved field of one being positive and the other negative in direction. If the positive and negative curvatures are equal in amount they combine algebraically and produce a surface of zero curvature, or a flat field, and we have an anastigmat lens.

Nope, I never used the word "anastigmatism"; at least I cannot find it in my manuscripts, so I will have to pass that side-swipe on to the printer's devil.

I haven't nerve enough to butt in on this proposition, so I guess I will have to let Solar and Martin scrap it out between themselves so far as this particular thing be concerned. However, I will display my darned ignorance by saying that I cannot see why anastigmatism is not correct enough to pass muster if anastigmat is.

Interested.

Miss M. S. Bissell, San Jose, Cal., says:

Have recently become very much interested in projection, generally through the reading of the department, most of which is about as intelligible to me as the oft maligned Greek. And now am wondering if, provided I could finance the preparation period, motion picture operating would not only prove an interesting line of work, but also be a chance to work into the exhibiting field—one of my pet ambitions. In April 8th issue of the World you mention a Miss Meusner, who is an operator. I would like to write to her if you can supply me her address. Can you tell me anything about the range of salary on this coast? I suppose a woman would have the time of her young and unsophisticated life getting a job after she had qualified. As for the clothing objection, why I should think that would be easy to side-step. We wear just plain ordinary breeches for riding, while some wear tights for swimming, and that is simply for convenience of play. Why should we wear skirts and frills when it interferes with our work? (Hum. I think I will refer this particular query to Billy Franke. 'Tis said he is qualified to answer intricate questions of this variety. Let's have the answer, William.—Ed.) I wish you would come to the assistance of we poor San Joseans. We have two ten cent houses, two five cent ones, one vaudeville-picture place, and one legitimate, which also shows the big features, and we don't get really good projection in any of them. (Bing! Just like that for the San Jose operators.—Ed.) At the joint (Hully gee!—Ed.) where Triangle pictures (alternated with Fox Rot) are shown, the screen is at times so dark that the audience can scarcely follow the action; shadows and irregular speed are common. Help! Help! Help!

I expect to be in San Jose next winter, Miss Bissell, and will then be in better position to speak with authority as regards your criticisms. I am sending you Miss Meusner's address by mail; the name is pronounced as though spelled Mews-ner. As a matter of fact, I am a little skeptical about operating ever offering an attractive field for the ladies. An operating room, even under the best conditions, is almost anything but comfortable in summer, and with a large percentage of present day installation its extremely uncomfortable, besides being none too healthy. Salaries for operators on the Pacific Coast go up as high as $45.00 per week, I think, in a few cases. How low it goes I cannot say,but I have had reports of $9.00, which, of course, must represent very nearly the extreme in the other direction. I believe salaries on the Pacific Coast will average $25.00 per week; possibly a little better than that. In San Francisco and some of the well organized cities where they have uniformly good men, salaries are quite satisfactory, averaging, I believe, better than $30.00, and in some other places they are very unsatisfactory.

From Cleveland.

L. J. Shafranek, Cleveland, Ohio, orders a Handbook and says:

Regarding exchanges handling multiple reel features on large reels, I am in favor of it. One brother stated that the majority of take-ups are not ideal for double reels, and that the strain on the film at the beginning is therefore very great. I agree with him, but we all do it just the same, and I am willing to bet that that brother does the same thing if he has 14-inch magazines and large reels. The only objection is that film exchanges will have to obtain large reels and larger shipping cases, and some of the old-time exhibitors will have to trade in their small magazines for large ones. But why stop progress on account of the relatively few back numbers? Why not keep abreast of the times? At the present time the end of the first reel and the first part of the second is all scratched up, and part of the ending of the first and the beginning of the second half is cut off, with six or seven patches, and something like ten punch marks that the exchanges put in to number the reels. If we would be progressive we should favor the large reels. What do you say?

Well, Brother Shafranek, this is a pretty good sized question, and it has been coming before me in quite a goodly number of different forms, and from many directions during the past few months. Personally, at least so far as multiple reel releases be concerned, I am in favor of 2,000-foot reels, but beyond that I balk. There is, of course, a certain amount of added fire danger, from the property loss point of view, in placing large reels in the machine, but so far as any added danger to the audience be concerned I would just as soon have 4,000 feet of film in the magazine as one, if the thing caught fire. The operating room is fire-proof, and if the 1,000 feet don't make smoke enough to alarm the audience, then 4,000 feet won't either, therefore there would not be any considerable difference so far as the audience be concerned. But to place three or four thousand feet of film in danger of total destruction is quite another matter. If a reel catches fire in the magazine it is all going to burn. If it is four thousand feet long you are out four thousand feet; if it is one thousand feet then you are out that amount. Do you see the point? Another thing; when you run reels above 2,000 feet they become very heavy, and magazine spindles are not designed to meet any such strain. Probably they may be in future, but at present they are not, and to change magazine spindles would necessitate changing all reels and all magazine spindles at one time, or providing some means for quickly and conveniently reducing and enlarging the hole in reel hubs. Moreover, with 3,000 feet of film on the reel, if some slack is run off when the machine stops, and that slack is allowed to remain, when the machine starts there is going to be a heavy jerk, which will strain the perforations at the top sprocket. Without going further into this matter at this time I am prepared to concede the practicability and even the advisability of 2,000-foot reels, but I am prepared to oppose anything larger than that. I do not think that three or four thousand-foot reels are either necessary or advisable. There, I have walked all around that subject for quite a while, but at last I have sat down, and you will have to pry me off the particular spot I am sitting on. I am satisfied I am right, and have not arived at the conclusion above expressed without due and proper study and consideration of the subject.

Behind the Firing Line.

A. J. Mason, St. John, N. B., sends money order for the third edition of the Handbook, and says:

This book is to go to an operator who is showing moving pictures behind the firing line at the front. He left St. John with the 26th (Regiment, presumably, Ed.), and has been given the work as above indicated by the military authorities at the front.

And thus it is shown that I am indirectly helping in the European war, or at least helping to amuse them over there while they are engaged in the delightful pastime of "shooting each other up." The book has gone forward, and while I regret exceedingly that the insanity of Europe and the savagery which lies beneath the veneer of our "modern civilization" (?) makes possible the conditions which created the "firing line," still I hope the book will help to improve the projection of pictures at the front, and thus add somewhat to the enjoyment of that which we now very appropriately dubb "cannon food."

Richardson's

Motion Picture Handbook for Managers and Operators

Over 700 pages and over 300 illustrations help to make a book that will be a lasting monument to its author's knowledge, ability and diligence. No such work on Projection has ever before been attempted nor is it likely to be for many years to come. Price is $4.00 per copy, postpaid.

Address All Orders and Remittances,
MOVING PICTURE WORLD,
17 Madison Avenue, New York.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy in the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

More Camera Builders.

The man who always finds a way is the man who succeeds, and the boys who make their own outfits belong to that class. Even to the man who can well afford to buy his own outfit the experience that comes from building a camera and the satisfaction derived from the creation of an outfit with his own hands are invaluable assets. If you are a true artist and a real cameraman your camera and outfit will exact from you the same loving care and devotion and you will feel for it the same pride that you would bestow upon a sentient being.

It will come to possess for you an individuality; the same foibles and idiosyncrasies that a personal friend might have. If you treat it with consideration and care it responds by working sweetly and turning out good negatives, but if you neglect it and allow it to get dirty and the bearings to clog, and the polished surfaces to rust and its glass eye to become fogged it responds with bad negatives and buckling and various other expositions of the innate cussedness of inanimate things.

It may have been a fine high grade mechanism in the first place, eager to be your friend if you gave it a little attention and a few kind words, but if you were not a fit companion for it don't blame the camera if it becomes degraded by associating with you; it couldn't choose its owner! Or your camera may have been a cheap measely little box with a pot metal soul and unpolished ways that never thought of having any self-respect until you took it in hand and polished its roughness, oiled its bearings, strengthened its weaknesses, and mended its warps and cracks, then the little son-of-a-gun surprised you by giving you better work than you thought it capable of.

This may all read like bosh and fol-de-rol to you, but the engineer of a crack express mogul engine, the driver of a racing car and the aviator who loops the loop over the enemies' lines have all the fondness for their steeds of iron and steel and silk that any jockey ever felt for his mount of muscle and sinew and satiny coat; so what's the matter with the cinematographer who feels the same for the machine that affords him his support and the labor that he loves?

Two more of the readers of this department have sent in photos of cameras they have made themselves. The central illustration shows Louis Uhler, of Detroit, Michigan, and the camera which he made.

The camera case and magazines are made of aluminum bound with brass. It is five and one-half inches wide, twelve inches high and weighs nineteen pounds.

The lens mounting permits the lens to be turned so that it may be focussed upon a ground glass opposite the aperture plate without disturbing the film in the gate and then being turned quickly back into place for the exposure.

A slot in the side of the camera permits masking plates being inserted in the frame aperture without opening the camera.

The magazines are interchangeable and have two film traps or outlets and hold two hundred feet of film.

Mr. Uhler made the camera case, magazine, sprocket wheel, and all of the parts except the spur gears which he purchased.

He has a small workshop in his home with a foot power lathe and a hand bench drill where he did all of the work.

It is a fine-looking piece of mechanism and the young builder deserves much credit.

Fred Keys, of Sapalpa, Okla., whose camera is shown in the first and third illustrations, was previously mentioned in this department. His camera was made from a small hundred foot model Kinograph mechanism and a Williamson Claw Movement put into a larger case, carrying magazines of two hundred foot capacity.

Mr. Keys also has a printer which he made from a No. 5 Power head, which he runs by a small motor.

Both boys send samples of excellent work done with the cameras which they have made.

This department would like to hear from others who have constructed their own outfits either in whole or in part; particularly cameras, printers or developing apparatus.

The Correspondence Club.

Some of the boys who have sent in their addresses to the correspondence club have written this department telling of the benefits they have derived from corresponding with those who have written them and of the mutual help which they had obtained by discussing with others the problems which they have encountered. This department is pleased to receive letters from everyone interested in cinmatography, but it is a physical impossibility to answer all of the correspondents except very briefly, much as the editor would like to go into detail with each one in his individual problems.

Many of the letters received are from ten to twenty pages in length, and many ask about questions that require long answers; so it is plain to see why, when the daily mail sometimes goes to twenty or twenty-five letters a day, that delays in answering are often unavoidable.

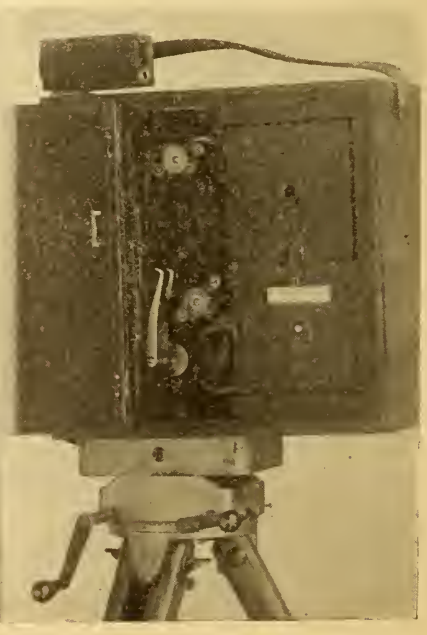
Many of you are doubtless too busy with the eternal problem of bread and butter to do much writing, but those who can find the time for a letter or two will doubtless be richly repaid for the time which they devote to it.

If you would like to exchange experiences with a brother in the same lines in which you are interested, do not hesitate to send in your name and address.

The following have sent in their names for enrollment: Arthur Van Vollie, Gillespie, Ill.; Paul N. Bo Quist, 610 East 36th street, Minneapolis, Minn.; Chas. G. Roos, Chief Camara Man, Canada Film Company, Galt, Ontario.

Keys' Camera and Magazines.

Louis Uhler and His Camera.



Keys' Camera, Showing Mechanism.

*Copyright, 1916 by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN and S. M. BERG

Musical Setting for "The Valiants of Virginia."

Released June 26th by the V-L-S-E, Inc.

(Suggestions prepared by S. M. Berg. By special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.)

THIS "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is not designed to solve every possible musical requirement of the film, but is intended as a partial solution of the problem—what to play for the picture. It has proven to be of great assistance to the leader, not only by relieving to a degree the tedium of rehearsals, but by assisting materially in overcoming those conditions encountered when the film is not available until the hour of performance.

Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets can be obtained (free of charge) by managers from their local exchange in advance of the date of release. This will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film drama he is to portray with his orchestra.

Together with the suggested music at the title or descriptive cues where it is to be played, the tempo or characteristic is given so that the leader can select or substitute any or all of the numbers from his own library, thereby avoiding any financial outlay though still carrying out the interpretation.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will help the leader to anticipate the various cues which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or a described action (marked D). For instance: 7½ T "A trust" is a suh-title and is printed reading matter on the screen. But 12¾ D "Niggers dancing" is a description of action.

The prologue of this story opens in Virginia. A duel and a misunderstanding part two lovers. Twenty years later their respective son and daughter meet and fall in love. The events of the past nearly disrupt their romance hut the truth comes to light and they are happily united. The predominating atmosphere is Southern. A representation of an old-time Tournament and Tournament Ball is held during the course of the picture. There are also several flashes of niggers dancing.

Picture players will find this one of the most difficult pictures to handle that has been released for some time. The continual changes in character of action will require close watching. Note particularly: Scenes of niggers dancing at 12¾ and 27½, Hunting scene at 40½. From 52¾ to 56 are scenes of Tournament with fan-fare by Trumpeters. From 58 to 60½ are scenes of the Tournament Ball with Grand March, Gavotte, etc., Horses hoofs and train effects at 72½. Clock striking 13 at 70½.

The THEME selected is "A Love Song"—Bartlett.

Time Schedule: 75¼ minutes (about 5075 feet—five reels).

Further inquiries concerning any phase of this work should be addressed to Mr. S. M. Berg, 3 East 43d Street, New York City.

| Time | | Subtitles or Descriptive Cues | Music |
|---|---|---|---|
| 0 | D | Opening. | Southern Airs—Lampe. |
| 2 | T | Judith Fairfax. | |
| 3 | T | The traditional Valiant pudding. | Agitato No. 2. |
| 5 | T | "I give you my sacred word." | A Love Song—Bartlett. (Allegretto con espressione) (THEME). |
| 5½ | T | In the gray of the dawn. | Misterioso No. 1. |
| 7½ | T | A Trust. | Nocturne—Karganoff. (Andante non tanto) |
| 9½ | T | Ten years have passed. | |
| 11 | T | The witching hour. | A Shepherd's Tale—Nevin. (Allegretto semplice). |
| 12 | T | "Here I am, Master." | |
| 12¾ | D | Niggers dancing. | Virginia Reel. |
| 13¼ | D | Dinner table scene. | Shepherds all and Maidens Fair—Nevin. (Allegro con moto). |
| 14¼ | T | A year later. | Lullaby—Nevin. (Andante semplice) |
| 15¼ | T | Twenty years elapse. | |
| 16¼ | T | Andrew Fargo. | Repeat: THEME. |
| 18 | T | "It gives me great pleasure." | |
| 19 | T | A bolt from a clear sky. | Hurry No. 1. |
| 22 | T | "Call a meeting of the directors." | Hurry No. 2. |
| 24 | T | "Gentlemen, I am placing." | Repeat: THEME. |
| 25½ | T | Two hours later. | Repeat: Shepherds all, etc. |
| 27½ | D | When John reads letter. (Flash of niggers dancing) | Virginia Reel. |
| 29¾ | T | Two weeks later. | Repeat: THEME. |
| 31 | T | "I don't know whether." | |
| 33 | T | "Will you take me." | Douce Caresse—de Fuentes. (Valse lento) |
| 39 | T | "Was it Valiant or Sassoon?" | |
| 40½ | T | Next day. The hunt. | Allegro vivace No. 1. (Hunting galop) |
| 42½ | T | "There goes another fox." | |
| 44¾ | T | "The next day John Valiant." | Repeat: THEME. |
| 47 | T | Damary Court Occupied. | Repeat: Southern Airs. |
| 52 | T | Major Bristow incurs. | |
| 52¾ | T | Tournament Day. | Tournament—Nevin. (Allegro energico) |
| 54 | T | "One of our noble knights." | Trumpet Fan-fare. |
| 56½ | T | The winner chooses his queen. | Repeat: THEME. |
| 58 | T | The Tournament Ball. (Grand March.) | The March Theme from M. Beaucaire—Bucalossi. |
| 59 | T | "Oh Queen of Beauty." | The Gavotte from M. Beaucaire—Bucalossi. |
| 60½ | D | John and Shirley in the garden. | Leit Motif from M. Beaucaire—Bucalossi. |
| 62 | T | The awakening. | |
| 62½ | T | The next morning. | Intermezzo from M. Beaucaire—Bucalossi. |
| 64 | T | "My father killed the man." | |
| 64¼ | D | When Grief sees the Major. | Agitato No. 1. |
| 66¼ | T | "Give the Doctor this key." | Cradle-Song—Kjerulf. (Lento) |
| 69½ | D | Shirley at her mother's bedside. | Northern Serenade—Olsen. (Andante) |
| 70½ | D | Shirley looks at clock tower. (Thirteen strikes) | |
| 72½ | D | When Shirley mounts horse. (Horse's Hoofs and Train effects) | Allegro No. 1. |
| 73½ | T | "John! John!" | Repeat: THEME. |
| 75¼ | T | The End. | |

Musical Terms (Continued).

By S. M. BERG.

FORTE (F).—Loud, strong, usually written f; piu forte; pf (piano forte) being softly and swell rapidly. Poco forte, rather loud. Forte piano (fp).
FORTISSIMO.—Extremely loud and usually written FF or FFF.
FORZANDO (FZ).—With force, strongly accented.
FUOCO, CON.—With fire, fiery, spirited.
FURIOSO.—Furiously, wildly.

G

GIGUE.—A jig.
GIOCOSO.—Playfully, sportively, merrily.
GLISSANDO.—A rapid scale effect by sliding fingers.
GRANDIOSO (GRAND).—With grandeur; majestically, pompously, loftily.
GRAZIOSO (GRANZ).—Gracefully, elegantly.
GUSTO.—Taste.

H

HABANERA.—A typical Cuban or Mexican dance.
HAUTBOY.—Oboe.

I

IDYL.—Pastoral or romantic composition.
IMPERIOSO.—Imperious, haughty, lofty.
IMPETUOSO.—Impetuously, impetuous, vehemently.
INCISO.—Incisive; sharply marked.
INDECISO.—Irresolute, undecided.
INTIMISSIMO.—Very tenderly, warmly.
INTREPIDO.—Intrepid, hold.
.....ESOLUTO.—Undecided, irresolute.

L

LAMENTOSO.—Lamentingly, plaintively, mournfully.
LANGUENDO.—Languishing, plaintive.
LARGAMENTE.—Largely, broadly.
LARGANDO.—Growing broader; that is, slower and more marked.
LARGHETTO.—The diminutive of Largo, nearly equal to Andantino.
LARGO.—Large, broad; the slowest tempo mark, calling for a slow stately movement.
LEGATISSIMO.—Very smoothly and evenly. On the piano, in passages marked legatissimo, each finger is to hold its note as long as possible.
LEGATO (LEG.).—Bound, slurred, a direction to perform the passage in a smooth and connected manner with no break between the tones.
LEGGIERO (LEGG.).—Light, airy.
LENTAMENTE.—Slowly.
LENTO.—Slow, calls for a tempo between andante and largo.
LIPIDO.—Limpid, clearly, distinctly.
L'ISTESSO.—The same.
LOCO.—"Place;" following Sva it means, "perform the notes as written.
LONTANISSIMO.—Very far away.
LUTTUOSO.—Mournful, doleful, plaintive.

M

MAESTOSO (MAESTO).—Majestic, dignified.
MAESTRO.—Master, conductor; choirmaster.
MALINCONIA.—With melancholy expression.
MARCATO.—Marked; with distinctness and emphasis.
MARCIA.—March. All marcia—in march style.
MARZIALE.—Martial, warlike.
MEN, MENO.—Less, not so. Meno allegro—not so fast. Meno alone stands for meno mosso, not so fast.
MESTO.—Pensive, sad, melancholy.
MISTERIOSO.—In a style suggestive of mystery.
MODERATO (MODTO).—Moderate. At a moderate speed or tempo.
MOLTO.—Very, much. Molto adagio—very slowly. Molto allegro—very fast.
MONOTONE.—A single unvaried tone—intoning—chanting.
MORCEAU.—A piece, a composition.
MORENDO.—Dying away.
MOSSO.—"Moved," "standing alone." As a tempo mark, it is the same as "con moto." It means rapid in the phrases meno mosso (less rapid) piu mosso (more rapid) and poco mosso (somewhat rapid).

MOTO.—Motion, speed, movement, tempo. Con moto—with an animated and energetic movement.
NETTAMENTE.—In a clear, neat, distinct style.
NOCTURNE.—Dreamily romantic or sentimental character.
NOVELLETTE.—A modern conception of contrasting movements.
NIENTE.—Nothing.
NUANCE.—Shading; change in musical expression.
NUOVO.—Again; anew.

O

OBBLIGATO.—Applied to an instrumental part usually accompanying a vocal solo.
OPUS (OP or op).—Work; one number in the series with which a composer marks his works.
OSSIA.—Or; or else; indicates an alternative reading or fingering of a passage.
OVVERO.—Or; or else.

P

PARLANTE.—"Speaking" singing with a clear and marked enunciation. In piano playing, parlante calls for a clear, crisp non legato.
PASSIONATO.—Passionately; in an impassioned style.
PASTORAL.—Rural or idyllic scenes.
PATETICO.—Pathetic.
PENSOSO.—Pensive, thoughtful.
PESANTE (PES.).—Heavy, ponderous, firm, vigorous.
PIACERE, A.—"At pleasure;" means that the expression of the passage is left to the performer's discretion.
PIANO (p).—Soft, softly.
PIU.—More.
PIZZICATO (PIZZ.).—"Pinched," plucked with the finger; a direction in music for bowing instruments to play the notes by plucking the strings.
PLACIDO.—Placid, smooth.
POCO.—Little. A poco a poco—little by little.
POI.—Then, thereafter.
POLACCA.—Polonaise; a Polish dance in 3-4 tempo characterized by the commencement on the strong beat.
POMPOSO.—Pompously, loftily, in a majestic dignified style.
PORTAMENTO.—A smooth gliding from one tone to another; differing from the legato in its more deliberate execution.
POSATO.—Dignified.
PRECISO.—With precision.
PRESTO.—Fast, rapid; faster than allegro. Presto assai, very, extremely rapid.
PRESSEZ.—Accelerando, rapid, fast.

R

RALLENTANDO (RALL).—Growing slower and slower.
RECITATIVE (RECIT.).—Declamatory singing; free in tempo and rhythm.
REPLICA.—A repeat or reprise.
RETARD.—To suspend—going slower.
RIGOROSO.—In strict time.
RINFORZANDO.—With special emphasis.
RITARDANDO (RIT.).—Growing slower and slower.
ROBUSTO.—Firmly and boldly.
ROMANCE.—Originally a ballad—a composition depicting love.
RUBATO.—"Rohbed." Means "dwell on," and often prolong prominent melody tones or chords.
RUVIDO.—In a rough, harsh style.

S

SCHERZANDO (SCHERZ.).—In a playful, sportive, toying manner.
SCHERZO.—An instrumental piece of a light, piquant, humorous character.
SCHIETTO.—Simply, quietly, neatly, deftly.
SEGNO.—A sign—al segno—to the sign—Dal segno—from the sign.
SEGUE (SEG.).—Following. In vaudeville this term is used often when several numbers are wanted without a break.
SEMIBREVE.—A whole note.
SEMPLICE.—In a simple, natural style.
SEMPRE (SEM. or SEMP.).—Always, continuously, throughout.
SENTIMENTO, CON.—With feeling.
SENZA.—Without.
SERENADE.—An evening or love song.
SERIOSO.—In a serious, grave, impressive style.
SFORZANDO (SFZ).—A direction to perform the tone or chord with special stress, or marked or sudden emphasis.

(To be continued)

Sixty-four Instruments in One.

By Clarence E. Sinn.

This is the way they are billing the big new Hope-Jones-Unit orchestra (Wurlitzer) lately installed at the Covent Garden, one of Chicago's latest amusement enterprises. The Wurlitzer instruments have been mentioned several times before in this department, but this big "No. 3" is worthy of special comment. I did not learn the number of organ pipes contained in this monster instrument, but here are a few details which were given me. (Many of these will apply in varying degrees to other styles of the Hope-Jones Unit orchestra.)

The console (key desk) consists of two manuals (keyboards) of 61 notes each and a pedal board of 32 notes. This key desk is movable and may be placed at any convenient distance from the organ pipes, which are connected by a set of cables, there being a direct individual connection with each pipe from the key desk through contact box fitted silver wires which are connected to relay in the instrument. The action used is electric pneumatic. All the vital contact points are of solid silver, which insures instant connections and does not corrode; the rollers on the union board are bars of solid silver, and the use of this metal in many vital parts of the mechanism suggests that it could be a good talking point for a salesman.

The key desk in the "No. 3" is fitted with 64 tone tablets and there are 189 possible tone combinations. (In the Unit system, I am informed, 61, 73, 85 and sometimes as many as 97 pipes are used to each stop, while in the average form of pipe as many as 97 pipes are used to each stop, while in the average form of pipe organ construction only 61 are used.) The wind pressure is higher than used by any other builder, producing greater volume of tone. The wind is furnished by a blower revolving a set of fans at a speed of 3,500 revolutions per minute. This is operated by a two-horsepower motor, which may be placed wherever convenient. The current for the action is of a low voltage (10 volts), which is furnished by a small generator driven by a belt from the blower shaft, so that when the instrument is in use there is a constant supply of current.

There are three essential departments of tone, viz: (1) Pipe Organ, (2) Orchestra, and (3) Percussion.

The Pipe Organ department is represented by heavy diapasons, big diaphonic foundation tone, flutes and the characteristic pipe organ strings.

The orchestral department is represented by tubas, trumpets, clarinets, orchestral string tone, flutes, piccolos, clarions, 'cellos and string bass. The percussion department is represented by drums, tympany, oxylophone, sleigh bells, harp, chimes cymbals, crash cymbals, triangle, castanets, bird whistle, thunder effect, gongs, horse trot, whistles, cathedral chimes, etc. One stop in particular contained in this group caught my fancy. They call it the "Chrysoglott." It has a fairy-like quality which I can compare to nothing else unless it be to the upper register of a harp. Indeed, a good imitation of the harp may be produced with this stop, and I heard a delightful effect of flute-and-harp, and violin-and-harp given by Miss Von De Lezz, a charming demonstrator of the Hope-Jones. Miss Von De Lezz, by the way, is presiding over the keyboard at the Covent Garden. She is a musician of ability.

Another item which will be of interest to musicians is the "double touch," or "second touch." With the ordinary pressure the keys are depressed and stop in the usual manner. A little additional pressure—a slight "kick"—will depress them slightly—just the fraction of an inch, and throw on another and different stop; any stop you may choose. It is thus possible to play upon the same keyboard a solo in one voice with one hand while the other hand plays an accompaniment in another voice. As, for example, tuba or flute with one hand, strings or bells with the other. This "second touch" applies to both keyboards as well as the pedals. Imagine the combinations and effects possible through this alone.

Taken all in all, the Hope-Jones Unit orchestra No. 3 is a triumph of mechanics and art and exhibitors visiting the city should not fail to see and hear it.

Music Rolls.

By S. M. BERG.

In a letter addressed to Mr. Richardson, of the Projection Department, the following paragraph is of interest:

Empire Theater,
Waltsburg, Wash.

As many small-town theaters use player pianos, I don't see why the exhibitors in the several localities don't try to set up some kind of a music exchange so that as music gets stale in one place it could be traded to another man and in this way give both houses fresh music. I myself have a fairly good bunch of music that is almost worthless to me because I am playing to the same people all the time and they are tired of hearing the same pieces month after month.

Yours truly,

A. C. STEWART.

I am afraid that Mr. Stewart is really not giving serious attention to his music, although he says his patrons are tired of hearing the same pieces. Any manager using mechanical music for the interpretation of pictures is at a decided disadvantage, no matter how many rolls are used or how great their variety.

In reply to his specific inquiry about the exchange of rolls, I am given to understand that Sohmers of New York City, have some system of exchange. No doubt there are other houses in the larger cities that have the same system.

Pathe Plans Greater Program

Two Gold Rooster Releases a Month--Now Working on Three Serial Productions.

INDICATION of increased activity by Pathe was contained in a statement by J. A. Berst, vice president and general manager, regarding plans for the early fall. Although no definite announcement has been made, it is reported that beginning in August or September Pathe will release two features a month on its Gold Rooster Program instead of one, as at present. The five million dollar serial program approved by Mr. Berst provides for an unbroken chain of two continued photoplays. Among the other features that will strengthen Pathe's greater program are the Lonesome Luke comedies, Goldberg cartoons, Pathe News, Heinie and Louie comedies, colored scenics and educational subjects.

Pathe is getting its features on the open market policy. Some of the largest independent producing companies in the industry will contribute to the Gold Rooster Program. Foremost is the Astra Film Corporation, recently organized by Louis Gasnier, formerly general manager of Pathe. Associated with Mr. Gasnier are Edward Jose, formerly director of the Feature Film Corporation, which produced "The Iron Claw"; George Fitzmaurice, whose Gold Rooster successes include "Via Wireless," "New York" and "At Bay"; Donald Mackenzie, who, with Mr. Gasnier produced "The Perils of Pauline;" George B. Seitz, author of "The Iron Claw," and a number of other big serial successes, Ouida Bergere and Anthony P. Kelly, two well-known photoplay writers. Among the artists who will appear in the Astra productions are Pearl White, William Courtney, Grace Darmond, Mary Nash, Ralph Kellard, Leon Barre, Jane Gray and Macey Harlan.

It is announced that the next Gold Rooster will be "The Shadow of Her Past," featuring Lina Cavalieri. July 17 is the release date of this picture. "A Woman's Fight," produced by Blache and featuring Geraldine O'Brien, will be released on August 14.

Mr. Jose's first contribution to the Astra offerings will be a five-reel feature production with Miss Pearl White, who has just concluded her part in "The Iron Claw."

Donald Mackenzie, under the supervision of Mr. Gasnier, is busy on a new serial for release in the fall under the title of "The Shielding Shadow." Mr. Seitz is responsible for the plot of this serial, which promises to accomplish much in thrills, love interest and mystery.

The Balboa Company of Long Beach, Cal., will also have an important place on Pathe's Gold Rooster Program. Arrangements have just been made for a series of feature productions with "Little Mary Sunshine." Work has already been started on these productions under the control of W. A. Douglas of the Pathe force, who is making his headquarters in the Balboa studio. Mr. Douglas is also looking after the production of "The Grip of Evil," Pathe's newest continued protoplay scheduled for release on July 17.

Pathe serial activities have been extended so rapidly that work is going on now on three continued photodramas. Scenarios for other serials for release this year are in active preparation.

At Leading New York Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of July 2 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

Blanche Sweet at the Strand.

THE Strand theater. for the week beginning July 2, offered Blanche Sweet in "The Dupe," another photoplay from the Jesse L. Lasky studios. The story was written by Hector Turnbull and was prepared for the screen by Margaret Turnbull. It was directed by Frank Reicher, well known in New York both as a capable actor and stage director. The heroine of "The Dupe" is a young girl from the country, who becomes private secretary to a society leader. The capricious wife, endeavoring to obtain a divorce from her husband, makes use of the native country girl. But the girl, by her honesty and decency, saves herself and frustrates the plans of her mistress. Miss Sweet is supported by a cast which includes Ernest Joy, Veda McEvers and Thomas Meighan.

Other features of the program were a short comedy featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, called "Taking a Rest"; a scenic study, "The Shonshone Dam"; an educational animal study, and the Strand Topical Review. On the musical program a new soprano, Perle Frank, appeared for the first time. Other soloists were Jan Rubini, violinist, and Bruce Weyman, baritone.

"The Captive God" at the Rialto.

William S. Hart was the star of the feature photoplay at the Rialto theater. It is a Triangle product—"The Captive God"—and Mr. Hart was supported by Enid Markey, Dorothy Dalton, Dorcas Matthews and Robert McKim. "The Captive God" is a spectacular production of the Montezumas at the dawn of the sixteenth century, and is an original work by Monte J. Katterjohn. In it Mr. Hart has a role adapted to his peculiar personal characteristics. Wrecked, as a cabin boy at the age of ten, and the only survivor of a Spanish armada, he is picked up on the ocean's shore by the people of Tehuan and, because of his white skin and mysterious antecedents and advent, regarded by them as a god. Thus it is that he becomes the ruler of a community rivaling in wealth and power that of the mighty Montezuma. A Keystone comedy, news and educational films, and a musical program, the soloists of which were Regina Vicarino, John Campbell and Frederick Gunther, completed the bill.

"The American Beauty" at the Broadway.

At the Broadway theater the attraction for the week was the latest Pallas-Paramount photoplay, "The American Beauty," for which Myrtle Stedman acted before the camera. There are many dramatic scenes in the picture during which Miss Stedman plays three distinct parts.

The remainder of the program consisted of the usual weekly events, colored scenic and educational studies, short comedies and cartoons.

Eighty-first Street Theater Program.

At the Eighty-first Street theater four Triangle pictures were shown. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday DeWolf Hopper was seen in "Casey at the Bat" and Fay Tincher in "Love's Getaway," a breezy comedy. On Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Frank Keenan in "The Phantom" and Douglas Fairbanks in "The Mystery of the Leaping Fish" were the motion picture stars.

WILLIAM A. BRADY OLD PICTURE MAN.

William A. Brady, now president and director of productions, took a hand in the making and exhibiting of pictures long before any one gave them any considerable attention. While Mr. Brady's experience as an exhibitor consisted mainly in selling rights to use the "Hale's Tour" device in the East, he got a considerable insight of the business through handling fight pictures, the first of which was taken of the Corbett-Courtney fight at Coney Island, N. Y., in 1902, under his direction. In 1906 he had the Jeffries-Sharkey fight at Coney Island recorded on the film.

STEINER AND PALEY EARLY BIRDS.

Two of the early moving picture men in New York City were William Steiner and William Paley. They had charge of the picture program at Proctor's Fifth Avenue theater and afterward engaged in the making of pictures. Mr. Steiner engaged in the exchange business afterward and later made pictures under the title of the Yankee Film Company. He is now trading under the title of the Photo-Drama Company. Paley was last employed as a cameraman on the Coast where he received a severe injury which caused his death a year or so later.

Kalem Working On a New Western Serial

"The Girl From Frisco" Will Be in Fifteen Chapters and Feature Marin Sais and True Boardman.

WOMAN'S growing independence, added to the rapid action of the outdoor West, form the theme of Kalem's latest series, of which announcement was made early this week. The new series, which will be known as "The Girl from Frisco," is being written by Robert Welles

Marin Sais Who Will Be Starred in Kalem's New Series of the West, "The Girl from Frisco."

Ritchie, the well known magazine contributor, and will feature Marin Sais, star of the "Social Pirates" series.

Another popular player in "The Girl from Frisco" will be True Boardman, well remembered as Stingaree in Kalem's series of that title by E. W. Hornung, author of "Raffles."

National publicity for "The Girl from Frisco" has been guaranteed by the publication of the stories in Short Stories Magazine.

Kalem's decision to produce "The Girl from Frisco" was prompted by the timeliness of the theme of woman's equality with man in the business world and the growing demand from exhibitors for stories of the rugged Western type. Miss Sais, in the leading role, will have ample opportunity to display her versatility and in a part that allows her to be seen in a society atmosphere and in thrilling horseback riding and other feats of daring in the outdoor West.

It is the little known new West, the West of irrigation projects, oil fields, mining interests and ranching that will be placed on the screen by Kalem in "The Girl from Frisco." As Barbara Brent, the heiress of Ace Brent, the empire builder, Miss Sais defends her father's vast interests against his powerful enemies and proves by her deeds her contention that woman is man's equal in any undertaking. There will be fifteen two-reel episodes in the series, each weekly release telling an entirely complete story.

Short Stories Magazine has made a novel departure by arranging to publish four of the complete stories, making practically a novelette, in the monthly issue of the magazine simultaneous with the release of the screen productions.

In addition to the two popular stars who have large screen followings, Kalem officials promise a number of surprises when the names of the other members of the cast are announced. The production of "The Girl from Frisco" will be under the direction of James W. Horne, who gained laurels by his success in Kalem's "Stingaree" and "The Social Pirates."

Work on the initial episode, "The Fighting Heiress," is already under way, the interiors being taken at the Glendale studio. No announcement has been made regarding the initial release date of the series. In this connection, Mr. Wright, of the Kalem Company, declared last week:

"We believe we have a sensational winner in 'The Girl from Frisco,' from the standpoint of stars, the theme and the stories, and we are not going to endanger its success by haste in production to meet release dates. That will not be decided until we can assure exhibitors that every possible step has been taken to guarantee perfection to the last detail."

Mutuals for Week of July 10.

"Dust" and "Her American Prince" Top the Bill—Many Short Subjects.

THE chief feature offerings of the Mutual Film Corporation for the week of July 10 are "Her American Prince," a five-act romantic drama by Carl Herbert adapted from the popular novel and play of the same name, in which Ormi Hawley and Bradley Barker have the leading roles (July 13), and "Dust," a five-act sociological drama featuring Winnifred Greenwood and Franklin Ritchie (July 10). Both will be released as Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe edition.

"Quicksands of Deceit," with Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh in the chief parts in the Mutual's three-part feature of the same week, will be released July 13.

Topping the two-part releases of the Mutual for the week of July 10, is "Love's Bitter Jealousy," an American production for release July 10. "Nugget Jim's Partner," a Western story replete with action, to be released July 14, is the Mustang contribution to the week's releases. Crane Wilbur, as the star of "The Fool's Game," for release July 15, is offered in the second of the new two-act features.

Included in the Mutual's comedy offerings for this week are "Stung, by Gum," with Rube Miller, and "A Deep Sea Liar," starring Ben Turpin, from the Vogue studios, for release July 11 and July 15, respectively. The Beauty contributions include "Two Slips and a Miss," with Carol Halloway and John Sheehan, for release July 12, and "The Rummy Act of Omar K. M.," with Oral Humphrey, to be released July 16. George Ovey is the star of the Cub comedy, "The Hero of the E. Z. Ranch."

Mutual Weekly No. 80, for release July 12, presents a number of exclusive pictures taken in the various mobilization camps throughout the country and along the Mexican border. "See America First," the Mutual's popular scenic for release the same day, includes the second part of the trip through Glacier National Park in Montana. "Reel Life," the Mutual Film Magazine in pictures, for release July 16, is comprised of a number of unusually interesting subjects.

Paramount Subjects for July 17.

Lasky's "The Dream Girl" and Famous Players' "Under Cover" Head the Bill.

PARAMOUNT pictures scheduled for release during the week of July 17 will be "The Dream Girl," July 17, a Lasky production, in which Mae Murray will be featured, and "Under Cover," July 20, from the Famous Players studio, starring Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore. Both are five-reel features. Travel, romance and the "magazine on the screen" will be included in the three single reel subjects completing the week's program. They will be the Burton Holmes travel picture, "Down the Danube to Vienna," the Paramount-Bray animated cartoon "Colonel Heeza Liar's Courtship," and the Paramount Pictographs.

When the thoughts of J. R. Bray's Colonel Heeza Liar turn to matrimony he makes a number of interesting discoveries about love and courtship. Alone in his bachelor quarters he dreams of a happy married life and decides to settle down.

One of the mid-summer screen diversions provided for film audiences by the editor of Paramount Pictographs is a refreshing motion picture feature on "Ice." This edition of the screen magazine will also contain glimpses of men in public life caught as they are addressing large audiences in "Oratory"; the business feature, "System"; "Better Babies"; "Ant vs. Man," and "Juggling" in Hugo Munsterberg's series "Testing Your Mind."

"Down the Danube to Vienna" in the Burton Holmes travel pictures continues the screen journey which Paramount audiences are making with Burton Holmes through Europe as it existed before the war.

Essanay Three Months Ahead

Plays Completed Through to September—Three Studios in Operation.

THE new Essanay studio in Chicago has so greatly facilitated production that the company now has completed plays clear through the month of September. The company has now three studios in operation at 1333 Argyle street, on the North Side of the city, and can take care of both features and short subjects at the same time with ease.

The new structure, said to be the largest indoor artificially lighted studio in the world, is 350 feet long by 175 wide. It forms a west wing to the old studio buildings and runs from Argyle street one block south. On the east side of the old building there is an extension for factory purposes, while in the center there is a large portico, so that the building as it now stands forms a perfect E.

The main offices have been moved to the new studio building. There is a large reception room on the first floor where those who come on business are directed to the various departments. To the right of the entrance is a large carpenter shop, and back of this is the studio proper, stretching back to the rear of the building. At one side is a large new property room.

The front of the building, on the second floor, is devoted to the main offices, including that of George K. Spoor, president, and other officials. Here also are the advertising, scenario and auditing departments, and offices of the directors and assistants.

The entire wing of the old building formerly occupied by these offices has been given over to the women's department.

Exclusive to Make One a Month

Booking Concerns First Subject Is "Where Is My Father?" Featuring May Ward.

EXCLUSIVE Features, Inc., which has done some big booking throughout New York State, makes its initial appearance in the producing field this month, with the drama, "Where Is My Father?" starring May Ward.

"Working, as we have, with the most important exhibitors in the Empire State, we have been able to sense the kind of pictures that are most vital to box office receipts, said Joseph M. Goldstein, president and treasurer. "Partly at the suggestion of a number of our regular exhibitors and partly because we were able, by a happy combination of circumstances, to line up a cast which is able to measure up with the best standards of picture making, we have finally decided to produce one-a-month big features. We feel that in the drama, 'Where Is My Father?' we have struck a new note. Taken from the novel of Alexander Dumas we have faithfully translated into pictures the throbbing emotions of the tale. While the theme of Dumas is sensational, it has been handled with subtle finesse and exquisite direction. The acting of May Ward really gives a strong moral lesson, for the punishment is such as to act far more effectively than any sermon."

May Ward.

Mr. Goldstein pointed out that regularly henceforth Exclusive Features, Inc., will release a feature of five to seven reels every month.

DR. LALA VISITS WORLD OFFICE.

A visitor at the office of the Moving Picture World during the past week was Dr. Ramon Reyes Lala, Filipino author and lecturer, of Manila, P. I. Dr. Lala is much interested in the subject of motion pictures and talked entertainingly of the houses in the Philippines devoted to their exhibition. Many of the theaters are of the open-air variety; these as a rule do business but six months of the year, owing to the rainy season. The prices of admission range from 10 and 15 cents Filipino—just half of the United States basis—for the smaller houses to a much higher figure for the pretentious theaters.

Dr. Lala, who is about to begin a tour on the Chautauqua circuit, is the author of "The Philippine Islands," printed in 1899. He expects on his return to the Philippines to begin work on the second edition.

Coming Selig Productions

"The Conflict" and "The Old Man Who Tried to Grow Young," are Diamond Specials.

THE Selig Polyscope Company announces an additional number of meritorious comedies and dramas for release through General Film Service. "The Conflict," a Selig Diamond Special, will be released on Monday, July 24. Fritzi Brunette, Jack Pickford, Charles West and Vivian Reed enact the leading roles. "The Conflict" is a drama having to do with the sacrifice of a clergyman.

"Local Color" is another of the Tom Mix western comedy series and will be released on Saturday, July 29. The comedy has to do with an eastern girl who goes west in search of local color for a magazine story—and then things happen!

On Monday, July 31, the Selig Company will release through General Film service a Selig Diamond Special entitled, "The Old Man Who Tried to Grow Young." The title will convey but a faint conception of the unusual character of this film production. The story is said to be out of the ordinary in every respect. Al W. Filson, the Selig character star, enacts the leading role, and he is afforded many opportunities for wonderful acting and he takes advantage of all of them. Mr. Filson is supported by Charles West, Vivian Reed, Harry Lonsdale and other stars.

On Saturday, Aug. 5, the Selig Company will release another Mix Western cowboy comedy, "An Angelic Attitude."

Cobe Reports Business Good

Some of the Exchanges that Have Taken on "The Yellow Menace" on State Rights.

ANDREW J. COBE, vice president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, who has been making an active country wide campaign on behalf of his concern, reports that business throughout the country in the motion picture industry is brisk, with promises of immediate future improvement. On his return to New York last week Mr. Cobe stated the demand for serials appeared to be on the increase, as evidenced by the tremendous business he has done with the new Unity serial, "The Yellow Menace," in which Edwin Stevens is starred, supported by Margaret Gale and Florence Malone.

"The Yellow Menace," which is the first serial ever to be sold on the state rights basis, has been snapped up by independent exchanges all over the country. Among those that have acquired state rights to the serial are the Electric Theater Supply Company, 13th and Vine streets, Philadelphia; Quality Film Company, Inc., 404 Ferry street, Pittsburgh; Eastern Feature Film Company, 57 Church street, Boston; William A. Lochren Company, 16-18 North 4th street, Minneapolis; General Feature Film Company, 5 South Wabash avenue, Chicago; Scott & Sanford, Commerce street, Dallas; Famous Players Film Service, 12 Queen street, East, Toronto; Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions, Chicago.

ROSENTHAL BUYS COAST RIGHTS FOR "CIVILIZATION."

Isaac A. Rosenthal of the Sun Photoplay Company, San Francisco, and the Sutton Feature Film Company of Seattle, Wash., has secured the rights of exhibition for "Civilization," covering the States of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming and New Mexico, and has organized the Western Civilization Company to handle the proposition. The new company is composed largely of New York capitalists. Duncan M. Stewart is president of the company, Richard L. Cowan, vice-president; William J. O'Toole, secretary, and I. A. Rosenthal, general manager.

Offices will be opened in San Francisco, Seattle and Denver to facilitate the distribution of the picture in this large territory. The picture will be put on in the same elaborate manner as that adopted at the Criterion theater in New York.

Mr. Rosenthal has already left for San Francisco to open business and will proceed with the organization of his forces at once.

DIRECTOR ROTHAPFEL BACK FROM INDIANA.

Managing Director S. L. Rothapfel, of the Rialto, has returned from a flying trip to the west, based primarily upon a visit to Indianapolis to assist in an advisory capacity in the construction of the new Circle theater there.

Brady's Quest for Atmosphere Untiring

Producer Going After the Real Stuff in Locations, Costumes and Settings.

WILLIAM A. BRADY, because of the settling of the executive propositions of World Film, able to concentrate his energy on the production channel of that concern's creations, demonstrated within the past four weeks his ambition to put into his screen productions the same infinite care for details which has characterized his stage plays.

For the story of the loved historical character, "Nathan Hale," which is now in the making under Emile Chautard's supervision, Robert Warwick, Gail Kane, Clara Whipple, Alec B. Francis and thirty-five World players, journeyed to Boston. Mr. Brady accompanied the organization, and through influential friends secured the consent of the directors of the Boston Museum to allow Chautard to use the old prints, relics, preserved uniforms, and costumes of revolutionary times, as patterns for his property and wardrobe departments. The historic landmarks of Concord, Lexington and Marblehead, Mass., were the scenic locations for the well known episodes in Nathan Hale's career, and Boston Common was turned over to the organization each morning for a week.

Scene from "Friday the 13th" (World).

For "Miss Petticoats," in which Alice Brady is soon to make her appearance, an old New Bedford whaler, the Charles W. Morgan, was engaged by World Film and with its crew of twenty-five men of every imaginable nationality, it was taken to sea and there, for an entire week, scenes incidental to the picture were made.

Mr. Brady has consented to announce the fact that the picture was made at New Bedford and will give the first showing there.

The effect of building out-of-doors was more than effectively noted in "La Vie De Boheme," and in "Friday the 13th," where comment was made on the faithfulness to detail and general satisfaction of what otherwise would have been studio sets.

GAUMONT PROGRAM FOR THIRD WEEK IN JULY.

The outstanding feature on the Gaumont program of Mutual Pictures for the week of July 16 is the Gertrude McCoy photoplay, "Gates of Divorce." Responding to the great demand for this favorite player after she had been seen in the Mutual Masterpicture, "The Isle of Love," the Gaumont company is presenting her in a shorter production.

The first release of the week will be "Reel Life," the Mutual Magazine in Film, July 16. The first of its three divisions is "Quarrying Marble." The second makes plain how the physical regeneration of France was brought about. The pictures, called "Physical Education by Means of Sports," are most enlightening. The third division shows "How Auto Thieves Work."

The "See America First" release of July 19 takes spectators on a trip to New Orleans, La. On the same reel will be one of Harry Palmer's Kartoon Komics. Now that there are so many topics, political and martial, engrossing national attention, Mr. Palmer is devoting himself to topical comment upon them.

The third single reel release of the week is Gaumont's motographic news reel, the Mutual Weekly.

Breaking Into Panama.

How American Pictures Were Introduced to the People of Colon, R. P.—How They Like 'Em.

SOME time ago a young man who had been engaged in the picture business in New York City went down to Colon in the new Republic of Panama, to introduce American pictures. He found a few foreign pictures being shown in one or two rather cheap picture houses and when he tried to get the American subjects on the screen he received scant encouragement. Allying himself with the most progressive of the theater owners in Colon this young American succeeded in introducing an "All American" program. This was continued for two months when the owner of the theater was compelled to take the Americans off to save his business.

Now comes the strange part of the story. Hardly had the American pictures been cut off than numerous and hopeful inquiries were made as to when the good American pictures were to be shown again. Upon this interest being shown by the patrons of the house the American pictures were restored and are today the most popular in Colon.

The young man's name is J. Pivar and he was, until recently, general manager of the Strand Theater Company of Colon. He arrived in New York some weeks ago for the purpose of securing a dependable service for his company which was about to complete a new house in Colon with a seating capacity of 1,200 persons. He said that two houses in Colon were using American subjects.

VITAGRAPH V-L-S-E FOR WEEK OF JULY 10.

"Fathers of Men" a six part drama of the Northwest, from the pen of James Oliver Curwood, is Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon Feature release, Monday, July 10. On the same day "Kernel Nutt, the Piano Tuner," a one-part comedy, featuring Frank Daniels is also offered through V-L-S-E.

"Fathers of Men" tells a story of the strict standard of morality in the great Northwest, where men are held accountable to each other and not to the law for their actions. Robert Edeson is seen in the dual roles of John and Robert Howland and is supported by Naomi Childers, William Humphrey, Bobby Connelly, Harry Northrup, Stanley Dunn, Kalman Matus, Logan Paul, Robert Gaillard, Carolyn Birch and Betty Howe. William Humphrey also directed the production.

Frank Daniels, in "Kernel Nutt the Piano Tuner," is mistaken for a doctor, a burglar and various other things, just because he had found a black satchel. Olive Trevor, William Shea and Donald MacBride are seen in Mr. Daniels' support. Charles Dickson directed the action from Bide Dudley's scenario.

STRONG PATHE PROGRAM FOR JULY 10.

July 10 comes in with the final episode of "The Iron Claw," "The Triumph of the Laughing Mask." The question that has been agitating the minds of more people than are concerned in the outcome of the present European struggle, or the result of the coming presidential election, viz.: "Who is the Laughing Mask?" will be answered.

"A Trial of Souls" is the title of the latest chapter of the "Who's Guilty?" series, featuring Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore and released in the week of July 10. It shows the criminality of parents' attempts to use their children as pawns in the furtherance of their own desire.

The Lonesome Luke comedy for release in the week of July 10 is "Luke Rides Rough Shod" and features that India rubber comedian, Harold Lloyd, as Lonesome Luke.

"The Bang Miu Gold Mines," and "Some Ports in Catalonia" make up an interesting industrial and scenic reel on the Pathe program for release in the week of July 10.

The Pathe News No. 66 of July 12, and the Pathe News No. 57 of July 15, take us up to the week beginning July 17 on the Pathe Program.

GOLD KING SCREEN EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO.

President Jones of the Gold King Screen Company left Altus Thursday to attend the National Convention in Chicago, where he will arrange for an elaborate display in the Gold King Screen booth. All visitors at this booth will be welcomed and presented with an appropriate souvenir.

While en route Mr. Jones attended the meeting of the Oklahoma state officers of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, of which he is vice-president, held at Oklahoma City Friday, June 30.

Selig Chicago Plant a Big One

Description of the Lake City Studio, Laboratory and Offices —Exhibitors May Have Mail Sent in Care of Company.

Chicago, where is to be held the National Convention of Motion Picture Exhibitors, is an important center for the production of motion pictures. One of the largest producing concerns, the Selig Polyscope Company, here operates one of its three studios.

The Chicago plant of Selig is one of the largest and most modern institutions of its kind in the world. The studio and laboratory buildings occupy an entire city block on Western avenue. The buildings contain in reality two large studios. In addition a large and modern three-story building for the housing of the laboratories was recently erected. Here are the technical departments, including the cutting and trimming. All developing and printing is now done in the Chicago studios.

Selig Chicago Studios.

In addition to the Chicago plant the Selig Company owns large studios in and near Los Angeles, Cal., in addition to the Selig Zoo, which contains one of the finest collections of wild animals in captivity.

In Chicago the Selig Company maintains a large suite of offices in the Garland block, 58 East Washington street. These offices contain the private offices of William N. Selig, president of the company; the offices of the general manager, offices of the Selig-Tribune, the news semi-weekly, the publicity, auditing, cashier's, clerical and other departments. The private projection parlors of the company are also located here.

A cordial invitation is extended to attending exhibitors to visit the Selig offices. Mail addressed to them in care of the Selig Company will be held for them.

Picking Successor to "Diamond" Serial

Over a Hundred Thousand Scenarios Have Been Submitted Mutual Film Corporation.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the award for the $10,000 sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky," the Mutual's now famous photo-novel. is to be expected in a short time. No less than one hundred thousand scenarios were received up to the closing date February 20, 1915. The exact number according to the record clerk's count is 100,033.

Out of this mass of stories will be chosen the one which will win the big award. The board of judges will include Guy Lee of the editorial staff of the Chicago Tribune and Benjamin Judell of the Mutual Film Corporation's staff. A third member of the board of judges, probably a Chicago woman of note, will be announced in a few days.

The first session of the board for a preliminary survey of the contestants' efforts will be held in Chicago at the offices of the Mutual Film Corporation about the middle of the month. The sequel to the big photo novel will be put on the screen in such form that it may be presented by the exhibitor either in a series of releases or as a complete feature.

"The contest brought out the biggest response that any photoplay scenario contest has ever developed," remarked John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation. "I am told by those who have looked over the manuscripts as they were received that the work of a large number of new writers of merit have been received and that also there are many manuscripts of unusual promise from all over the country. So it appears at this stage of the contest that the award may go most anywhere. The task before the judges is certainly going to be a difficult one.

"Kalem's Smash-Up Week"

Dynamite Explosions Occur in Two Releases for Week of July 10, While Ham Is Active, Too.

Kalem's releases for the week of July 10 on the General Film programme almost make that week seem like "Kalem's Smash-up Week." In two of the single reelers issued in that period, "The Wishing Ring" and "The Broken Brake," houses were blown up by dynamite to meet the demands of the stories, while Ham and Bud do their share of destruction in a comedy with the self-explanatory title of "The Baggage Smashers."

"The Wishing Ring," a Sis Hopkins comedy released Friday, July 14, finds Rose Melville in possession of a miraculous ring that brings about all sorts of mishaps, culminating in the blowing up of a blacksmith shop only a few seconds after the rescue of Henry Murdock, playing the part of Sis's admirer.

The second explosion occurs in "The Broken Brake," a one-reel "Hazard of Helen," released Saturday, July 15. Helen is called upon to perform a number of daring feats in this issue which finds a freight car carrying victims of the dynamite explosion rushing to almost certain destruction with the brakes out of commission. A leap from horseback to a speeding freight train and back again forms Helen's big exploit.

"The Baggage Smashers," which finds Ham and Bud engaged in the gentle art told of in the title is released Tuesday, July 11, with the week's releases completed by "The Quack Quakers," an Ethel Teare comedy which gives that pretty comedienne an opporeunity to display her charms in bathing garb and demure Quaker costume. The Ethel Teare subject is released on Wednesday, July 12.

George D. Baker Joins Metro

GEORGE D. BAKER, formerly of the Vitagraph forces, has been engaged by Metro Pictures Corporation, and will direct the next Metro production in which Emmy Wehlen will star. Miss Wehlen's last film appearance was in "Her Reckoning, or Tables Turned," a Metro-Rolfe feature. Mr. Baker is one of the most efficient directors in the field of motion pictures. Among his successes have been "The Dust of Egypt," "A Price For Folly," "A Man's Sacrifice," "The Two Edged Sword," "The Shop Girl," and a new photoplay of the director's own writing, "Tarantula," will be released soon.

George D. Baker.

Mr. Baker knows the theatrical business thoroughly, having been actor, author and manager. The firm of Baker & Castle produced "Graustark," an immense box office success which is still highly popular; "In the Bishop's Carriage," and Mr. Baker's dramatization of Harold McGrath's novel, "The Goose Girl."

He was formerly portrait artist on the old Chicago Times, political cartoonist on the Nashville American and a frequent contributor to Puck and Judge. His acting experience was gained with Walker Whiteside, Nance O'Neil, Effie Ellsler, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Whytal and the companies of Brady and Grismer, Litt and Dingwall. Mr. Baker's broad experience makes him a valuable factor in motion picture work.

MUTUAL ANNUAL ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Mutual Film Corporation, held Tuesday, June 27, in New York, the following were elected officers for the coming year: John R. Freuler, president; Crawford Livingston, first vice president; George W. Hall, second vice president; S. S. Hutchinson, treasurer; Samuel Field, secretary. Mr. Freuler was also named as chairman of the executive board, and executive offices of the corporation will be established in Chicago.

Unicorn Spreads Over Country

Special Inducements Offered Exchange Managers Bring Good Results—New Names on Board of Directors.

WITH a network of exchanges promising efficient distribution through all parts of the country, the Unicorn Film Service Corporation has realized a substantial progress during the past few weeks. There has been the keenest sort of competition for the thousand dollars offered to the exchange doing the most business up to July 1; also an incentive for aggressive methods was provided by General Manager Ike Schlank and Secretary J. A. McKinney in an additional weekly award of $50 going to the exchange showing the greatest increase in rentals. The Unicorn management, confident of the value of the program, is determined that the one and two-reel pictures shall be brought to the attention of every exhibitor.

At a recent meeting in the New York offices of Unicorn, at 126 West Forty-sixth street, the following men were placed on the board of directors: Joseph J. O'Donohue, Jr., William V. Creighton, Louis M. Heminway, William H. Baker, George F. Shaver and George Carlton Comstock. They will serve with the officers of the company, Leslie R. Palmer, president; J. A. Coram, vice-president; Ike Schlank, vice-president and general manager; Alwyn Ball, Jr., treasurer; J. A. McKinney, secretary.

Speaking on behalf of the board of directors, Mr. Schlank said: "In my long experience with motion picture enterprises I have never seen a proposition accepted more readily than Unicorn Films. Requests have been received for an increase in the weekly program; but, having determined upon twenty-one reels, I think the company should stick to that number. Many appreciative letters from exhibitors have commented upon the drawing power of our subjects and the wide variety of the stories."

J. A. Eslow, western division manager, in a letter to Mr. Schlank, referred to the remarkable spread of Unicorn films throughout the West. Single and double reels, he reported, are disposed of with equal ease, and in one day he received no less than three requests for return dates on especially popular subjects. The drawing power of players such as Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh, Henry B. Walthall and the Gish sisters is proving of distinct value to exhibitors using this service. Films having a direct bearing on current events are another valuable feature of a program designed to meet the requirements of variety and quality.

John G. Adolfi Director of Successes

JOHN G. ADOLFI, the Fox director, was born in New York City, February 19, 1885, the son of Gustav Adolfi, a prominent actor. Mr. Adolfi had no royal road to screen direction, because he traveled the long, hard road of the legitimate stage, with Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, both here and abroad, Dustin Farnum, Katherine Ostermann, Julia Marlowe, Ethel Barrymore, Ezra Kendall and many others.

John G. Adolfi.

It was in 1909 that the screen claimed him as a leading man. He was one of the first actors of international reputation to work for the Vitagraph Company. "The Spy," directed by William V. Ranous, was his first release, and he was so successful that he portrayed the name part in the big feature, "Napoleon." This was followed by "Julius Caesar, in which he played Brutus. Four years ago he began directing after having played many excellent parts at the Griffith Coast studios and among his most successful two-reel productions was "A Woman Scorned." He directed for three years with Reliance, and then came East to the Universal. In November, 1915, he went under the Fox banner, and since then has produced "Merely Mary Ann" and "A Modern Thelma," both featuring Vivian Martin and Harry Hilliard, and he is now engaged in "Caprice of the Mountains," by Clarence J. Harris. Mr. Adolfi adapts all the stories given to him for production because he demands the three cardinal requisites—sympathy, suspense and surprise—in every story he screens.

He is one of the few directors who takes full responsibility for his productions, story, the work of his actors, accuracy of detail and atmosphere, and believes that when the picture reaches the screen if anything is wrong the director alone is to blame. In fact, according to Mr. Adolfi, no actor or actress is really to blame if he or she misinterprets a thought or makes a false move.

Empire State Delegates to Chicago

List of the Men Who Will Represent the Various New York Locals.

THE New York state organization is sending the following delegates to Chicago, who will leave on the special train. Manhattan local, Lee A. Ochs, president; Thomas Howard, secretary; Samuel Trigger, national vice-president. Benjamin Lyons, secretary; Louis F. Blumenthal, treasurer; I. Hartstall, S. L. Rothapfel, Charles Steiner, A. Weiss, M. Needle, Otto Lederer, F. A. Gorman, Henry Haring, Lester Cohen, Aaron Corn.

Brooklyn, John Manheimer, president; William Brandt, secretary; L. L. Levine, first vice-president; Ben Title, second vice-president, and H. Clark Mooney.

Bronx, H. Coleman, D. Picker, H. Cole.
Yonkers, Arthur Weiss.
Schenectady, L. A. Buettner.
Utica, W. H. Linton.
Syracuse, G. M. Gibbons.
Rochester, A. N. Wolff, president.
Albany, S. Suckno.
Rome, E. M. Day.

The committee announces that sixty rooms have been reserved at the Sherman Hotel for the New York state delegation. It extends to the manufacturers and accessory men the courtesy of the special train to Chicago.

Bay State League Joins National Body

Massachusetts Exhibitors, Heretofore Independent, Decide to Send Delegate to Chicago.

At a business meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, held following its big outing at Hull on Wednesday, June 28, it was decided to affiliate with the national body and to send a delegate to the convention in Chicago. President E. H. Horstmann was chosen to represent the Bay State organization.

This action was taken as the result of a spirited discussion. Among those taking part in it were the president, G. F. Washburn, P. F. Lydon, F. J. Howard, Louis Boas, J. Lourie and H. I. Wasserman.

The Massachusetts Exhibitors' League, which comprises in its membership some of the most prominent picture men in the country, heretofore has been independent. Its decision to join the national league will have much significance to exhibitors throughout the United States.

BERST SUGGESTS CHANGES IN HUGHES BILL.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, saw by appointment Dudley M. Hughes, chairman of the House Committee on Education, in Washington, recently, with reference to the bill for Federal censorship. As a result of the conference Mr. Hughes was willing to take up several amendments to the bill, embodying important changes which Mr. Berst had suggested.

Mr. Hughes showed great willingness to co-operate with every branch of the moving picture industry in making the bill the best possible, an attitude that greatly pleased Mr. Berst, who, as is known, strongly believes that Federal censorship offers the best argument against local censorship.

ANOTHER OPERA SINGER COMES TO SCREEN.

Mme. Ganna Walska, the noted Polish grand opera singer, who recently lost her singing voice, has arranged to appear in motion pictures while she is undergoing treatment with a throat specialist. She is an excellent type and immediately upon presenting herself at the Metro-Rolfe studio Director William Nigh, then engaging players, arranged for her to appear in his company. Irene Fenwick, who was last seen on Broadway in the successful play, "The Co-respondent," is the star in the new Nigh picture in which Mme. Walska will make her screen debut. It is as yet unnamed.

Page Peters Drowned

Popular Morosco-Pallas Lead Dies in Surf at Hermosa Beach, Cal.

THE New York office of the Morosco-Pallas organizations has just received the sad news from its headquarters in Los Angeles of the death of Page Peters, the popular screen actor who has been appearing in important juvenile leads under these brands for some time past.

Accompanied by a party of friends Peters motored down to Hermosa Beach from Los Angeles for a day's outing. While in bathing the Morosco-Pallas player swam out beyond the rest of his friends and was not missed until some time later, when a search was made. His body was found about one hundred feet from the shore by some of the searchers in a motor boat. For two hours a pulmotor was used in a vain attempt to resuscitate him.

Page Peters.

Page Peters was born in Louisville, Ky., and educated at the Western Military Academy. Six feet in height and of striking dark complexion, he was one of the most handsome men in motion pictures as well as one of the most well liked actors both in and out of the profession. Among his more important characterizations in the silent drama were those presented in "Pasquale," with George Beban; "Davy Crockett," "The Gentleman from Indiana," and "Ben Blair," with Dustin Farnum, "An International Marriage," with Rita Jolivet; "He Fell in Love With His Wife," with Florence Rockwell; "Madame La Presidente," with Anna Held, and other subjects of equal prominence.

V-L-S-E TO BOOST OPEN BOOKING.

Representatives of the V-L-S-E attending the Chicago convention will be at the command of that body to describe in detail to those interested the advantages which its open-booking, box-office value methods of renting features possess for both exhibitors and manufacturers. Notwithstanding the fact that the V-L-S-E was the company to institute these policies and has been most prominent in their futherance, thereby gaining much prestige and profit, the Big Four representatives announce that they are firm in the conviction that the adoption of open-booking and box-office value systems by the trade will make for the best interests of the industry.

For this reason the Big Four will stand ready to respond to any call for information regarding the success which exhibitors have achieved by reason of these business plans, regardless of the fact that their general acceptance by the field will mean that V-L-S-E will be forced to share with others the advantages which they have possessed exclusively in the past.

"CIVILIZATION" TO OPEN AT BRIGHTON BEACH.

Thomas H. Ince and Al Woods will present "Civilization," Mr. Ince's big multiple reel cinema peace spectacle, for an all-summer engagement at the Brighton Beach Music Hall beginning next Friday, July 7. "Civilization" is also being shown at Cohan's Grand Opera House in Chicago where it has ushered in its first week with unusual success playing to capacity audiences in a house where motion pictures have hitherto been shown.

At the Criterion theater where "Civilization" now in its seventh week is about to reach its one hundredth performance, crowded houses are still the rule twice daily and Sundays.

State rights buyers are now negotiating at the new "Civilization" offices in the Times Building for the rights of this picture throughout the South, West and Middle West.. Victor Sorrensen is endeavoring to get the Scandinavian rights and Richard Pitrot is competing for the South American rights.

Bluebird Keeping Public Promises

Innovation of Featuring the Play and Not the Player, Working Satisfactorily.

THE first advertising in the nation-wide campaign that is to be prosecuted in the interest of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., has been issued and the pictures upon which General Manager Hoffman bases his promises to the public in proof that "The play's the thing" will be released in regular order. "The Three Godfathers" was the June 19 release and to that subject the initial advertising applied.

"Shoes," the June 26 release, has proven to be as strong an exhibition card as its advance showings indicated that it would be; the great majority of exhibitors who have been running Bluebirds one day in the week have arranged for "Shoes" to run two and three days. The Moss & Brill houses in New York are using this subject a full week, something unusual at those theaters.

This subject is particularly representative of the Bluebird claim that the play and not the star is "the thing." Mary MacLaren, who is the leading lady in "Shoes," was never heard of by anybody in the show business until Lois Weber "discovered" her and made her the heroine of "Shoes."

"Broken Fetters," the Oriental subject; "The Love Girl," praised by the critics for its strength as a play; "The Grasp of Greed," which has just been shown for review; "The Silent Battle" and "The Secret of the Swamp" are all exploited in the Bluebird's national campaign strictly upon their merits as photoplays and entirely regardless of the players who would, under other conditions, be "stars."

Another angle of the Bluebird theory will be demonstrated in the release, early in August, of "Bettina Lover a Soldier," a love-comedy based on Ludovic Halevy's "L'Abbe Constantin." In this feature Rupert Julian, Louise Lovely and Francelia Billington were cast because they were the best players for their individual roles.

VITAGRAPH GENERAL FILM RELEASES FOR JULY 10.

Five thousand feet of film from Vitagraph are on the General Film program for the week of July 10. "Waters of Lethe" is a three-part Broadway Star Feature drama from the Western studio, and "Wrong Beds" and "The Man From Egypt" are each single part comedies.

Mary Anderson is seen as Constance Tourney in "Waters of Lethe." Jack Mower, Corinne Griffith, Carl Von Schiller and Otto Lederer are seen in the support of "Sunshine Mary." The story was written by Mrs. Owen Bronson and directed by William Wolbert.

"Wrong Beds" is a comedy of errors in which William Dangman takes the leading role. George O'Donnell, Lucille Crane, Harry Mayo and Florence Natol are also seen in this picture, which was written by James A. Stiles and produced by Frank Currier.

Hughie Mack, in "The Man From Egypt" finds himself pursued by an Egyptian Sheik who is determined to recover a priceless ruby, the eye of the sacred God Amut. Jewell Hunt, John Flatow, Kate Price and William Shea support Mr. Mack. The story was written by C. Graham Baker and Lawrence Semon, and the latter also directed the action of the story.

EMILY STEVENS IMPROVING AFTER OPERATION.

Emily Stevens, the Metro star, who was last seen on that program in "The House of Tears," is a patient in the Woman's Hospital, New York, where she recently underwent an operation for appendicitis. Miss Stevens was in the West playing the stellar role in "The Unchastened Woman," after its long run on Broadway. Immediately upon her return to New York she suffered an attack and hurried to the hospital. The operation was successful and Miss Stevens will soon be able to leave the hospital, the surgeons say. In all probability Miss Stevens will be starred in another Metro wonderplay before she begins her regular engagement on the speaking stage on Broadway.

FOUR V-L-S-E BRANCH MANAGERS HONORED.

Realizing that an improvement in the welfare of the film industry in general is an improvement in the welfare of each individual in it, four branch managers of V-L-S-E are at the head of screen clubs in as many cities of the country, and a number of other members of the Big Four family have been instrumental in the organizations of various others.

Those at the head of screen clubs are E. R. Pearson, of Kansas City; C. E. Holah, of Cincinnati; Frank B. Spurrier, of Washington, and C. E. Shurtleff, of Cleveland.

Factory Methods Will Ruin Pictures

Albert Capellani, Director General of Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation, Discusses Phases of Film Production.

THE yard stick and so called "efficiency engineer" constitute the greatest menace to the artistic development of the motion picture, according to Albert Capellani, whose work in "Les Miserables," "Camille," and "La Vie de Boheme," has established him as one of the greatest directors. On his record M. Capellani's opinion should command attention at any time, but the fact that since his advent to America a year ago he has until now refrained from expressing his views for publication adds interest to his remarks.

"You can't make photoplays as you make shoes," declares the director general of the new Clara Kimball Young Film Corporation. "There are too many motion picture factories in America and too few real studios. Producing a motion picture is an art, not a job. You can't turn your studio into a machine shop, your actors into mill hands and your directors into foremen and expect to produce artistic and appealing creations that will elevate the screen above the sordid and commonplace and place the motion picture on the plane with its allied arts of drama, literature and music.

Albert Capellani.

"The standardizing of the feature picture into five reels is one of the greatest drawbacks to the advancement of our art. You might as well tell a novelist just how many words he must write his next story in, or a painter how many brushfuls of paint he must use on his next canvas. The majority of stories produced as five-reel pictures today could have been done infinitely better in three reels. On the other hand many a wonderful story has been ruined by the necessity of cutting it to five reels.

"In other words I hope to see the day when the length of the picture will be governed by the story it tells. With our new company, for instance, we are not going to spoil our pictures by cutting them all to five reels. I expect to put 'The Common Law' for Clara Kimball Young in six reels. It may go to seven. It depends on the material. Its exact length will be determined when we have finished the story and come to assembling the picture. Nothing essential to the story or artistically vital will be eliminated by the yard stick."

In commenting on the trend of the studio art in this country M. Capellani said: "America has made tremendous strides artistically as well as commercially in the production of pictures. If there is any tendency more than another that I have noticed and would criticise it is the too free use of the 'close-up' and the apparent timidity of directors as to the sustained length of a scene.

"The 'close-up' is an extremely useful bit of photographic technique, but it must not be overdone. It should be used just as the spectator in a theater uses his opera glasses—for occasional magnified glimpses of the players, in order to register more powerfully certain moments in the progress of the story. No one wants to sit in the front row of a theater all the time nor watch half a play through opera glasses.

"The chopping up of big scenes into short lengths with little 'flashbacks' to unimportant details and outside happenings is getting to be a nuisance. The biggest scene in the great Bernstein play, 'The Thief,' was forty-five minutes long and between two people only. There is no reason why a big scene in a picture cannot be sustained straight through to its climax without a single flash-back or cut-in that isn't absolutely essential to the immediate action.

"If I were asked to make a percentage table on what makes a great picture I should say 50 per cent. story, 30 per cent star, and 20 per cent. director. Judging by the average picture we see today, the percentage table as compiled in the producing company's office would read: 50 per cent. advertising, 40 per cent. star, and 10 per cent. direction, with no story at all."

George Wright.

GEORGE WRIGHT has been attached to the Thomas A. Edison, Inc., staff of directors. He now is engaged in directing Charlotte Walker in a picturization of "Pardners," a famous Rex Beach story, which now is being made at the Edison studios in Bedford Park, N. Y. Mr. Wright, who formerly was connected with the Edison studios as a player and who appeared with great success in a number of the more noted Edison releases, returns to the studios after an absence during which he has been engaged in various lines of endeavor.

George Wright.

Mr. Wright possesses an intimate knowledge of the stage and stage technic and he is rich in theatrical resources and ideas that only can be gained by long experience. It is anticipated his connection with the Edison studios in the capacity of director will result in an appreciable improvement in forthcoming releases.

Coming from a theatrical family, blood told early and Mr. Wright ran away from college at the age of sixteen to go on the stage in "Alvin Joslin." His father, however, succeeded in getting him back to college, where he spent a year of misery until he broke loose and left his home in Lansing, Mich., and went to New York to take a part in "The Silver King." In recent years, following engagements of wide variety, he became associated with the Charles Klein organization and appeared in a number of productions that were sponsored by that company. He created the roles of Johnson in "Bobby Burnit" and the grouch in "The Country Boy." He also left an impression on the theater-going public by his work as Joe Garson in "Within the Law," and the shipping clerk in "Bought and Paid For."

"RUBE" GOLDBERG, SONGSTER EXTRAORDINARY.

With the advent of "Rube" Goldberg, creator of "Foolish Questions," "I Never Thought of That," "Father Was Right," "Old Man Alf of the Alphabet," etc., George Ade's title of grand slang master extraordinary is in serious danger. Goldberg's still cartoons, popular for years past in the newspapers, are a source of merriment, his animated cartoons are court jesters to the funnybone. And when you add to the ability of his erratic pen the "reverse English" he puts on his titles you have a hundred per cent. mixture of Simon Pure foolishness. Goldberg has thus far created four animated cartoon comedies for the Pathe program, "The Boob Weekly," "Leap Year," "The Fatal Pie," and "From Kitchen Mechanic to Movie Star."

Goldberg's next cartoon, for release Monday, July 3, is called "Nutty News," and its first title is a warning: "Before looking at this picture please check your brains at the box office." There seems to be little doubt as to the national success of these comedy cartoons, as the Pathe Exchange reports unprecedented bookings on the first four issues.

Screen Writers Must Be Developed

Only Those With Studio Experience Can Be Successful, Declares President Horkheimer, of Balboa.

IT SEEMS to H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, who has just reached New York after spending several months at his Pacific Coast studio, that many producers are trying to make it appear that the script writers are largely responsible for the present unsettled condition of the film industry.

"On arriving here I saw a well-known manufacturer being quoted," said Mr. Horkheimer, "to the effect that the pictures have progressed in every department save that of authorship. Another feature maker is offering a dollar a word for scenarios; while a third, one who has recently been recruited from the ranks of the theater, advertises $5,000 in prizes for synopses that are screenable.

"These men seem to be laboring under the delusion that all you've got to do to get material is to offer a lot of money and it will come flocking in. There never was a greater mistake. Experienced publishers know that prize contests and advertisements for manuscripts have seldom yielded much useful copy. The magazines have long ago learned not to depend on the volunteered stuff.

"Most of them have staff writers—authors of experience—who know the needs of their employers and devote their time to supplying it. So it is or should be with the film producing companies. And sooner or later, all will come to realize that they must have their own writers. There may be certain objections to this source of supply, but the advantages predominate.

"Writing for the camera is a new vocation. To do it consistently and successfully requires studio experience. By that I mean, the author must know something—in fact, a great deal—about the camera's limitations and how pictures are made. As every good story does not lend itself to staging, just so there are many interesting plots which would not make acceptable silent dramas.

"To be able to tell what will go on the screen and what will not can only be acquired by studio experience. When you solicit scripts in a prize contest or otherwise, from any one and every one, the most of the things submitted are bound to come from amateurs. These may have good story ideas for fiction, because they all read fiction; but the most of them will be hopeless from every other viewpoint.

"I know of an instance where a producing company recently advertised for scripts and received 138,000. Of this number, about 200 were producible; and of that number only two were considered worth buying. Think of the waste motion in going through that mass of stuff for just two stories. When the two were finally put on, they failed to attract attention, for they did not prove to be out of the ordinary."

In advocating the staff writer, Mr. Horkheimer points out that he is familiar with what the studio wants and how it wants it. Outside stuff, no matter how good, must always be worked over and put into shape. He declares he does not believe that any studio has ever produced a purchased script in the form that it came.

"At Balboa," Mr. Horkheimer continued, "we have long ago discontinued buying outside scripts. We have built up a staff which I believe to be the peer of any scenario department in the industry. Will M. Ritchey presides over it, with D. F. Whitcomb as his associate. They have several more assistants. These principals have a string of photoplay successes to their credit which are not surpassed by anyone. Both are trained writers from the camera's standpoint. They know what will get over the films and what will not.

"Notwithstanding the fact that we are not in the market, we continue to get large numbers of scripts daily. These are all read to see if perchance they contain something useful. Those that do not—and that means practically all—are promptly returned. We seldom hold a script longer than three days. I don't believe any studio gives the writer quicker action. At rare intervals we buy an idea; but I do not believe we have ever received a producible script from a non-professional writer.

"In conclusion, I would ask a question: What established writer for the magazines, stage or otherwise, has written and had produced a big film play? By that, I mean something originally done for film interpretation. I know that the printed or staged works of many well-known authors have been worked over for the screen. But so far as I know, none of our leading litterateurs has yet done anything notable for the screen first-handed.

"It is said that the picture producers do not pay well enough to make it worth their while. That may be so; but I incline to the belief that none of our foremost writers possesses the screen eye which qualifies him to write for the camera. As well expect every noveltist to be a dramatist as every fictioneer to prove a potential photodramatist.

"In the language of the day—'it can't be done.' If the story end of cinematographic art is to be improved, it will be necessary to develop screen writers—authors who know the vagaries of the camera and the fine points of studio production. The sooner our producers realize this and learn that the mere expenditure of money will not make pictures the sooner they will be getting on the right track. Then the present unsettled condition of the industry would be impossible. But it isn't fair to blame it on the script writer. He should not be made the goat of the industry."

Marguerite Snow, Ivan Star.

MARGUERITE SNOW, the photoplay favorite who is at present being starred under the Ivan banner, won fame in picturedom by creating the leading feminine role in Thanhouser's great mystery serial, "The Million Dollar Mystery." Miss Snow comes of a professional family and at the early age of nine first greeted an audience from the footlights. Miss Snow progressed rapidly and her rise was the result of conscientious effort and real ability. She was the only brunette ever to play the name part of "The College Widow" for Mr. Savage. She was the feminine lead and featured star in "The Devil," Franz Molner's great play.

Marguerite Snow.

Miss Snow was the one who was picked from many to become leading woman in support of Francis X. Bushman when he joined the Metro organization. Her work in Mr. Bushman's support and her host of followers proved so strong that it was found advisable to star her alone. She played in nine pictures for that company.

Immediately upon the termination of her year with the Metro Miss Snow was induced to join the Ivan forces. Her first vehicle under the Ivan banner is Ivan Abramson's latest original screen play, "The Faded Flower." An all-star cast including Alma Hanlon, Rose Coghlan, Arthur Donaldson and Edward Mackay appear in Miss Snow's support.

A BIOGRAPH REISSUE OF UNUSUAL INTEREST.

The Biograph Company has issued a leaflet containing brief descriptions of its releases for the month of August. Also indicated are the principal players in each picture. For Monday, August 14, "Saved from Himself" will be issued from the General Film exchanges. The film is especially noteworthy because in it will be seen Mabel Normand in a role other than that of comedy. In fact, her work in this picture demonstrates that she has marked ability in the interpretation of a highly emotional dramatic role. Playing opposite Miss Normand is Joe Graybill, whose fine portrayals will be recalled by those who knew him in other days. "Saved from Himself," to those who remember Mr. Graybill may seem uncanny, as the player died three years ago this summer. It should be a reissue of unusual interest.

BESSIE'S EXPERIENCE IN THE CLOUDS.

"Please, Mr. Powell, may I go up in that queer-looking box?" asked Bessie Love of the Triangle-Fine Arts. The company was up at Mount Baldy on location and they sighted several young men hoisting boxes of rock way up on the mountain side, from the valley below, by means of an overhead cable tramway. They were building the dearest little rock house almost at the top of the mountain. "Decidedly no," said Director Paul Powell, but he yielded after much coaxing from Miss Bessie.

"I think I know now what it feels like to fly," said the new screen favorite on her return. "Gradually the earth receded until the people looked like dots. The trees seemed a long way off. In the distance the peaks of the Sierras were silhouetted like saw teeth against the clear blue sky. I had the time of my life and when Mr. Powell called to me to come down on the set I reluctantly obeyed, but to his great relief. It was my first experience of the sort and I enjoyed it very much."

KNICKERBOCKER PRESENTS AMATEUR SCENARIO.

An amateur's scenario, produced exactly as written, is the novel idea of the forthcoming Knickerbocker Star Feature, "Sibyl's Scenario," scheduled for release in the General service on Friday, July 21. The plot is a conglomeration of melodramatic situations, linked together in such manner as to excite curiosity and compel attention. Like the famous melodramas of the "ten-twent' -thirt,'" it is at once thrilling and naive, containing enough dramatic material for half a dozen good plays. As many persons in the average audience are amateur scenario writers, "Sibyl's Scenario" should arouse intense interest, not only because of its rapid-fire action, but especially because it presents on the screen, for the first time on record, an amateur's script with all its faults and merits intact.

ALICE HOLLISTER RESIGNS FROM KALEM.

Alice Hollister, long known as the first of the screen sirens, has returned to New York, having concluded an engagement unique in motion picture annals. Miss Hollister for six consecutive years was starred by the Kalem Company. She has appeared before Kalem cameras in Egypt, Palestine, England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Germany, and was a member of the first American company sent abroad to make pictures.

LORIMORE ORGANIZING INCE OFFICES.

Alec Lorimore, who has specialized in motion picture office organization, serving in that capacity such well-known companies as Gaumont and others, has been appointed by Thomas H. Ince manager and organizer of the new "Civilization" suite of business offices now located in the Times Building, New York City.

EXCLUSIVE TO BOOK "MIRROR OF LIFE."

After spirited bidding for the rights for New York State, Greater New York and Northern New Jersey, the Exclusive Features Inc. was allotted this territory for "The Mirror of Life," the first release of The Piedmont Film Company.

Heavy Federal Tax on Theaters.

New Measure Would Assess One-Half of 1 Per Cent. on Gross Receipts from Admissions.

Much to the astonishment of all who have kept in close touch with all matters pertaining to the raising of revenues for the support of the Government and to meet the requirements of preparedness, there is included in the general revenue bill introduced in the House of Representatives on July 1 by chairman Claude Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee a provision for the taxing of theaters and other places of amusement.

It has been understood for many months that when this bill would be brought in there would be a clause repealing the present so-called emergency revenue law placing a tax upon motion picture and other theaters and places of amusement according to the seating capacity thereof. Apparently, the need for mobilizing our forces for duty along the border has produced a greater need for revenue than would be obtainable by a strict adherence to the taxing of incomes, inheritances and war munitions. The proposed tax is going to prove a considerable burden upon the motion picture interests, but will be very productive of income to the Government. The provision in question reads as follows:

Proprietors of theaters, museums, or concert halls, where a charge for admission is made, located in a city, town, or village with a population not exceeding 1,000, according to the last preceding census of the United States, shall pay $10; located in a city, town, or village having a population in excess of 1,000, but not in excess of 2,000, shall pay $15; located in a city, town, or village having a population in excess of 3,000 shall pay $20; located in a city, town or village having a population in excess of 3,000 shall pay one-half of 1 per centum of their gross receipts from admission. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, shall be regarded as a theater.

Every proprietor of such theater, museum, or concert hall located in a city, town or village having in excess of 3,000 inhabitants shall, on or before the 15th day of March, 1917, and on or before the 15th day of June, September, December, and March thereafter make a return under oath to the collector of internal revenue of the district wherein they are located, stating the gross receipts from admission for the preceding quarter. The collector shall within five days of the receipt of the return, notify the proprietor of the amount of the tax for which such person is liable and such person shall pay the tax to the collector on or before the first day of the next month.

It is the intention of the Democrats to bring this measure to a vote on Saturday, July 8, so that anything that may be contemplated to offset this provision should be started at once. Members of Congress should be immediately urged by telegraph to vote against the enactment of any such proposition as this.

SCREENER BLAISDELL AT THE BORDER.

Captain William E. Blaisdell, one of the early members of the Screen Club, is now "somewhere in East Texas" at the head of Company L of the "Fighting Fourteenth" of Brooklyn. Last spring when Director Paul Scardon of the Vitagraph company was making arrangements for the taking of military scenes in "The Man Hunt" he requested one of the senior officers of the Fourteenth with whom he was negotiating that he also assign an officer to portray the role of regimental adjutant to "Colonel" Robert Gaillord. When Mr. Scardon was introduced to his new "actor" he was surprised to greet his fellow-Screener Captain Blaisdell.

The leading character of the story was the captain of "Company L of the Fourteenth Pennsylvania." One of the scenes showed a crowd in front of an armory cheering the announcement that the Fourteenth was off for the war. The night before the Fourteenth left home "The Man Hunt" was shown, by request, at a theater near the armory. When there flashed on the screen the scene of the crowds cheering the announcement there was a demonstration in the house which rivaled that in the picture.

Captain Blaisdell, who has a wide acquaintance among film men and players, is the son of George Blaisdell of the Moving Picture World and the brother of Roland Blaisdell of the executive offices of the International Film Service.

BIG THEATER DEAL IN MASSACHUSETTS.

It is reported from Boston that there is well under way a deal whereby there will be a change in ownership of the properties of the Olympia Theater Syndicate, which includes the Lynn, New Bedford, and New Haven Olympias, those in Scollay Square and Washington street in Boston, and the lesser houses in Gloucester, Cambridge, Chelsea and Somerville. The reputed purchasers are Boston men, some of whom are members of the Puritan Trust group. It is said that E. H. Horstmann, Frank J. Howard and A. E. Lord will retire from the Olympia.

Australian Notes

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION," which was to close its Sydney season last Saturday, has been given a second extended run at the Theater Royal. The big film was booked to start in Melbourne on Saturday, and another copy was taken out of bond to fulfil this engagement. The reason for the extension was the enormous crowds that have patronized the Royal during the past fortnight, the theater, which seats 1,600, being full long before the time of starting each night.

In the past all features screened in city theaters at high prices have eventually found their way to suburban shows to be shown there at the ordinary rates of admission. This is one of the reasons that the suburban public did not go to see this picture when first screened. However, the announcement that the spectacle would only be shown at the Royal caused such a rush during the last two weeks that the management decided on a longer run, and by the crowds that are patronizing the theater it looks like having a run of some weeks yet.

* * *

The proposed board for the censorship of pictures is now being formed by Mr. Black, Chief Secretary of New South Wales. It will probably include the following: A representative of the Chief Secretary's department, the Inspector-General of Police, representatives of the British Medical Association, the Catholic Federation, the Council for Civic and Moral Advancement, the Arts Society, Judge Backhouse and also representatives of a political league.

The proposal is that importers of films shall submit a synopsis descriptive of their contents, and unless the description discloses something likely to be offensive there will be no inspection. Should a description prove to be inaccurate, those who have furnished it are to be subject to the loss or suspension of their licenses.

The Chief Secretary has overlooked several important details while forming the board. He has omitted to say what payment the members will receive and also who will pay it. As an exhibitor points out, it is not fair for them to do so, as they are not represented on the board.

Then in the case of inspection it has not been stated where the viewing will take place, as no projection room is proposed for the use of the censors.

It is expected that the formation of the board will be completed this week.

* * *

New South Wales will be the only state in the Commonwealth to have a Board of Censors. The only other state with anything approaching censorship is Victoria, where the police have the responsibility of seeing that nothing offensive is screened. Policemen make regular visits to all the picture theaters and report on the class of films shown. Any exhibitor showing an indecent film is liable to a penalty and the cancellation of his license.

* * *

This week saw the release of a two-part comedy entitled "Charlie at the Sydney Show." The leading comedian, Ernest Vockler, gives a good imitation of Charles Chaplin, in whose "disguise" he has become well known in Sydney, being engaged by several shows when screening Chaplin comedies to give an impersonation of the comedian. Although the humor of the offering is not very strong, it is better than some imitations of Keystones I have seen.

The majority of the scenes were taken at the annual Agricultural Show.

* * *

Owing to a temporary shortage of Fine Arts subjects, the Triangle program this week again consisted of two Ince-Kay-Bee features, with the comedy relief in a Keystone. "Matrimony" (with Julia Dean) and "Aloha Oe" (featuring Willard Mack) headed the bill, which is one of the strongest yet presented. Willard Mack is becoming very popular over here, and "Aloha Oe" has won for him many new admirers.

The subtle comedy situations and witty sub-titles in "Matrimony" kept the audience in a good humor throughout the screening of that picture.

Those who like to laugh got their money's worth in "The Best of Enemies," which presents Weber and Fields to picture fans in this country.

The Co-operative Film Exchange is releasing next week the short Universal serial, "The Purple Iris," which was released in America under the title of "Under the Crescent." The same firm is at present handling "The Broken Coin" serial, and has also secured "Graft."

* * *

Features shown in Sydney this week include:

"The Devil's Toy," an Equitable feature. Don Boucicault, a native of Sydney, is in the cast.

"The Chalice of Courage," a fine Vitagraph six-reeler. Vitagraph features, and indeed all General program features, have been conspicuous by their absence for the past few months, and it is good to know that they are still producing good pictures of this length.

"The Two Orphans" (Fox), presenting Theda Bara in a different role, and a relief from the usual vampire plays in which she stars.

* * *

"The Birth of a Nation" opened in Melbourne May 20 to a huge audience at the Theater Royal. It will be shown only for two weeks, as it has to fulfil an engagement in the other capital cities. The press has given the Griffith masterpiece many fine descriptions.

* * *

The French Official War Pictures are having a very successful run at the Melbourne Auditorium. There are nearly 10,000 feet of film in the series, which is very interesting. The prices of admission charged are two shillings and one shilling (50 and 25 cents).

* * *

The third Triangle program, screened this week at the Majestic theater, Melbourne, is one of the best yet, consisting of "Let Katy Do It" and "My Valet." West's Pictures are also showing one Triangle subject each week, the current screening being "The Edge of the Abyss."

* * *

As an advertising stunt, the J. C. Williamson management in Melbourne is offering a prize of £5 to their patrons as to who they consider is the best actor or actress in "The Birth of a Nation" and why. The prize will be awarded to the writer of what are considered to be the best views on this point written on the back of a post-card. The competition will remain open till the end of the brief season.

* * *

There is a severe outbreak of meningitis in Melbourne at present, and the Chief Health Officer has announced that if it increases, he will take steps to limit the attendance at picture theaters and other places of amusement. These drastic steps will, however, only be taken if the menace becomes very pronounced.

* * *

Many feature pictures have been released this week in Adelaide, including the following:

"Jordan Is a Hard Road" and "A Janitor's Wife's Temptations," which together made up this week's Triangle program.

"Tillie's Tomato Surprise," "Seven Sisters" and "At Bay" are also having successful runs.

The Kalem Australian serial, "Stingaree," was presented this week at the Empire theater.

* * *

The new Strand theater, Hobart, Tasmania, will be opened the end of this week. It will be one of the finest picture theaters in Australia, if not outside America. The fittings are unusually elaborate, and the building is one of the best in Tasmania. A full description of the theater will be given next week.

"Honor's Altar" (Triangle), "The Wild Goose Chase" (Lasky) and "The Magic Skin" (Edison) are current screenings.

* * *

The big patriotic war topical, "Britain Prepared," was screened for the first time in Perth, West Australia, on May 10. Many fine features, including the following, are proving good attractions: "Wild Olive," with Myrtle Stedman; "The Circus Man" (Lasky) and "Old Dutch" (World).

* * *

At West's Pictures in Brisbane, Queensland, this week the star attraction is "The Island of Regeneration," by Vitagraph. The Triangle-Majestic has "Cross Currents" and "Her Painted Hero."

The "Musty Suffer" series of Kleine comedies have caught on well in this city, and are proving nearly as good a drawing card as Chaplins. None of the latter's comedies have been screened in Brisbane for over four months.

TOM S. IMRIE.

Sydney, N. S. W., Australia, May 24, 1916.

Reviews of Current Productions

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

"The Conflict."

Five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature Directed by Ralph Ince Has Lucille Lee Stewart in the Leading Feminine Role.

Reviewed by Margaret I. Macdonald.

WHILE the hand of Ralph Ince is noticeable in the choice and arrangement of the spacious and beautiful sets used in this production, the work of development is not always recognizable as that of this clever director. The cast appearing in the picture being not particularly strong, the characterization suffers to a considerable extent. For instance, the psychological developments in the character of Madeline Turner, who at the financial failure and consequent suicide of her father enters the theatrical profession, and later marries a man she does not love, are not what would be expected. There is also evident too much posing on the part of the star and too little capable dramatic action. The production is a well dressed one, Lucille Lee Stewart exhibiting several fascinating gowns and wraps. Some of the best work in the picture is done by Jane Mortimer in the role of Jeannette. Sub-titles have been worked overtime in explaining the action of the picture.

Scene from "The Conflict" (Vitagraph).

The story on which the production is based is fairly good. One of the cleverest points about the picture is the guarding almost to the end the secret of who it was that committed the murder of Paul Moraunt, a former lover of Madeline's who entered her home and stole money from her husband's safe with which to pay his gambling debts. The conflict referred to in the title is a continuous state of affairs between the two women who have the misfortune to love the same man. Neither of these characters as presented has any appeal.

Two Lubin Releases.

"Out of the Flotsam," a Two-Reel Melodrama, and "The Return of John Boston," a Three-Reel Photoplay Written by Millard K. Wilson and James Douglas.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"Out of the Flotsam."

INGENUOUS is the word to apply to most of the characters any many of the situations in "Out of the Flotsam." there is a childlike simplicity about the doings of the hero and the heroine and also the villain of this two-reel melodrama by Tom Gibson, that is a strong reminder of the writings of the lamented Horatio Alger, the creator of "Ragged Dick" and other works of juvenile fiction. A short synopsis of the story will indicate the truth of the assertion.

A bank cashier, who has caught the president of the bank in an unlawful transaction, forces his employer's daughter to consent to marry him. The girl backs out before the wedding day, however. Disguised as a hobo, she tries to leave town on a freight train, is thrown off and her ankle sprained, and is befriended by a young crook, who takes her to his boarding house, under the impression that she is a boy. When he learns the truth he determines to go straight, for the sake of the banker's daughter. The cashier hires a number of the crook's old pals to rob the bank, but the reformed thief learns of the scheme, loots the vault before the gang arrives, resists an impulse to decamp with the money and returns it to the banker. He then runs over to his boarding house, picks up the injured girl and also restores her to her father.

If one still has the faith which made "Ragged Dick" such delightful reading, he will have no difficulty in believing in a banker's daughter who turns hobo, in the reformation of a crook who exhibits a skill at bank-robbing that puts Jimmy Valentine in the piker class, and in a villainous cashier who insists in posing in his cage with the wicket open.

While "Out of the Flotsam" never happened and never will happen, it has entertaining qualities, for all that, and supplies a quality of romance demanded by an equally ingenuous order of intellect.

The acting, intrusted to L. C. Shumway, Dorothy Barrett, George Routh and Melvin Mayo, brings out the best points of the scenario.

"The Return of John Boston."

John Boston is the pen-name of Gordon Edwards, a novelist who hates society and who, when urged by his publishers to attend a fashionable reception, sends his secretary to impersonate him. Both men fall in love with the same woman. Through a misunderstanding, the novelist becomes a war correspondent and leaves a clear field to the secretary, who continues to pose as John Boston. The young man makes such good use of his opportunity and his employer's bank account that a marriage is arranged between him and the girl. The novelist returns at the proper dramatic moment and stops the ceremony. Explanations are in order, and the real John Boston wins the girl.

The dramatic interest of this three-reel photoplay has nothing of the strenuous about it. The story unfolds itself leisurely, and any doubt as to the outcome never intrudes itself upon the mind of the spectator. It is the kind of fiction that, when belonging to the novel, is known as "light summer reading." Its merit as a photoplay consists in the rather deft handling of a theme which admits of a variety of picturesque incidents.

Scene from "The Return of John Boston" (Lubin).

George Routh, Millard K. Wilson and Golda Madden impersonate the trio of leading characters. They are all successful in meeting the demands made upon their artistic equipment.

Two Biograph Reissues.

"The House of Discord," a Two-reel Drama—"Gold and Glitter," a Vivid Sketch in One Reel.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE human note in "The House of Discord," a two-reel Biograph produced by James Kirkwood several years ago, will be readily appreciated by women. It is essentially a woman's story, which reaches its most effective emotional passages in showing the influence of a mother over a daughter who is on the verge of making a serious mistake—a mistake similar to the one that parted her parents many years earlier. The characterization in the picture is sincere and the situations develop in a natural, convincing fashion without being marred by unnecessary melodrama.

In the first reel we see something of the conflict of personalities that turns a home into a house of discord. A young wife, reasonably fond of pretty clothes and youthful pleasures, is regarded with suspicion by her jealous husband and his extremely disagreeable sister. When the family life becomes unbearable she consents to elope with a sweetheart of her girlhood; but the man dies, leaving her as thoroughly disgraced as though the elopement had been carried through, for their secret is divulged in a letter found by her husband. After years of separation, the daughter of the estranged pair is instrumental in effecting a reunion.

Blanche Sweet is especially sympathetic in suggesting the nature of a woman who has learned through suffering to understand the temptations confronting her daughter and is able to exert a helpful influence. Dorothy Gish is wholly charming as the daughter, whereas the two male characters are admirably drawn by Lionel Barrymore and Marshal Neilan.

With Lillian Gish, Lionel Barrymore and Elmer Booth filling the principal roles, "Gold and Glitter" becomes a more than ordinarily interesting western drama, although the story is not remarkable. Practically all of the scenes are beautiful exteriors in the woods or on the banks of a river. There is plenty of excitement in running rapids in canoes when an eloping couple is being pursued.

"The Crucial Test."

Kitty Gordon Appears as Russian Countess in Picture Made by Paragon for World Film Corporation.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

KITTY GORDON possesses the figure, the poise and the dignity commonly associated with the typical Russian countess, and in view of these natural attributes it is not surprising that she fills very satisfactorily the role of Thanya in "The Crucial Test," written by Frances Marion and directed by John Ince and Robert Thornby, of Paragon Films, Inc. If the impression left by the production is a bit disappointing it is in no way the fault of the star, who is forced to make the best of an exceedingly melodramatic and none too convincing story. Making bricks without straw is a thankless task; likewise the player attempting to give life to a mechanical plot is in an unenviable position.

Because stories of Russian revolutionists and aristocrats have been produced rather frequently is no argument against more pictures of the same type; but it is well, in consideration of the standard set by a number of excellent photoplays, to prepare films that will stand comparison with earlier releases. This latest production is likely to suffer by such a test, save with audiences of an uncritical disposition. For such there is a story possessing the usual elements of Russian melodrama, presented in quite elaborate settings and acted with suitable intensity and seriousness. That the plot is obviously artificial may not mar the enjoyment of those who respond to the overheated emotionalism and the quick movement of the individual scenes.

Scene from "The Crucial Test" (World).

Thanya, sought by Grand Duke Bagroff while she is in love with a young American artist, is dangerously compromised by her brother, who is chosen to assassinate Bagroff. Sent to Siberia, Thanya and Boris escape and locate in Paris where the Countess becomes the wife of the artist. The Grand Duke aims to bring her to terms by ruining her husband, but Thanya is willing to pay the usual price for the sake of the man she loves. This prepares the way for what is easily the most stirring action in the picture—the struggle between the Countess and the Grand Duke on the evening of her visit to his apartment, and the permanent settlement of the situation by the killing of the man.

Save that Niles Welsh appears too youthful as the husband of Kitty Gordon, the actors are suitable to the characters, with J. Herbert Frank playing the Grand Duke and W. Cohill as Boris. Winnifred Harris appears to advantage as a temperamental princess. Snow scenes purporting to show the road to Siberia are passable, whereas interiors are richly furnished.

"The Eternal Question."

Mme. Petrova Has Opportunities for Varied Acting in Popular Plays and Players Picture Made for Metro.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

WOMAN, of course, is the eternal question indicated in the title of this five-part picture, produced by Burton L. King of Popular Plays and Players, from a story by Aaron Hoffman and Wallace O. Clifton, and the question, as usual, remains unanswered. The introduction arouses hopes of some sort of a study of inherited traits and environment; but as the story progresses all pretense of a serious analysis of character is dropped in favor of a quite sensational plot, terminating in a last reel that promises thrilling melodrama. Just how successful the producers have been in making scenes on a steamship which is overtaken by an aeroplane carrying the hero to the rescue of the distressed heroine cannot be judged, as the print shown for review was incomplete. Enough was displayed, however, to assure the liveliest kind of action.

Scene from "The Eternal Question" (Metro).

The idea on which the picture is based suggests many opportunities. As the result of a discussion between three club men, a wager is placed on the possibility of taking an ignorant woman from the streets and in three months transforming her into a lady. A wealthy designer of fashions maintains that clothes make the woman and that the metamorphosis may be accomplished, whereas an ardent champion of the paramount importance of birth and breeding is convinced to the contrary. The argument results in a practical test with the young woman companion of an Italian organ grinder as the subject.

Bianca, portrayed by Olga Petrova, consents to the strange agreement and doffing the costume of an itinerant musician immediately becomes a haughty gentlewoman, who, introduced in society as a countess, easily meets the requirements. For a time, one may be skeptical about the sudden transformation, which becomes more understandable when the truth is revealed —Bianca is none other than the daughter of a king forced to leave Europe to escape a distasteful marriage. So after all, there is no real test of heredity vs. clothes, and the wager is won by a young man who needs the money and is ready to fight to prevent the return of the princess to her royal home.

Probably the least gripping part of the picture, because it is not vital to the story proper, comes with the detailed depiction of the events preceding Bianca's flight to America. The production possesses variety in locations, the plot profits by a number of surprises and the acting is of even merit, with Mahlon Hamilton, Arthur Hoops, Warren Orland and Henry Leone in support of the always impressive Mme. Petrova.

"Macbeth"

A Poor Five-Part Picture Made in England and Presented Here by the Big A Film Corporation.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

PICTURES such as this five-part version of "Macbeth" might be passed by as harmless save that they tend to create a false idea of what is being accomplished in the handling of classical subjects. Any one seeing this production and taking it as an example of what Shakespeare on the screen means would be careful to avoid Shakespearean pictures in the future, thereby reducing the patronage for commendable works. The Big A Film Corporation is distributing old trash on the strength of a great name, trusting in its power to draw a public that does not discriminate between the products of various manufacturers.

The version of "Macbeth" under consideration is so ridiculously inadequate in every respect that one may seek in vain for a redeeming quality. Apparently the picture was made a number of years ago by a director unversed in the finer points of photoplay construction. The plot is followed accurately enough, but never for a moment does one sense even a suggestion of the spirit of the tragedy, either in the performances of Arthur Bouchier as Macbeth and Violet Van Brugh as Lady Macbeth, or in the atmosphere of the production. To make the unpleasant impression complete, there are five reels of poor photography.

"The Valiants of Virgina."

Hallie Erminie Rives' Novel Filmed by Selig, With Kathlyn Williams and Arthur Shirley in the Leading Roles.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THE production of "The Valiants of Virginia," by William N. Selig, will be hailed as a very worthy effort. The atmosphere of the old South, which was delightfully injected in the story by Hallie Erminie Rives, has been happily retained in the photoplay.

The fox hunt in part three is a delicious reminder of that noble sport in the good old days of Virginia, and its realism is accentuated by the use of a real fox as well as bugles in the chase. There seems to be no limit to the resourcefulness of the Selig Zoo.

The joust between the Virginia gallants in part four no doubt is a fair reflex of that gentle passage at arms as practiced in the days of the story; and while it may seem tame when compared with the famous contest at Ashby de la Zouche, as described with immortal pen in "Ivanhoe," by Sir Walter Scott, it shows that the old valor still lay dormant in Virginia hearts though the fierceness of the old sport of gentlemen is lacking. The tournament ball that follows is quite an interesting spectacle, with its quaint, old-time costumes and stately courtesy.

The supper scene in the prologue, which occupies the greater length of part one, has also the distinct atmosphere of the days gone by; and the famous Valiant pudding, blazing with the lighted brandy that adds to the aromatic bliss of its secret compounding, and proudly borne to the table by a colored servitor, is a sight that awakens many recollections.

Director Heffron, on two minor occasions has failed, in my opinion, to reproduce the scenes effectively. I refer to the scene showing the death of the elder John Valiant, with his little motherless son at the bedside, and to the scene where the body of Tom Dandridge is brought home to his wife, after he has been killed while fox hunting. Each scene fails to show the sorrow and anguish of bereavement.

Scene from "The Valiants of Virginia" (Selig).

The acting is praiseworthy. Kathlyn Williams will not disappoint the most ardent of her admirers in the role of Shirley Dandridge. The young southern belle is deprived of none of her charms of youth and good looks. As queen of the tournament ball Miss Williams makes Shirley a bewitching creature of youth and beauty.

I do not recall Arthur Shirley in any former assignment with the Selig companies; but the pleasure derived from seeing his John Valiant the younger, as well as the elder, has created the desire to see him often, in equally happy roles. He has an impressive and manly stage presence, and a mobile face that expresses emotions clearly.

Virginia Kraft pleases better in the part of Mrs. Tom Dandridge than as Judith Fairfax, the belle of the days of the Elder John Valiant. Guy Oliver has little opportunity to show his talent in the part of Major Bristow, except in the death scene of that slick rascal. Al W. Filson's Andrew Fargo is drawn with his wonted art, and Katherine Fargo, true daughter of her money-loving father, is well played by Edith Johnson.

The cast furnished me assigns the part of Jefferson to James Bradbury, but it fails to state who Jefferson is. If Jefferson is the old colored servitor that carried the famous Valiant pudding to the table of the elder Valiant, or the colored driver who conveys the younger Valiant to his ancestral home, when his automobile has broken down, then he has made a big hit—more especially so if the latter hypothesis be true.

It is significant of the fine cast of this photoplay that Frank Clark, of "The Spoilers" and "Ne'er Do Well" fame, and Harry Lonsdale, also prominent in the cast of the Panama photoplay, appear among the members of the board of directors of the Valiant Corporation.

The subject is in five reels and the release date was June 26, through V-L-S-E, Inc.

"The Decoy."

Five-Reel Mutual by Herbert Hall Winslow, Featuring Frances Nelson.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

THE story of a country girl's adventures in New York, where she is used as a decoy by an adventuress aunt and a gang of card sharpers, "The Decoy" resolves itself into a murder mystery. Far from being a decoy, the girl is permitted to sit in at a card game, where a young spendthrift is being despoiled, where she is instrumental in exposing the use of a "bug" by one of the gang. The spendthrift hero thanks her and gives her his card, but she does not need it. She has an art all her own of finding where he lives without finding out from his door and street number. She escapes from the card gang over housetops and drops, in farce comedy fashion, through a skylight upon his sofa after he has retired for the night. There is an interview, he neatly attired in pajamas and she in evening dress, but he is at loss what to do with her, and she is eventually drawn back into the rooms of one card sharper. He is shot through a curtain by one of his gang while the young lady is present. Who did the deed is not known.

Scene from "The Decoy" (Mutual).

Others visit the murdered man's room, the hero, the murderer, the adventuress and the dead man's valet. The police get on the wrong track at first, but the simple young country girl wrests the truth from the guilty man by pretending to love him, and virtue triumphs in the end. It would be a genuine pleasure to discover something new, bright and original in this mass of old melodramatic material, even something to enlist human sympathy, something to stir the mind or the heart, but that joy will have to be deferred until young playwrights learn that mere movement from place to place does not constitute a superior screen story.

"Ambition."

Elegant Settings and Bertha Kalich's Acting Distinguishing Features of Recent Fox Picture.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

IF ONE were to call this picture "Ambition" crude, many things in the picture would at once deny it. There is so much that is excellent—its sets, its backgrounds, much of the acting and the bits of byplay in it are all so markedly high class and effective that one will surely hesitate. Yet it is crude. There is a falling down of the imagination shown in the story's taking the obvious, easiest way to arrive at a situation. The heroine, to further her husband's ambition, tries to play on the affections of the city's political boss. The precious husband wants to be district attorney.

We do not call it crude because she does this, but in the way she does it there is such a lack of craft, in the early steps of it, that the spectator, already despising the husband, classes the heroine as stupid. Consequently, the spectator fails to sympathize with her and his interest in the picture is weakened. He would be more attracted to the story if he saw only the latter half of it. Bertha Kalich's art contends mightily with a handicap all the way through.

Madame Kalich's acting—every one knows its high quality both on the screen and on the stage. It is valuable to this picture. But the husband is only a scheming villain. He was a scheming villain before he had done anything wrong, and, all through the picture he is never anything else than a scheming villain and, toward the end, a bit of a bore. Why do not some of these players develop the characters they, in Peter Quince's words, "discharge?" Would the spectator enjoy his hatred for the villain less because the villain was only villainous when he was doing evil? Perhaps, but it would be a rather poor spectator, the picture suffers from these drawbacks; but it has much to commend also. The photography is most praiseworthy. There is a very charming child player, too. The audience watched "Ambition" at the Academy of Music; but there was no sign of special enthusiasm.

"The Woman Who Dared."

Story of Love and Intrigue Is Produced by California Motion Picture Corporation—Beatriz Michelena Starred.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

AT a trade showing of the latest California Motion Picture Corporation production, an adaptation of a novel by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, the picture was allowed to run eight reels, although it is understood about three thousand feet will be eliminated before the film is distributed. In its unabbreviated form, "The Woman Who Dared" is weakened by a few defects which probably will not exist when the picture has been cut to the conventional length. Several scenes that appear to be little more than padding may be dispensed with and others may be trimmed to the advantage of a production that has many excellent points in story, acting and staging.

Captain Leslie T. Peacock wrote a scenario notable for the fullness of a plot introducing an almost bewildering number of complications demanding close attention if the meaning of the action is to be completely comprehended. Many characters are involved in the story of love and adventure, and each occupies a necessary place in the chain of tangled circumstances, which become more tangled and interesting as the plot advances. It should be said to the credit of Captain Peacocke that the story is plausible without being over-obvious; also to the credit of Director George E. Middleton it is well to note a lavish production pleasingly free from anachronisms, despite the necessity of suggesting a European atmosphere.

Beatrix Michelena has the role of a French princess, who is also a famous grand opera prima donna. While singing in Italy she becomes engaged to marry an Italian count, who is intimately connected with the drawing up of a secret treaty between Italy and Russia, a treaty that the French Government is anxious to secure. Princess Beatrix is persuaded by her brother to take the treaty from the safe in the count's rooms that it may be forwarded to Paris and returned after the contents have been noted. This disappearance of the treaty starts no end of trouble, and to add to the complications a necklace presented to Princess Beatrix by the Queen of Italy is stolen. Through an oddly interesting series of happenings the two men who stole the jewels are involved in the political intrigue affecting three nations. A satisfactory conclusion brings the return of the treaty and the jewels and the discomfiture of the Italian count, whom the Princess dismisses in favor of a sturdy young American, who has been her consistent champion.

Scene from "The Woman Who Dared" (California).

The acting of Miss Michelena is emotionally effective in the more intense moments of the picture, and she is given intelligent support by William Pike, Andrew Robson and Albert Morrison. The beauty of the many rich interiors and several exteriors made in a luxuriant garden is enhanced by artistic lighting and photography that for the most part is clear. After judicious editing "The Woman Who Dared" should rank among the profitable state rights pictures.

Two Triangle Subjects.

"The Eye of the Night" Features Marjory Wilson and "The Little Schoolma'am" Dorothy Gish.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"The Eye of the Night."

THIS five-reel Triangle-Ince subject, by Gardner Sullivan, is a story of a lighthouse keeper very similar in character to the lighthouse keeper in "Shore Acres," a humanizing role well impersonated in this case by William H. Thompson, "The Eye of the Night" is a modern version, modernized chiefly by Ince spectacular work, and it brings strongly to the front an accomplished young emotional actress in Marjory Wilson. Whether or not the capable direction of Walter Edwards is to be credited, Marjory makes a strong impression from the outset. It is acting, to be sure, acting of the Italian school, but it eminently suits screen purposes. She seems to be well fitted by both appearance and temperament for intense parts, better demonstrated in this case than in any previous appearance as an interpreter of character.

The story falls back on stock village characters, those of the hard, merciless, puritanical kind often seen in New England towns during years gone by, always favorite types with theatrical playwrights for purposes of arousing sympathy for the erring heroine, and it is rather vague as to aim, but it is made attractive by the quiet and sweet humanity of David Holden, by the intensity of the erring girl and by some decided artistry in the picturing. From a point purely impressionistic, it would seem that the fine interpretations of character and the artistic picturing of scenes and events could be more advantageously applied to a story of vital theme, less obviously theatrical in situation and more closely in line with existence as it is recognizable by the people in front.

Scene from "The Eye of the Night" (Ince).

"The Little School Ma'am."

A fairly good story is this five-reel Fine Arts, by F. E. Woods and Bernard McConville, made delightful in spots by the presence of a number of bright, pretty and talented children. They do so well in their natural roles and when they give a show of their own that they easily carry off the honors, but Mistress Dorothy Gish, of the beautiful and expressive eyes, of grave manner and birdlike movement, does all that can be expected in a part of slim opportunity. She plays the antiquated role of the falsely accused girl in a narrow-minded village environment not seen off the stage since the days of our grandmothers. How dear to the heart theatric is that group of narrow-minded, hypocritical villagers. Their puritanism has been used on the stage for the purpose of enlisting sympathy for erring heroines beyond the memory of any living man, but there is a loss of effect in the many screen stories where it is employed by ascribing it to raw types little better than caricatures of people as we know them.

"The Little School Ma'am" has a fault which its capable authors should avoid in future work, that of talking to the audience in "asides" that are not even amusing. The secret of holding interest, once it is enlisted, is to entertainingly preserve the illusion. There is an unreal vision being presented to the mind, a story of unreal lives made real and interesting so long as we are not reminded that it is only make believe. The authors seem to forget this. They possibly grow tired of their own story before they are through and lapse into amateurish reminders that all is not as real as it seems, destroying that important and difficult essential to sustained interest, verisimilitude. It requires no art to tear the veil of illusion.

Another "Scarlet Runner" Series.

Earle Williams and Edith Storey are working in another chapter of the "Scarlet Runner" series by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, being produced for the Vitagraph by Wally Van. Julia Swayne Gordon, another Vitagraph favorite, also appears in the cast.

"Black Magic"

Fifteenth and Last Episode of "The Social Pirates," the Kalem Serial Written by George Bronson Howard.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE closing instalment of "The Social Pirates" introduces an important event in the lives of Mona and Mary—their approaching marriage. The two lucky gentlemen assist the members of the "Do the Villain Good" society in exposing a blackmailing fakir, known as Rulu, the Mystic, who works his magic largely for his own profit. The wife of a banker falls under Rulu's influence and, aided by his hypnotic power the mystic forces her to open a safe in her home and permit him to walk off with a large sum of money. Mona and Mary are led to suspect that Rulu is working some underhanded scheme, and put the matter to the test. Mary deals the first card in the game of trapping a thief, and, with their usual adroitness, the fakir is forced to play right into the hands of the two women. The banker's wife is convinced that the mystic is a fraud, and her money is restored. The woman's husband promptly makes Mona and Mary a handsome wedding present, and the spectators who have followed the adventures of the heroines in "The Social Pirates" will be in a mood to wish them both a long life and a happy one. The manner in which the interest has been sustained throughout the fifteen instalments and the thorough way in which each episode has been produced fully sustains the promises made in advance for the serial by the Kalem Company. Marin Sais and Ollie Kirkby have shown untiring zeal and demonstrated their fitness for the work assigned them during the fifteen numbers. Each number, forming a complete story in itself, has always possessed sufficient originality to prevent the pictures from becoming in the least monotonous. The credit for the success of "The Social Pirates" must be shared in by James W. Horne, the director of the series.

Scene from "Black Magic" (Kalem).

Beery Finishes Fifth Episode of "Timothy Dodds."

Wallace Beery has finished the fifth episode of "Timothy Dodds," featuring Carter De Haven the well known comedian, and has under production "The Janitor's Vacation," a one reel comedy written by himself and in which he plays the lead. Practically the entire story is laid at the seashore, near Universal City, and Berry has a large cast of Universal City players in his support. He plays the role of a Swede, one of his best known characters before the camera, and is supported by Gertrude Astor and Peggy Coudray.

"Where is My Father?"

Exclusive Features Corporation Films Dumas' Story, "Black, the Tale of a Dog," in Seven Reels—It Interests.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THE title of this picture, "Where Is My Father?" is in an artistic sense unfortunate, because it is misleading. One will expect a problem picture with perhaps an unpleasant and erotic sociological teaching; but it is nothing of the kind. Dumas didn't write that kind of story. What he did write may not be the wisest kind of food for children; but it lacks the poison of smut purveyed as wisdom. We do not think that the censors will cut many feet of this picture, if any. It is a simple story of infidelity on the one hand and of a too confiding love on the other. The two heroines are a mother, light of mind, who lets her husband's friend make an adulteress of her and her daughter, at whose birth the outcast mother dies. This daughter in later years too confidently trusts a man whom she thinks is her true love and comes to grief, but not to destruction, for she is rescued by her father, or at least her mother's husband.

The story entertains and is built so that it can be followed without difficulty. For this it can be heartily praised. The story is the most important thing in any picture, and this one is good on that important part. But it is not an artistically produced film. There is not one of the players who consistently holds to a character with convincing ability. The backgrounds are now and then almost amusingly unconvincing. In the costuming one won't find any special effort to attain realism. The general conduct of the action is often, too often, slipshod. But there is very little padding and perhaps no scenes that fail to carry the story along; there is no dawdling in it, and that is a very strong point in its favor.

Scene from "Where Is My Father?" (Exclusive).

The coming back of the husband's friend in the form of a dog, because, as Pythagoras taught, he took that doom upon him for his sin, is, in the tale, a startling thing; but in the picture is more amusing than effective. It is hard to get that kind of thing over in a picture, and the director of this one is no Griffith.

"The Grasp of Greed"

Bluebird Photoplays Presents a Well-Staged Version of H. Rider Haggard's Novel "John Meeson's Will."

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE story of "John Meeson's Will," written by H. Rider Haggard, is one of the old-fashioned, incredible sort that is difficult for the modern mind to become reconciled to, and the joker will not overlook the opportunity for a laugh when the judge orders said will to be produced in court, considering that it is tattooed on a young lady's shapely back.

Scene from "The Grasp of Greed" (Bluebird).

The back utilized in this production belongs to Louise Lovely, and will be appreciated as a perfect specimen.

Joseph De. Grasse directed the picture and has succeeded in establishing what seems to be the proper atmosphere. But Miss Lovely must be reprimanded for dressing the role of Alice Gordon in modern garments, while the masculine element of the play sports those of at least half a century ago. Some fine effects have been obtained in the earlier portion of the picture, notably in the scenes having to do with the home life of Alice, and the death of her little sister. Here Miss Lovely exhibits her ability for emotional work.

The supporting cast includes C. N. Hammond, Jay Belasco, Gretchen Lederer, and Lon Chaney. The characterization has been nicely handled and presents some fine types. The settings of the production, which are at times very pleasing and appropriate, exhibit at other times a carelessness of detail which is noticeable especially in the cheap quality of curtains, draperies, etc.

July 17 is the date set for the release of this production.

"Temptation and the Man"

Five-Reel Universal Production Features Hobart Henley and Sydell Dowling in Story of Reformed Convict.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS story, written by Catherine Carr and produced by Robert F. Hill, has as its theme the reformation of a young convict. Hobart Henley plays the part of Jim Crosby, and Sydell Dowling appears as the wealthy young girl who founds and supports a mission on the East Side.

The mission scenes are as strong as any feature of the production. They have an atmosphere typical of the New York slum sections, and many of the scenes were no doubt taken there. Jim, after his first release from prison, stumbles into the mission, where the girl secretes him. The police are seeking to hold him for a new crime, which he did not commit.

He becomes a leader in the mission work, and there is a life-like atmosphere in these scenes, which saves the plot from becoming too conventional. Certain humorous touches are also appealing.

The girl marries her father's secretary, a young man of weak character. The latter falls into the clutches of a gambler and his paramour, and the husband is saved only by the timely sacrifice of Jim, who again goes to prison to save him.

Scene from "Temptation and the Man" (Red Feather).

Certain features of the last three reels are lacking in conviction, but the story holds the interest because of the vivid, melodramatic action. There is a double killing at the close, when the gambler, in a fit of jealous rage, kills the husband and his paramour. Jim and the young widow then find happiness together.

Horsley Studios Add Players.

Four new players have been added to the Horsley-Mutual playing forces during the past week. They are Myra Davis Dowling, Marguerite Foss, Lloyd Holton and Corine Bradford.

Miss Dowling is an actress with experience both on the speaking stage and in pictures. She will appear in support of Margaret Gibson and William Clifford. Miss Foss has been in picture work for several years. Lloyd Holton has been engaged as a member of Crane Wilbur's recently organized company.

Corine Bradford, known everywhere as "the girl on the cover," she having posed for numerous artists, is a newcomer to motion pictures.

Vaudeville Favorite With Kalem.

To secure the "real thing" in "The Artful Dodger," a recent Kalem comedy, Director Harry Millarde especially engaged Eileen Godsey, a well-known vaudeville favorite, for a specialty dance in the theatre scene. So strongly did Miss Godsey score in her initial screen appearance that she was induced to consent to a longer engagement. As a result she will be seen in a number of "Ham" comedies, including "Ham, the Explorer," "The Peach Pickers," and "The Baggage Smashers."

Richard Bennett at Santa Barbara.

Interest in and about the American-Mutual studios in Santa Barbara, Cal., has for the past few days been centered chiefly in Richard Bennett, who recently begun work on "The Sable Curse," first of the American-Mutual star productions in which he is to be starred.

"The Dupe"

A Lasky Production in which Blanche Sweet is Featured in the Leading Part.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

MISS Blanche Sweet is featured as the star in this production, but the histrionic honors, it seems to me, go to Veda McEvers, whose rendition of a most difficult and apparently thankless part is easily the striking feature in the entire production.

The plot deals with society and its trappings and tinsel which often hide much of real unhappiness. The construction of the plot and the direction show commendable skill. The development of the action is logical and the climaxes are natural and yet not too conventional. There are slight digressions from the main story which at times impede the rapid progress of the story, but these are minor defects and detract but little from the genuine merits of this feature. The ending is abrupt and not altogether satisfying from a dramatic reasoner's point of view.

Scene from "The Dupe" (Lasky).

The lighting effects, the settings and the atmosphere are up to the usual splendid Lasky standard.

Making a Market for Exhibitors.

Remarkable success has attended the efforts of the V-L-S-E branch managers in creating a demand for their features even before the exhibitors have booked those features. Two instances in the booking of "The Battle Cry of Peace" are noteworthy.

Mrs. S. L. Lewis, manager of the Liberty theatre, Gunnison, Colo., received repeated requests from her clientele to show "The Battle Cry," but in her opinion, the size of her town didn't warrant it. These requests came to the attention of Frank Harris, Denver manager of the Big Four, and he immediately sent circular letters to fifty of the most prominent citizens of Gunnison announcing that Mrs. Lewis would book the big Vitagraph feature if they would lend their support and guarantee their presence at its showing. The result was that the business done startled even Mrs. Lewis. She immediately instructed Mr. Harris to send along any others on which he would lend his co-operation, and V-L-S-E features will now be shown in Gunnison for months to come.

"Don't Cheat Yourself" (Paramount).

If the high cost of living is causing you wakeful nights, don't accuse the tradesmen of cheating you. Not more than once in a thousand times does the storekeeper give you short weight or short change. You cheat yourself by careless buying and neglecting to count your change. Your own methods of defrauding yourself have been picturized in the Paramount Pictographs, also the numerous tricks of huckster thieves for which the police are always on their guard—the dented tin can, the false bottom berry box, foot springs which hold down the weight side of scales and the quarter which adds to weights with the aid of a piece of gum. This release is entitled "Don't Cheat Yourself."

Crisis Changes Gaumont's Animated Release.

Because of the timeliness of "preparedness" cartoons, Harry Palmer, who animates the Gaumont Kartoon Komics, has withheld "Weary's Day Dream," announced for July 5. In its stead "Scrambled Events" will be the Gaumont animated offering. It is a melange of cartoons upon prominent individuals in the public eye.

Comments on the Films

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

General Film Company

NO PLACE LIKE JAIL (Lubin), June 26.—The unfortunate wretch who expresses the sentiments to be found in the title of this one-reel comedy, is a married man. A slight difference with his wife makes him prefer any old place to home. Once the lady thinks her husband dead, however, she is ready to welcome him with open arms. The reel supplys D. L. Don with considerable good material for the use of his comedy gifts. Patsy De Forest has the part of the wife.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 51, 1916 (Selig), June 26.—U. S. S. Nebraska at Vera Cruz, Mexico; Uncle Sam cares for Mexicans at El Paso; Mexicans at Juarez engage in sports; refugees at El Paso; Australian and New Zealand troops at Westminster Abby, London; repairs rushed on U. S. S. South Dakota at Brenerton, Wash.; King George and Queen Mary attend service, London.

THE FOXY TROTTERS (Vitagraph), June 26.—As the title indicates, this one-reel comedy is a satire on the now waning dance craze. Its humorous qualities make it an entertaining reel. George Kunkel, Anne Schaefer, Carmes Phillips and Jack Mower are the trotters.

THE EXPLORER (Kalem), June 27.—A review of this one-reel Ham comedy was printed in the issue of July 8, page 264. Ham and Bud are wrecked on a South Sea island and meet a dusky queen. To quote from the review: "The reel's amusing qualities are never in doubt."

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S BOOK OF ST. LOUIS (Essanay), June 28.—The motion drawings made by Vernon Howe Bailey for his sketch of the interesting points in St. Louis have the same merit that insured the popularity of the previous numbers of the sketch book. Mr. Bailey's unique work has added something new to the screen. Travel scenes in the West are on the same reel.

WHEN OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS (Kalem), June 28.—Ethel Teare has the role of a struggling artist in this one-reel comedy. The author has been only moderately successful in supplying the scenario with humorous situations, but the entire cast work with spirit.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 52, 1916 (Selig), June 29.—El Paso, machine gun practice; New York, National Guardsmen preparing to leave for the border; Class Day at Harvard College; President Wilson and Secretary Baker review National Guardsmen; On the Eastern Front, German soldiers restore a wrecked bridge; Candidate Charles E. Hughes reviews National Guardsmen at Boston; English soldiers with wooden leg; English women do farm work at Surrey.

SETTING THE FASHION (Kalem), June 30.—Another topnotch Sis comedy, this one-reeler contains a brilliant thought on the part of the author. Sis contrives to make her pigtails the fashion and society adopts them as the latest thing from Paris. The reel is vastly amusing.

FOR VALUE RECEIVED (Vim), June 30.—The acrobatic proficiency of Walter Stull and Bob Burns is amply revealed in this Pokes and Jabbs number, which introduces several ingenious bits of low comedy business. As usual, the plot is of secondary importance.

LOSING WEIGHT (Vitagraph), June 30.—Gaining weight would come nearer the truth as a title for this one-reel comedy. Hughey Mack has a number of surprising and laughable adventures in trying to reduce, but only succeeds in putting on flesh. He rolls, tumbles, runs and jumps all through the reel in the most strenuous fashion, but to no purpose. Jewell Hunt and John Flatow assist in making the picture a success.

General Film Company Specials

THE ANCIENT BLOOD (Knickerbocker), June 23.—Not an exceptional picture, either in story or treatment, but a fairly entertaining drama, acted by Virginia Norden, Robyn Adair and others, under the direction of H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer. Most of the scenes are supposed to be laid in the Canadian Northwest, where a young Englishman falls in love with a half-breed girl. Released in three reels.

A TRAITOR TO ART (Essanay), June 24.—Charles Michaelson, the author of this three-reel photoplay, has put together a highly romantic plot and introduced strongly contrasting phases of life in his story. A country girl who tries to become a great painter, a minister who wants the girl to give up her Bohemian life and marry him, and a talented artist who persuades the girl to pose as Cleopatra, are the leading characters. The finish is melodramatic. Ann Kirk, Edward Arnold, Hugh Thompson head the cast. The acting and production are up to the standard.

WOULD YOU FORGIVE HER? (Vitagraph), June 24.—The heroine of this three-reel drama is forced into dishonor by a wealthy man, and, in revenge, shoots him dead. The way in which the author has handled the story wins sympathy for the woman who takes the law into her own hands. Dodd Crane is the name of the author, and Van Dyke Brooke made the production. The work of both has been well done. Leah Baird acts the wronged girl with force and feeling, and leaves no doubt in the mind of the spectator that she would have hesitated to take the course laid out for Eleanor Blane by the author.

THE MUSIC SWINDLERS (No. 14 of "The Social Pirates"—Kalem), June 26.—The methods by which ambitious young women are robbed while attempting to enter an operatic career, are exposed in this instalment of the Kalem serial. The number is equal to the best of the previous releases. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of July 1, page 102.

THE SACRIFICE (Selig), June 26.—This three-reel drama is said to have been inspired by the song "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier." If so, the mother in the photoplay is made of the right metal, and the boy finally goes with her blessing. The young man is killed on the field of battle. The picture is on a timely subject and brings home the horrors of war with great force. Eugenie Besserer and Harry Mestayer are impressive as the mother and the son. Harry De Vere, Guy Oliver and Anna Luther are also excellent. Frank Beal, the director, has handled the battle scenes with skill.

THE SOUTHERNERS (Edison), June 27.—A reissue of the three-reel photoplay adapted from the novel by Cyrus Townsend Brady, the picture tells the story of two brothers who fight on different sides in the Civil War. The Battle of Mobile Bay is one of the big situations. Mabelle Trunnelle, Bigelow Cooper, Herbert Prior and Augustus Phillips are members of the cast.

THE VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS (Essanay), June 27.—Francis X. Bushman, Irene Warfield and Gerda Holmes play the leads in this two-reel reissue drama which shows how fate frees a man from an uncongenial wife. The story is a bit of romance which will please, if not questioned too closely.

OUT OF THE FLOTSAM (Lubin), June 27.—This two-reel photoplay is reviewed on another page of this issue.

A FAIR REBEL (Biograph), June 28.—Linda Arvidson plays the title role of this three-reel reissue, and Dorothy Gish, Chas. Perley, Chas. West and Robert Drouet have important parts in the cast. Libby Prison and the blowing up of a bridge occupy prominent positions in this screen version of a well-known Civil War drama.

THE LOTUS WOMAN (Kalem), June 28.—The scenes of this five-reel melodrama are laid, for the most part, in South America. There is no lack of action during the unfolding of the story. Alice Hollister, the original vampire of the screen, is the star. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of June 17, page 2055.

THE RETURN OF JOHN BOSTON (Lubin), June 29.—A review of this three-reel photoplay is printed on another page of the present issue.

THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE (Knickerbocker), June 30.—Frank Mayo plays a dual role in this three-part melodrama produced by the Horkheimers. The picture could scarcely be called convincing, but it profits by rapid action, some good water scenes, well photographed, and occasional bits of broad comedy. A review appeared in the issue of July 1.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

THE LOVE GIRL, July 10.—An attractive five-part production featuring Ella Hall. The picture is one that will be enjoyed by all, and treats of how a little girl left to the care of a grouchy relative succeeds at last in instilling the spirit of love into the family. A review of this picture will be found in the issue of July 8, page 265.

George Kleine.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE, NOS. 6 AND 7, June 26 and July 3.—The opening part of chapter six of this series is lacking interest. Thereafter the plot thickens and interesting situations increase. Some novel scenes and a singular intance of double exposure camera work add considerably to the interest. The climax of chapter seven brings a tense situation. For an extended review of this serial see page 264 of the July 8th issue.

Metro Pictures Corporation.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION (Popular Plays and Players—Metro), July 3.—The rather unusual plot of this picture affords Mme. Petrova an opportunity to appear, first as the companion of an Italian organ grinder, then as a European princess in distress. The story is romantic, generally entertaining and it is intelligently handled by director and players.

Mutual Film Corporation

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 42 (Gaumont), June 28.—Glacier National Park is the subject of this issue. An exhaustive exhibition of the remarkable natural beauties of this park is given therein. The reel is finished out with an excellent comic cartoon from the pen of Harry Palmer, entitled "Johnny's Romeo."

JERRY'S BIG HAUL (Cub), June 30.—This features George Ovey in his well-known character, Jerry. He gets up a smallpox scare, pushes the girl's father into the lake by mistake and raises trouble generally. The plot is too scattering to hold the attention firmly, though some of the action is amusing.

THE KINK FROM KANKAKEE (Beauty), July 2.—A clever comedy featuring Orral Humphrey. Arrived from the west, he takes an unexpected part in the preliminaries of a political election, and succeeds in catching the villain in his own trap, but leaves for the west again a much disappointed man because of his failure to win the girl he loves.

REEL LIFE, NO. 9 (Gaumont), July 2.—An excellent number of the magazine in film containing a review of the monuments of ancient Egypt, a detailed illustration of our grandmother's method of handling wool from the shearing of the sheep to the weaving of the cloth on the old hand loom, and some interesting studies of tropical birds, including the emu.

JUST FOR A KID (Vogue), July 2.—This is a slapstick comedy that will probably be enjoyed for its continuity of swift action. Some may object to the rough handling given a baby that is stolen for the purpose of exhibiting it at the baby show at which a prize of five thousand dollars is offered. The child, however, does not seem to mind.

THE CHASER CHASED (Vogue), July 4.—Rather an amusing comedy, in which the principal source of fun is a chase at the beach when a mix-up of wives, sweethearts, etc., occurs, and the men of the party vent their fury in a few rough and tumble fights varied by a sort of hide-and-seek game through the bath houses.

BILLY VAN DEUSEN MASQUERADER (Beauty), July 5.—A very amusing comedy, in which John Steppling plays the title role. In an attempt to masquerade he is mistaken by a pair of burglars for one of their kind, and is knocked senseless, robbed of his supposed booty, placed in a cab, and later arrives at a farm house, from which he is arrested as a thief. Very funny.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials

A KING O' MAKE BELIEVE (Centaur), July 1.—A two-reel number featuring Crane Wilbur and Mae Gaston. She plays an invalid girl with a designing guardian, who seeks to force her to marry his son. Mr. Wilbur plays the hero of a moving picture company, who saves the girl from this unhappy fate. The story contains no great originality of plot. It has some good comedy touches and a romantic flavor. The action in the last reel holds the interest. It makes, on the whole, a number of about average strength.

KILLED BY WHOM? (American), July 3.—An excellent two-part melodrama, featuring Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh. The production shows what can be done with a simple story carefully developed. A son who has been disowned by his father because of a marriage contracted with a young woman of lower station is accused of the murder of his father, whose death, the end of the picture discloses, was caused by two little boys fooling with a loaded revolver on the roof of a house near his father's office window.

THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE (American), July 3.—Instalment No. 7. This number is pictured in a wild, rugged coast country. Cleo and Hope escape from their boat to Santa Cruz island, where they meet Hook. They go to the Fitzmaurice cabin, followed by the numerous spys, all in search of the books. Wm. Tedmarsh, as Satsuma, does a thrilling jump from a cliff to the sea, with two of the books. These are taken from him by Hope, but prove to be the wrong ones. There is a closing thrill, when the cabin is dynamited by Satsuma.

THE HIGHEST BID (Mutual Masterpicture de Luxe—American), July 6.—A five-part feature made at the American studios, with Charlotte Burton and William Russell in the leading roles. The story from which the picture is made is a good one, but the production, although much above the average, suffers considerably from a lack of suspense which is caused partly by premature disclosure in the sub-titles in place of revelation through action. At the same time, short stretches of film have been wasted on scenes which have too slight a bearing on the general theme to be of value. Miss Burton is at her best in this picture, but for a faulty method of applying her makeup. The expression of her lips and eyes have suffered to a certain extent from this oversight.

THE VAGABOND (Lone Star), July 10.—This two-part comedy was written and produced by Charles Chaplin. It is a good production of the kind, and particularly noticeable because of its originality and unsimilarity to other Chaplin releases. The author-director has succeeded in bringing into the picture a touch of pathos as well as his usual fund of comic action. As a wandering musician he comes across a young girl being maltreated by gypsies, in whose possession she happens to be. The musician overcomes his adversaries and takes the girl away. The close of the story, which really has a plot, shows her being claimed by her own people from whom she has been kidnapped, and dragging her rescuer with her.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

SUSIE SNOWFLAKE (Famous Players), June 22.—A five-part subject, featuring Ann Pennington, dancer—and also actress. It is a domestic story, wholesome, delightful, and filled with excellent types of a rural community. This charming picture was reviewed in the issue of July 8, on page 262.

THE WORLD'S GREAT SNARE (Famous Players), June 26.—A strong story, featuring Pauline Frederick. She is supported by a good cast, including Irving Cummings, Riley Hatch, Ferdinand Tidmarsh and Frank Evans. The subject was reviewed in last week's issue, on page 263.

THE AMERICAN BEAUTY (Pallas), June 29.—A very pretty picture with Myrtle Stedman in the leading role which she makes charming. The story has good quality and has been ably put on the screen. A longer review will be found on page 262, issue of July 8, 1916, of this paper.

FARMER ALFALFA'S WATERMELON PATCH (Bray), July 9.—Farmer Alfalfa, a negro, with a keen taste for watermelons and a mule are used to good purpose by Paul Terry in this comedy cartoon which occupies the greater part of a reel, concluding with some of Ashley Miller's Plastiques. The cartoon is cleverly drawn and is certain to excite laughter.

MUNICH, THE MAGNIFICENT (Travelogue), July 9.—In presenting the attractions of the city of Munich, Burton Holmes overlooked little that might be of interest. Famous streets, buildings and pieces of statuary are pictured, and to give the film a spectacular quality there are views of a religious procession in which the King of Bavaria appears.

PICTOGRAPHS (Paramount), July 9.—In collaboration with System Magazine, the editor of Pictographs prepared a series of scenes illustrating with more or less success the methods of modern salesmen. Other subjects in this issue include teaching children table manners, a study of wild birds and scenes photographed around New York and gathered under the general head of "Ten Minute Vacations."

Triangle Film Corporation.

HEARTS AND SPARKS (Keystone), June 4.—A mildly amusing story of a young inventor who perfected a wireless spark-plug for motor cars and won both race and bride by its use.

THE DECOY (Mutual), June 29.—The story of a country girl used by city gamblers as a decoy only to turn on them and unmask the villian in a murder mystery. Melodrama.

FLIRTING WITH FATE (Fine-Arts), July 9.—A remarkably bright and original comedy, charming in itself and affording Douglas Fairbanks the best opportunity he has had in a long time.

THE DESERTER (Ince), July 9.—A tiresome play made out of old materials, relieved only at intervals with some large Ince pictures of battle.

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 26 (Universal), June 28.—Excellent views of the Fighting 69th and other National Guard organizations leaving for the Mexican front. The Los Angeles parade and Harvard and Yale reunions are also featured.

THE THREE BRAVE HUNTERS (Big U), July 13.—A character production, in which the hero and his friends masquerade as animals to scare the bragging huntsmen. The Dutch costumes and scenic affects are pleasing. The number will probably have an especial appeal to children.

SAMMY JOHNSON GETS A JOB (Powers), July 13.—Animated funny pictures, by Pat Sullivan, showing the adventures of a small pickaninny who becomes an A. D. T. boy. These are clever and amusing.

LITTLE BOY BLUE (Victor), July 14.—A fine adaptation of the well known Eugene Field poem, by Rupert Julian. The story tells how the little boy brings his toys in out of the rain and dies from exposure. Later the poem is written by the father and it brings reconcilation with his wife. This is delicately handled and will bring both smiles and tears.

THE HAREM SCARUM DEACON (Joker), July 15.—A character comedy of the burlesque type, featuring Gale Henry as president of the Anti-Sin Society, and Wm. Franey as the weak-willed deacon. He visits a Chinese joint on a crusade against opium and falls a victim to the fumes. His dream is elaborately pictured. This has laughable moments and makes quite an offering of the type.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials

IN THE HANDS OF THE ENEMY (Universal Special), July 3.—This tenth instalment of the "Peg o' the Ring" series, like many of its predecessors, pays small attention to the general plot, but confines itself to brisk, adventurous incidents. Peg saves the circus train from a wreck by stopping a runaway box car and later wins an exciting horse race. The instalment closes with her once more in the hands of the Hindu and his gang.

A DEAD YESTERDAY (Rex), July 9.—A two-reel number, by Tom Lewis, featuring Hobart Henley, Cleo Madison, Agnes Vernon and others. This is a story of tangled matrimonial affairs, the young man marrying twice. The first wife steps out when the second has a baby. The child dies and then the second wife also becomes a mother. The second baby is substituted for the dead child, but the first wife dies of shock; the young husband then finds happiness with the first. This is extremely complicated, and while acceptable enough in the handling of these delicate situations, it cannot be called a strong production. It passes over vital moments too rapidly to leave a deep impression.

THE HEART OF A CHILD (Red Feather), July 10.—A five-reel adaptation of Frank Danby's celebrated novel. This pictures the rise of a girl of the London slums. She becomes a famous singer and finally wins the love of a titled man. The intimate pictures of English life are novel and pleasing, though some of the photography is rather dark. Edna Flugarth is seen at her best in the part of Sally Snape and gets the sympathy of the observer from the first. The story is at no time sensational, but increases steadily in interest and comes to a very pleasing close. The cast is an English one and well balanced.

NATURE INCORPORATED (Gold Seal), July 11.—A two-reel subject, based on a story by Sinclair Lewis, featuring Herbert Rawlinson, Agnes Vernon and Wm. Canfield. This is a unique little comedy offering with quite an original plot. The young business man from the city goes to the nature colony on the beach, conducted by Prof. Boggs. He meets Beulah, the professor's beautiful young assistant, and falls in love with her. He even lives on beans for a long while in order to be near her. They are married, go to the city, and then start a native colony of their own. This is attractively pictured and makes a pleasing light subject.

NO. 16, MARTIN STREET (Laemmle), July 13.—A two-reel number by Bess Meredyth, featuring Dorothy Davenport, Emory Johnson, Alfred Allen, and Gretchen Lederer. In this is unraveled the murder of a woman found dead in her apartments. The detective's trail leads him to the habitation of some cocaine fiends; it develops that the woman's husband committed the crime, aided by a woman accomplice. Dorothy Davenport does pleasing work as the girl who aids the detective. The story deals with sordid types, but is well handled and makes altogether quite a strong offering.

THE LITTLE GRAY MOUSE (Imp), July 14.—A two-reel subject, by Catherine Carr. This features Edith Roberts as a girl placed in a convent by her father. She plays truant, much to the disgust of the nuns, but saves the neighboring house from a holdup. She also meets her lover and finds her father, supposed to be dead. The story is quite original in plot and settings and makes an entertaining subject.

THE HUMAN PENDULUM (Bison), July 15.—A three-reel story of railway construction and operation, written and produced by Henry McRae. The cast is pleasing and includes Leo Hill, Marie Walcamp, L. C. Shumway and others. This abounds in picturesque scenic effects and thrilling action. Numerous stunts of the breath-taking sort are shown; the rescue on the cliffs, dash through the burning tunnel, and train wreck, reproduced from miniature settings, are all fine features. A strong railroad subject.

V-L-S-E, Inc.

THE CONFLICT (Vitagraph), July 3.—A five-part Blue Ribbon Feature with Lucille Lee Stewart in the leading feminine role. Unfortunately the cast in this picture is scarcely equal to the occasion, and the characterization suffers thereby. A full review of the production appears on another page of this issue.

World-Equitable.

THE CRUCIAL TEST (Paragon-World).—Kitty Gordon as a Russian Countess looks the part and acts with the emotional intensity required in a melodrama such as Frances Marion wrote for the Paragon company. The story is conventional and not especially convincing, but it was given an adequate production by John Ince and Robert Thornby. A review appears on another page.

Miscellaneous.

THE WOMAN WHO DARED (California M. P. Corp.) (State Rights), July.—An interesting story adapted by Captain Leslie T. Peacock from a novel by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. The plot is complicated and diverting, and the production made under the direction of George E. Middleton introduces a quantity of lavish settings. Beatriz Michelena appears to advantage as a famous prima donna. A review may be found elsewhere in this issue.

"THE FADED FLOWER."

The first all-star cast Ivan production brings together for the first time the noted screen artist Marguerite Snow, the well known Alma Hanlon, the great legitimate actress Rose Coghlan, Arthur Donaldson, the original "Prince of Pilsen," and Edward Mackey. The vehicle in which these artists are presented is entitled "The Faded Flower," and is from the pen of Ivan Abramson.

The story deals with Wilbur Mason, (portrayed by Arthur Donaldson), an elderly millionaire widower, father of Anne (Alma Hanlon), an only child, who proposes to Lillian Hill (Miss Snow), his stenographer. She accepts him, because of his declaration that he will devote his fortune to restoring the sight of her blind mother (Miss Coghlan).

Mason, after the honeymoon, engages a renowned specialist, whose operation upon Mrs. Hill is unsuccessful. Lillian now sadly realizes that her sacrifice was in vain. Mason mistakes the attentions of Parker, a noted playwright, to his wife, and believes the man is clandestinely meeting his wife, when in reality Parker is courting Mason's own daughter, Anne.

Lillian as a result becomes grief-stricken and ill and leaves her husband's home to return to her mother. Here she fades. When it is too late the truth is brought home to Mason, and he would atone, but Lillian has passed away.

Parker and Anne are married with the consent of Mason. Alone, Mason sinks gradually and soon follows his wife's spirit.

It is expected this play, which is being enacted under Mr. Abramson's direction, will be ready for release through the Ivan exchanges on July 10 as the regular Ivan monthly feature.

IRENE FENWICK BEGINS METRO PRODUCTION.

Irene Fenwick, who recently closed a successful engagement on Broadway in "The Co-respondent," is now at work on a five-part Metro subject which is as yet unnamed.

"Gloria" Projected Over the Ocean

Kleine Motion Picture Novel Booked for Brighton Baths, the Screen for Which Is Planted in Atlantic.

MANY an exhibitor has wished on more than one occasion that he had a theatre that could be expanded or contracted as occasion demanded. On nights when business was poor he has looked over the rows of empty seats and wished that he had only half as many, so that it would at least look like a crowd—and then again when a long waiting line piled up in front of the box office, he has wished that the walls might be pushed back and that he were enabled in a moment to double his seating capacity. But nobody ever thought such a theatre really existed. But it does.

Billie Burke and "Gloria's Romance" have just been booked into what is considered by many the most unique theatre in the world—the Brighton Baths at Brighton Beach. There is room for all in this theatre and not only can the patrons enjoy the latest and best films on the screen, but in addition they can revel in the cool ocean breezes, the while they rock lazily in beautiful rocking chairs, instead of thick, hot upholstered seats, or if they prefer they can also swim in the surf. For the management of the Brighton Baths shows motion pictures in the ocean, and when the tide is out can comfortably seat 3,000 people along the beach in big rockers. It is advertised as "The Rocking Chair Movies by Moonlight."

The Billie Burke feature, "Gloria's Romance," made at the George Kleine studios, was booked at the Brighton Baths by Manager W. E. Raynor of the George Kleine New York exchange, and a rental far above that ordinarily paid was cheerfully offered by the management for the privilege of showing the Rupert Hughes motion picture novel to its patrons.

AMERICAN PRESENTS KOLB AND DILL.

Aaron Hoffman, the well known playwright, has been secured to write comics exclusively for Kolb and Dill productions, to be released on Mutual program.

The first of the series is entitled "A Million for Mary," a multi-reel subject in which these veterans of the speaking stage, who have made millions laugh, prove that they are pantomime histrions of the first water.

Much of the comedy is carried on in a drug store, of which the comedians are partnership owners. Supporting them, in the principal feminine role, Miss May Cloy is given excellent opportunities to demonstrate her ability.

It is predicted that when "A Million for Mary" is announced by the Mutual theaters will be quick to grasp the entertainment opportunity it will offer, as few comedians stand higher in popularity than the famous team of Kolb and Dill.

SIS HOPKINS IN ENGLAND.

Reports following the introduction of Kalem's Sis Hopkins comedies in England indicate that that famous funmaker will duplicate in the land of Johnny Bull the success she achieved here in her screen debut. The Kalem productions are giving English theatergoers their first glimpse of Sis as, during the years of her success in this country, her engagements were planned so far in advance that it was never possible to consider the many offers for foreign tours. The same novel advertising methods used here on the Sis Hopkins subjects are being employed in the English market.

ACTED IN FIRST AUSTRALIAN MOTION PICTURE.

Alexandre J. Herbert, who plays the part of Friar John in the Metro-Quality Pictures Corporation production of "Romeo and Juliet," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will appear as the most celebrated lovers in dramatic literature, acted in the first motion picture ever produced in Australia. This was "The Sign of the Cross," the Wilson Barrett play produced in picture form under the auspices of the Salvation Army. Mr. Herbert, then a boy, played Stephanus, the martyred child. Mr. Herbert was born in Melbourne, Australia.

McRAE COMPANY IN SAN FRANCISCO.

For the purpose of making a number of scenes for the production of "Onda of the Orient," Director Henry McRae has taken his large company from Universal City to San Francisco.

The leading role is played by Marie Walcamp with L. C. Shumway opposite. In this play Miss Walcamp is seen with dark hair, something entirely foreign to her usual appearance before the camera.

MEXICAN PICTURES IN DEMAND.

Samuel Cummins, 1476 Broadway, New York City, has had success with his 1,500 feet of Mexican war pictures that he has recently booked on the Loew Circuit, where it played for sixty days to capacity. These pictures were obtained during the recent pursuit by United States soldiers of Villa. There is a special line of pictorial posters in one and three sheets for these pictures.

REPORTS FIVE-REELER STOLEN.

Timely Feature Films, 110 West Fortieth street, reports that a five part subject, "The Battle of Pryzemysl," has been stolen.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"JAFFERY" (Frohman).

"Jaffery" is completed. The Frohman Amusement Corporation's production of William J. Locke's greatest novel is now being cut and is certain to be a feature as unusual and intensely interesting in its picturization as it is in book form. So strong does the Frohman Company think every foot of this picture that it will be released in six reels instead of five, as originally intended.

Scene from "Jaffery" (Frohman).

Every conceivable detail has been carried out to the last degree by Director George Irving, and the splendid cast has exceeded his hopes in their characteriaztions. In finding ideal locations, too, Mr. Irving's scouting parties were unusually fortunate. It is expected that "Jaffery" will be ready for release by July 15.

"HER AMERICAN PRINCE" (Mutual).

Ormi Hawley, the young and popular player, is presented by the Mutual Film Corporation as the heroine of "Her American Prince," a forthcoming five-act Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe edition, having to do with the efforts of a band of unscrupulous politicians to obtain possession of the throne of a mythical principality governed by an aged monarch.

Those who delighted in the "Prisoner of Zenda" tales will find a refreshing charm in this unusually interesting story of love and adventure. All the atmosphere of a novel is found in this screen presentation which should appeal to everybody who has appreciation for anything romantic and exciting.

"Her American Prince," is from the pen of Carl Herbert, having been adapted for the screen from the novel and play of the samc name.

Miss Hawley is seen in the role of the Princess who falls in love with a young American physician (Bradley Barker), while he is on a tour of the Continent. His likeness to the Prince Consort is of such a striking nature that everywhere he is mistaken for the heir apparent, a situation that brings him no end of rather unusual adventures.

Mr. Barker essays a dual role, appearing as the Prince and later as the young physician. His work in this production stamps him as a virile actor who rises to every emergency with a vigor that is sure to win him much praise.

"THE WORLD'S GREAT SNARE" (Famous Players).

Pauline Frederick will make her next screen appearance on June 26, in the Famous Players Film Company's adaptation of "The World's Great Snare," from the book of the same name by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Among those who appear in the supporting cast are Irving Cummings, Ferdinand Tidmarsh, Frank Evans, Riley Hatch and Buckley Starkey. The production was staged under the direction of Joseph Kaufman and is his first picture for the Famous Players.

The action of the story opens in England and then moves to America where it shifts from San Francisco to the gold fields. Here the most important part of the theme is developed in the atmosphere of the mining camp where no women are ever permitted to enter. Some of the most picturesque scenes in the play take place in the Montana Cafe in San Francisco, where Miss Frederick appears as the star dancer of the resort to which the miners and longshoremen flock in vast numbers.

It is an insult offered to the dancer that precipitates a thrilling fight scene in the Montana, in which Aimes Rutten, the offender, is hurled over a balcony railing and falls upon a table on the floor below.

"THE LAUGHING MASK" DISCLOSES IDENTITY.

At last the identity of "The Laughing Mask," hero of Pathe's "Iron Claw" serial, is disclosed, and the minds of hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic followers of the adventures of Margery Golden are still on the qui vive. For "The Laughing Mask," foe of evildoers, wrongrighter, terror of Jules Legar, protector of Margery Golden, and the mystery of the photoplay world, shows his true self only to Margery Golden, the lady of his heart, sometime known as Pauline of the Perils, Elaine of the Exploits, and occasionally—Pearl White.

It's this way: In the next to the final chapter of "The Iron Claw," Margery, backing away from one of the sinister Legar's henchmen, is cornered on a shelf of rock in a cave (The Cave of Despair) and is seemingly on the point of death when the Laughing Mask appears and coolly disables her assailant. Legar is placed under arrest, and the Mask, standing with Margery, slowly lifts the "veil"—and turns his back on the audience! And citizens neglect the war news, the Mexican situation, and the presidential campaign in solving the great American question, "Who is the Laughing Mask?"

The next and final episode of "The Iron Claw" promises relief; it is called "The Triumph of the Laughing Mask," and will be released Monday, July 10.

"THE SECRET OF THE NIGHT" (Essanay).

The queer tricks fate may play with a man's mind and memory here offer an absorbing topic for a three-reel drama. Asphasia victims are common to the police and medical records of any large city, and it is difficult to imagine anything more dramatic than the return of memory to such a victim. In this play the principal is a young detective who elopes with his bride when her father forbids marriage. Hardly had their daughter been born two years later than he disappeared. With memory gone he is led to his same line of work in another city. Under a different name he obtains great success. Twenty years pass in which his daughter grows to womanhood. A foreigner among her suitors seems to possess a power over her and this alarms her mother, who recalls her own experience. She calls upon a detective agency for aid. Her husband responds and amid the familiar home surroundings regains his memory. Sydney Ainsworth, Lillian Drew, John Lorenz and Gertrude Glover make up the cast.

Scene from "The Secret of the Night" (Essanay).

ATMOSPHERE OF THE WEST.

Here is a picture that exudes western atmosphere. It shows Harry Carey the well known Universal actor of western roles, and his bunch of cowboys in evening dress aside from boots and hats. From left to right: Bud Osborne, rider and steer bulldogger; Joe Rickson champion Roman rider; Tommy Grimes, champion bucking horse rider; Pedro Leon, the man who can rope fifteen riders with his lariat; Neal Hart, former Wyoming sheriff and range rider; Harry Carey, and Bill Gillis, Texas cowpuncher and all-round rider of bucking horses and steers.

"THE BLUE ENVELOPE" (Vitagraph).

What will be a notable release is in preparation at the Vitagraph studios with Lillian Walker as the star. The subject will be Sophie Kerr's story "The Blue Envelope," which is now running in the Woman's Home Companion, and of which Vitagraph has engaged the motion picture rights. Incidentally the story as prepared for the screen will harmonize with the movement for better films inaugurated by the magazine.

"The Blue Envelope" as written by Miss Kerr is a wholesome story of adventure with a young heiress as the principal character. Miss Helen Duey, "better films" editor of the Woman's Home Companion, was struck with the possibilties of the story as a motion picture plot containing ample suspense, dramatic situations and a healthy love interest without the exaggerations, absurdities and objectionable features criticized in so many productions dealing with the adventures of a young girl. Therefore she enthusiastically put the story in scenario form and submitted it to Vitagraph, where it was accepted as admirably adapted to the purpose.

The part of the heroine, who is a rich young woman thrown unexpectedly upon her own resources and into a maelstrom of stirring experiences, was at once assigned to Miss Walker and is being directed by Wilfrid North and work has already begun on the important scenes.

"KILLED BY WHOM?" (Flying A).

"Didn't know it was loaded," has been the sadly expressed excuse for serious or fatal shooting accidents ever since the invention of the firearm, although, perhaps, it is generally the reason for accidents to children. This thought has been worked into a two-part scenario by William Parker, of the American Film Company staff of writers, and the action of the story is carried by Vivian Rich, Alfred Vosburgh and George Periolat.

The plot is a combination warning against convictions on circumstantial evidence, and carries a strong warning to children against playing with firearms. About to be convicted of the murder of his father, Alfred Vosburgh is exonerated by the confession of the child in whose hands was the weapon which fired the fatal shot in play.

The name of this intensely dramatic two-reel "Flying A" drama is "Killed By Whom?" to be released by the Mutual on July 3.

THE STRAND THEATER, FORT DODGE.

A. F. Powers, of the Decorators Supply Company, has closed a contract for the ornamental plaster decorations and lighting fixtures for the Strand theater now being erected at Fort Dodge, Iowa, by Messrs. Julius & Awe.

The decorations of the Strand will be carried out according to the designs furnished by the proprietors. The theater will seat about 700, and will be of strictly fire-proof construction. The auditorium will be ventilated with a modern air washing apparatus. The interior of the auditorium will be carried out to represent an Italian garden effect, with semi-direct electric bowls suspended from arches between the wall pilasters. The wall pilasters and proscenium arch will be of caenstone.

The foyer and lobby will be of ornamental plaster marble and mosaic floor. The prevailing color of the auditorium will be French gray and ivory, with electric fixtures in ivory and antique gold. The entire front of the building will be covered with an artistic electric sign and display lights.

FRONTIER COMEDY IN PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOON.

A. B. Rood has joined the ranks of the artists who are contributing to the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons with his frontier comedy "The Wild and Woolly West." Shooting up a house and bar in characteristic cowboy fashion the hero aims a shot at a beer-barrel and is propelled up the road on a geyser of beer to the next scene in the plot. There he encounters a hurricane, and with the house is carried away on the crest of the whirl. He breaks into the railroad station, binds the girl agent and robs the safe. She manages to hit the telegraph keys with her nose and signals her sweetheart, who rushes to the rescue and provides the drama with a thrilling conclusion.

MUTUAL WEEKLY RECOGNIZED AT FRONT.

Following a conference by Editor Pell Mitchell of The Mutual Weekly with Secretary of the Navy Daniels the Mutual Weekly was authorized to send a representative with the fleet operating in Mexican waters. A man to represent this motographic news reel was sent immediately to Galveston, Tex., whence he will board a government vessel for Vera Cruz. Film must first be passed by the navy censors at Washington. Mr. Mitchell also saw Secretary of War Baker before returning to the Gaumont Laboratories at Flushing, N. Y., where the Mutual Weekly is manufactured. Secretary Baker referred the matter to General Funston, but it is expected that a special Mutual Weekly camera-car will be attached to the main column should the present crisis lead to hostilities.

"THE BISHOP'S SECRET" (Unity).

The Unity Sales Corporation announces the coming releases of a photodrama entitled "The Bishop's Secret." It is in five reels and the scene is laid in China and America. "The Bishop's Secret" deals with a story of a man's self-sacrifice for what he deems to be the higher good. According to Andrew J. Cobe, general manager, "The Bishop's Secret" is destined to prove a sensation, as the plot is a novelty and deals with a subject which heretofore has not been touched upon by screen authors.

VERDUN PICTURES GOING WELL.

"Germany's Battles at Verdun," playing on the Loew Circuit, has been in exceptional demand from the big vaudeville circuits. The picture at the completion of its run has been booked by two of the large vaudeville circuits in the East for the summer period as well as a long run in the West. The pictures are being booked by Samuel Cummins, 1476 Broadway.

"A MILK WHITE FLAG" (Selig).

Continuing his policy of exploiting his most famous stars and best stories in the regular service through General Film, William N. Selig announces for release on Monday, July 10, Charles Hoyt's clever satire, "A Milk White Flag," featuring Otis Harlan, known as one of the cleverest comedians, supported by James Bradbury, another veteran comedian from the legitimate stage. T. N. Heffron produced this comedy, in which is presented several hundred supernumeraries and a succession of laughable, yet elaborate scenic effects.

Briefly, the comedy has to do with one Piggott Luce, who becomes a private in the Milk White Guards. The Black Scene from "A Milk White Flag" (Selig).

Guards is the rival military organization in the town. How Piggott Luce and Phil Graves, the undertaker, plot to defraud an insurance company, how Luce becomes the center of a burlesque military pageant, and how the Black Guards are finally outrivaled by the guards of the Milk White Flag, will cause roars of laughter.

Otis Harlan achieved his primary fame as a comedian in the original Hoyt comedies. He brings all of his experience and knowledge of the great American satirist's work on the screen in "A Milk White Flag."

GAUMONT KARTOONS ARE POPULAR.

Branch managers of the Mutual Film Corporation were recently asked to furnish the Gaumont Company with the opinions of exhibitors in their territory upon the Kartoon Komics which emanate from the Gaumont Laboratories, the work of Harry Palmer. The replies were most gratifying. It was found that Mr. Palmer was a great favorite through his work upon the screen. The inquiries were sent to determine what exhibitors believed most interesting, cartoon series or comments upon current events. The replies were by no means unanimous, confirming the Gaumont company in its previous opinion that both should be continued.

Sketch from Harry Palmer Cartoon.

Comments of some of the cities showed, however, that the appeal of animated cartoons was genuine and continuous. Because of the national attention being focused upon warlike preparations, Mr. Palmer is at present animating events of current interest. His release of July 5 is called "Scrambled Events." It deals in a humorous way with preparedness.

"THE TARANTULA" (Vitagraph).

Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno portray the featured roles in Vitagraph's latest Blue Ribbon Feature, "The Tarantula," in five parts, which is being released on Monday, July 17.

Miss Storey plays the part of Chonita Alvarez, a pretty Spanish senorita, who becomes infatuated with Teddy Steele, a handsome American. On the eve of motherhood, she demands that Steele protect her honor by wedding her, but he refuses and returns to the United States by the first boat. Chonita's father learns of her condition and orders her from the house. Her child is born in a deserted hovel, and lives but a few minutes. She now finds herself without means of support, and obtains a position in a cheap music hall, where her dances immediately win favor. The owner of a New York cafe, traveling through the country, sees her perform and offers her a position in his cabaret. When she remembers that her betrayer is in the same city she readily consents and makes preparations for her departure. In New York, she meets Steele and responds to all his advances. Finally, he induces her to visit his apartment. Here, she shows him a jewel case, which she says contains a gift for him. He is impatient to see its contents, but Chonita refuses to reveal them to him. Finally, after he has drunk himself into a stupor, she opens the box, a giant tarantula crawls out, and after a terrific struggle against the poisonous bite of the creature, Teddy Steele's strength leaves him, and he has paid the price for his indiscretions.

Scene from "The Tarantula" (Vitagraph).

Other capable Vitagraph players in the cast are Charles Kent, Eulalie Jensen, L. Rogers Lytton, Harry Hollingsworth, Emmanuel A. Turner, Raymond Walburn, Harold Foshay, Gordon Gray and Templer Saxe. George D. Baker wrote the story and directed the action.

"THE BLACK STORK" (International).

The studio of Wharton, Inc., is the busiest place in Ithaca. Besides "The Mysteries of Myra," the Wharton Brothers are now busy on a new feature entitled "The Black Stork." The cast for this picture includes Hamilton Revelle, Henry Bergman, Jane Fearnley, Elsie Esmond, Allan Murnane and Edgar Davenport.

"This picture," states Theodore Wharton, "deals with a most remarkable subject—eugenics—a vital issue to every thinking man and woman. The subject is handled in a masterful way and with such a cast the feature is certain to cause a stir in filmdom when it is released."

"THE SECRET OF THE SWAMP" (Bluebird).

Uniquely titled, this photoplay is still more unusual in construction. Starting off as an interesting and homely story of neighborhood life, it proceeds with an increasing intenseness of interest to develop a "crime story," and ends in one of the biggest "laughs" a photoplay ever carried. All through the production there are bubbles of comedy coupled with plain and wholesome exploitations of homely "types"—and the "surprise finish" caps the climax.

Lynn Reynolds wrote the scenario and directed the production. The cast represents Myrtle Gonzalez and Val Paul as leading man and leading woman (Bluebird having abandoned the "star" system in fact as well as in their announcements); George Hernandez, excellent character actor; Frank MacQuarrie, master portrayer of "types"; Fred Church, Jack Curtis, Mary De Cella and Lule Warrenton.

Upon the most trivial incident the producer has based a series of intensely emotional scenes, spiced with sensational events, and carries his originality of presentation to the lengths of excellent comedy—blending an appeal to practically every emotion in the five entertaining reels. This is one of the pieces upon which Bluebird is basing its nation-wide advertising campaign in proof of their contention (and in agreement with Shakespeare) that "the play's the thing."

Scene from "The Secret of the Swamp" (Bluebird).

PATHE'S WINDOW CARD ADVERTISING MAKES HIT.

The two and one-half window cards which were issued by Pathe for the first six episodes of the "Who's Guilty?" series prove such an instantaneous success that J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager, has ordered that they be continued throughout the entire series. These cards are being prepared under the personal direction of Mr. Berst. It is also announced that Pathe will continue the idea on "The Grip of Evil," the first release on the five-million-dollar serial program. "The Grip of Evil" window cards, however, will be sold for one cent each. This will be issued for each of the fourteen releases. The new window card plan brought a flood of congratulatory messages from all of the Pathe exchanges.

LYONS' AND MORAN'S SECOND COMEDY.

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran have commenced their second comedy production since their return to Universal City from New York, and they declare it is going to be a real laugh-maker. The story is by Ben Cohn and entitled "The Bunglers," and shows how the two men get into serious mixups while attempting to rob a house.

Earle Williams and the other members of the company directed by Wally Van of Vitagraph spent most of the week of June 26—July 1 at Briarcliff filming an episode in "The Scarlet Runner," the forthcoming serial in which Mr. Williams figures as the hero. Some spectacular effects were introduced in the work done there.

* * *

Many attractive souvenirs are being prepared for distribution at the Paramount Pictures Corporation booth during the Sixth Annual Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America to be held in Chicago.

* * *

Director Wallace Beery has finished the fifth episode of "Timothy Dobbs," in which Carter DeHaven is being starred, and has commenced work at Universal City on the sixth chapter. The title of the sixth episode is "He Almost Lands an 'Angel.'" In the cast with DeHaven appear Mina Cunard, playing opposite the star; Robert Milash, the seven foot three inch man; Dan Duffy, well known comedian; W. Horn and Hayward Mack. On completion of this chapter, Beery will at once begin another of the series.

* * *

Picture Theaters Projected

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—A new ventilating system has been installed in the Strand theatre.

REDDING, CAL.—M. Leonardini, owner of the Paragon block on California street, is having plans prepared by C. C. Dakin, First National Bank building, Oakland, Cal., for a theatre building, costing between $20,000 and $25,000.

MIAMI, FLA.—Hickson & Whitener will erect theatre; about 100 by 150 feet; two-story; auditorium to seat 1,500 to 3,000; plans include stores and offices; cost $40,000.

MIAMI, FLA.—New Hippodrome theatre is having plans prepared by J. S. Andrews for theatre; about 100 by 140 feet; fireproof construction; cost about $35,000.

AUGUSTA, GA.—Real Estate Development Company will erect two-story building to include four stores; theatre and offices; fireproof construction; terra-cotta front; approximate cost $100,000.

CHICAGO, ILL.—R. T. Race has completed a deal with C. C. Mitchell for the construction of a theatre and business block at Irving Park boulevard and North Crawford avenue. The structure will cost about $175,000.

ROBINSON, ILL.—J. K. Behrick & Son, Mt. Vernon, Ill., has the contract to convert a garage into a moving picture theatre for S. L. Drebbs, Carmi, Ill. It will have seating capacity of 800. The alternations will cost about $22,000. The work of remodeling is already in progress.

ARGOS, IND.—The Princess theatre has been remodeled, redecorated and reopened.

CENTERVILLE, IND.—The Old Trails theatre has been taken over by Charles Porter.

CROMWELL, IND.—A moving picture theatre has been established in the Gants building by F. Walters.

WINCHESTER, IND.—J. and R. Tracy, who recently leased the Arcade theatre, have made extensive improvements to the house. Upholstered seats have also been installed.

OXFORD JUNCTION, IA.—Z. C. B. J. Lodge plans to build a one and two-story moving picture theatre, store and lodge building, 56 by 90 feet, to cost $25,000.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—A modern ventilating system has been installed in the Triangle theatre.

CARIBOU, ME.—Astte & Page has the contract to erect a two-story moving pitcure theatre, 45 by 96 feet, for P. J. Powers, to cost $10,000.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Archt. A. L. Forest, Law building, is preparing plans for the remodeling of the Arcadia on North avenue, into a theatre, to cost $100,000.

BROCKTON, MASS.—Archt. W. F. Barlow, 80 N. Main street, is preparing plans for a one-story moving picture theatre, 40 by 130 feet, to cost $30,000.

CHICOPEE FALLS, MASS.—Franco-American Club, Inc., Dr. J. O. Beauchamp, president, plans to erect a two-story moving picture theatre and club house, 41 by 120 feet, to cost $30,000.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Dale theatre at the corner of Troost and 24th streets, has been taken over by William Richardson.

BUTTE, MONT.—A modern moving picture theatre of fireproof construction will be erected by Jenson & Von Herberg. It will cost about $20,000.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Frederick Mertins has let the contract for the erection of a one-story moving picture theatre, 60 by 125 feet.

LYONS, N. Y.—Ohman Brothers plan to build an addition to their moving picture theatre.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Plans are being prepared for B. F. Keith Company, 1564 Broadway, for a twelve-story theatre and apartment building, 100 by 200 feet.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Alterations will be made to a two-story moving picture theatre and restaurant at 1680 to 1684 Broadway, and 810 to 814 Seventh avenue, for Amos F. Eno Estate, 13 South William street. Plans are being prepared by C. B. Comstock, 1512 Broadway. The improvements will cost $7,500.

BROKEN BOW, OKLA.—A. W. James is now operating the moving picture house formerly conducted by John F. Facklin.

BRADDOCK, PA.—J. W. Jackson, who recently took over the American theatre at 1616 Braddock avenue, is making extensive improvements to the house. The seating capacity will also be increased.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Harris Amusement Co., Globe Theatre building, are having plans prepared by Hoffman Co., Finance building, for a one-story addition to their moving picture theatre, 26 by 75 feet, to cost $10,000.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—A new $10,000 pipe organ has been installed in the Princess theatre.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Knickerbocker is the name of a new moving picture house opened here. It has seating capacity of 1,200, and cost $85,000.

DENISON, TEXAS.—J. V. Smith has taken over the Mirror theatre.

JEANETTE, W. VA.—L. S. Mine is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theatre, 25 by 75 feet, to cost $3,500.

POCAHONTAS, W. VA.—S. G. Walker, will build a one-story addition, 23 by 120 feet, to his moving picture theatre and make other improvements.

PORT ANGELES, WASH.—James Chanau and Charles H. George have taken over the Star theatre and renamed it the Triangle.

MANITOWOC, WIS.—Joseph Goriezke plans to erect a two-story moving picture theatre and apartment building, 40 by 65 feet.

SHEBOYGAN FALLS, WIS.—R. B. Guyette is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theatre, 40 by 90 feet, to cost $6,000.

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO
The most important Film Journal in Italy.
Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.
Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS
Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.
NO RENTALS
GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N.Y.

A Dependable Mailing List Service
Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W67
MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY
88 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

CARTOON ADS
DON'T HANDLE ANY LINE UNTIL YOU HAVE SEEN MOTO-ADS. CATALOG FREE. BIG PROFITS FOR EXHIBITORS AND AGENTS.
AMERICAN COMMERCIAL FILM CO.
152 W. Austin Avenue CHICAGO

Trade News of the Week

GATHERED BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

Fourth Film Outing

Boston Is the Starting Point of Annual Outing of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League—105 Take Steamer to Pemberton, Others Go by Auto—All Have a Good Time with Banquets, Baseball and Races.

By William M. Flynn, 80 Summer Street, Boston Special Correspondent.

BOSTON, MASS.—This was a big week for the Massachusetts film men. From all parts of the state they gathered here Wednesday to attend the fourth annual summer outing of the M. P. Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts which was held at the Pemberton Inn at Hull, Mass. The film men came to Boston first and at 10 o'clock boarded the Nantasket line steamer Myles Standish for the sail down Boston Harbor to Pemberton.

The film men were in a merry mood, and with perfect weather conditions prevailing their enthusiasm for the day's outing was unbounded. "The shy is the limit," chorused the film men as they hurried off the boat to begin the day's festivities.

There were over 105 in the party that took the sail down on the steamer, and others went overland from Boston by automobile. Some who had been delayed by business in the city until noon arrived by automobile in time to enjoy most of the big doings of the day.

Baseball Match.

A buffet lunch was served at noon. It was a fine spread and from "overture" to "lights out" the lunch was a big hit with the crowd. They didn't wait the doctor's orders to rest an hour after luncheon before beginning the day's sports for right after luncheon a red hot baseball game was in progress. The opposing teams were composed of the Exhibitors under the leadership of Jake Laurie and the Exchange men, who had S. M. Moscow for their captain. It was some game.

The hardest working man on the field was the score keeper. He tallied runs until he got dizzy, and the final score at the end of six innings was 27 to 15 in favor of the Exhibitors. The men were so tired running bases that they agreed on calling a halt at the end of six innings.

The big score of the winning side was due to heavy hitting of the Exhibitors Louis Bois twirled for the Exhibitors and Jake Laurie did the catching. They proved an invincible pair. M. Segal and Samuel Penanski, of Boston, were the Battery for the Exchange men.

After the game the winners were presented individual silver cups, which had been donated by the various film companies. The film companies also donated handsome prizes for the sporting events that followed. These were participated in by the Exchange men with all the enthusiasm of boys. It was their annual outing and they were out for all the fun there was in sight.

Who Gave the Prizes.

Silver cups for each individual player of the winning baseball team were given by the following film exchanges: Fox, Paramount, V-L-S-E, General Film, World, Metro, Kleine, Edison, International, Unicorn. These companies also gave handsome prizes for the field sports.

Mr. Frank MacKay of the Kriterion film gave a handsome bag for a swimming match to be held, but on account of the various mermaids of the cabaret from the Inn being in the swimming tank, all thoughts of a race was impossible. The following were the field events with the winners:

Races and Contests.

100 Yard Dash—Won by E. L. McEvoy, of Boston; prize, a gold knife.

Potato Race—Won by E. L. McEvoy; safety razor.

Fat Men's Race—Won by T. H. Burke, of Boston; match safe.

Three-Legged Race—Won by S. L. Marchant and E. L. McEvoy; safety razors.

500 Yard Race—Won by V. J. Coye, of Lynn; manicure set.

Heel and Toe Race—Won by P. F. Leydon, of Dorchester; umbrella.

Hop, Step and Jump—Won by J. L. Reardon; military brushes.

McEvoy proved the hero of the day in the sporting events, and he looked like a jewelry store when he left the grounds to board the boat for home.

At 4.30 o'clock the crowd returned to the dining room of the inn, where a fine banquet was served. For over an hour the film men gathered round the festive board, discussing business, cracked jokes and had a general good time. There were several after-dinner speeches, among them being some remarks by John Casey, secretary of the Licensing Board of Boston.

On Way Home.

The men boarded the boat for home in the early evening, all voting the outing one of the most enjoyable in the history of the organization. The success of the affair reflected great credit on the committee, composed of Glover Ware, of Beverly, chairman; Louis Bois, of Fall River, and Jake Laurie, of Boston. The officers of the organization are: President, E. Horstmann, of Lynn; R. W. Brown, of Boston, and M. J. Leydon, of South Boston, vice-presidents, and Harry Wasserman, secretary.

---

Will Film State Militia.

Leon Dadmun has been appointed by Adjutant-General Cole of the Massachusetts Militia to complete a moving picture record of the various activities of the militia. The recent mobilization of the militia gave Mr. Dadmun the opportunity he needed for completing all the records and for several days he was very busy at the big muster camp completing a moving picture record of the Massachusetts militia.

---

BALTIMORE NEWS LETTER.

By J. M. Shellman, 1902 Mt. Moyal Ter., Baltimore, Special Correspondent.

Record Business for Grand.

HIGHLANDTOWN, Md—"Where Are My Children?" was featured at the Grand theater, Highlandtown on June 28th and 29th, and it is stated by manager Chas. E. Anderson that the picture was shown to capacity and record houses during the two days run.

---

Guy Brandt Gets Recruits.

Baltimore, Md.—Through the activities of Guy Brandt, travelling representative of the International Film, Wm. Tyler, manager of Lubin's theater, 404-6 East Baltimore street, booked one of this company's pictures entitled "The American Army in Mexico," for June 22nd, 23rd and 24th. Mr. Brandt saw his chance for some good advertisement work and immediately hied himself to the Fifth Regiment armory where he obtained the services of six privates, a drummer and a bugler, showing them the advantage of having a recruiting station at this theater while this show was running. The soldiers began their work in the lobby of Lubin's and not only was the house jammed to full capacity, but through the activities of Mr. Tyler and Mr. Brandt, the state secured twelve recruits.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

"Eye of God" Pleases.

The patrons of the Picture Garden theater, 31 West Lexington street, seem to be well pleased with "The Eye of God" featuring Tyrone Power. The business, last week, at this house was very brisk. J. Blechman, the manager, has now made arrangements so that all the Bluebird features that come to Baltimore will be given first run at this house.

---

Garden Decorating.

Manager George Schneider of the Garden theater, Park avenue and Lexington street, has already begun to bedeck the exterior of this theater with bunting, flags and banners of the national colors in honor of the Elk's convention which will be held in this city from July 10th to 15th.

---

Changes in Baltimore Theaters.

Extensive alterations and additions to cost about $15,000 will be made in the Garden theater, Charles and Cross streets, South Baltimore. The main entrance will be located on Charles street. A forty foot lobby will grace the entrance and the auditorium proper will measure approximately 70 by 95 feet and the seating capacity will be about 1,000. C. W. Pacy Company is the proprietor, C. W. Pacy will manage the theater when it is re-opened.

Baltimore, Md.—It is understood that W. Urbanski, president of the National Polish Home Association, 419 South Bend street, will soon select an architect for the contemplated alterations to be made in the 3 story 20 by 90 moving picture theater and home, located at 510 South Broadway. $5,000 will be spent for the improvements which are to be of brick and concrete.

Ask Theaters to Aid

Philadelphia Citizen Soldiers Aid Committee Plans to Ask Managers of Picture Theaters to Add to Price of Admission Ten Per Cent. for Soldiers' Families—An Uncalled-for Proposition.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Through a suggestion offered by Mayor Smith, at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Citizen Soldiers' Aid Committee, held in the mayor's reception room in City Hall, a plan has been adopted whereby the proprietors of moving picture theatres and other places of amusement will be asked to add a charge of ten per cent. to their admission prices, the excess thus obtained to be turned over to the Aid Committee.

Coming at this season of the year, when the theatrical business is materially effected by unfavorable conditions, the request could hardly have been expected to have met with the approval of the exhibitors. While no definite action has as yet been taken in the matter, it is a foregone conclusion that the request will be turned down in the majority of cases. While the exhibitors are not directly financially interested in the matter, the patrons of the theatres are those who will pay the increase and, as this applies to the public at large, the question has arisen as to why the Aid Committee did not select some method whereby the public could be directly interested, thus preventing the use of the exhibitors as a go-between.

Theater Changes Hands.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The moving picture theatre and four two-story stores, located at the southeast corner of Germantown avenue and Tulpehocken street, have been conveyed by Charles P. Will to Albert H. Robinson for a nominal sum and a mortgage of $30,000. They occupy a lot 87 feet 3 inches by 100 feet, and are assessed at $40,000.

Mastbaum Boosts Red Cross.

Philadelphia, Pa.—One of the most extended publicity campaigns yet inaugurated by the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter, American Red Cross, was begun and brought to completion within twenty-four hours through the co-operation of Stanley V. Mastbaum, manager-director of the Stanley Company and Philadelphia's leading exhibitor. As a result of this co-operation 100,000 persons nightly will see the appeal for members issued by the local chapter flashed upon the screens of fifty moving picture theatres in every section of Philadelphia.

N. O. Greenwald, of the Animated Slide Advertising Co., superintended the placing of the slides in the theatres. Within an hour of the time that Mr. Mastbaum and Mr. Greenwald had decided that they would use every influence within their power to assist the local chapter in its campaign for 50,000 members, a taxicab loaded with Mr. Greenwald and fifty slides started from headquarters and by the next afternoon the message was being flashed to the people of Philadelphia.

The First Successful Film.

Philadelphia, Pa.—It may be of interest to the members of the moving picture industry in this locality to learn the names of the first moving picture actors in Pennsylvania. The first really successful photographic play was called the "Pillow Fight," the histrionic stars being Bernard F. Gimbel, Albert H. Disston, E. D. C. Lynch, W. L. Ziegler, W. O. Hemstead, Jr., J. P. McConnell, Jr., and Walter Carr. According to Mr. Lubin this film was only recently destroyed by fire.

New Amusement Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Broadway Theater Company has been granted a New Jersey charter to conduct places of amusement. The new concern has been capitalized at $100,000, Henry Spencer, Asbury Park; Henry Rosenberg and Helen L. Bergeb, of New York, being the principal incorporators.

Stoudt-Reinert Wedding.

Reading, Pa.—Clarence F. Stoudt, well known in Reading moving picture circles, having been employed for many years by Carr & Schad, well-known exhibitors of that place, recently married Mabel E. Reinert, also of Reading. Mr. Stoudt's friends are wishing him the best of luck, and many beautiful presents have been received.

Business Notes.

Milton, Pa.—Harry Davis, well-known exhibitor of Milton, Pa., was a recent visitor to Philadelphia and before departing for his native town purchased a 6 B. projecting machine from the Calehuff Supply Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Lewis M. Swaab, well-known supply man of 1327 Vine street, announces the sale of a Power's 6 B. machine to the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors, thus proving that the censors are of some use after all.

TO BECOME PICTURE HOUSE.

New Theater Now Being Remodeled Into a Picture Theater.

By Jacob J. Kalter, 51 Strand Theater Bldg., Newark, N. J., Special Correspondent.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Newark theater, 195 Market street, is in the process of remodeling. Thomas W. Lamb, architect, has prepared plans by which the Newark will become a full-fledged moving picture house. The total cost of improvements is placed at $115,000. The two frame balconies, now in the playhouse, will be removed, and in their stead will be erected one balcony of steel and concrete construction. The gallery entrance on Beaver street will also be removed and an open court will replace the present unsightly entrance. The main entrance and the lobby will be widened about twice the present plans. It is not yet known when the improvements will be completed, but it is expected that it will be ready for use in the early part of the fall.

Palisade Man Agent.

Palisade, N. J.—Plato D. Grimes, of this place, has been named agent for the Paumes Amusement Company, Inc., and the Rifle Range Amusement Company, Inc., both incorporated under the laws of New York State.

New Union Incorporation.

Union, N. J.—The Hudson Toboggan Company, with registered office at 146 Bergenline avenue, Union, have filed articles of incorporation with the clerk. The concern is capitalized at $10,000, and will conduct amusement enterprises. The incorporators are Victor V. Berger, Harry F. Peters, and William Peters.

BUFFALO NEWS LETTER.

By Joseph A. McGuire, 5 Lewis Block, Buffalo, Special Correspondent.

Bid God-Speed to Soldiers.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Harold Edel, manager of the Strand theater, Buffalo, has announced that any of his employes who may join the National Guard and go to Mexico will receive from him their regular wages during their period of service at the front. Ira Mosher, manager of the Palace moving picture theater of this city, has made the same offer to his employes.

H. E. Benedict Gets Promotion.

Syracuse, N. Y.—H. E. Benedict, assistant to W. A. Mack, manager of the Buffalo branch of the General Film Co., has been appointed manager of the Syracuse branch of the company. Mr. Benedict has been connected with the Buffalo headquarters for three years and his promotion is the result of faithful service.

Visitors in Buffalo.

Barney Lumberg of the Lumberg theater, Utica, and his brother, Harris Lumberg, were Buffalo callers. The Lumberg theater at Niagara Falls will be opened shortly. Other recent visitors were Mr. Woods of Peterson & Woods, who conduct the Winter Garden and Mozart theater, Jamestown, N. Y., and Mr. Van Croix, manager of the Bijou theater of that city.

Will Sell the Sattler July 20.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Referee Eustace Reynolds has postponed until Thursday, July 20th, the sale of the Sattler moving picture theater in Broadway, near Jefferson street, Buffalo. The house was to have been disposed of at a foreclosure sale at city hall on Monday. G. S. Metcalfe of this city holds a mortgage on the theater. This is a modern, fireproof structure, built at a heavy expense while the moving picture theater boom was on in this city about two years ago.

W. L. Marlev Heads Local Triangle.

Buffalo, N. Y.—F. L. Smith has resigned as traveling representative of the Buffalo offices of the Triangle Film and has gone to his home in Coshocton, O. His successor is W. L. Morley, formerly with the Essemar Film Service of this city. The local Triangle exchange was visited this week by Harry Fichtenholz, manager of the Family theater of Rome, N. Y. Mr. Fichtenholz motored to Buffalo from his home city. He features the Triangle pictures and reports that he is pleased with the service. The house is owned by Mrs. J. B. Morris.

John Child to Travel for World Film.

Buffalo, N. Y.—John Child has been appointed traveling representative under J. R. Levy, Buffalo manager of the World Film. Mr. Child has been connected with the Pittsburgh offices of the World for three years. He will cover the Southern territory of New York state.

Granite Theater Sold.

Newark, N. Y.—Parker & Schield have taken over the Granite theater of Newark, N.Y., and are featuring the Brady-made pictures. Manager Levy has been successful in introducing "Alice Brady Weeks" at various theaters in this section. He is playing up the Brady-made feature, "La Vie De Boheme."

Buffalo Business Notes.

"Diana," recently featured at the Strand theater, New York, has received week's bookings at the Family and Palace theaters, Buffalo. Arrangements for the bookings were made by Frank J. Willis, Buffalo manager of the Merit Film Co.

The first run of Hearst's International News Pictorial has been placed at the Palace theater, Buffalo, by Basil Brady, local manager of the International Film Service.

Moving pictures are being shown at the airdome at Carnival Court, a Buffalo summer park, and at Crystal beach and Erie beach, near this city.

Max Andrews of the Andrews theater of Salamanca, N. Y., is ill.

Watertown, N. Y.—W. Scott Mattraw, manager of the City opera house of Watertown, has been for some time having dispute with the musicians' and stage hands' unions of that city.

HOLLAND COMPANY BUSY.

Cleveland Producer Has Finished Studio —Some of the Players.

By Hubert Persons, Special Correspondent, 410 Standard Theater Building.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Holland Feature Film Company, which is to make the ten-reel feature picture at Norfolk, Va., based on the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac, is first to complete a five-reel sociological study entitled "The Age of Life's Destruction."

The company has just completed a studio on West 57th street, Cleveland, and commenced taking pictures for the five-reel production July 1. It had been originally planned to make the battle picture first for release on or about August 31, but the board of directors decided to rush work on the sociological picture and then commence the interiors on the bigger production. It is believed that while the release of the battle picture may be a little later than at first contemplated, that it will be completed early in September.

Miss Helen Case, who has played with the Vitagraph, Metro, New York Motion Picture Corporation and the Universal, is playing the leading feminine roles in the Holland company. She will be remembered as playing the lead in "The Cowboy and the Lady," produced by the Metro and in "California Days," for the Universal.

Miss Florence Pritchard, playing ingenue roles, was formerly with the Essanay, Selig and Fox companies.

Arthur Morrison and William H. Cavanaugh, formerly with the Fox, Mutual, Pathe, Famous Players and the Universal company, are appearing in the principal male roles in the five-reel picture.

The Holland Company, of which Captain H. H. E. Holland is president and general manager, will release all its productions direct. The company was formerly the Brabant Film Corporation, but was reorganized

No stock is being sold in the Holland Company and officers say they are not contemplating a stock-selling campaign.

SCREEN CLUB ELECTS.

G. W. Erdman Chosen President—Other Officers and Executive Board.

Cleveland, O.—Twenty-one exhibitors, exchange men and newspaper writers attended the second meeting of the Cleveland Screen Club at the Hotel Statler, June 27. Officers were elected and a tentative business program drafted.

G. W. Erdman.

G. W. Erdman, of the Universal Film exchange, was elected president. Other officers are Emery N. Downs, of the Knickerbocker theater, vice-president; David Adler, Strand theater, treasurer; Joe Grossman, of the Standard theater, executive secretary; Max Milder, of the General Film Company, corresponding secretary, and F. B. Woda, of the Orpheum, sergeant-at-arms.

The executive board is composed of the following: C. E. Shurtleff, V-L-S-E; W. E. Lusk, Mutual; P. B. Bloch, World; Jack Greenbaum, the Alhambra, and Joe Williams, of the Fox company.

Gus Katsampas Buys Theater.

Zanesville, O.—Gus Katsampas has just purchased the Grand moving picture theater here. He has not yet announced his plans in regard to operating the house.

Cleveland, O.—The "Where Are My Children?" film attracted as much attention in its third week at the Opera House as the first few days of its run. It is to be shown throughout the state.

"Nation" Film Suit Fails

Ohio Supreme Court Refuses to Review Ruling of the State Board of Censors on "The Birth of a Nation" Picture—Epoch Company and Ohioans Have One More Chance in the Federal Supreme Court.

By Kenneth C. Crain, 610 First Nat. Bank Bldg., Cincinnati, Special Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, O.—With the decision of the Ohio Supreme Court rendered a few days ago, refusing to review the ruling of the Ohio Board of Moving Picture Censors against the exhibition of "The Birth of a Nation," almost the last hope of the Epoch Producing Co., controlling the picture, and of hundreds of exhibitors throughout the state, have been dissipated. It is now virtually certain that unless the Federal Court, in which a suit is now pending regarding the film, intervenes, the picture will never be shown in Ohio, leaving the Buckeye State as the sole member of the Union in which it is not to be seen. The Supreme Court did not pass directly upon the issues raised, holding that inasmuch as the question is now before a Federal court it is unnecessary for it to decide the question. The matter was brought before it, however, for the very reason that it was thought the proper procedure to have the State Supreme Court decide the questions involved before resorting to the Federal courts, and the lawyers on both sides are now somewhat confused as to the proper procedure to follow, under the circumstances.

FIGHTING SUNDAY ARREST.

Two Wadsworth Exhibitors Courageously Contend for Sabbath Freedom.

Wadsworth, O.—The question of Sunday shows was brought sharply to the front a short time ago by the arrest of William Standen and William Dunlap, owners of moving picture houses, on a charge of operating on Sunday in violation of the old state statute on the subject. They were released with a warning that they would be fined $100 and costs, with a workhouse sentence attached, for a future offense. In defiance of this warning, however, both exhibitors have kept their houses running on Sunday, declaring that the old statute is and has been a dead letter for years, and that they refuse to be bound by it. They have retained attorneys to protect their interests, and indicated their intention of fighting the matter through the court of appeals to the Supreme Court, if necessary.

Open House to Guardsmen.

Urbana, O.—Patriotism of a practical sort was shown recently by the management of the Lyric theater, following the call received by the local National Guard company to report for duty. The men were mustered in to await orders to leave, and realizing that time must hang heavily on their hands, the management of the Lyric extended an invitation to the company as a whole to attend the matinees at his house on the afternoon after they assembled. Most of the men accepted, giving the house a decided martial look, and the Lyric received an enthusiastic vote of thanks from the soldier boys.

Latest Cincinnati Producing Co.

Cincinnati, O.—The Sterling Film Co., recently incorporated here with a capital stock of $31,250, is the latest entry in the list of producers in this vicinity. Edgar Freiberg, Emil C. Seligman, Otto Luedeking, S. C. Roettinger and M. E. Collins are interested in the project, details regarding which will be available for publication shortly.

Cincinnati, O.—The Grand Opera House, running well into its second week with "Where Are My Children?" at high prices, and excluding all persons under sixteen years of age, bids fair to make a record which will stand in Cincinnati for some time.

Covington Theater Sold.

Covington, Ky.—The Gayety theater, one of the busiest houses in the city, which has been operated for some time successfully by Mrs. J. R. Taylor, has changed hands, Mrs. Taylor disposing of her interest to K. Dalton, who is a new figure in the business. Mrs. Taylor sold out in order to accompany her husband to Detroit, where they will make their home in the future.

Arnold Skinner Buys Middletown House.

Middletown, O.—The Grand theater, one of the oldest houses in this city, has been sold by its owner, B. S. Leeds, to Arnold Skinner, who took charge immediately.

ST. LOUIS NEWS LETTER.

By A. H. Giebler, 236 Vanol Building, St. Louis, Special Correspondent.

A New Link to the Chain of Barrett Theaters.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—J. J. Barrett, who owns and operates the Chippewa theater, at Broadway and Chippewa, and the Knickerbocker, at 3145 Park avenue, has leased the Cass theater at 1417 Cass avenue, to add to his growing string of moving picture houses. The Cass will undergo extensive alterations and repairs and will be thoroughly equipped with all the modern apparatus of an up-to-date theater, and will be entirely redecorated. The plan is to have the house in readiness to open about August 1. The Barrett theaters are all straight picture houses and are noted for their good programs and efficient management.

Film for Campaign Purposes.

St. Louis, Mo.—The U. S. A. Film Co., Inc., makers of industrial motion pictures in St. Louis, made a film of the Democratic National Convention while it was in session, which finished about 4,000 feet, and will be used for campaign purposes throughout the country. G. B. Harney is the president of the film company, and has taken a number of large contracts for local industrial films.

Guy Kirksey Opens Stardome.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Stardome, an outdoor theater on North Grand avenue, was opened last week by Guy Kirksey, and will show Triangle features. The Stardome is in an excellent location and should get a goodly share of business during the summer season.

The New Columbia Opens.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Columbia, a new theater in the Clifton Heights district of St. Louis, opened recently with an all-picture program, and with an admission price of five cents during the week and ten cents on Saturday and Sunday, when special features are shown.

Theodore Goll Gets Airdome.

St. Louis, Mo.—Theodore Goll, manager of the Unit Amusement Company, has acquired control of the Aubert airdome, at Easton and Aubert avenues, and the Penrose Garden, on Penrose avenue. These two outdoor theaters are very pretentious places, and run large features and occasional vaudeville.

Strand and Royal Close for Summer.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Royal theater, Sixth and Olive, and the Strand, next door to the Columbia, at Sixth and St. Charles, have closed for the hot months.

Films and War Censorship

All the News Weeklies Have Combined on Account of Government's War Censorship and Are Sending One Man, Winfield Scott Clime, to Get Official Moving Picture of Incidents at the Front.

By Clarence L. Linz, 635 Tenth St., N. E. Washington, D. C., Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Everybody is now expecting moving pictures of happenings along the Mexican border and coast line. Winfield Scott Clime, who recently broke into the news service game with Pathe, Inc., has been chosen as the representative of all the news weeklies of the country which have combined for the first time in their history, and he has gone to Galveston, Texas, with something like 20,000 feet of film, to board one of the United States battleships for a cruise in Mexican waters.

Following upon the precedent inaugurated in Europe at the commencement of the European War, the United States is to have a war censorship of the press. At first it was stated that our Government would refuse to allow any moving picture men to accompany either branch of the armed service except as a member thereof. This brought all of the editors of the motion picture weeklies down to Washington for a conference with the officials of the Army and Navy. Among these were Jack Cohen, of the Universal; Mr. McKeon, of Hearst's International; Pell Mitchell, of the Mutual; Eric Maell, of Pathe, and Jack Wheeler, of Selig-Tribune. They went over the matter of censorship and at last secured permission to have one man cover the naval activities. The matter of similar permission for men to accompany the land forces had not been secured at the time of going to press.

In selecting Mr. Clime as the joint representative, the editors of the weeklies acted wisely. Washington boasts of having the best cameramen the country has to offer and the choosing of one of their number as the first to get into action is taken as a great compliment. Before leaving on Tuesday Mr. Clime received the best wishes of the other boys here. He has only been in this end of the business for a few months, succeeding to the position with Pathe made vacant by the resignation of Lou Simons, now with the Selig-Tribune service. Prior to that time, Mr. Clime was a field photographer, making films for the Government while attached to the Agricultural Department.

EXCHANGE MEN VISIT CENSORS.

Washington, D. C., Film Distributors Have Talk With Maryland Board.

The members of the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors last Tuesday morning held a reception which was attended by the managers of the Washington film exchanges and others. During the hour or more that these latter were in Baltimore they went over a number of matters with Chairman Charles E. Harper; Vice-Chairman William F. Stone, former collector of the port of Baltimore, and Secretary Mrs. M. E. Harrison. In commenting upon this visit, C. F. O'Donnell, manager of the local exchange of Pathe, Inc., said, "We were assured by the board that the members will do everything possible to help us and they asked that we reciprocate to the end that the co-operation will be mutual. They admitted that they were not as familiar with the motion picture business as those intimately connected with it and urged that the exchange managers make suggestions from time to time and these will be adopted if in line with the work of the board. Personally, I am much pleased with my visit for I found the members of the board to be very pleasant people."

Mr. Berger, manager of the Kleine-Edison exchange stated that the visit gave the exchange managers a good opportunity to become better acquainted with the people who will view the films that go into Maryland.

It is not to be understood that while the exchange managers are desirous of being perfectly friendly with the members of the board, that they accept censorship. They are as far as is known unalterably opposed to the law itself, but it is on the statute books and as long as it remains there they must make the best of it. They do not want the troubles that have arisen in other censorship-burdened states and they are going into the matter in a spirit of co-operation rather than of antagonism towards individuals.

It is the hope of all in the industry, exhibitors and exchangemen alike, that friction will be noticeable only by its absence, and from the way things have started, it looks as though all will work smoothly.

The Washington delegation included Mr. O'Donnell, of Pathe, Inc.; C. W. Worthington, from New York, district manager, and Carl F. Senning, Washington, exchange manager, Fox Film; Mr. Wales, World Film; Rudolph Berger, Kleine-Edison; Mr. Nelson, of the General Film; Mr. Olinsky, of the Washington Film exchange, marketing Universal features and program; Mr. Butler, traveling representative of the Triangle, from Philadelphia; Frank B. Spurrier, V-L-S-E., Inc.; George Mann, Paramount, and others.

Empire Theater Renovated.

The Empire theater, on H street, northeast, of which Samuel Greenberg is the manager, has recently undergone a complete overhauling and as a result is in fine shape to handle the summer business. The interior has been painted in a two-tone effect, and the white art metal ceiling has been repainted. To insure the comfort of his patrons during the heated period, Mr. Greenberg has had installed four double electric fans. Each pair of fans is suspended from the ceiling, two on either side of the center. These are of the sixteen-inch blade type and augment both the regular ventilating system which produces more than eleven hundred cubic feet of fresh air per minute, and the seven thirty-two-inch blade electric fans, five of which are lined across the space at the rear of the theater, making it more comfortable for those who are compelled to stand for a few minutes before being seated, and two of the fans make it easier for the members of the orchestra. A further improvement is the partial reseating of the auditorium.

W. O. Wren to Manage the Favorite.

Washington, D. C.—W. O. Wren, formerly manager of the Strand theater, on Ninth street, northwest, and lately at the Revere theater, on Georgia avenue, has taken over the management of the Favorite theater, on H street, near North Capital street, formerly conducted under the management of James Young.

Thomas Franklin Opens Airdome.

Washington, D. C.—Thomas E. Franklin has opened Standard park at North Capital and Bates streets. Frank S. Smith is the owner of this airdome.

H. I. Goldman Conducting Raphael Theater.

Washington, D. C.—H. I. Goldman has taken over the management of the Raphael theater, at Ninth and O streets, northwest, from Hayden Bros., who are the representatives of the owner of this house.

Dan M. O'Brien Weds.

Washington, D. C.—Local exhibitors and exchangemen received an awful jolt last week when they learned that Dan M. O'Brien, manager of the Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Company's Charlestown, W. Va., branch exchange, had deserted the ranks of the bachelors and had taken unto himself a better half in the person of Miss May Perry, of the city of which he is now a resident. The ceremony, a quiet one, took place on June 15. Mr. O'Brien was one of the most popular exchangemen ever stationed in Washington. He was one of the leaders in all film activities in the District of Columbia and it was a matter of no little regret that the others here parted company with him. So they say now that as long as he's gone and done it, here's how and to the very limit of the friendship and esteem in which they hold him.

Keep Ears for Whooping Patrons.

Washington, D. C.—Whooping cough is said to be on the increase in the District of Columbia and the officials of the health department are planning to prosecute those who may wilfully violate the law designed to prevent the spread of the disease. The regulations prohibit the attendance of all sufferers at motion picture theaters and those who fail to observe the prohibition may be fined not to exceed $50 for the first offense and $100 for a second offense. It is incumbent upon all exhibitors to see to it that none suffering from whooping cough are allowed to enter their houses.

Change in Savoy Building Plans.

Washington, D. C.—The plans for the enlargement of the Savoy theater on Fourteenth street have been somewhat changed since that house was taken over by Messrs Crandall and Morgan. The former owners had planned to knock out the side walls and extend the width of the theater on either side. It has been decided to throw the rear wall back a considerable distance which would give nearly the same seating capacity as previously contemplated. In addition to this a balcony is to be erected and the operating booth placed above that. To maintain sight lines it will require the raising of a portion of the ceiling shell fashion. This has all been worked out in a most scientific fashion by the architect and has the approval of the owners. It is figured out that in this manner there will be a seating capacity of 600 in the balcony and an additional one hundred seats on the floor.

The theater will be closed on or about July 15, to make possible these changes. While this work is going on a new screen will be erected and two modern projecting machines installed. Painters and decorators will get busy on the rest of the interior and everything will be put in shipshape for the fall and winter business.

Film Boys Join the Colors.

Washington, D. C.—When the band played "Dixie" and the militia of the District of Columbia marched gaily down Pennsylvania avenue to be reviewed by the President of the United States and to encamp at Fort Myer, Va., preparatory to going to Mexico, there was seen in the ranks a number of motion picture theater employees. Among the first to answer the call to the colors was George Hunt, who has been assisting Manager Arthur Robb, of the Garden theater, and with him was Antonio Masino, head operator at the same house. Another employee of the Moore string to go was the drummer at the Strand theater. In speaking of their going, Mr. Robb said: "I am sorry that it has been necessary to call on our boys to join around the flag. We think very highly of them and dislike seeing them go, even though their absence is to be but a temporary one. We are going to hold open their places for them and the men who come in their stead are hired with the distinct understanding that their employment ceases upon the return of our own soldier boys."

Another of the boys to go is Floyd Brown, who has been head operator at the Empire theater on H street, Northeast, since the opening of that theater. He also will have his place to return to when he comes marching back again.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS LETTER

By Clarence L. Linz, 635 Tenth St., N. E. Washington, D. C.

Theater Parties Grow in Favor.

Charlotte, N. C.—The management of the Broadway and Piedmont theaters are making a special play for theater parties. It has been found that the novelty of this method has grown rather than decreased in popularity and it is predicted that "Billie Burke" parties will be quite the thing in Charlotte this summer. Clubs particularly are finding theater parties of this type agreeable. The management announces that those so desiring may make special arrangements for the accomodations of a party at any time.

Manager Schofield Boosts Cleanliness.

Greensboro, N. C.—"Cleaner Grensboro" is the slogan apparently adopted by Manager Schofield of the Piedmont and Elm theaters, who has entered upon a campaign to clear the city of empty cans.

For several weeks on each Thursday afternoon Manager Schofield has been admitting without charge to the theaters named youngsters when accompanied by a string of tin cans, a separate string being required for each admission and to each theater.

Manager Schofield points out that tin cans make any place unsightly and to assist in securing a clean city he has put this proposition into effect.

ATLANTA NEWS LETTER.

By A. M. Beatty, 43 Copenhill Ave., Atlanta, Special Correspondent.

James Calnay Opens the Grand.

Atlanta, Ga.—After several weeks of darkness, the Grand theater opened its doors to the public Monday, June 26, under the management of James Calnay, a pioneer in the film industry, not only in this country but Europe as well.

Mr. Calanay is well known to many in the film business as a play writer, producer and leading man, having produced a number of big features and managed successfully several large picture houses in the east.

The Grand is one of the largest theaters in the south, seating 2,800 people, and the admission price will remain, as before, 10 cents to all performances.

Atlanta Personals.

A. C. Bomberg, of the Triangle Company, is in Florida on business, but is expected to return in time to participate in the great preparedness parade on July 4.

Wm. Sharp, after a trip of several days over the southern territory for the Universal, and incidentally booking feature pictures, has been in Atlanta for a few days. His version of conditions and the film business in general is good.

James Johnston, manager of the American theater, Columbus, was in Atlanta visiting Charles E. Kessnich, of the Mutual exchange.

Louis S. Levine, district manager of the Fox Film, has returned to Atlanta after a trip through his territory, which includes about eleven southern states. He spent most of his time in Texas.

William A. Oldknow, a director of the Universal and president of the Atlanta Screen Club, has returned to Atlanta after a stay of several days in New York.

Ralph DeBruler, manager of the Piedmont theater, is using a pair of crutches, the result of breaking his ankle in a tennis game.

The new Criterian theater opens July 6th. La Boheme is the opening picture.

Pittsburgh's Film Code

New Measure Governing Storage of Film Now Before the City Council Being Watched by Local Exchangemen—Some of the Prominent Provisions of the New Code as to Construction and Size of Vaults, etc.

By Pittsburgh News Service, 6061 Jenkins Arcade, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The interest of Pittsburgh film men is centered in the ordinance that is about to be passed by City Council regulating very extensively the construction and arrangement of exchanges, as well as the manufacture, handling and storage of films. The new law will necessitate some radical changes it is believed, as it will effect practically all of the buildings to a greater or less degree. The measure was first presented on April 4, since which time it has been under discussion and several alterations favorable to the trade have been made through the efforts of the Pittsburgh Screen Club and others. One of the proposals made in connection with the new ordinance was to do away entirely with the storage of films in the city and to relegate all exchanges to the suburbs, which measure was defeated recently.

Among the provisions of the ordinance, the storage of moving picture films shall not be permitted in any building which is occupied by any other company employing women and children, or where over twenty men are employed, unless the building is of fireproof or slow burning construction. It further states that all buildings over four and under six stories high which are intended for the manufacture, storage, repair or examination of films shall be of fire-proof or slow burning construction. As an amendment to the measure, Council has fixed the height of all buildings in which films are to be stored at 80 feet on all streets 48 feet or less in width; at 90 feet on streets more than 48 and less than 60 feet, and at 100 feet on streets 60 feet wide or more.

The ordinance further provides that all fire-proof film buildings must have automatic sprinkler equipment in the examination and storage rooms, while in buildings not fire-proof a sprinkler system must be installed throughout. It is also specified that each reel of film be kept in a separate standard metal box or case, and stored ac cording to the regulations laid down. Not over 20 films are to be exposed on shelves or counters, and not over 5 films shall be kept in any operating room.

The construction and size of vaults, safes and cabinets for the storage of films is also regulated in the ordinance, which will necessitate many changes in this respect. The size of a vault is limited to 750 cubic feet, and that of a safe to 150 cubic feet. No cabinet shall contain more than 50 reels, or 250 pounds of nitrocellulose compound.

The examination and repair of films must take place in rooms having outside ventilation, separated from the rest of the building by incombustible partitions and fire doors. The number of reels exposed in such room is limited to 10. Changes in the lighting and heating systems of many of the buildings will likewise be necessitated by the new law.

Enterprise Amusement's New Theater.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Enterprise Amusement Company is preparing plans for a new and up-to-date theater to be erected in Centre avenue, Pittsburgh. The house will be named the Victoria and will have a seating capacity of 1,200. Mark Browarsky, the active head of the Enterprise Amusement Company, last month completed his beautiful Orpheum theater at Forbes street and Murray avenue, which is meeting with much success. He also conducts several other houses in and about the city. Work will not be started on the new Victoria for several months. The erection of the building will cost in the neighborhood of $35,000. Mr. Browarsky is at present spending a ten-days' vacation at Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Mercer Square Theater Opened.

Greenville, Pa.—The Mercer Square theater has just been completed at Greenville, Pa., and will be thrown open to the public in the very near future. Built along very attractive and modern lines, the new house is expected to establish a high place in the interest of moving picture goers of Greenville and vicinity. The capacity of the Mercer Square is 900, with a balcony and well-arranged auditorium. Particular attention has been paid to the ventilation of the theater. A fine feature is its electric light plant, which will make the projection all that can be desired. The music will be supplied by a seven-piece orchestra. R. H. Muntz is owner and he will look after the management of the theater personally.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

Pastime Theater to Be Improved.

State Colege, Pa.—The Pastime theater, at State College, Pa., has been purchased by the Nittany Theater Company, of that place, and it will be closed the balance of the summer for extensive alterations. The Nittany theater, under the management of J. L. Blackford, will remain open but will also undergo some improvements in the near future. When re-opened the Pastime will be conducted along the same up-to-date line that has made the Nittany a very popular theater, and has gained an enviable reputation for the owners among the people of State College. Paramount, Fox, Metro, Triangle and V-L-S-E pictures are shown at the Nittany.

W. P. Young Buys Coliseum.

New Castle, Pa.—W. P. Young has sold his house at Greenville, Pa., known as Young's theater, and has purchased the attractive Coliseum theater, at New Castle.

Manager Bradley's Co-operating Dept.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Manager Bradley, of the Pittsburgh Pathe exchange, has just inaugurated a publicity department, which is designed to co-operate with the exhibitors in the matter of publicity with the object of increasing box office receipts. Miss Ethel Charie has been placed in charge of the new department.

Up-stairs Theater Closed.

Knoxville, Pa.—The Family theater, Knoxville, Pa., was closed recently by the state authorities, as the house was located on the second floor of the building, which is in violation of a state law.

J. A. Riley Managing New Orpheum.

Squirrel Hill, Pa.—J. A. Riley, formerly with the Mutual exchange in Pittsburgh, has been made manager of the new Orpheum theater, Forbes street and Murray avenue, Squirrel Hill, a suburb of this city.

Too Much for a Dime

Louisville Exhibitors Feel the Burden of Long Programs—Average Downtown Ten-Cent Show Has Five-Reel Feature and Two Short Reels—Suburban Theaters and Audience of Children and Older People.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., 1404 Starks Bldg., Louisville, Ky., Special Correspondent.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—While for several months complaints have been heard from Louisville exhibitors that films are costing so much, and admission prices are too low, the real trouble is that some of the exhibitors are overplaying their hands, according to one of the film men. For instance there are at least two of the leading down-town theaters that have been running nine-reel shows for ten cents. These shows generally consist of a five-reel feature, a two-reel comedy of some kind, and a two-reel serial. Nine reels of first-run film, featuring three or more stars, and all for the same sum of one dime!

The average down-town show for ten cents is of seven reels, consisting of a five-reel or six-reel feature, and one or more reels of short stuff such as news weeklies, comedies, etc. The exchange man claims that the exhibitors are giving their stuff away, cutting down their profits by using more first-run stuff than they can afford in the city, and laying the blame to the cost of the film service to a large extent. He further asserted that films in Louisville were really cheaper than they were in larger cities, due to the fact that the length of the booking was shorter, and a small town of 265,000 people couldn't afford to pay prices charged for big productions in other cities.

In the suburban theaters the long bill has proven the most successful from every standpoint it is stated. Taking, for instance, the house playing for a big neighborhood trade where there are many children, it is absolutely necessary to exhibit a few films of interest to the youngsters or they will shortly get disgusted with going to the theater. In one of the outlying districts of Louisville are two moving picture theaters within a few blocks of one another. The one house runs a long mixed bill, starting at 7:30 in the evening and running to about 10:30 or even later. A five or six-reel feature generally leads. This feature is followed probably by a two or three-reel western picture, a news weekly, and one or two reels of comedy. The program, of course, is all of old run stuff, but it has something in it to interest almost every member of the family. The features do not appeal to small children who are far more interested in the antics of Charlie Chaplin or "Fatty" Arbuckle. The young boy is interested in the western pictures as are many of the men, while of course the ladies warm up to the feature. Children are very welcome at this house, and the front rows are generally well-filled with the youngsters who clap and make a little noise that is not minded.

At the other house the program is designated largely for older people, and such children as do attend may often be seen fast asleep awaiting their parents' departure, it being no unusual occurrence to see parents leading out children who are nodding. The program at this house generally consists of a five or six-reel feature, and a lot of news stuff that is lost on the child. Occasionally one reel of comedy is shown. The feature material is exceptionally good second run material as a rule and is of interest to mature minds. However, children are not considered seriously at this theater. A special play might be made for the child in order to get the parent at the suburban house. In its effort to secure older people the management has gone out of its way to surpressing the child. Clapping or whistling is looked upon with disfavor. For years the leading stars of the legitimate encouraged whistling with popular tunes, but at this theater the piano player ceases immediately if anyone hums or whistles an accompaniment to the piano, and the manager is on the alert to bounce youngsters who whistle or make any unnecessary noise, it being not unusual to see him grab a kid and lead him out by the ear or shoulder. The children have therefore lost interest to a large extent in the house, and do not push their parents very hard to take them.

It was recently suggested, however, in the case of the first house that it would be better to run the short material first in order that children would not have to stay up through the feature waiting to the end of the show to see the reels they are interested in, and again the grown young people as a rule are unable to get to the theater in time to see the start of the feature, but would have very little trouble in seeing it if it was on the tail end of the program. The first house runs one bill straight through, without any reshowing of films, while the second house operates two shows each evening.

Palace Theater Almost Ready.

Louisville, Ky.—The Palace theater, at Eleventh and Walnut street, a new negro house, is well under way and will be completed about the first of August. The house will seat about 800 people and will be the largest colored picture theater in the district. The Owl Feature Film Co., will furnish the machines and most of the equipment.

Good Business in the Paradise.

Louisville, Ky.—Schwin Brothers who recently opened a negro show house known as the "Paradise," at Frist and Green streets, are doing an excellent business, and are more than pleased with the venture. The theater is in a thickly settled negro district.

There Are a Few "Crank Turners."

Louisville, Ky.—The difference between crank turners and operators is often seen in the suburban houses where carelessness on the part of the operators is responsible for flashing the intermission sign. In their excitement to get through and get out on the last show some operators fail to rewind films on the last show. The film is passed on to the next theater, and through another blunder is not inspected and is put on the machine from the wrong end and probably several feet flashed before the operator discovers just what has happened. The leading houses require that every film be rewound before the operator leaves the booth, and that all films be inspected before being run.

No Screen Club Till Cold Weather.

Louisville, Ky.—Plans for organizing a screen club in Louisville have been abandoned until fall and cool weather. Percy L. Smith, of the Mutual Film Company's local office, who undertook to start such a club, stated that he received a number of favorable replies from persons to whom he sent letters, but that a number of others favored holding off until cool weather before organizing.

John L. Crovo Booking for S. A. Lynch Circuit.

John L. Crovo, who for several years was connected with Macauley's theater, of Louisville, recently paid a visit to the city after an absence of several years. Leaving Louisville Mr. Crovo went to Charlotte, N. C., as manager of the Academy of Music, the leading theater of the city. He is now a booking agent for the S. A. Lynch circuit.

Arrested on Technicality.

The Parkland theater, of Louisville, which was operated for a few weeks by E. A. Lawson, has again been closed. Upon closing the house Lawson returned the keys to the owners of the property. Harmon Allan, the assistant manager, a day or so later opened the main door to the theater to remove a few personal belongings. The police discovered Allan in the building and placed him under arrest claiming that he had no business whatsoever in the theater. When the case came up in court Judge Boldrick upheld the officers action, and claimed that they were merely doing their duty in protecting property. A fine of $5 was assessed, but was suspended as it was well known that Allan erred merely in not knowing the law.

New Theaters and Changes.

Louisville, Ky.—The Hinkle airdome, on the Eighteenth street road, near Orell, will shortly open for business, the equipment having been sold recently by the Owl Feature Film Co.

Jeffersonville, Ky.—It is reported that John S. Grubbs is preparing to reopen the old Jefferson theater, at Jeffersonville, which has been closed for some time.

Campbellsville, Ky.—Willock & Cloyd have been forced to close their moving picture theater under a new ordinance barring the operation of moving picture theaters on the second floor. The firm is having plans drawn for a larger, better and safer house on the ground floor. This is the first time in seven years that the city has been without a picture theater. The house was originally opened by J. W. Kerr, who afterward sold out to Joe Willock and W. S. Cloyd.

Carrollton, Ky.—The Star theater, of Madison, Ind., across the river from this place, has been sold by C. R. Gibson to Mrs. Marietta Graves, of North Madison. A number of improvements will be made and the name changed to the "Nickelo." George Gibson will assist in the management of the theater.

Kentucky News Notes.

Owingsville, Ky.—The Lyric theater, which for the past two years has been operated in the old Court House, has suspended operations temporarily until its new theater in the Masonic Hall building is completed. The new house will be far superior to the old one in size and convenience.

Pineville, Ky.—The Moving Picture Company, of Pineville, with a capital stock of $1,500, has been incorporated by H. B. Jones, Stanbery Jones and M. J. Moss.

Winchester, Ky.—The Irvine Amusement Co., recently closed a lease on the property of the Queen theater, and will continue operating the house.

Columbia, Ky.—The Columbia Amusement Co., operated by Nell & Son, have made arrangements to open a new moving picture house in Parlor Circle Hall.

Cynthiana, Ky.—E. T. Ramsey recently purchased the Cinema theater which has been completly overhauled, and which is featuring World and Equitable films. A new $2,000 Wurlitzer instrument has been installed, and the seats rearranged.

TENNESSEE NEWS LETTER.

By J. L. Ray, 1014 Stahlman Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., Special Correspondent.

Occasional Films at the Princess.

NASHVILLE, TENN. — The Princess, vaudeville house of this city, operated by the Crescent Amusement Company, has changed its policy of offering comedies between shows, replacing this part of the program with a news reel, using an occasional animated cartoon.

Dixie Running Serials.

Paris, Tenn.—The serials showing at the Dixie, the popular little house of Paris, are meeting with hearty support by the public. "The Mysteries of Myra" is shown on Tuesdays, with the "Iron Claw" as the Saturday attraction. Multiple reel features are shown on two or more days, with an occasional Triangle Keystone, and a goodly number of single reel comedies. The Dixie operates on a five and ten cent scale.

Circus in Lobby.

Nashville, Tenn.—Pedestrians by the hundreds stopped throughout the day to examine the Elite's novel "lobby circus" on the opening day of Universal's big story, "Peg O' the Ring." An enormous American flag folded into the shape of a tent completely covered the outside corridor, and underneath among gay colored posters depicting caricatures of the strong man, fat lady, etc., were placed miniature circus cages containing parrots, monkeys, etc. The Elite, which is on the Cresecnt string of theaters showed to packed houses on the opening of the much advertised feature.

Improvements at Edenland.

Franklin, Tenn.—Manager Freeman of the Edenland, Franklin's handsome little showhouse, has completed repairs and a thorough painting of his theater, which is now in good condition. A complete set of powerful wall and ceiling fans have been installed.

Local Picture in Five Reels.

Newport, Tenn.—Newport has been greatly absorbed in the filming of a local subject entitled "A Romance of Newport," the cast comprising home talent. Miss Vivian Frederick and Gene Robinson have the leading roles, and the production consists of five reels. Much of the beautiful country around Newport was used in the photography, and hundreds of this town's population appear in the cast. The picture is to be shown at local houses for three days.

Nashville, Tenn.—A large Deagan Una-Fon has been installed to furnish the music for the Bijou theater of Nashville. This house has been open only a few weeks, having been thoroughly remodeled for the exhibition of photoplays, and is now under the management of Milton Starr.

KANSAS CITY NEWS.

Among Kansas City Exhibitors.

Kansas City, Mo.—C. G. Bard, associate manager of the New Rialto, admitted soldiers in uniform free following the summons to arms. When a soldier had a lady with him, both got in free.

Frank Newman has returned from a trip east.

Manager Spicer has adopted a policy of "for negroes only" for the National, at 717 Independence avenue, in a district thickly settled by people of color. He has provided a new projection machine and additional ventilating equipment, secured from the Motion Picture Supply Co.; and the increase of business seems to justify the changes, both in policy and equipment.

"Dusty" Rhoades has spent around a thousand dollars recently improving the Gillham theater, chiefly by installing up-to-date stage settings and draperies. The additions called for more floral decorations, which were filled by more ferns and the occasional use now of cut flowers and plants.

L. B. Douglas Heads Wichita Unicorn.

Wichita, Kans.—L. B. Douglas, an old-timer, recently in charge of the Mutual masterpictures department at Kansas City, has been made manager of the Wichita branch. He succeeds Jack Brainard, who is now in charge of the Unicorn office at Wichita.

Would Censor Carnivals

Kansas University Professor of Child Welfare Asks to Have the Wandering Street Shows Supervised—They Are Here Today and Are Gone Tomorrow and, Unlike Permanent Shows, Have Little Sense of Responsibility.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

LAWRENCE, Kan.—The most consistent suggestion that has come from Kansas relating to censorship in many a day, is that the street shows and carnivals should be under official regulation.

This suggestion has been made by Prof. W. A. McKeever, head of the department of child welfare of the University of Kansas. Professor McKeever is nationally known as a student of that subject, and is the author of several books.

The chief objection raised against the street shows lies in their itinerant character. They are here to-day, gone to-morrow, and the children have seen the performances, been demoralized by their crassness and coarseness, and there is no recourse against them. If they were permanent institutions, the adults would soon discover their nature, and insist on changes in policy; or would forbid the children to attend them. But there is no chance for such regulation by popular approval and patronage—and the adults find out about them when too late.

Professor McKeever has sent letters to city officials and citizens in many places calling their attention to this situation, and urging that carnival companies should give the facts before state officials and receive approval before they are allowed to travel over the state. And he makes clear the distinction between such entertainments and the amusements provided by permanent residents of a community.

Professor McKeever's letters say in part: "Many of these shows are coarse and dirty and are not worthy of a place in a community of lumber jacks. These faking organizations are a menace to the youth of the place and an offense to the common Christian citizenship. Their presence in the city is a reflection upon the city government which gives them licenses, a sure indication of the ignorance of officials and of their neglect of the true needs of the children."

NEW RIALTO AND NEW POLICY.

Manager Bard Puts New Life Into Former Five-cent House.

Kansas City, Mo.—The Pearl theater, 1205 Grand avenue, Kansas City, Mo., C. O. Moore, manager, has taken on new life the past few days; its name has been changed to the New Rialto, the interior has been redecorated, pictures hung on the walls, the seats covered with white summer dresses—and the price raised from 5 to 10 and 15 cents.

This change was brought about by C. G. Bard, known in many moving picture centers and many branches of the industry. For the past few years he has been trying out the policy of higher prices, longer runs and vigorous advertising in small houses, and it has paid so well that he has made an arrangement for an extensive test of the policy with the New Rialto.

This house seats 240; it has been running successfully, but possibly far behind its possibilities, with inexpensive program and frequent serials, at a nickel. It is at one of the busiest corners in Kansas City, next door to a United Cigar Store. Within a block is the new Regent, charging ten cents minimum; the Wonderland, 5 cents and two or three days a week 10 cents; the Idle Hour, usually 5 cents; the Sapphire, always 5 cents; the Twelfth street, 5 cents Universal program; the Empress, pictures and vaudeville. The tendency in this district is upward—and Frank Newman is making good with his high class Regent.

Mr. Bard analyzed the situation of the old Pearl as too small for 5 cents, but a fine opportunity for higher prices in an attractive theater, with class to it, and runs of several days or several weeks if necessary.

Further improvements are to be made in the house, with additions to its musical equipment; and special advertising methods adopted, some of which will be aimed to draw attendance from Kansas City, Kansas.

Distributing Metro's "Pictures Magazine."

Kansas City, Mo.—An incidental addition to the duties of Metro at Kansas City, is the handling of 3½ tons of express matter a week—50,000 copies of "The Pictures Magazine," being distributed by the company. Charles W. Harden, manager at Kansas City, was notified that his quota of the magazine to be sold to exhibitors was 50,000; he had three weeks to work, and when the first copies came, the entire edition had been subscribed for in amounts from 250 to 1,000. The exhibitor prints his week's program on the cover. Three express wagons back up to the Metro offices—they are on the ground floor, and have an alley door—for these magazines, once a week.

Local Boosts for Exhibitors.

Kansas City, Mo.—The publicity department of the V-L-S-E at Kansas City, has been making good with the exhibitors in many ways, and its latest method has been particularly successful. Frequently the department has found occasion to send to the publishers of the local newspapers, personal letters telling of the fine work of the exhibitors, and suggesting co-operation with him. Such a letter informs the editor, from an outside source, of the enterprising exhibitor the town has, and says that the writer has suggested to this exhibitor the advantage of working with the newspaper; there is enclosed a story—maybe two or three—about this exhibitor, and on the picture he is about to run, or on the service he is getting; and nine times out of ten the story is printed, in half a column or more. Incidentally, the story ends with a reference to the many good features which the patrons may have for the making of the request to the exhibitor; and several features are mentioned by name. Many orders for features are the direct result of the publication of these stories, the patrons making the requests for them as suggested. L. J. Scott, manager of the department, has found this method very productive of co-operation between the local newspaper men and the exhibitors, with good results for both.

H. G. Gill's Plan to Aid Operators.

Kansas City, Mo.—H. G. Gill, manager of the Motion Picture Supply Co., is now studying out a system of mailing by which he will be able to get in direct connection with each operator in the states of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The idea is to be able at any time to communicate anything new or essential to the various operators. This is not an impossibility because each operator will gladly keep Mr. Gill posted as to his whereabouts. Also the operators will be able to use the home office as an employment bureau. Mr. Gill announces that there will be no charges for the service.

C. S. Edwards, Sr., manager of the Pathe at St. Louis, was in Kansas City recently visiting his family.

Poor Business on Border

Texas Exhibitors Hindered by Present Mexican Situation—Business Practically Interrupted—Army Officers Advise People to Stay Home Nights—Traveling Film Man Has Narrow Escape from Bandits.

By S. A. M. Harrison, 618 Comal St., Dallas Texas, Special Correspondent.

DALLAS, Tex.—The Mexican situation has certainly put a quietus to the moving picture business along the border of the state of Texas. Practically all film exchanges are receiving telegrams to discontinue service until further notice. In most of the border towns the shows are either closing up altogether or are just running one or two nights a week as the people have been advised by the army officers to stay at home at night on account of the raids being pulled off by the Mexican bandits, who are doing much damage to that part of the state.

While it is very hard on the moving picture business at present, it is believed that when the suspense of the war is over and even if war is actually in progress that the Mexicans will leave the small towns along the border and go into the interior. The shows in the border towns will be opened to bigger business than ever on account of militia men who are on duty here. The situation just at present is a very serious one, but after all they are very optimistic over it.

A. W. Pluess, travelling salesman for the V-L-S-E had a narrow escape from the bandits recently. In going from Del Rio to Eagle Pass he ran into a ranch that had just been destroyed by the bandits. After arriving at Eagle Pass he found it necessary to abandon his trip to the border towns and started back to San Antonio and was delayed just 24 hours owing to the fact that the bandits had just blown up a bridge.

A. V. Randall, another travelling salesman, was compelled to return to Dallas, after a very short stay in Eagle Pass.

T. M. Hervey, manager of the Unique theater at Eagle Pass, has been compelled to send his family to the interior of the state, on account of the recent raids made by the Mexicans.

Hippodrome Reopened.

Dallas, Tex.—The Hippodrome theater at Dallas, closed in the early spring, was reopened June 22 under the Jefferson theater management, and will be run indefinitely under this management. The Hippodrome is one of the largest, if not the largest moving picture theater in Dallas.

New Film Exchange for Dallas.

Dallas, Tex.—A new film exchange has just been organized in Dallas, composed of C. R. Scott and S. M. Sanford, and will be known as the Scott-Sanford Film Co. They are located at 1911½ Commerce street, and are handling the Unity program, releasing a feature a week.

Benefit With Local Film.

Houston, Tex.—The Liberty theater of Houston, Texas, recently ran the new Houston film, made by the Havlin company, for the benefit of the Faith Home. The picture is in five reels and the cast is made up entirely of Houston society folks. The production was exceptionally clever for a picture acted by amateurs, and carried an excellent story.

D. B. Hair With Consolidated.

Houston, Tex.—D. B. Hair, formerly of the Hulsey theaters of Dallas, is now with the Houston office of the Consolidated Film.

Botto Makes South Texas Trip.

Dallas, Tex.—Harry F. Botto, the newly appointed assistant manager of the Southwestern Triangle, made a trip through the southern part of the state during week of June 19th, and reports good business.

Jefferson Closes for Repairs.

Dallas, Tex.—The Jefferson theater at Dallas, is undergoing extensive repairs, which when completed will give the theater a much larger seating capacity. The Jefferson expects to re-open early in August, and it is possible that they will continue running the Hippodrome. Ray Stinnett is the able manager of the Jefferson.

Max Graff in Dallas.

Dallas, Tex.—Max Graff, former manager of the World Film offices at Dallas, and who has recently made a trip to the West Coast, passed through Dallas enroute to New York during the past few days.

New Texas Theaters.

Freeport, Tex.—A new theater has becn opened at Freeport, Texas, known as the Princess, and is under the management of H. A. Owens.

Spring, Tex.—C. S. Wunsche has opened a new theater at Spring, Texas.

Coupland, Tex.—The New Novelty theater has been opened at Coupland, Texas. W. D. Gaston is the manager.

New Ulm, Tex.—It is reported that Rubin Frels will remodel his theater at New Ulm, Texas, in the very near future.

Among Texas Exhibitors.

Dallas, Tex.—Ray Stinnett, manager of the Jefferson theater, will leave shortly on an extended automobile trip. He will be accompanied by his wife.

Terrell, Tex.—E. L. Byars of the Lyric, was in Dallas during week of June 19th visiting the different film exchanges.

Sweetwater, Tex.—A. W. Pysher and T. A. Hubbard of the Lyric at Sweetwater, were in Dallas recently looking after good material for their exchange in West Texas. Mr. Hubbard also visited his family at Marshall, Texas, his wife being in the sanitarium there.

San Antonio, Tex.—Wm. Epstein and Walter McCombs of the Lydell-Epstein interests, visited Dallas recently for the purpose of lining up their schedule.

Quanah, Tex.—W. W. Purnell of the Old Court theater, visited the film exchanges in Dallas week of June 19th.

Sulphur Springs, Tex.—Wm. Barnes of the Mission theater, was in Dallas week of June 19th.

Longview, Tex.—Joe Wells of the Garden theater at Longview, visited Dallas recently.

INDIANA NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

Airdome Making Fine Showing.

RICHMOND, Ind.—The Garden airdome, the finest open air theater in Richmond, is selling out every night at every performance. The Garden was put into splendid condition after vacancy lasting a year and it is certainly a paying proposition for the owners. With the advent of the Garden as an up-to-date airdome there was a new awakening in motion picture interest. The theater management is offering odd vaudeville sketches as an added attraction.

The New Raises Admission.

Westport, Ind.—The New theater of this city has raised the price to ten cents. Some feature had had ten cent showings but the management decided to stop the sliding scale of prices and to put on features continually with the higher price of admission. The higher price is not resulting in a cut in the box office business.

Asks Receiver for Strand Theater.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Application for the appointment of a receiver for the Strand Theater Company of Indiana, which operates the Strand here, has been applied for in the Superior courts. The application is made by the Strand Company, a Maine corporation, which alleges that it is the principal owner of the stock in the theater. The Strand was formerly the Park, a legitimate house, but was remodeled and redecorated and made into one of the biggest and finest motion picture houses in the state several months ago. It played to big houses for a time but the interest in the new theater dropped away, principally because of its somewhat out of the way location, it is said. A change of program was tried and other means devised to make the theater pay but the handicap of location was too great.

The Maine corporation alleges that the Indiana company is in danger of insolvency and to have been unable to meet the obligations of the company out of the box office receipts. A receiver is necessary, it is alleged, to prevent suits by creditors and the possibility of certain creditors obtaining preference over others. The plaintiff has asked that the receiver be instructed to continue the business.

The court litigation is said to have brought about the recent somewhat hazy announcement that Barton and Olson had taken over the management of the theater under some sort of a trial agreement, had engaged "Where Are My Children" for a week and had raised the price for the three showings daily to twenty-five and fifty cents.

Leases Rockville Theater.

Rockville, Ind.—Darroll Webber and Leslie Strole of Delphi have leased the Rockville opera house for a period of one year and will show feature attractions during the summer months.

Is a Ready-Minded Musician.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Conductor Albert E. Short of the Strand, it is claimed by his employers, is "some conductor." Recently the music for a picture failed to arrive with the reels. Short had an hour and ten minutes in which to compose music to fit the various situations and he accomplished the trick. His music fit five reels, according to his employers.

ILLINOIS NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Special Correspondent.

Rights in Light Invention Sold.

QUINCY, Ill.—The Automatic Gas Power Company of which Dr. J. R. Brown, is secretary, sold the manufacturers' right in the motion picture light invented by Frank Hardyman of this city to E. S. Bowman and S. H. DeRoy of New York, and Samuel Bowman of St. Louis, representatives of the Morgan syndicate.

The local company, however, has Missouri and within 70 miles of Quincy in Illinois for exclusive territory, and also will be given a substantial royalty on the sale of the lamps.

Miss Torrey Managing the Elite.

Petersburg, Ill.—The newly equipped Elite is under new management, that of Miss Martina Torrey. Miss Valerie Willis a graduate of the Jacksonville Conservatory of Music and Miss Torrey who is a violinist of ability will furnish the music. Triangle Paramount and General Film service will be used.

Illinois Theater Changes.

McHenry, Ill.—The Airdome has been opened here for the season.

Chicago Heights, Ill.—Salzinedel & Son, who operate the Princess theater, have purchased the Washington theater from Reuben Levine, and will operate both houses. The Princess was closed for six

(Continued on page 504.)

Greetings

to

Motion Picture Exhibitors of America

Who Meet at

NATIONAL CONVENTION

IN CHICAGO

July 10th to 18th, 1916

From

THE MOTION PICTURE TRADE

Or Studios, or Players
Or Screen Profession

OF CALIFORNIA

Success to the National Convention of the

Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America

Webster defines success as: The prosperous termination of any enterprise.

Wise exhibitors are defining it as: E & R Jungle Comedies featuring Napoleon and Sally, the "chimpanzees with the human brains."

E & R Comedies are unique, unusual and individually distinctive; they are the concentrated essence of laughter; the lingering spirits of smiles, and the distilled joy of clean, sparkling comedy.

Write or Wire.

E & R Jungle Film Co.

1720 N. Soto St., Los Angeles, Cal.

BALBOA

THE FASTEST GROWING

AND THE

Largest Actually Independent

MOVING PICTURE PRODUCING STUDIO IN THE WORLD

H. M. HORKHEIMER
President and Gen'l Manager

BALBOA-
FEATURE FILMS

"St. Elmo"
"Beulah"
"Birth of a Man"
"Should a Wife Forgive"
"The Twin Triangle"
"A Matrimonial Martyr"
"Will O' The Wisp"
"The Brand of Man"
and 250 others.

BALBOA

BALBOA-
PATHE RELEASES

"Who Pays"—Series
"Neal of the Navy"—Serial
"The Red Circle"
Serial-series
"The Grip of Evil"
Forthcoming series
"Comrade John"
"Adventures of a Madcap"
"The Shrine of Happiness"
"Rose among the Briars"
"Little Mary Sunshine"

E. D. HORKHEIMER
Secretary & Treasurer

THE

BALBOA

Amusement Producing Company

Studio and General Offices:
LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA
NORMAN MANNING, Business Manager

New York Office:
MECCA BUILDING, 1600 BROADWAY
H. N. HOLDE, Eastern Representative

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

S. S. HUTCHINSON PRESIDENT

PRESENTS

THE ORIGINAL RAILROAD GIRL

HELEN HOLMES

and her

ORIGINAL CAST

LEO D. MALONEY

PAUL C. HURST

THOS. G. LINGHAM

WILLIAM BRUNTON

IN

"WHISPERING SMITH"
"JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS"
"MEDICINE BEND"
"DIAMOND RUNNER"
"MANAGER OF THE B. AND A"

Produced by

J. P. McGOWAN

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

4560 Pasadena Avenue Los Angeles, Cal.

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH

MACK SENNETT

Vice-President and General Manager of The Keystone Film Co., supervising genius of Triangle-Keystone comedies—the greatest comedies in the world.

Nell Shipman

Direction

Oscar Apfel

William Fox Company

MABEL CONDON, BUSINESS REPRESENTATIVE

William Russell

Director and Star

The William Russell Productions

American Film Co., Inc.

---

Mabel Condon, Business Representative

Ruth Roland

Lois Weber
and # Phillips Smalley

Producers of
"HYPOCRITES"
"SCANDAL"
"JEWEL"
"DUMB GIRL OF PORTICI"
"WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN"
and many other successes.

---

In course of preparation, are—
"SAVING THE FAMILY NAME"
and
"IDLE WIVES"
By James Oppenheim

R.M. Francisco, President Monrovia Feature Film Co.

presents

"The Daughter of the Don"

A Ten Reel Photo Drama by Direction of Henry Kabierske

Will be ready for presentation August 1st, 1916. State Rights

Address
R. M. FRANCISCO, MONROVIA, CAL.

"PACIFIC COAST CENTRE OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY"

WILLIS and INGLIS

Wright & Callender Building, Los Angeles

ARTHUR S. KANE

Eastern Representative

220 West 42d Street, New York City

AN ALLIANCE---

Which has brought the Eastern and Western photoplay interests into close touch.
Which in itself constitutes a National Photoplay Clearing House.

Sale of Films. Photoplay Rights to Books and Plays.
Financing. State Rights. Management.
Publicity. Engagements.

"ADVANCING WITH THE INDUSTRY."

HAM and BUD "Ham Comedies"

OFF FOR THE REHEARSAL
I'D LIKE TO RESCUE THE GOIL
I AM CAST FOR THE ROLE OF A BUTLER I SUPPOSE
I BET HE PICKED ME FOR THE 'LEADS ME THE VILLIAN I DO THE DIRTY WORK
I HOPE I GIT THE HERO'S PART!!
I LIKE THE HEAVY STUFF!!
SCENARIO
TITLE
SCENE 1
SCENE 2
SCENE 3
DYNAMITE POWDER
HAMPTON DELRUTH
MANAGING EDITOR
ASST. MGR. OF PRODUCTION
READY TO REHEARSE THE DIRTY WORK.

HAMPTON DEL RUTH, OF THE KEYSTONE,

who will spend his vacation in Eden Dale
"Just like a butterfly"—From one d—d thing to another

CHARLOTTE BURTON

Leads

American Film Company

Five-Reel Features

Featured Juvenile

American Film Studio

Santa Barbara, Cal.

Wallace MacDonald

Ethel Teare

Featured in

KALEM COMEDIES

HELEN GIBSON

"HAZARDS OF HELEN"

COMPANY

Kalem Company, Inc.

ELLEN GODSAY

COMEDIENNE

Kalem Company, Inc.

HARRY MILLARDE

PRODUCER AND LEADING MAN
SCREEN CLUB
NEW YORK CITY

Recent Releases

"The Lotus Woman"
"The Money Gulf"
"Linked Lives"
"Into the Unknown"

Clarice Manning MacQuarrie

Writing special feature Scenarios
for Individual Film Stars.
Known by hundreds of thousands in America and Europe as
The "Classy Song Writer" and Former head of the Firm of

CLARICE MANNING & CO.
Music Publishers
New York

Composer of more than 50 songs
Published by the largest Publishers in the world.
Wife of Murdock MacQuarrie, Popular Character Star and Director.
Familiar with the Film business.
Personally acquainted with many of the Film Stars.
Film Cos. desiring stories for Certain Stars, please write several weeks ahead, and story will be gladly submitted. If not familiar with star, will notify you.

Address
1967 Beachwood Drive
Hollywood, Cal.

MISS MARGARET DARWIN
STARRING IN Norbig Feature Films

Under the Direction of
HARRY T. DE VERE

NORBIG FILM CO.
1745-51 Allessandro Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

WILLIAM S. HART

Starring in

Thomas H. Ince Features

CURRENT RELEASES

"THE DISCIPLE"
"BETWEEN MEN"
"HELL'S HINGES"
"THE ARYAN"
"THE PRIMAL LURE"
"THE APOSTLE OF VENGEANCE"

Why Experiment with Screens

When it is generally conceded that San Francisco Feature Houses produce the equal, if not the best, results in moving picture reproduction of any city in the world.

Why?

No claim is laid for superior equipment leading to or in the operating room, as the best is within the reach and is used by all first class theatres the world over. And while no concession is made for greater efficiency abroad. The San Francisco operators as a body lay no claim for superority. Therefore the missing link in the chain of harmony made for greater efficiency abroad, the by the great majority of exhibitors has here been supplied to produce the nearest approach to a perfect picture as the camera sees it.

The Screen

upon which the picture is projected.

The answer at once reveals itself as almost without an exception.

The Wonder Screen

THE CURTAIN DE LUXE

is employed and has stood the test of time.

For particulars address

REFER { PORTOLA / RIALTO / NEW MISSION

Wonder Screen
616 Buchanan St., San Francisco

Angelus
Printing Machine

Complete and practical printer,
Used by
New York Motion Picture Corp.
Wm. Fox Studios
Norbig Film Mfr. Co.
Clune Film Producing Co.
And many others.

Write for descriptive matter on complete line of motion picture apparatus

Los Angeles Motion Picture Company
Manufacturers of High Grade Motion Picture Equipment and Studio Apparatus
H. PAULIS, Manager
215-19 East Washington Street,
Los Angeles, California

The wise old Teacher, Experience, every one knows, has the only method of producing sure and skillful results. Many years of Experience has enabled us to produce unequalled—

PACIFIC
TRADE MARK

TANKS and RACKS

for developing films

MADE IN CALIFORNIA

Get in touch with us the next time you require Tanks and Racks. PACIFIC Service is bound to please you.

Have you our Price List No. 14?

PACIFIC TANK & PIPE CO.

LOS ANGELES SAN FRANCISCO
CALIFORNIA

PAY A VISIT

TO THE

LOS ANGELES OFFICE

OF THE

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

ALWAYS GLAD TO SEE YOU

Our office is right down town—corner Broadway and Seventh Street, on the third floor of the Haas Building.

We carry a complete line of all the text books published by the Chalmers Publishing Company, including Richardson's New Handbook and Sargent's New Technique of the Photoplay.

We are in a position to take care of your subscriptions by return mail and send you latest copy of the paper same day we receive your order.

Exhibitors out of town send us news about your theatres.

Yours very truly,

G. P. VON HARLEMAN,

Pacific Coast Representative.

weeks for remodeling. Until it is ready pictures will be run at the Washington, but later the Washington will use both vaudeville and pictures on Sundays.

Brief Notes Worth a Glance.

Pekin, Ill.—Don C. McClellan, the well known Minneapolis exhibitor was called to Pekin by the illness of his father O. W. McClellan, also well known to moving picture men.

Alton, Ill.—Manager Wm. M. Sawrage of the Airdome had a film made boosting industrial Alton.

Manito, Ill.—Hodkinson & Roush managers of the Rollerdome theater announce a Klein-Edison program.

Monmouth, Ill.—Manager George Howard has given the Bijou theater a garden effect.

Morrison, Ill.—The Morrison Airdome operated by Billy Boston, has re-opened with vaudeville, and pictures being closed because of discouraging weather.

Springfield, Ill.—Richard Travers, of the Essanay company appeared in person at the Vaudette theater.

SEATTLE NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Seattle Correspondent.

Geo. Endert Stars Own Company.

SEATTLE, Wash.—Geo. P. Endert, for three years Seattle branch manager of the World Film Corporation, has left that position to engage in a company of his own. Endert is replaced in the World office by Hugh Renny.

Mr. Endert opened the Seattle branch for the World company. With Jack Lannon, a wealthy business man here, he is now associated in the Greater Features Co., which handles, at present, the Anna Pavlow a picture of "The Dumb Girl of Portici," and another strong attraction entitled "Where Are My Children?"

Bart Bertelson, press agent of the Clemmer theater in Seattle, was an influential factor in getting the new company organized.

Seattle Claims the Best Organist.

Seattle, Wash.—In Oliver G. Wallace, Seattle claims the greatest motion picture organist in the West, if not in the whole United States.

Wallace played the organ for eight years for James Q. Clemmer, first at the Dream theater, and more recently at the Clemmer theater. He is now with Jensen & Von Herberg, having taken charge at the Liberty theater in the past month.

From the very start, Wallace proved a sensation at the Liberty. His past engagements have been on Estey & Kimball organs, but in his new connection he took hold of an entirely new instrument, the Wurlitzer-Hope-Jones unit orchestra. To hear him handle this wonderful organ so capably proves the old assertion that artists are born. He took to the new instrument like a duck to water—and needless to say, Wallace, though still a young man, is drawing the biggest salary of any organist in the West.

C. Montgomery Goes to Fox.

Seattle, Wash.—Clinton Montgomery, formerly on the road for the V-L-S-E, now is assistant coast representative for the Fox films under E. R. Redlick, western representative.

Dan Donellan Is V-L-S-E Road Man.

Seattle, Wash.—Dan Donellan, who has been editor of Pals, the weekly mouthpiece in Seattle of the V-L-S-E, has a new job. He's road salesman now for the same company.

Spitzer and Cohn, representatives of the Clara Kimball Young features paid a visit to Seattle recently to line up prospects for her coming releases.

W. W. Drum is in Seattle to assist Hugh Renny in the new management of the local branch of the World Film Corporation. He will remain here for several weeks.

Irritating Censorship

Minneapolis Can Now See "The Evil Thereof," for Mayor Nye Has Rescinded Former Order Against It—But "Little Girl Next Door" Has Come Under His Ban—He Is Absolute Dictator in the Matter of Censoring Films.

By Perry S. Williams, Special Correspondent, Address Tribune, Minneapolis, Minn.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Moving picture men of this city once more are on the fence as a result of the constantly changing censorship code of Mayor Wallace G. Nye.

Several days ago the mayor's big board of censors, advised him to stop the production of "The Evil Thereof." The theater management and their friends, however, succeeded in reaching the ear of the city executive with regard to the film and let it be known to him that a large sum of money had been expended by the New Garrick in advertising the show which had been booked for only three days. The mayor then reversed his board and himself and permitted the showing of the picture. He held steadfastly to his latter decision despite public and private protest from some of the leading social and philanthropic sources in the city and the moving picture men were enheartened at finding what they believed to be a friend of the film men in the city chief.

However, their joy now has been jarred into sorrow for the mayor apparently has gone to the other extreme in making his absolute dictatorship over the film theaters in Minneapolis felt. A few days ago Barret O'Hara, former lieutenant governor of Illinois, came to the city in the interests of the "Little Girl Next Door" picture, which is based on the work done by the Illinois vice-commission of which Mr. O'Hara was the leading member when in office. He arranged for a private showing in Mayor Nye's reception room for the city executive, and the members of his censorship board. After eliminating only very minor parts of the film the board reported to the mayor that they were satisfied that the picture could be shown in Minneapolis without harm to public audiences. The mayor withheld judgment, but it was broadly intimated that he would be guided by the findings of his board. Now he has announced that he will absolutely forbid its being shown in any theater. The picture had not been contracted for by any Minneapolis house, and the mayor said he took the action he did as much as anything else to head off any arrangements being made for its showing in the city so that no theater owner could come to him with the plea that money already spent in heralding the play was of enough consequence to warrant him in rescinding his first order. In the order prohibiting the picture the mayor writes:

"It pictures revolting details of vice, brutality, gambling and the drug evil. There are some wise admonitions to parents and children, but with so much bad mixed in that harm would result."

Projection Contest by University Students.

St. Paul, Minn.—One of the most interesting contests involving the moving picture which ever took place in this part of the country was held a few days ago at the State University farm school here. After ten men had tried their luck at operating a projection machine, the four best were pitted against each other to determine which was the best operator. Prof. B. L. Newkirk, who staged the contest, awarded the palm to F. G. Wells of Walker, Minn. The contestants and 500 persons who made up the audience were members of the summer school classes which are being taught how to handle the projecting machines. They are all teachers and principals of rural and consolidated schools. Marking was done after the following code:

A clean, bright, white picture counted three points; keeping the picture within the frame also netted three points; no interruptions gave the operator a credit of two points and the general artistic effect of the picture was good for two more. Mr. Wells' score was almost perfect.

J. H. Reisman and Bert Goldman Ride Shriners' Goat.

St. Paul, Minn.—The burning sands leading to the doorway of the mystic shrine were traversed several days ago by two followers of the moving picture game in this city. Bert Goldman, manager of the Majestic and Princess theaters, and J. H. Reisman, manager of the Dale theater, are the film trade pair who braved the treacherous back of the official goat of Osmun Temple. The boys are on the job again and seem not much the worse for wear. The goat has not been seen since the ceremony and the state of its health is a matter of conjecture among the friends of Goldman and Reisman.

A Paper "Zep" Advertises Picture.

Minneapolis, Minn.—A six-foot airship made of yellow paper was used here by the management of the New Garrick theater in advertising a Keystone comedy recently which dealt with the subject of aerial craft. The "Zep" was suspended under the canopy in front of the playhouse and proved a good drawing card.

Theater Changes.

Jordan, Minn.—A new moving picture theater is to be erected in this place by H. Thievoldt. Mr. Thievoldt is at present in Jordan, Minn., where he has picture house interests.

Winona, Minn.—The building at 73 East Third street in this city is being made over into a picture playhouse.

Lawton, N. D.—The theater in this place, which is owned by Joseph Miller, will be turned into a moving picture house soon. Mr. Miller has announced plans for purchasing an outfit for that purpose.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The World correspondent is indebted to Tom North editor of the V-L-S-E Pals, of Seattle, Wash., for being put on the exchange list of that paper. (Same at this end.)

WISCONSIN NEWS LETTER.

From Midwest News Service, 623 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

New Wisconsin Theaters and Changes.

Waupaca, Wis.—The Colonial theater is now under the management of D. M. Leadbetter of Superior, who purchased the interest of Frank Yunker of Oshkosh. The new policy is to give a four reel show for ten cents and on one or two nights a week show something real big for fifteen cents.

Steven Point, Wis.—The Ideal moving picture theater here has been taken over by C. W. Rice, who also owns the Unique theater at Marshfield. Rice formerly lived here, and will take charge of the Marshfield house. He may operate both houses.

Clinton, Wis.—A. W. Miller has sold the Gem theater to Mr. Atherton of Albany, Wis.

Mazomanie, Wis.—A moving picture theater has been opened in the Larson block.

Marinette, Wis.—W. M. Beadell, formerly manager of the Beach theater in Chicago, has taken over the management of the Bijou and Marinette theaters here, succeeding Charles Carey who has taken the management of a house in Oshkosh.

Bayfield, Wis.—The firm of Anderson & Adams has been dissolved, Anderson taking over the Princess theater and Adams the barber shop which they operated.

California's Big Film

Columbia Theater of San Francisco Begins a Run of New Ten-Reel Picture, "The Argonauts of California," Made by Grafton Publishing Film Company—Some of Its Big Scenes—Will Go East in Fall.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North St., Berkeley, Cal., Special Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Columbia theater, one of the finest playhouses of this city, is now given over to a season of moving pictures, the opening attraction being "The Argonauts of California," produced by the Grafton Publishing Film Company. The premiere of this ten reel photo-dramatic spectacle took place on June 18 and was the occasion for a wonderful assemblage of pioneers, men and women who had passed through the stormy times depicted in the picture. Since then the house has been well filled at every performance, all San Francisco apparently being eager to see its early story on the screen.

The special stage sets used with the production add greatly to its impressiveness, four of these being used: "The Coming of the Spaniard," a scene on the California coast; "The Coming of the Argonauts," showing dawn on the desert, with a train of prairie schooners; "The Golden Fields," a view of the high Sierras, and "Sunset off the Golden Gate." These sets are used effectively to divide the performance into three parts, the first consisting of the prologue which treats of the discovery of gold and the introduction in which is shown how the world received the news. The second act is given over to the unfolding of the story, of adventures in the "Days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49," with much of historic interest, while the third act is devoted to the story of San Francisco in the days of the Vigilantes. The feature of the production is the fidelity to the spirit of the times, its historic accuracy and the care taken to present scenes in their correct surroundings. It is essentially an epic of the West and the first earnest attempt that has been made to tell the story of the pioneers.

One of the most fascinating chapters in American annals is the narrative of the world-famous Vigilance Committee of 1856, an organization of the new city's bravest, ablest and best men who redeemed San Francisco from its reign of terror, subjugated the lawless bands that had formed, hanged the leaders and finally restored peace and order to the wild bonanza metropolis. The climax of "The Argonauts of California" is reached with the killing of James King of William and the resulting action of the Vigilantes.

Edward L. Grafton, head of the producing concern bearing his name, is giving the presentation of this production his personal attention and states that it will be shown throughout the Pacific Coast during the summer and will be taken East in the fall. The lobby displays are probably the most elaborate of any made for any moving picture production and have been insured for $20,000. The paintings and tinted photographs have been made under the direction of C. Sanford Harrison and not one has cost less than one hundred dollars, there being more than one hundred of these in all. Each large picture is framed in native pine with the bark left on, producing an artistic effect and one in keeping with the production. It is planned to have the entire company that took part in the production come to San Francisco and view the film while it is being shown here.

Lasky Concern Enters Field.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Lasky Amusement Enterprises, which will shortly be incorporated, has opened offices on the sixth floor of the Humboldt bank building and is preparing to engage in business with a chain of photoplay houses. Mark A. Lasky is president of the concern and Mark M. Leichter, of the Rex theater, is general manager. A lease on a house to be erected in the Richmond district has already been taken over and it is planned to secure others at an early date. These theaters will all bear the Lasky name and a specialty will be made of Paramount productions. The house to be erected in the Richmond district will be located at Tenth avenue and Clement street on the property of Mary M. Seidl and will cover an area of fifty by one hundred and fifty feet. It will be of the most modern construction with a seating capacity of about 1,500 and will represent a total investment of almost $100,000. In planning the theater the use of stairs has been done away with entirely and easy inclines will lead to the mezzanine floor and balcony. At the rear of the house there will be a children's playground where the little tots may play while their elders are enjoying the show. Mark M. Leichter is also handling the "Flexlume" interchangeable sign and has already placed this with a number of local theaters, including the Portola, the Market street and the new St. Francis theaters.

Two Houses to Share Paramount Service.

San Francisco Cal.—The Imperial theater, which has for some months been making two complete changes of program a week, featuring Paramount service exclusively, has gone back to the former plan of but one change. The management of the St. Francis theater on Geary street has made arrangements for taking care of one of the two weekly Paramount releases and as soon as this house is opened in the fall there will be two downtown theaters featuring first run Paramount films.

"Where Are My Children?" Going Big.

San Francisco, Cal.—Sol L. Lesser is meeting with great success in booking "Where Are My Children?" which recently completed such a successful run at the Tivoli theater, where it broke all former records for attendance, and this is now being shown in some of the suburban cities. At Vallejo it was shown for two days and was seen by three thousand people out of a total population of twelve thousand. At San Mateo it was shown at twenty-five cents and requests are being made that it be brought back there. J. S. Berkowitz has been placed on the road with this production by Mr. Lesser and the chief trouble he has experienced has been to choose the house in which to place it.

Slaughter-Lamson Film Barred.

San Francisco, Cal.—Exhibition of the Slaughter-Lamson film, depicting scenes in a notorious case in which a minister was involved, has been prohibited by the authorities at Sacramento, Stockton, Napa, Dinuba and Porterville. At San Jose the showing of the film was allowed after it had been inspected by members of the police department. The California rights, which were held for a time by a local concern, have been taken over by the makers of the film, the California Photo Company, Oakland, Cal.

News from San Francisco.

The Rex theater on Polk street has added a second late model Motiograph, purchased from Edward H. Kemp, the local agent.

The Atlas Educational Film Company has sent a projection machine to the Half Moon Bay high school and another to a vacation resort at Lake Tahoe.

W. O. Edmunds, Pacific Coast manager for the Kleine interests, recently visited the branch at Los Angeles and has since made a trip to Portland and Seattle.

Messrs. Howell & Moore, of the new Monanche theater, Porterville, Cal., were recent visitors here to purchase equipment for this house and make arrangements for service.

N. E. Levi, formerly of the Los Angeles branch of the Mutual, has been transferred to the local office, where he is employed in the booking department.

Northern California News.

Chico, Cal.—The Majestic theater has been closed for the summer by Anderson & Wood and an airdome has been opened.

Sacramento, Cal.—Otto Laurelle has taken over the Actograph theater formerly conducted by Mr. Nathan.

Sunnyvale, Cal.—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Meany have disposed of the Empire theater to P. S. Fleischer and associates of Palo Alto who plan to make a number of improvements.

Cotati, Cal.—Cecil Ross, who at one time had four houses in this section, will shortly open a new theater with a seating capacity of 400 and will give shows four times a week.

Richmond, Cal.—L. V. DeLorme, formerly manager of T. & D.'s Richmond theater, and the Alameda house of the same concern, recently visited the moving picture studios of Los Angeles in company with R. V. Wood.

Boyes Springs, Cal.—Dr. E. L. Parramore has opened the Boyes Springs theater for the season and is offering a seven day feature program, featuring Paramount pictures.

PRAIRIE STATES NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Special Correspondent.

H. A. Kyler Opens New Office in Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb.—H. A. Kyler, formerly manager of the United and Consolidated Film exchanges in Davenport, Ia., has disposed of his interests in the Western Central Film Company at Sioux City, Ia., and has opened the Co-operative Film and Supply Company at 208-209-210 Bromley building in Omaha. This company will handle Iowa and Nebraska for the Independent Film Corporation of Minneapolis, which has a large stock of high grade features and comedies. Mr. Kyler is also handling for the Iowa and Nebraska territory the Chicago Tribune's German, Russian and Belgian war pictures. "Business has certainly opened up for us in fine shape," said Mr. Kyler. The new firm has adopted as a motto, "We Co-operate with the Exhibitor."

Screen Club Notes.

Omaha, Neb.—The Omaha Screen club gave a stag party Friday night, June 23, at the Henshaw hotel. J. E. Kirk of the Omaha Screen club had charge of the Omaha contingent to the League convention in Chicago.

John E. Flynn Weds.

Omaha, Neb.—The marriage of John E. Flynn, assistant manager of the General Film Co., at Omaha, and Miss Marie Josephine Fitzgerald of Elkhart, Ind., took place June 20, at Chicago.

Nebraska Theater Changes.

Columbus, Neb.—Max Rothleitner has taken over the North theater from Robert Kent.

Scott's Bluff, Neb.—A moving picture theater is being constructed by Robert Weller and Fred Roberts.

Syracuse, Neb.—D. C. Beyette has purchased the interest of his partner E. H. Ronnan, in the Palace theater.

Kearney, Neb.—F. G. Keens has awarded the contract for the construction of a 30 x 100 moving picture theater on the site of the present Crescent theater. It will seat 500. It will open about September 15.

Omaha, Neb.—Alfred Olson re-opened the Apollo theater on Leavenworth street, after having it closed for several weeks for improvemnts, among which was the installation of a new ventilating system.

Omaha, Neb.—The Monroe theater has been redecorated and a new lighting system installed.

Iowa Theater's Emptying Record.

Burlington, Ia.—The Palace theater holds the Iowa record for emptying the house in the shortest time. When playing to capacity the house can be cleared in 103 seconds. While aware of the fact that safety conditions in his house were paramount, Manager Jacobs was surprised to receive a letter from the state officials at Des Moines informing that an inspector recently timed the crowds as they were leaving. The house has three exits.

New Iowa Theaters and Changes.

Ft. Madison, Ia.—Mrs. Leoti Rose of Mexico, Mo., has sold the Grand opera house here to H. C. Sprick of Nebraska. The new owner has extended the leases of W. E. Kleppisch who will continue to operate the theater.

Malvern, Ia.—Fred Mendenhall has opened a moving picture show here.

Waterloo, Ia.—"The Struggle" was the initial attraction at the Crystal theater, re-opening under the management of A. W. McIntosh who also is owner. He has had the house redecorated and has installed an orchestra.

Burlington, Ia.—Lawrence P. Blank is back from Fort Lee, N. J., where he was working in connection with the production of pictures and will be manager of the Palace theater for several months during the absence of Manager Jacobs. Blank was manager of the Palace for several years.

Paulina, Ia.—E. W. McCracken and E. M. Ehlers of this place have purchased the Grand theater at Worthington, Minn.

Mason City, Ia.—Manager Heffner of the Bijou theater recently closed down his afternoon show and refunded money to patrons because a film sent him was not up to standard.

Heard on Portland's Film Row.

Camas, Wash.—Lyman Ward, formerly of Goldendale, Wash., is managing the Grand theater here. McGill, of Kiggins and McGill of Vancouver, has returned to Vancouver.

Enterprise, Ore.—C. C. Ghormley is back at his old theater, the Peoples.

Echo, Ore.—J. R. Jordan has moved his theater, the Star, to a new location and has installed a new Power 6-B machine furnished by the Service Film Company, of Portland. Mr. Jordan recently made a trip to Portland to buy equipment for the new house.

Portland, Ore.—L. Vergere, owner of the Peoples theater, Joseph, Ore., was a recent visitor, coming to Portland to receive surgical treatment.

Portland, Ore.—E. J. Myrick, manager of the Columbia theater, was the host recently to 400 boy scouts who came at his invitation to view Willie Collier, Jr., in "The Bugle Call."

Portland, Ore.—H. M. Wilson, road man for the G. F., is absent on a long trip through Eastern Oregon and Washington. The Portland office reports he is turning in new business every day.

Hillsboro, Ore.—Phelps & Harrington, owners of the Liberty theater, have bought the opposition house, the Majestic, from G. C. Combs.

Portland, Ore.—E. M. Loy, manager of the Sunset, prepared an attractive lobby for Mutual's "In the Web of the Grafters." An assortment of handcuffs was secured from the police station for the display.

Exhibitors in Arms

Censorship Standards for Viewers Censoring Films Compiled by Portland, Oregon, Board Made Public—Exhibitors Protest Against Them—Censor Richards Says They Will Work No Hardships.

By Abraham Nelson, Special Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, Ore.—As forecast in these columns on June 10, the promulgation of the rules, standards or guides by the censorboard did not clear the censorship sky. In fact ominous clouds such as are known to precede storms are hovering dangerously near and exhibitors feel that the situation is again acute.

Whether or not the rules, standards or guides have been fully adopted by the board is not clear. Chairman Richards said they had been signed by five members, a majority of the board. At any event they have been made public. Chairman Richards said they were not calculated to make Portland's censorship the least bit more stringent than it is at present, and that they were merely a basis from which the committee of viewers, whose membership occasionally changes, could work from with equal fairness to all exhibitors. He said they were not hard and fast rules but merely guides for the viewers. He asked the writer to state these facts unequivocally, in an uncolored and unbiased manner.

The effect of the promulgation of the rules, standards or guides, within three days after the press reported them as news items, was as follows:

The Evening Telegram, one of Portland's papers published an editorial on June 23 which stated in part:

"Announcement is made of a new code for the government of the movie censors; and it is tighter, as it ought to be. Whether or not all the provisions of the new code are essential and desirable, we do not undertake to argue. But decency will declare that in the main the scenes to be prohibited deserve that treatment."

Copies of the standards, guides or rules were handed to the exhibitors. A special meeting of the Oregon Moving Picture Men's Association was held June 24 to discuss them. A committee was selected to wait upon the mayor to protest against the standards, guides or rules and to further say that if there must be censorship, the association preferred to work under the city ordinance as interpreted by the mayor at a meeting with the picture men several months ago. It was also proposed to put the censorship question directly to the people at the next city election. The effect of the promulgation of the board's standards, rules or guides was to unite exhibitors, exchange men, road men, in fact everybody in the industry, more strongly against the kind of censorship practiced in Portland.

Of the standards, rules or guides in the compilation that are numbered, there are 39, which when added to those unnumbered make the total over 50.

T. & D. Man Visits.

Portland, Ore.—Claude L. Langley, directing manager and treasurer of the Turner and Dahnken circuit, was a recent visitor from San Francisco looking over the local field. He came to Portland in time to attend the special meetings of the Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association and was much interested in the censorship situation. Mr. Langley is a strong Portland booster and was greatly impressed with the city, its ideal location and beautiful theaters. Mrs. Langley accompanied him.

Change in Ashland.

Ashland, Ore.—O. F. Bergner, formerly of the Columbia theater, Portland, and for the past year manager of the Vining at Ashland, has acquired the other house in the town, the Lyric. The deal is said to have been consummated through George Hunt, of the Page theater, Medford, who purchased the theater from J. H. Cook and then sold it to Mr. Bergner.

Exhibitors Who Are Cameramen.

Medford, Ore.—D. L. Sherrits, of the Star theater, is making a bid for the town's patronage by producing and photographing local pictures. His latest effort is "The Fatal Pie," a one reel comedy with local people. Mr. Sherrits reports his venture to be a business getter for the Star.

Klamath Falls, Ore.—C. R. Miller, owner of the Orpheus theater, also cranks a camera over this territory. He has taken several hundred feet of Crater Lake scenery which he has exhibited in his house with good success. Recently he took a reel of film of the plant of the Bend Lumber Company which he sold to L. G. Rudow, of the Dream theater, at Bend.

Portland, Ore.—Frank H. Hull, who owns the Savoy theater at Central Point, was a recent visitor in Portland arranging publicity for the Rogue river roundup. Mr. Hull is also a cameraman in his part of the state and has made atractive pictures of Lithia park, Ashland and other Southern Oregon scenes.

With the Bugle Call.

Portland, Ore.—When the call came for the Oregon National Guard to mobilize at Clackamas preparatory to leaving for the Mexican border it caused several vacancies in the offices on Film Row. Among the boys to don the olive drab was Sidney Schubach, publicity man for Universal and booker for Bluebirds, and Claude Bickner, formerly shipper at Universal and now employed at the Strand theater.

That the bugle call is no respecter of persons or conditions will be testified to by Mrs. Henry Rehberg, until recently Miss Lillian De Grace, the popular stenographer at the General Film exchange. She was married to Henry Rehberg, of the American Express Company on Sunday and that night at 10:30 came the call mobilizing the militia of which Mr. Rehberg was a member. By special dispensation, however, the groom received three days leave and the couple's brief honeymoon was spent in Seattle.

Doings South of Portland.

Portland, Ore.—Reiterating the sentiment of road men who have passed through the territory during the past few months that the business of the exhibitors in Southern Oregon is practically at a standstill, H. H. Brownell, travelling representative of Pathe returned to headquarters after a long and successful trip south of Portland. Mr. Brownell crossed the state line into Northern California and noted much activity in Weed, Montague and Hornbrook, little towns. "The Birth of a Nation" played in these towns to excellent business. Mr. Brownell was out eight days covering 1,500 miles and making nearly every town containing a theater. At Eugene, A. H. McDonald reports good business on "Who's Guilty?" and the "Iron Claw." At Klamath Falls, J. V. Houston has completed the improvements on the Star theater. Mr. Houston owns the Star and Temple theaters there.

Portland, Ore.—Al Sather, manager of the Ideal theater, sang at the Strand the week of June 11, with the Washington trio. Al was the hit of the act.

Portland, Ore.—Among the recent visitors at the exchanges were: Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Gatchell Cozy theater, Woodburn; B. J. Callahan, Jr., Seaside, and Mrs. Mattecheck, of Kennewick, Wash.

Canadian Film Promised

European War and High Tariff on Imported Film Propitious for Home-Made Pictures and Several Studios Are Expected to Begin Making Soon—Have Hopes of Possible Export Trade—Present Prospects.

By W. M. Gladish, 1236 Gerrard St., E. Toronto, Special Correspondent.

TORONTO, Ontario.—An entirely new phase in the Canadian field of moving pictures has developed with a suddenness which is surprising. Like the developments in other Canadian industries, the new film era is mainly due to a feeling that world trade channels and tariff arrangements are going to be so changed after the war that many adjustments and adaptations of trade facilities will be absolutely necessary. It is anticipated in film circles that the duty levies of 25 per cent. and 7½ per cent. on reels imported from the United States will be increased when the Entente Allies have time to look after the arrangement of trade treaties. A Toronto member of Parliament is said to have advised a local moving picture concern to expect a substantial increase in the duty on film imports from the States.

Studios in Canada.

In view of this situation it is interesting to note that announcements have been made in five Canadian cities within the past few days regarding the organization of film production companies. The five cities are Toronto, Montreal, Kingston, Niagara Falls and Banff, the latter place being situated in the heart of a wonderfully scenic section in Alberta.

The company which is being organized for the production of photo-drama in and around Banff is known as the Great Western Film Company of Canada, Ltd., and it has an authorized capitalization of $200,000. Plans have already been prepared for a studio one hundred feet square. This studio is to have a revolving stage and other modern accessories. The temporary headquarters of this company are in Toronto and one of the prime movers in this business unit is Alex. L. Dunbar. The services of at least one American film star is being secured, it is declared, and it is hoped to get down to production as soon as possible. The utlimate schedule of the company will be, it is said, three five-reel features, three three-reel subjects and two single-reel releases each month. An interesting feature of this development is that a prominent English film company of world-wide reputation is said to be actively interested in the formation of the new Canadian company.

The prospective moving picture industry for Kingston, Ontario, consists of the Canadian National Features, Limited, of which J. Shea of Toronto is the president. his company has applied for a lease of the Kingston fair grounds upon which to erect a studio and the company will settle in Kingston, it is announced, if the use of the grounds can be secured.

At Niagara Falls, Ontario, has been organized the Niagara Falls Film Corporation with a capital of $100,000. This company has already started operations, it is announced, and there are forty available people for the productions of the firm, according to a statement just issued.

A Canadian film exchange with headquarters in Toronto, is also making arrangements for the filming of photo-dramas near Montreal. A studio is to be erected near Montreal but the plan of action has not yet been settled so that the name of the company is being withheld. The exchange is a substantial organization and apparently has valuable connections in the trade.

The announcement has also been made that the first release of the Canada Film Company of Galt, Ontario, which will be "In Self Defense," a nine-reel war drama, will be made probably about July 15. The first exhibition of the Canadian production will be staged in Massey Hall, Toronto, according to arrangements now being made.

Along the line of the development of the film business, it is worthy of mention that Canada now has its pictorial news weekly which is made up exclusively of Canadian happenings. This reel first made its appearance about six weeks ago and is released by M. S. Marvin of Toronto.

Hope to Export Pictures.

In connection with the establishment of film producing companies in Canada, the size of the Canadian market has been realized, it is declared. The fact is appreciated that where probably one hundred prints of a photoplay are released in the United States only one or two prints are used in the whole of Canada. It is seldom that more than three prints of any picture are released in the Dominion. It is pointed out, however, that consideration is being given to a probable development of an export business which may be protected by tariffs.

Speculation is rife as to the outcome of the new situation but general prominence is given to the belief that a moving picture producing industry in Canada will be one of the results of the present European war.

Mistake in Report of New Law.

Toronto, Ontario.—According to the newly printed regulations of The Theatres and Cinematographs Act for the Province of Ontario, the operating cabinet of a picture show is to be equipped with two fire extinguishers containing "Carbolic Acid Gas." This is an inflammable fluid and if it had not been for the printer the clause would probably have read "Carbonic Acid Gas."

A New Picture House.

Smith's Falls, Ontario.—Arrangements have been made by Lieutenant-Colonel Balderson of Perth, Ontario, for the opening of a new picture theater in Smith's Falls. Colonel Balderson has been operating a house at Perth for some time.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

H. H. Williams Again at Helm.

Hamilton, Ont.—H. H. Williams, the builder of the Lyric theater, Hamilton's biggest photoplay house, has once more assumed the management of the theater which remains on the United circuit. The Lyric was erected about three years ago. Mr. Williams rents films on the open market.

Business Notes.

Toronto, Ontario.—Announcement is made that a large consignment of French films was recently received in Toronto from Paris.

Toronto, Ontario.—The Montreal branch of All-Feature Films, Limited, the headquarters of which are in Toronto, has been sold to the J. T. Malone Film Exchange.

Signing for Censor Referendum in Spokane

Patrons of Theaters Putting Their Names Down on Petitions for Vote to Kill Local Censorship.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, Wash.—War was formally declared by Spokane theater managers against the theatrical censorship ordinance recently passed by the city council and which in the natural course of events will become a law July 5. The theatrical opposition is headed by Ralph Ruffner, manager of the Liberty theater, and Will T. Reed, manager of the Casino, with the others falling somewhat passively into line through the Amusement Managers' Association.

Petitions were in evidence at the picture houses and vaudeville theaters, and patrons of the several places of amusement were importuned by ushers to attach their signatures thereon. They met a ready response in most instances. Ten per cent. of the voters of the last general election must attach their names to petitions before a referendum election can be called.

E. Clark Walker, manager of Pantages theater, reported that about 200 signatures had been recorded on the petitions in the hands of his ushers during the first day, and three blank pages of the petition forms were filed before the matinee started. Manager Ralph Ruffner of the Liberty reported that more than 200 signatures had been secured there before 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Casino has several copies of the petitions on a table in the vestibule where voters can sign if they desire without going into the theater.

Mr. Ruffner speaking for the association, said, "The Amusement Managers' Association is unanimously behind the movement to submit the censorship to a referendum and we believe the question should be placed on a ballot at the November election and that the final decision should rest with the theater patrons.

"Such agitation as has been promulgated is representative, we believe, of only a few disgruntled reformers."

Fashions and Local Beauties at the Clemmer.

Spokane, Wash.—An innovation in the way of added attractions at moving picture theaters, as far as Spokane is concerned, is announced by Dr. H. S. Clemmer of the Clemmer theater, the novelty being a series of fashion shows with living models. Spokane exhibitors have offered soloists, both vocal and instrumental, quartetts, readers and supplementary organ solos as accessories to their pictorial programs, but the Clemmer will be the first to introduce fashion shows here.

The first of these shows will be presented some time in August, as soon as the latest creations from the New York modistes are available.

Fashion shows will be presented every Monday night as long as the stylish frock, wraps and clocks are available. Through arrangement with the Whitehouse, the Clemmer will show the very latest creations, and from five to fifteen of the prettiest girls that can be found in the city will be used to display their charms.

It is probable that the Clemmer will hold a beauty contest during the summer months to select the most beautiful girls in the city to wear the stunning dresses and feminine attire that will be put at their service. The style shows will be presented in addition to the regular program each Monday evening, with two exhibitions nightly. Manager Clemmer hopes to make Monday society night at the Clemmer under the new idea.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending July 15 and July 22

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 540, 542, 544, 546.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases.

| | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| MONDAY, JULY 10, 1916. | |
| BIOGRAPH—The Squaw's Love (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 62) | 20866 |
| LUBIN—Otto the Sleuth (Comedy) | 20867 |
| SELIG—The Milk White Flag (Three parts—Comedy) | 20861-2-3 |
| SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 55, 1916 (Topical) | 20865 |
| VITAGRAPH—Wrong Beds. (Comedy) | 20864 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 11, 1916. | |
| ESSANAY—The Private Officer (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue) | 20868-9 |
| KALEM—The Baggage Smashers (Comedy) | 20870 |
| LUBIN—The Half Wit (Two parts—Drama) | 20871-2 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1916. | |
| BIOGRAPH—Men and Women (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 63) | 20875-6-7 |
| ESSANAY—The Fable of "The Small Town Favorite Competition" (Comedy) | 20874 |
| KALEM—The Quack Quakers (Comedy) | 20873 |
| VIM FEATURE COMEDY—A Spring Cleaning (Comedy) | 20878 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1916. | |
| LUBIN—Expiation (Three parts—Drama) | 20879-80-1 |
| SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 56, 1915 (Topical) | 20882 |
| VIM—Spaghetti (Comedy) | 20883 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1916. | |
| KALEM—The Wishing Ring (Comedy) | 20887 |
| KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Dupe (Three parts—Drama) | 20884-5-6 |
| VIM—The Great Safe Tangle (Comedy) | 20889 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Man From Egypt (Comedy) | 20888 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1916. | |
| ESSANAY—The Secret of the Night (Three parts—Drama) | 20890-1-2 |
| KALEM—The Broken Brake (No. 88 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama) | 20897 |
| LUBIN—Hang on Cowboy (Comedy) | 20893 |
| SELIG—Legal Advice (Comedy) | 20898 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Waters of Lethe (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature) | 20894-5-6 |

General Film Company.

Advance Releases.

MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Informer (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 64).
LUBIN—Otto's Vacation (Comedy).
SELIG—The Private Banker (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 57, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—The Musical Bather (Comedy).
—The Head Waters of the Delalven (Scenic).

TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—By Man's Law (Two parts—Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 65).
ESSANAY—The Other Man (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue).
KALEM—Ham Comedy (Title not yet decided).

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916.

ESSANAY—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of New Orleans (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic subject on the same reel.
KALEM—A Watery Wooing (Comedy).
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—The Connecting Bath (Comedy).

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916.

LUBIN—The Rough Neck (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 58, 1916 (Topical).
VIM—Aunt Bill (Comedy).

FRIDAY, JULY 21 1916.

KALEM—A Double Elopement (Comedy).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—Sibyl's Scenario (Three parts—Drama).
VIM—Help! Help! (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Fur Coat (Comedy).

SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916.

ESSANAY—The Grouch (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
KALEM—In Death's Pathway (No. 89 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
LUBIN—Americans After All (Comedy).
SELIG—Shooting Up the Movies (Western-Comedy).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

The Box Office Magnet

BERT WILLIAMS

AMERICA'S GREATEST COMEDIAN

TWO REEL COMEDIES

Booked through all General Film Exchanges

General Film Service

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending July 15 and July 22

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 540, 542, 544, 546.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

| SUNDAY, JULY 9, 1916. | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| LAEMMLE—No release this day. | |
| L-KO—Getting the Goods On Gertie (Comedy)..... | 01581 |
| REX—A Dead Yesterday (Three parts—Drama)... | 01580 |
| MONDAY, JULY 10, 1916. | |
| NESTOR—Henry's Little Kid (Comedy)..... | 01584 |
| RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Heart of a Child (Five parts—Drama) ..... | 01583 |
| UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 11, "The Stampede" (Two parts—Drama) ..... | 01601 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 11, 1916. | |
| GOLD SEAL—Nature Incorporated (Two parts—Comedy—Drama) ..... | 01585 |
| IMP—A Stranger in His Own Home (Comedy)..... | 01587 |
| REX—War Ridden Mexico (Special Release)..... | 01586 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1916. | |
| ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 28 (Topical)..... | 01590 |
| L-KO—Ignatz's Icy Injury (Two parts—Comedy).. | 01589 |
| VICTOR—A Conflicting Conscience (Drama)..... | 01588 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1916. | |
| BIG U—The Three Brave Hunters (Comedy)..... | 01592 |
| LAEMMLE—No. 16 Martin St. (Two parts—Drama) | 01591 |
| POWERS—Sammy Johnsin Gets a Job (Comedy—Cartoon) ..... | 01593 |
| —Mexican National History (Ditmars Educational) ..... | 01593 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1916. | |
| IMP—The Little Gray Mouse (Two parts—Drama). | 01594 |
| NESTOR—No release this day. | |
| VICTOR—Little Boy Blue (Drama)..... | 01595 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1916. | |
| BISON—The Human Pendulum (Three parts—Dr.). | 01596 |
| JOKER—The Harem Scarem Deacon (Comedy).... | 01597 |
| POWERS—No release this day. | |
| SUNDAY, JULY 16, 1916. | |
| LAEMMLE—Baseball Bille No. 2 "Flirting With Marriage" (Comedy) ..... | 01600 |
| IMP—Two Seats At the Opera (Comedy)..... | 01599 |
| REX—The Crimson Yoke (Two parts—Drama).... | 01598 |
| MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916. | |
| NESTOR—Kill the Umpire (Comedy) ..... | 01603 |
| RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Seekers (Five parts—Drama) ..... | 01602 |
| UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 12 "On the High Seas" (Two parts—Drama)..... | 01620 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916. | |
| GOLD SEAL—The Crystals Warning (Three parts—Drama) ..... | 01604 |
| VICTOR—The Gentle Art of Burglary (Comedy).. | 01605 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916. | |
| ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 29 (Topical) .... | 01608 |
| LAEMMLE—The Garden of Shadows (Two parts—Drama) ..... | 01606 |
| L-KO—A Bold Bad Breeze (Comedy)..... | 01607 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916. | |
| BIG U—His Own Story (Drama)..... | 01610 |
| POWERS—The Devil Dancers of India (Educational) ..... | 01611 |
| VICTOR—The Belle and the Bell Hop (Two parts—Comedy) ..... | 01609 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1916. | |
| IMP—Lee Blount Goes Home (Two parts—Drama) | 01612 |
| NESTOR—The Come-On (Comedy) ..... | 01614 |
| REX—The Phone Message (Drama) ..... | 01613 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916. | |
| BISON—A Midwinter Madness (Two parts—Drama) | 01615 |
| JOKER—She Was Some Vampire (Comedy)..... | 01617 |
| LAEMMLE—A Social Slave (Drama) ..... | 01616 |

Mutual Film Corporation.

| SUNDAY, JULY 9, 1916. | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| BEAUTY—The Gink Lands Again (Comedy)..... | 04882 |
| GAUMONT—Reel Life No. 10 (Mutual Film Magazine) | 04884 |
| VOGUE—Hired and Fired (Comedy)..... | 04883 |
| MONDAY, JULY 10, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—Love's Bitter Strength (Two parts—Drama) ..... | 04885-6 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Dust (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 117)..... | |
| TUESDAY, JULY 11, 1916. | |
| VOGUE—Stung By Gum (Comedy)..... | 04887 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—Two Slips and a Miss (Comedy)..... | 04889 |
| GAUMONT—See America First No. 44, "Glacier National Park" (Scenic)..... | 04890 |
| —Kartoon Komics (Cartoon)..... | 04890 |
| MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 80 (Topical)..... | 04888 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—Quicksands of Deceit (Three parts—Dr). | 04891-2-3 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Her American Prince (Five parts—Drama) (No. 118)..... | |
| FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1916. | |
| CUB—The Hero of the E. Z. Ranch (Comedy)..... | 04896 |
| MUSTANG—Rugged Jim's Partner (Two parts—Drama) ..... | 04894-5 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1916. | |
| CENTAUR—The Fool's Game (Two parts—Drama).. | 04897-8 |
| SUNDAY, JULY 16, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—The Rummy Act of Omar K. M. (Comedy) | 04899 |
| GAUMONT—Reel Life No. 11 (Mutual Film Magazine). | 04901 |
| VOGUE—A Deep Sea Liar (Comedy)..... | 04900 |
| MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—The Dancer (Two parts—Drama)..... | 04902-3 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Title to be announced later. ..... | |
| TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916. | |
| VOGUE—Title to be announced later..... | 04904 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—In the Land of the Tortilla (Comedy).... | 04906 |
| GAUMONT—See America First No. 45 "New Orleans, La" (Scenic) ..... | 04907 |
| —Kartoon Komics (Cartoon)..... | 04907 |
| MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 81 (Topical)..... | 04905 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916. | |
| GAUMONT—Gate of Divorce (Three parts—Drama)... | 04908-9110 |
| MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Door Steps (Turner—Five parts—Drama) (No 120)..... | |
| FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1916. | |
| CUB—Jerry's Strategem (Comedy)..... | 04913 |
| MUSTANG—The Dyspeptic (Two parts—Drama).... | 04901-2 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916. | |
| CENTAUR—The Ostrich Tip (Two parts—Drama).. | 04914-5 |

EVA TANGUAY

refused moving picture offers, so that a photoplay of her could not be released, that would be detrimental to her career, (as this has happened to so many).

Eva Tanguay

made the five reeler

"ENERGETIC EVA"

for herself, and now that she has decided to release it, you may be assured of satisfaction.

Address all communications to

Eva Tanguay Films

LONGACRE BLDG. NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, Bryant 235.

Stories of the Films

VITAGRAPH.

LETITIA (Broadway Star Feature—Three Parts—July 1).—The cast: Samuel Dent (Charles Kent); Letitia (Belle Bruce); Bagby, Dent's valet (Hugh Wynne); Tim Magee (Gordon Gray); Wilkins (Thomas R. Mills); Haven, the doctor (Charles Wellesley); Thane (Frank Chapman). Written by Gordon Arthur Smith. Directed by Harry Davenport.

Remorseful for his action years before in deserting his wife and child after a quarrel, Dent continually broods over his wrongdoing. An old man now, Dent still goes to his office every day, and finds his greatest pleasure in watching the ticker and gloating over the news of pecuniary gain which it brings. An attack of paralysis sends him to bed and though a prominent physician treats him, his condition grows steadily worse. The doctor finally sees that there is something weighing heavy on Dent's mind which, evidently, is hindering his recovery. On being asked to unburden his secret, Dent tells the story of how he deserted his daughter, Letitia, years before.

After a conference with the doctor, Bagby, Dent's faithful valet sets out, ostensibly to try to find the missing girl. In a few days, he returns with a girl whom he introduces to Dent as Letitia. Dent questions her and, satisfied with her answers, happily accepts her as his daughter. After many happy months together, Dent finds that his fortune has been wiped out in the stock market, and worrying over his daughter's welfare, becomes ill once more. True to the old man who thought her his daughter all this time, Letitia comes to the fore with money she has earned herself, and in cheaper quarters, helps support the old man. When Dent finally succumbs, Letitia and her real father, Bagby, are agreed that they have performed their duty in brightening the old man's last days.

---

BILLIE'S MOTHER (July 3).—The cast: John Bertram (Donald Hall); Billie (Helen Costello); Louise, her mother (Louise Beaudet). Written by William Addison Lathrop.

Lost in the social whirl a widow forgets her little daughter. John Bertram, a widower, woos Louise, the mother, and loves Billie, the little daughter. He is getting rather discouraged for whenever he calls it seems to be the signal for Louise to go out for a spin in the auto, and to leave him in charge of her daughter.

One day Louise finds that she has been mistaken in taking Bertram's devotion for granted, as, tired of her coolness toward him, he has gone on a hunting trip. Little Billie also misses her only friend, and starts out through the woods to find him.

That night a hard rock is Billie's pillow, and she has fond dreams of having her mother for a friend once more. When it grows dark, and Louise misses her child, mother love at last asserts itself and she starts out with a party to find her. But Bertram is there before her, and the love of the child for both of them makes her see the light at last, and Bertram readily forgives her.

---

A TOUR FROM BERGEN TO BANDAK—A scenic on the same reel showing the beautiful scenes in the highlands of Norway.

---

WHEN IT RAINS IT POURS (July 7).—The cast: Sue Monroe (Mary Anderson); Aunt Susan (Anne Schaefer); Bobbie (Reggie Morris); Mr. Monroe (Otto Lederer). Written by King W. Vidor. Directed by William Wolbert.

Lonesome in a whole house by himself, Bobby is glad to make the acquaintance of Sue Monroe, his neighbor. Sue's father, however, is not so happy at their friendship and soon lets Bobby know of his dislike for him. That night it rains the proverbial cats and dogs, and when Sue, all tucked up, nice and cozy in bed, hears the wails of her favorite puppy outside the house, she does not hesitate to change her attire, but goes to the rescue of the soggy canine. She rescues the pup all right, but her next problem is to rescue herself, for she has accidentally locked the door.

Her father is too busy playing a nasal solo to hear her pitiful appears to open the door, but Bobby soon hears her and hastens to lend his assistance. As father refuses to be disturbed from his slumbers, their only recourse lies in Bobby's house, which haven of refuge they eagerly enter. When they find the house quarantined for smallpox the next morning things look rather gloomy, but the health officer is forced to see his mistake and even the rain abates to allow a happy ending of the picture.

---

WRONG BEDS (July 10).—The cast: Harold (William Dangman); Commercial Traveller (Geo. O'Donnell); Hotel Keeper (Harry Mayo); Chorus Girl (Lucille Crane); Tragedian (Winthrop Mandell); Temperance Orator (Florence Natol). Written by James A. Stiles. Produced by Frank Currier.

Harold, the bellhop, mixes the drinks and a small calamity is the result. He commits the crime of giving a traveling salesman milk, and a female temperance orator gets a glass of "brew." She is so busy studying her lecture that she does not notice the error until the damage is done. Her talk that day is interposed with many "hics." and the audience is shocked at her condition. On returning to the hotel, still under the influence of the "milk," she stumbles into the room of a traveling salesman. The latter is asleep, and she lies down on the other of the twin beds.

Meanwhile, a chorus girl, who is stopping at the hotel, receives word that the show is a "flivver." When Harold learns that she lacks the fare to return to the city, he is anxious to help her out but for want of money is unable to do so. Later, he sees the "bartender's enemy" in her leery condition, and by rescuing her from the embarrassing position puts himself right in the way of a small fortune as a bribe. This he hastens to split 50x50 with the chorus girl and she is saved the long walk home.

---

THE MAN FROM EGYPT (July 14).—The cast: Hughey (Hughey Mack); Jewell Moneybags (Jewell Hunt). Written by Grabam Baker and Lawrence Semon. Directed by Lawrence Semon.

Beware the ire of the sacred God Ammett, or any other of those Egyptian Gods for that matter. As a bellhop in a hotel, Hughey managed to get possession of a wonderful ruby, the eye of Ammet, and with its aid obtained an introduction to a millionaire and his beautiful daughter. But Hughey failed to remember that for every ruby or other gem stolen from an Egyptian shrine, there is a bearded sheik who has taken a vow never to eat, drink or sleep until the talisman has been returned to the irate God from whom it was stolen, and vengeance has been wrought on the guilty one. Just when Hughey is enjoying himself immensely at a fine little dinner with the fair damsel, his nemesis, the sheik, discovers him and a lively chase takes place. The sheik gets the ruby in his possession but Hughey regains it in jig time and the prospects are that the poor sheik will have some wait before he can look a square meal in the face again.

---

THE WATERS OF LETHE—Broadway Star Feature—Three Parts—July 15).—The cast: Alan Moore (Jack Mower); Constance Tourney (Mary Anderson); Joyce Denton (Corinne Griffith); Ernest Ralston (Carl Von Schiller); Dave Tourney (Otto Lederer). Written by Mrs. Owen Bronson. Directed by William Wolbert.

At last, after years of toil, Tourney sees prospects of sending his daughter, Constance, to college. He has just struck a paying streak and the investigator from a mining investing company is on his way out to assay the find. When the expert arrives it is a foregone conclusion that he will win the heart of little Constance.

Unfortunately he is forced to return to his company and report the mine a poor investment, thus shattering the fond dreams of father and daughter. Moore, the investigator, returns to the city, leaving an aching heart longing for him, and, on his arrival marries Joyce Denton. For a time, they live happily—then, after a short trip for his concern, Moore returns to find his wife in the arms of another man. Knowing that she cannot be happy with him. Moore releases her and she weds her admirer, Ralston.

Meanwhile, Tourney has struck it rich and Constance realizes her ambition of going to college. Moore is summoned to the college to give a course of lectures on mining, and meets Constance once more. Moore sees that she is in love with him, and thinking to find happiness at last, marries her. Their child is born, and though he fairly worships the baby, he cannot forget his first wife and wishes that it were hers. When Ralston is drowned, Joyce is fearful of what the future has in store for her, as she will be unable to support herself. Then she thinks of her first husband, and confident of his devotion goes to him. At first sight, Moore is overjoyed at seeing her and embraces her affectionately. She tells him the purpose of her call and he immediately falls in line with her suggestion, but then he remembers his wife and baby, and flinging Joyce from him, returns to them.

Years later, Moore is happy with his wife and child, and Joyce as a sister of mercy, has found solace in ministering to the wants of the needy.

---

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

SPRING CLEANING (July 12).—Hubby gets home from the road and prepares to enjoy a few days at home, when wifey announces that she will begin her spring cleaning. Hubby immediately has business at the office, but the boss is heartless and sends him home. He meets Bill, a trusty friend, and arranges with him to send a telegram demanding Hubby's immediate presence in Jersey City on business. All day Hubby looks for the telegram to arrive.

In the interim he gets in bad with Wifey over the spring cleaning. His meals are irregular and unsatisfying; he cannot sleep after 5 a. m. At last the telegram arrives and he tells Wifey he must be off. She advises him to read the message. He does so and reads: "Stay home and help your wife. Bill." Then he sinks through the floor.

---

ESSANAY.

THE PRIVATE OFFICER (Reissue—Two Parts—July 11). The cast: Harry Lampton (Francis X. Bushman); Muriel March (Beverly Bayne); Col. Porter (Thomas Commerford).

Harry Lampton and Lieut. Frothingham are rivals for the hand of Muriel March. Lampton discovers the army man to be a fortune hunter and denounces him to the girl. The lieutenant enters at that moment and she declares she will marry him. Lampton, to forget, joins the army. He is horrified to find himself in Frothingham's troop. The officer lets no opportunity pass to humiliate him. Frothingham leaves the post and it becomes known he is on a debauch. His failure to return for guardmounting means disgrace. Lampton, taking advantage of his facial resemblance to the officer, poses in his place and saves him. The colonel discovers the affair and the girl learns the truth. Lampton is commended and wins the girl.

---

THE FABLE OF THE SMALL TOWN FAVORITE WHO WAS RUINED BY TOO MUCH COMPETITION (July 12).—The Daughter of a Well Fixed Mortgage Shark, residing at a Way Station, had all the component Parts of a Peach. She got her Fashion Hints, Etiquette and Behavior from the Questions and Answers department of an Agricultural Monthly. Gabby Bill, the gay Young Drummer from the city, met the Peach at a Lawn Fete. Things progressed nicely. Then unfortunately for Willie, Daughter induced Father to send her to a Finishing School. There she met the other Kind and found her ideal. Gabby Bill came to town when she was home for the Summer Vacation. "Don't you know Me?" he asked when they met. "Rully," she said, "it seems that I have seen you somewhere. Are you the man who tunes the piano?" As he moved away he kept his hand on his Solar Plexus.

MORAL: Anybody can Win unless there happens to be a Second Entry.

---

BIOGRAPH.

THE SQUAW'S LOVE (Reissue—July 10).—The cast: Wild Flower (Mabel Normand); Gray Fox (Alfred Paget); Silver Fawn (Claire McDowell); White Eagle (Dark Cloud).

Perfect Developing and Printing

Negatives Developed..1c. ft.
Positive Printing.....4c. ft.

Special price on quantity orders.

TITLES in any language

5c. per foot complete

Cards Free—Tinting Free

Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.

GUNBY BROS., Inc.

145 West 45th Street New York City

White Eagle is betrothed to Silver Fawn before leaving for a bunting trip. Gray Fox, his friend, loves Wild Flower, the chief's daughter, hut when he asks her father's sanction, he is exiled for his presumption, the chief ordering him to be taken off to the wilds and deprived of his firearms. Starvation would have been his fate had not White Eagle happened along. To aid his friend, White Eagle promises to hring Wild Flower to him, and when Silver Fawn sees White Eagle stealthily leave the camp with Wild Flower, she imagines her lover false. She follows, and, creeping up hehind, hurls Wild Flower over into the stream, from which perilous plight she is rescued by Gray Fox, wbo is escaping in a canoe from a gang of drunken Indians who have seized him. The chief, however, has ordered death to tbe fugitives, and after the meeting of the four and an explanation given, they make good tbeir escape only after Wild Flower bas swum under the canoes of their pursuers and ripped them with a knife, causing them to sink.

---

MEN AND WOMEN (Reissue—Three Parts—July 12).—The cast: Agnes Rodman (Blanche Sweet); Stephen Rodman and Robert Stevens (Lionel Barrymore); William Prescott (Marsball Neillan); Dora Prescott (Gertrude Robinson).

Robert Stevens rohs the hank where he is employed, and through the efforts of Calvin Stedman, the prosecuting attorney, he is sentenced to six years' imprisonment. While in jail his wife dies and his little daughter, Agnes, is placed in a convent. At the expiration of his sentence, Stevens locates his daughter and settles in Arizona, assuming the name of Stephen Rodman. He prospers and later is elected governor. Agnes, now in an Eastern school, is first to hear the good news, and tells her chum Dora Prescott.

Will Prescott, Dora's hrother, is in love with Agnes, and before the closing of school, he sends her his photograph. Dora returns to her home in New York and Agnes to Arizona. Will Prescott is cashier of the Jefferson National Bank, and Ned Seahury, his chum and assistant, is in love with Dora. Calvin Stedman, now counsel for the bank, is in love with Dora, and when he learns that she is engaged to Ned, he plans to he revenged. Agnes confesses to her father that she is in love with Will. She receives an invitation to visit the Prescotts and is delighted when her father gives his consent.

Ned and Will speculate in stocks through Arnold Kirke, a hroker, and Ned wins. Stedman sees Ned in Kirk's office, and, knowing that speculating is contrary to the rules of the bank, he decides to tell Israel Cohen, the president. Kirke is on the brink of ruin, and, to save himself, he hegs Will to lend him some honds, promising to return them after showing them to his creditors. Will is indehted to Kirke, and lends him honds helonging to the hank. Stedman informs Cohen that Ned is speculating.

Governor Rodman comes East to meet his prospective son-in-law and is introduced to Will. A panic occurs, and Kirke disposes of the honds loaned hy Will. Cohen's bank is aiso in trouble, and Will is worried. Governor Rodman decides to tell Will his secret hefore the latter marries Agnes, and confesses that he served time in prison for a bank theft. Will realizes that he is not worthy of Agnes, hut if he hreaks his engagement Agnes will believe it is on account of her father's crime.

Kirke commits suicide. Calvin Stedman is instrumental in bringing ahout Ned's discharge, and when the bonds are discovered missing, Ned is placed under suspicion. Stedman is introduced to Governor Rodman and recognizes Robert Stevens, the ex-convict. Rodman is overcome at his discovery. Stedman tries to turn Dora against Ned hy stating that her lover is a defaulter, hut he is unsuccessful, as Dora believes Ned to he innocent. Will confesses to Agnes that Ned is innocent and that he took the bonds. Agnes half faints when she realizes that Will is telling the truth, hut assures him of her love despite everything and plans to save Ned.

The directors of the hank hold a midnight meeting at the president's home to decide what action to take. Agnes accompanies her father to the meeting, and pleads with him to make any proposition that will save Ned. Cohen is surprised when Agnes and her father are announced. Rodman is granted a private interview and tells Cohen that he is willing to supply the funds to save the bank if Ned is not prosecuted. Cohen promises to do all he can and to present the Governor's proposition hefore the directors.

The meeting is called to order and the investigation is conducted hy Cohen and Stedman. Ned pleads that he is innocent of the charge. Due to his having speculated in stocks, sentiment is not in his favor, and his statement in his own defense is not impressive. Stedman accuses Ned and Ned is wild with rage. Cohen submits Rodman's offer, hut Stedman opposes its acceptance and discloses the fact that Rodman is an ex-convict. Rodman admits the charge, and pleads with the directors to allow him to save Ned from the disgrace he suffered. Stedman again refuses to agree.

John Pendleton, one of the directors, realizing that the hank is on tbe hrink of ruin, offers to advance the funds necessary to tide the bank over the panic. Ned refuses to confess and is left in the hands of the law. Will contemplates suicide, hut his courage fails him and he finally gives himself up. Governor Rodman makes good the amount of Will's defalcation.

Governor Rodman returns to Arizona and resigns his office. Ned is reinstated as cashier of the bank and marries Dora. Will, due to the hank affair, is unable to hold the humblest of positions, and returns home time and again utterly discouraged. Agnes has been loyal to him through all his trouhle, and comforts him. Will is overjoyed when Cohen hands him a letter from John Pendleton offering him a position in his factory. Will accepts, and leaves with Agnes to start life over again.

---

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 49 (June 19).

Yerba Buena Island, Cal.—One hundred society women of San Francisco, who have enlisted in the National Service Training School, visit the Naval Training Station and witness exhihition drill.

Oakland, Cal.—Children and "grown ups," enjoy a day's outing in Oakland's new summer park.

Petrograd, Russia.—These new recruits are heing rapidly prepared to join the Russian army, now operating so successfully in Galicia.

Deming, N. M.—These photographs taken just before and after the execution of Villa bandits, bring home the thought that even tbough our legal machinery is slow, it is exceeding sure.

Heher Springs, Ark.—Forty persons are killed, and many are injured hy a hurricane, which swept through tbis town, wrecking everything hefore it.

St. Louis, Mo.—This city was the Mecca for all those interested in seeing Woodrow Wilson renominated as the Democratic standard hearer for 1917-1920. Interesting views. Secretary of War Baker, Senator William J. Stone, Chas. F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, Roger Sullivan of Illinois, Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Governor Glynn of New York, Senator Ollie James and others.

Portland, Ore.—The rose carnival this year is made especially interesting hy the drilling of the school children.

---

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 50 (June 22).

El Paso, Texas.—U. S. Army utilizes motorcycles for the first time in patrol duty in Mexican section of this city, and along the hanks of the Rio Grande.

Galveston, Texas.—King Neptune holds sway over all devotees of surf hathing at opening of Gulf Coast season.

West Point, N. Y.—The President and Mrs. Wilson arrive here to attend Commencement exercises at the Academy. The President reviews the Cadets. The interested spectators include Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

St. Louis, Mo.—Without remarkahle enthusiasm, but with commendahle earnestness, the Democratic mule kicks in with the nomination of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall, for re-election at the Convention here.

Norfolk, Va.—The U. S. S. Pennsylvania is placed in commission here with appropriate ceremonies.

Columbus, N. M.—The waiting game heing played on the horder is profitahle in the sense that our National Guardsmen are receiving much needed field maneuvers, under conditions which make good soldiers. President Wilson's call for 100,000 Guardsmen will press these men into immediate service.

Oregon City, Ore.—Most people don't like eels, but you must admit they possess tenacity of purpose in trying to climb these falls to the upper waters of the Willamette river.

Washington, D. C.—For the first time in history, a President of the United States marches afoot at the head of a propaganda parade.

---

A MILK WHITE FLAG (Three Parts—July 10).—The cast: Piggott Luce (Otis Harlan); Aurora Luce (Charlotte Minneaux); Regimental Vivandiere (Grace Darmond); Colonel of the Milk Whites (Leslie King); Phil Graves (James Bradhury). Directed hy T. M. Heffron.

Piggott Luce, a prominent citizen in a small town having two rival regiments, becomes a private in the Milk White Guards. Mrs. Luce makes it her husiness to domineer over Piggott. There ensues rivalry between the Milk White Guards and the Black Guards and many plans are carried out by each regiment to outdo the other regiment.

Piggot Luce and Phil Graves, the undertaker, plot to defraud an insurance company. Piggott is supposed to die while Graves carries him to his undertaking establishment, and spreads the news ahroad. Mrs. Piggott Luce is delighted when she hears the news of her hushand's passing, causes her charming daughter of nineteen to don short dresses and proceeds to go forth and capture a husband.

The White Guards see an opportunity for a military funeral and prepare to bury Piggott Luce with all honors. Piggott Luce, half-starved,

Erker's

FILM CABINET

SAFE—Built of steel
APPROVED by Fire Underwriters
AUTOMATIC — For raising and lowering films:
SERVICEABLE for storing valuable films

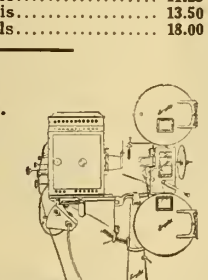
Send now for this guaranteed film cabinet.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| No. 1—for | 6 10-inch reels | $10.50 |
| No. 2—for | 8 10-inch reels | 14.00 |
| No. 3—for | 10 10-inch reels | 17.50 |
| No. 4—for | 12 10-inch reels | 21.00 |
| No. 5—for | 4 14-inch reels | 9.00 |
| No. 6—for | 5 14-inch reels | 11.25 |
| No. 7—for | 6 14-inch reels | 13.50 |
| No. 8—for | 8 14-inch reels | 18.00 |

Moving Picture Machines in stock.

Power's Simplex Motiograph

We specialize in repairs and parts for all machines.



SIMPLEX

THEATRE LEDGER

Good for the entire year, $1.00
By mail, $1.15
Send for sample sheet.

POSTER FRAMES

For One Sheet like illustration

Wood, $4.75
Brass, $6.50

Write for Theatrical Equipment Catalog.

TERMS—Cash with orders.
SUPPLY HOUSES—Write for dealers' discount

Erker's

607 Olive Street, St. Louis

Exclusive Features, Inc.

Present Their First Release

Of all Vampires
Here is the Cruelest,
Subtlest, Most Alluring.

—the woman in—

WHERE IS MY FATHER?

(The untold secret)

Starring MAY WARD and WM. SORRELL

a seven-reel feature of many-varied sets and thrills.

New selling on

STATE RIGHTS

Put in your bid. Read the facing page and wire, 'phone or call on

Exclusive Features, Inc.

JOSEPH M. GOLDSTEIN, Pres. and Treas.

71 West 23d Street, New York.

WHERE IS MY FATHER?

(The untold secret)

DIRECTED BY JOSEPH ADELMAN

In Seven Parts

A film version of Alexander Dumas' greatest and most fascinating novel "Black, the Story of a Dog," which was translated in all languages and has been read by millions.

A woman had many lovers—she ruined all. She died as her babe was born and no one could answer: "Where Is My Father?"

A notable cast, headed by May Ward, with an all-star support, including William Sorrell, Ed. F. Roseman, George Henry, Roy Pilcher, Agnas Marc, Harold J. Jarret.

YOUR BID

wire it, 'phone it or call and see the picture.

Exclusive Features, Inc.

JOSEPH M. GOLDSTEIN, Pres. and Treas.

71 W. 23d Street, New York.

is about to throw up his job as being dead, when Phil Graves shows him a certified check for the insurance money, and he resolves to go through with the plot.

The funeral march of the White Guards is most impressive, being headed by a full brass band and the Colonel of the White Guards astride a prancing steed with sword drawn. However, enroute to the graveyard, a locomotive causes the horses drawing the hearse to run away. Piggott Luce is precipitated down an embankment into the river, where he quickly comes to life and falls into his wife's arms.

---

LEGAL ADVICE (July 15).—The cast: Tom Walton (Tom Mix); Ruth Sands (Victoria Forde); Jim Miller (Pat Chrisman); Bill Peters (Geo. Pankey) Joe Sands (Joe Ryan). Written and produced by Tom Mix.

Ruth Sands, an eastern girl, arrives at Coyote Flats, to practice her profession as an attorney at law. She is met by Jim Miller, the town judge, who tells her that the town is badly in need of a good lawyer.

The cowboys, fascinated by Ruth's good looks, proceed to build her a house and an office. Tom Walton, the ranch foreman, falls in love with the beautiful woman-lawyer, and decides to get into trouble. He steals the sheriff's horse, and riding into town, shoots up the main street. He is arrested and thrown into jail.

The day of Tom's trial arrives, and all the cowboys are on hand to hear Ruth defend him. While Ruth is pleading the case, she looks toward the door and there stands a well-dressed eastern fellow, who proves to be her husband. They rush into each other's arms and when the cowboys learn who the newcomer is, the court case is immediately suspended.

---

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

NESTOR.

HENRY'S LITTLE KID (July 10).—The cast: Henry (Jack Dillon); The Sweetest Girl in the World (Billie Rhodes); Father (Harry Rattenbury). Written and produced by Al. Christie.

Henry had to celebrate his engagement, but he had an awful headache the next morning. The sweetest girl in the world took her breakfast in bed, and she telephoned Henry as she dressed. Henry had just received a letter from his father, telling him that he did not begrudge the $5,000 when he remembered Henry's wife and child. He announces that he will be with them on Friday. As Henry has only just persuaded the only girl to be his, he is taken aback by the letter. But he goes to Billie and tries to induce her to come over every day and pretend to be his wife while father is there. She consents, and that leaves him only a child to find. His butler undertakes the job, and tries in vain to induce all the mothers he sees to lend him a baby. His efforts to steal one are not more successful.

He finally tells Henry that he will have to steal one for himself. Henry appeals to two of his friends, who promise to help him. Father arrives with presents for the baby. Billie acts the part of wife very well, and the situation is saved by Henry's friend, who appears with a child. Father is delighted until the other friend appears with his contribution, and then he is simply wild with joy to find that Henry has two children. The butler, afraid of losing his job, resolves to get a kid or die in the attempt. Unfortunately, his choice is colored, and the mother pursues him, with a cop whom she has enlisted on her side. Father is horrified at the announcement of a colored grandchild, and Henry sees that the game is up. He confesses, and the persuasions of Billie cause him to be forgiven.

---

POWERS.

SAMMY JOHNSIN GETS A JOB (Cartoon by Pat. Sullivan—July 13).—Sammy asks his mother for a nickel, but she only tells him to get himself a job. He wanders out and sees a sign "Boy Wanted" outside a District Messenger office. He goes in and gets the job. Dressed in his A. D. T. uniform he is sent to a business man who wants a messenger. He is told to wait. He picks up a book called "Fiji Islands" and looks at the pictures. He falls asleep over it and begins to dream. He sees a cannibal girl eating a cocoanut. A tiger comes after her, but he drives it away with one kick, and she is very grateful.

She is delighted to see him and rolls her eyes at him. They kiss each other and a big baboon comes down the tree and watches them. Sammy closes his eyes in enjoyment and while they are shut the girl walks away. The baboon comes down and takes her place and when Sammy starts to kiss her again he finds himself gazing at the hideous baboon. It jumps up in the tree again and Sammy goes after the girl. He finds her just as a porcupine is coming up behind her. He tells her to take a seat. She does so and sits on the porcupine. She yells and Sammy laughs, but a big cannibal comes up and hits him over the head with his club. Sammy wakes to find the business man hitting him on the head with a ruler to wake him and gives him the letter.

RED FEATHER.

THE HEART OF A CHILD (Five Parts—July 10).—Sally Snape, a child of the slums, is an artistic dancer. The girl is thrown early on her own resources, for her mother is killed by the drunken brute of a husband, the miserable home is closed, and Sally would have been without a roof had not a good-natured coster-lad, Johnny Doone, befriended her. Johnny, whose love-making is repulsed by Sally, finds a sweetheart, Mary, and luckily the two girls like each other and becomes friends.

Mary gets Sally a job at a jam factory, and here the girl meets Mr. Peastone. On bank holiday, Johnny Doone takes Mary and Sally to 'Appy 'Amstead. Mr. Peastone, who drives up in state, gorgeously arrayed, comes upon the party and Johnny and Mary, having stolen away for a little coster love-making, Mr. Peastone induces Sally to come and look at his trap. The girl is delighted with the pony, and accepts Peastone's offer to drive her home. But on the way the young man becomes enterprising and Sally is struggling in his unwelcome embrace when the trap is overturned by a recklessly-driven motor car.

In the car are Lady Dorothea Lytham and her cousin Gilbert, Lord Kidderminster. The lady has had a desire to view the plebeian festival, and has insisted on driving herself, to the dismay of poor Gilbert. Hence the collision. But the accident has its advantages for Sally. Gilbert insists on something being done for the little girl whom they have injured. And so it comes about that after leaving the hospital Sally is taken under the wing of Joe Aarons, a good-natured variety agent, who finds out that she has "personality" and gives her a trial at the "Grecian," a typical East-End music hall.

Sally quickly becomes a musical comedy star, and takes a West End audience by storm. But success still leaves her with "the heart of a child." On the night of Sally's triumph, after leaving her at the door of the flat he has had furnished for her, Gilbert enters with a second latchkey, of whose existence Sally is all unwitting, to take his reward. But here again the pure child-heart conquers. He is repulsed and leaves contrite, throwing away the key into the road. Next morning he asks Sally to be his wife, and the girl's greatest ordeal has to be faced, for Gilbert's parents, Lord and Lady Fortive, are stately representatives of the old school.

Sally, who has been given the option of going to Johnny Doone's wedding, as promised, or giving up Gilbert, defies him, chooses the former, and hurriedly leaves. Lord Fortive, unobserved, witnesses what happens, upbraids his son for letting Sally go, orders his car and father and son hurry to Johnny's wedding. The wedding party, which includes a very dejected Sally, is awed by the arrival of the Marquis and Gilbert, but Lord Fortive restores their gaiety by drinking the health of the blushing Mary. Then he proposes another toast: "To the future Lady Kidderminster!"

---

LAEMMLE.

NO. 16 MARTIN PLACE (Two Parts—July 13).—The cast: Cleo (Dorothy Davenport); Jacques Fournier (Emory Johnson); Audrey Devine (Gretchen Lederer); Browne (Alfred Allen); Max (Jack Abbott). Written by Bess Meredyth. Produced by L. B. Carleton.

Cleo, studying music at the conservatory and short of funds, is forced to give up her lessons. She returns home, and secures a position as singer with Follies Cabaret. In the meantime Jacques Fournier, a criminologist, is engaged in the solving of a murder mystery. Browne rushes to Fournier's office and tells him of the discovery of his wife's body. In investigating Fournier discovers that Browne is a cocaine fiend, and also that Mrs. Browne was killed by a Spiess gun. He learns that Browne has been associated closely with Audrey Devine, a singer at the Follies Cabaret.

That night Fournier meets Cleo and saves her from the advances of Murphy, an Alderman. She tells him of her poverty and informs him that Audrey Devine, whom she has met in the dressing room, is addicted to cocaine. Fournier tells her to find out where she obtains the dope. Pretending that she, too, is a cocaine fiend, Cleo obtains the drug from Audrey who gets it from Max, the piano player. She informs Fournier that Max has the drug. In a note Fournier tells Cleo to play up to Max and have him take her home, and that he, Fournier, will hold them up and try to find out where Max obtains the drug. She follows his instructions and in the fight Fournier obtains Max's coat with the cocaine decks and the address, "16 Martin street."

The next morning, Cleo, in disguise, starts out for this address. Fournier has given her a powerful narcotic and skeleton keys, with instructions to substitute the narcotic for the cocaine. When Cleo reaches the hall at 16 Martin street, Audrey is just leaving, but does not recognize the girl. Before this Audrey is shown inside the room with Max and Joe, another fiend, preparing the decks of cocaine. Audrey goes through a secret panel and gives decks to some one inside. When Cleo enters the room she finds it deserted and immediately starts substituting the narcotic. She also discovers the presence of a secret panel and is about to investigate when she is interrupted by the return of Joe. She tells him that she found the door open and merely peeked in.

That night Fournier waits at the police station for orders from Cleo. Plain clothes men watch No. 16 Martin street and see Audrey and Max enter the house. After the show Cleo goes directly to the police station and acts as guide to Fournier and the police. They surround the house and Cleo leads them to the door. They break in the door and find Max and Joe doped by the narcotic. Cleo tells them of the secret panel and they break in and find Audrey and Browne in each other's arms. Under a loose board Cleo discovers a Spiess gun and the dead woman's missing jewels. As Fournier revives Browne he holds the evidence in front of Browne's eyes, and Browne confesses to the murder of his wife. The criminals are arrested and Cleo becomes Fournier's partner.

---

FLIRTING WITH MARRIAGE (No. 2 of "Baseball Bill"—July 16).—The cast: Baseball Bill (Billy Mason); Penpoints (O. C. Jackson); Olly Olson (Victor Potel).

The two boys, Baseball Bill and Penpoints, are broke and find themselves outside the town and very hungry. They enter the town to look for work, but even the advertisements in the newspapers yield no hope. Penpoints sends Bill on a begging expedition, but is unsuccessful. They notice a sign outside a Swedish restaurant, "Dining Room Girl and Chambermaid Wanted." Penpoints has an idea. He has seen some women's clothes on a line and he steals them and dresses Bill as a Swedish maid. He induces Bill to enter Olly Olson's restaurant and boarding house and ask for the job of waitress. Bill does so, and is accepted by the proprietor, who is much taken with him; Penpoints then enters the restaurant and orders a meal from Bill, and Olly throws him out.

Olly makes much of Bill, and shows him to his room. Penpoints tries to discover which is his room. Bill sneaks out of the window and rejoins Penpoints, saying that he cannot stand the disguise any longer. Penpoints induces him to stay a week, so as to get his wages. Bill reenters and sleeps peacefully, while Penpoints passes the night on the doorstep. It gets too cold for him, and he enters Bill's room. In the morning, when Olly calls Bill, Penpoints has to jump out of the window, half-dressed. Olly shows Bill the day's work, and Bill performs it like a Trojan. Olly is very appreciative, and decides to take his new maid to the ball game. Bill is much elated.

Olly has a huge roll of bills. He thinks he has it with him, but in reality he has left it at home. He enters the ball park with Bill, who is shown every courtesy in his woman's garb. Penpoints can't get in, and is forced to watch the game through a knot hole in the fence. A cop arrests him for vagrancy, but Penpoints persuades him that there is no hurry about their going to jail, and they share the hole in the fence between them.

The home team is playing badly, and Bill can hardly stand it. The pitcher is being hit all over the lot. Olly sudenly discovers that he has lost his money, and rushes out wildly to look for it. Bill can stand it no longer. He makes a break for the bench, and is recognized with joy, and rushed into a uniform. He pitches perfect ball and wins the game.

He then dons his gown and returns to Olly, who has found his money. Olly wants to be married at once. Bill says he cannot be married in a calico gown. Olly gives him fifty dollars to get a new dress. Olly goes to get a license. He sees Penpoints being taken to jail. He returns and tells Bill, who pays the fine, which takes all his fifty dollars. They are broke again.

---

JOKER.

THE HAREM SCAREM DEACON (July 15).—The cast: Miss Crobar (Gale Henry); Deacon Stillwaters (Wm. Franey); Celeste (Lillian Peacock); Ching Ling Foo (Chas. Conklin); "Dopey" Jones (Milburn Moranti). Written by Eugene Lewis. Produced by Allen Curtis.

This story begins with a meeting of the Anti-Sing League, of which Miss Crobar is leader. The meeting is held for the purpose of receiving a report from a Special Committee, which has been appointed to investigate vice conditions in Chinatown. The Special Committee reports that opium is being used in Chinatown, but the Committee has no first-hand knowledge of this; so it is decided to send Deacon Stillwaters into Chinatown to ascertain real conditions.

On entering Chinatown, the first person the Deacon encounters is Celeste, a pretty flower girl. He tells her of his mission and she advises him to give it up. But the Deacon refuses. Fearing that he will soon come to harm, Celeste volunteers to act as his gulde. But, unfortunately, the Deacon, while trying to follow Celeste through the mazes of Chinatown, falls through a trap and into the quarters of Ching Ling Foo, proprietor of an opium den. The Deacon carries off the mishap in the presence of Ching Ling Foo as if it were an everyday occurrence with him. He takes the Chinaman into his confidence and tells him of his mission. Ching Ling Foo, being a courteous Chinaman, cheerfully volunteers to let the Deacon in on all the secrets of the place. He tells the Deacon that there is no real harm in opium and induces him to take a smoke to convince him.

The Deacon smokes and drops off into a dream. He dreams that he is a Pasha, with a large harem. Ching Ling Foo is his Grand Vizier and Miss Crobar is one of his wives. She knows about the progressive women of America and proposes to institute reforms, such as votes for women and bridge whist. In the dream, Celeste is introduced as a dancing girl. She is new to the harem, the Grand Vizier having bought her as a gift to his master, the Pasha. The Pasha falls in love with the dancing girl, which rouses the jealousy of Miss Crobar. After she has come upon them on several occasions making love, she rouses the women of the harem to such a pitch that they fall upon the Pasha in a body. The Pasha is warned by his Grand Vizier of the projected onslaught of the women and consequently tries to reach a place of safety. He is pursued through the harem by the women, who finally overtake him. While he is being pummeled unmercifully the scene fades out, and fades into the opium den of Ching Ling Foo, with Miss Crobar and a number of the scandalized women shaking the Deacon into consciousness. The Deacon tries to explain his predicament, but Miss Crobar and the others will hear nothing in extenuation until Celeste comes on, who bravely takes the Deacon's part. With Celeste as his comforter, the Deacon doesn't care what the others say or think.

IMP.

A STRANGER IN HIS OWN HOME (July 11).— The cast: William Brown (Matt Moore); Jane Brown (Jane Gail); Jane's mother (Miss Cecil); Percival Green (Curtis Benton). Written by J. Grubb Alexander. Produced by Matt Moore.

The Browns, Jane and William, were happily married until Jane's relatives arrive to visit the bride. Uncles, aunts and cousins galore begin to make William's life unbearable. No sooner have they left when a telegram arrives, and Jane tells her husband that mother "dear" is coming to spend a month with them. William becomes angry, and wfie scolds him. The night comes when mother "dear" is due. Jane asks hubby to accompany her to the station to meet the dear old lady. An angry quarrel ensues, and William tells wifie that he is going out to drown his sorrows with his friends. Jane decides to go alone to the station, where she ascertains that the train has been in over half an hour. Meanwhile, mother "dear," finding no one to meet her, starts out to find the home of her daughter, and succeeds in locating the Brown residence.

Percival Green, who has been enjoying himself, falls down a coal shute. He crawls out and, mounting numerous flights of steps, finds himself in a sumptuous library. Meanwhile, mother has proceeded to make herself at home in her daughter's house. Hearing a noise in the library, she hurries in to greet the dear children. Percival's face is unrecognizable from coal dust, and she asks him where Jane is. Percival thinks that she is perpetrating a practical joke, and laughs heartily, whereupon mother "dear" pounces upon him, takes him upstairs, locks him in the bedroom, and tells him that she didn't think her daughter had married a drunken loafer.

Presently Jane arrives and embraces her mother, who asks her daughter why she is without her husband. Jane cries. In trying to console her, her mother says: "Never mind, dear. I have that drunken husband of yours upstairs, and he won't get out either." Then it dawns upon her that it must be William, who has been drowning his sorrows with the boys. In a downtown club, William is trying to forget his sorrows and domestic strife in the genial company of the boys, but somehow he can't enjoy himself. He starts for his house. When he arrives he finds that he has forgotten his key. He rings and rings, but there is no response.

Upstairs in William's bedroom, Percival Green has fallen asleep. Downstairs William climbs up over the porch and enters his room through the window. He switches on the light and is surprised to see his wife bending over the form on the bed, as she thinks it is her husband. She is astounded to see her husband standing before her. Percival awakens and rushes for the door. Mother enters unannounced and knocks Percival down. While William stands over his wife in terror, mother tumbles to the situation, and explanations ensue. William understands with satisfaction, but stands with folded arms and looks sternly at his wife, telling her that he will forgive her, if, in future, she will dispense with visits from her innumerable relatives Jane promises to do his bidding. As Percival starts out of the door, William tells him to take the person who received him with him. Percival grabs mother "dear" and exits. William sighs in content and Jane cuddles into his arms.

---

THE LITTLE GRAY MOUSE (Two Parts—July 14).—The cast: Felice (Edith Roberts); the mother superior (Nellie Slattery); James Webster (Paul Panzer); Mrs Webster (Inez Marcel); Jack Stanley (Harry Benham). Written by Catherine Carr. Produced by J. Winthrop Kelley.

Felice, the only child of a French widower, is left at a convent when he decides to enlist and rejoin his old regiment in the French army. Word is later received that the father has been killed; and, on the advice of the Mother Superior, she decides that Felice shall remain at the convent, but as she is without money for her boarding expenses, she is allowed to help with the housework.

Jack Stanley, with his semi-invalid father, a widower, arrives with Mrs. Webster, a beautiful young woman posing as a widow, who acts in the capacity of housekeeper and companion to the elder Stanley. A strict diet has been prescribed for the invalid, and the convent is recommended as a place where Stanley may secure eggs and honey and other delicacies. Delicacies seem to be scarce, and Mr. Stanley finds himself deprived of the things he expected, as the nuns regret they cannot supply his wants. Felice overhears the request for delicacies which is made personally by Jack in his father's behalf. Thereupon, Felice smuggles out a basket of them from the cellar of the nunnery, intending to leave the basket surreptitiously at the Stanley home. Subsequently she meets Jack on the road, confessing to him that the basket of delicacies is intended for his father and he drives her back to the convent in his car.

Felice falls in love with Jack, and he is very much taken with the Little Gray Mouse, as he calls her. Mrs. Webster, although posing as a widow, is in reality married to Jim Webster, "a gentleman crook," who is stopping at a nearby hotel by prearrangement. In the meantime, Webster is planning to work the badger game, and after bleeding the elder Stanley of a large sum of money, to make his get-away with the proceeds. Upon the night settled for the badger game, Jack is summoned to New York by a fake telegram sent by a confederate of Webster's.

Felice, upon the evening that Jack leaves for the city, carries another basket of delicacies to the Stanley home. Finding the house quiet, she investigates the lower floor. She makes her way to the drawing room and is startled by the arrival of Webster. She conceals herself. Mrs. Webster joins her husband. They discuss the plan of the badger game. Mrs. Webster dismissed the servants for the day. She promises, in the hearing of Felice, to carry out the badger game. Felice, not knowing what a badger game is, but conscious that it is something criminal, escapes from the room, and starts on a mad run for the convent.

Jack's machine having broke down, he is taken up by a friendly motorist, who asks the way to the convent where he is to see his daughter. Felice returns to the convent. She rushes to the Mother Superior with the story she has just overheard. Felice frantically tries to impress upon the sisters the seriousness of the situation, but they will not listen to her, and are about to impose a heavy pennance for what she has done, when the stranger and Jack arrive. The stranger recognizes in Felice his daughter. Felice, her father and Jack race in the machine to the Stanley home. Webster and Tim Morse, a confederate in the badger game, are caught in the act of trying to force the elder Stanley to give up a large sum of money, after accusing him of having made love to Mrs. Webster. The imposters are overpowered and exposed, and the "Little Gray Mouse" leaves her convent cage for the golden land of love.

---

TWO SEATS AT THE OPERA (July 16).—The cast: Dr. Jones (William J. Welsh); Mr. Osgood (William J. Dyer); Mrs. Osgood (Inez Marcell); Michael Clancy (William Garwood); Mary Fagan (Edwina Martin).

Dr. Jones, a busy bone-setter, is consulted by Osgood, who is on the verge of nervous prostration. The doctor tells Osgood that what he needs is relaxation, and offers him two tickets to the opera. Meanwhile, Michael Clancy, a plumber, is engaged in fixing pipes in the doctor's cellar. Mary Fagan, a cook in the doctor's household, indulges in a flirtation with the plumber, and provides him with a substantial meal.

Mrs. Osgood phones to the plumbing office, and the boss plumber sends Clancy to Mrs. Osgood's house to fix the radiator. Clancy, before starting on his mission, reads in the newspapers of a diamond robbery, characterized as an inside job, carried out by burglars who got away with the loot, amounting to $100,000. He confides to one of his associates that he's going to be a burglar, as it doesn't pay to be honest.

When Clancy arrives to fix the radiator Mr. Osgood, not knowing how to get rid of the opera tickets, offers them to the plumber, who expresses his preference for a burlesque show and declines the tickets. The plot thickens when Mary, the doctor's maid, arrives with a note from her employer addressed to Mr. Osgood. Osgood admits the maid, and, noting that she is pretty, gives her the tickets. Mrs. Osgood learns from the letter that the maid has handed to her that the doctor presented the tickets to her husband with a view to affording him relaxation. The maid confides to her that the tickets were given to her by her spouse. Osgood is denounced as an inhuman wolf who is seeking to prey on poor working girls.

At the plumber's office later, Clancy is cutting a mask out of his apron. Mary telephones to him that she wants him to take her to a swell joint that evening. Clancy, bent on committing burglary, phones back to her that he is going to work overtime that evening. Mary becomes angry and throws the envelope containing the tickets out of the window. We next see Mrs. Osgood telephoning to her husband at his office that she wishes him to accompany her on a visit that evening to her sister who is seriously ill. Clancy deems it wise to make his peace with Mary, and rushes off to the doctor's house, where, just as be is about to enter, he runs across the envelope containing the tickets. He decides that Osgood's failure to attend the opera that night will block his dark plans. So he proceeds to the Osgood establishment and hands the tickets to the butler, who, in turn, hands them to his master. Osgood, delighted to square himself with his wife, exhibits them, but Mrs. Osgood, woman-like, turns on him. Mrs. Osgood thereupon presents the tickets to the butler, who offers to give the cook an operatic treat. The cook, however gets the impression that he is trying to "kid" her and gives him a black eye with the rolling pin.

The butler hastens to have his eye treated by Doctor Jones, and incidentally throws the tickets down on the doctor's desk. The doctor recognizes the tickets and is surprised to have them returned. That evening Clancy arrives at the doctor's bouse to pacify Mary. He drops his improvised mask in taking out his handkerchief. Mary catches a glimpse of the mask and picks it up as she sbouts at the plumber: "So you was goin' to a masquerade ball with another woman." Clancy has a hard time to bring Mary around, but finally he convinces the belle of the kitcben that he is plumb gone on her, and she consents to become his life-long mate.

REX.

A DEAD YESTERDAY (Two Parts—July 9). The cast: Tom Wren (Hobart Henley); His Mother (Jean Hathaway); Agnes Kempler (Cleo Madison); Miss Eaton (Hilda Sloman); John Ford (Ray Hanford); Ella Ford (Agnes Vernon); Baby Girl (Baby French). Written by Tom Lewis. Produced by Charles Giblyn.

Tom Wren is the pampered son of a wealthy mother. The family fortunes are at a low ebb on account of the poor management by the widow and her son, Tom, and it is the mother's fond wish to replenish the bank account by a marriage between her son and a wealthy young heiress. Tom agrees with this plan, but is really in love with Agnes Kempler, a model at one of the large department stores. He has furnished a house in anticipation of his marriage with the model, and one day, while his mother is shopping in the store in which the model works, he sends the girl a note that everything is ready for the marriage, and that she is to be at the house at four that evening. The girl bas just had a trying time posing with a gown for Tom's mother, although neither of the women knew of the other. The young couple are married secretly.

Nearly all the fortune of the Wrens is invested in coal mines in West Virginia, and on the recommendation of an old family friend Tom is sent to look after their interests. While in the mine fields Tom meets John Ford, a mountaineer whom he formerly knew, and his daughter, Ella. Tom is trying to figure a road out which is unfamiliar to him, when Ella offers to accompany him and they set out in the machine. An accident happens and they are forced to remain out all night. Her father has grown anxious over her absence overnight with a man and sets out to find them. He locates them and tells Tom he will either have to marry the girl or be killed. He is forced to marry her. Soon afterwards he leaves for home.

Time passes and Tom gets a note from his mountaineer wife that she is in the hospital with a baby. He goes to his mother's house and she confronts him with the news that all their fortune is gone and says he will have to marry the heiress to save them from ruin. He shows her the note he has just received from one of his wives and tells her it is impossible. The mother is deeply shocked and goes to the hospital. Tom leaves for his first wife's.

Tom arrives at his home and Agnes notices his pocket is torn and insists on fixing it. In running her hand in the pocket to sew it she finds the note. She is horror-struck, but manages to keep him in ignorance of her knowledge. She goes to his mother's house to make herself known. While there Ford, the father of Ella, arrives, and Agnes, in the next room, hears him tell of the baby. She renounces her claims as a wife in favor of the wife and baby.

Time passes and Agnes' has become an outcast. Ella has died and her child is left to comfort the husband. He has vainly tried to find Agnes. Ella's child is the pride of the household and has a great hold over the father.

Agnes is brought into court on a charge of vagrancy. A society woman present, representative of an uplift league, takes her to the league, telling the judge she would like to try to reform her. At the room she meets Tom's mother, who is also a member of the society. Mrs. Wren overrides the girl's objections and takes her home with her. At the home Tom is playing in the garden with the little girl when his mother sends him word to come in. To his surprise he finds his first wife, who has always loved him. There is a happy reconciliation.

---

THE CRIMSON YOKE (Two parts—July 16).—The cast: Nina (Cleo Madison); Casimir (Jack Mulhall); Luridi (Frank MacQuarrie); Caribi (Wm. V. Mong); Casimir's Mother (Helen Wright). Scenario written by Geo. Hall and Harvey Gates. Produced by Cleo Madison and W. V. Mong.

Nina is an attendant in the household of Madame Casimir. Her son has been in the States for the past few years, supposedly attending college. One day the mother receives a letter from young Casimir, pleading for more money. The mother decides to borrow the money from Luridi, a notorious slave-dealer and free-trader. The mother tells Nina to go to the village and bring Luridi to the house.

Nina knows Luridi's character. She pouts because she is sent on this errand and is about to refuse, when she sees the photograph of young Casimir, which she picks up and hides in her bosom. As she leaves the house she is joined by Caribi, who has long been an ardent admirer of Nina. She shows him the picture of young Casimir, which causes pangs of jealousy in Caribi's breast. He accompanies the girl to the village.

Luridi is found in his slave pen, and Nina delivers the message. One of the traders attacks Nina, and Caribi interferes. He is taken prisoner but on Luridi's command he is released. Luridi hurries to the Casimir plantations, and is shown the letter from young Casimir. Luridi makes an offer to advance the money in return for Nina. The mother refuses this request, stating that Nina is freeborn and cannot be sold.

Nina has fallen in love with the photograph of Casimir. Caribi, fearing he will lose the regard of Nina, does everything possible to win her over. Young Casimir returns after a riotous living in the States. He is constantly demanding money from his mother and she finally tells him that he is driving them to poverty. Luridi cultivates the acquaintance of young Casimir, who is easily persuaded to indulge in gaming and drinking.

One night, while partly under the influence of liquor, he loses heavily and signs an enormous check against the Casimir fortune, which he also loses. Luridi holds the note, and next day upon visiting the bank, finds that the Casimir family has no such sum as is represented by the check. Luridi threatens to have the young man thrown into jail unless he makes the check good. Nina hears the argument, and her adoration for the young man prompts her to offer herself to Luridi as a slave, provided that he will deliver the check to the Casimirs. The mother remonstrates weakly, but her objections are overcome, and Luridi leaves with Nina in charge. Caribi learns of the girl's sacrifice and sets out to follow Luridi.

Nina is thrown into the slave pen with the other slaves and peons, and soon becomes the center of attraction. Luridi furnishes her with ornaments, and has some new gowns for her. Several of the traders try to purchase the girl, but Luridi refuses to sell. He tries to force his attentions upon her, and Caribi, who is watching outside, slips into the stockade and knocks Luridi down. The guard grabs him and he is taken to the lock-up.

Luridi decides to break the spirit of Nina and, when they set out for the Casimir plantation, he has her tied to the back of the cart. Nina passes Casimir but he does not notice her, and she realizes the futility of her sacrifice. A short distance out Luridi dismounts and gives the girl a severe beating. Weak from the ordeal Nina can hardly walk, and the cart drags her. Luridi laughs at her predicament, believing it the only way to break her spirit.

Caribi escapes and starts out in pursuit. He soon overtakes the slower cart and finds Nina lying on the ground weeping. He frees her from her bonds and the two escape. Luridi and his attendants set out to beat the woods. Caribi hides behind a bush and, as Luridi comes out, attacks him. Luridi is thrown into a quicksand and is almost engulfed. Nina sees his predicament and pleads with Caribi to rescue him. Caribi refuses at first, but finally rescues Luridi. Luridi begs for mercy and Caribi, ordering him to be gone, leaves with the girl to build their home in the woods.

---

GOLD SEAL.

NATURE INCORPORATED—Two Parts—July 11). The cast: Billy Packard (Herbert Rawlinson); Prof. Tonson (Wm. Canfield); Beulah, his daughter (Agnes Vernon). Scenario by Ben Cohn. Produced by Wm. Worthington.

Billy Packard is a successful real estate dealer, and to his office comes Professor Tonson, who is desirous of getting a suitable location to establish a colony where he intends to work out his theories of restoring health. The professor's discovery is not of the nutriment of the peanut. Billy tells the professor of a site near the ocean, and after luncheon the two repair to seaside to look over the location. The professor is satisfied, and he establishes his colony. Beulah, his daughter, is a great help to him. The patients are dressed uniformly, the chief article of apparel being a sack-shaped outer garment. The dict consists mainly of beans and peanuts. In addition to the diet and fresh air, the patients are frequently treated to an open-air lecture by the professor.

One day Billy goes to pay the professor a visit. He meets Beulah and the two see much in each other to admire. After a dip in the surf, Billy proposes, but the girl tells him that it is too sudden, and that if he would be accepted he must settle down in the colony. Billy cannot live on beans and peanuts, so he returns home. But thoughts of the girl persist in coming to his mind. He finally decides that she is worth the sacrifice. He hurries to her and is elected a regular member of the colony. After the marriage, the new convert is made guardian of the beans. For three or four days Billy consumes the colony diet, but at last it becomes too much for him. One day he is about to give up and return to the city, when he discovers a box of cigarettes and some matches. The soothing tobacco causes him to forget some of the drawbacks of his position and he decides to make another attempt.

Each morning the colony takes a bath in the ocean, before sunrise. When the day is clear it is not so bad, but one foggy morning Billy tries to avoid the ordeal. He is finally made to obey the rules by Beulah. After a cold plunge and the meager meal of beans which follows, Billy loses all control of himself, and that afternoon things come to a climax. The professor often interests his pupils with a revelation of things which are to come, and Billy tells the professor that he is going to have a revelation. It is that Beulah and he, Billy, must return to the city, and he mentions that said revelation would be worth five hundred dollars to him.

The next morning, during the lecture, the revelation is announced. Beulah is much surprised, but never hesitates to believe what her father says, and the two arrange to go to the city. Billy tries to sample every bill-of-fare in town, and absolutely refuses to have beans anywhere near him. It is Beulah's first trip to the city and she is in a continual state of happiness. Billy finally tells Beulah of his scheme to get back to the city and have a real meal. It is a great surprise to Beulah, but Billy manages to comfort her and tells her that they will go back to the colony. The deserters return and Billy now has an understanding with the professor that as long as he can keep the other patients from seeing him, he can indulge in anything he likes.

CREATIVE IDEAS FOR POSTERS
GOES LITHOGRAPHING CO.
CHICAGO
206 Broadway NEW YORK

EXHIBITORS !!

You cannot afford to miss our new attractions which we offer at summer prices.

Folly of Revenge

An intense love drama between sculptor and model. Not a dull moment throughout the five reels.

A Woman Wills

Featuring the famous Elsie LeClaire. Five reels of vivid action.

The End of the World

A stupendous spectacular production in six reels. Bound to Please Your Audience.

You need not buy a "cat in a bag." Just call around to see us and we will screen them for you

PIONEER FEATURE FILM CORP.
NATHAN HIRSH, President
130 West 46th St., New York
Bryant 9037-9038

Our Coming Feature
"Pages From Her Life."
A Society Drama in Five Reels

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th St. New York City

Anthony P. Kelly

PLAYWRIGHT

Author of

The Most Successful Feature Ever Released by Metro

"The Soul of a Woman"

Starring EMILY STEVENS

Adapter of

"One of the three greatest screen plays ever produced"

"The Great Divide"

---

Forthcoming Releases:

Orrin Johnson in "THE LIGHT AT DUSK"

Direction of Edgar Lewis. A special seven-part VLSE release

Pearl White in "THE BLOSSOM AND THE BEE"

Direction of Edward Jose. A special six-part Pathe Gold Rooster play

"THE WOMAN IN THE CASE"

An Adaptation of Clyde Fitch's play
Starring Pauline Fredericks
Famous Players release

"JAFFREY"

An adaptation of William Locke's book Starring C. Aubrey Smith
Direction of Geo. Irving
Frohman-World release

"THE HEART OF THE HILLS"

Direction of Richard Ridgely
Edison-Paramount release
Starring Conway Tearle and Mabel Trunelle

---

Late Releases:

"SUSIE SNOWFLAKE"

An adaptation of Shannon Fife's story
Starring Ann Pennington
Direction of James Kirkwood
Famous Players release

"WHAT HAPPENED AT 22"

Starring Frances Nelson and Arthur Ashley Direction Geo. Irving
Frohman-World release

Address Screen Club
New York City

BISON.

THE HUMAN PENDULUM (Three Parts—July 15).—The cast: Dorothy Markham (Marie Walcamp); Stanford Markham (E. N. Wallock); Bob McKay (Lee Hill); Jim Gordon (L. C. Shumway); McFadden (Ivor McFadden). Scenario by Frank Wiltermood. Produced by Henry McRae.

Boh McKay is chief of construction on the new mountain division of the Black Rock Short Line, and he is greatly aided in his tasks by his foreman, McFadden. Stanford Markham, president of the company engaged in building the new line, orders the construction work rushed, as, hy the terms of its franchise, the company must complete the project within a scheduled time. Jim Gordon, one of McKay's colleagues, while posing as an honest man, is being paid secretly hy a rival company to delay the work. He creates dissension among the workmen and has Bud Ennis, a laborer, wreck a train carrying construction material. McKay apprises President Markham of the wreck. He says that he, his daughter, Dorothy, and three directors are hurrying hy special train to hold a conference with McKay and Gordon, who is not suspected by any one of his treachery. Gordon learns of the special and plots to hlow it up with dynamite; but it so happens that McKay passes the explosive. He removes it just as the special passes. When informed of the attempt on his life, Markham praises McKay for his act. Gordon, on meeting Markham and the directors, belittles McKay's work.

Markham, largely on account of his poor health, decides to remain in the mountains. Gordon, to ingratiate himself with Dorothy, lends her his saddle horse, and she rides along the mountain trails. Gordon continues his plotting and manages to have the workmen idle at a time when Markham is near, so that Markham, on meeting McKay, scolds him, with a result that McKay resigns his post. McFadden also quits in loyalty to McKay. Later McFadden and McKay rescue Dorothy from death as the horse she is riding becomes frightened and dashes over a cliff. McKay carries her to her father. He shows his gratitude by persuading McKay to resume his work on the new line.

Some weeks later the road is completed and the officials decide to run a train over the line and thus fulfill the terms of the franchise. Gordon resolves to hlock the passage of the train. He and his thugs make several attempts to carry out their dastardly plot, but each time they are frustrated by McKay. In the end Gordon is killed. When the train arrives at Black Rock, Markham and the directors all praise McKay. Later Dorothy hecomes his bride at an elaborate wedding.

VICTOR.

A CONFLICTING CONSCIENCE (July 12).—The cast: Frank Allen (Wadsworth Harris); Marie (Maud Emory); Van Dusen (Bertram Grasshy). Scenario by F. McGrew Willis. Produced by C. D. Bennett.

Frank Allen, a man of wealth, is happily married, and he and his wife, Marie, and their little baby are living in the same city as Van Dusen, an artist of unsavory reputation. Marie has always kept from Krank the knowledge that before she met him, she posed for Van Dusen, and was compelled to leave his studio on account of his advances to her.

One evening at a mutual friend's house they meet Van Dusen and Frank is introduced to him. While alone with Marie, Van Dusen attempts to force his attentions upon her, but she repulses him. This angers him and he suggests to her that possibly she would be willing to listen to him, rather than have Frank find out that she once posed for him. Marie, terrified, nevertheless repels his advances and Van Dusen resolves to inform Frank in some manner of her former position. He invites the party to visit his studio the following evening.

While Marie was his model she had posed for a painting entitled "The Grieving Dryad," a picture showing a scantily clad girl weeping over a withered rose. Van Dusen returns to his studio, and, taking the painting from its place of storage, places it in a prominent place and covers it with a tapestry. The next evening Marie tells Frank that she does not feel well enough to accompany him and the others to the studio, and he goes alone. Marie, in fear and terror of what may happen, gathers the baby in her arms and falls asleep in a chair.

At the studio, Van Dusen unveils the painting at a dramatic moment; and at Frank's confusion, tells him that it was merely a surprise for him, as he supposed that every one knew that Marie was once his model. Frank's anger and jealousy is aroused to such a pitch that he tears the painting from its place and rushes home to confront Marie. He finds her asleep, and as he hesitates to wake her, his imagination sees her as having friendly relations with Van Dusen. His better nature conquers, however, and he returns to the studio to force the truth from the artist.

Van Dusen, conscious-stricken, has just finished a letter to Frank, clearing Marie and acknowledging that his motive was revenge for her repulse. After a scene between them, he gives Frank the letter and apologizes and offers him the painting. Frank forgives Van Dusen and hurries home, whcre Marie has just awakened. She sees the painting and is filled with terror. Frank enters and calms her fears by explaining that he knows all, and that there is nothing for her to be alarmed about. The dark cloud rolls away and all is happiness again.

LITTLE BOY BLUE (July 14).—The cast: Cyril (Rupert Julian); Clara (Elsie Jane Wilson); Little Boy Blue (Baby Clemens). Produced by Rupert Julian.

Cyril, an author, and his wife, have lately drifted apart. The difference hetween them, slight at first, has grown with time, and the little child is the only link that held them together. In his indifferent way, Cyril is very fond of the child and often rebukes his wife for the scrapes the youngster gets into, which helps to widen the breach between them. The constant companions of the child are a little tin soldier and a tin dog.

Cyril receives notice from a newspaper syndicate stating that his children's poems are proving very popular and requesting more of his work. That night a tropical rain storm is raging outside and Cyril is busy working on his poems. Little Boy Blue, awakened by the rain, remembers leaving his two playmates, the soldier and the dog, outside, and slipping out into the storm, rescues them. He wipes the rain from them and places them in the closet. Just as he slips into bed the father finds him and sees he is wringing wet. He again rebukes the mother for not watching the child more closely.

The trip into the night air is too much for the little fellow, and he contracts a deadly ailment. The doctors are unable to save him. With the death of the child, Cyril and his wife become definitely separated. She returns to her parents, while he remains in the house.

The years pass. The little soldier and tin dog wonder what has become of their little playmate, and one night Cyril, rummaging around in the closet, brings the child's little playmates back to light. At the sight of them his indifference breaks down and he is filled with remorse and regret over the attitude he has taken against his wife. On the spur of the moment he composes a verse telling the pathetic story of the deserted soldier and dog. The wife later reads the verse in a paper and her old love returns. She hurries to the house and finds her hushand preparing his own meal. She notes the rages time has made upon him, and rushes towards him. With a glad cry he takes her in his arms, and the little toy soldier and the little tin dog are placed in a conspicuous place to remind them that nothing shall ever come between them again.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

PEG O' THE RING (EPISODE NINE. THE LEAP—Two Parts—June 26).—The cast: Peg (Grace Cunard); Dr. Lund, Jr. (Francis Ford); Dr. Lund, Sr. (Marc Fenton); Mrs. Lund (Jean Hathaway); Marcus (Irving Lippner); Flip, the clown (Pete Gerald).

Episode eight left Peg bound to the post in the burning shack, while Dr. Lund lay unconscious on the beach. Her hands were tied behind her, and she manages to sever the rope by rubbing it against a nail in the post. Then she leaps to freedom from the window into the sea. She is washed up on the beach near the doctor, and she draws his body out of the water. She drags him to the hut of a fisherman and his wife, and there they resuscitate him. Then Peg returns to the circus, where Flip is overjoyed to see her.

The place where the circus is showing is on the Mexican border, and Peg has joined them there. An uprising of the populace against the American residents has taken place, and the circus arrives in the midst of it. Doctor Lund remains with the fisherman until he has recovered from his partial drowning. Notwithstanding the threatened uprising, the first performance of

When in need of an experienced, reliable and efficient Camera Man call

BRYANT 6558

Rapid, Efficient Service

CINEMA CAMERA CLUB 1006 Times Bldg. New York City

Mr. State Rights Buyer:—

We are selling State Rights territory on

MACBETH

Shakespeare's Immortal Drama in 5 Parts

Featuring the famous Shakespearian Tragedian

Mr. Arthur Bouchier

(MACBETH)

and an all Star cast, including

Miss Violet Van Brugh

as (LADY MACBETH)

This feature has been released for exhibitors to supply the demand for high class Shakespearian Photoplays.

Big A Film Corporation

Wire or write for your territory to

145 West 45th St., New York

EXHIBITORS:—

This is your opportunity to present to your audience a sure box office attraction which will satisfy the most exacting of your patrons.

MACBETH

as you know, is Shakespeare's greatest and best tragedy. Book it from the exchange in your territory ahead of your competitor.

Big A Film Corporation

145 West 45th St., New York

For booking New York State and Northern New Jersey apply to Select Film Service

145 WEST 45TH STREET

Phone Bryant 1660

CAILLE

Ticket Office Equipments

Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.

CAILLE BROS. COMPANY, 1081 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Move Into the Quality Class

Quality does not imply bigness. However large or small your theatre, you can rise to the Quality class.

Here are some of the theatres that have succeeded by giving their patrons good films by means of White Light Projection. It has paid them in lowered expenses and increased receipts.

What they have done you can do. There is a

Wagner WHITE LIGHT Converter

for every style and size of theatre.

Details in Bulletin 10923 and booklet, "Ghosts."

WagnerElectric

Manufacturing Company. St. Louis, Mo.

Wagner
WHITE LIGHT
Converter

238

Lillibridge 61-0911

the circus is held. The Hindoo has followed, and is surprised to see Peg, whom he left in the burning shack. Mrs. Lund has also followed the circus. She and Marcus bribe the Mexicans to get Peg out of the way again. The outbreak begins in earnest on the night of the first performance, and the circus people join with the other Americans to keep the mob at bay until help can reach the town. Peg holds up the telegraph operator, and gets a message through to Doctor Lund, just before the wires are cut. The old fisherman tells the doctor that a circus has wired for help. Lund sets out at once to enlist the services of the cowboys to help the town. He knows that Peg must have sent the wire.

In the meantime the circus people have been doing all they can to protect the American citizens of the town. Peg has crawled into an outdoor oven, from which she accounts for many of the Mexicans. General fighting takes place through the streets, and many on both sides fall. Most of the Americans retire to a house, into which the Mexicans are just about to make their way, when Lund arrives with the cowboys, and surrounds them. But a band of them, acting under Marcus' orders, kidnap Peg as the picture fades out.

BIG U.

THE THREE BRAVE HUNTERS (July 13).—Helene, the innkeeper's daughter, was loved by one and admired by many. One day three mighty hunters arrived at the inn. They boasted of their prowess and of the big game they had killed. One had a bow and arrow, the second a musket, and the third a knife. Helene was quite impressed with their stories, and they all contended for her favor. The one with the musket warned her to have nothing to do with the man with the bow, as he was already married. He invited her to walk with him instead, and she accepted. Dale, her sweetheart, planned to expose the hunters and win back Helene for himself.

He got up very early in the morning and went to town on a mysterious errand. While he was gone Helene went for a stroll in the woods to think it all over. A lion rushed out at her and she had to run for her life. All declared that here was work for the fearless hunters. They did not seem over anxious but after some delay, spent in arming themselves, they set out. In the woods they encountered not only a lion but a tiger and a kangaroo. The hunters were overcome with fright, and decided to hide in a cave. But the animals had gone there first, and they came rushing out again. A bear and a fox joined them, and the hunters were chased back to the town.

One of them then had a brilliant idea. He bought a tiger skin at the tannery outside the town, and brought it in triumph to the inn, where he exhibited it as a trophy of his skill and courage. Just as they were boasting more than ever, the animals appeared and chased them all over the inn and up the stairs. When all had seen their cowardice the animals uncovered their heads and showed themselves to be Dale and his friends. And the hunters were laughed out of town.

L-KO.

IGNATZ'S ICY INJURY (Two Parts—July 12).—The cast: Ignatz (Bill Armstrong); Reggie (Reggie Morris); Mr. Rustlebucks (Dan Russell); Mrs. Rustlebucks (Gertrude Griffith); Miss Rustlebucks (Carmel Myers).

Being an ex-Minister of Hosiery to the Siberian Monarch has its advantages. But it also has its disadvantages, and one of the main disadvantages was that the ex-minister had a very artistic and sensitive temperament which had to be gratified. The manner of gratification was hanging around the mansions of the Four Hundred. This might have been all right, but the minister ran afoul of an officer who couldn't appreciate artistic temperaments, and said officer actually struck the Baron. In addition, the Baron obtained a dollar from Reno Reggie under false pretenses, and this transaction later rebounded on the Baron under embarrassing circumstances.

Anyway, the Baron was invited to the Rustlebucks' garden party, where he covered himself with distinction and cream puffs at the tea table. Even this might not have extinguished him socially, but the Rustlebucks gave a dinner at the Ice Palace, where the Baron's behavior caused his social career to be ended without a doubt. Suffice to say, that the law took a hand, the manager of the Ice Palace took a hand, and the cops took hold of both feet of the Baron. The ensuing scenes were painful in the extreme. The Baron got on a fourteen-story skyscraper and imagined he could run about on the edge of the building and defy the laws of gravity, but the laws of gravity would not be defied and the Baron fell off and struck himself in the dining room. The upshot of it all was that Reno Reggie got old Rustlebucks' daughter and the Baron got six months in the hospital among the chloroform and acid bottles. The only one who sent him flowers was Mama Rustlebucks, but these were poison ivy blossoms.

REEL BANDS $10.00 A THOUSAND
BOOKING SHEETS $5.00 A HUNDRED
Combination Caution and Film Shipping Labels
SAMPLE AND PRICES ON REQUEST
PATRICK A. GREEN
131 NO. WASHINGTON ST. BOSTON

-NOW BOOKING-
Selig's De Luxe Edition
of
THE SPOILERS
in Twelve Reels
From Rex Beach's Book
In the following territory
ILLINOIS
(including Cook County)
INDIANA
OHIO
MICHIGAN
WISCONSIN
The above states controlled exclusively by
THE PIEDMONT
FILM MART
301 Schiller Building
Chicago, Ill.

Mutual Film Corporation

BEAUTY.

BILLY VAN DEUSEN, MASQUERADER (July 5).—The cast: Billy Van Deusen (John Steppling); Jack (John Sheehan); Bob (Dick Rosson); Betty (Carol Halloway); Squeezicks (Robert Miller).

Billy Van Deusen was reading in his den an invitation he had received that day when two of his friends burst in. They were looking for excitement, and tried to get Billy to join them, but Billy refused. They leave Billy, wondering what sort of a disguise he would assume at the ball. He finally decided to impersonate a tramp.

Lefty Larry and Kokeye Louie, two crooks, were snooping around the Van Deusen residence when Billy's two full dress friends strolled out. The crooks meandered in and discovered Billy with a prop gunny sack about to make his exit. They deducted that they had been beaten to it by one of their own clan and proceeded therewith to relieve Billy of the swag. There is honor among thieves and Larry and Louie would not leave Billy to the cops, so each took him under the arm and threw him into a cab, and told the driver to take Billy to a fictitious address.

The cab driver was thirsty, so he stopped at Macey's for a little refreshment. Billy's two friends came out about then, full of everything but excitement. They spotted the empty cab. One climbed into the box and the other sported on top of the cab, and they drove away. O'Goorty, the cab driver, reported the missing cab to the police and they were on the lookout for it. While the cab wended its way through the hills and dales, a coming automobile offered new excitement for the two excitable ones, and they did a flying leap into the machine leaving their friends. That was the end of Billy's guardians, and the cab went on.

When morning came, Billy awoke. He wondered what had happened. Nearby was a farmhouse and Billy decided that he would request aid of them. When he spotted Betty, the farmer's daughter, he was certain that he would ask aid of her. He explained his predicament and the country girl fell for the sob stuff. She introduced him to Dad and Squeezicks, the little brother. Dad had heard glib tramps talk before and told Billy that if he wanted fodder he would have to work for it. Billy decided that he would work.

The morning paper arrived in the country mail and Farmer Jones read it. When he came to the article describing the mysterious disappearance of O'Goorty's cab, and offering $50.00 for information pertaining to it, he resolved to coop Billy. He told Squeezicks to get the shotgun and keep his eye on the tramp while he went for the constable. Finally he made a false move and the kid shot him. Billy had been shot in the seatus and the kid fell into the trough from the recoil of the gun. Billy was satisfied when the constable and the farmer came. In spite of his wounds Billy was forced to meander to the lockup. As the gang neared the lockup, they came upon a stalled automobile. They investigated and found Billy's friends and the driver cussing because they could not get the machine started. There was great rejoicing when Billy was recognized, but it took a lot of money to impress the hicks that Billy was O. K. and had been the victim of circumstances.

SOL L. LESSER MOVING PICTURE FILMS
MAIN OFFICE
SAN FRANCISCO
234 EDDY ST.
CALIFORNIA
EASTERN REPRESENTATIVE
LEON D. NETTER
1325 VINE ST
PHILADELPHIA PA.
MOTION PICTURE RIGHTS PURCHASED FOR THE PACIFIC COAST
ALL STAR FEATURES DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.
AND
GOLDEN GATE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.
BRANCH
LOS ANGELES
514 WEST 8TH ST.
CALIFORNIA

500% SALES INCREASE SINCE JULY 1915

WHY?

It's Durability and Perfect Projection Has Stood the Test

See Our Big Demonstration at the National Convention, Coliseum, Chicago

JULY 12 to 18

Represented in London, Paris and Berlin

Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.

564 W. Randolph Street, Chicago

Western Branch ∴ ∴ ∴ San Francisco, Calif.

MOTIOGRAPH

THE GINK LANDS AGAIN (July 9).—The cast: The Gink from Kankikee (Orral Humphrey); Slick Sandy (Joe Massey); Hinkey (Guy Lundy); Dorry (Eric Jacobs); Marcia Grasse (Jo Taylor).

When the big hay-dray drops its load of alfalfa on the outskirts of a city one would not think that anything had happened, but when the enormous load of hay stirs, moves and parts—and the Gink from Kankikee looks out one might suspect something. But the Gink is sleepy, and he merely turns over and starts to snooze. Slick Sandy and his gang are in the immediate vicinity. They spot the haystack and decide that it would be a great place to hold their conference. The gang talks over the coming haul, which is to be made on the city bank, and the Gink hears them.

The city bank of Wayville is presidented by a woman, one Marcia Grasse, a widow by request. Marcia is much sought after and one of the best "soughters" she has is Slick Sandy. Sandy and Marica are just stepping into a large touring car when the Gink, while looking for her house, strolls in. He spots the villain with his victim and realizes that he has no mean crook to contend with. When he sees that the butler in the household is another of the crooks he sees that he has a problem to deal with.

Gaining an entrance into the house, he waylays the butler and assumes his position. When Marcia returns from her jaunt, accompanied by Sandy, she and he are both surprised to find a new butler. She accepts the explanation that the other butler had been called away and had sent this man to take his place, but Sandy does a little investigating. He finds his pal where the Gink has left him and the hurried explanation of the former butler makes qualms the ardor of Sandy's scheme. But Sandy figures deeply and thinks that if he can frame up something on the Gink that looks crooked to Marcia he will have the Gink at his mercy. Straightway he takes some household silver and places them in the Gink's pocket, but the Gink is wise and when Sandy accuses him in front of Marcia there is no proof to the accusation—but silver is found in Sandy's pocket—put there by the Gink. Marcia is dumfounded and orders Sandy from the house.

But the Gink has more exposures to make. He tells her of the conference at the haystack and informs her that Sandy is the head of a desperate band of crooks who are planning to rob the bank that very night. The Gink persuades Marcia to leave the matter in his hands.

The Gink is in the bank when the crooks try to get in, and as each of the two henchmen come through the window the Gink makes them captive. Sandy, who is waiting on the outside of the open window, is himself made captive by having a rope thrown over his head and the window closed upon it. The Gink, having done his work, pens a little note and leaves. Marcia is worried over the affair and calls up the police. With them she rushes to the bank where the crooks are found and arrested. Marcia reads the Gink's note, a pretty thing about watching one's business and leaving love by the wayside.

CUB.

THE HERO OF E. Z. RANCH (July 14).—The cast: Jerry (George Ovey); Elsie (Claire Alexander); Husband (George George); Louise (Louise Horner); Bill (Jefferson Osborne); Rancher's Wife (Janet Sully); Chauffeur (Arthur Mund); Foreman (Louis FitzRoy). Directed by Milton H. Fahrney.

Tired of city life, Jerry seeks work on a ranch. Dressed in real cowboy fashion he arrives at the railroad station in a small western town. Louise, an heiress, and her maid, Elsie, are expected by the village folks, Louise being the owner of the big E. Z. ranch. Things have gone wrong at the ranch and at the advice of her attorney, Louise has disguised herself as a maid and Elsie substitutes as the heiress.

Jerry is bewildered when he sees all the ranch hands waiting for the arrival of the owner and he is a little timid in his search for work. The train brings the expected heiress, who, dressed as a maid, does not receive the attention that the maid dressed as the heiress receives. Jerry, however, assists the "maid" with her luggage while the townspeople make much over Elsie.

As the two women are seated in a small automobile there is an explosion and the machine starts off without a driver. Jerry leaps to his mule and gives chase and overtakes the automobile. He is the hero of the excitement, but his work is successful only because all the gasoline has been consumed.

At the ranch, Louise finds that things have been neglected by the men, the foreman being unable to handle them. There is no harmony and a number of fights are started because of the antics of Jerry. No one realizes, however, that Jerry is the cause of many of the clashes during the visit of the owner.

Elsie, believed to be the heiress, is made much of. Louise is placed in the background by everyone excepting Jerry. The ranch hands dislike Jerry and one day while he is being cuffed about, Louise arrives. She decides to reveal her identity and does so as she commands that the men stop annoying Jerry. Everyone is surprised to learn that Louise is the heiress and Elsie the real maid.

Louise then assumes control of things and discharges all of the employes, excepting the foreman. She then asks Jerry to be her partner and he consents. Elsie, now in her original capacity of maid, is made much over by the foreman. Elsie and her new sweetheart find a quite little spot in the ranch house, while Louise and Jerry find refuge under a big tree where they have a love scene.

CENTAUR.

THE FOOL'S GAME (Two Parts—July 15).—The cast: Robert Van Allen (Crane Wilbur); Peyton Carothers (John Oaker); Margaret Grayton (Mae Gaston). Directed by Robert B. Broadwall.

Peyton Carothers and Margaret Grayton fancy themselves in love. Through reverses in fortune both are penniless and to these two, marriage without money is hopeless. The millionaire, Robert Van Allen, is deeply in love with Margaret and has asked her several times to become his wife. She and Carothers plan to attain their ends by making a fool of Van Allen. When he proposes marriage again, Margaret makes a cold-blooded proposition to marry him for the sum of one million dollars. Thinking he can gain her love after marriage, Van Allen agrees and gives her a promissory note to be paid following the ceremony.

They are married, and Carothers, Van Allen's false friend, officiates at the wedding as best man. Van Allen takes his bride to a beautiful country home he has had built for her reception and there, too, Carothers goes as a guest. He and Margaret plot to betray Van Allen. A few months pass with nothing serious happening except the bitter disappointment and heartache of Van Allen, he realizes that his bargain was indeed a cold-blooded proposition. He is called away to the city on a business appointment. He accidentally misses his train and he returns to his home to find Carothers and his wife in a love scene. From Margaret's lips he overhears the bitter truth.

Van Allen decides to teach the couple a lesson and acting on the theory that enforced familiarity breeds contempt, locks the two together with handcuffs and drives them before him under the lash of a whip to his lodge in a secluded and desolate spot in the mountains. The guilty pair are locked in a cabin, which is well stocked with food and there he leaves them to the consequences of their own wrong doing, while he sets up a camp outside to watch developments. The weeks pass none too pleasantly for the would-be lovers who find their love a bitter delusion and each other's company a curse. With his wrist locked to that of the woman he has sworn to love, the caddishness of Carothers turns to savagery and he treats her brutally.

One night Van Allen leaves the cabin door open and Carothers forces Margaret to steal away with him. Van Allen trails them. After an all-night walk they find themselves lost in the desert. Margaret is exhausted and unable to continue and drops to the baked earth. Van Allen is moved at the plight of the woman he loved and unlocks the handcuffs and gives her water. Carothers steals upon the millionaire, tears the revolver from his side and snatches Van Allen's rifle. He tossed the revolver to Margaret and tells her to cover Van Allen with it. Then denouncing the millionaire as a fool and vowing he will kill him, Carothers aims the rifle but is shot himself by the woman he stole away. Unable to endure it any longer Margaret pleads to regain the love of her husband and there is a happy ending.

Get acquainted with "FULCO"
The Department Store
MOVING PICTURE TRADE
MACHINES EQUIPMENT SUPPLIES
Our catalog covers the line from A-Z
E. E. FULTON COMPANY
152 W. Lake St. CHICAGO, ILL.

Picture Machines

New and slightly used Power's, Simplex, Motiograph and Edison at Bargain Prices. Opera and Folding Chairs, Operating Booths that pass fire inspection, Picture Curtains and everything for the M. P. Theatre, at lower prices than offered by our competitors.

Lears Theatre Supply Company,
509 Chestnut Street St. Louis, Mo.

ALL THE PLAYERS

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.50 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK
12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

Murdock J. MacQuarrie DIRECTING FEATURES
FOR
"MUTUAL
MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE"
PROGRAM
Address American, Santa Barbara, Cal.

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, INC.
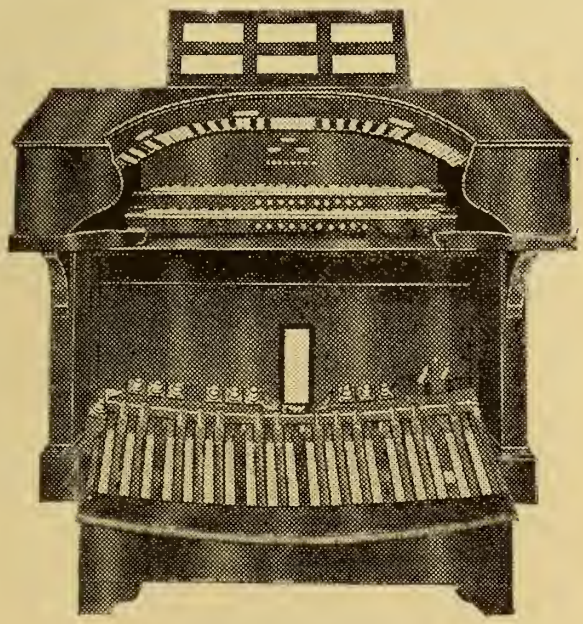
220 W. 42d Street
New York City
"Ask the Exhibitor Who Owns One."

An Invitation to Chicago Convention Visitors



For months we have been planning and now invite all visiting theatre managers to

THE GREAT WURLITZER

REG U S PAT OFF

Exhibit of Theatre Instruments

SPECIAL DISPLAY HALL AT
615 S. Wabash Ave.

In order to properly demonstrate Wurlitzer Hope-Jones Unit Orchestras and other Wurlitzer Theatre instruments we leased a special hall at the above address.

Here musical demonstrators will be in constant attendance to play for you any or all styles of Wurlitzer instruments in which you may be interested.

All cars going to the Coliseum Convention Headquarters pass our doors. Wurlitzer instruments now installed in nearly 5000 Theatres, large and small, in all parts of the world, and now recognized as the only music suitable for the proper characterization of Motion Pictures.

Make a note of it now to call at our Special Display Headquarters, 615 South Wabash Ave., for a demonstration of our latest models.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

| CINCINNATI | NEW YORK | CHICAGO |
|---|---|---|
| 121 E. Fourth St. | 118 W. 41st St. Just East of B'way | 329-331 S. Wabash Ave. |

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE

THE SIGN OF THE SPADE (American—Five Parts—June 26).—The cast: Howard Lamson (Alan Forest); Shirley Lamson (Helene Rosson); Wallace Thorpe (Warren Ellsworth); Old Deefy and James Fenton (Harvey Clarke); Dave Harmon (Clarence Burton); Theodore Roosevelt Jenks (Robert Miller); Tony Rimonetti (George Gerhardt). Scenario by Kenneth B. Clarke. Directed by M. McQuarrie.

Howard Lamson is District Attorney and his interests are directed toward the arrest and conviction of a gang of crooks dealing in lottery tickets. Moving in respectable society is Wallace Thorpe about whom nothing definite is known. The District Attorney' sister, Shirley Lamson, plunges into settlement work to forget a great disappointmeut and unconsciously becomes a leading figure in the arrest of the law breakers and comes dangerously close to becoming a victim of the ring leader, Wallace Thorpe.

One of the purchasers of lottery tickets under the stress of the third degree, breathes the name of Thorpe, and playfully at first, but in earnest at last, the District Attorney suspects Wallace Thorpe because of the similarity of the name. Thorpe chafes under the joke giving rise to the first real suspicion against him. Harmon, detective for the District Attorney, traces several parties who have purchased lottery tickets, and in the hope of convicting Thorpe on their evidence, arrests Thorpe and the case comes to trial. Additional mystery is lent the situation by the newspaper report of the fact that the man who first gave the name of Thorpe to the police was later found stabbed to death with a card, the Ace of Spades, pinned to his coat.

At the trial the mystical symbol plays a most important part, the witnesses on whom the District Attorney relied being intimidated by a unique use of the ace of spades. As a result, contrarty to expectations, staunch denials are made by the witnesses and the District Attorney lost his case against Thorpe. About this time the District Attorney's sister opens a club room for men in the slums, and after several unsuccessful efforts to launch it, finally attracts the attention of the lottery gang, and they use it for their own meeting purposes.

The incidents move very rapidly from this point. Harmon, detective for the District Attorney, trails the gang to the club room and arrests them. Thorpe escapes, and jumping into a taxi, stops at the corner where Shirley, the District Attorney's sister, is waiting for a car. He kidnaps her and places her aboard a Blue Star steamer, disguised as a helpless invalid in a wheel chair. Visiting the District Attorney, Thorpe tells him he has his sister in his power and demands his release as a condition of her freedom. In a gun duel the District Attorney gets the upper hand and succeeds in making Thorpe his prisoner and freeing his sister, Shirley.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION.

THE HIGHEST BID (American—Five Parts—July 6).—The cast: Elise Burleigh (Charlotte Burton); Her Mother (Marie Van Tassell); Oliver Strong (William Russell); Addison Grey (Harry Keenan); "Uncle Jerry" (Wm. S. Hooser). Scenario by J. E. Hungerford. Directed by William Russell.

Elise Burleigh is the daughter of a designing mother, who plans to marry her to a wealthy husband. Oliver Strong is a stock broker who has fought his way up the ladder of success by pure grit. At her coming out party, Elise meets Strong, resulting in love at first sight on both sides. They quickly become engaged much to Mrs. Burleigh's satisfaction.

A short time later, Strong is completely wiped out in a financial conspiracy headed by an unscrupulous operator, Addison Grey. The loss is a body blow to Strong, and his misfortune gives secret pleasure to his financial enemy, Addison Grey. To add to Strong's troubles, Mrs. Burleigh induces Elise to cancel her engagement to Strong and return him his ring, because of his changed financial fortunes.

Strong, broken in spirit, and seeking to get away from civilization for a period, goes into the Sierras. There he meets an old Uncle Jerry, an eccentric character, who has reason to believe there is a thick vein of virgin gold in old Eagle Canyon. Becoming friendly they search for the vein together, living in a rough cabin. About this time Addison Grey becomes the matrimonial target of Mrs. Burleigh and she soon contrives an engagement between Grey and her daughter, Elise.

Grey invites Mrs. Burleigh and Elise to accompany him on a trip to his hunting lodge in the Sierras, and while there Elise again meets Strong through a picturesque and romantic incident. She is led to declare her love for Strong, but the surroundings are so sordid that she cannot bring herself to give up her life of luxury to share his camp life. She bids him an affectionate farewell and goes back to her intended husband, Grey.

In the meantime, Strong has discovered the wonderful ledge of virgin gold and is destined to fabulous wealth, a fact which he withholds from Elise to test her love for him. A forest fire in which Grey shows the white feather and Strong is absolutely fearless and in which Elise plainly tells Grey she is fighting for Strong's home and her own too, results in a permanent reunion and the entire discomfiture of Grey.

---

MEDICINE BEND (American—Five Parts—July 3).—The cast: Marion Sinclair (Helen Holmes); Whispering Smith (J. P. McGowan); Murray Sinclair (Paul C. Hurst); Ed Banks (Thomas G. Lingham); Du Sang (Leo D. Maloney); Tony Wickwire (William Brunton); Karg (F. N. Van Norman); J. S. Bucks (N. Z. Woods); George McCloud (Chance E. Ward).

Whispering Smith, a railroad detective, is sent to Medicine Bend to suppress the looting of cars. Smith meets two childhood friends, Murray Sinclair and his wife, Marion. Smith's arrival kindles an old spark of love in Marion's bosom. Sinclair is discharged for looting wrecked cars and Marion leaves her husband when he threatens to ruin the road if he is not put back to work.

After trying for weeks to get an interview with Bucks, general manager of the railroad, Murray Sinclair and his followers, Du Sang and Karg, are granted an audience. They state their side of the case. Bucks refuses to put them back to work. He says that McCloud was right in discharging them. Sinclair becomes violent and tries to attack McCloud but is prevented by Whispering Smith. During the scuffle, Du Sang manages to secure a wire that has just been delivered to McCloud. The wire reads: "Notify Dunning Cattle Co. shipment of $65,000 delayed till No. 10 Friday." They decide to hold up the train, get the money, and leave the country.

In the Three Horses saloon Sinclair plots to kill McCloud before they hold up the train and Du Sang agrees to do it for him. Tony Wickwire, the Mexican whose life McCloud saved at the Central Mine, walks up behind them and overhears their plan to kill his friend. He shadows Du Sang. Du Sang takes his place at the window of a hotel and waits for McCloud to pass. Wickwire hides behind a lamp post and when Smith and McCloud appear, he warns them in time to save them from Du Sang's bullets. Du Sang thinks McCloud is dead and repairs to a gambling house. Smith, Wickwire and McCloud follow him there. Smith tells him he must leave town or he will "rope him like a cow and drag him down Front Street."

The following day Sinclair, Du Sang, Karg and three other followers hold up Number Ten, and kill the messenger. Before he dies, he tells that he recognized Sinclair in the gang. McCloud, notified, starts to the scene of action with the sheriff and a posse. Whispering Smith takes Wickwire, Lloyd and three other men and starts for Williams Cache to head off the bandits there.

In the meantime the gang has split into two factions; Sinclair and two followers have decided to leave the country and Du Sang, Karg and Sam have decided to go back to their rendezvous, Williams Cache. Before starting out of the state, Sinclair turns a switch against the relief train which he is sure will be sent out. The train runs into the open switch and crashes through a string of cars on the siding. The posse get out their horses and start in pursuit of the robbers. They finally run them down, but Banks, the sheriff is killed. They return to Medicine Bend with him.

Du Sang and his men beat Smith to the cache. Rehstock, who controls the cache, refuses to help Smith run down Du Sang, so Smith and his men start to round-up the cattle that have been stolen and hidden there. They clean out the cache and then Smith, Wickwire and Lloyd start after Du Sang. They meet and a fight follows in which Du Sang and Karg are killed and Sam taken prisoner. Lloyd sees Smith thrown from his horse and thinks he is dead, so he rides to Medicine Bend for help. Marion hears him say that Smith is dead. She is carried to her house where she lies ill.

Sinclair and his men return to Medicine Bend the same night. Sinclair insists that his wife accompany him out of the country. She refuses. He is about to kill her rather than leave her for Smith, when the doctor arrives and tells him to get away, before the town learns he is there. Sinclair takes his advice. That same evening Smith rides into town with his captives. On his death-bed Banks gives Smith the warrant for Sinclair's arrest and tells him to serve it.

After several days of trailing them, Smith and Wickwire came upon them in an arroyo drinking from the stream. They dismount and Wickwire starts to skirt out around to take them on the flank. After Wickwire leaves, Smith shoots and kills two of the men leaving only Sinclair who manages to wound Smith in return. When Smith falls, Sinclair sneaks through the brush and coming upon Smith, tells him he is going to kill him. He reloads his revolver and is about to shoot Smith, when Wickwire reaches a higher spot of ground and sees it all. He draws his revolver and fires at Sinclair killing him before he has pulled the trigger, and Smith's life is saved. When Smith is well enough to travel, he goes to see Marion. They come to an understanding and are married.

---

MUSTANG.

THE TAMING OF WILD BILL (Two Parts—July 7).—The cast: Wild Bill (Jack Richardson); Bronson (Hugh Bennett); Rita, His Daughter (Nita Davis). Scenario written by Karl Coolidge. Directed by Wm. Bertram.

Bill is just an ordinary happy-go-lucky cowboy when sober, but a few drinks of liquor will transform him into the wildest kind of a human being. Riding furiously through the little camp of White River, he sent its citizens into hiding. Even the sheriff he terrorized, taking his gun away from him, and departing with the sheriff's badge pinned on his own coat. But in the morning he was sober again, and allowed the sheriff to escort him to the jail without a pretense of resistance.

About this time there came to White River an itinerant dispenser of the Gospel, Bronson, with his daughter, Rita. And Rita started out to distribute circulars announcing the first of a series of meetings.

In the jail Bill finds a bottle of liquor on a Mexican prisoner, and soon has it under his belt. The jail at once became too small for him, and breaking out, he started on another rampage. Entering the saloon, he put those present to rout—all except Rita, who had come there to distribute her circulars and, undaunted, she came up to Bill and handed him one.

With the evening Bill hears the music of the services, and concludes to break the meeting up, but Rita sees him, and coming outside, pleads with him to go away, and he consents.

Returning to the saloon, Bill lines up all its inmates and forces them to attend the services of Bronson.

And as Bronson urges those who have sinned to become Christians, Bill thinks of the days when his mother used to read to him, and how she told him that if he would only heed the advice of the Bible, that he would never come to harm.

It came to pass that by the time the series of Bronson's meetings were over, Bill had taken the pledge, and to Rita, he states that he intends to live up to his promises, and that if she only would allow him to write to her, that perhaps some day he may have something personal to ask her.

---

AMERICAN.

KILLED BY WHOM? (Two Parts—July 3). The cast: Mrs. Herbert Murdock (Vivian Rich); Herbert Murdock (Alfred Vosburgh); James Murdock (George Periolat). Scenario written by William Parker. Directed by Carl M. Leviness.

Herbert Murdock, son of Jason Murdock, millionaire factory owner, marries below his social scale and is disowned by his father. Herbert obtains work in his father's factory under an assumed name. The father learns this and has him discharged. Herbert is destitute and desperate. Added to that his wife has just become a mother. He resolves to make a final appeal to his father. He dons the last of his wearable clothes, a white flannel suit. Herbert finds his father obdurate. They quarrel. While they are quarreling the stenographer goes to lunch. When she returns she finds Jason Mur-

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES

Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty-five Thousand .....$3.50
Fifty Thousand.....$5.00
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000, $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

THE ERBOGRAPH WAY OF

DEVELOPING and PRINTING

In the only laboratory in the United States especially constructed for printing of motion picture negatives for producers of features, insures perfect results.

Our plant is equipped with every modern appliance possible to obtain, in order that we may safely guarantee all our work to be absolutely flawless.

Our building is constructed entirely of steel, brick and concrete; equipped with automatic sprinkler system and is absolutely fireproof. The 15,000 feet of floor space affords plenty of working room which insures cleanliness and quick dispatch of all orders.

Don't jeopardize the good work of your director and camera man by having your laboratory work handled by amateurs. Under our system of personal supervision you take no chances.

A visit to our plant will convince you the Erbograph way is the right way.

ERBOGRAPH CO.

LUDWIG G. B. ERB, President

203-211 West 146th Street, N. Y. City, N. Y.

dock, the father, lying dead across his desk. He has been shot through the heart. She discovers that negotiable securities are missing from the desk. Herbert is arrested. Blood is discovered on his coat sleeve.

At the coroner's inquest the stenographer tells of the quarrel and of finding Jason Murdock dead. The detectives tell of the arrest and of the bloodstain. The janitor of the building takes the stand. He entered Murdock's office just as Herbert left. Murdock senior was alive at that time because the janitor talked with him and Murdock called his attention to some children playing on the opposite roof, while he, the janitor, was vacuuming the floor. Herbert Murdock takes the stand. He says his father was alive when he left the office. He explains the blood on his coat sleeve by saying that he helped a newshoy who had fallen and injured himself.

The District Attorney takes a recess to allow the detectives to investigate Herbert's story. The detectives are unable to verify it. The case looks black for Herbert. The inquest is resumed and the jury is just about to render a verdict charging Herbert with the murder, when the janitor rushes in. He hands over the missing securities. He explains that he remembered feeling a congestion in the vacuum cleaner while sweeping the floor and talking to Jason Murdock. His theory is that the securities were blown off the desk and that his vacuum cleaner picked them up and he found them in the dust reservoir. "That explains the loss of the securities, but it doesn't exonerate the defendant of murder," declares the District Attorney.

The jurymen are ready to return their verdict when a woman enters the courtroom dragging a small boy hy the arm. The boy is placed on the stand and tells of playing "Indian" with another boy on the roof opposite Murdock's office and of firing a revolver which "he didn't know was loaded." The boys had seen Murdock crumple up on his desk but were afraid to tell at the time. This exonerates Herbert and there is an affectionate scene between him and his wife. Murdock, Sr., dying interstate his estate goes to Herbert.

VOGUE

THE CHASER CHASED (July 4).—The cast: The Chaser (Rube Miller); His Wife (Alice Neice); Jealous Escort (Arthur Tavares); The Escorted (Madge Kirby).

Ruhe's better half takes Rube to the Beach for a dip in the briny. Previous to their dip she stops at an amusement place called Puzzle Town. There Rube sees a couple of girls who catch his eye. Although they are escorted, he sneaks away from Alice and talks to them. This young man escort objects to, so takes the girls away. Rube then sees Madge, who is escorted hy Art, a jealous sweetheart. Madge accidentally knocks Art's hat off while they are looking down a well. Art goes down in the well to recover it and Ruhe then talks to Madge.

Art returns and takes Madge with him. Ruhe then leaves Puzzle Town and wanders around. While passing a bath house, he sees Art and Maude enter. He enters. Alice gets on the scene in time to see him enter. She follows. Both get hathing suits and both get in the wrong dressing rooms in the absence of the attendants.

On account of Ruhe's habit of flirting, he gets In trouble with the escort of the two girls, then with Art, then with the female attendant of the hath house, etc. There is a chase during which all of the cast get into the wrong rooms. The police are called and there is a general mixup, ending with the whole crowd chasing Rube down the beach.

HIRED AND FIRED (July 9).—The cast: Bill (Paddy McQuire); Bloggie (Ben Turpin); The Director (Arthur Moon); The Leading Lady (Rena Rogers); The Manager (Jack Gaines); Property Man (Ed. J. Laurie). Directed by Jack Dillon.

Bill and Bloggie, youths out of work, are ejected from their dingy room by the janitor and his assistant. Refusing to leave so comfortable an abode, the bungling men fight and knock out the janitor, but not his assistant, until after he forces them to flee down a fire escape. At the bottom of the fire escape, they fall on a cop who is partaking of some alcoholic nourishment. Sending him to dreamland, they manage to obtain a newspaper from which they secure employment at the Vogue Studio.

There they steal one of the property men's lunch, and the theft is blamed on the Tragedian, who is always complaining of hunger. He is about to be discharged when the Director is hit on the head with the lunch pail, and he in anger blames it on Moon, a member of the company. Numerous other side-splitting antics occur, until finally the Director calls Bloggie to play his part.

He has a long, wavy mustache, which Bill, who tries to queer him, ties to one of the scene supporters after bitting him with a dumhell without satisfactory results. As the Director calls for actions, Bloggie starts to enter the set, hut falls, tearing off his mustache, and the scene is marred. After many trials he is discharged, and for revenge, he turns the fire hose loose in the Studio with disastrous effects upon everybody.

The cop they assaulted earlier in the story calls upon the Manager, and as they look over the studio, the cop recognizes Bloggie as one of his assailants. He is too late though, as the hose is doing the work of a dozen policemen and spreading the most amusing comedy yet seen in Vogue pictures. Bill and Bloggie are captured this time, and receiving a dose of their own medicine, they resolve never again to enter a studlo.

Highest Grade

DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

FILM TITLES AT LOWEST PRICES

We Guarantee All Work and Give Prompt Delivery

CAMERA MEN FURNISHED FOR ALL OCCASIONS ON SHORT NOTICE

Standard Motion Picture Company
1620 Mallers Building
5 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago
Telephone Randolph 6692.

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE (Chapter 8—Two Parts—July 10). Cleo and Hope escape. Morton and Olga, meeting tbem, offer a fake excuse for their presence. Mahlin and Satsuma, believing Cleo and Hope are killed, plan to steal their launch when the owners appear. A broken propeller delays departure.

Fitzmaurice agrees to wireless his friend, Dr. Owen, also a book purchaser. Satsuma overhears this. He and Mahlin embark hurriedly for shore. Repairs on Hope's launch proving simple, his party catches the Sandburg train. Mahlin plots their death by wrecking the train. Hope rescues Cleo, but Morton and Olga escape and hurry to Sandhurg. Mahlin is about to get the book when Owen receives the wireless message. Olga also fails.

That night Mahlin enters the Owen house. The doctor returns to discover Olga, who pretends she needs medical treatment. Hope and Cleo reach Owen on the telephone. He promises to deliver the book to them.

Satsuma sees Cleo with a book and grahs it. Dr. Owen, entering a cafe, has a boy page Hope. Morton answers. Hope enters and grasps the situation. He attacks Morton, when the building is wrecked by an earthquake.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 79 (July 5).

Chicago, Ill.—Gas tank explosion kills four. Toy ballon factory wiped out.

Capetown, Cal.—Steamer "Bear" goes ashore on Sugar Loaf Rock. 5 lives lost; many injured.

New York City.—Manicuring the leopard. Park Commissioner Ward officiates.

Marseilles, France.—English troops are cheered as they pass through this city on way to front.

New London, Conn.—Harvard oarsmen are too speedy for Yale. Crimson crews take all 3 events on Thames course.

Lowell, Mass.—State Normal School girls hold a Shakespearean festival.

San Jose, Cal.—Suffragists end coast-to-coast auto trip. The Mayor presents them with the key to the city.

Baton Rouge, La.—Oil tanks floated into position on specially huilt canal. Tanks measure 115 ft. in diameter and canal is one mile long, containing 30,000,000 gallons of water.

New York City.—Famous 7th Regiment off for the front. City's crack regiment will go direct to Mexican horder. Suhtitles—The 71st Regiment leaves at same hour in spirited race to heat the 7th to the horder. 1st Motor Battery starts for camp. Swearing allegiance to the flag. "The Man of the Hour."

Shamrock, Okla.—$40,000 a day waste as hig gas well hurns. Has heen burning 60 days.

Jersey City, N. J.—National Guard off for camp at Sea Girt.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 52 (June 28).

New York City.—At last the word has come and everywhere regiments of National Guardsmen, now full soldiers of the United States, leave their armories to entrain for the Mexican border. Subtitles: Crowds line Fifth avenue to see the famous "Seventy-first" depart. The last moments of parting from their dear ones. Cornelius Vanderbilt Inspects the entraining of the "gallant seventh." Off to duty! determined to protect the Stars and Stripes with the country's heartfelt hlessing for success.

American Fashions—Children's Sults. Snappy, summery costumes for the little folk. By courtesy of "The Manbattan," Broadway, New York. Subtitles: Little Boy Blue middy sult of cadet Irish linen. Sult of plain colored tub silk with hlazes silk sport collar. Striped washable Norfolk suit with detachable silk collar. Yankee Doodle Dandy of black and wbite cbeck Irisb linen. Military costume in vogue. Farragut Naval suit of white tub silk with Navy collar and cuffs. George Washington Army uniform with coat of Navy blue and pants of white silk.

Bridgehampton, L. I.—Cbarles E. Hugbes, the Repuhlican Presidential nominee, arrives with Mrs. Hughes for a short vacation at his summer bome preparatory to startlng bis campaign.

Napanock, N. Y.—Members of the Camp Fire

MUSIC IS THE POWER
—BEHIND THE SCREEN—

¶ The above statement is the result of experience, but it must be the "right music"—not "any music."

¶ And the "right music" must be put in proper form or it is not of practical use in picture-playing.

THE SOLUTION IS

The Printed MUSIC SCORE

Perfectly Synchronized to Fit

ALL PARAMOUNT RELEASES

¶ These scores are so accurately cued that there is no difficulty in playing them without rehearsal.

¶ They are equally effective with any combination of instruments from piano up to 20-piece orchestra.

¶ They save the leader many hours previously spent in hunting through his library for suitable material.

PRINTED MUSIC SCORES SAVE TIME, TROUBLE, MONEY

Read what CARL EDOUARDE, Conductor at the STRAND Theatre, New York, thinks of them.

It gives me great pleasure to state that I have used the musical scores of the Paramount Feature Films with marked success, and find them admirably adapted and practically arranged for the orchestras to be found in theatres of the average exhibitor.

Carl Edouarde

IF YOU ARE NOT RECEIVING THIS SERVICE WRITE YOUR EXCHANGE

3 East 43d St. G. SCHIRMER NEW YORK

Club stage their famous Indian play, "The Fire Test," in their tepee village at Yama Farms. Subtitle: The Scalp Dance.

New London, Conn.—Smashing the twenty-eight year record for the four-mile course, the Harvard Varsity Crew vanquishes the Yale Eight in their fiftieth annual regatta on the Thames. Subtitles: At the two-mile mark. Harvard leads by six boat lengths at the finish.

Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.—New York Police, who have recently undergone a complete course in military instruction, demonstrate their prowess. Subtitles: A sham battle is a feature of the proceedings. The defending cops, after a gallant resistance, are overcome by the valiant attack.

Governors Island, N. Y.—Dr. A. C. Albertson, the inventor of a wheel bomb-thrower, gives a demonstration of the apparatus to Army officers. Subtitle: The controller handle is adjusted so that the trench bomb may be thrown out at any angle desired.

Paris, France.—Thousands honor the memory of General Gallieni, late Minister of War, who saved Paris from Von Kluck in September, 1914. Subtitles: According to custom the General's favorite charger is led behind the hearse.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Hundreds of children enter their prettiest costumes and gorgeously decorate floats in contest for the prizes of Carnival Week. Subtitles: The little tots also sponsor the National Cause. Life was never happier. The resort's noted entertainers participate in the festivities.

Eureka, Cal.—The greatest Pacific sea tragedy in many years is enacted when the S. S. Bear founders off Sugar Loaf Point with twenty-seven lives lost. Subtitle: Miles away from civilization, the survivors camp on the shore.

---

THE IRON CLAW, NO. 19, "The Cave of Despair" (Feature Film Corp.—Two Parts—July 3).—Margery Golden takes a note which she finds Davy writing, and discovers it contains a mysterious direction for opening a certain boulder on the side of a hill. Later, while on a walk, she encounters the sinister Legar, "The Iron Claw," and, following the directions on the paper, opens the boulder and takes refuge in it. The "Claw" and his henchmen follow her, two of the latter meeting sudden and sensational death in the mysterious cave. Margery, backing away from one of Legar's men, is cornered on a shelf in the rock, and is seemingly on the point of death, when "The Laughing Mask," "foe of evil-doers," appears, and coolly disables her assailant. Legar is placed under arrest, and Margery learns the true identity of "The Laughing Mask"; but she does not share her secret with the audience.

---

WHO'S GUILTY? NO. 9, "The Weaker Strain" (Arrow—Two Parts—July 3).—If the wife of a young man, just climbing toward success in his profession, is gifted with an unusually splendid voice; and if she can add to their income by singing in public; and if the husband believes that it is his duty to support his wife and her duty to be content to live within his income—under these conditions, is the wife justified in deciding on a career for herself? This is the motif of a theme worked out in this episode.

Laura Price is the wife of a rising young architect, Tom Price. Her voice brings her fame and adoration, much to the discomfort and final jealousy of her husband, for whom she finally commits an offense for which the law prescribes a terrific penalty.

---

LUKE'S WASHFUL WAITING (Rolin—July 3).—Luke gets an afternoon off and calls for his fair one to give her the air. Luke is a sport. They have an untimely accident, however, and when they pick themselves out of the mud, they hike to the nearest tailor-shop. Bebe, his fair one, can't be accommodated by the tailor, because he's not that kind of a tailor; so she goes next door to a Chinese laundry to be washed and ironed. The places adjoin, and the sweethearts, unable to restrain their ardor, make love through the wall in a series of poetic love-taps.

But it's a long love that has no stitch in time, and Bebe, lacking the conventional accoutrements of public appearance, has a hard time of it with some young gallants who discover in the Chink's place "that indescribable charm." There's a fire to add to the speed of the thing, which ends up in a medley of pants, flat-irons, Luke, a fire-hose, Bebe, a fire-hose, pig-tails, a fire-hose, and —— a fire-hose.

---

NUTTY NEWS (Pathe—Goldberg Cartoon Comedy—July 3).—The picture starts with this injunction: "Before looking at this picture, please check your brains at the box office." It then goes on showing the inspiration and transmission of a series of war-like notes from the Secretary of State to the King of Bologna; the great fire in Dopem and Chokem's Drug Store, causing a loss of $3,70 worth of merchandise and the night watchman's whiskers; Chief T. M. Drowsy, of the Deadbury fire department, whose heroic work in keeping the fire going till the rest of the department woke up, saved the day; and "the Egyptian Bumpus, a strange bird that lives on door knobs and carpet tacks and barks like a fruit peddler." A number of other funny cartoons are shown before the end of the reel.

---

ACROSS THE MALAY ARCHIPELAGO (Pathe—July 3).—The film treats, in a casual way, the big, impressive, typical scenes of the peninsula. The use of elephants as transports; the building of flimsy-seeming bridges across great gorges; coolies working on the roads and in the jungle, etc., etc., all make a half-reel of unusual interest.

---

THE KINKAJOU (Pathe—On the same reel as foregoing).—The Kinkajou, a carnivorous animal of the raccoon family, is found in the wooded regions of Mexico and as far south as Brazil. All of the natural habits of its life are shown in intimate views, even unto its predilection for hanging head down from the boughs of trees.

---

THE IRON CLAW, NO. 20, and Last, "The Triumph of the Laughing Mask" (Feature Film Corp.—Two Parts—July 10).—Legar, escaping from jail, meets death at the hands of his foe, "The Laughing Mask." The latter, cleared of the criminal charges made against him, discloses his identity to all concerned and marries the only sure-enough "peerless, fearless girl," to the exceeding delight of herself and millions of other enthusiastic well-wishers. In the end "The Laughing Mask" discloses his identity.

---

WHO'S GUILTY? NO. 9, "A Trial of Souls" (Arrow—Two Parts—July 10).—This picture shows the criminality of parents' attempts to use their children as pawns in the furtherance of their own desires. The fathers of Rose Mason and Joe Fletcher, sweethearts, are bitter political enemies, and when Mason senior learns that his daughter has eloped with young Fletcher he secures a warrant for the boy's arrest on the charge of abduction, since the girl is under age.

The trial discloses a "skeleton in the closet" in that Rose's father finds that his wife is not the mother of Rose, having adopted the little one while he was away on business, years ago. The mother makes this startling confession in order to prove Rose to be of age, and dies as the result of her emotional stress.

Rose, believing her happiness to be shattered, leaves the court-room, and goes down to the water's edge, where she is later found by the grief-stricken Tom, his bride in death only.

---

LUKE RIDES ROUGH-SHOD (Rolin—July 10).—Luke is discovered on a donkey. He learns by means of signs posted conspicuously that there's a certain Bad Man at large for whom a fat reward is offered. Luke, handling his shooting-irons gingerly, meets up with the wicked one who, thinking he is covered, points to the wide expanse of blue overhead. Luke changes clothes with him and rides into town on the blackleg's pony. He does some spectacular riding and erratic shooting until, chased by the mob, he takes refuge in a barn. "Behold the Indian" comes up behind him, pushes him off the loft, and Luke, hurtling through plenty of cubic feet, lands on the back of a bull. The ending is too funny for description, it must be seen to be appreciated.

---

THE BANG MIU GOLD MINES (Pathe—July 10).—This subject shows one of Japan's sources of wealth. While only moderately rich in mineral wealth, Japan derives considerable profit from her gold mines in Bang Miu, where in recent years foreign methods and machinery have been freely introduced. Every process of refinement, from the time the pneumatic drill makes way for the blasting powder, to the casting of the precious metal into ingots, is described photographically.

---

SOME PORTS IN CATALONIA (Picturesque Spain—Pathe—On the same reel as foregoing).—While Catalonia, Spain, is agriculturally the leading province of Spain, much of its prosperity is due to the commercial points of its many ports, as shown in this scenic half-reel. The town of San Feliu de Guixols, the Death's Head Grotto, the road to Palamos, the Giant Rock, Estardt and the Medes Island are all shown.

---

Triangle Film Corporation

THE DEVIL'S NEEDLE—(Fine Arts—Five Parts—July 16).—The cast: David White (Tully Marshall); Rene, his model (Norma Talmadge); Wynne Mortimer (Marguerite Marsh); Wm. Mortimer (F. A. Turner); Hugh Gordon (Howard Gay). Directed by Chester Withey.

Wynne Mortimer, a pampered society girl and daughter of William Mortimer, a prominent business man, chances to meet David White, a young artist whose fame is already assured, at an art exhibit. Despite the fact that she is engaged to marry Hugh Gordon, the junior partner of her father, she falls in love with

A SURE HIT!

100 Days on The Loew Circuit, N.Y.

NEW YORKER STAATS ZEITUNG

Presents

GERMANY'S BATTLES AT VERDUN

Actual battle scenes—no parades or maneuvers. Played one week at the following houses:

7th Avenue
National
Orpheum
Lincoln
Bijou
Fulton
Avenue B
Circle
Loew's, Newark
Loew's, Hoboken
McKinley Square
Empire Theatre
Jefferson Theatre
Royal
86th Street
West End
New Rochelle
Broadway
Greeley
American
Boulevard
Delancey
DeKalb
Warwick
Palace
Poli, Bridgeport
Poli, New Haven

Now booked for the Poli & Moss Circuit.

4000 feet of action.

Titles in English and German.

State Rights for sale.

SAMUEL CUMMINS, Rep.

1476 Broadway

New York City

Room 904

SEEBURG GUARANTEES RESULTS

PIPE ORGANS and SELF-PLAYING ORCHESTRAS

100% SATISFACTORY

ASK ANY OWNER

Rosewood Theatre

Montrose Ave. and Lincoln St.

One of the handsomest theaters and biggest money makers in the United States—Wanted the best pipe organ—it has a Seeburg. Hundreds of the most successful theaters are using Seeburg organs.

Styles and prices suitable for any size theater.
Valuable information on request.
Address nearest branch.

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO COMPANY

Manufacturers

1004 REPUBLIC BUILDING, CHICAGO

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| BOSTON162 Boylston St. | NEW YORK729 Seventh Ave. | PHILADELPHIA923 Walnut St. | PITTSBURGH791 Penn St. | ATLANTA65 N. Pryor St. |
| MINNEAPOLIS80 So. 8th St. | BEAUMONT, TEXAS702 Pearl St. | FARGO, N. D.Stone Bldg. | ST. LOUIS602 Princess Theatre Bldg. | SAN FRANCISCO52 Turk St. |

the artist. He invites the girl and her father to visit his studio and the invitation is accepted.

Rene, a model, has been in love with David White for years and he has seemingly reciprocated her love. When Wynne Mortimer appears on the scene, however, he forgets all thoughts of love for Rene. The model is quick to realize the change in her lover. Secretly, she has been a user of cocaine. To forget the heartache the growing attachment between her lover and Wynne causes her, she turns to the cocaine.

Wynne, led on by her interest in the artist and his insistence that she is the only one who can justly typify the spirit of a new picture at which he is at work, goes to the studio and poses for him. Hugh Gordon follows her and after a violent scene with the painter takes Wynne to her father, who upbraids her and forbids her to again see the painter.

David is dejected at the loss of Wynne and finally takes to using cocaine. Before he has become a complete victim to the habit, however, Wynne dares her father's vengeance and returns to the studio. She and David finally run away and are married. In his anger Wynne's father turns her from home. David rapidly becomes an habitual user of cocaine and Wynne is forced to return to her home.

Rene, heartbroken at the evil she has done by really being responsible for the drug habit acquired by David, tries to reform him. It is not until David hears his wife, however, declare that she will stick to him as long as he has need of someone to look after him, and he finally manages to throw off the habit he has acquired. He is determined to free his wife of whatever obligation she may feel binds her to him.

Her loyalty to her husband leads Wynne to seek him. Her search takes her into an evil part of the city and she is attacked by a thug. David, who has returned to the city, however, learns that his wife is seeking him and goes to find her. He arrives just in time to rescue her from the den into which she has been carried. When husband and wife are reunited after the horrors through which they have passed the year past, they find that their love has grown stronger and eventually they find happiness.

---

THE EYE OF THE NIGHT—(Ince—Five Parts—July 16).—The cast: David Holden (William H. Thompson); Jane (Marjory Wilson); Rob Benson (Thornton Edwards); Denby (J. D. Lockney); Mrs. Denby (Agnes Herring). Directed by Walter Edwards.

Jane is a comely little slavey in a fishermen's village. The only two friends she has among all the inhabitants are David Holden, the aged keeper of the lighthouse—"The Eye of the Night"—and Rob Benson, a young fisher lad whom she has loved with all her heart. Rob and Jane were to be married as soon as the lad could save enough to build them a little nest by the sea. But then the war broke out and Rob was the first to volunteer. Jane whispered a secret to him the day he was to leave that all but made him back out, but, like everyone else, Rob thought the war was to last only a few days and then he would be back in plenty of time—but he wasn't, and one day a nameless little waif was born in one of the big hospitals in London. In her despair Jane turned to the only friend she had—aged David Holden—and determined to ask him to take her baby and be its father.

David Holden not only takes in the baby but the mother as well, to the resulting indignation of the narrow-minded townspeople, who first demand that Jane be driven out. When David refuses, they manage to secure his dismissal as keeper of the light. And so David, with Jane and the baby, move into the little cottage David has built from his savings and prepare to live out their lives.

While readjusting their lives in the new home, Jane discovers that her mother was David Holden's wife and that her only protector was really her father. But David Holden's wife had run away and left him for another man years and years before and he does not give the girl—his daughter—a chance to make known her discovery to him, simply dismissing the subject of the woman the girl knew to be her mother with a word and a gesture. But Jane cherishes the secret.

War comes close to the little hamlet in which David Holden and his two wards live. One night aeroplanes fly over it, dropping bombs as they sped past. One bomb wrecks the lighthouse. All the village knew that an army transport bearing wounded was making for their port. When David sees the lighthouse wrecked, he determines to guide the ship through the narrow entrance to the harbor at all costs. He deliberately sets fire to his cottage to serve as a beacon to guide the mariners.

The boat reaches the harbor safely, thanks to David, and the next morning, among the first of the wounded to come from the vessel is Rob Benson. His reunion with Jane follows immediately and the tardy marriage ceremony is immediately performed. And then Jane, her own name cleared, tells David Holden that she is his daughter.

JUST DIRT

Look at the bigbest grade films thrown on the screen to-day, and you do not bave to be an expert to see the dust particles that mar an otberwise perfect product. (JUST DIRT.)

Dust is not only noticeable in dark grounds, titles, etc., but can be detected all over the picture by close watching and by comparison witb Crystal Process Films. The difference is at once recognized by even the novice, and certainly by any audience.

Our little two by four ad in the motion picture papers set the screen world thinking, and talking.

We did not know when we adapted or adopted two things (washed air and distilled water) from the Automatic Telephone Business, that we had done anything great, that we had created an epoch in Filmdom, until we began to bear from the field in response to those little hurriedly scribbled ads.

A man does not realize that he is dirty when he is in the midst of dirt, it is only when he compares himself with clean people that he feels dirty.

"Dirt is a matter out of place," says Webster's, and it is surely out of place on your films, where it becomes magnified from 100 to 150 times, making a microscopic particle of innocent dust look like a star of the first magnitude on a perfectly good picture. (JUST DIRT.)

You will now watch the films you will see, and will realize what we mean, because it has been emphasized and because you know there is a remedy for it in Crystal Process Films, made at the present time only in the modern scientific laboratory of the Associated Film Producers.

We have no patent on washing air or using distilled water in developing films, and are happy indeed that we were able to bring to Filmdom so valuable an improvement, for we have cast our lot with you and wish you all prosperity. We want to help make this wonderful industry and art the first in the commercial world, and we will take our chances at getting our share of it, by producing something that the world wants, and doing it just a little bit better than it has ever been done before.

Emerson was right when he said "Let a man build a better mouse trap, write a better book, or preach a better sermon, and though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Keep this in mind when you see films, and when you see a Crystal Process Film on the screen you will not need to look for our trade mark on it, you will know in what laboratory it was developed.

We are glad to serve you Mr. Motion Picture World, and help you eliminate your greatest enemy. (JUST DIRT.)

Associated Film Producers

680-682 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Miscellaneous Subjects

WORLD EQUITABLE.

THE CRUCIAL TEST (Paragon Films, Inc.—Five Parts—July 3).—The cast: Thanya (Kitty Gordon); Vance Holden (Niles Welsh); Alexander Bagroff (J. Herbert Frank); Boris (W. Cohill); Princess (Winnifred Harris). Written by Frances Marion. Directed by Robert Thornby.

Thanya is a woman around whose presence there revolves an atmosphere of mystery. She is located in the Russian Capitol, where she meets Vance Holden, an American artist. Although deeply in love with him, she is coquettish, and he, believing she is trifling with him, leaves her. Alexander Bagroff, Grand Duke of Russia, sees Thanya pass in her carriage and desires to know her. He arranges with a mutual friend to go to her apartment. He becomes infatuated with her but she dislikes him, not only because he is a man long past the prime of life, but for other and more important reasons.

At midnight, after her guests depart, Thanya, in disguise, steals out to a small tavern where she meets Boris, her brother, leader of a club of social revolutionists. The gang is just about to choose a marked coin which will brand one as the man chosen to carry the next mission of death to a ruling power, in this case the most hated man in Russia, Bagroff. Boris draws the marked coin. Thanya falls in a swoon. In an agony of fear, she asks Boris to forsake his society. When he tells her it will be his pleasure to strike at the most hated man in Russia, the Grand Duke, Thanya is startled. Telling Boris of Bagroff's infatuation for her, she promises to assist him in his mission.

Thanya is invited to attend a ball given by Bagroff. She notifies Boris to strike that night at twelve. Boris gains admittance into the grounds, but is discovered near the house. A shot is fired, the guests are terrified. Thanya surmises the cause, she controls herself. Boris, cornered, attempts to gain admittance into the house and lose himself among the guests. As he enters he is shot. Bagroff, believing someone among his guests has betrayed him, orders his soldiers to tie Boris to a pillar, strip him to the waist and lash him with the Russian pronged whip.

As the blood streams down Boris' back, Thanya rushes to him, informing Bagroff that she is the traitor. They are both placed in a cell, where Bagroff offers Thanya her liberty if she will but become his mistress. He is rebuked, and both are sent with a train load of other prisoners to an exile in Siberia. During a storm, they escape and go to Paris. Vance, after leaving Russia, comes to Paris and here he and Thanya are brought together again, reconciled and married. Boris leaves for America.

Vance encounters difficulties in selling his paintings. The following winter Bagroff comes to Paris. A Parisian doctor attending Vance, tells Thanya that he can bring her a client for Vance's pictures. He brings Bagroff, who tells Thanya that through the Prince Kenia he can make all the people of Paris patronize Vance, providing she pay the price herself.

Desperate to obtain the welfare of her husband, Thanya resolves to give herself to Bagroff for a night. The Princess sits for Vance. He becomes popular as if over night. The Princess, going to a week-end party to the country, implores Vance to accompany her. Thanya remains alone in the city and unbeknown to Vance, prepares herself for the terrible ordeal with the Grand Duke. The appointment is made. Bagroff dismisses his servants, Thanya comes, disrobes. As he looks upon his prey with the lustiness he has nourished for years, he is suddenly seized by Boris, who, upon returning from America, learns of Bagroff's presence there, and seeing his servants leave together, enters through a window in time to save Thanya. Pulling out his revolver, Boris makes short work of Bagroff, and immediately sets sail for America.

The news of Bagroff's mysterious death causes the Princess to hurry back to Paris, and Vance returns with her. He finds Thanya in his den, prostrated. He raises her up, but, as she had promised Boris, she tells him nothing of her night's experience. Thanya and Vance open the window, and the sunlight pours into the room, an omen which prophesies a life of uninterrupted happiness for both of them in the future.

---

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL No. 51 (June 27).

New London, Conn.—Harvard's eight oar crew defeats the Yale varsity rowers, and sets a new record for the New London course.

War Section.—General Sarrail, commander of the Allied forces at Salonika, is decorated with a high British order by Sir Bryan Nathan, commander of the British troops in that section.

Forward March!! On to Chicago

The Big Army of Exhibitors and Manufacturers Will Be There to Welcome You at the

Sixth National Exposition

AND CONVENTION OF THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS

League of America and the Motion Picture Industry

Coliseum, July 12th to 18th

Every Day Will Be an

EXHIBITORS' MANUFACTURERS' ALL-STAR } DAY { PICTURES MUSIC DANCING

The Motion Picture Trade

Will be better represented here than in former years

This Exposition will surpass any previous event in the motion picture industry—something doing every minute of the day.

Can You Afford to Stay Away?

Forget the worry of business for a day or so

The newest goods will be displayed awaiting your approval.

The manufacturer will do all in his power to make your visit a joyous one.

The exhibitors of the world will be here to discuss matters for the good of the business.

Do not let this opportunity slip by. Do your utmost to make this exposition and convention the greatest since the birth of our industry.

CONVENTION OPENS

MONDAY, JULY 10th—Hotel Sherman (Official Convention Headquarters)

EXPOSITION OPENS

WEDNESDAY, JULY 12th Coliseum, 7.00 P. M.

Further Information Can Be Had of

WM. J. SWEENEY, Chairman Convention Committee

LOUIS H. FRANK, Manager of Exposition

1413 Masonic Temple, Chicago

CHOICE SPACE CAN STILL BE HAD—WIRE IN YOUR RESERVATION

San Francisco.—Twenty tons of powder are used in one blast in a quarry near this city.

Providence, R. I.—Charles Evans Hughes, Republican nominee for President, attends the commencement at Brown University and marches with his classmates.

Baltusrol, N. J.—Four-year-old children, expert golf players, make remarkable drives and puts, and play the ancient game in more expert fashion than many grown-ups.

Bar Harbor, Maine.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor weds Banker William Karl Dick of New York while a large crowd surrounds the church. The bride gives up the income of $5,000,000 and a magnificent mansion on Fifth Avenue, New York.

Fort Rosecrans, Cal.—Mines that guard the Pacific Coast Harbor are planted from shipboard, and exploded by electricity.

Fashion Section.—The latest decree in bathing suits and caps are shown in ideal setting.

Mexican War Section.—Hundreds of Mexican refugees flee their native land and enter United States over the International Bridge at El Paso. United States troops in the interior of Mexico carefully guard all supplies passing through the region where Carranza troops and American cavalry have been in battle.

National Guardsmen of many states are ready for service on Mexican border. New York's Seventh Regiment parades in review, New Jersey militiamen are encamped at Sea Girt, Massachusetts troops hasten to camp, and President Wilson with Secretary of War Baker review the militia of the District of Columbia.

---

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 52 (June 30).

War Section.—General Galieni, who saved Paris from the Germans, is given a royal military funeral and all Paris turns out to pay tribute to their hero.

Mare Island, Cal.—The United States oil tanker Cuyama is christened by Miss Margaret Offley, and is launched onto the Pacific.

London.—The late Lord Kitchener is honored at a memorial in Saint Paul's Cathedral, attended by King George, Queen Mary and scores of other members of the royal family.

New York.—All the thrills of a policeman's lifetime are pictured at the annual police field day at Sheepshead Bay. The events include capturing runaway horses, saving young women from death and fighting with unruly law breakers.

Constantinople.—The Sultan of Turkey is attended by a guard of heavily-armed men when he rides in state to the Mosque.

Fashion Section.—The season's latest fashions include a marquisette tea gown, blue soiree silk dancing dress and other most recent creations offered by America's most widely known modistes and importers.

Eureka, Cal.—Five persons perish when the steamer Bear is tossed upon the beach by the storm-swept Pacific Ocean.

El Paso, Tex.—General Bell, commanding American troops at Fort Bliss, orders every department of his command into action to prepare for the defence of El Paso against a possible invasion by Mexicans who are concentrated at Juarez.

Off for the Mexican Border.—National Guard troops of the First regiment, Illinois, entrain for the mobolization camp. The Seventh and Seventy-first regiments of New York depart for the border while thousands weep and cheer to speed them on their way.

---

MYSTERIES OF MYRA (Episode No. 11, "The Fire-Elemental" — Two Parts—July 3). — The Master summons before him one of the so-called "elemental" spirits. In this case, it is the Fire Elemental. He appears walking over the coals of a big fire-place, in a rather picturesque costume. The Master offers him a reward of blood if he will bring about the death of Myra, and gives him instructions how to do it.

Meawhile, Alden and Myra, with the aid of a professional medium, conducts a seance in Alden's laboratory. They hope to get a message from Haji, the Hindu ally of Alden, who was killed by the Black Order. The seance starts, and, just as they hear a pencil writing inside of a closed slate, their attention is distracted by the arrival of something behind the curtains of the medium's cabinet. This something comes out, and seems to be the spirit of the departed Haji.

At length he delivers a message to the effect that Myra need have no fear—that the Master is dead, and the Black Order has been disbanded. Though Alden says spirit messages are not always reliable, Mrs. Maynard and Myra hail it with delight, and Myra thinks she need no longer be on her guard.

After Mrs. Maynard and her daughter are gone, the medium returns to consciousness, and shows peculiar symptoms, which cause Alden to investigate. They find the varnished floor marked by hot footsteps, and where the spirit placed his hands on the desk the varnish is burnt. And, finally, within the slate, is the message—that the evil spirit of fire has appeared in the astral shell of Haji.

The U. S. Patent Office
Says It's a New One
HALLBERG
20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR

And has issued another patent to covering this wonderfully efficient machine which costs less than any other for the same capacity for one or two arcs in any size from 20 to 150 amperes, A. C. or D. C. for all voltages.

HALLBERG

Ask for Free Bulletin No. 1

HALLBERG GASOLINE ENGINE AND GENERATOR
is the best and cheapest

DIRECT CONNECTED

4 to 5 Kw. only $450

Ask for Free Bulletin No. 2

POWER'S 6B "SIMPLEX"

I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.

Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue, send 25 Cents.

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY AND CARRY "SPEER," "ELECTRA" AND "BIO" CARBONS AND SUPPLIES.

Send $2.50 for latest Operator's Book "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

J.H.HALLBERG SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER

7th Ave. at 49th St.

The House of Quality

NEW YORK

Alden, alarmed, starts out to warn Myra, who has gone for a horseback ride along the lake. The Master learns of this, and sends all the Black Order out to capture her. While she dismounts from her horse to climb a cliff for a flower, one of the members steals her horse. Others pursue her. She manages to elude them for awhile, and finally runs along the shore, past an old barge. She runs past this wrecked barge, and then returns to it through the water, thus concealing her footprints. In the barge she hides, while the Black Order men pass by in pursuit. But the fire elemental sets the barge on fire. Myra retreats behind a partition, and with water, fights the fire elemental until she is exhausted.

Alden, meanwhile, rigs up a trap in his laboratory, and coaxes the fire elemental in there, and catches him. He releases the elemental on condition that he will let Myra alone. Then Alden calls police headquarters, and finds that the only fire reported is an old wrecked barge, burning on the shore. Alden gets the police to go with him to this barge and they break in, and Alden saves Myra.

The fire elemental, smarting under Alden's handling in his laboratory, returns furiously to the Master and demands his blood sacrifice. The Master hasn't any at hand. The fire elemental, in his fury, seizes him with his hot hands, which blister him wherever they touch. The Master is compelled to provide the blood sacrifice from his own vein, which is merely shown by his taking a knife and preparing to open the vein.

---

V-L-S-E., INC.

KERNEL NUTT AND HIGH SHOES (Vitagraph—July 3).—The cast: Kernel Nutt (Frank Daniels); Mrs. Nutt (Alice Washburn); Mrs. Kopeck (Mrs. Williams); Mitzi (Ethel Corcoran); Bombom (Kalman Matus). Written by C. Graham Baker. Directed by C. Jay Williams.

Chivalrous Kernel Nutt comes to the aid of beauty in distress, when he sees a pretty damsel trying, with small success, to tie her shoe lace which has come open. When he has tied it for her, a baseball, hot off the bat of a young Ty Cobb, hits the lady in the foot and she, thinking Nutt had done it, hits him over the head with her handbag, and then forgets to remove the bag, which, Nutt finds, contains a nice big roll of bills. He takes a manicurist out to lunch and then accompanies her back to her place of business, a beauty parlor, where he is just in time to assume the duties of the boss who is leaving for a vacation. After many amusing incidents, the lady who had treated him so ungratefully, enters the parlor and makes things hot for Nutt, who is finally forced to return the bag full of coin.

---

THE CONFLICT (Vitagraph—Five Parts—July 3).—The cast: Madeleine Turner (Lucille Lee Stewart); Jeanette Harcout (Jane Mortimer); Henry Mortimer (Huntley Gordon); Paul Mordaunt (William Lytell, Jr.); John Turner (Frank Currier); Fred Weyburn (John Robertson); Philip Lynch (Richard Turner). Written by Edward J. Montagne. Produced by Ralph W. Ince.

Two women crave the love of the same man—one is pretty, proud, spirited, and poor—she offers him love. The other is equally pretty, proud, and spirited, but rich—she offers him everything money can buy. The rich one wins. This was not really the beginning of the rivalry of Madeleine and Jeanette—they had had petty differences in their home town when Madeleine, the poor girl, had refused to bend the knee to the other. But with this victory in love is born a new hatred, which Jeanette proceeds to intensify by having the other girl's father discharged from his position, thus forcing her to leave school and work for sustenance.

Madeleine goes on the stage, and years later she is a popular actress. Jeanette, meanwhile, has discarded Paul, in favor of Henry Mortimer, a rising young lawyer to whom she has become attached. Mortimer becomes enamored of Madeleine, who considers him just another of her army of admirers and leads him on as is her custom. Jeanette sees that her rival is trifling with the affections of the man she loves. She goes to Madeleine and beseeches her to send him away or she will ruin two lives. Madeleine consents to her request, but then comes recognition all the old hatred returns. She retracts her promise and determines to marry Henry, though she does not love him, to strike at the heart of the woman who had caused her so much pain. After the marriage she is cold to the affection he showers upon her. Then her path crosses Paul's once more and her old love for him is rekindled.

Henry learns of their association and orders Paul never to enter his house again. A new love is born in Madeleine's breast—the love for her husband. But there is a wide breach between them now caused by her associations with Paul and her gambling habits of which Henry disapproves. He refuses to pay her debts. When Paul calls on Madeleine for a loan, she refuses him and he rifles Henry's safe. That night, Henry notices the deficit and thinking his wife

Paramount Pictures

PRODUCTIONS OF

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO., JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO., THE OLIVER MOROSCO PHOTOPLAY CO., PALLAS PICTURES

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Mary Pickford | Rita Jolivet | Theodore Roberts | Victor Moore |
| Pauline Frederick | Peggy Hyland | Myrtle Stedman | George Beban |
| Marguerite Clark | Geraldine Farrar | Cleo Ridgely | Sesue Hayakama |
| Marie Doro | Edna Goodrich | Valentine Grant | Louise Huff |
| Dustin Farnum | Blanch Sweet | Leonore Ulrich | Frank Losee |
| Donald Brian | Mae Murray | Constance Collier | Vivian Martin |
| William Courtleigh | John Barrymore | Fanny Ward | |
| Ann Pennington | Wallace Reid | Hazel Dawn | |

DISTRIBUTED IN NEW YORK STATE BY

The William L. Sherry Feature Film Co., Inc.

Seven Twenty-Nine Seventh Avenue, New York City

Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions

MALLERS BULDING, CHICAGO. Phone Central 8145.

See Us At The Exposition

COMING ATTRACTIONS

NAT C. GOODWIN'S GREATEST EFFORT

"The Marriage Bond" (5 reels).

Better than program picture in every sense of the word.

"THE YELLOW MENACE,"

A sixteen chapter story that will surpass "KATHLYN" as a box office attraction.

ALL IVAN RELEASES.

One feature a month and that a masterpiece.

Ivan stars include Margaret Snow, Arthur Donaldson, Edward MacKay, Alma Hanlon, Rose Coghlan.

Next release "The City of Illusion," 5 reels. Mignon Anderson. Then, "Her Husband's Wife," 6 reels, with SALLY CRUTE.

All Juvenile Comedy Company's weekly releases with an all star cast of juvenile actors.

First release "CHIP'S BURLESQUE ON CARMEN," 2 reels, then a single reel each week.

OWNERS OF THE GENERAL FEATURE FILM COMPANY

has taken the money to pay her debts, he accuses her of theft and leaves her. Rumors come to his ears that Paul is with his wife, and placing a revolver in his pocket, he starts for the house, intent on settling the affair.

Paul, meanwhile, is trying, with small success, to regain Madeleine's love. When his attentions begin to get offensive, she threatens him with a revolver to keep his distance. Under the influence of liquor, Paul advances toward her, and stumbles over a chair, bruising his head. Madeleine rushes out to the kitchen to get some water, and, while there she hears a shot and returns to find Paul dead and Henry standing over the body. Each believes the other guilty and takes the responsibility for the crime.

Henry is taken into custody; Madeleine's story is not believed. At the trial Henry is saved from dying for another's crime when Jeanette breaks down and confesses that she had been hiding in Madeleine's room on the day of the murder, and when the latter had gone for water she had grasped the opportunity to shoot Paul who, she said, had been planning to tell the truth in regard to the robbery. Knowing that this would bring about a reconciliation between Henry and his wife and that she would never be able to win his love, she had shot Paul and is now willing to suffer for her crime. Out of sorrow and suffering, come faith and love forged anew for Henry and Madeleine.

---

KERNEL NUTT, THE PIANO TUNER (July 10).—The cast: Gus (Frank Daniels); Daughter (Olive Trevor); Father (William Shea); Professor (Donald MacBride). Written by Bide Dudley. Directed by Charles Dickson.

Kernel Nutt has a run of bad luck and finds himself without the wherewithal to appease his hunger. As he is walking along the street, a black bag falls from an automobile and Nutt secures it. After being mistaken for a doctor, a burglar and a few other things, he finally learns that the bag contains piano tuning instruments. He is sent to the home of a banker whose musically inclined daughter is a thorn in his side, and instructed to tune the piano. When he is finished, the piano is a wreck and the banker's daughter is highly indignant that she is unable to treat her friends to a concert. The visitors find Nutt, who has been in hiding, and hold court to determine what punishment he shall suffer. After deliberating, the jury returns a verdict that Nutt has done the neighborhood a service of wrecking the instrument of torture. They give bim a pocket full of money, with which he proceeds to buy out a restaurant.

---

FATHERS OF MEN (Vitagraph—Five Parts—July 10).—The cast: John Howland (Robert Edeson); Robert Blake (William Humphrey); Robert Blake as a child (Bobby Connelly); Jeanne Howland, John's wife (Naomi Childers); Oscar Blake (Harry S. Northrup); Jack Blake (Stanley Dunn); David Blake (Kalman Matus); Paul Crisp (Logan Paul); De Bar, a half breed (Robert Gaillord); Anna (Carolyn Birch).

Howland is a trapper and is supremely happy with his wife, Jeanne, and son, Robert, in their cabin in the north. Blake, a trader, also married is traveling to the nearest trading post. Out with Robert for a sled ride, Jeanne runs her sled into a snow slide, and, but for the timely assistance of Blake, both would have been killed. Jeanne escapes unhurt, but Robert suffers injuries which necessitate an operation. While Howland takes the boy to the nearest doctor, Blake is left to look after Jeanne. In the lonely nights which follow, Blake wins her love and when Howland returns with his son, now recovered, he finds the cabin empty. Howland vows to be avenged on Blake. After some time, the latter tires of Jeanne and leaves her to return to his lawful wife. At home, he finds his three young sons in tears over their mother's death. Sorrowful now for his treatment of Jeanne, he returns to the cabin where he left her but finds that she has already gone.

Twenty years later, Howland, now a lieutenant in the Northwest Mounted Police, tells his son, also a mounted man, of the sorrow which Blake caused him, and Robert joins his father in renewing a vow of vengeance if the scoundrel still lives. When Howland sees Blake by the side of a murdered man, an opportunity for revenge presents itself, and though he knows that Blake did not commit the crime, he succeeds in having him convicted. In escaping from his guards, Blake is fatally shot. In Blake's cabin, his three sons hear of their father's death and against the admonitions of David, the other two set out to repay Howland. After killing the latter and stunning Robert, they take to the trail to escape.

Robert, with two other men, is detailed to track them. When the brothers separate to baffle their pursuers, Robert follows David, but is so spent when he finally catches up with him that he is helpless to capture him, and falls exhausted in the snow. David ministers to him, but when he recovers, through the other's efforts, Robert insists on a duel to square their account. Though reluctant to fight with one with whom he has no quarrel, David is unable to withdraw with honor. As they are preparing for the fight, a weak cry of distress is heard, and they both answer. Running in the direction from which it came, they find a gray haired woman, lost in the wilderness with her two daughters and dying from lack of nourishment. They unite for the protection of the trio and take them to the home of a nearby trapper, where, during the night, the dishonest trapper and his associates bind the two men and prepare to attack the women. Following their brother's trail, the other two Blake boys are just in time to chase the villainous band and rescue their victims. Then the brothers recognize Howland and bitterly denounce him for sending their father to his death. But Robert halts them by telling the story of how the elder Blake brought hishonor on his mother.

After hearing the names of her rescuers, the old woman steps into the breach and tells Robert that she is Jeanne, his mother. After a touching reunion, she tells him of her aimless wanderings since she left his father and explains that the girls are not her daughters, but have been treated as such since the death of their mother. Both Robert and David dld not remember their unfought duel, but the friendship which had sprung up between them, while they fought side by side for a woman's protection, prevents them from drawing guns on each other.

---

METRO PICTURES CORP.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION (Popular Plays and Players—Five Parts—July 3).—The cast: Bianca (Mme. Petrova); Ralph Courtland (Mahlon Hamilton); Grand Duke of Serdian (Arthur Hoops); Pierre Felix (Warren Oland); Allen Tait (Edward Martindel); Carlo (Henry Leone); King of Montenaro (Howard Messimer); Carlotta (Evelyn Dumo). Written by Wallace O. Clifton. Directed by Burton L. King.

Ralph Courtland and Pierre Felix are sitting in their Fifth Avenue Club discussing the eternal question, woman. Ralph contends that it is birth and breeding that make the gentlewoman, but Felix, who is a designer of fashionable apparel, claims in three months he can make a lady of any one he may happen to pick up on the street, simply by dressing her properly. An old organ-grinder and a young woman, leading a monkey by a string, stop in front of the club to gather some pennies, and Ralph and Felix decide to make her the subject of the test. The wager is for $25,000 and expenses and stakes are placed with Allen Tait, a young lawyer.

Ralph goes to California, where his aeroplane is to be entered in a race, and Pierre, fitting out Bianca with beautiful clothes and installing her in a handsome apartment, begins his experiment. Bianca wears her new garments as if born to the purple, and is soon introduced to society at a charity ball and bazaar given by Ralph's mother, Pierre introducing her as a Russian Countess. Ralph returns in time to meet her, and not knowing her identity, is delighted with her. He pays her so much attention that Pierre's jealousy is aroused. Pierre, maddened by her exotic beauty attempts to embrace her, when he escorts her to her new apartments after the ball. She is so infuriated that she returns at once to the old organ-grinder. Pierre apologizes profusely, and persuades her to return, so that he may win the wager.

Ralph and Bianca spend a great deal of time together. They are out horseback riding when Ralph's horse becomes frightened and he is thrown. Bianca is so overcome with fear that she rushes to him and pours forth her love in a torrent of words. Ralph is not badly hurt, and returning to consciousness, hears her and is overjoyed. He proposes marriage to her, and she accepts at once. Later Pierre reminds Ralph that he has lost the wager, since Bianca has been accepted by society. Ralph's affairs are in a precarious condition, and this threatens to ruin him. Then Bianca tells him her real identity. She is the daughter of the King of Montenaro. Being ordered to marry the Grand Duke Seridan, she has escaped to America, taking Carlo, an old servant, with her. Ralph rushes back to the club and prevents Allen from paying over the money to Pierre, since he is the one who has lost.

Pierre, infuriated, vows revenge. He hurries to Bianca and forces her into an automobile. The Grand Duke has come in search of her, and Pierre promises to deliver Bianca to him. He takes her to the Duke's ship, which is in the harbor. Ralph, who has been notified by Bianca's maid that her mistress has been kidnapped, at once follows in his aeroplane, and Allen Tait gets into communication with the government officials to have the ship stopped within the three-mile limit. A cruiser is sent after the boat and stops it, but not before Ralph has dropped to the deck from his airship and fought his way to Bianca. Their immediate marriage puts a stop to further persecution from the Grand Duke.

POWER'S 6 B

Piteco Condensers Improve Projection. Ask About Them.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS

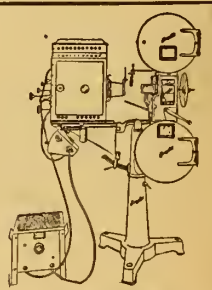
Consult Us For Modern Projection

ASK

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| RIALTO THEATRE | | Brooklyn, N. Y. |
| BISHOP | " | Hoboken, N. J. |
| STRAND | " | Bridgeport, Conn. |
| LYCEUM | " | Monticello, N. Y. |
| RICHMOND | " | N. Adams, Mass. |
| CITY | " | Newark, N. J. |
| ALHAMBRA | " | Torrington, Conn. |
| STRAND | " | Easton, Pa. |
| HYPERION | " | Corona, N. Y. |
| CENTURY | " | Brooklyn, N. Y. |

And Over 1600 Other Theatres in America, Canada, Australia, Cuba, Porto Rico, etc., etc.

Ask About Our Projection Trouble Remedies



SIMPLEX

WE EQUIP MOTION PICTURE THEATRES COMPLETELY.

PICTURE THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO. PROJECTION ENGINEERS Consult us for modern projection

1604 BROADWAY, at 49th Street, New York

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS:—The Publishers expect that all statements made in every advertisement will bear the strictest investigation.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CERTIFIED public accountant of New York, age twenty-eight, desires position as traveling auditor for film company. Best references. L. B., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE operator wants situation; young man, sober habits; European experience. Rudolph Nickel, 3635 Washington Blvd., St. Louis, Mo.

VIOLINIST AND PIANIST at liberty (man and wife). Experienced in high class photoplay work. Will play with orchestra or ourselves alone. $1,000 musical library. Prefer South or West. A-1 reference. Address Leader, 110 W. Market St., Elmira, N. Y.

FIRST-CLASS OPERATOR—Wants steady position, married, sober, reliable. Projection guaranteed any machine. State all particulars. Address Operator, 503 N. Randolph, Champaign, Ill.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

FOR SALE—Small film exchange, doing $300 profit month, can be doubled with more reels. Office fixtures, shipping cases, stationery, accessories. 200 miles to closest competitor. New territory. Must sell account aged parents in South. Partner with cash and reels for manager, considered. N. W. Film Co., Simpson Blk., Great Fall, Mont.

SPECIAL proposition to exchanges to handle our new 101 Features, address K. L. Williams, Bliss, Okla.

ARTISTS, CARTOONISTS—The best equipped studio to photograph animated cartoons. E. Stern, 136 W. 42d St., N. Y. City.

ATTENTION—Film salesman and theater managers: We have an advertising plan that will attract patrons and then keep them patrons. It's dignified, too. Exclusive rights in small towns and liberal commission to salesman. The Standard Silverware Co., 1416 Broadway, N. Y. City.

THEATERS WANTED.

WANTED to lease or buy theater or picture house with stage suitable for vaudeville. Give all particulars, capacity, opposition, etc. Address Newell, Box 92, Oil City, Pa.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker. Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

I MADE $75,000—In 3 years exhibiting moving pictures. I will buy or lease, or operate on shares modern moving picture theater seating 1,000 or more. Must be on good paying basis. Address V. S. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Two moving picture theaters and airdome in town of 4,000; no competition; cash $5,000. Address H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FIRE PROOF PHOTOPLAY HOUSE—Located in the most desirable section in the city of Buffalo. Seating and standing capacity nearly one thousand. Real estate and equipment cost nearly eighty thousand dollars. Our client is not able to manage same on account of other business and he is willing to sacrifice for forty-seven thousand five hundred. Reasonable payments down; balance mortgage 5%. A fortune is awaiting the right man. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker of America, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEVER—In the history of the moving picture business was there such an opportunity to buy one of the leading movies that is now doing a business of two thousand to two thousand five hundred per week. It has made nearly one hundred thousand dollars profit within the last three years. Long and favorable lease; open from ten A. M. till eleven P. M. Price $90,000 or offer. Terms to responsible people. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker of America, 580 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

MODERN THEATER—Georgia town of about 8,000; best equipment; good chance live man. Price $2,750 if sold at once. Terms responsible party. Address Modern, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

$75.00 WEEK—On $1,500 investment; picture theater fully equipped, center of busiest city in the world, long lease, speak quick. Address C. T., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—First-class motion picture theater, modernly equipped. One of the best locations in a city of 300,000 population. Reason for selling on account of the death of some of the principal stockholders. Address at once E. D. Bennett, 1103 Inter-Southern Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

OPERA CHAIRS—3,000 slightly used 50c. up. 600 upholstered reasonable. Airdome seats new 80c. Maple folding 40c. Camp chairs and benches for tents. Write for catalog with direct factory prices. Atlas Seating Company, 10 E. 43d St., N. Y. City.

TWELVE HUNDRED—(1,200) seats, full set of scenery, stage rigging, picture booth, and machine, piano, office fixtures and large electric sign, being the contents of a modern theater. Address J. G. Forney, Lancaster, Pa.

FOR SALE—400 red plush opera chairs, seat 4 in. deep, original cost $9.00 each, will sell in lot at 90c. each. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—275 16 in. opera chairs, first-class condition. 60c. each, F. O. B. Chicago, prompt shipment. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Power's 6A, new condition, $195.00, complete with lenses and rheostat; B. & H. Compensarc 110 Vts. almost new, $32.50. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Atlas No. 1 model moving picture machine, perfect condition, including rheostat, $45.00. Just the thing for home, church and social work—a big bargain at the price. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—150 mahogany chairs, 20 inch, first-class condition, 75c. each. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—2 Simplex M. D. machines used three months, sacrifice. Wm. Orr, 921 E. 61st St., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—One Ft. Wayne, 110 Volt Compensarc, $30; one Royal 110 Volt Economizer, $20; one portable asbestos cloth booth, $35; two A. C. Excello flaming arc lamps 17 hours, $40. All practically new. Write J. H. Duncan, 622 West 137th Street, N. Y. City.

ENLIST TODAY—Against the movies' greatest enemy—Eye strain. Join the army of successful exhibitors using "Amberlux" lens filters. Complete with advertising slide, $3.50. W. D. Warner, United States Distributor, 709 Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Slightly-used Simplex projectors, guaranteed perfect and good as new at reasonable prices. Second-hand Motiograph in good condition, cheap. Room 206, 1482 Broadway, N. Y. City.

THEATER CHAIRS—2,500 slightly used guaranteed good condition, wood folders, canvas chairs, benches. Empire Exchange, Corning, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Power's 6 machine, just overhauled, with lenses and rheostat, $95.00; Little Giant Inductor, $15.00, deposit required with order; balance C. O. D. subject to inspection. Maryland Amusement Co., 2609 Tilbury St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

FOR SALE—Cheap and in first-class condition, Power's 6A and Edison moving picture machines; also Fort Wayne compensarc. H. David, 711 South Kedzie Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE.

WURLITZER—One man orchestra, style "O," for sale; with music rolls. Hardly used, will sell at sacrifice. Colonial Theater, Corona, L. I., N. Y.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

PATHE PROFESSIONAL CAMERA—Best on the market, good as new, perfect rock steady negative; also tripod complete with or without camera. Camera alone $250. Charles R. Svinning, 1411 E. 72d St., Chicago, Ill.

"TRENT," who wants to buy a camera, please write again to Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

REAL BARGAINS—Vista F.6 lens, $45.00; Kinograph, 150 ft., $60.00; Kinograph, 200 ft., $65.00; Pittman, Jr., 200 ft., $90.00; Prestwich, $175.00; Peters, aluminum, $150.00—all F.3.5 lenses, 50 millimeter. Carl Zeiss lens, $50.00, tripods, $20.00 to $50.00. Printer, $20.00. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

FOR GUARANTEED CAMERAS and tripods, lenses and shutters, write to the only reliable dealer and specialist who knows and does what you require. H. R. Hoover & Co., 10 East 14th St., N. Y. City.

OUR NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman professional camera, automatic dissolve, automatic take up, both directions, 400 ft. magazines. The most up-to-date camera on the market. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., N. Y. City.

ARE YOU A LIVE WIRE?—The summer season is on. Why not get in on the big money taking motion pictures? Big money in taking them for news, advertising and home talent. We are specialists in equipping beginners. Our expert will be pleased to inform you if your locality can be made to pay. Estimates on complete outfits cheerfully given. Highest grades developing and printing, title work and assembling. Our laboratory is equipped to handle all orders from 50 feet to 10,000 feet. Immediate service. Bargains always on hand in tested Motion Picture Cameras from $45.00 up. All makes Erneman, Williamson, Kinograph, Prestwich, Pathe, etc., etc. Every machine guaranteed. Write today. David Stern Co., 1947 R. W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill. In business since 1885.

FILMS WANTED.

WILL BUY—Features in good condition with posters in any quantity, large or small if price is right. P. O. Box 583, Detroit, Mich.

WANTED TO BUY—"John Barleycorn." Colored "Transformation Baby Picture." 5 reel "Uncle Tom's Cabin." M. E. T. Film Co., Saint Paul, Minn.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

OVER SEAS BUYERS should communicate with me, second-hand American pictures at European prices. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—3-4 and 5 reel features in good condition, posters for all subjects. Also Chaplin single reels. Select Film Service, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

WE SPECIALIZE IN USED EDUCATIONAL, INDUSTRIAL, SCIENTIFIC AND SCENIC FILMS. GOOD SUBJECTS AT 1½C PER FOOT AND UP. WE HAVE WHAT YOU WANT. SEND FOR OUR LISTS AND TERMS. NEW YORK FILM LABORATORIES, FILM SALES DEP'T, 145 WEST 45TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

500 AMERICAN MAKE—Single reels consisting of dramas, westerns and comedies. No posters at $2.00 per reel. Cash with order. Full reels. Try two or three and be convinced of the condition. Federal Feature Film Co., 119 E. 23d St., N. Y. City.

SIX HUNDRED REELS FOR SALE—Including posters at $3.50 each; consisting of Essanay Chaplins, Keystone Chaplins, Biograph reissues, Keystones, dramas, comedies, scenics and educationals. No picking, must be sold as a whole for cash only. We are retiring from the exchange business. Globe Film Exchange, 935 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE—500 reels. 1-2-3-4 reel subjects, in good condition; plenty of paper. B. F., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AMATEURS—Let us do your developing and printing, send your negative, prices, workmanship right. Standard Motion Picture Co., 1620 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 448
Adolfi, John G., Director of Successes..... 464
After the Quake and Fire..... 491
"Ambition" (Fox) ..... 472
Apollo Theater, Kansas City, Mo..... 424
Ask Aid of Theaters..... 484
Atlanta, Ga., Claims Nineteen Model Houses 404
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 459
Australian Notes ..... 469

Baker, George D., Joins Metro..... 463
Baltimore Has Long List of Motion Picture Pioneers ..... 383
Baltimore Operators Hear Richardson..... 438
Bangor, Maine, Had One of the First Keith Houses ..... 388
Baron, William ..... 425
Bay State League Joins National Body..... 464
"Black Magic" (Kalem)..... 474
Bluebird Keeping Public Promises..... 465
Brady's Quest for Atmosphere..... 462
Breaking Into Panama..... 462
Brennan, Edward, Now a Director..... 433
British Notes ..... 447
Buffalo, N. Y., Names Mitchell Mark as Favorite Son ..... 391
Buffalo's First Ten-Cent Exhibitor..... 391

Calendar of Daily Program Releases....508, 510
California's Big Film..... 505
Canadian Film Promised..... 507
Censor Referendum in Spokane..... 494
Chicago Convention and Exposition..... 431
Chicago News Letter..... 439
Chicago Reports Many Variations in Picture Shows ..... 413
Cincinnati's Contribution to Ancient Picture History ..... 390
Cine Ideal, Santurce, San Juan, P. R..... 425
Cleveland, O., Boasts of Some "Pioneer" Picture Men ..... 393
Cobe Reports Business Good..... 461
Coming Selig Productions..... 461
Comments on the Films..... 476
"Conflict, The" (Vitagraph)..... 470
Court Proceedings ..... 435
"Crucial Test, The" (World)..... 471

"Decoy, The" (Mutual)..... 472
Denver, Colo., One of Our Greatest Picture Towns ..... 376
Deny Violation of Sherman Law..... 435
Detroit, Mich., The Home of the Famous "Duplex" ..... 397
"Dupe, The" (Lasky)..... 475

Empire State Delegation to Chicago..... 464
Essanay Three Months Ahead..... 461
"Eternal Question, The" (Metro)..... 471
Evolution of Exhibiting, The..... 367
Exclusive to Make One a Month..... 461
"Eye of the Night, The" (Ince)..... 473
Exhibitors in Arms..... 506

Factory Methods Will Ruin Pictures..... 466
Facts and Comments..... 427
Farnham, Joe, Marries..... 442
Films and War Censorship..... 486
Flintom In on Ground Floor..... 389
Fourth Film Outing..... 483

"Gloria" Projected Over the Ocean..... 478
"Gold and Glitter" (Biograph)..... 470
"Grasp of Greed, The" (Bluebird)..... 474
Great Tribute to Lee A. Ochs..... 433

"Hale's Tours and Scenes of the World".... 372
Hamilton, William E..... 435
Hotaling, Arthur, Recalls the "Good Old Days" ..... 380
"House of Discord, The" (Biograph)..... 470

Inception of the "Black Top," The..... 368
Indiana Indorses Rembusch for President... 431
Indianapolis Shows Unusual Growth in Ten Years ..... 411
Irritating Censorship ..... 504

Jenkins, C. Francis, Tells of First Projector 418

Kalem "Smash Up" Week..... 463
Kalem Working on a New Western Serial.... 460
Kansas City, Missouri, First Theater Still Running ..... 381
Kansas City Screen Club Elects Officers..... 433

Laemmele, Carl, Made Start in Chicago "Store Show" ..... 420
List of Current Film Release Dates....540, 542, 544, 546
"Little School Ma'am, The" (Fine Arts).... 473
Los Angeles, Studio Center, Has Pioneer Exhibitors ..... 416
Louisville, Kentucky, History Covers but Ten Years ..... 396

"Macbeth" (Big A)..... 471
Majestic Theater, San Francisco, Cal..... 425
Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 479
Mitchell, Rhea ..... 417
Motion Picture Exhibitor, The..... 430
Motion Picture Photography..... 456
Munsterberg on the Photoplay..... 436
Music for the Picture..... 457

"Nation" Film Suit Fails..... 485
New Aristo Theater, Louisville, Ky..... 423
New England Figures Theater Values by Millions ..... 407
New Orleans, La., Records Wonderful Development ..... 403
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 441
News Reel ..... 426
New York City Holds Record for Earliest Exhibiting ..... 370

Observations by Man About Town..... 446
Our "Hopp" Some Pioneer Picture Man..... 421
"Out of the Flotsam" (Luhin)..... 470

Passing of the Bijou, The..... 392
Pathe Plans Greater Program..... 459
Pennslyvania Elects Sahner President..... 430
Peters, Page, Drowned..... 461
Philadelphia, Pa., Lays Claim to an Early Date ..... 386
Photoplaywright, The ..... 451
Picking Successor to "Diamond" Serial..... 463
Picture Theaters Projected..... 482
Pittsburg, Pa., Has a Record Date for "Store Shows" ..... 405
Pittsburgh's New Code..... 487
Poor Business on Border..... 490
Portland, Ore., Looks Back Over Ten Years. 409
Projection Department ..... 452

"Return of John Boston, The" (Luhin)..... 470
Reviews of Current Productions..... 470
Richardson's Rambles..... 443
Richardson Reviews Past and Present Projectors ..... 419
Rock, Smith and Blackton Were Pioneer Exhibitors ..... 379

St. Louis, Missouri, "One of Our Best Picture Towns" ..... 394
Salt Lake City, Utah, Registers a Few Exhibitors ..... 387
San Francisco, Cal., Dates Back to the year 1894 ..... 399
Screen Writers Must be Developed ..... 467
Scott, Fred. T., a Diplomatic Manager..... 392
Selig Chicago Plant A Big One..... 463
Serial Idea in Porto Rico, The..... 444
Smaller Theater Must Have Variety..... 437
Snow, Marguerite, Ivan Star..... 467
Soverign'st Thing on Earth, The..... 428
Spokane, Wash., Dates its First House From 1908 ..... 375
Spokes from the Hub ..... 445
Stories of the Films ..... 512

"Temptation and the Man" (Universal)..... 475
Three Candidates for National President.. 432
Too Much for a Dime..... 488
Toronto, Can., Claims Birthplace of "Little Mary" ..... 410
Two Biograph Reissues ..... 470
Two Large Feature Companies Combine..... 434
Two Lubin Releases..... 470
Two Triangle Subjects ..... 473

Unicorn Spreading Over Country..... 464
Union Operators Win ..... 507
Universals for the Week of July 10..... 438

"Valiants of Virginia, The" (Selig)..... 472
Vancouver, B. C., started with "Hales' Tours" in 1905..... 373
Victoria Theater, Buffalo, N. Y..... 422

"Where Is My Father" (Exclusive)..... 474
Where John R. Freuler Got His Start in Pictures ..... 378
Who Made the First Picture..... 408
"Woman Who Dared, The" (California)..... 473
Would Censor Carnivals..... 489
Wright, George..... 466

Zukor, Adolph, Quits Furs for Films..... 415

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack ..... 560
National Carbon Co..... 545
Speer Carbon Co..... 549

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co..... 561
Steel Furniture Co..... 561

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 558
Calehuff Supply Co..... 560
Erker's. ..... 513
Foos Gas Engine Co..... 560
Fulton, E. E..... 524
General Electric Co..... 562
Hallberg, J. H..... 534
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 557
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 560
Kleine Optical Co..... 546
Lears Theater Supply Co..... 524
Lucas Theater Supply Co..... 560
Northwestern Electric Co..... 551
Picture Theater Equip. Co..... 536
Porter, B. F..... 552
Stern Mfg. Co..... 561
Strelinger, Chas. A..... 548
Sturtevant, B. F., Co..... 551
Swaab, Lewis M..... 558
Vindex Electric Mfg. Co..... 561
Wagner Electric Mfg. Co..... 521
Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co..... 543

FILM EXCHANGES.
Balaban-Hershberg Film Attractions..... 535
Bradenburgh, G. W..... 560
Cummins, Samuel. ..... 530
Midwest Theater Supply Co..... 552
Piedmont Film Mart..... 522
Pioneer Feature Film Co..... 518
Reliable Feature Film Co..... 548
Sherry, Wm. L., Feature Film Co..... 535

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
Bausch & Lomb Optical Co..... 539

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Commercial Film Co..... 482
American Film Co., Inc.....358-60
Balhoa Amusement Producing Co..... 491
Big A. Film Corp..... 520
Biograph Co. .....339, 508
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.....Colored Insert
Emerald Motion Picture Co..... 548
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....342-46
Equitable Motion Picture Corp..... 365
Eva Tanguay Films..... 511
Exclusive Features, Inc.....514-15
E. & R. Jungle Film Co.....Colored Insert
Famous Players-Lasky Corp.....Colored Insert
Frohman Amusement Corp..... 335
Gaumont Co. ..... 355
Great Northern Film Co..... 482
International Film Service..... 354
Ivan Film Productions ..... 341
Juvenile Film Corp..... 336
Kalem Co. ..... 366
Kleine, George ..... 363
Lesser, Sol L..... 522
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Monrovia Feature Film Co..... 497
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored Insert, 356-57
National Drama Corp..... 362
Oliver Morosco Photoplays Co....Colored Insert
Pallas Pictures.....Colored Insert
Paramount Pictures Corp.....Colored Insert
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....Colored Insert, 347-49
Powell, Frank, Productions, Inc..Colored Insert
Thos. H. Ince's "Civilization"..... 337
Triangle Film Corp.....352-53
Unicorn Film Service Corp..... 338
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....332-34
Vim Comedies ..... 509
Vitagraph Co. of America..... 340
V-L-S-E, Inc. .....Colored Insert
Vogue Films, Inc..... 361
World Film Corp.....L..... 350-51
Young, Clara Kimball, Film Corp..... 364

MISCELLANEOUS.
Associated Film Producers..... 532
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co..... 554
Bioscope, The ..... 558
Botanical Decorating Co..... 561
Burton, Charlotte. ..... 499

Caille Bros. ..... 520
Cinema Camera Club ..... 520
Classified Advertisements ..... 537
Cine Mundial ..... 556
Corcoran, A. J. ..... 555
Del Ruth, Hampton ..... 498
Eastman Kodak Co. ..... 558
Erbograph Co. ..... 527
Evans Film Mfg. Co. ..... 549
Federal Sign System (Electric) ..... 550
General Chemical Co. ..... 556
Gibson, Helen ..... 500
Glover, John ..... 558
Godsay, Ellen ..... 500
Green, Patrick A. ..... 522
Griffith, D. W. ..... 493
Gunby Bros. ..... 512
Ham & Budd ..... 498
Hart, William S. ..... 501
Il Tirso Al Cinematografo ..... 482
Imperial Film Mfg. Co. ..... 549
Kelly, Anthony P. ..... 519
Kinematograph Weekly, The ..... 556
Kraus Mfg. Co. ..... 524
Lois Weber & Phillips Smalley ..... 496
MacDonald, Wallace ..... 499
MacQuarrie, Murdock J. ..... 524
MacQuarrie, Clarice Manning ..... 501
Marion, Louise M. ..... 558
Millarde, Harry ..... 500
Mlle. Valkyrien ..... 559
Motion Picture Electricity ..... 551
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon ..... 549
M. P. Directory Co. ..... 482
Kineto Mch. Co., Inc. ..... 550
Moore, Wm. N. ..... 561
National Cash Register Co. ..... 547
National Ticket Co. ..... 526
Norbig Film Co. ..... 501
Pacific Tank & Pipe Co. ..... 502
Richardson's M. P. Handbook ..... 557
Richardson, F. H. ..... 558
Roland, Ruth ..... 495
Rothacker Film Mfg Co. ..... 563
Russacove Can Co. ..... 553
Russell, William ..... Colored Insert
Sennett, Mack ..... 494
Shipman, Nell ..... Colored Insert
Signal Film Co., Artists ..... 492
Sixth National M. P. Exposition ..... 533
Solidhead Tack Co. ..... 555
Sosman & Landis ..... 548
Standard Motion Picture Co. ..... 528
Teare, Ethel ..... 500
Trade Circular Addressing Co. ..... 558
Willis & Inglis ..... 497

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Koehler Optical Co. ..... 548
Los Angeles M. P. Co. ..... 502
Motion Picture Apparatus Co. ..... 556
Universal Camera Co. ..... 553

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photoplayer Co. ..... 518
Deagan, J. S. ..... 555
Harmo Electric Co. ..... 482
Harmo Pipe Organ Co. ..... 560
Schirmer, G., Inc. ..... 529
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co. ..... 531
Simon, Walter C. ..... 561
Sinn, Clarence E. ..... 561
Symphony Player Co. ..... 539
Wangerin-Weickhardt Co. ..... 557
Wurlitzer, Rudolph, Co. ..... 525

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Goes Lithographing Co. ..... 518
Menger & Ring ..... 561
National Poster Co. ..... 549
Newman Mfg. Co. ..... 555

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Mch. Co. ..... 548
Enterprise Optical Co. ..... 523
Power, Nicholas, Co. ..... 564
Precision Mch. Co. ..... 554

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc. ..... 560
Gold King Screen Co. ..... 550
Ornate Mfg. Co. ..... 558
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc. ..... 524
Wonder Screen Co. ..... 502

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Decorators' Supply Co. ..... 541

WE BUILD

ORGANS and ORCHESTRIONS

WITH ELECTRIC ACTIONS

Write for Catalog

THE SYMPHONY PLAYER CO.

FACTORY
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY

A Wealth of Invaluable Information which you can turn to immediate profit in the conduct of your business no matter what branch of the moving picture industry you are in, is contained each week in

The MOVING PICTURE WORLD

It is our constant aim to make our publication useful.
The information each issue carries is carefully weighed.

You should read:

Epes Winthrop Sargent on ADVERTISING FOR THE EXHIBITOR and THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT
F. H. Richardson on PROJECTION

Our Fair and Impartial Reviews of Current Photoplay Productions

THE GOSSIP OF THE PICTURE TRADE THE COUNTRY OVER GARNERED BY OUR OWN SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS

As a member of the large and constantly growing family of Moving Picture World readers you are also entitled to other special services which you will find helpful in your business.

Use this coupon in entering your subscription. The sure way to get each issue promptly is to have us mail it.

Published by

The Chalmers Publishing Co.

17 Madison Avenue New York City

RATES
Domestic, $3.00
Canada, $3.50
Foreign, $4.00

Enclosed find ..... for which please enter my subscription for ..... beginning with the next issue.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 508, 510.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem, Vim Feature Comedy.

Thursday—Lubin, Selig, Vim.

Friday—Kalem, Knickerbocker, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

June 19—A Misunderstood Boy (Drama) (Biograph-Reissue No. 56).
June 20—The Reformers (Two parts—Drama) Biograph—Reissue No. 57).
June 26—The Unwelcome Guest (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 58).
June 28—A Fair Rebel (Three parts—Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 59).
July 3—The Blue or the Gray (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 60).
July 4—His Trust and His Trust Fulfilled (Two parts—Drama (Biograph Reissue No. 61).
July 10—The Squaw's Love (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 62).
July 12—Men and Women (Three parts—Dr.). (Biograph—Reissue No. 63).
July 17—The Informer (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 64).
July 18—By Man's Law (Two parts—Drama) (Biogoraph—Reissue No. 65).

EDISON.

May 24—The Cecropia Moth (Educ.).
—Tom the Tamer and Kid Kelly (Cartoon).
May 30—Helen of the Chorus (Three parts—Drama).
June 6—The Stoning (Three parts—Drama).
June 7—Love's Labor Lost (Cartoon).
—Camping With the Black Feet Scenic).
June 13—The Man in the Street (Three parts—Drama).
June 14—The Charge of the Light Brigade Drama) (Reissue).
June 20—Out of the Ruins (Three parts—Dr.).
June 21—The Pied Piper of Hamelin (Juvenile—Drama).
June 27—The Southerners (Three parts—Dr.).

ESSANAY.

June 10—Fool's Gold (Three parts—Drama)
June 13—Putting It Over (Two parts—Com.).
June 14—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 11 (Cartoon—Com.).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
June 17—The Promise Land (Three parts—Drama).
June 20—The Girl at the Curtain (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue).
June 21—The Fable of "The Undecided Brunette" (Comedy).
June 24—A Traitor to Art (Three parts—Dr.).
June 27—The Voice in the Wilderness (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue).
June 28—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of St. Louis (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
July 1—The Regeneration of Margaret (Three parts—Drama).
July 4—The Fable of "The Fearsome Feud Between the First Families" (Two parts—Comedy).
July 5—Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 12 (Cartoon).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
July 8—Power (Three parts—Drama).
July 11—The Private Officer (Two parts—Dr.). (Reissue).
July 12—The Fable of "The Small Town Favorite Who Was Ruined by Too Much Competition" (Comedy).
July 15—The Secret of the Night (Three parts—Drama).
July 18—The Other Man (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue).
July 19—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of New Orleans (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
July 22—The Grouch (Three parts—Comedy-Drama).

KALEM.

June 19—In the Service of the State. (No. 13 of the "Social Pirates.") (Two parts—Drama.)
June 20—The Beggar and His Child (Comedy).
June 21—That Lovely Widow (Comedy).
June 23—Her Great Invention (Comedy).
June 24—The Mysterious Cipher (No. 85 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
June 26—The Music Swindlers (No. 14 of the "Social Pirates"—Two parts—Dr.).
June 27—The Explorer (Comedy).
June 28—The Lotus Woman (Five parts—Dr.).
June 28—When Opportunity Knocked (Com.).
June 30—Setting the Fashion (Comedy).
July 1—The Engineer's Honor (No. 86 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
July 3—Black Magic (No. 15 of the "Social Pirates"—Two parts—Drama—Last number).
July 4—The Peach Pickers (Comedy).
July 5—Notch Number Nine (Drama).
July 7—The Psychic Phenomenon Comedy).
July 8—Hazards of Helen Railroad Series, No. 87, "To Save the Road" (Drama).
July 11—The Baggage Smashers (Comedy).
July 12—The Quack Quakers (Comedy).
July 14—The Wishing Ring (Comedy).
July 15—The Broken Brake (No. 88 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).

LUBIN.

June 19—Otto's Legacy (Comedy).
June 22—Love Is Law (Three parts—Drama).
June 24—Persistency (Comedy).
June 26—No Place Like Jail (Comedy).
June 27—Out of the Flotsam (Two parts—Dr.).
June 29—The Return of John Boston (Three parts—Drama).
July 1—Edison Bugg's Invention (Comedy).
—Under a Barrel (Comedy).
July 3—Otto the Traffic Cop (Comedy).
July 6—The Stolen Master (Three parts—Drama).
July 8—A Terrible Tragedy (Comedy).
—The Rival Queens (Comedy).
July 10—Otto, the Sleuth (Comedy).
July 11—The Half Wit (Two parts—Drama).
July 13—Expiation (Three parts—Drama).
July 15—Hang on Cowboy (Comedy).
July 17—Otto's Vacation (Comedy).
July 20—The Rough Neck (Three parts—Dr.).
July 22—Americans After All (Comedy).

SELIG.

June 17—The Cowpuncher's Peril (Drama).
June 19—Selig-Tribune, No. 49, 1916 (Topical).
June 19—The Reprisal (Three parts—Drama).
June 22—Selig-Tribune, No. 50, 1916 (Topical).
June 24—Taking a Chance (Drama).
June 26—The Sacrifice (Three parts—Drama).
June 26—Selig-Trihune, No. 51, 1916 (Topical).
June 29—Selig-Tribune, No. 52, 1916 (Topical).
July 1—The Girl of Gold Gulch (Western—Drama).
July 3—The Return (Three parts—Drama).
July 3—The Selig-Tribune No. 53, 1916 (Top.).
July 6—The Selig-Tribune No. 54, 1916 (Top.).
July 8—Some Duel (Western—Comedy).
July 10—A Milk White Flag (Three parts—Comedy).
July 10—The Selig-Tribune, No. 55, 1916 (Top.).
July 13—The Selig-Tribune, No. 56, 1916 (Top.).
July 15—Legal Advice (Comedy).

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

July 5—Housekeeping (Comedy).
July 12—A Spring Cleaning (Comedy).
July 19—The Connecting Bath (Comedy).

VIM.

June 22—Never Again (Comedy).
June 23—For Better or Worse (Comedy).
June 29—Better Halves (Comedy).
June 30—For Value Received (Comedy).
July 6—A Day at School (Comedy).
July 7—Furnished Rooms (Comedy).
July 13—Spaghetti (Comedy).
July 14—The Great Safe Tangle (Comedy).
July 20—Aunt Bill (Comedy).
July 21—Help! Help! (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

June 5—New York Past and Present (Historical).
June 9—She Won a Prize (Comedy).
June 10—A Strange Case (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
June 12—Her Loving Relations (Comedy).
June 16—Harold the Nurse Girl (Comedy).
June 17—Ashes (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
June 19—Stung! (Comedy).
June 23—Curfew at Simpton Center (Comedy).
June 24—Would You Forgive Her? (Three parts—Drama — Broadway Star Feature).
June 26—The Foxy Trotters (Comedy).
June 30—Losing Weight (Comedy).
July 1—Letitia (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
July 3—Billie's Mother (Comedy).
—A Tour from Bergen to Bandak (Scenic).
July 7—When It Rains It Pours (Comedy).
July 10—Wrong Beds (Comedy).
July 14—The Man from Egypt (Comedy).
July 15—Waters of Lethe (Three parts—Drama) (Broadway Star Feature).
July 17—The Musical Barber (Comedy).
—The Head Waters of the Delalven (Scenic).
July 21—The Fur Coat (Comedy).

---

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

May 20—Miss Adventure (Three parts—Dr.).
May 27—The Primal Instinct (Three parts—Drama).
June 3—Carew and Son (Three parts—Dr.).
June 10—A Strange Case (Three parts—Dr.).
June 17—Ashes (Three parts—Drama).
June 24—Would You Forgive Her? (Three parts—Drama).
July 1—Letitia (Three parts—Drama).
July 15—Waters of Lethe (Three parts—Dr.).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

June 2—Shadows (Three parts—Drama).
June 9—The Stained Pearl (Three parts—Dr.).
June 16—An Old Man's Folly (Three parts—Drama).
June 18—Pay Dirt (Five parts—Drama).
June 23—The Ancient Blood (Three parts—Drama).
June 30—The Head of the House (Three parts—Drama).
July 7—The Crooked Road (Three parts—Dr.).
July 14—The Dupe (Three parts—Drama).
July 21—Sibyl's Scenario (Three parts—Dr.).

Visit our Booth at the

Exhibitors' Exposition

CHICAGO

COLISEUM JULY 10-18, 1916

-THE-DECORATORS-SUPPLY-CO.-

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere
Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us
Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs.

Decorators Supply Company

Archer Avenue and Lime Street
CHICAGO - - - - ILL.

If you intend to build a new theatre, remodel an old building or your present theatre, write us before making your plans.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 508, 510.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

June 21—Number 25 (Topical).
June 28—Number 26 (Topical).
July 5—Number 27 (Topical).
July 12—Number 28 (Topical).
July 19—Number 29 (Topical).

BIG U.

June 20—The Grip of Crime (Drama).
June 22—No release this day.
June 28—God and the Baby (Drama).
June 29—Twice at Once (Comedy).
July 6—The Wishing Lamp (Juvenile-Drama).
July 13—The Three Brave Hunters (Comedy)
July 20—His Own Story (Drama).

BISON.

June 17—A Railroad Bandit (Two parts—Drama).
June 24—The Ghost of the Jungle (Two parts—Drama).
July 1—The Money Lenders (Two parts—Dr.).
July 8—The Committee on Credentials (Three parts—Drama).
July 15—The Human Pendulum (3 parts—Drama).
July 22—A Midwinter Madness (Two parts—Drama).

GOLD SEAL.

June 20—The False Part (Two parts—Drama).
June 27—Jackals of a Great City (Two parts—Drama).
July 4—They Wouldn't Take Him Seriously (Two parts—Comedy-Drama).
July 11—Nature Incorporated (Two parts—Comedy-Drama).
July 18—The Crystal's Warning (Three parts—Drama).

IMP.

June 20—His Picture (Comedy).
June 22—Behind the Secret Panel (Three parts—Drama).
June 23—The Heart Wrecker (Comedy—Dr.).
June 27—Peggy and the Law (Drama).
June 30—Blind Man's Bluff (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
July 4—The Clever Mrs. Carter (Comedy).
July 6—The Man Across the Street (Two parts—Drama).
July 7—The River Goddess (Comedy-Drama).
July 11—A Stranger in His Own Home (Com.).
July 14—The Little Gray Mouse (Two parts—Drama).
July 16—Two Seats At the Opera (Comedy).
July 21—Lee Blount Goes Home (Two parts—Drama).
July 23—No release this day.

JOKER.

June 17—Love Quarantined (Comedy).
June 24—The Fall of Deacon Stillwaters (Comedy).
July 1—Bashful Charley's Proposal (Comedy).
July 8—An All-Around Cure (Comedy).
July 15—The Harem Scarem Deacon (Com.).
July 22—She Was Some Vampire (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

June 18—Romance at Random (Comedy).
June 25—The Rogue With a Heart (Drama).
June 29—The Human Cactus (Two parts—Dr.).
July 2—Baseball Bill No. 1 (Comedy).
July 9—No release this week.
July 13—No. 16 Martin St. (Two parts—Dr.).
July 16—Baseball Bill, No. 2, "Flirting with Marriage" (Comedy).
July 19—The Garden of Shadows (Two parts—Drama).
July 22—A Social Slave (Drama).

L-KO.

June 21—The Jailbird's Last Flight (Com.).
June 25—Dirty Work in a Beanery (Comedy).
June 28—Pirates of the Air (Two parts—Com.).
July 2—No release this day.
July 5—A Gambler's Gambol (Comedy).
July 9—Getting the Goods on Gertie (Comedy).
July 12—Ignatz's Icy Injury (Two parts—Comedy).
July 19—A Bold Bad Breeze (Comedy).
July 23—Spring Fever (Comedy).

NESTOR.

June 19—Wanted, a Husband (Comedy).
June 23—What Could the Poor Girl Do? (Two parts—Comedy).
June 26—The Browns See the Fair (Comedy).
July 3—No release this week.
July 7—Double-Crossing the Dean (Two parts—Comedy).
July 10—Henry's Little Kid (Comedy).
July 14—No release this day.
July 17—Kill the Umpire (Comedy).
July 21—The Come-On (Comedy).

POWERS.

June 17—No release this day.
June 22—The Young Sleuths (Comedy).
June 24—No release this day.
June 29—Sammy Johnsin, Magician (Comedy—Cartoon).
—The Children's Paradise (Educa.).
June 30—Such Is Life in China—Hy Mayer Travelaugh (Comedy).
July 6—The Janitor (Comedy).
July 8—"Sports of the Rajah in Mysterious India," as revealed by the Famous Dr. Dorsey Expedition (Educational).
July 13—Sammy Johnsin Gets a Job (Com—Cartoon).
—Mexican National History (Ditmars Educational).
July 15—No release this day.
July 20—The Devil Dancers of India (As seen by Dr. Dorsey) (Educational).

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS.

June 19—The Man from Nowhere (Five parts—Drama).
June 26—It Happened in Honolulu (Five parts—Drama).
July 3—The Way of the World (Five parts—Drama).
July 10—The Heart of a Child (Five parts—Drama).
July 17—The Seekers (Five parts—Drama).

REX.

June 13—No release this day.
June 14—When the Wolf Howls (Drama).
June 18—The Finer Metal (Two parts—Dr.).
June 23—The Rosary (Drama).
June 25—The Fool (Two parts—Drama).
June 27—The Toy Soldier (Comedy).
July 2—The Sting of Conscience (Three parts—Drama).
July 4—The Head of the Family (Drama).
July 9—A Dead Yesterday (Two parts—Drama).
July 11—War Ridden Mexico (Special release).
July 16—The Crimson Yoke (Two parts—Dr.).
July 21—The Phone Message (Drama).
July 23—Branscombe's Pal (Two parts—Dr.).

VICTOR.

June 30—Muggins (Drama).
July 5—Behind the Veil (Two parts—Drama).
July 7—Any Youth (Drama).
July 12—A Conflicting Conscience (Drama).
July 14—Little Boy Blue (Drama).
July 18—The Gentle Art of Burglary (Com.).
July 20—The Belle and the Bell Hop (Two parts—Comedy).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

June 19—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 8, "Outwitted" (Two parts—Drama).
June 26—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 9, "The Leap" (Two parts—Drama).
July 3—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 10, "In the Hands of the Enemy" (Two parts—Drama).
July 10—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring, No. 11, "The Stampede" (Two parts—Drama).
July 17—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring, No. 12, "On the High Seas" (Two parts—Drama).

UNIVERSAL (STATE RIGHTS).

April—The Dumb Girl of Portici (Seven parts Drama).
May—Where Are My Children? (Six parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

AMERICAN.

June 12—Convicted for Murder (Two parts—Drama).
June 19—The Gentle Conspiracy (Two parts—Drama).
June 26—The Fate of the Dolphin (Two parts—Drama).
June 29—Tangled Skeins (Three parts—Dr.).
July 3—Killed by Whom? (Two parts—Dr.).
July 10—Love's Bitter Strength (Two parts—Drama).
July 13—Quicksands of Deceit (Three parts—Drama).

BEAUTY.

June 11—Thinim Stout (Comedy).
June 14—Billy Van Deusen's Eggsspensive Adventure (Comedy).
June 18—Pedigrees, Pups and Pussies (Com.).
June 21—The House on Hokum Hill (Com.).
June 25—The Day's Work (Comedy).
June 28—When Adam Had 'Em (Comedy).
July 2—The Gink from Kankakee (Comedy).
July 5—Billy Van Deusen Masquerader (Com.).
July 9—The Gink Lands Again (Comedy).
July 12—Two Slips and a Miss (Comedy).
July 16—The Rummy Act of Omar K. M. Comedy).

CENTAUR.

June 10—The Lion's Nemesis (Two parts—Drama).
June 17—The Star of India (Two parts—Dr.).
June 24—A Siren of the Jungle (Two parts—Drama).
July 1—A King o' Make Believe (Two parts—Drama).
July 8—The Good-for-Nothing Brat (Two part—Drama).
July 15—The Fool's Game (Two parts—Dr.).

CUB.

June 16—Jerry and the Moonshiners (Comedy).
June 23—Jerry's Elopement (Comedy).
June 30—Jerry's Big Haul (Comedy).
July 7—A Merry Mix-up (Comedy).
July 14—The Heir of the E. Z. Ranch (Com.)

GAUMONT.

June 11—Reel Life—Contains a Million Dollar Concrete Bridge, Raising Terrapin, The Beaver (Mutual Film Magazine).
June 14—See America First, No. 40, "Yellowstone National Park" (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon).
June 18—Reel Life (Mutual Magazine).
June 21—See America First No. 41, "Birmingham, Ala." (Scenic).
—The Bell of the Village Green (Shadowgraph.)
June 22—The Criminal's Thumb (Three parts—Drama).
June 28—See America First No. 42, "Glacier National Park" (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon).
July 2—Reel Life (Mutual Magazine).
July 5—See America First, No. 43, "Mobile, Ala." (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon).
July 6—The Hidden Face (Three parts—Dr.).
July 9—Reel Life (Mutual Film Magazine).
July 12—See America First, No. 44, "Glacier National Park" (Scenic).
—Kartoon Komics (Cartoon).
July 16—Reel Life (Mutual Film Magazine).

MUSTANG.

June 9—The Pilgrim (Two parts—Drama).
June 16—The Sheriff of Piumas (Western—Drama).
June 23—A Modern Knight (Two parts—Dr.).
June 30—The Demon of Fear (Two parts—Drama).
July 7—The Taming of Wild Bill (Two parts—Drama).
July 14—The Good-for-Nothing Kid (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

June 14—Number 76 (Topical).
June 21—Number 77 (Topical).
June 28—Number 78 (Topical).
July 5—Number 79 (Topical).
July 12—Number 80 (Topical).

THANHOUSER.

June 13—Brothers Equal (Two parts—Drama).
June 15—The Window of Dreams (Three parts—Drama).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 544.)

Westinghouse

Motion Picture Equipment

is the best assurance of steady, clear pictures.

You know what this means in box office receipts.

The commercial efficiency and simplicity of operation of Westinghouse Motion Picture Equipment have more than met the expectations of Managers and Operators wherever installed.

The equipment is compact and easily installed, this with the services of Westinghouse engineers to solve your problems is a hard combination to beat.

Write for Folder 4343 containing interesting information or stop and get a copy at our booth at the convention.

W
WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC

There is a Reason

Westinghouse Motion Picture Equipments were awarded a Medal of Honor the highest granted in this class, at the Panama Pacific International Exposition.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Sales Offices in All Large American Cities

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 508, 510.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 542.)

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

June 26—The Sign of the Spade (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 113).
June 29—The Decoy (Five parts—Drama) (No. 114).
July 10—Dust (American—Five parts—Dr.) (No. 117).
July 13—Her American Prince (Five parts—Drama) (No. 118).

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

June 26—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 6 Two parts—Drama).
July 3—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).
July 10—The Secret of the Submarine, No. 8 (Two parts—Drama).

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTIONS.

July 3—Medicine Bend (Signal—Five parts—Drama) (No. 115).
July 6—The Highest Bid (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 116).

VOGUE.

July 2—Just for a Kid (Comedy).
July 4—The Chaser Chased (Comedy).
July 9—Hired and Fired (Comedy).
July 11—Stung by Gum (Comedy).
July 16—A Deep Sea Liar (Comedy).

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

ARROW.

July 3—Who's Guilty? No. 9, "The Weaker Strain" (Two parts—Drama).
July 10—Who's Guilty? No. 10, "A Trial of Souls" (Two parts—Drama).
July 17—Who's Guilty? No. 11, "The Lost Paradise (Two parts—Drama).
July 24—Who's Guilty? No. 12, "Weighed in the Balance" (Two parts—Drama).

BALBOA.

July 17—The Grip of Evil, No. 1, "Fate" (Two parts—Drama).
July 24—The Grip of Evil, No. 2, "The Underworld" (Two parts—Drama).

FEATURE.

July 3—The Iron Claw, No. 19, "The Cave of Despair" (Two parts—Drama).
July 10—The Iron Claw, No. 20, "The Triumph of the Laughing Mask" (Two parts—Drama).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

June 19—A Matrimonial Martyr (Five parts—Drama).
July 17—The Shadow of Her Past (Five parts—Drama).

PATHE.

July 3—Nutty News (Cartoon).
—The Porcupine (Educational).
July 3—Across the Malay Archipelago (Scenic).
—The Kinkajou (Educational).
July 10—The Bang Miu Gold Mines (Industrial).
—Some Ports in Catalonia (Scenic).
July 17—Unfriendly Fruit (Comedy).
July 17—Home Sweet Home (Cartoon).
—The Caterpillar (Educational) (Colored).
July 24—Paper Parasols (Industrial).
—Ornate Pagodas (Picturesque China) (Scenic).

PATHE NEWS.

July 5—Number 54, 1916 (Topical).
July 8—Number 55, 1916 (Topical).
July 12—Number 56, 1916 (Topical).
July 15—Number 57, 1916 (Topical).
July 19—Number 58, 1916 (Topical).
July 22—Number 59, 1916 (Topical).
July 26—Number 60, 1916 (Topical).
July 29—Number 61, 1916 (Topical).

ROLIN.

July 3—Luke's Washful Waiting (Comedy).
July 10—Luke Rides Roughshod (Comedy).
July 24—Luke Crystal Gazer (Comedy).

Miscellaneous Releases.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

July 3—Broken Fetters (Five parts—Drama).
July 10—The Love Girl (Five parts—Drama).
July 17—The Grasp of Greed (Five parts—Drama).
July 24—The Silent Battle (Five parts—Dr.).

EMERALD M. P. CO.

June 26—Tom & Jerry—Bachelors, No. 1 (Two parts—Drama).

EVA TANGUAY FILMS.

July—Energetic Eva (Five parts—Comedy).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

June 19—A Woman's Honor (Five parts—Dr.).
June 26—The Man from Bitter Roots (Five parts—Drama).
July 3—Ambition (Five parts—Drama).
July 10—A Tortured Heart (Five parts—Dr.).
July 17—Caprice of the Mountains (Five parts—Drama).

THOMAS H. INCE.

July—Civilization (Drama).

INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE, INC.

June 13—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 47, 1916 (Topical).
June 16—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 48, 1916 (Topical).
June 20—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 49, 1916 (Topcial).
June 19—The Mysteries of Myra, No. 9, "The Invisible Destroyer" (Two parts—Drama).
June 23—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 50, 1916 (Topical).
June 26—The Mysteries of Myra, No. 10, "Levitation" (Two parts—Drama).
June 27—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 51, 1916 (Topical).
June 30—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 52, 1916 (Topical).
July 3—The Mysteries of Myra, No. 11 (Two parts—Drama).
July 4—Hearst-International News Pictorial, No. 53, 1916 (Topical).

IVAN FILM PRODUCTION, INC.

June—Her Husband's Wife (Drama).

KEMBLE FILM CORPORATION.

July—The Zeppelin Raids on London and the Siege of Verdun (Topical).

LEWIS J. SELZNICK PRODUCTIONS, INC.

July—The Common Law (Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

June 26—The Flower of No Man's Land (Columbia—Five parts—Drama).
July 3—The Eternal Question (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).
July 3—A Virginia Romance (Quality—Two parts—Drama) (Special release).
June 26—The Grand Canyon (Scenic).
—The Indian Silversmith (Educational).
June 26—Bathing Babies at Zero.
—Babies War Dance.
July 10—The Quitter (Rolfe—Five parts—Drama).
July 17—The River of Romance (York—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

July 3—The Dupe (Lasky—Five parts—Dr.).
July 6—The Smugglers (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
July 10—The Selfish Woman (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
July 13—Davy Crockett (Pallas—Five parts—Drama).
July 17—The Dream Girl (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
July 20—Under Cover (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
July 24—An International Marriage (Morosco Five parts—Drama).
July 27—Little Lady Eileen (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
July 31—Hula, of Holland (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Aug. 3—Common Ground (Lasky—Five parts—Drama).
Aug. 7—A Woman in the Case (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY CARTOONS.

June 22—Colonel Heeza Liar and the Bandits (Cartoon—Comedy).
June 29—Bobby Bumps Fly Swatter (Cartoon—Comedy).
July 6—Farmer Alfalfa's Watermelon Patch (Cartoon).

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES.

July 10—Beautiful Bavaria (Scenic).
July 17—Down the Danube to Vienna (Scenic).
July 24—The Real Bohemia (Scenic).
July 31—Picturesque Prague (Scenic).

C. POST MASON.

July—The Wonder City of the World, Greater New York by Day and Night (Three parts—Scenic).

TEFFT JOHNSON FILM CORPORATION.

June—Sonny Boy at the Bat (Comedy).
June—Sonny Boy in School Days (Comedy).
June—Sonny Boy and the Dog Show (Comedy).

THE FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION.

July 15—Jaffery (Drama).

THE PATRIOT FILM CORPORATION.

June—How Britain Prepared (Topical).

THE RESERVE PHOTO-PLAYS CO.

July 5—Casey, the Millionaire (Comedy).
July 12—Casey the Detective (Comedy).
July 19—Casey the Wizard (Comedy).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week of July 2:
Casey at the Bat (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
The Phantom (Ince—Five parts—Drama).
Release for week of July 9:
Flirting With Fate (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
The Deserter (Ince—Five parts—Drama).

UNICORN FILM SERVICE CORPORATION.

(Releases for the Tenth Week.)

June 26—The New Prospector (Hiawatha—Western—Drama).
June 26—Clarence the Cowboy (Jockey—Com.).
June 26—His False Friend (Puritan—Drama).
June 27—The Indian Trail (Utah—Western—Drama).
June 27—The Inner Mind (Lily—Drama).
June 27—A Bald Lie (Jockey—Comedy).
June 28—The Strength of the Weak (Buffalo—Two parts—Western—Drama).
June 28—The Recoil (Puritan—Drama).
June 29—The Bandit's Bride (Utah—Western—Drama).
June 29—Fires of Fate (Sunset—Drama).
June 29—Family Troubles (Hippo—Comedy).
June 30—The Slums of Humanity (Puritan—Two parts—Drama).
June 30—A Resourceful Lover (Judy—Com.).
July 1—A Deserter's Courage (Buffalo—Two parts—Western—Drama).
July 1—The Derelict (Lily—Drama).
July 2—The Fortune Hunter (Puritan—Two parts—Drama).
July 2—The Lure of the City (Gayety—Com.).

(Releases for the Eleventh Week.)

July 3—The Wisdom of the White Man (Hiawatha—Drama).
July 3—The Closed Door (Jockey—Comedy).
July 3—The Blindness of Jealousy (Dily—Drama).
July 4—A Cowboy's Love (Utah—Drama).
July 4—The Missing Bracelet (Sunset—Dr.).
July 4—Family Troubles (Judy—Comedy).
July 5—The Rise of a Nation (Puritan—Two parts—Drama).
July 5—A Vacation Romance (Jockey—Com.).
July 6—The Prairie Flower (Utah—Drama).
July 6—His Brother's Redemption (Lily—Drama).
July 6—Foxy Cupid (Hippo—Comedy).
July 7—The Double Penalty (Buffalo—Two parts—Drama).
July 7—The Little Heroine (Supreme—Dr.).
July 8—Little Joe's Daddy (Puritan—Two parts—Drama).
July 8—Caught in the Movies (Judy—Com.).
—Eastern China.
July 9—The Indian Warpath (Buffalo—Two parts—Drama).
July 9—The Cashier's Ordeal (Supreme—Dr.).

WORLD-EQUITABLE.

July 3—The Crucial Test (Brady-Made—Five parts—Drama).
July 10—The Story of Susan (Five Parts—Dr.).
July 17—Friday the 13th (Five parts—Dr.).
July 24—The Weakness of Man (Five parts—Drama).
July 31—The Velvet Paw (Five parts—Dr.).

CARBONS

Why Not Try the # Silver Tip D. C. Negative Projector Carbon?

(Patent Applied for)

This carbon is the most revolutionary improvement discovered in many years for projection work. Its small size and superior composition give you

1. Whiter light for less current.
2. A minimum of deposit in the lamp.
3. A perfect crater at all times.
4. Quiet and steady burning of the arc.
5. Less heat in lamp house and operating room.

| | |
|---|---|
| For 25 to 50 amperes D. C. use | 5/8 x 12″ National Cored Upper |
| | 5/16 x 6″ Silvertip Solid Lower |
| For 50 to 65 amperes D. C. use | 3/4 x 12″ National Cored Upper |
| | 11/32 x 6″ Silvertip Solid Lower |
| For 65 to 70 amperes D. C. use | 7/8 x 12″ National Cored Upper |
| | 11/32 x 6″ Silvertip Solid Lower |
| For 70 to 85 amperes D. C. use | 7/8 x 12″ National Cored Upper |
| | 3/8 x 6″ Silvertip Solid Lower |
| For 85 to 100 amperes D. C. use | 1 x 12″ National Cored Upper |
| | 7/16 x 6″ Silvertip Cored Lower |

These small negative carbons require a special ADAPTOR for use in the holder of present lamps. STEEL ADAPTORS must not be used because their resistance is high, which results in heating, short life, and excessive needling.

WE HAVE DESIGNED A SPECIAL BRONZE ADAPTOR, WHICH WE WILL FURNISH FREE OF CHARGE TO USERS OF OUR CARBONS

These carbons and adaptors will be shown at our booth at the Chicago Convention, July 10th to 18th.

Be sure to visit our booth and see an actual demonstration of these carbons burning in the lamp.

Manufactured only by

National Carbon Company

Cleveland, Ohio

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 508, 510.)

(Continued from page 544.)

V-L-S-E, INC.

June 19—The Man Behind the Curtain (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Drama).
June 26—Winifred, the Shop Girl (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Drama).
June 26—The Valiants of Virginia (Selig—Five parts—Drama).
June 26—Kernel Nutt in Mexico (Vitagraph—Comedy).
July 3—The Light at Dusk (Lubin—Five parts—Drama).
July 3—The Conflict (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
July 3—Kernel Knutt and High Shoes (Vitagraph—Comedy).
July 10—According to the Code (Essanay—Five parts—Drama).
July 10—Fathers of Men (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
July 10—Kernel Knutt, the Piano Tuner (Vitagraph-Comedy).
July 17—The Tarantula (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Drama).
July 24—The Prince Chap (Selig—Five parts—Drama).

GEORGE KLEINE.

June 19—Gloria's Romance, No. 5, "The Gathering Storm (Drama).
June 26—Gloria's Romance, No. 6, Hidden Fires" (Drama).
July 3—Gloria's Romance, No. 7, "The Harvest of Sin" (Two parts—Drama).
July 10—Gloria's Romance, No. 8 (Two parts—Drama).
July 17—Gloria's Romance, No. 9 (Two parts—Drama).

States Right Features

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT FILM CORPORATION.

May 8—The Fighting Germans (Five parts—Topical).

BIG A FILM CORPORATION.

July—Macbeth (Five parts—Drama).

CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE CORP.

Mar.—The Unwritten Law (Seven parts—Drama)
May—The Woman Who Dared (Seven parts—Drama).
July—Kismet (Ten parts Drama).

CELEBRATED PLAYERS' FILM CO.

Mar.—The Birth of a Man (Five parts—Drama).

CHAMPION SPORTS EXHIBITION

Apr.—Willard-Moran (Four parts—Sports)

SAMUEL CUMMINS.

July—Germany's Battles at Verdun (Four parts—Topical).

DOMINION EXCLUSIVES, LTD.

Apr.—Nurse and Martyr (Drama).

ESKAY HARRIS FEATURE FILM CO.

Apr.—Alice in Wonderland (Six parts—Fairy Tale).

FEINBERG AMUSEMENT CO.

April—Following the Flag in Mexico (Topical)

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

May —The End of the World (Six parts—Drama).

IL GIORNALE ITALIANO.

April—On the Italian Battlefront (Five parts—Topical).

MEXICAN FILM CO.

April—Across the Mexican Border (Two parts—Topical).

MODERN MOTHERHOOD LEAGUE.

April—Twilight Sleep.

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Mar.—One Day (Five parts—Drama).
Apr.—The Salamander (Drama).

NEW YORK FILM COMPANY.

Apr.—The Folly of Revenge (Nola—Five parts—Drama).

PIEDMONT FILM CO.

June—The Mirror of Life (Five parts—Drama).

RAVER FILM CO.

Mar.—Life Without Soul (Drama).
Mar.—Austria at War (Topical).

SIGNET FILMS.

July—The Jockey of Death (Drama).

THE NATIONAL DRAMA CORPORATION.

June—The Fall of a Nation (Three parts—Dr.).

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.

June 19—The Bishop's Secret (Four parts—Dr.).
June 19—Tweedledum Torpedoed by Cupid (Comedy).
June 26—The Lottery Man (Five parts—Dr.).
June 26—Tweedledum's Busy Night (Comedy).
July 3—The Marriage Bond (Five parts—Dr.).
July 3—Tweedledum's Scrambled Honeymoon (Comedy).

VARIETY FILMS, INC.

April—Should a Baby Die? (Five parts—Dr.).

WAR FILM SYNDICATE

Mar.—On the Firing Line with the Germans (Eight parts—Topical).

SERVING THE EXHIBITOR!

That's been our motto for twenty years. We've specialized in THEATRE EQUIPMENT of all varieties and founded an enviable reputation on

SERVICE!

Prompt, efficient, intelligent SERVICE backed by QUALITY merchandise at reasonable prices.

Complete Motion Picture Theatre Equipment has been our specialty for 20 years.

Our complete catalogue will be sent upon request.

Exclusive Edison Super-Kinetoscope Distributors
Exclusive Simplex Distributors

DISTRIBUTORS OF POWER'S CAMERAGRAPHS
DISTRIBUTORS OF MOTIOGRAPH MACHINES

For Perfect Projection Use Kleine White Label Condensers

Kleine White Label Condensers are ground from pure optical glass. They do not discolor—no green, pink or purple effects after a brief use. They are the only satisfactory condensers on the American market today. If you are not using them you are not obtaining maximum results from your projection equipment.

PRICES:

Plano Convex

6½, 7½, 8½, 9½, and 10½ inch E. F., 4½ inch diameter ..... $1.25
5½ inch E. F., 4½ inch diameter ..... 1.75

Meniscus and Bi-Convex

6½, 7½, 8½, and 9½ inch E. F., 4½ inch diameter ..... 2.50

Spot Light Condensers

7½, 9, 10 and 12 inch E. F., 5 inch diameter... 2.00
9, 10 and 12 inch E. F., 6 inch diameter ..... 2.50

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY

Incorporated 1897 George Kleine, President

166 North State Street Chicago, Ill.

Be sure to see—

The new two-color National Ticket-Printing Register

—at the Chicago Exhibit

A ticket-printing, ticket-recording, and ticket-issuing National Cash Register that turns out over 100 tickets per minute

Attend the Chicago Exhibit, July 12-18

See this two-color machine that prints, records, and issues tickets from a blank roll of paper.

At the New York shows, in May, thousands of people pressed the register keys, saw it work, and wondered that a machine could do so much.

This machine is quicker than tearing tickets from a roll—cheaper than buying preprinted tickets—and far safer than any other ticket-selling system.

Call at our booth and find out more about it—or write us.

The National Cash Register Co.
Dayton, Ohio

The National Cash Register Co., Dayton, O.

I have read your advertisement on the new ticket-printing register, and want to know how you can realize the ideal that it describes.

This request in no way obligates me to buy.

Name_____

Address_____

In answering advertisements, please mention The Moving Picture World

We Will Be There At

CHICAGO CONVENTION

A Large Display of Stage Scenery and Motion Picture Stage Settings

YOUR INSPECTION IS CORDIALLY INVITED

SOSMAN & LANDIS

Great Scene Painting Studio
417 South Clinton St. Chicago

Mr. Live Wire Exhibitor!

Have you arranged your bookings on Frederick J. Ireland's High Class comedy series

TOM and JERRY?

IF NOT—DO IT NOW

Two reels a week for ten solid weeks. First release Monday, June 26th. A sure fire box office winner for the hot weather season.

Made by
EMERALD MOTION PICTURE CO.
Released exclusively through
American Standard Motion Picture Corporation
Executive Office,
164-6 W. Washington St., Chicago
Branches in all principal cities.

REMEMBER!
Mr. Exhibitor

Our entire offices are at your disposal during the CONVENTION AND MOVING PICTURE EXPOSITION in Chicago.

ReliableFeatures!
WE HAVE THEM.

"THE CHRISTIAN"—8 parts
(The greatest of all classics).

"DEFENSE OR TRIBUTE" 5 parts
(The great preparedness and patriotic film).

"THE ORDEAL"—5 parts
(Most perfect war story).

"YORK STATE FOLKS" 5 parts (Wholesome and sweet).

"WORLD OF TODAY" 6 parts (Full of punch and vim),

and a hundred others as well.
Ask for details.
Call on us during Convention Week

RELIABLE FEATURE FILM CO.
800-801 Schiller Bldg., Chicago
I. Maynard Schwartz, Gen'l Manager. Phone Central 3467

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE DURABLE
110 W. 40TH STREET, NEW YORK

THE CATALOGUE OF Brush Electric Lighting Sets
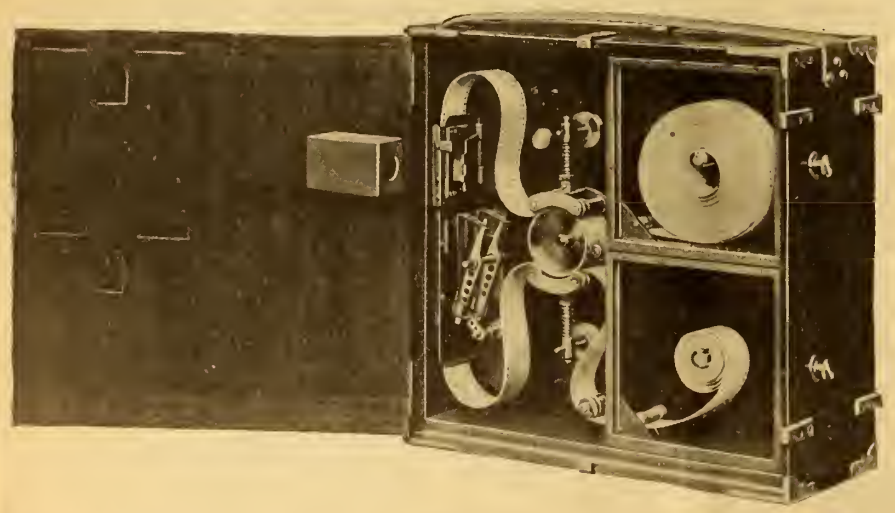
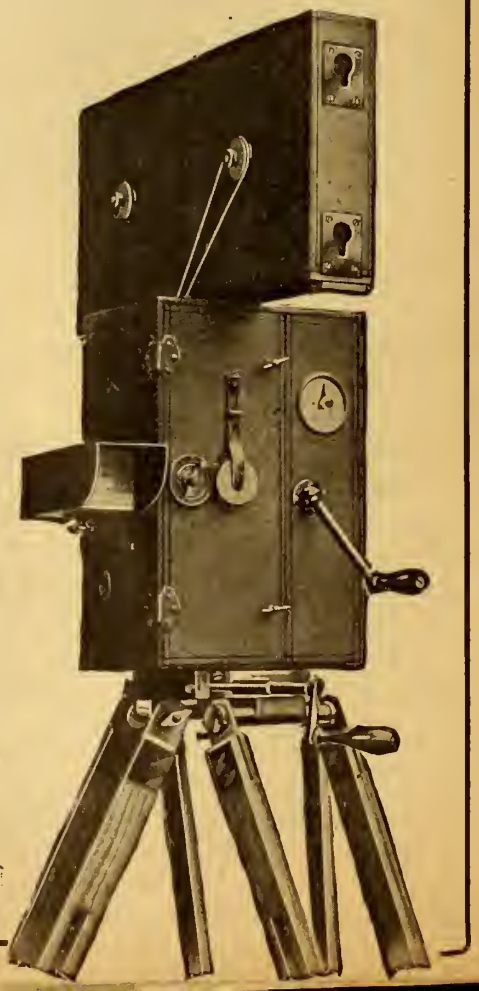
contains much that is valuable about electric lighting in general, and moving picture work in particular. Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

PROFESSIONAL MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS AND MOTION PICTURE TRIPODS IN DIFFERENT SIZES AND STYLES. SEND FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES TO

KOEHLER OPTICAL COMPANY

NEW YORK, MANUFACTURERS OF MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS, TRIPODS AND PRECISION INSTRUMENTS





KOEHLER OPTICAL CO. 7 EAST 14th ST. NEW YORK CITY

Lithographed Streamer Banners for all Paramount, Triangle, World, Equitable, Metro, Fox, Pathe, and all other Feature Pictures.
AGENTS WANTED

TO-DAY
MARY MILES MINTER IN LOVELY MARY IN 5 ACTS
METRO PICTURES

10 Ft. x 32 In.
30c. EACH
At Your Exchange or
NATIONAL POSTER CO.
518 Mailers Bldg. Chicago, Ill.
145 W. 45th St. New York City
310 Palace Bldg. Minneapolis, Minn.
310 Godchaux Bldg. New Orleans, La.

Quality means EVANS means Perfection
We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY
EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Telephone 6881 Audubon
416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

Guaranteed Developing and Printing

WE guarantee our developing and printing to be photographically correct, consistent with the negative submitted. PRICES RIGHT.

Our Work is in charge of experts who know when to intensify and when to reduce to obtain the best possible prints from your negative.

Imperial Film Mfg. Co.

Offices, 547-549 Peoples' Gas Bldg.
Studio and Factory, 950 Edgecombe Place, Chicago, Ill.

Once a user of SPEER Projector Carbons you become a satisfied customer and your audience will compliment your steady and brilliant screen illumination.

NET CASH PRICES

½ x 12, cored, pointed both ends, $37.50 per M. (1,000 in a case)
9/16 x 12, cored, pointed both ends, $40.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅝ x 12, cored, pointed both ends, $50.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
¾ x 12, cored, pointed both ends, $70.00 per M. (1,000 in a case)
⅞ x 12, cored, pointed one end, $115.00 per M. (500 in a case)
1 x 12, cored, pointed one end, $150.00 per M. (500 in a case)

Sample Orders for 100 Carbons Filled at 10% Advance on Above Case Lot Prices If Cash is Sent With Your Order, First Come First Served.

TRADE MARK

SPEER CARBON COMPANY (Makers of Carbon for Electrical purposes during the past 25 years) Dept. "W," St. Mary's, Pa.
For Sale by Leading M. P. Machine Distributors, Including the Following:
J. H. HALLBERG, 727-7th Ave., New York, N. Y.
KLEINE OPTICAL CO., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.
SOUTHERN THEATRE EQUIPMENT CO., Rhodes Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
E. E. FULTON CO., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
KANSAS CITY MACHINE & SUPPLY CO., 813 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.
G. A. METCALFE, 117 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....
.....
Cut out and mail Theatre .....

Here Is A

FEDERAL ELECTRIC SIGN

You Can Change Every Day

IF you are showing a big feature to-morrow, you want the public to know about it, don't you? That is just what a FEDERAL Simplex Electric Sign will do for your theatre.

It is a combination of permanent sign and a bulletin of information that you can change as often as you wish. Exhibitors all over the country are using FEDERAL Simplex Electric Signs—and their profits show it.

You may be tempted to buy a cheap, ineffective sign, but if you do you are losing money every day you operate it. If you want the crowds, the FEDERAL Electric Sign will get them for you.

Beside the FEDERAL Simplex changeable letter sign, we make electric signs in all sizes and designs for motion picture theatres.

If you are going to get a sign, you had best get a FEDERAL Simplex. We will be glad to send the Federal Theatre Booklet No. 140. Write for it today. There is no obligation whatsoever.

FEDERAL SIGN SYSTEM (Electric)
Lake and Desplaines Streets, Chicago

1790 Broadway
New York

1618 Mission Street
San Francisco, Cal.

4 Factories. Branches in All Large Cities

Kineto Advertising Clock

Pat'd Feb. 22, 1916 Other Patents Pending

$60 to $90 Monthly Income

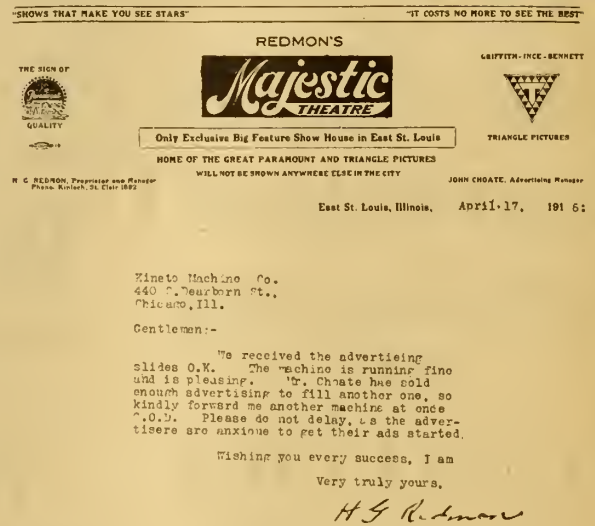
Time shows and ads change automatically. A necessity and advertising medium combined. Write us at once.



"SHOWS THAT MAKE YOU SEE STARS" "IT COSTS NO MORE TO SEE THE BEST"

REDMON'S

Majestic THEATRE

GRIFFITH-INCE-BENNETT

THE SIGN OF QUALITY

Only Exclusive Big Feature Show House in East St. Louis

TRIANGLE PICTURES

HOME OF THE GREAT PARAMOUNT AND TRIANGLE PICTURES
WILL NOT BE SHOWN ANYWHERE ELSE IN THE CITY

H. G. REDMON, Proprietor and Manager
Phone Kinloch, St. Clair 1892

JOHN CHOATE, Advertising Manager

East St. Louis, Illinois, April 17, 191 6:

Kineto Machine Co.
440 S. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

We received the advertising slides O.K. The machine is running fine and is pleasing. Mr. Choate has sold enough advertising to fill another one, so kindly forward me another machine at once C.O.D. Please do not delay, as the advertisers are anxious to get their ads started.

Wishing you every success, I am

Very truly yours,

H G Redmon

KINETO MACHINE CO., Inc.
4th Floor, Monon Bldg., 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

"Perfection in Projection"

THE GOLD KING SCREEN

THE KING OF SCREENS

The greatest money maker and the greatest money saver in modern moving picture theatre equipment.

Ten Days' Free Trial

will convince you that better cannot be had. Fifty cents per square foot, including frame.

See this wonderful screen demonstrated at the Chicago Convention

GOLD KING SCREEN COMPANY
ALTUS, OKLAHOMA
S. H. JONES, President

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS
Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG

Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

"MARTIN" ROTARY CONVERTER

For Real
"SUN-LIT PICTURES"

PERFECT REEL DISSOLVING

The voltage of the "MARTIN" poly-phase converter is maintained constant, so that the starting of the second arc does not disturb the light given by the first, making the dissolving of the reels as simple as if the arcs were operated in a Direct Current district. Our emergency panel does away with expensive compensarcs and cuts the wiring and installation cost in half.

Write for further information.

NORTHWESTERN ELECTRIC CO.
609 W. Adams St., Chicago 1010 Brokaw Bldg., New York

This Man's Money Is Yours If Your Theatre Is Cool.

Sturtevant Ventilating Equipment pays you actual dividends. It advertises your theatre as a place of refuge from the heat and attracts people who usually avoid motion-picture houses on account of their stuffy atmosphere. The Sturtevant System gives you the best service known to ventilating science.

Sturtevant
(REG·U·S·PAT·OFF·)

MULTIVANE FANS

Sturtevant Multivane Fan

The narrow, cup-shaped vanes of the Sturtevant Multivane Fan make it the most efficient commercial fan in the world. It also requires less space than other types. No matter what the size of your theatre, there is Sturtevant equipment that will exactly meet your need.

Sturtevant Engineers Will Advise You

The largest corps of fan and ventilating engineers in this country will tell you without obligation what system of heating and ventilating your house requires.

Write giving size, seating capacity, location of balconies, doors and windows of your theatre. Include a rough floor plan. Address

Sturtevant Multivane Fan Wheel

B. F. STURTEVANT COMPANY
Dept. 47—Hyde Park, Boston, Mass., and all principal cities
Largest Manufacturer of Fans, Heating and Ventilating Apparatus in the World

THE BEST USE THE BEST

"CIVILIZATION"

"BIRTH OF A NATION"

"FALL OF A NATION"

USE EXCLUSIVELY THE WORLD'S BEST PROJECTORS

FURNISHED AND INSTALLED BY

B. F. PORTER, 1482 Broadway, New York

LOOK FOR US

AT THE SIXTH
NATIONAL EXPOSITION AND CONVENTION
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE OF AMERICA
Coliseum, Chicago, July 10 to 18, inclusive

DON'T FAIL TO SEE THE NEW

BAIRD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE

FOR WHICH WE ARE

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS IN THIS TERRITORY

SOUVENIRS FOR EVERYBODY

MID-WEST THEATRE SUPPLY CO. 14 W. WASHINGTON STREET CHICAGO, ILL.
J. A. WILLIAMS, Manager

RUSSAKOV

Guaranteed Equipment

Fibre and Wood Lined Galvanized Iron Film Shipping Cases

Guaranteed to comply with all laws and regulations governing the

Domestic and Export shipment of films are now being used by

| | |
|---|---|
| Mutual Film Corp | General |
| Triangle | World |
| Universal | Metro |
| Paramount | American |
| Selig | Essanay |

and others.

...Because...

RUSSAKOV CASES are the strongest, safest, most practical and most economical cases made.

For further particulars and quantity prices, address

Russakov Can Company

Dept. F, 936-946 W. Chicago Ave.
CHICAGO, U. S. A.

The Manufacturers of

The Universal Camera and Tripod

For Motion Photography

cordially invite those attending the convention to visit their conveniently located showrooms at 559 W. Jackson Boulevard.

We will welcome the opportunity to demonstrate the simplicity, durability and efficiency of the Universal Camera—qualities that have won for it the endorsement of many of America's foremost Camera Operators.

Write for Demonstrational Catalog

559 W. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago
821 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
229 E. Sixth St., Los Angeles, Cal.
1007 Times Bldg., New York, N. Y.

"YOUR FIRST ACT"

SHOULD BE TO INVESTIGATE

The AUTOMATICKET SELLER & REGISTER

at the
Coliseum, Chicago
July 12th to 19th
(Inclusive)

AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING
AND CASH REGISTER CO.
CHICAGO OFFICE 1432 LYTTON BUILDING

"THE CHICAGO LOOP"

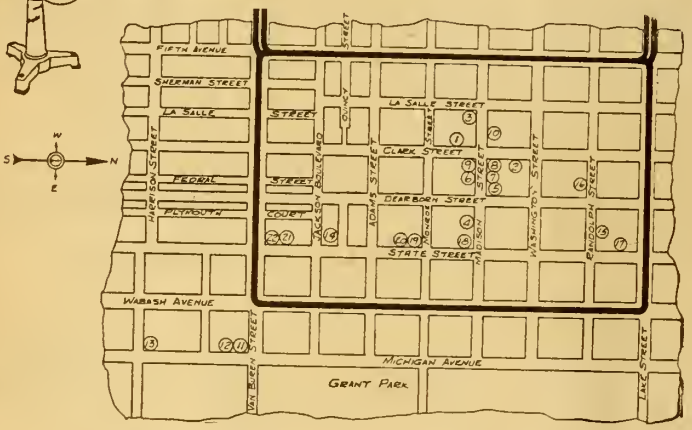
EVERY MOVING PICTURE THEATRE IN THIS CENTRE OF BUSINESS AND AMUSEMENT ACTIVITY USES



MOTION PICTURE PROJECTORS USED IN CHICAGO

Simplex TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. - - - 485

12-15 ALL OTHER MAKES - - 356

Simplex Projectors

Theatres in Loop District

1 Cozy Theatre
2 Boston Theatre
3 Band Box Theatre
4 McVickers Theatre
5 Casino Theatre
6 Rose Theatre
7 Pastime Theatre
8 Star Theatre
9 Alcazar Theatre
10 La Salle Theatre
11 Fine Arts' Theatre
12 Studebaker Theatre
13 Ziegfeld Theatre
14 Gt. Northern Hippodrome
15 Colonial Theatre
16 World Theatre
17 Theatorium
18 Castle Theatre
19 Orpheum Theatre
20 Bijou Dream Theatre
21 Premier Theatre
22 Lyric Theatre

Simplex Projectors

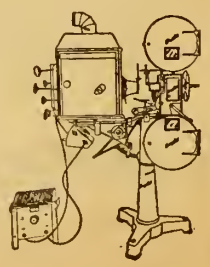
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Will be on exhibition in the Coliseum, Chicago, at the Sixth National Exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors.



Catalog A Mailed on Request

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

Newman Brass Frames and Rails

Read what C. A. Morrison of the Princess Theatre, Hartford, Conn., says about Newman Quality—

Gentlemen:

We have purchased quite a number of Brass Frames and Easels, together with Brass Ticket Rails and Three-sheet Brass Poster Frames of your Company.

All of these goods reached us in perfect condition and the quality was the best. I have told several other managers in the city of your goods and in several instances orders have been sent you—all of which goes to show that your best advertiser is a satisfied customer. Yours truly,

PRINCESS THEATRE CO., INC.,
C. A. Morrison, Mgr. Hartford, Conn.

Insist on the name "Newman" when buying frames. Write for New 1916 Catalog

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.

CINCINNATI 717 Sycamore St.
CHICAGO 68 W. Washington St.
Established 1882

DEAGAN ## ELECTRIC

CHIMES
XYLOPHONES
UNA-FONS
CELESTES
MARIMBAPHONES
NABIMBAS
BELLS

and other

ELECTRIC NOVELTY MUSICAL ATTRACTIONS

always
DRAW THE CROWD
They are
ADVERTISERS, BUSINESS BOOSTERS
and
SOLVE YOUR MUSIC PROBLEM.

Write for Catalog "F"
CONVENTION VISITORS WELCOME

J. C. DEAGAN
Deagan Building
1776 Berteau Ave., Chicago.

From Loop take Ravenswood "L" to Montrose Boul. Station, walk one block East, two South.

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

No. 478
11-16 inch
Actual size

Sample
Box of 100
Postpaid 50c.

SAVES WEAR AND TEAR ON PAPER

THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK FOR GENERAL USE

SOLIDHED TACK COMPANY,
SOLE MAKERS
38 Murray Street, New York

Tacks with Colored Heads. White and Colored Celluloid, or other material to harmonize with decorations: 3/8" $1, 5/8" $1.50 and 7/8" $2 per 100. Larger quantities at special prices.

Corcoran Tanks for Moving Picture Film Development

PRICE LIST No. 8

Constructed of selected Gulf Coast cypress 2 inches, dressed. Made and put together at the CORCORAN FACTORY and so delivered f. o. b. cars or boat in Manhattan, New York City, including buttons, plugs and bed-pieces, but no racks. Rack extra. See price list No. 7.

STANDARD SIZES

| No. of Racks | INSIDE DIMENSIONS Length | Width | Depth | 1 Tank | Capacities | Discounts |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Rack | 48 Ins. | 4 3/8 Ins. | 51 Ins. | $25.00 Net | 45 Gals. | Subject to same when ordered in quantities |
| 2 Racks | 48 Ins. | 7 3/4 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 27.00 Net | 80 Gals. | |
| 3 Racks | 48 Ins. | 11 1/8 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 29.00 Net | 115 Gals. | |
| 4 Racks | 48 Ins. | 14 1/2 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 31.00 Net | 150 Gals. | |
| 5 Racks | 48 Ins. | 17 7/8 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 33.00 Net | 185 Gals. | |
| 6 Racks | 48 Ins. | 21 1/4 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 35.00 Net | 220 Gals. | |
| 7 Racks | 48 Ins. | 24 5/8 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 37.00 Net | 255 Gals. | |
| 8 Racks | 48 Ins. | 28 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 39.00 Net | 290 Gals. | |
| 9 Racks | 48 Ins. | 31 3/8 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 41.00 Net | 325 Gals. | |
| 10 Racks | 48 Ins. | 34 3/4 Ins. | 51 Ins. | 43.00 Net | 360 Gals. | |

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
Patentees and Manufacturers

New York Office: No. 11½ JOHN STREET
Telephone, 3947 Cortlandt

Factory: Jersey City, N. J.—JERSEY AVE. & 13TH ST.
Telephone, 238 Jersey

HYDROQUINONE

GENERAL CHEMICAL COMPANY

NEW YORK PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS

WE CAN STILL SUPPLY THE FOLLOWING IMPORTED INSTRUMENTS

PATHE NO. 1

ONE OF THE FINEST STUDIO CAMERAS EVER PRODUCED USED BY ALL THE LEADING FILM COMPANIES

PRESTWICH NO. 5

THESE TWO SUITABLE FOR GENERAL WORK STUDIO AND OUTDOOR COMPACT AND PORTABLE

PATHE NO. 2

WE ALSO CARRY A FULL LINE OF TRIPODS, PRINTERS AND GENERAL LABORATORY APPARATUS

MOTION PICTURE APPARATUS CO., Inc. Phone Stuyvesant 822-3-4-5 810 Broadway, New York City

The Original and Leading Moving Picture Journal in Europe

The Kinematograph Weekly

The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—

The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.

9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

Trade of the United States with South America

Compiled by the National City Bank

| | Imports into United States from | | | Exports from United States to | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 1915 | 1914 | 1913 | 1915 | 1914 | 1913. |
| Argentina | $94.677.644 | $56.274 246 | $25 575 667 | $52 883.035 | $27.127.958 | $54 980 415 |
| Bolivia* | 35.000 | 172 | 398 | 980.000 | 805.876 | 962.459 |
| Brazil | 120.099.305 | 95 000.622 | 100 947.735 | 84.888.540 | 28.275.894 | 89.901.203 |
| Chili | 37.284.043 | 24.238.713 | 29.553.823 | 17.800.611 | 13.627 618 | 16.616.912 |
| Colombia* | 19.615.000 | 17.547.987 | 15.714.447 | 17.213.000 | 5.784.275 | 7.647.165 |
| Ecuador* | 5.290.000 | 3.355.916 | 3.462.567 | 3 277.000 | 2.504.014 | 2.821.646 |
| Guiana, British* | 260.000 | 222.969 | 98 045 | 1.971.000 | 1.812.684 | 1 630.244 |
| Guiana, Dutch* | 620.000 | 1.034.508 | 813.325 | 594.000 | 655.244 | 731.806 |
| Guiana, French* | 49.000 | ..... | 31 821 | 553.000 | 282.430 | 318.793 |
| Paraguay* | 63.000 | 61.198 | 67 220 | 61.000 | 83.595 | 215.058 |
| Peru* | 15.455.000 | 11 269.941 | 10.824.587 | 7.520.000 | 5.876.487 | 7.608.916 |
| Uruguay* | 13.644.000 | 9.597.168 | 1.860.609 | 8.099.000 | 4.153.438 | 7.617.110 |
| Venezuela* | 14.475.000 | 10 916.934 | 9.308.761 | 7.398.000 | 5.023.532 | 5.462.441 |
| Total | $322.282.189 | $229.520.375 | $198.259.005 | $145.338.862 | $91.013 339 | $146.514 639 |

*December, 1915, estimated.

TO SECURE YOUR SHARE OF EXPORT BUSINESS

to these various countries, advertise in OUR SPANISH MONTHLY

CINE MUNDIAL

RATES ON APPLICATION

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 17 Madison Ave., New York City

TransVerteR

Perfect Light Control

Easy As Turning Gas Up Or Down

When a film demands more or less light, you can always get it as you need it with Transverter equipment.

At the will of the operator, the amperage can readily be regulated to light or dark pictures as easily as turning gas up or down.

At the same time, the voltage lowers or increases automatically in proportion to the changing length of the arc.

The Transverter is the last word in projection equipment. It insures a perfect arc, a steady, bright, white light, and more artistic projection of pictures without waste of current.

If you want better pictures, larger attendances and bigger profits, you need the Transverter.

Write today for the folder "The Perfect Arc"

THE HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
431 Prospect Ave. Cleveland, Ohio

RICHARDSON'S
MOTION PICTURE
HANDBOOK

Published by
THE CHALMERS
Publishing Co.

The third and latest edition of this valuable work has just come from the presses.

It is bigger, better, and more helpful than have been either of its predecessors by the same able author.

In daily touch with practical operators throughout the country by reason of his connection with THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, in which his PROJECTION DEPARTMENT is featured, Mr. Richardson is especially well qualified to deal with the problems which are constantly confronting the motion picture mechanics upon whose skill the industry depends so largely for its healthy growth.

RICHARDSON'S MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK is a carefully prepared guide to perfect projection.

It is an invaluable help to every single individual in the trade who has to do with the mechanical handling of motion picture film.

There are more than 400 Pages of Text and the illustrations—of which there are many—have been especially devised for this particular publication.

Substantially Bound in Red Cloth $4.00 the Copy.

SENT POSTPAID ON RECEIPT OF PRICE
BY

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Ave.,
New York City

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
917 Schiller Bldg.,
Chicago, Ill.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
305 Haas Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

ON CREDIT --- PAY MONTHLY

Our Special Midsummer Offer

Just to show you we have confidence in our product.

MOON SCREENS A SUMMER ATTRIBUTE.

Open all your windows, ventilation galore.

Direct light or light rays do not affect MOON SCREENS.

At Motion Picture Art Exposition

Madison Square Garden, May 6th to 14th pictures were shown in brightly lighted auditorium, and only the MOON SCREEN was used.

The New York Edison Company used our Screen at Museum of Safety Exposition at Grand Central Palace May 22nd.

Be guided by experts who know.

Ask for our catalog of credentials and special summer offer.

ORNATE MANUFACTURING CO., INC.
Controlling the
INTERNATIONAL MOON SCREEN CO., INC.
200 Fifth Avenue, New York City

MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

POWER—SIMPLEX—BAIRD
HALLBERG'S
20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATORS
Minusa Gold Fibre Screens
The Acme of Screen Perfection

SANIZONE DEODORANT
The Perfect Perfume for Motion Picture and All Theatres
WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS
Ask for Catalogs

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BANG, CRASH!
"JUST A MOMENT, PLEASE"

Don't you know that you can't hold your audience by showing the "Just a Moment, Please"? They are paying to see a good performance.

There is no excuse for having old, worn-out rattle boxes. What you need is a new machine. Write us today for our easy payment proposition, which enables you to purchase any make M. P. machine at a little investment.

Amusement Supply Company
Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Power's, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theaters.
3d Floor, Mallers Bldg.,
Cor. Madison St. and Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Peace Pictures
Beautifully Colored
Also
European War Pictures
(Neutral)
Illustrated Poems
On our own country.

Terms Moderate

Accompanied by Violinist, Pianist, Operator, Lantern, etc., for Theatres, Lyceums and Clubs, in or out of town. Music for dances.

LOUISE M. MARION
445 W. 23rd Street, New York
Phone 10396 Chelsea

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.
For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.
For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush
of
"Moving Picture World"
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
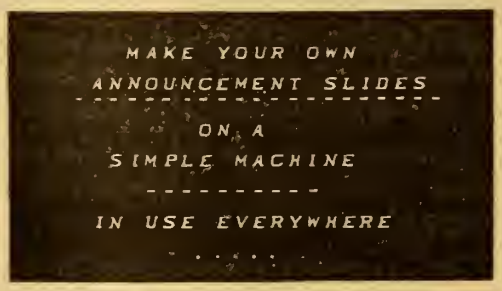
Specimen on Application



FOR FULL PARTICULARS
WRITE
JOHN GLOVER
53 W. JACKSON BLVD. CHICAGO

FOR SALE
MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 24,050; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1173 Film Exchanges | $4.00 |
| 205 Manufacturers and Studios | 1.50 |
| 235 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers. | 1.50 |

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago
Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

Projection Engineer

Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?

Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.

(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)
Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

Motion theater patrons who daily exclaim over the clearness of the pictures may not know that is stenciled in the film margin—but you do.

"EASTMAN"

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Weickhardt Pipe Organs

are not stock instruments, but built to order according to the ever varying individual requirements. Result: Wonderful musical effects, such as only a real, complete and genuine MASTER PIPE ORGAN can produce.

WRITE FOR THEATRE ORGAN CATALOG

WANGERIN-WEICKHARDT CO.
112-124 BURRELL STREET
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN U. S. A.

MLLE. VALKYRIEN
Featured in
WM. FOX PRODUCTIONS

Late Releases—
"The Valkyrien"
"The Cruise of Fate"
"Silas Marner"

Full Houses Follow Good Pictures

To maintain the high standard which brings results you need the clear, brilliant pictures projected by the

Bausch & Lomb
Projection Lenses

They mean the best effect for every film you run. They mean that the excellence of your pictures will bring patrons back again and again—and that a most valuable reputation will attach to your house.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are the standard among experienced operators—and for very good reasons.

Any film exchange can supply you with Bausch & Lomb lenses, which are the regular equipment for Edison and Nicholas Power Machines.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL ST., ROCHESTER, N. Y.
NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

Leading American makers of Photographic Lenses, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), Microscopes, Stereo Prism Binoculars, Ophthalmic Lenses and other high grade optical products.

THEATRE ACCESSORIES
LUCAS THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY
ATLANTA GEORGIA

REFLEX
Made in Switzerland
CARBONS
Write us for descriptive circular and price list
JONES & CAMMACK
SOLE IMPORTERS
Corner Bridge and Whitehall Streets, New York City

THE FOOS
ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANTS

3 to 400 H.P.
Make current for 2 cents per K.W.
Special Electric Engines 3 to 75 H.P., make current as cheap as a 5000 H.P. steam plant. Your central station bills will pay for an outfit in your theatre in 3 or 4 years.
Send for Catalog 98
THE FOOS GAS ENGINE CO. SPRINGFIELD, OHIO

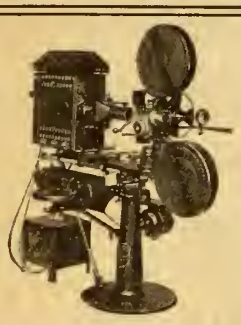
Exhibitors, Attention
CALEHUFF SUPPLY CO., Inc.
1301 Race St., Philadelphia
The house that has a reputation for handling nothing but the best and latest equipments.
Jobbers of
Power's, Simplex, Standard, Motiograph, Edison Super-Dreadnaught
Rembusch's Crystal Fibre Screen means perfect projection.
Do not buy Chairs before you see our Samples and Prices.
A full line of Fort Wayne Generator Sets, Mercury Arc Rectifiers, Wagner Converters, Display Frames, Wood or Brass, Ticket Booths, Ticket Choppers, Electric Fountains, Columbia and Speer Carbons, Tickets, Condensers.
Wonderful bargains in slightly used machines—
Power's 6B,
Power's 6A and
Edison B or D.
Get prices at once.

G. W. BRADENBURGH
892 VINE STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Trapped in the Great Metropolis | 5 reels (new) | 1-3-6 sheets | Photos | $250 |
| For $5000 a Year | 5 reels (Louise Huff) | 1-3-6 sheets | Photos | 150 |
| An American Gentleman (new) | 5 reels (Wm. Bonelli) | 1-3-6 sheets | Photos | 200 |
| The Movie Queen | 5 reels (Asta Nielsen) | 1-3-6 sheets | Photos | 75 |
| Into the Depths | 3 reels (Asta Nielsen) | 1-3-6 sheets | Photos | 45 |

Chaplin Comedies, brand new, at $40.00 per reel. Write for list of bargains in one, two and three-reel subjects with posters, as low as $2.00 per reel, good condition.

A Genuine PIPE ORGAN
can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano, ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars
HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY
128 West 46th Street NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

GET WISE
To the Best Place to Buy Supplies


We maintain a highly efficient "Mail Order Department" to take care of your wants. Prompt shipment—Low prices.
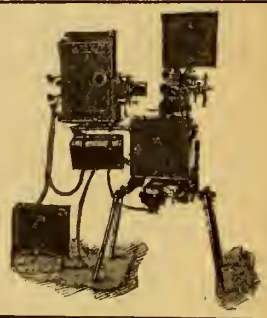
We Equip Theatres Completely and carry a large stock of all makes of machines; also repair parts and supplies.


IF IT'S USED IN A PICTURE HOUSE YOU CAN GET IT AT EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
947 PENN AVE.
PITTSBURGH, PA.
SEND US YOUR NEXT ORDER AND YOU WILL BE PLEASED

MIRROROID---THE PERFECT SCREEN
Seamless Medium Matte
PERFECT PROJECTION
For 33 1-3 Cents a Square Foot
Invisibly Seamed Rough Matte
5 YEAR GUARANTEE AGAINST CRACKING, PEELING, DETERIORATING
3 TINTS SILVER WHITE SILVER FLESH PALE GOLD
2 FINISHES ROUGH OR MEDIUM MATTE
NO HAZE, FADE-A-WAY EYE STRAIN, GLARE AND OUT OF FOCUS EFFECT
Let us prove to you the facts that 9500 exhibitors already know
Let us send you large free samples for tests
Pat. June 9, 1908; Feb. 16, 1915
Yours for Projection Contentment
THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc., Newburgh, N. Y.
If Your Local Dealer Cannot Supply You, We Will Inform You of Our Nearest Agency
EXTRA HEAVY MUSLIN—13 FT. WIDE SEAMLESS—$2.00 PER RUNNING YARD

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs

immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.

Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

---

Are You Tired

of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection

contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3

Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for Piano alone, or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN

1103 Grace Street Chicago, Ill.

---

Music for Any Picture

You can change from a waltz to "hurry," "one step to pathos," "Indian to Mexican," "Oriental to a Galop" and 100 other changes at a second's notice without turning a page. How is it done?

Write for particulars

WALTER C. SIMON

Suite 510, Times Building, New York City

---

PATENTS

Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

---

MENGER & RING, Inc.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Poster and Lobby Display Frames

304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK

Phone Bryant 6621-22

---

During the

National Exposition and Convention

of the

Motion Picture League of America

at the

Coliseum, Chicago

July 10 to 18 inclusive

You will have the opportunity and are cordially invited to call and view our

Permanent Exhibition of Theatre Seating

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

10th floor Lytton Building
Corner State and Jackson

Entrance on
Jackson Boulevard

---

FLORAL THEATRE DECORATIONS

A good or bad impression is most always gained by the first glance.

FLORAL DECORATIONS GIVE ARTISTIC ATMOSPHERE

It produces charm—delights your patrons.

Artificial flowers are practically everlasting and need no care—the effect is the same as natural ones.

Our expert decorators are at your service—ready to give you ideas and estimates.

Write for beautifully colored catalogue—mailed free to you.

BOTANICAL DECORATING CO.

MANUFACTURERS OF ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS AND PLANTS

208 W. ADAMS ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

We quote absolutely the lowest prices ever offered on reliable goods.

---

A Steady, White Light for Motion Picture Exhibits

Is produced by the

Lemon Arc Regulator

WITH ALTERNATING CURRENT

It gives high electrical economy. It has four operative points, giving perfect control of light.

NO HEAT—NO NOISE

Write for particulars

VINDEX ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Aurora, Ill., U. S. A.

---

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

One Simplex, 110-volt motor and motor drive attachments complete,—slightly used, but guaranteed in perfect condition, $220.00. One Simplex, absolutely perfect, complete with lens, $190.00. Two No. 6A complete with motors, $195.00 each. One No. 6A complete, guaranteed perfect, $155.00. One 6B complete, brand new, $268.00. One No. 6 machine, $115.00. One Edison Model D, $105.00.

Imported Maltese Cross Condensers, guaranteed against discoloring, 75c. each. These condensers cannot be equaled.

All of the above machines are guaranteed to be in perfect condition, some of which have been slightly used. Money refunded if not satisfactory.

THE STERN MANUFACTURING CO., Inc., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Better Light

Less Current

The DC Compensarc lowers the voltage of a direct current supply to that required at the lamp without needless waste.

The AC Compensarc cuts 2-3 from your lighting bill if you use alternating current.

The AC to DC Compensarc will transform alternating into direct current and reduce the voltage at the same time without needless waste.

THE COMPENSARCS
For Moving Picture Machines

FREE DESCRIPTIVE BOOKLET

Special screens, projection machines and first run films won't give results with poor light; therefore, what's the use of paying extra money to secure the best in films, screens and projection machines if the whole result is to be spoiled by poor light?

To have clear, white pictures such as everybody now demands it is necessary to have the proper light. The Compensarcs will enable you to secure the proper light no matter what kind or quality of current supply you have. They change your current supply to that proper for use at the projection arc and therefore give you

STEADY LIGHT—No flickering, no sputtering, even when changing intensities or from one machine to another.

BRIGHT LIGHT—Bright, clear pictures even under unusually strong house lighting.

WHITE LIGHT—No yellow streak, no ghosts.

Compensarcs are Safe, Efficient, Easy to Operate, Fool Proof, Reliable.

General Electric Company

Fort Wayne Dept., Fort Wayne, Ind.

ADDRESS NEAREST OFFICE

Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Butte, Mont.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio
Cleveland, Ohio
Columbus, Ohio
Dayton, Ohio
Denver, Colo.
Des Moines, Iowa
Duluth, Minn.
Elmira, N. Y.
Erie, Pa.
Fort Wayne, Ind.
Hartford, Conn.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Joplin, Mo.
Kansas City, Mo.
Knoxville, Tenn.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Memphis, Tenn.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
St. Louis, Mo.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
Schenectady, N. Y.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Toledo, Ohio
Washington, D. C.
Youngstown, Ohio

For Michigan Business refer to General Electric Company of Michigan, Detroit.
For Texas, Oklahoma and Arizona business refer to Southwest General Electric Company (formerly Hobson Electric Co.), Dallas, El Paso, Houston and Oklahoma City. For Canadian business refer to Canadian General Electric Company, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

6170

It sounds too good to be true, but the magnificence of our new laboratory and studios really is beyond mere word description.

If you will accept my invitation and visit us, you will see for yourself, and be forever convinced that we are best qualified and equipped to serve the moving picture trade in general and you in particular.

We make moving pictures to order—produce photoplays from script, or furnish script if desired—and we guarantee production, photography, laboratory work—everything.

We do developing and printing in quantities, large or small, and guarantee to bring out the best there is in your negative.

We maintain a service bureau for the benefit of our customers and we actually render service that helps.

We want to prove all this to you—Come and we will do it—if you can't visit our plant right away, send in a trial order—what we do speaks for itself.

There are reasons—Come and see them.

Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.

Chicago, U.S.A.

"Sixteen Years of Knowing How"

POWER'S

CAMERAGRAPH No. 6B

USED IN THE PRESENTATION OF

RAMONA

AT THE

AUDITORIUM, Chicago, Ill.

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE G.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET NEW YORK

H. C. HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Seekers" (Red Feather).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

A WORD TO THE WISE

More than 5,000 theatres have booked the ESSANAY-CHAPLIN comedy

"POLICE"

and are calling for return runs. There's a reason

BOOK "POLICE"
Through General Film

A GILT-EDGED GUARANTEE

The signed statements of the record-smashing business done by the exhibitors who have played and replayed

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S

Burlesque on

"CARMEN"

is the best assurance of the money awaiting you from this feature.

BOOK THROUGH
V. L. S. E., Inc.

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR..PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

HENRY B. WALTHALL

soon will appear in a new feature

"The Sting of Victory"

J. Charles Haydon, Director

EDNA MAYO

soon will appear in a new feature

"The Return of Eve"

Arthur Berthelot, Director

Released through V. L. S. E.

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Trademark Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

COMING

THE THRILLING PATRIOTIC AND SENSATIONAL

UNIVERSAL SERIAL

PHOTO-PLAY EXTRAORDINARY

LIBERTY

A DAUGHTER OF THE U.S.A.

20
Weeks
40
Reels

A MAGNIFICENT 20 WEEK SERIAL—
ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE MILLIONS

A SERIAL so entirely new, so unusually unique and so distinctively different as to require 20 full weeks for its presentation. A Serial with a universal appeal to America's millions of photo-play lovers. A Serial, strikingly original, with weeks of absorbing drama, presented in a continuous series of fascinating episodes—played by a masterful company of brilliant Universal Stars. A drama of to-day, swift in action, gripping in story, plot, situations, with just enough of the military atmosphere from the borders of Mexico to bring a thrill to every patriotic home and country loving American.

THIS brand new, distinctively different, extraordinary Universal Serial will prove the biggest drawing card for 20 straight weeks that you ever booked and ever exhibited in your House. Every element that makes for the Public's supreme entertainment has been incorporated into this magnificent production. The advertising helps, publicity props and aids will surpass anything ever attempted by the Universal Film Mfg. Co. You can arrange for protection for your booking date by communicating immediately by letter, phone or wire with your nearest Universal Exchange, who will give you more details, facts and figures.

NOW is the time to get busy.

Featuring Such Brilliant Universal Players as
Marie Walcamp
Eddie Polo
Jack Holt

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE President.

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway, - - - New York

SUPPORTED BY SUCH TALENT AS

G. Raymond Nye, Bertram Grassby, Neil Hart, L. M. Wells and a great cast of Universal Players already known to millions of people.

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS PRESENT
"THE MARK OF CAIN"
FEATURING DOROTHY PHILLIPS & LON CHANEY
A THRILLING DRAMA OF THE LONG ARM OF THE LAW WITH AN ABSORBING LOVE INTEREST
DIRECTED BY.....JOSEPH DE GRASSE
BOOK THROUGH ANY UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS

The Greatest Picture in the World

is yet to be made

But EQUITABLE PICTURES reach high standards

They will fill your house satisfy your Patrons and make you good money on your investment BOOK THESE AND PROVE IT

| | |
|---|---|
| HENRY KOLKER | in "The Warning" |
| HELEN WARE | in "The Price" |
| CHARLES CHERRY | in "Passers By" |
| JULIA DEAN | in "The Ransom" |
| FRANK SHERIDAN | in "The Struggle" |
| MARGARITA FISHER | in "The Dragon" |
| CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG | in "Trilby" |
| LEONORE ULRICH | in "The Better Woman" |
| MARY BOLAND | in "The Price of Happiness" |
| JANE GRAY | in "Man and His Angel" |
| LILLIAN LORRAINE | in "Should a Wife Forgive" |
| FLORENCE REED | in "The Cowardly Way" |
| ADELE BLOOD | in "The Devil's Toy" |

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

RELEASING THROUGH

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

The News Reel That Gets There

Most moving picture theatres put news reels in the class of "fillers"—something that their patrons like but would not come especially to see.

That idea belongs to the dead past.

The HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL is not a "filler" but a "FEATURE."

Engaged in its production is the greatest news gathering organization in the world—the biggest and livest camera staff in the world—and the quickest service in the world.

Hearst International News Pictorial

The local boat race and the firemen's parade are the old standbys of the ordinary news reel. There's no credit in that. Anybody with a camera and carfare can produce that kind of news reel.

But—

When the big thing happens—when the battleship goes down—when our troops meet the Mexicans—when faraway, startling news flashes across the world—you'll find it in the HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL.

That's why live exhibitors are booking this semi-weekly feature.

It's there with the goods—a genuine twice-a-week newspaper of the films.

P. S. We are advertising HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL to ten million people. Your patrons are among them.

International Film Service, Inc.

2 Columbus Circle, New York

Branches:
NEW YORK—7th Avenue at 49th Street
CHICAGO—207 So. Wabash Ave.
BOSTON—69 Carver Street
ATLANTA—146 Marietta Street
LOS ANGELES—912 So. Olive Street
SAN FRANCISCO—280 Golden Gate Ave.
PHILADELPHIA—1335 Vine Street
WASHINGTON—712 11th Street, N. W.
PITTSBURGH—938 Penn Ave.
ST. LOUIS—3313 Olive Street

Released on the Metro Program
July 10th

METRO PICTURES

ROLFE PHOTOPLAYS INC.
PRESENTS

LIONEL BARRYMORE

IN

IZOLA FORRESTER'S

The QUITTER

A Metro wonderplay in 5 acts of unusual power directed by Charles Horan

METRO COMEDIES DREW

THE LAUGHS THAT LAST

Latest Metro Drew Feature Comedies

HELP

Taking a Rest

His First Tooth

1,000 Feet Long
1,000 Laughs Deep

METRO PICTURES

THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY

The story of a Modern Frankenstein in 16 Supreme Episodes-Tense with thrills-Supreme with heart interest.

Picturing the great evil that conquered a noble attempt to shape human destiny.

THE CRIMS MYST

Produced by the Erbograph Company
CONSOLIDATED FILM
O. E. Goebel, President
1482 Broadway

with the MASTER STAR

MAURICE COSTELLO

and BEAUTIFUL

ETHEL GRANDIN

ON STAIN ERY

Greatest Serial Story
Greatest National Advertising Campaign.
Supreme Stars presented in superb pictures
Novelized by Albert Payson Terhune.

CORPORATION

Ludwig G B Erb, Treasurer

New York

BOOKING NOW

through the following METRO Exchanges

NEW YORK METRO FILM SERVICE, Inc.
729 SEVENTH AVENUE, - - - NEW YORK CITY

METRO PICTURES CORP. OF N. E.
162 TREMONT STREET, - - - - BOSTON, MASS.

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
9th AND D STREETS, N. W., - - WASHINGTON, D. C.

PITTSBURGH FEATURE FILM AND CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
938 PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE, - - PITTSBURGH, PA.

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
920 WALNUT STREET, - - - - DES MOINES, IA.

O. N. DAVIES
807 PRODUCE EXCHANGE, - - MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
5 SOUTH WABASH AVENUE, - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

METRO PICTURES CORP. OF TEXAS
1905½ COMMERCE STREET, - - - DALLAS, TEX.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
55 JONES STREET, - - - - SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
738 SOUTH OLIVE STREET, - - LOS ANGELES, CAL.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
1214 THIRD AVENUE, - - - - SEATTLE, WASH.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
311 SOUTH MAIN STREET, - - - - BUTTE, MONT.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
1721 CALIFORNIA STREET, - - - DENVER, COLO.

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
3618 OLIVE STREET, - - - - ST. LOUIS, MO.

METRO PICTURES CORP.
14 POST OFFICE PLACE, - - SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
532 WALNUT STREET, - - - CINCINNATI, O.

METRO PICTURES SERVICE
928 MAIN STREET, - - - - KANSAS CITY, MO.

FILL OUT AND MAIL THIS COUPON TO DAY

solidated
n Corporation
2 B'way, New York

nd me full par-ulars of the great
inson Stain Mystery
th booking and adver
ing data.

me.....

.....

THE OPEN DOOR TO FREEDOM IN THE SELECTION OF PICTURES THAT PAY!

MR. EXHIBITOR:-

I HAVE OPENED THE DOOR FOR YOU. BEYOND IT THE PATH TO PROSPERITY LIES BROAD AND CLEAR AT YOUR FEET DO YOU WANT TO FOLLOW IT, OR ARE YOU CHAINED TO THE MILLSTONE OF THE PROGRAM SYSTEM? THIS IS YOUR CHANCE! ONCE YOU PASS THROUGH OUR OPEN DOOR, OTHER DOORS WILL BE THROWN WIDE AND YOU WILL BE FREE TO CHOOSE THE PICTURES THAT YOU AND YOUR PATRONS WANT.

Lewis J. Selznick

For Release in October

"THE COMMON LAW" by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

LEWIS J. SELZNICK President | FILM CORPORATION | ALBERT CAPELLANI Director General

SEVENTH AVENUE AT FORTY-NINTH STREET — NEW YORK CITY.

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

The magic combination that opens the door to a new era in motion pictures—

FAMOUS PLAYERS —
485 FIFTH AVENUE

ADOLPH ZUKOR
PRESIDENT

JESSE L. LASKY
VICE-PRESIDENT

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

JESSE L. LASKY
Presents
MAE MURRAY
IN
"The DREAM GIRL"
by Jeanie MacPherson
Produced by
Cecil DeMille
RELEASED ON THE
Paramount Program
MONDAY, JULY 17TH

DANIEL FROHMAN PRESENTS
HAZEL DAWN and OWEN MOORE
IN "UNDER COVER"

An Extraordinary picturization of Roi Cooper Megrue's Melodrama which ran two years in New York

A
FAMOUS PLAYERS
PRODUCTION

RELEASED ON THE
Paramount Program
THURSDAY, JULY 20TH

LASKY CORPORATION
NEW YORK CITY

SAMUEL GOLDFISH
CHAIRMAN, BOARD OF DIRECTORS

DANIEL FROHMAN
CECIL B. DEMILLE
} PRODUCING MANAGERS

Paramount Pictures

distributing

Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco, and Pallas productions

What would you have to pay in the open market for a Mary Pickford, a Marguerite Clark, or a Geraldine Farrar picture?

What would you have to pay for two more pictures by the other Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco, and Pallas stars, who stand with them in the Paramount top line?

And what would you have to pay for five more big five-reel features, rounding out a month's program.

Add up the total, then ask the Paramount Exchange how much you would be charged for the full Paramount Service of two pictures a week under the Paramount plan.

The price will be less than the Open-Booking Cost of Three

Ask Our Exchange Today

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

5418

Paramount Pictures

Music

Specially arranged music for each feature beginning with release of April 3, 1916, is available at a small rental. Whether you have a full orchestra or only a piano, this specially arranged music will add greatly to the effectiveness of each feature.

Ask our exchange.

WEEK'S RELEASES

Jesse L. Lasky presents
WALLACE REID and CLEO RIDGELY in
"THE SELFISH WOMAN,"
produced by
Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Pallas Pictures presents
DUSTIN FARNUM in "DAVY CROCKETT"
(as done by Frank Mayo)
produced by
Pallas Pictures.

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURE NO. 23
"Beautiful Bavaria"

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS NO. 23

A Modern Salesman.
Better Babies—Nursery Table Manners.
Hunting Bird Secrets With a Naturalist.
Do You Take Ten Minute. Vacations?
How to Paddle Your Own Canoe.

PARAMOUNT BRAY ANIMATED CARTOON NO. 28
"The Wild and Woolly West."

Ask our exchange to-day.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

BURTON HOLMES—

A name to conjure with.

For Paramount exhibitors the name of the Burton Holmes Travel Pictures has proved a wonderful drawing card, enlisting the interest of just that class of people the progressive exhibitor most desires to reach.

Designed not only to please your patrons but, also, to bring you new patrons.

Ask our exchange to-day.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

UNICORN FILM SERVICE CORPORATION

Stars of National Reputation in Every Cast

A service of one and two reel subjects—twenty-one reels a week—composed of Comedies that are really humorous—Dramas that have a punch—Westerns that are full of thrills.

The best one and two reel subjects ever produced—clean and clear new film at prices much lower than you are now paying for poor subjects and worn out film. Stars of national reputation in every cast—

Consider these facts—they are undeniable. Unicorn Film Service will bring you additional business.

Here are some real business getters for you.

THE HEART OF AN INDIAN
2 Reel Western

Cast: J. Barney Sherry, William Clifford, Francis Ford, Anna Little, Arthur Acord, Mrs. Hale, Howard Davies

Great are the bonds of motherhood. They know no creed, no country, no race. In this portrayal is shown a tender example of the love that prompted an Indian mother to return a captive child to its mother. Released: July 12th.

THE MOHAWK'S TREASURE
1 Reel Western

Cast: George Nichols, Miss Cahill, Alfred Paget, Claire McDowell

Pills are usually not classed as treasure, but the Indian squaw held the bottle of pellets given her by the doctor's wife, as being one of her most precious possessions. It was lucky for the white woman that she did, for the pills were the means of saving her from the tomahawk. Released July 10th.

THE TEMPLE OF MAMMON
2 Reel Drama

Cast: Alec Francis, George Larkin, Lamar Johnstone, Barbara Tennant, John Adolphi, Muriel Ostriche, Julia Stuart

A deep satire that touches that living topic, "The High Cost of Living," in a way as to stir public opinion. A film more appealing even than its popular predecessor, "The Slums of Humanity." A subject that is the part and parcel of every existence. Released: July 14th.

THREADS OF FATE
1 Reel Drama

Cast: Owen Moore, George Nichols, Mrs. Griffith

To come together as lovers after fifteen years of separation and then find that they are brother and sister, is the unfortunate plight of two noble young people. Their course out of such a difficulty makes an interesting and extremely human tale. Released July 12th.

HIS PROMISE—with Edwin August
2 Reel Western

Cast: Edwin August, Ruth Blair, William Bailey, Iva Sheppard

Addicted to the drink habit, Jim Gregson (Edwin August) goes West with the brother of the girl he loves. He hopes to overcome his degrading weakness and to make his fortune. His first experience in the western village is with a typically rowdy set of miners who insist on annoying a preacher in his sermon. He jumps in and with hitherto unknown spirit quiets and overawes the crowd. The preacher, grateful, prevails on him to continue his preaching the Gospel to the rough Westerners. His weakness soon returns and overpowers him and it is only through the untiring efforts of a dance-hall girl, who has fallen in love with him that he is saved from a terrible fate. She finds a letter of the girl in the East, asking Gregson to reform and come back to her, and uses it to reform him and make him go to his truly beloved. Released July 15th.

USE UNICORN SERVICE AND MAKE MONEY

There is an Exchange in your district, all you need to do is to write, wire or phone. Do it now—don't let your competitor beat you to it. If you do not know where our Exchange nearest to you is, write direct to N.Y. Office.

UNICORN FILM SERVICE CORPORATION

126-130 West 46th Street New York City

(Names and dates of our releases can be found in "schedule of current and coming releases" on back pages of this publication)

Book These for Your Variety Program

Variety adds spice to your program. Essanay's one, two and three act comedies and dramas give variety and that final touch of spice that means perfect success.

HARRY DUNKINSON AND HARRY BEAUMONT
are presented in
"The Grouch"
3 act comedy-drama - - - - - - - - - July 22

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN
is presented in
"The Other Man"
2 act drama - - - - Reissued July 18

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK OF NEW ORLEANS
1 reel with scenic - - - - - - - July 19

GENERAL FILM SERVICE

Thanhouser
Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

Essanay

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

The Market Basket

"The Only Sensible and Efficient Manner of Choosing Attractions"

An Independent Film Expert's Opinion of the Open Booking Policy, Exploited by V. L. S. E.

By "WID" GUNNING

From His Magazine, "Wid's Films and Film Folk," Vol. 2, No. 24, June 15, 1916

I FIRMLY believe that the exhibitors of this country are making a terrible mistake in allowing the institution of the Program method of releasing feature films to continue to exist.

I have yet to hear anyone successfully defend the Program plan as against the Open Market booking plan from the exhibitor's viewpoint. It is certainly true that the Program plan is better for the manufacturer, because the Program makes it possible for the manufacturer to shoot in a bad one now and then, or a cheap one, and then bolster it up by an occasional good one.

It is all very well to hear them talk about establishing standards, but I believe any exhibitor in the country will agree with me that so far no concern has made good on that proposition.

I believe in the Open Market method of booking films. I believe it is the only sensible and efficient manner of choosing attractions. I also believe in paying for each film what it is worth to you, rather than paying a stated amount for so many films as they come—good, bad and indifferent.

I believe every exhibitor will agree that Marguerite Clark is a better box-office attraction than some star (?) who has never been heard of. Why, then, should you pay the same for the picture featuring the unknown star that you pay for the Clark picture?

You can rest assured that any argument from the manufacturer about your getting the big ones at a low price in order to offset the little ones at a big price, is a bad argument for you. If it was a bad argument for the manufacturer he would change his policy and change it quick.

I am very much in earnest about this question, because I believe it is of tremendous importance, and it seems to me to be really ridiculous that the most important branch of this tremendous industry should be as helpless as it is to-day.

If the exhibitors ever say that they want Open Market instead of the present good, bad and indifferent Program lottery, they will get it.

V.L.S.E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG U.S. PAT. OFF.

"The Tarantula"

A Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Play in Five Parts

Featuring

Edith Storey

And

Antonio Moreno

Sometimes the man does pay. Teddy Steele did—and the instrument of punishment was the thing which he feared most in all the world. Like an avenging angel, calling on mankind to witness the fate of those who hold a woman's honor lightly, the girl, who learned too late that men "kiss and ride away," brings him to his doom.

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

Orrin Johnson

Is Presented In

"THE LIGHT AT DUSK"

A Lubin Sovereign Play in Five Parts

By

Anthony P. Kelly

Directed by

Edgar Lewis

A powerful picture of the misuse of money and position.

Other Lubin "Sure-Fire" Offerings

"The Great Divide"
House Peters and Ethel Clayton

"The Nation's Peril"
Earl Metcalf and Ormi Hawley

"Dollars and the Woman"
Ethel Clayton and Tom Moore

"Souls in Bondage"
Nance O'Neil

"Love's Toll"
Rosetta Brice and Richard Buhler

Coming

"The Barrier"
By Rex Beach

LUBIN FEATURE

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

Kathlyn Williams

Filmland's best known and most versatile star has scored the greatest hit of her wonderful career as "Shirley Danbridge," in Hallie Erminie Rives' romantic love story of the old south

"The Valiants of Virginia"

A Selig Red Seal Play in five heart-stirring reels, carrying punch, power and appeal

"I Count no Hours but the Happy Ones!"

SELIG

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG
U.S. PAT. OFF.

Lewis S. Stone

Supported by

Marguerite Clayton

E. H. Calvert

And

Sydney Ainsworth

Is presented in

"According to the Code"

In 5 acts

Written by

Charles Michelson

Directed by

E. H. Calvert

---

Essanay Features

"That Sort"
"Sherlock Holmes"
"The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row"
Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on "Carmen"
"The Havoc"
"The Discard"
"Vultures of Society"
"The Misleading Lady"
"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"
"A Daughter of the City"
"The Alster Case"
"The Raven"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Man Trail"
"A Bunch of Keys"
"The Blindness of Virtue"
"In the Palace of the King"
"The White Sister"
"The Slim Princess"
"Graustark"

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

LUBIN

BRANCH OFFICES

Atlanta
75 Walton St.

Boston
67 Church St.

Chicago
Adams St. and Wabash Ave.

Cincinnati
129 West 7th St.

Cleveland
2077 E. 4th St.

Dallas
1900 Commerce St.

Denver
1433 Champa St.

Detroit
502 Peter Smith Bldg

Kansas City Mo.
12th & Walnut St.

Los Angeles
643 So. Olive St.

Minneapolis
608 N. First Av.

New York City
1600 Broadway

BRANCH OFFICES

Philadelphia
229 N. 12th St.

Pittsburg
117 Fourth Av.

San Francisco
986 Market St.

Salt Lake City
129 E. Second South St.

St Louis
3630 Olive St.

Seattle
415 Olive St.

Washington D. C.
811 E. Street N. W.

New Orleans
342 Bourgne St.

Syracuse
117 Walton St.

Toronto
15 Wilton Ave.

Montreal
204 St. Catherine St.

SUCCESS

SIGN POST NO. 25

"We can only govern our own course by the proven experience of others"

Big Four Policies Inspire $1,700,000 Investment by Exhibitor

POPULAR AMUSEMENT COMPANY
PROPRIETORS

EUGENE H. ROTH
MANAGER.
HARRY DAVID
ASST MGR.

PORTOLA THEATRE

779 MARKET ST.

PHONE
Douglas
5131

San Francisco, ..... 191

V-L-S-E Inc.,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

I want to say, without any desire to flatter, that the only true and consistent policy of an exchange releasing features, is the one adopted by your concern.

The open market affords every manager the opportunity of taking the pictures he knows are pleasing and suited to his clientele. Every theatre throughout the country is peculiar unto itself. The management reflects the policy that its customers expect and desire, not alone in the internal workings of the house, but in the program offered.

There are a number of pictures which are beautiful and costly productions, and wonderful in costuming and scenic effects, which I cannot use because they are not the type of pictures which my audience desires.

But through your consistent policy, I am privileged to pass these by instead of being forced to take them and lose money on them, and play such pictures as "God's Country and the Woman," "Sherlock Holmes," "The Great Divide," "The Valiants of Virginia" and many others such as those which we have successfully played, which I know will be pleasing to my patrons and that I will make money on.

We have built our success on the basis of this policy and the reputation of the pictures which we get as a result. Frankly, I am willing and glad to admit that this policy has made it possible for us to see far enough into the future to warrant our making an expenditure in San Francisco of $1,700 000 to properly exploit good pictures of all makes, by the open booking plan.

Very truly yours,

E. H. Roth.

RED SEAL SERIES PLAYS

V. L. S. E. Inc.

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

MUTUAL CHAPLIN SPECIALS

Charlie Chaplin Every Day

Charlie Chaplin in the Mutual Chaplin Specials is such an extraordinary attraction that he naturally brings extraordinary returns.

For instance, the Garrick Theatre, Los Angeles, is running Mutual Chaplin Specials every day in the year, playing each subject for four consecutive weeks. And business is as great at the end of the fourth week as during the first, as the accompanying reproduction of a photograph taken on the twenty-eighth day of the run of "The Floorwalker" at this theatre must clearly show.

There are thousands of other striking cases demonstrating the unparalleled worth of Charlie Chaplin in vehicles like "The Floorwalker," "The Fireman" and "The Vagabond" and the other nine Mutual Chaplin Specials which are to follow.

Book at any one of the 68 Mutual exchanges.

THE MUTUAL'S FLORENCE

Ask Any of the Wise Exhibitors Who Have Tested

FAR FROM THE MADDING

THE SECOND HIGH CLASS PRODUCTION

FLORENCE

DOOR

RELEASED

A Beautiful Five Act Version of Henry Presenting FLORENCE TURNER in Four

COMING AUGUST 17TH A WELSH SINGER

OCTOBER 12TH SHOP GIRLS

MUTUAL STAR

Produced by The Turner Film Company

TURNER SERIES IS GREAT !!

FLORENCE TURNER'S remarkable drawing power in

CROWD - Now Playing to Capacity Everywhere

OF THIS MAGNIFICENT SERIES IS

TURNER STEPS

JUNE 20TH

Edward's Famous Comedy-Drama Stage Success
Marvelous Characterizations

SEPTEMBER 14TH The FIRST SETTLER'S STORY

NOVEMBER 9TH REDEEMED

PRODUCTIONS

Distributed Through the 68 Mutual Exchanges

CLOSED SEPT. 1st

ALL PRINTS OF

DAMAGED GOODS

WILL BE WITHDRAWN FROM ALL

MUTUAL EXCHANGES

SEPTEMBER 1ST 1916

$25. A SPECIAL SUMMER PRICE $25.

OF TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS PER DAY

WILL APPLY FOR THE MONTHS OF

JULY AND AUGUST ONLY

AFTER WHICH NO MORE BOOKINGS WILL BE ACCEPTED

AT ANY PRICE

$100.00 ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS A DAY MINIMUM $100.00

RENTAL WAS MAINTAINED BY

DAMAGED GOODS

FOR SIX MONTHS

AT $100.00 A DAY DAMAGED GOODS

MADE MORE MONEY FOR MORE EXHIBITORS

THAN ANY OTHER FEATURE OF EQUAL MAGNITUDE

IN THE HISTORY OF PICTURES

ONLY A LIMITED NUMBER OF THEATRES CAN TAKE

ADVANTAGE OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

TO BOOST SUMMER BUSINESS WITH

DAMAGED GOODS AT $25. PER DAY

IS YOUR THEATRE ONE OF THEM ?

IT'S A HOT-WEATHER CLEAN-UP

PHONE THE MUTUAL NOW

MUTUAL PICTURES

The Dyspeptic

A two-reel "Mustang"; a modern frontier comedy-drama, carrying a punchy health lesson threaded through a refreshing love plot. Ashton Dearholt and Nita Davis are featured. Scenery effects are superb.

Directed by William Bertram. Released July 21st.

The Dancer

This two-reel "Flying A" drama shows Vivian Rich in the title role—that of a pure-hearted dancer who becomes appealingly domestic upon her marriage to an honest farmer lad. Delicately interpreted moments of pathos and a pleasing story make this a strong offering.

Directed by Carl M. Le Viness. Released July 17th.

In the Land of the Tortilla

—pronounced "tor-tee-ya"—is all that the name implies. In this "Beauty" comedy Carol Halloway and John Sheehan introduce comic situations burlesquing intense melodrama.

Directed by Archer McMackin. Released July 19th.

A Studio Satire

Orral Humphrey, "Beauty" comedian, interprets the main character in this rollicking comedy of motion picture studio life.

Directed by Orral Humphrey. Released July 23rd.

In exhibiting these offerings, theatre managers anticipate the demands of patrons for high class entertainment—and pave the way to steady patronage.

Book these—and play to capacity houses.

All "Flying A," "Beauty" and "Mustang" productions are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by the Mutual Film Corporation.

American Film Co., Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL SPE

CRASHING

—then Cleo jumps from the aeroplane!

Kidnapped—she seizes the parachute and takes the daring "drop" to the mountain below! Chapter Nine, released July 17th, shows this sensational feat!—shows Thomas Chatterton and Juanita Hansen in amazing adventures!! Lieut. Hope attempts her rescue—starts across the valley hanging to a dizzy cable—working his way inch by inch, hand over hand. Then a spy's axe cuts the cable and—

CIAL FEATURE

SURPRISES!

Sudden changes—
unexpected developments in each big two-act chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine" keep enormous audiences on the edges of their seats! Action—plot—speed account for the monumental nation-wide success of this serial. Exhibitors' letters say it is the greatest money-maker ever produced!

Presented by American Film Co., Inc.

Directed by Geo. Sargent

The Film Novel of the Hour!

Best Serial Ever Booked!

MUSE - US THEATRE

Dayton, O., June 23, 1916.
Mutual Film Corp., Cincinnati, O.
Dear Sirs:

Please be advised that I am having a big success on "THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE." I pack them in my hause every Monday night and get 10c for it. I think the acting and photography too fine in the picture.

I have run several serials but I never got ane so gaod as "THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE."

Please find check enclosed for chapter No. 3 and yours for success. I will recammend it ta any exhibitor who has a dull Manday night like myself. It will get the business.

Thanking yau, I remain,
Very respectfully yaurs,
[Signed] D. H. THOMPSON.

PILE UP PROFITS

for Fifteen Weeks!

Big profits—sure profits! Book "The Secret of the Submarine" for that dull night—make it the busiest. Get "rain or shine" capacity. A smashing, thrilling two-act chapter released every week for fifteen weeks. Chapter Nine released July 17th. Act now! RUSH your reservation.

Apply to "The Secret of the Submarine" department of any Mutual Exchange or at Mutual Film Corporation, 71 W. 23d Street, New York City

American Film Co., Inc. SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Special Over 1000 of the country's representative newspapers are publishing for millions of readers E. Alexander Powell's absorbing, thrilling novelization of "The Secret of the Submarine."

New York World — Boston Herald — Baltimore American — Pittsburgh Gazette-Times
Buffalo Courier—Cleveland Leader—Omaha Bee—Chicago Herald—Indianapolis Star
St. Louis Times — New Orleans Item — Dallas Journal — Milwaukee Journal
Salt Lake Telegram—San Francisco Chronicle—Los Angeles Record
AND 1000 OTHERS

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTIONS

HELEN HOLMES SERIES

With the announcement of the series of Mutual Star Productions featuring Helen Holmes, many exhibitors immediately arranged for booking, counting upon Miss Holmes' popularity and the class of her subjects to bring them ample returns.

But with the release of the first picture, "Whispering Smith," the number of bookings increased, and when "Medicine Bend," the second production, was shown, the bookings took still another leap.

These two subjects more than made good. They are of the type theatre patrons enjoy. And with their showing the number of Miss Holmes' followers grew.

If past performances are any guide to the future, the Helen Holmes series is in every way a success. Exhibitors not yet showing it can share in this success by making booking arrangements for the entire five productions comprising the series at any one of the 68 Mutual exchanges.

Next release

THE MANAGER OF THE B & A

Released July 31

Released Aug. 28

JUDITH OF THE CUMBERLANDS

Released Sept. 25

THE DIAMOND RUNNERS

Produced by Signal - Directed by J.P.McGowan

Mutual Star Productions

WILLIAM RUSSELL SERIES

The public is discriminating and prefers to patronize theatres showing photoplays of quality.

In booking photoplays, then, the wise exhibitor always bears quality in mind, at the same time keeping sight of the box office value of the pictures he considers.

The William Russell Series has these two important factors. Every agency for high class motion picture production has been used in this series. The star, William Russell, is one of the screen's great drawing cards.

Eight five-reel productions, each a distinct subject, comprise the series, which can be booked at any one of the 68 Mutual exchanges on the special series plan.

Released June 8
SOUL MATES

Released July 6
THE HIGHEST BID

Released Aug. 3
THE GUIDE

Released Aug. 31
THE MAN WHO WOULD NOT DIE

THE TORCH BEARER
Released Sept. 28

Produced by American Film Co., Inc.
S. S. Hutchinson, President

MUTUAL PICTURES

For Ten Thousand Bucks

This is a thrilling, virile VOGUE comedy—a travesty on powerful drama of the rails—with Ben Turpin and Paddy McQuire; and gives the public an introduction to Nell Farrin (famous vampire) and Gypsy Abbot (clever ingenue) under the VOGUE brand.

Be Sure to Book This All-Star VOGUE Comedy Thriller

Directed by Jack Dillon. Released July 23rd.

Jealousy a la Carte

A VOGUE summer special, with Rube Miller providing the laughs. His well-known comic ability sends ripples of laughter through the audience in rapid succession. The aggregation of comic stars assembled under Rube Miller never miss a "laugh" opportunity.

Directed by Rube Miller. Released July 18th.

Slapsticks With a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

VOGUE comedies are what you need to get crowds to your theatre these warm days and evenings. They'll travel miles to see VOGUE comedies.

BOOK THESE TODAY!

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by the Mutual Film Corporation.

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Gower and Santa Monica, Los Angeles California

MUTUAL PICTURES

GERTRUDE McCOY

in a Great Drama of Society Wolves

"GATES OF DIVORCE"

Released July 20

Supported by Alexander Gaden and an All-Star Gaumont Cast

GREAT GAUMONT WEEKLY SINGLE-REELS

MUTUAL WEEKLY—The Reel of Scoops. News of the world FIRST in motion pictures. Take your patrons through Mexico with The Mutual Weekly.

KARTOON KOMICS—Animated cartoons by Harry Palmer that are clean and amusing. On same reel with

"SEE AMERICA FIRST"—Scenic. Because of its popularity, selected by U. S. Government as releasing medium for views of National Parks. Other pictures show cities, historic sites and places of scenic beauty and grandeur. July 26—Crater Lake, Ore.

"REEL LIFE"—The Mutual Magazine in Film. Bears the same relation to a magazine The Mutual Weekly does to a newspaper. July 16—Quarrying Marble; Physical Education by Means of Sports; How Auto Thieves Work.

Gaumont Co.

FLUSHING, N. Y. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

General Film Service

VITAGRAPH

One reel comedies

"THE MAN FROM EGYPT"
Featuring HUGHIE MACK
Released Friday, July 14th.

"THE MUSICAL BARBER"
Featuring S. RANKIN DREW
Written by Frederic Chapin
Released Monday, July 17th.

"THE FUR COAT"
Featuring WILLAM DANGMAN
Released Friday, July 21st.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY V L S E

Sure it's Frank Daniels

Just another bit of evidence of his marvelous skill in make-up.

But no matter what the make-up is, the irrepressible Daniels goes rollicking through every release in the

"Kernel Nutt Series"

The whole series—ten releases —is now ready for booking.

"Kernel Nutt, the Janitor."
"Kernel Nutt Wins a Wife."
"Kernel Nutt, the Footman."
"Kernel Nutt's Hundred Dollar Bill."
"Kernel Nutt's Musical Shirt."
"Kernel Nutt Flirts with Wifie."
"Kernel Nutt in Mexico."
"Kernel Nutt and High Shoes."

"Kernel Nutt, the Piano Tuner"
Released Monday, July 10th.

"Kernel Nutt and Prince Tango"
Released Monday, July 17th.

Bookings through
V-L-S-E

VITAGRAPH

attery
Training in the Trenches
Crew of the "Queen Elizabeth"
Off to the Front
Submerging
Rapid fire Gun Practise
SOME GLIMPSES OF THE FASCINATING MOTION PICTURE
"HOW BRITAIN PREPARED"
Women Munition Workers
Drilling Recruits
A Broadside in the North Sea

HOW BRITAIN PREPARED

AN OPPORTUNITY

"How Britain Prepared" was acclaimed unanimously by the daily press of New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, and by all of the motion picture trade papers, as the Greatest Production of its Kind Ever Seen!

It embodies the Trinity of Show Success—TIMELINESS, ENTERTAINMENT and PUBLICITY VALUE—to the utmost degree.

It is Playing to Capacity Houses Wherever Shown!

STATE RIGHTS to the various territories are now available. See the picture. Then communicate at once with

The Patriot Film Corporation

AL LICHTMAN, General Manager

729 Seventh Avenue New York City

Come and see us at our booth at the Chicago Exposition

STATE RIGHTS

Following the Sensational Success of This Wonderful Patriotic Spectacle at the Liberty Theatre, New York

THE FALL OF A NATION

Will Be Released to

GREATER NEW YORK and NEW ENGLAND EXHIBITORS

On the basis of One, Two and Three-Day Showings

MONDAY, JULY 24

VICTOR HERBERT'S MUSIC
ARRANGED FOR SMALL OR LARGE ORCHESTRA

A COMPLETE LINE
of H. C. Miner Pictorial Paper.
Also Advertising Novelties, Cuts,
Lobby Display, Press Matter, etc.

FILM EXCHANGE OF THE NATIONAL DRAMA CORPORATION

SUITE 404, 1465 BROADWAY, NEW YORK
Phones: Bryant 8738, 8739
ED. V. GIROUX, GENERAL MANAGER
W. M. POWERS, New England Representative on tour

STATE RIGHTS

Are Now Being Sold Rapidly for the Territory Outside the New York and New England Zone

CURRENT SHOWINGS IN FIRST-CLASS PLAYHOUSES

Include the { LIBERTY, New York;
ILLINOIS, Chicago, and the AUDITORIUM, Los Angeles.

Acclaimed Everywhere as the Greatest Triumph of Film Art

IMPROVE YOUR PROGRAM

NAT C. GOODWIN

IN

The MARRIAGE BOND

PRODUCED BY

THE MIRROR FILMS, Inc.

Direction LAWRENCE MARSTON

WILL DO IT

EXCLUSIVELY DISTRIBUTED BY

THE CONCERN WITH A CONSCIENCE

UNITY SALES CORPORATION

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.

729-7th AVE. NEW YORK

THE YELLOW

EDWIN STEVENS
AS ALI SINGH
THE ORIENTAL SCOURGE

The TREMENDOUS 16
PRODUCED BY SERIAL

THE BIGGEST MONEY-MAKER
EVER RELEASED

Full Line of Advertising That Builds Business

The Greatest Newspapers of the Land
Will Publish the Story

A Whirlwind Campaign of Publicity will back it up, and make
"The YELLOW MENACE"
A Gold Mine
for You.

UNITY SALES CORPORATION
729-7th AVE. NEW YORK

"MENACE"

FLORENCE MALONE

MARGARET GALE

AND

MAGNIFICENT COMPANY

EPISODE SERIAL

FILM CORPORATION

A Few Wide-Awake Ones Who Distribute It:

STANDARD FILM SERVICE CO.
216 Columbia Bldg.
Cleveland, Ohio
Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan

ALL STAR FEATURES DISTRIBUTORS, Inc.
234 Eddy Street
San Francisco, California
Pacific Coast

LOCHREN FILM CORPORATION
16 North Fourth Street
Minneapolis, Minn.
Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Northern Wisconsin
Wm. A. Lochren, Mgr.

ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
13th and Vine Streets
Philadelphia, Pa.
Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia, Southern New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania
Harry Schwalbe, Mgr.

QUALITY FILM COMPANY, INC.
404 Ferry Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia
Harry Lande, Mgr.

EASTERN FEATURE FILM CO.
57 Church Street, Boston, Mass.
Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island
Herman Rifkin, Mgr.

FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE, Ltd.
12 Queen Street, East
Toronto, Canada
Exclusive rights for the Dominion of Canada
Jay J. Allen, Mgr.

BALABAN-HERSHBERG FILM ATTRACTIONS
Mallers Building, Chicago, Illinois
Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin
Wm. Hershberg, Mgr.

MESSRS. SCOTT & SANFORD
1911½ Commerce Street, Dallas, Texas
Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma
C. R. Scott, Mgr.

UNITY SALES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City
New York State and Northern New Jersey

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.
729-7th AVE. NEW YORK

UNITY SALES CORPORATION

YOU DON'T TAKE A CHANCE ON

THE LOTTERY MAN

By RIDA JOHNSON YOUNG

A CAPITAL PRIZE FOR EVERY BOX-OFFICE

THURLOW BERGEN

AND

CAST OF RENOWNED FAVORITES

F. RAY COMSTOCK PHOTOPLAY CO., Inc.

A HANDSOME YOUNG CHAP PUTS HIMSELF UP AS A LOTTERY PRIZE—

THEN

DRAMA, LOVE & FUN FOLLOW

THE BIGGEST STAGE SUCCESS OF A DECADE

EXCLUSIVELY DISTRIBUTED BY
THE CONCERN WITH A CONSCIENCE

UNITY SALES CORPORATION

UNITY SALES CORPORATION.
729-7th AVE. NEW YORK

IS HUMANITY IN THE GRIP OF EVIL

PATHÉ

To follow "The Iron Claw" the world's greatest business-getter, Pathe releases

July 17th

A MASTER-PLOT IN 14 CHAPTERS

THE GRIP OF EVIL

PRODUCED BY BALBOA ~ FEATURING

JACKIE SAUNDERS AND ROLAND BOTTOMLEY

A virile theme suggested by the best known men of the nation who have contributed their thoughts to this great question

IS HUMANITY IN THE GRIP of EVIL?

Your exhibitors know that Pathe Serials make money for you. To convince your audiences of the supreme excellence of THE GRIP of EVIL $100,000 is being spent in advertising

Don't Wait! Book it Now!

PATHÉ

"Never such wonderful pictures!"

That's what a live theatre manager says of

PATHÉ'S ULTRA-DRAMATIC SERIES

WHO'S GUILTY?

Anna Nilsson

Here's his letter:

TELEPHONE 1806 CABLE ADDRESS PROCTHEA-NEW YORK

PROCTORS

F. F. Proctor's Theatrical Enterprises

F. F. PROCTOR, JR. GENERAL MANAGER

THEATRE

Dr. W. E Shallenberger

President Arrow Film Co.

Times Building, New York.

YONKERS, N. Y.

191 6

Dear Mr. Shallenberger:-

Having played five chapters of your new series "Who's Guilty?" with Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore co-starring, I cannot help to express my feeling in telling you that never in my career have-I seen such wonderful pictures that have been so consistent in their general excellence, each chapter being a complete story in itself and all pertaining to "Who's Guilty?".

Their artistic value, their quality and everything about them have given to Proctor's Palace Yonkers solidity and have created a standard that I know will be impossible to duplicate with any other series now before the American public.

I cannot make my appreciation too strong.

Very truly yours,

Wm. Waldron.

Tom Moore

Be guided by the experience of successful exhibitors like the above-Show "WHO'S GUILTY?"

Produced by Arrow Film Corporation

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

"Who is the Laughing Mask?"

Marjorie Golden (Pearl White) finds out in the 19th Episode but your audiences must wait until the 20th - Released this week.

PATHÉ'S GREATEST SERIAL THE IRON CLAW

Holds its interest to the very end -
It makes money for everyone

John F. Lay, M'g'r of the Victor Theatre, Richmond, Virginia, says: "We could stand 50 Episodes of "THE IRON CLAW".
Mr. Durkee, Baltimore's well known exhibitor, says: "Make it a hundred"

Produced by Feature Film Corporation,
Edward Jose, General Manager

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

HAROLD LLOYD STAR OF THE

ROLIN

comedies on the Pathé program, is considered by many to be the country's greatest film comedian.

Take a tip-Book these wonderful comedies.

Current release

LUKE RIDES ROUGHSHOD

Week of July 10th

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

The most beautiful woman in the world
LINA CAVALIERI is featured with
L. MURATORE
in the Five Part
Gold Rooster Play
THE SHADOW OF HER PAST
Released July 17th

With two such stars as these you have something to advertise, Mr. Exhibitor!

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST

• LINA CAVALIERI •

EXCHANGE inc.
OFFICES
NEW YORK

Gen. Pershing and Staff "Somewhere in Mexico"

The latest and best pictures from Mexico and the Border are being shown in

THE PATHÉ NEWS

Your audiences will want to see how their friends are faring at the front.
Book this indispensable film now

The PATHÉ EXCHANGE inc.
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
25 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK

A VOICE FROM THE TRENCHES

THE FOLLOWING LETTER FROM "A PLAIN BRITISH SOLDIER," IS ONE OF 1427 THAT HAVE REACHED THOS. H. INCE WITHIN A PERIOD OF 4 WEEKS—UNSOLICITED LETTERS OF THANKS AND PRAISE FROM MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN WHO, HAVING SEEN "CIVILIZATION," WERE IMPELLED TO COMMUNICATE THEIR OPINIONS OF THIS MASTER-WORK DIRECTLY TO ITS CREATOR.

"Dear Mr. Ince:

"For one who has been through the Gehenna of Nations in France, and for the millions who remain, as I went, to lay down my life for the defence of my country and my loved ones, I thank you, sir, with a simple soldier's prayer that your wonderful picture 'Civilization' (which I saw here tonight) may waken your own great race to the Demoniac madness of modern war. What you in your mighty screen sermon have depicted—vivid remorseless and truly horrible as it is—is but the least part of the Saturnalia of war.

"Picture the stench of your comrades rotting in death by your side as you are bespattered by the hot blood of their freshly butchered in all the blistering heat and volcanic thunder of shrieking shells and belching guns! Then, in the black and deadlier silence of night, while you lie half-buried in muddy bloody slime hour after hour waiting for hell's-fire to burst out from earth and sky again, to feel the maggots, that are devouring in their millions the men you have lived and fought by, crawling over your own living carcass, as your brain reels in delirium at the sights and sounds you hear and see; and at those struggling souls you feel above and about you, still fighting a ghostly battle in the air, as if not realizing Death!

"Then the thoughts of home, of the anguish of loved ones their lack of your support - helpless women, hungry babes—Oh! God! You can't think of it!

"No! Not even you, whose vision seems to have been made prophetic, clear and pure with the power of a great God purpose. I can write no more. I can think of no more that I dare write. But, sir, you have in 'Civilization' done a great work for God and for the Sons of that Man who made us all in His image.

"Let every man, woman and child go to see this picture. Let them see in it that world tragedy we, whom I write for, have come through. Let them see it—as I do—the dethronement of the Physical with all its false idols and the awakening to Christ's Kingdom on earth of a new and a fuller Spiritual Consciousness, born of Brotherhood and Self-Control, which in its turn shall give birth to a New Race, with liberty-loving hospitable America as its home.

"May God bless and prosper you as the world will thank you is the heart's prayer of

"Yours for 'Civilization,'
"'A Plain British Soldier,'
"Formerly of 2nd Worcs., Batt. R. F. A."

THE GREATEST PRODUCTION OF MODERN TIMES

THOS. H. INCE'S CINEMA SPECTACLE

CIVILIZATION

NOW APPROACHING ITS 100TH PERFORMANCE AT THE CRITERION THEATRE.

NEW YORK

TRIANGLE PLAYS

Mack Sennett's name with the Keystone trade mark stands for highest quality in motion picture comedies. Released only by TRIANGLE Film Corporation.

TRIANGLE PLAYS

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS PRESENT

J. WARREN KERRIGAN

IN "THE SILENT BATTLE"

WITH LOIS WILSON. A MAN'S VICTORY OVER AN EVIL HERITAGE: FROM THE FAMOUS STORY BY GEORGE GIBBS.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS INC.

THE World is rapidly turning to the better and finer things of life. Civilization is making a universal demand for quality.

Striking the key note of this upward trend, the BLUEBIRD Photoplay has already become the first choice of Theatre managers who are building for future as well as immediate success.

Audiences everywhere have hailed the introduction of BLUEBIRD Photoplays with unmistakable satisfaction and pleasure because BLUEBIRD brings the first perfect Photoplay before a critical public.

Conceived and produced on the policy of "The Play's The Thing"— BLUEBIRD Photoplays have established a new and finer precedent in cinema entertainment.

The Charm of the BLUEBIRD Photoplay is rapidly becoming a household phrase.

Book thru your local BLUEBIRD offices or thru the Executive Office of

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (Inc.)

1600 Broadway, New York

By Arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr.
GEORGE KLEINE Presents

The Star Supreme
Miss

Billie Burke

in

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

Supported by HENRY KOLKER
A Motion Picture Novel By Mr. & Mrs.
RUPERT HUGHES

ELEVEN CHAPTERS of this stupendous photo-play are now appearing at the high-class theatres. A new feature chapter is released each week. The novel is complete in twenty chapters.

This is the only continued production featuring such a prominent star.

If you're seeking big box-office receipts during the hot weather, look up your nearest Kleine Exchange at once and book Gloria's Romance, or write

GEORGE KLEINE,
805 East 175th Street,
New York City.

The Social Pirates

Featuring MARIN SAIS and OLLIE KIRKBY

There's a fifteen week sure cure for "Summer dullness" at your General Film Exchange --- Book "The Social Pirates" and cash in with the thousands of exhibitors who proclaim it "the class of the series field"---in thrilling action, original stories, gripping acting and masterful staging. Try it on your worst day and for fifteen weeks it will be your best.

By

George Bronson Howard

Each Two Reel Episode Tells a Complete Story

Publicity Aids of Novelty and Class In Every Form

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street, New York City

Coming: "THE GIRL FROM FRISCO"

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter
J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager
The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time may be required to effect the alteration.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 694)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, July 22, 1916

Facts and Comments

IT is to be hoped that the convention of the National Educational Association now being held in Madison Square Garden will define more or less authoritatively the standpoint of the teacher toward the motion picture as an educational force. On the whole educators have realized the educative value of the screen, but there has been a lot of pedagogic talk about the bad effects of the screen. It has been asserted by some of our pedagogic friends that the screen encourages mental laziness because of the ease with which it conveys impressions into the human mind. Five minutes of thinking with or without pedagogic training must show to the average mind the incalculable value of the motion picture as a teaching agent.

* * *

THE general feeling among all film men interested in organizing a possible successor to the Board of Trade seems to be that nothing can be done without having the co-operation and, if possible, the affiliation of the exhibitor. In the deliberations of the committee heretofore appointed to consider ways and means of organizing the industry the national organization of the exhibitors has had no part. Indeed it would have been inopportune, to say the least, to have the national league take any stand whatever without consulting the voice of the national convention, which latter is now in session at Chicago. Whether the plans for a new film parliament succeed or fail the industry must mobilize for the coming campaign against hostile legislation in the various States and in Congress. If we wait for concerted action until the new organization has been perfected the enemy may be upon us in all our naked unpreparedness.

* * *

AT a recent gathering of exhibitors some said that the day of the "little fellow" was gone. There followed a storm of dissent in which the writer joined. "The little fellow" is still the backbone of the industry and is likely to remain so for some time to come. The great groups of organized manufacturers who supply regular programs know that the "little fellow" is very much alive. He is the cornerstone of whatever prosperity they enjoy. While the suburban house and the neighborhood theater continue to exist the "little fellow" will stay with us. We love to think of the gorgeous motion picture palaces in the heart of our big cities, but we know there are not enough of them to make up one big constellation in the firmament of motion pictures.

* * *

THE owners of one of the big motion picture houses in Ohio have sent a letter to their representatives at Washington and to the Secretary of the Treasury protesting against the proposed new revenue bill just introduced in the House of Representatives. The letter of protest which we print in full in another section of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD characterizes the proposed tax as "unfair, undemocratic and unjust." We hope that the exhibitors all over the country will imitate the example of our friends and readers in Ohio; that's why we print the text of the protest in full.

* * *

WE have lately had testimony from the inside as to the need of newer and better stories. There is not lacking testimony from the outside. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD gets letters from exhibitors and from patrons of the motion picture complaining of the neglect of the story and the undue exaltation of the actor. It would be easy to fill pages of the paper with letters all having the same burden. Writes one old reader of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD: "How many plays have we seen where it seemed that the pictures must have been taken first so as to give ample opportunity for the display of the actor's or actress's charms and the story thrown later as a concession to custom. Such a practice is not only destructive of true artistic achievement, but is harmful from the business viewpoint. Names are a potent force, it is true, but I think they are less than they were and are becoming less all the time. The exploiting of stars has been so overdone that the public is sated with them and is beginning to take them as a matter of course." This suggests the most timely theme of the overpaid and overadvertised star. It's a theme discussed throughout the industry and we shall have something to say on the subject in the very near future.

Rubber-Stamp Criticism

By Louis Reeves Harrison

INTENSE silence prevails among two dozen reviewers while a five-reel master effort is making its screen debut in the producer's private exhibition room—one can almost hear an idea drop. Keen perceptions are at high tension; external and internal intuitions are tremendously active; trained minds are assimilating a wealth of thought; all attention is concentrated upon the scenes fluttering by. It is not unreasonable to suppose that the inferential knowledge being absorbed may, in some cases, soon thereafter blossom forth in print, even though it be in a quiet corner of some daily newspaper, where it will most surely blush unseen by exhibitors.

Deeply impressed with the gravity of their situation, none smiles unless it be the publicity man. He does so partly for heart-warming purposes and partly because he has a cleverly-written synopsis up his sleeve for those who depend upon him for "constructive criticism," a slap-you-on-the-wrist gentle reproof for incompetence in combination with a lot of that indiscriminate praise which encourages poor work, levels quality and contributes liberally toward making the whole art of producing moving pictures ridiculous in the eyes of intelligent people.

A written synopsis helps the busy reviewer, a first aid to overworked memory, especially as to dates, proper names and other material data concerning the release, and it enables him to give all his attention to the screen instead of, as in other days, using part of his time making notes in a darkened room, but cases are not unknown where it has been turned in without noticeable change as original "copy," and its treacle sticks like fly paper to much that appears in columns devoted to criticism.

"To inject the alloy of honeysuckle into criticism," says George Jean Nathan, "is but to inject in it personal feeling. It is not necessary or fitting that the surgeon, knife ready, first kiss his lady patient, however much the lady patient may be reassured by the act. It is a not particularly jolly profession which calls upon its practitioner to prick the artistic pretenses of gentlemen who, outside their labors, are doubtless excellent and convivial souls."

The critic is not operating directly upon the play—it is seldom in his power to mend fractures and dislocations—and he often painfully realizes that the best he can do is to remove certain tendencies to disease in the new art in order that healthy tissue may grow in its place. Whatever in a release is obnoxious to common intelligence, defective in structure or treatment, injurious to the art as a whole, must be given attention for curative purposes. He may even be compelled on occasions, as a general practitioner, to use a very dry alkali of comment in order to correct acidity in the stomach of production.

The producer's basis of comparison is usually the sum of his own past performances, and he is often as blind to their shortcomings as is a fond parent to the glaring faults of a spoiled child. He is rarely a student of those conditions which operate in combination to bring forth a story of great worth or excellence, and even unaware that there are criterions established by custom, public opinion and general consent. The capable and experienced critic, on the other hand, has accumulated certain units of reference, the best examples of production, and is constantly growing up toward higher standards with each new phase of motion-picture development.

Whatever makes for superior quality aids practically every man who has money invested in producing or showing screen stories. The rubber-stamp reviewer is benefiting no one, not even himself. He is not serving the best interests of his paper, though that may not be entirely his own fault, and his lack of sincerity is bound to react on him in time. Even those he has tried to please, to the detriment of all who are intent upon improvement, become exacting in the end. He must become a mere adjunct of their publicity department or incur suspicion and dislike, where he might have commanded respect.

Every man is susceptible to kind treatment. It is only in the nature of things that a critic should be affected by politeness and consideration. Influences of that kind are often effective, if only in moderating the tone of a review, hence it requires courage to lay aside inclination for the sake of principle. Personal feeling involves the debasing alloy of favoritism and taints an otherwise trustworthy review with partiality, causing it to be a deleterious mixture instead of a strong and straightforward instrument for good.

Almost any critic can tell exhibitors what they already know about plays well calculated to DRAW the passer-by, the kind best suited for billboard purposes, but it requires discrimination to point out those bound to HOLD an audience and bring its members back again, the plays of genuine artistic merit, which build up the solid good will of a theater. Of the two classes, the occasional patrons and the steadies, intelligent choice favors those who attend regularly a theater presenting a program continuously worth seeing.

The rubber-stamp reviewer stands for nothing if not for that sort of deterioration which inevitably follows the establishment of false and shallow standards. To indiscriminately praise what contains none of the attributes of art, what removes "style from literature, speech from drama, color from painting and beauty of form from sculpture," offering no artistic compensation in return, is to merely destroy under the name of "constructive criticism," to destroy growing interest by leveling quality, to discourage improvement by lauding the inferior.

"What, after all," says the irrepressible Nathan, "is the philosophy of this hyperorthodox prejudice against what the contemporaneous whisker calls destructive criticism? Destructive criticism is the drill master of progress. Smashing a popular, and therefore probably imbecile, theory in the nose and advancement are twins. From Christopher Columbus, who cracked the popular theory that the earth was flat one in the eye, to Bernard Shaw, who handed the popular Sardou theory one in the breadbasket, the history of destructive criticism and the history of enlightenment are complemental."

Criticism, in truth, is not criticism at all when it is guided by any low standard of imitation or resembles. Almost the same relation that an author occupies toward the world as he sees it, the critic occupies to the work of an author, with separate reasons for existence, just as one may dig up a diamond and another cut away rude material to bring its true quality to light. When a reviewer does not know the difference between a gem and a pebble his place in a growing art is certainly not one calling for the exercise of discriminating judgment.

Constructive Work Needed

By W. Stephen Bush.

WE EARNESTLY hope that the present convention at Chicago will turn its attention to the need of constructive work within the industry. We have had many assaults on censorship, all of them perfectly justifiable. It would be well, however, to supplement this work by laboring on purely constructive lines. In other words, we believe that if the exhibitors will take a more active part in the civic light of their communities, if they will unhesitatingly promote upon their screens any project of general benefit to the public, they will secure the confidence and the good will of the public. There is not a city in the United States without its civic problems and without its civic needs. In one city the ice fund for poor children may stand in need of substantial contributions, in another town money may be needed for the equipment of a library, in a third city the public interest may be centered on the finishing of the hospital. Examples might be multiplied indefinitely.

From letters which have been received at this office from various parts of the country, we feel sure that exhibitors have acted wisely in lending themselves to the promotion of such desirable projects. In one city a strong movement for local censorship was squashed entirely by the public spirited attitude of the exhibitors. One exhibitor in the town referred to said to the writer, "I would just like to see any crank or reformer try to start something now after we have made substantial contributions for our local hospital. We all feel that he would be run out of town if he started anything now."

Another exhibitor in an entirely different section of the country told the writer that a movement for closing the picture houses on Sunday was headed off by the promptness with which the exhibitors responded to an appeal for a local charity.

We do not of course mean that the exhibitor should listen to every irresponsible request for screen publicity. It would be unwise for him to allow his screen to become the instrument of partisan or factional politics. Where an object, however, is of genuine public interest, a quick and intelligent response to an appeal for its promotion can never fail to benefit the entire industry.

In many cities and states, the exhibitors have even gone to the extent of having motion pictures made at their own expense, to please local sentiment, and to create a favorable impression among the leading people of the town. It seems to us that in all such constructive work they ought to have the unstinted support of the manufacturers. We were pained to hear that when two exhibitors recently came to this city and asked for suitable pictures for gratifying local sentiment, they met with nothing but rebuff. The Moving Picture World will never cease to plead for intelligent and sympathetic co-operation between producer and exhibitor. We have recently heard a good deal about the need of the exhibitor in any organization which is to work for the benefit of the entire industry. This it seems to us is a good time to translate the oft repeated willingness to co-operate with the exhibitor into deeds.

What's the Reason?

By W. Stephen Bush.

RECENTLY I saw two pictures of feature length made by well-known producers. The artistic merits of the features were negligible. They are in no material respect different from the scheduled output with which the public are becoming familiar to the point of contempt. They were remarkable merely because of a frank and wholly inexcusable display of the nude. In one of the features a model in a state of absolute deshabille was shown in the background of a studio. Two men were standing in front of the nude figure and by twisting and bending their heads and bodies were half obstructing and half revealing the supposed model which by the way had not the slightest relation to the plot. In the other picture the queen was taking a bath in company of her maid. The queen cast off every "troublesome disguise" in the way of clothing and took her plunge in a pool of water. Only the thin branches of some charitable trees impeded the gaze of the audience. The maid discovering that a "peeper" was looking on betrayed some distress, but there was no interruption in the display of nudity. The bath of the queen had absolutely no connection with the plot. It is a fair presumption that queens bathe regularly. Nothing is added to the dramatic value of the picture by showing the bathing ceremonies in detail.

Why then this emphatic display of bathing women and women in plenis naturalibus in art studios? Just what portion of the audience is supposed to delight in these exhibitions? Surely not the women and children who form such an important percentage in our audiences.

The taste that hankers after charms of this sort is usually gratified in burlesque theaters and in some of the less respectable music halls and variety shows. We are not trying to sermonize; we know there's nothing more tedious either in word or in picture. We are not trying to improve any body's morals or even interfere with any body's taste. We are only wondering why the thing is done at all. We fail to fathom the purpose of it all.

Recently I asked an experienced reviewer and film critic to account for this remarkable prevalence of nudity on the screen. He expressed the opinion that it was in the nature of a wave. He called attention to a well known and popular feature in which this tendency is very obvious. Other producers, he continued, seeing the success of this picture imagine it is due to nothing more than a display of nudity, and they become slavish and exaggerated imitators. This explanation seems plausible enough, but it suggests no remedy.

We believe the remedy lies entirely with the exhibitor. We also believe that the exhibitor and the producer are much more responsive to sound public sentiment in the non-censorship States. Much of this nudity is really licensed and stamped with official approval by the Board of Legalized Censors. The exhibitors feel safe in showing it. Indeed in a censorship State they are compelled to follow suit if any of their competitors use that kind of picture. It is a remarkable fact that a notoriously sensational producer has something like seventy "runs" in the censorship city of Cleveland, while the same producer has but a small number of "runs" in the non-censorship city of Buffalo. It all goes to show that sound public sentiment and neighborhood opinion are much better safeguards for the preservation of a healthy taste and the decent regard for the conventions of society.

SYD AND CHARLIE STILL CHUMMY.

Both Syd and Charles Chaplin make vigorous denial of the malicious report that there has been a "split" between the brother screen comedians. The report originated in a New York publication with a greater reputation for energy than accuracy. It is entirely without foundation.

"Deny it flat, somebody's foolish," Charles Chaplin wired from the Mutual-Chaplin studio at Los Angeles. "Not only is there no split, but we never have had a serious difference," Syd Chaplin declared. "We have always kept our interests in each other's work and whenever it has been possible we have lived together. We will be living under the same roof again if it happens that I go to Los Angeles to work."

Film Men Form Temporary Organization

National Association of Motion Picture Industry Is Name Decided On—Send Committee to Exhibitors' Convention

EIGHTY men gathered at luncheon at the Hotel Astor on July 6 to hear the report of the committee of twelve appointed at a gathering of a month earlier, called to consider ways and means of organizing a successor to the Motion Picture Board of Trade. Many of the prominent brands of motion pictures, supply houses and concerns interested in the trade were represented either by their heads or those prominent in the management of the respective companies. Present also were many New York City members of the Exhibitors' League. In printed form there was submitted a ten-page report signed by Walter W. Irwin, as chairman of the sub-committee. This report, on motion of William A. Brady, was adopted, and the meeting decided to send a committee to Chicago to present it to the exhibitors' convention.

The document was entitled, "Report of the sub-committee of twelve, with proposed charter and by-laws of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. Submitted July 6, 1916, to the Committee at Large on Organization." The committee pointed out that in its work it had endeavored to keep in mind two thoughts which it believed to be fundamental for the success of any association so formed and therefore for the welfare of the whole industry.

These are, it set forth, first, that the objects and actions of the association shall be confined to questions affecting the motion picture industry as a whole; second, that the association shall furnish a means by which the various branches of the industry may have the opportunity of knowing each other and the respective viewpoints of each upon all questions arising from within the industry, and thus, themselves, to adjust amicably any differences which may arise between two or more branches of the industry.

The particular objects of the association were set forth as follows: To foster trade and commerce among its members and to promote the business interests of such members; to secure freedom from unjust and unlawful exactions; to diffuse among its members accurate and reliable information as to the standing and character of those engaged in any or all branches of that industry and to supply other information concerning the industry; to settle differences between its members and to promote a more enlarged and friendly intercourse between those engaged in the industry and to do and perform all such acts as may tend to promote the welfare of the industry at large.

It is provided that the principal office is to be situated in the Borough of Manhattan in the City of New York and that the number of directors shall be thirty. The membership is divided into five classes, as follows: (1) Producers and importers of motion pictures. (2) Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America—membership in good standing in the league shall carry with it membership in the association. (3) Those engaged in manufacturing, dealing in and importing motion picture supplies and equipment. (4) Distributors of motion pictures. (5) Miscellaneous.

Each of these classes is entitled to five directors with the exception of the Exhibitors' League, which is given ten.

There is to be no entrance fee for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League. For the remaining four classes the sum ranges from $500 down, according to the relative importance to the industry of the branch affected. For employes of establishments and plants connected in any way with the industry the entrance fee is $2. It is this latter clause, by the way, on which the committee banks strongly. It hopes to extend the influence of the organization to every corner of the country.

It is provided that the Board of Directors shall determine the annual dues to be paid by members, but in fixing such the board shall apply the same method or unit to all similarly situated. Standing committees provided for are membership, finance and auditing, publicity, hostile legislation, constructive legislation, censorship, taxation, campaign, statistics and library, fire prevention regulations and insurance, foreign trade, transportation copyrights and trade marks, domestic and foreign; standards, labor, industrial economics, grievances.

Mr. Irwin presided at the meeting, as he did at the first gathering. He outlined what the sub-committee had accomplished, giving a comprehensive review of the many angles taken up by the committee. At the conclusion of Mr. Irwin's remarks, Mr. Brady made a motion accepting the report and authorizing the sending to Chicago of a committee to present the project to the exhibitors in national convention. Discussion ensued, there being two or three around the table who believed it inadvisable to proceed to informal organization until there had been further discussion by the various units. Mr. Brady declined to accept several amendments offered to his motion, and these were ultimately withdrawn and the motion was passed.

The committee that will represent the new association at Chicago are Walter W. Irwin, William A. Brady, J. H. Hallberg, William M. Seabury, Paul H. Cromelin, W. S. Bush, William A. Johnston, Lee A. Ochs, L. L. Levine and John J. Wittman.

The entrance fee provided for the respective memberships is as follows:

| Class. | Scope of Each Class. | Entrance Fee. |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | Motion Picture Producers and Importers | $250 |
| 2. | Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America | ... |
| 3. | Theatre. | |
| | Projection Machine Manufacturers and Importers | 250 |
| | Motor - Generator - Rotary Converter-Rectifier-Transformer Arc Controller and Rheostat Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Chairs—Manufacturers and Importers | 250 |
| | Exclusive Dealers in Chairs | 100 |
| | Musical Instrument Manufacturers | 250 |
| | Screen Manufacturers and Importers | 150 |
| | Carbon Manufacturers and Importers | 250 |
| | Electric Sign Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Electric Sign Dealers | 50 |
| | Ticket Selling Machines and Devices Manufacturers | 250 |
| | Ticket, Lithograph and Poster Manufacturers | 250 |
| | Banner and Photograph Manufacturers | 50 |
| | Slide and Novelty Manufacturers | 50 |
| | Electric Light Plant Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Ventilating Equipment Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Operating Booth Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Lobby Display Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Motion Picture Machine Distributors | 150 |
| | Motion Picture Machine Dealers— | |
| | In cities up to 10,000 | 15 |
| | In cities up to 30,000 | 20 |
| | In cities up to 60,000 | 35 |
| | In cities up to 100,000 | 50 |
| | In cities over 100,000 | 75 |
| | Repair Shops and Dealers in General Equipment— | |
| | In cities up to 10,000 | 2 |
| | In cities up to 30,000 | 5 |
| | In cities up to 60,000 | 10 |
| | In cities up to 100,000 | 20 |
| | In cities over 100,000 | 30 |
| | Studio. | |
| | Chemical Manufacturers, Importers and Dealers | 250 |
| | Stage Lighting Equipment Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Stage Studio Scenery Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Props and Furnishing Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Films. | |
| | Raw Film Manufacturers, Importers and Agents | 500 |
| | Film Cleaning Machine Manufacturers | 150 |
| | Film Renovators | 75 |
| | Camera. | |
| | Camera, Studio and Laboratory Equipment Manufacturers and Importers | 250 |
| | Lens Manufacturers of and Importers for Cameras and Projectors | 250 |
| 4. | Motion Picture Film Distributors | 250 |
| 5. | Architects and Builders and Sub-Contractors— | |
| | In Cities up to 100,000 | 25 |
| | In cities up to 500,000 | 50 |
| | In cities up to 1,000,000 | 150 |
| | In cities over 1,000,000 | 250 |
| | Employment agents | 25 |
| | Projection Engineers | 50 |
| | Studio Directors | 50 |
| | Studio Managers | 25 |
| | Cameramen | 10 |
| | Motion Picture Stars | 100 |
| | Motion Picture Actors and Actresses other than Stars | 10 |
| | Publications Devoted Exclusively to Motion Pictures | 250 |
| | Theatrical Publications with Motion Picture Department | 150 |
| | Newspapers | 10 |
| | Transportation Companies | 250 |
| | Insurance Companies | 250 |
| | Bill Posting Companies | 250 |
| | All employees of establishments and plants connected in any way whatsoever with the M. P. industry | 2 |

During Mr. Irwin's speech several of the exhibitors arose to leave the dining room. Samuel H. Trigger, apologizing for the interruption, said that a committee had an important appointment downtown with a city official, but he desired to assure the gathering that so far as he knew all exhibitors were heartily in favor of the proposed organization. He added that he based his assertion not only from conversations he had held with New York men but also on letters he had received from theater men throughout the country.

Mr. Irwin in his introductory remarks spoke for twenty minutes, going over the report in detail. He said the underlying basis on which the committee had worked had been the idea of democracy—the control by each division of the affairs of that division, reserving to the whole body those matters which concerned the whole industry.

"Your committee has formulated a plan which it believes contains the fundamental principles of complete co-operation," said Mr. Irwin, "and which it considers is drafted along lines that will permit of these principles being carried out. But your committee desires to say it does not consider this plan to be perfect, for the reason that no committee is likely to be able to present a draft of organization devoid of deficiencies and requiring no amendments or additions in the future. In other words, it is not at all probable that the committee has been able to draft an instrument which will take care of all of the questions which may arise in the future, both within and without an industry which is developing so rapidly and the future of which no one is able to clearly foresee, except along general lines; but it believes it has for your consideration a plan or instrument which meets the fundamental requirements, and which is broad enough to take care of most situations, provided the intentions of its provisions are interpreted by the Board of Directors at all times in a spirit of absolute fairness and devoid of jealousy or politics.

"In the first place, the committee considered that in order to give this organization its greatest effectiveness it must be confined in its actual operations to questions affecting the industry as a whole, and that incidentally to these purposes the association ought to be a means by which each branch of the industry shall have, through the association, full opportunity to know each of the other branches of the industry, and the personnel of each, and to know the viewpoints of the other side to any question that may arise within the industry, it being believed that the majority of disputes and misunderstandings within the industry are due to a lack of acquaintance, and therefore, to a lack of fair consideration of the viewpoint and equities of both sides of a question on which there is a difference of opinion.

"It was considered equitable that the Exhibitors' League should have ten directors in order to make their representation on the board equal the total representation of the manufacturers and distributors, for in all cases the manufacturers are either controlled by the distributors or the distributors by the manufacturers, and that at any meeting of the association not a directors' meeting, a meeting, for instance, to amend the by-laws, it is provided that the vote of Class 5, the miscellaneous class, shall only be cast by members who are not members of some other class, and likewise that Class 2 shall always have a total vote equal to the total vote of the classes of the producers and distributors, Classes 1 and 4, such vote to be cast by some one designated by the branch committee of exhibitors, and that if there be a division in the branch committee of exhibitors, the vote shall be cast in the relation that the majority and minority of the branch committee of exhibitors bears to the total number of votes cast by the producers and distributors.

"As to disputes within the industry, article 8 provides that any person having a grievance against any member of his own class may file a complaint with the grievance committee of that particular class, or if he have a grievance against any member of another class, or of any other whole class, he may file a complaint with his own grievance committee, which grievance committee will take up the matter with the grievance committee of the other class and arrange for a hearing with the view of permitting these two classes to thrash out the matter, and when possible come to an amicable adjustment, and we believe in most instances an amicable adjustment will be arrived at, or in any event a great deal of benefit will accrue by reason of the discussion.

"Now, gentlemen, with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League as a member, and with the exhibitors as the principal purchasing power in the industry, we feel that this organization can become such an influence that we will be able to get within our ranks everyone directly interested in the industry and everyone doing business with the industry. There will be no restrictions, so that a member will be at liberty to do business with whomever he chooses. But we feel that each member, all things being equal, would naturally prefer to do business with a fellow-member of this association. We feel that the people who are furnishing us with supplies, constructing our theaters and studios, ought to recognize that they are a part of this industry, and that our welfare means their welfare.

"We have drawn up a subscription agreement. If this committee approves this charter and by-laws as being fundamentally correct, it being hardly possible that we will be able to work out the details in so short a time and in such a meeting, but if it is fundamentally correct in principle and is so declared by this meeting, we have prepared a subscription agreement, which provides that the subscriptions shall not become binding until the total subscriptions shall equal $40,000, then the subscriptions become binding and those who have subscribed become members of the organization. Up to that time it will be a temporary organization. After we have organized we can very quickly call a meeting of the association and make such amendments as are deemed advisable."

Margaret Greene Believes in Dramatic Schools

MARGARET GREENE, who appears in support of Nat C. Goodwin in the Unity Sales Corporation's feature release, "The Marriage Bond," in which the much married comedian is starred, is one actress who firmly believes in the efficiency of dramatic schools as a means of training young actresses for the screen or the stage. Possibly Miss Greene's fortunate experiences and rapid rise to fame in her profession have a good deal to do with her favorable opinion.

Margaret Greene.

By the way, Miss Greene is one of those rare products, a born New Yorker, for she first saw the light of day in this city on the 4th of July, 1892. From the time she became to be a great favorite at high school entertainments on account of her dramatic ability, Miss Greene cherished an ambition to tread the professional boards. As a measure of preparation for her career, Miss Greene took the regular course at the famous Sargents Dramatic School, with the result that a year later she was engaged to play arduous parts with William Gillette. Her rise from this time on was rapid, as managers and stars were quick to recognize her marked talent.

Following a season as leading woman of the Hunter-Bradford Stock Company at Hartford, Conn., Miss Greene played Valery West in "The Common Law" both in New York and on the road. She has also supported George Cohan in "Broadway Jones" and made a great hit as Mary Norton in the Broadway production, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." The young actress before her first appearance in pictures supported Willard Mack in vaudeville. Her first engagement for pictures was to play opposite to Donald Brian in a Famous Players' production. She is seen in all the Mirror Films, Inc., productions which have been acquired by the Unity Sales Corporation.

It is planned to feature Miss Greene in a big production which will be shortly made.

E. J. LE SAINT JOINS LASKY.

Edward J. Le Saint has joined the Lasky company at its Hollywood studios as a director, and is preparing for his first picture. Le Saint is regarded as one of the foremost producers of the profession, combining artistry with dramatic insight and a genius for correct detail. His most recent work, "The Three Godfathers," filmed from the story by Peter B. Kyne, is now being featured on the Bluebird program.

NICHOLAS POWER'S CASHIER ON MEXICAN BORDER.

S. R. Burns, cashier of the Nicholas Power Company, is First Sergeant of Company D, Seventh Regiment of the New York National Guard, which recently left for service on the Mexican border. Sergeant Burns is very popular at the Power office and has a host of friends among their customers.

Richardson Visits Baltimore and Pittsburgh

Moving Picture World Expert Projects Himself Here and There—Talks to Operators and Managers

WHEN I arrived in Baltimore, J. Kingston Howard, president and business manager of Operators' Local Union 181, and Brother C. G. Bayne, its financial secretary, were waiting at the Pennsylvania railway portal of the city to meet me, and the usual ceremony of "Hello! Glad t' see you, old man! You're looking well," etc., was quickly disposed of. Baltimore is a clean-looking, well-kept city of 600,000 folks, and these same people daily feed nickels, dimes and quarters into 125 motion picture theaters, all of which are, I am told, doing at least fairly well. The tendency is, however, as elsewhere, toward larger, finer houses and—less of them.

The men themselves (operators, I mean) have been somewhat backward in the matter of study, but are rapidly waking up in that respect. Operating conditions are, broadly speaking, not the best, the greater number of operating rooms being, I am told, very small and poorly ventilated; also there is some decidedly ancient equipment in use.

Local Union No. 181 occupies pleasant offices in the Gayety Theater Building. It is a very live, business-like organization. Its present business manager (there is also a business agent, Brother Wm. F. Evans), J. Kingston Howard, is a progressive up-to-date man, who understands that a union is nothing more or less than a business organization, and conducts business strictly along business lines—something that, I am sorry to say, all too many unions do not do.

In the evening we visited several theaters, viz.: the Wilson, Guy L. Wondors, manager, Conrad Hagert and Charles King, operators; the "New" theater. Louis De Hoff, manager, N. B. Morgan and E. Hexter, operators; the Rialto, A. B. Price, manager, R. Hults, operator; Schanze's theater, Dr. F. C. Schanze, owner and manager, Norbert Harfele, operator.

With the exception of the "New" theater all had excellent operating rooms, the "New" being a one time vaudeville theater, now devoted to pictures. The "New" is to be closed for three weeks soon, however, and a real honest to goodness operating room built; also a new screen setting will be installed, the same to be modeled after the Strand theater, New York City.

I was particularly pleased with the operating room at the Rialto. The room is large, has a high ceiling and is well ventilated; also its observation ports are approximately 14x18 inches. Projection at the Rialto was all that could be desired; also it was distinctly high class at the other houses, except for the inevitable distortion of the picture at the "New," due to operating room location at top of gallery.

During my stay in Baltimore I also visited the Strand, Mr. Daily, manager, Fred Kerby and Otto Niquet, operators, and the Great Wizard, J. B. Bohannan, manager, H. Howser and William Braul, Jr., operators.

In the Hippodrome the "coop" (one can call it by no other name), actually cuts into the ceiling. The Hippodrome seats, at a guess, at least 2,500, and it has an "operating room" fully eight feet wide by maybe as much as seven feet deep, and, as I said, this what-you-may-call-it actually cuts into the ceiling of the auditorium. Of course, it is principally a vaudeville (cheap vaudeville) house, but while every facility is afforded even the poorest vaudeville stunt, the most magnificent photoplay shown is tremendously hampered in its presentation by this "coop," which is totally inadequate in size and utterly impossible in location.

The Strand has a very good operating room, but the Great Wizard room lacks in depth. It was plenty large enough for the old type projectors, but increase in machine size has made the room too small; also its observation ports are too small and poorly located.

At 11.34 p. m. very nearly every manager, operator and exchange man in Baltimore, together with one or two cameramen, supply dealers, the State Censorship Board and the State Board of Moving Picture Machine Operators Examiners foregathered at the Oympia Cafe, and there listened to an hour and three-quarters of lecture on projection. But that matter was dealt with last week by our Baltimore correspondent.

After speaking Monday night, Mr. F. Clarence Grote, operator of the Gertrude McCoy theater, issued an urgent request to the editor to visit his operating room on the following day, and I shall always be glad to think that the invitation was accepted, because at the Gertrude McCoy theater I found a progressive operator, and up-to-date equipment, and a really spacious well-planned operating room—not a coop, box or booth, but an operating room.

The equipment at the Gertrude McCoy theater consists of a General Electric mercury arc rectifier, two arc controllers, volt and ammeter, two Baird projectors and a motor-driven rewind, with cleaner.

Over the roof is a skylight, approximately 4 by 8 feet, the same being located at the top of a flue some 6 feet in depth. The operating room floor is of concrete and the walls are neatly plastered. There was a fire proof film case of ample dimensions, metal drawers and cabinet for tools and a water stand containing a five gallon bottle of iced mineral water.

Gertrude McCoy Theater, Baltimore.

The machines were spotlessly clean and in first class condition. Brother Grote is a man who studies, and, moreover, is proud of the knowledge of which he is possessed. He is of the type of operator who will fill the big jobs in the big houses which are coming in the future.

The Gertrude McCoy theater is managed by Frederick Clement Weber, who is a close student of all that pertains to the exhibition of motion pictures. He supplies friend Grote with all things necessary to put the finished result on the screen. The only criticism to be advanced was against the white operating room walls, and this condition prevailed against the wishes of friend Grote. I explained to Manager Weber the advantage to be gained through painting the walls black, and he agreed that it should be done immediately.

The Gertrude McCoy theater seats 500, projects a 17-foot picture on a Gold fibre screen at 100 feet. The picture lacks a black border, since it fills the entire screen, and this is, of course, not in keeping with the best practice.

However, the Gertrude McCoy theater auditorium and operating room presents very little which can be justly criticised.

I sincerely wish we had more such houses, more managers like Frederick Clement Weber and more operators like Brother Grote.

In Pittsburgh.

From Baltimore to Pittsburgh is quite some jaunt, but the Pennsylvania is quite some car line, and Mr. Pullman is very accommodating, so in the grey of early morn, June 28, your scribe might have been observed rubbering at Pittsburgh's sky line in search of a sign pointing to the spot where he might temporarily set up his wigwam. For it was too early to even expect the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania, then in session in Pittsburgh, and whose guest

I was to be, to welcome the wayfaring traveler. But luck was with me and I literally blundered into the headquarters hotel, the "Fort Pitt."

The convention had already been in session two days, and had, I was told, accomplished considerable in the way of cementing Pennsylvania exhibitors still more closely together.

Only one complaint was voiced, viz.: Many Pennsylvania exhibitors have the rather questionable habit of going to the State League convention city, securing their badge, and then showing up perhaps about fifteen minutes each day.

I would suggest to Pennsylvania exhibitors that it might be well to take the convention work more seriously. If you attend simply for the purpose of sky-larking, with no intention of spending even a few hours each day in serious deliberation upon the many problems with which you are confronted, then you have no moral right to protest against these conditions.

To cite a parellel: When the motion picture machine operators hold a district convention, the delegates thereto will be found in their seats in the convention hall from 10 o'clock a. m. until the hour of adjournment. They may (or may not) raise the Old Harry at night, but when the hour of assembling comes they are expected to be and, almost without exception, are on the job.

In this particular I would respectfully suggest that Pennsylvania exhibitors might well take pattern from their employes, the operators.

The delegates could, I am told, scarcely be gotten together at all in the forenoon, and only partially in the afternoon. Men, among them the writer, traveled from New York City, a round trip of almost 900 miles, to address the convention upon matters of the most vital import to them, yet in no case was there anything even faintly resembling a full attendance of delegates to listen. This, it seems to me, is not inclined to imbue one with the idea that the exhibitors are as sincere as they might be in seeking remedies for their very real troubles.

Please understand, gentlemen, that this little scolding is intended in the kindest spirit. It seems so utterly foolish to go to a convention, the very intent of which is to consult together and seek relief against manifold abuses, and then fail or refuse to attend the sessions of the body.

There was an exhibition room in which were booths containing a display of wares by supply and other dealers, Ludwig Hommel and the Pittsburgh Calcium Light Company being perhaps the leaders in this respect. Harry Myers, Rosemary Theby, Muriel Ostriche and other stars lent eclat to the affair, and proved to be quite some drawing card, so far as the general public were concerned at least. In the morning of the last day the editor addressed the convention, on projection, and those who heard it were kind enough to say very complimentary things.

In the afternoon the election of officers was held and the convention finally wound up in a blaze of glory in a banquet at the Fort Pitt Hotel English Room, which began at midnight and lasted until ———.

On the return trip we traveled as far as Altoona with Past President Zerr, of Reading, and Charles Peterson, of Tamaque. At that city these two gentlemen stopped, intent upon calling a meeting of Altoona exhibitors and organizing a branch of the league in that city.

Miss Rosemary Theby and Harry Myers stopped with them, the writer continuing on toward the white lights of Gotham.

Tom Ince Offers $1,000 for an Idea

Big Producer Is Looking for Some Big Stories to Fit Big Players.

THOMAS H. INCE, producer of "Civilization" at the Criterion theater, wants some more big stories representative of teeming, toiling America. He therefore announces a prize contest by arrangement with the Photoplay Magazine to remain open until midnight of the 31st day of December, 1916. Scenarios must be suitable for five reel pictures and must deal with representative American expression. The first prize will be $1,000, second prize $500, third prize $300, fourth prize $200. Other scenarios not winning prizes, but suitable for Mr. Ince's purposes, will be purchased at regular prices. In speaking of the type photoplays he is particularly anxious to have submitted, Mr. Ince says, "I want five reel plays representative of American life in any of its complex phases. "I don't want political arguments or propaganda of any sort. I don't want dramas embroiling religious sects or political parties. I don't want any treatment of sex which will offend.

"My idea of a play is not sheer tragedy nor unrelieved comedy, but a serious story of real life—a story lightened here and there with laughter, brimful of the suspense of actual existence.

"Coming down to individuals I particularly want big, virile stories for William S. Hart; society or light comedy dramas for Bessie Barriscale; big dramas demanding strong characterization suitable for an actor of Frank Keenan's type; romantic plays (not costume drama) suitable for William Desmond, and strongly sympathetic plays, of the same generic type as 'The Coward,' for Charles Ray."

All manuscripts should be mailed to Ince Scenario Contest editor, Photoplay Magazine, 350 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

Clay M. Greene

CLAY M. GREENE is once again the center of interest among the old guard of the Lambs, who under his leadership fought that notable organization's way from penury to affluence. Three years ago Mr. Greene joined the Lubin forces at Philadelphia, where he gained an enviable record as scenario writer and director, and might have remained there permanently but for the movement of retrenchment.

Clay M. Greene.

Conversation with him develops the fact that he is full of revolutionary ideas with reference to the art of the cinema, from both the manufacturer's and producer's points of view, and should he carry out his threat to exploit these ideas through a series of articles he is likely to throw heavily charged hand grenades into every trench of the trade.

He has agreed to change this threat to a promise as soon as one or two or three negotiations for his services, now under way, have been completed. Otherwise, as he expresses it, his hammer might drive tacks into the wrong balloon.

Should he fail to make connection to his liking, Mr. Greene will become a free lance, offering for consideration many of his known and unproduced dramas and comedies, as well as many original scenarios already prepared.

ALBERT S. LE VINO MARRIES MISS PRUSSING.

The marriage of Albert Shelby LeVino and Miss Margaret Prussing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Prussing, of Chicago, took place on June 29 at the home of Col. and Mrs. A. Hirst Appel, 495 West End avenue, New York City. The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. Frederic W. Goodman.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Mary T. Reeves, of Phoenix Park, Philadelphia. W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, with which Mr. LeVino has been associated ever since its organization, was best man.

As Margaret Prussing, the bride has won considerable fame on the stage, in motion pictures and in literary work. She is a recent graduate of Bryn Mawr, the fashionable women's college just outside of Philadelphia. After her graduation she became associated with the forces of Charles Frohman, a friend of Mr. Prussing, who is a prominent bank and corporation attorney of Chicago.

Miss Prussing's first stage engagement was in the Belasco production of "The Woman," in which Mr. Frohman placed her for training. She next appeared for a season with Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," going from that play to the part of Meg in "Little Women." She has been starred in feature pictures by Selig, Edison and Kalem.

With her marriage Miss Prussing has announced her retirement from the stage to devote herself to short story and scenario writing in collaboration with Mr. LeVino.

They have taken an apartment at 495 West End avenue for the summer and already are at work on a series of feature scenarios. Mr. LeVino will remain with the Arrow Film Corporation.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Brooklyn Exhibitors Hold Mass Meeting

At the Largest Gathering Ever Held in Borough They Appoint Committee to Meet Exchange Managers—Order Barring Children from Houses Precipitates Crisis.

EXHIBITORS in New York City feel they are facing an emergency greater than any that has existed in the history of the exhibition of motion pictures in the metropolis. This condition has been precipitated by the action of the city authorities in barring from all theaters children under sixteen years of age. The mandate was one of the precautionary measures being taken in the city to stamp out the spreading infantile paralysis, of which up to July 10 there had been 1,000 cases and 225 deaths. The edict has hit hard all but the few large houses. Some of the smaller theaters, those with but 300 seats, have been affected in such a marked degree that the owners are ready to close. On July 8 the Happy Hour and the Luna theaters were closed by order of the authorities because of the discovery of several cases of the disease in the immediate neighborhood.

On Saturday, July 8, William Brandt, executive secretary of the Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn, sent out a call for a mass meeting of exhibitors at the Triangle theater at 11 o'clock that night. All of the other officers of the local were on their way to the national convention in Chicago. When Mr. Brandt called the meeting to order there were 150 men crowded into the smoking room of the theater, where there were accommodations for scarcely more than half that number. It was the hottest night of the summer, but the picture men stuck to the job for over two hours and went thoroughly into the situation.

There was manifest a profound inclination to close all the theaters until the epidemic had been conquered and the ban had been removed. One of those present, who admitted he was not an exhibitor but had been a booker, pointed out it was easy to close a house but that opening it and bringing back its patronage was a far different matter.

Secretary Brandt announced that many of the exchanges in the city had promised their co-operation in so reducing the prices of films that the exhibitors would be able to continue business. Mr. Brandt suggested the appointment of a committee to meet the exchange managers at the Astor on the evening of Monday, July 10. This was eventually decided upon by a vote of 66 to 33, the latter figure presumably indicating the number in favor of closing down entirely.

"The present situation is the most serious we have ever had to face since the inception of the motion picture industry," said Mr. Brandt in opening the meeting, "even more serious than it was when Mayor McClellan ordered us to close. The Health Commissioner by one order has practically wiped out our income. In the last two nights I have received fifty telephone calls from exhibitors in Brooklyn asking what is to be done. One man showing a $40 picture took in $8.40. Another with an $8 show took in $1.10. It is my observation that practically every theater is affected in some manner.

"It is absolutely impossible to obtain from the authorities any assurance as to how long the situation will last; it is my belief that it will be a long time. The Board of Health has issued the order, and we must do all we can to help in its enforcement. Every theater is obeying it, as an inspection by officials has proved. We cannot, however, afford to pay prosperity prices for films.

"Today I have visited all the exchanges. The managers know they are in the same position as we are. They realize they must get on the job. Mr. Irwin of the V-L-S-E. said his company is willing to go fifty-fifty with the exhibitors. In an extreme emergency, he said, he would do even better. Mr. Hoffman of the Bluebird and the Universal said he would meet any condition. All he will ask is that the exhibitor be on the level with him. Metro, Mutual, International, Kleine, practically every exchange in the city is willing to do everything necessary to keep the theaters open."

William Hollander called attention to the unprecedented gathering of exhibitors. He was in favor of stopping proceedings and soliciting memberships. He minimized the crisis, saying there was nothing to be scared about and urged the appointment of a committee to press upon heads of departments the rescinding of the order.

Mr. Brandt announced there was no hope of a recall of the order. The authorities had refused even to modify the rule of sixteen years as the minimum age of admission, in spite of the fact that children over seven years had not been affected.

Mr. Samuels argued strongly for closing down the theaters.

Moe Streimer announced for the Exclusive that during the emergency any owner of a small house who was also a member of the organization and who found himself unable to pay for his film would be furnished with a show gratis.

The meeting closed with a rising vote of thanks to Secretary Brandt for his activities on behalf of the exhibitors.

Exhibitors and Exchangemen Confer.

A committee of the Brooklyn exhibitors met a committee of exchangemen at the Hotel Astor on Monday evening, July 10, for the purpose of taking up the situation caused by the epidemic of infantile paralysis and the barring of children from the theaters. The meeting lasted from 9:15 until 2 o'clock.

The exhibitors were represented by Messrs. Brandt, Cramides, Israel, Glynn, Sokoloss, Shaefer, Bigall, Gerhauser, Smith, Bruno, Cellar, Hollander, Ensler, Stockhammer, Forster and Schwartz. The exchangemen present were William L. Sherry, of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company; Edward Saunders, Metro; M. H. Hoffman, Universal and Bluebird; Arthur F. Beck, Mutual; Mr. Buxbaum, General Film; Mr. Schaefer, World Film; Samuel Eckman, Jr., of Manhattan, and Samuel Reiben, of Brooklyn, Triangle.

Following an executive session of the exchangemen Mr. Brandt outlined the situation as the Brooklyn men saw it. He referred to the fact that several score of houses had been voluntarily closed. He cited one instance of a 1,600-seat house that on that day with a ninety-dollar show had taken in $22—and a part of the program was the latest Chaplin release and the latest Pathe Weekly. Mr. Brandt informed the exchangemen that the exhibitors were willing to assume their share of the burden because of their desire to keep open their houses, in the hope that there would soon be a change in conditions. In accordance with the resolution of the Brooklyn exhibitors Mr. Brandt asked the exchanges to make a reduction at least equal to 50 per cent of present prices.

The exchangemen declined to accede to the Brooklyn men's request. They said they would be glad to consider the case of each house on its respective merits, declaring it was out of the question for them to consider a 50 per cent reduction on prices to large houses, some of which were practically unaffected. The matter at present rests on this basis.

The same committee of exhibitors during the day called on License Commissioner Bell. The commissioner told the picture men that he realized the seriousness of their situation. He promised them he would take up the matter with the Mayor and would urge upon the latter the necessity for a public statement from the head of the city government setting forth the reasons for the closing of the theaters to children—that it was done for the same reasons that all public assemblages were discountenanced and that the action as applied to the theaters was in no measure a reflection on the houses as being any more unsafe than other public places.

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn, the concern which supplies current to all of the theaters in the borough, has notified the theater men that it is considering a reduction in its rates pending the restoration of normal conditions.

---

MANHATTAN EXHIBITORS HOLD MEETING.

At a hastily called meeting of the Manhattan exhibitors, held just before the departure of the delegates for the Chicago convention, the following resolutions were passed:

Whereas, the authorities have seen fit, through the spread of infantile paralysis, to withdraw the permission of any child under the age of 16 to attend motion picture theaters; and,

Whereas, In consequence of this order, adults having smaller children do not attend, resulting in a tremendous loss to the business, in some cases amounting to more than 10 per cent. of the original business; be it

Resolved, That all exchanges in this district be requested to co-operate with the exhibitor to the extent of making such substantial reductions as will permit him to continue in business at as little loss as possible; and, further, be it

Resolved, That in the event of said exchanges refusing the co-operation requested, that we order the closing of picture houses affiliated with this League until such time as the order will be revoked.

New Yorkers Arrive at Chicago

Carl Laemmle Hires Brass Band and with Reception Committee Starts Things.

Chicago, July 9.

ONE of the preliminary events in the gathering of motion picture men for the sixth annual convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America in this city was the arrival today of the New York delegation, scheduled to come in at the La Salle Street Station. The idea of giving New York men a rousing reception and a correspondingly big surprise originated partly with the Chicago local exhibitors and partly with the Universal forces. The last named have been on the ground for three days under the leadership of Joe Brandt. Not only did the Universal men decorate the entire lobby of the Hotel Sherman with their streamers and banners, but above the clerk's desk they put a huge sign reading "Motion Picture Exhibitors Welcome." Early Sunday morning Carl Laemmle with the Universal Chicago staff arrived at the Sherman, and being informed of the coming of the special from New York, he hired a big brass band and drove with the band and his personal staff to the La Salle Street station. The reception committee of the local branch of the league was in the march to the depot. Among the local exhibitors in the reception committee were William Sweeney, Henry Frank, M. A. Coyinski, F. J. Flaherty, E. D. Miller, M. S. Johnson, R. L. Jacoby, I. Van Ronkel.

Before the train arrived the band filled the station with powerful military airs. When it came in, the band, playing its loudest, marched out to the platform and the New York men were received with deafening cheers. Lee A. Ochs came in for a special demonstration. Other exhibitors on the train were I. N. Hartzstall, Louis Blumenthal, Henry Haring, John Manheimer, L. L. Levine, Samuel H. Trigger, Adolph Weiss, Thomas Howard, Morris Needle, Sol Coleman, M. Machet, A. Goldman, Lester Cohen, Benjamin Title, William H. Linton, Bert Gibbons, F. A. Gorman, Otto Lederer. Other well-known film men on the train were Sam Spedon, Paul H. Cromelin and Masters O'Donnell.

The Board of Trade was represented by Attorney William M. Seabury. The waiting crowd and the crowds that had just arrived filled a good many taxis, a long procession of which paraded the seven blocks from the station to the Sherman Hotel. The band headed the march into the hotel, where the new arrivals were made welcome by the management.

Delegates are coming in from other parts of the country.

Oklahoma Meeting

Exhibitors Resolve to Run a Trade Show in September at Oklahoma City.

THE directors of the M. P. E. L. of A., Oklahoma Branch, met in executive session at the Lee Huckins Hotel, Oklahoma City, June 30. Members present were: Ralph Talbot, president, Tulsa; A. B. Moomand, first vice-president, Shawnee; S. H. Jones, second vice-president, Altus; Lee Olive, treasurer, Chickasha; L. W. Brophy, secretary, Muskogee; John E. Feeney, Okmulgee; Carl Gregg, Tulsa; Thos. H. Boland, Oklahoma City; Maurice Lowenstein, Oklahoma City; H. W. McCall, Oklahoma City; Peter Sinopoulo, Oklahoma City, and O. B. Powers, Eldorado, Okla.

It was agreed that the league shall put on a trade show this fall in connection with the Oklahoma State Fair at Oklahoma City, which occurs during the last of September. For this purpose a committe of five was named by the chair, as follows: L. W. Brophy, Muskogee; S. H. Boland, Empress Theater, Oklahoma City; John E. Feeney, Cozy Theater, Okmulgee; S. H. Jones, Altus; John Sinopoulo, Lyric Theater, Oklahoma City. This committee, which, by the way, are all going to the Chicago convention, are to secure the services of prominent screen stars, who will be the guests of the Oklahoma branch of the league during this trade festival. "Big George Plummer" has already been named as active manager, which goes a long way towards making this affair an assured success.

The Chicago convention was the one big topic of discussion. It was decided that the Oklahoma delegates should go uninstructed in the matter of the election of our next national president. The principle set forth in Rembusch's platform meet the hearty approval of our members and we wish to go on record as favoring the "open booking system" and putting the same in effect as far as possible at once.

As we are entitled to five delegates, it was decided that the first five of the following members to report at the Chicago convention would be given delegate's credentials. John Slocum; S. H. Jones, R. W. Wirt, H. W. McCall, W. C. Wood, M. Lowenstein, Carl Gregg.

Cleveland Exhibitors Elect Officers

President Sawyer Continued in Office—Megown Is New Secretary.

BENJAMIN J. SAWYER, attorney, was re-elected president of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League at a meeting held July 5. This will be Mr. Sawyer's third term as chief executive officer of the Cleveland organization. Mr. Sawyer was the only one of the former officers who was re-elected. The new officers are Henry Lustig, vice-president; C. A. Megown, secretary, and Adolph Maher, treasurer. The retiring officers are George Heinbuch, vice-president; W. H. Horsey, secretary, and Frank M. Kinney, treasurer. The present executive board remains in office, having been elected for a two-year term.

The re-election of Sawyer is regarded as an endorsement of the constructive policy which the league has been following and which has attracted attention to the Cleveland exhibitors from all over the country.

The exhibitors also elected the following delegates to the Chicago convention: C. A. Megown, William Slimm, Sam Bullock, S. F. Deutsch and W. H. Horsley; alternates: B. J. Sawyer, William Simpson and George Heinbuch.

Mr. Megown will combine the duties of secretary with the activities of the position of special representative.

Protest Against M. P. Theater Tax

Owners of Majestic Theater at Dayton, Ohio, Send Letter to Their Representatives at Washington.

ELMER L. GERBER and George Haas, of the Majestic theater of Dayton, Ohio, have sent a letter to the Senators and Representatives of their district and to Wm. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury. The letter is a protest against the proposed new revenue tax on motion picture theaters. The complete text reads as follows:

July 2, 1916.

Hon. Warren Harding, Senate, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—We noticed in the new Revenue Bill submitted to the House of Representatives today that it is proposed to tax moving picture theaters one-half of one per cent of their gross receipts.

To you, as its senator, the Majestic Theater desires to protest most emphatically and most energetically against this unfair, unjust and undemocratic tax. The present Federal tax we considered grossly unjust and it was paid under protest. There is absolutely no reason why the framers of this bill should not be able to draft a bill that would be just as equitable to all.

It is indefensible that certain businesses should be required to pay a portion of the expense of this government, while other businesses are exempt. We are willing to pay our share of any tax, but no more. We well understand that moving picture theaters are taxed because they are considered luxuries. Well and good, we will grant that fact; but why should not other luxuries be taxed equally as well?

Ninety per cent of the articles on sale in a department store are luxuries, yet the department stores are not taxed one penny. The entire product of confectionery stores is a luxury, but no tax is placed on them. Automobiles are luxuries, yet they are not taxed. Pianos, victrolas, victrola records, jewelry, books, magazines, cigars and tobaccos, the output of soda fountains are all luxuries and should be taxed. Likewise dance halls, and numbers and numbers of other institutions and businesses, or products, could be justly taxed, in which case the tax upon picture theaters and other amusements could be reduced so that it would in a measure be a just and equitable tax.

This is a free country; that is, our Senators and Representatives are free to impose numberless taxes indiscriminately upon their constituents.

The Majestic Theater registers with you its most emphatic protest against this reprehensible tax and requests that you bring this entire matter to the attention of the proper persons for rectification.

We do not care if you do not receive a single other letter in regard to this matter. The Majestic Theater proposes to raise its voice in protest, and if nothing more is done it requests you to read this letter into the minutes of the Senate, so that it will go on record.

Yours very truly,
MAJESTIC THEATRE,
Per Gerber & Haas.

NORTH CAROLINA MEETING JULY 19.

Plans are rapidly being concluded for the semi-annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the State of North Carolina which will commence on Wednesday, July 19, and continue over the following day. Headquarters for the convention will be opened in the Malbourne Hotel. There is to be a special musical program and dinner

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

Praise Where Praise Is Due.

ALL praise is due the Chicago exhibitors, who for many weeks past have devoted their entire time and best energies to preparations for the sixth annual convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. The members of the various committees have left nothing undone that it was possible to do to make the event worthy of Chicago and a credit to the great industry to which we are devoted.

While the busy efforts of one section of exhibitors, resident in Chicago, have commanded praise and made us feel confident of the future, the lukewarmness and apathy of another section, especially at such a time, has not failed to dull the splendid enthusiasm created in the big events now upon us.

Chicago exhibitors who have deemed it best to hold aloof from participation in the strenuous efforts made by members of the Chicago local on this occasion should see to it that all differences are forgotten the moment our guests from all parts of the country enter our gates. That is due the good name which Chicago has won as the city of conventions and as a generous host.

Special mention is due the members of the following committees for the fine work done in the interests of the exposition and convention thus far:

Exposition and Finance Committee: Louis H. Frank, chairman; M. A. Choynski, secretary; John H. Frundt, August Zilligen, Jr., and Fred Schaefer.

Press, Entertainment and Reception Committee: Geo. M. Laing, chairman; C. C. Whelan, secretary; Harry Hyman, Julius A. Alcock and Robert R. Levy.

Printing and Badge Committee: H. Lieberthal, chairman; Sidney Smith, secretary, and M. S. Johnson.

William J. Sweeney, chairman of the convention; Louis H. Frank, general manager of the exposition, and Fred W. Hartman, secretary of the Convention Committee, have been instant, in season and out of season, to promote the best interests of the convention and exposition.

Program of Exposition and Convention at Chicago.

The program of the sixth annual convention announces that Governor Dunne will make the opening speech at 10 o'clock a. m., Monday, July 10, in the convention hall at the Hotel Sherman.

Tuesday, July 11, will be national exhibitors' day at the Essanay plant. A special train will leave the Northwestern Elevated Station, North Clark and North Water streets, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. All exhibitors have been invited by George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Co., to be his guests during the afternoon. Special entertainment has been arranged, and it is the intention to include all the visitors in a big outdoor scene that will fit in a photoplay which will be produced in the near future.

The opening night of the exposition will be Wednesday, July 12, when the doors of the Coliseum will be opened at 7 o'clock p. m., and the exposition declared open by Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago.

Wednesday night will be Essanay night, and the following stars will be present: Henry Walthall, Edna Mayo, Richard C. Travers, Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, John Lorenz, Sidney Ainsworth, Bryant Washburn, Ann Kirke, Warda Howard, Lillian Drew, Ernest Maupain, Florence Oberle and Nell Craig. Mr. Spoor will be there to meet all exhibitors at the Essanay booth on that night.

Thursday, July 13, will be Clara Kimball Young day at the exposition, when special features and entertainment will be given throughout the day. The doors will be opened at 11 o'clock a. m. and closed at 11 o'clock p. m., and also during the run of the exposition.

Friday, July 14, will be Metro day, when the Metro Film Corporation will present the following stars: Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Viola Dana, Mabel Taliaferro and Grace Valentine.

Saturday, July 15, will be Paramount day, with Mary Pickford, Pauline Frederick and Hazel Dawn as the stars for the occasion.

Sunday, July 16, will be Vitagraph day, and the following noted players will be present: Mary Maurice, William Shea, Earl Williams, Harry Morey, Roger Lytton, Rose Tapley, Anita Stewart, Wally Van, Edith Storey, Dorothy Kelly, Alice Joyce and Hughey Mack.

The big convention banquet will be given Monday evening, July 17, at the Hotel Sherman.

Monday, July 17, will be World day at the exposition, with Alice Brady as the star. During the entire exposition week Miss Brady will make short addresses to all who aspire to success and fortune as moving picture players, and she will also tell of the details of studio work.

Harry Watson, Jr., of "Musty Suffer" fame, and his company, will share the honors on July 17 and 18 with the World and Universal stars.

Tuesday, July 18, will be Universal day, with King Baggot, Mary Fuller and Violet Mersereau as the stars.

There will be dancing every evening from 8 p. m. to 11 p. m., while the exposition lasts, and on Tuesday evening, July 18, it will be closed by a grand ball which promises to surpass in spectacular interest and in the number of people present any event of the kind that has before taken place in the history of the moving picture industry.

Chicago Reel Fellows Will Receive Visitors During Exposition Week.

The Reel Fellows' Club of Chicago will maintain a booth at the Coliseum during exposition week for the convenience and reception of all visitors.

Members of out-of-town screen clubs with proper credentials who register at the booth will be presented with a membership card entitling them to all the benefits of the Reel Fellows' Club for two weeks.

The club will furnish stenographic service, free of charge, at their booth, and visitors are cordially invited to use it.

Free transportation by auto bus between the Reel Fellows' headquarters at the Hotel Morrison and the Coliseum will be maintained during the entire run of the exposition.

Harry Watson, of "Musty Suffer" Fame, at Exposition.

George Kleine, accompanied by Harry Watson and his company of "Musty Suffer" players, will leave New York City on Sunday, July 16, on the Twentieth Century. The party will arrive in Chicago, Monday, July 17, to engage in the programs mapped out for Harry Watson days (July 17 and 18) at the exposition. Louis Myll, director of the "Musty Suffer" comedies, will also come along. The program arranged for Harry Watson days will include the production of scenes of a "Musty Suffer" comedy in the special studio at the Coliseum. One of these scenes will be made Monday, July 17, and the other on Tuesday, July 18.

One of the funniest features of Harry Watson days will be a boxing stunt between the star and Dan Crimmins, who is well known as the favorite opposite of the comedian.

Among the members of the company from New York will be Della Connor, H. H. McCollum, Dan Crimmins, Rosa Gore and Max Field Moree, who have delighted moving picture fans in the "Musty Suffer" comedies.

Chicago Film Brevities.

As the lease arranged for the run of "Civilization" at Cohan's Grand Opera House will expire in August, other quarters must be secured for its presentation in this city after the date of expiration. Present indications point to a long run for Tom Ince's big photodramatic spectacle. Mr. Ince left the city on July 4 for New York, but will return in time to attend the sixth annual convention and exposition of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

* * *

E. H. Calvert, Essanay's well known director and photoplay star, saw service in the Philippines after the Spanish-American War, and resigned as captain of cavalry. He is a graduate of West Point and, physically, is a man of iron and steel. Should the present trouble with Mexico come to a head, Mr. Calvert has made arrangements to organize a volunteer troop of cavalry, the men to be selected from actors and employees of the Essanay studio.

* * *

Louis J. Selznick paid a short visit to this city last week in connection with his business associations with Aaron J. Jones in the booking of Clara Kimball Young features. Mr. and Mrs. Selznick will accompany Clara Kimball Young to celebrate her special day at the exposition.

* * *

A brevity in last week's issue which stated that H. C. Holah, formerly manager of Pathe's Chicago branch office, had been transferred to Minneapolis, is in error. When I last saw Mr. Holah it was the understanding that the transfer referred to would take place; however, he resigned from the Pathe service to accept a position with the advertising and promotion department of the Chicago Herald, which he now holds.

* * *

On Thursday, July 6, the following Selig players left Chicago for the Pacific Coast studios at Los Angeles: Thomas Santschi, Mr. and Mrs. George Fawcett, Mary Charleson, Leo Pierson, Cecil Holl and and others. With the exception of Thomas Santschi, the other players had been engaged in the production of "The Prince Chap," under the direction of Marshall Neilan. Director Neilan remained behind for a few days to supervise the pruning and assembling of the film, after which he will immediately leave for Los Angeles to engage in the direction of "The Light of the Western Star," "The Country That God Forgot," etc., in which Tom Mix, the famous western star, will play the leads. "The Prince Chap" will be released as a Selig Red Seal play through V-L-S-E, Inc., on Monday, July 24.

Kathlyn Williams stopped over in Chicago last week on her way to the coast from New York City, where she had spent a short vacation. This was her first visit to this city within the last three years. The famous Selig star called at the Chicago offices of the Selig Company, where she was given a royal reception.

"The Valiants of Virginia," Selig's Red Seal play, released through V-L-S-E, Inc., was given its premier at the V-L-S-E theater, Sunday, July 2. The presentation was reviewed by the photoplay critics of Chicago dailies with considerable favor.

* * *

The following programs have been announced at the prominent downtown theaters in Chicago for the week beginning Sunday or Monday, July 9 and 10:

Studebaker—Carlyle Blackwell in "Sally in Our Ally" (World); tenth chapter of "Gloria's Romance" (George Kleine), entitled "Tangled Threads," and the Pathe Weekly.

Fine Arts—William Farnum in "The Man from Bitter Roots" (Fox), and a special picture of the horse show recently held at the South Shore Country Club, this city, in which many prominent people participated.

V-L-S-E Theater—"The Shop Girl" (Vitagraph), featuring Edith Storey.

Strand—Dorothy Gish in "The Little School Ma'am" (Fine Arts), a travelogue, and Mutt and Jeff cartoons. Clark Shipp is the soloist.

Orchestra Hall—Mary Pickford in "Hulda of Holland" (Famous Players), a travelogue, and a Paramount-Bray cartoon. Miss Lotta Sorenson, contralto, and Graham Harris, violinist, are the soloists.

Colonial—"How Britain Prepared" (Charles Urban).

La Salle—Tenth week of "The Little Girl Next Door" (Illinois vice film).

Cohan's Grand—"Civilization" (Thomas H. Ince).

Illinois—"The Fall of a Nation" (Thomas Dixon).

Auditorium—"Ramona" (W. H. Clune) enters its third week.

* * *

Manager H. W. Hill will introduce a novelty in his musical program at Orchestra Hall during the week of July 10. The entire orchestra, directed by Arthur Dunham, was taken to a studio and a moving picture was taken while Mr. Dunham conducted an overture. Throughout the week the picture will be reproduced and the musicians will follow the direction of the conductor as shown in the picture. The picture was made by Phillip K. Upp, operator and cameraman for E. M. Newman's Travel Lectures. This will be one of the pictures that will be shown in the private theater, in the Coliseum Annex, during the exposition.

The opening presentation of "The Fall of a Nation" was given at the Illinois, Monday evening, July 3. The critics of the Chicago dailies devoted considerable space to reviews of the presentation, and, judging from these, Thomas Dixon's photoplay showing the "fall" of a nation does not approach the rank of the "birth" of a nation, which still holds first place in the minds of the people, a long way ahead of all its succeeding celluloid aspirants for first place in public favor. "Once the piece is under way, you wonder how Mr. Dixon could have wasted so much footage on a prologue that is as flat as an illustrated chronogical history," wrote Ashton Stevens, the dramatic critic of the Examiner, who was assigned to review the opening presentation, and who has a national reputation as a dramatic critic. The musical score composed by Victor Herbert for the production has been generously praised, and the subtitles also have come in for very favorable comment. The audiences have been large, and the future will test the real merits of this spectacular melodrama.

* * *

F. O. Nielsen's numerous friends are glad to welcome him back to his rightful place in the moving picture industry—the exhibiting branch, in which he made a great success before engaging in the rental of state-rights films. He reopened the Parkway, on North Clark, near Diversey Boulevard, Saturday evening, July 1, and all his old patrons showed their loyalty and delight by crowding the beautiful house for three presentations of a well selected program.

Over $6,000 had been spent on the redecoration of the interior of the house and in alterations. A great organ had been installed and an orchestra of six pieces to play interpretative music for the pictures. This orchestra is the most expensive of its size in the city and each member is a soloist. An admission of 15 cents is charged throughout the house.

LASKY ENGAGES EDITOR ROBERT E. MacALARNEY.

Robert Emmet MacAlarney, for the past two years city editor of the New York Tribune, last week assumed his new duties in the photodramatic and scenario department of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, photoplay producers.

In taking up his new work, Mr. MacAlarney resigns as city editor of the Tribune and as president of the New York City News Association, having succeeded the late Arthur Greaves, of the Times, in the latter position. He continues, however, as associate in journalism at the Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University, where for two years subsequent to its founding he served as one of the organizers and professors.

Mr. MacAlarney has been city editor of the New York Evening Post and Evening Mail. He has been for some years a successful writer of fiction.

The engagement of Mr. MacAlarney, who is one of the best known newspaper men in the United States, is significant of the sincere effort which the Lasky Company and some of the other big producing firms are making to enlist the services of experienced journalists and novelists in the cause of better motion pictures.

POLLOCK WORKING ON "GARDEN OF ALLAH."

Gabriel Pollock, scenic and art director of the Selig Polyscope Company, who has been working in Chicago in connection with the production of "The Crisis," left Thursday, July 6, for Los Angeles, Cal. Immediately upon arrival there, Mr. Pollock will begin the work of planning artistic scenes and effects for "The Garden of Allah," the forthcoming film drama. It is the plan of William N. Selig to make "The Garden of Allah" the most elaborate and spectacular film play ever presented. Colin Campbell, the director who produced "The Spoilers," "The Ne'er-Do-Well" and "The Crisis" for the Selig Company, will also produce "The Garden of Allah."

V-L-S-E. SALESMAN ESCAPES MEXICAN BANDITS.

A. W. Plues, salesman in the Dallas Branch office of the V-L-S-E, while en route from Del Rio to Eagle Pass, Tex., barely escaped death recently at the hands of Mexican bandits who were raiding the village of Quemado.

Mr. Plues and his fellow passengers in the auto stage between Del Rio and Eagle Pass had just pulled into Quemado for lunch when the raiders entered the village. Fortunately, the chauffeur was still in his seat, and although several shots were fired at the stage, none of its occupants were hit. A wide detour was made via Poloma, which brought the party into Eagle Pass sixteen hours late.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

Sir Herbert Tree Returns to Los Angeles

Noted English Actor to Appear in a Series of New Triangle Plays—Speaks Enthusiastically of Motion Pictures.

SIR HERBERT BEERBOHM TREE returned to Los Angeles Tuesday to fill a three months engagement with the Fine Arts studios, where he will appear in a new series of Shakespearean film plays.

Sir Herbert was greatly pleased with the success of his recently filmed plays in the east and said in an interview to the newspapers that he was more enthusiastic than ever over motion pictures.

"The moving pictures are a tremendous educational force in civilization," he said, "and the pictures are getting better all the time. This must necessarily be so because with the advance of education in pictures we will have to raise to higher levels and endeavor.

"Of course prophecy is an unsatisfactory and unstable thing. One can best settle it by answering yes or no, but I am convinced that the future of the picture is world-wide and eventually, if not already, will be taken over by the state. In the schools and other ways the pictures will be a civic institution.

"I believe this is true just as I advocate a ministry of fine arts. The pictures are as big a factor in advancement as the arts have been. The young mind, from the age of fifteen on, gets its most vivid and lasting impressions at the theater. For there it sees life all around it as it is pulsating. So it is and will be in future with the pictures. It is hard to say whether they will supplant the drama altogether, for that brings us into the realm of prophecy again."

As to his immediate plans here Sir Herbert said they were yet in formation. He said he would be in Hollywood for three months and had engaged a bungalow. He expected his daughter, Iris, to join him in a few days. What plays will be selected for the films, he said, he did not know. The choice would be made after a lengthy consultation with the producer, D. W. Griffith.

At the end of his stay at Hollywood, Sir Herbert will begin a three months' tour of the United States in Shakespearean productions. "Henry VIII." will be the chief play during the tour. Miss Edith Wynne Mathison who was leading lady in the New York presentation, has been engaged for the tour. The company will give the initial performance at Boston.

Sir Herbert scored a sensational success with his film characterization of "Macbeth," which recently had its premiere at the Knickerbocker theater in New York, and was later transferred to the Gaiety.

The Beerbohm Tree productions, we are informed, will be directed by Chester Withey, the Fine Arts producer, who has to his recent credit "The Devil's Needle" with Norma Talmadge and Tully Marshall, and the "Hypochrondriac," starring De Wolf Hopper.

Director Withey is selecting a strong cast to support Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree in his coming Fine Arts productions.

Too Much Realism.

Eight hundred feet of perfectly good and thrilling film, depicting the pitiful plight of the fair Helene on the top of a skyscraper hemmed in with seething flames and dense volumes of smoke, will never be utilized for the simple reason that the reel fire developed into a real fire which destroyed not only the reel, but several hundred dollars worth of properties.

It all happened at the large open-air studio of the Vitagraph Company at 1708 Talmadge street. Helene had just made her agonized appeal for assistance and was preparing to make her leap for life into the stalwart arms of the hero waiting patiently on the pavement steen stories below.

"Register terror, grief, despair!" shouted the director. "Bill, smoke up that smudge pot. What do you think this is, a bonfire. Action! Make it real!"

Just then there was a muffled roar. The smoke pot had exploded and the skyscraper, the streets and buildings, the whole city, in fact, the result of many days' labor, burst into flame.

Then the fair heroine was rescued from real peril by real firemen.

Picture Actresses to Have Y. W. C. A.

With $1,500 donated by the Hollywood Business Men's Club to pay the rent for headquarters, a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association will be established at Hollywood for the benefit of actresses in the Hollywood studios.

An outdoor gymnasium for the film stars, reading rooms and many other features for entertainment are planned for the branch association, which has the backing of the most influential business men of Hollywood.

The idea of such a branch was started when the number of picture actresses registering in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium classes in Los Angeles began to increase week by week. Seeing that the young women felt the need for this kind of work Mrs. Willitts J. Hole, president of the association; Mrs. Charles Richmond, Miss Ella Stevers and Miss Julia Tolman, association workers, began an investigation to learn what the organization could do for the actresses.

Otis Turner, president of the Motion Picture Directors' Association, and G. G. Greenwood, were consulted by the Y. W. C. A. workers and they brought the matter to the attention of the Hollywood business men. The proposed plan was indorsed and the club contributed $1,500 for a year's rent for a home of the new branch.

Funds have yet to be secured for gymnasium equipment, instructors and a general maintenance budget, but the Y. W. C. A. workers announced that, with the initial contribution of the business men, they can proceed at once to secure the rest of the money needed and establish the branch during the summer.

Film Music Composer Kicks.

The following letter from Joseph Carl Breil tells its own story:

Moving Picture World, 305 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Sirs—The advertisements for a photoplay now being presented in New York City announce that Victor Herbert has contributed "the first original score ever written for a great picture."

That statement is not founded on fact.

In Nineteen Twelve Messrs. Adolph Zukor and Daniel Frohman, of the Famous Players, engaged me to write a score for the Sarah Bernhardt photoplay "Queen Elizabeth," which was first presented in Power's Theater in Chicago in August of that year, and the New York premiere took place later in Daly's Theater. S. L. Rothapfel, now managing director of the Rialto Theater in New York, also presented it with a large orchestra.

Every note in that score was original, and many of the newspaper reviews of it mentioned the fact that in writing the score I had followed the Wagnerian principal of "Leit-motifs" for the principal characters.

The copyright records in Washington and the nineteen fourteen edition of "Who's Who in America" both attest to the actual production.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH CARL BREIL.

Ad Club Frowns on Fake School Ads.

In defense of bettering the motion picture industry, particularly its advertising, the vigilance committee of the Los Angeles Ad Club sent the following instructions to Charles E. Bireley, one of its delegates at the national convention in Philadelphia. Mr. Bireley, according to Secretary C. M. C. Raymond, will present the resolution today. Mr. Raymond is confident of its passage:

"As delegate-at-large, make sure that this resolution goes before the convention at the proper time:

"Whereas, the motion picture industry is the leading industry of Southern California and is giving prominence and advertising to the city of Los Angeles daily, and, whereas the nature of the business is such that it gives unusual opportunities to the unscrupulous and designing to impose upon the innocence and credulity of unsuspecting girls:

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Advertising Club of Los Angeles through its delegates to the national convention of the Associated Ad Clubs of the World, assembled in Philadelphia, gives warning to the public to beware of and investigate all misleading advertisements.

"Be it further resolved that the Associated Ad Clubs of the World go on record as condemning every ensnaring and delusive advertising practice which would bring into disrepute the great industry of moving pictures."

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

It is likely that "Ramona" will be shown here again before winter and people will find it even better in its new form than it was before, and Mr. Producer-Exhibitor-Manager-Clune will again clean up.

* * *

Roscoe Arbuckle and his company who have been making pictures in the East, will return to Los Angeles during the coming week. Arbuckle will at once begin work on a Keystone feature comedy, under the direction of Mack Sennett.

* * *

Billy Keefe, who is the proud parent of an eight-pound heir, wired D. W. Griffith, his chief, soon after the stork called and registered. This is the reply he received:

Suppose I should send congratulations but cannot see that the infant's voice of which you boast can be of any use to us, in the silent drama.

D. W. GRIFFITH.

* * *

Pioneer Exhibitor T. L. Tally entertained Mlle. Anna Pavlowa and a party of ten at Tally's, Broadway. As a compliment to the noted dancer the orchestra played the Pavlowa gavotte and other numbers.

* * *

The California militia is now on the way to the border and one of the boys from some studio sent this news that a moving picture corporation has been organized in Troop D, with all the members formerly connected with Los Angeles moving picture concerns. The first film was reeled today. The members of the company are: Director, Private E. F. Switzer; scenario writer, Private Jimmy Douglas; cameraman, Private J. B. McKenzie; Sergeant Greider, leading man; Private John Wippern, property man.

* * *

"The Daughter of the Don," the feature film, telling the story of early days in Los Angeles, on which the Monrovia Feature Film Company has been working for the past six months, is to be shown at the Majestic theater for the first time August 1.

* * *

Fred Balshofer, president and general manager of the Yorke Film Company, has been in Los Angeles a fortnight, looking for a suitable studio for his company. Harold Lockwood and May Allison, leading actors for the company, are en route to the Coast, and Mr. Balshofer expects to conclude a lease of a property to serve as a studio so that work may commence not later than next week. Later telephone news says that he has taken over the old Masterpiece studio on Gordon street, in Hollywood. The company will begin work next week.

* * *

William Pigott, who is returning as head of the American Film Company scenario staff, was given a unique surprise by his associates. It was in the form of a silver cigarette case with the signatures in facsimile on one side. The presentation was made by Al Santell in the presence of the scenario department staff who had worked with the "chief" for some time. The following letter was read to the staff:

Santa Barbara, California, June 23, 1916.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Rayburn have asked me to convey to the scenario staff, the Goodfellowship Association and the employes generally of the American Film Company, their heartfelt appreciation for the floral pieces and the universal sympathy extended to them in the untimely passing of their only son, Donald W. Rayburn.

Dr. Rayburn further asked me to make plain what he has voiced to Mr. Sargent, namely that it is the family's earnest prayer that he free his conscience from the slightest qualm of responsibility for the sad accident.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM PARKER.

* * *

One night this week a burglar jimmied his way into the box office at Tally's Broadway theater and made his escape with a few dollars in nickels and dimes. And the funny part of it was Sherlock Holmes (the film) was resting quietly and serenely only a few feet away.

* * *

A regular circus stunt was staged on the trestle near Naples for the twelfth chapter of "The Secret of the Submarine." In this Lieutenant Hope, played by Tom Chatterton, comes to the rescue of a man who has accidentally stepped into a "frog" in the middle of the bridge. A train is coming. The man in distress was played by William Vaughan. The lieutenant hurries up and seeing the predicament cuts off the shoe as the other faints. At the edge of the trestle is an iron bar. The lieutenant grabs the hands of the unconscious man and pulls him out just as the train dashes by. The next moment the two forms are dangling in the air, the lieutenant hanging on to the iron bar only by the knees.

The engineer on the train had previously been informed of the stunt so he was saved the danger of a heart attack. It was a risky piece of business but was successfully done.

* * *

News of the secret marriage of Miss Bernice Seibeck, a dancer of international reputation, and Earle Page of Universal, is out. The marriage culminated a two years' friendship, that ripened into love when Miss Seibeck reached Los Angeles recently after completing a season in the East. Page proposed marriage Friday evening and his proposal was accepted. The plan for an immediate wedding was devised. The license was obtained at night and Judge Crawford performed the ceremony at his home. The couple will live at Venice and start with the World's best wishes.

* * *

The third episode of "The Girl from Frisco" series is completed with plenty of gushers, explosions, wrecks etc., in it, to help make the picture more interesting. The story is called "The Oil Well Plot," and in it are featured Marin Sais and True Broadman; others in the cast are Frank Jonasson, Roland E. Bradbury, Ed Clisbee, Hart Hoxie and others.

* * *

Gilbert E. Murdock's comedy, "To Catch a Thief," has been bought by the Universal Company and will have an early production. Mr. Murdock, an explorer, playwright and prolific writer of fiction, has established himself and typewriter upon a houseboat somewhere among the lakes of Washington and from these unique headquarters the United States mail carries thousands of words weekly, written on order and in both script and short story form.

* * *

Raymond B. West, fresh from his prolonged vacation to the Hawaiian Islands, is preparing this week to begin work on a new Triangle-Kay Bee play in which Thomas H. Ince will present Charles Ray as star. The story is by J. G. Hawks and is said to offer Ray, for the first time in many months, a part that is not of the "weakling" variety. Ray is now engaged in appearing as leading man with Bessie Barriscale in the comedy-drama being directed by Charles Miller.

* * *

Mr. Hopper is cast for a well fitted Triangle comedy part—one that does not require an artificial personality—he is himself all the time during the progress of the play. He will be directed by Tod Browning, who figured in a recent automobile accident, and devoted his time to scenario work until he was pronounced physically able by his physician. Before Browning was injured he produced a series of three-reel Majestic plays that were released on the Mutual program. Hopper will be surrounded by a capable cast of film players. The working title of the picture is "The Mummy," and is said to be somewhat different in its construction. Production will be started immediately.

* * *

Oh! We see it all now.

This, then, is why pretty Corinne Griffith left the Vitagraph "to be with her mother." The following personal tells the full story. Blessings on you, too: "Webster Campbell and his bride, formerly Corinne Griffith of the Vitagraph forces, spent their holiday on an auto trip to Santa Barbara."

* * *

The Vitagraph, as usual, thoughtful of its employees, closed the studio from July 1 to July 5, thus allowing the regular Independence Day holiday and an extra day on Monday. Manager Sturgeon, William Duncan, Edgar Keller, and Philo Goodfriend, spent the days on an extended fishing trip around Catalina, as did Mary Anderson, and Otto Lederer spent his in Camp Baldy, far in the mountains. By actual count there were only two employees of the Vitagraph who did not hike to the tall timber, and they were the night watchman and Jack Mower, the latter having a gorgeous time tending to his newly acquired farm not far from the studio.

"Fall of a Nation" Release Day, Monday July 24

The Dixon-Herbert Spectacle Will Be Available to Greater New York and New England Exhibitors---Offices and Film Exchange Removed to 1465 Broadway

THE National Drama Corporation announces that "The Fall of a Nation," the Dixon-Herbert patriotic spectacle now showing at the Liberty theater, New York, and the Illinois theater, Chicago, will be released to Greater New York and New England exhibitors on Monday, July 24. This is in line with Thomas Dixon's recently-announced policy of securing the widest possible distribution of his work while the military forces of the country are mobilized and America is debating the question of further preparedness. With the films now being placed in the hands of state rights purchasers, by September at least fifty prints of the national defense play will be exhibiting its enthralling story to the great American public.

Leila Frost, One of the Stars of "The Fall of a Nation."

A commodious film exchange and likewise spacious offices to accommodate the state rights trade are now fitted up by the corporation at 1465 Broadway. Space requirements necessitated the removal from the Longacre Building offices. The new quarters are easily identified by the big "Fall of a Nation" sign at the southwest corner of Forty-second street and Broadway. Here will be found Ed. V. Giroux, general manager, in charge of bookings and state rights; Henry MacMahon, general press representative, supervising publicity and advertising aids to exhibitors, and Wayland Taylor, financial manager and general auditor. It will also be the headquarters of W. M. Powers, formerly of the press department, who has been appointed traveling representative in New England.

A visit to the new offices on the fourth floor of the Subway Central Building will disclose one of the liveliest and most interesting campaigns in the history of the greater films. Leaders of the theatrical and motion picture worlds are in daily conference with Mr. Giroux. Owners of big Western circuits covering several states brush elbows with New England magnates, exhibitors from the crowded metropolitan areas and representatives of suburban theaters. The trade is waited on quickly and expeditiously. Buoyancy and optimism prevail, for the "punch" and thrill of the big picture as shown at the Liberty theater, half a block away, have inspired staff and exhibitors equally.

Harold Sanford, the director at the Liberty, has now completed the transposition of the Victor Herbert music for small orchestra. This will enable the small town exhibitor, if he so desires, to present the glorious musical score with a very few musicians. The film itself is in ten reels; actual running time, two hours and twelve minutes. Four shows a day are thus easily practicable.

Out West, where "The Fall of a Nation" has been acclaimed by Ashton Stevens, O. L. Hall and several other critics as presenting the greatest battle scenes yet staged, the Illinois theater, Chicago, is the center of exhibitors' interest. Large delegations from the exhibitors' convention were entertained last week by E. D. Price, "The Fall of a Nation" manager there, and by Bartley Cushing, the associate director of the production. The scenes in the play cartooning the peace-at-any-price and anti-defence advocates have created a sensation. The stamping grounds of W. J. Bryan and Henry Ford will soon be invaded by the trenchant Dixon plea for preparedness.

Some of the choicest territory has been contracted for by state rights men. But much of the Middle West, where national defence is a topic on every tongue, is still open, and the exhibitors will reap a harvest at the conclusion of the Chicago run.

Maurice and Florence Walton With Famous Players

World-Famous Originators of Many Celebrated Dances to Be Starred on Screen.

MAURICE and Florence Walton, internationally celebrated dancers, and creators of more of the modern steps than all other dancing teams combined, have signed a long-term contract with the Famous Players Film Company and will shortly be starred by that concern on the Paramount program.

Maurice and Florence Walton.

The careers of these two marvelous exponents of the great art which has so recently experienced what might almost be termed a renaissance are as picturesque and as fascinating as their art itself. Though Maurice first gained recognition in Europe and has at various times been hailed as a Frenchman, Austrian, Spaniard and Russian, he is in reality an American. From humble origin, he has danced his way into the presence of every crowned head in Europe except that of the Kaiser himself, and he has won a unique status in the most exclusive circles of New York and London society through his connection with the Biltmore Hotel —"Chez Maurice"—and his having instructed many members of the English nobility in the intricate mazes of the waltz, tango and maxixe.

Like her dancing partner, Miss Walton is an American, being a native of Wilmington, Del. She first gained prominence in the Ziegfeld "Follies," thereby paralleling the case of another recently acquired Famous Players star, Ann Pennington. Curiously enough, the first time that Maurice and Florence danced together it was after exactly fifteen minutes' rehearsal. Maurice was engaged to dance in "Over the River" and his partner forsook him the day the play opened. Miss Walton was rushed to the theater, introduced to Maurice, and although she declares that she was nearly petrified with fright she consented to dance at this remarkably short notice.

Maurice does not consider himself an originator but an adaptor of dances. That is to say, he actually saw the Apaches of Paris doing their crude version of the dance which he later introduced to society. In the case of the tango, which he also was the first to display, he saw the original of the dance being performed by the cowboys and vaqueros at the tough dance halls in Buenos Aires. Strangely enough, this great dancer who has been responsible for so many dancing innovations declares that there is only one dance which will endure for all time, and that is the Viennese.

A specially written photoplay has been prepared for Maurice and Miss Walton, the name of which will be announced later, and work on which will begin within the next few days.

The engagement of these internationally famous dancers reflects the intention of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, as announced last week, to incorporate a greater variety of interest in its productions.

Necessity of Encouraging the Author

Epes Winthrop Sargent

A Departure from Current and Time Honored Methods Inevitable if Novelty of Ideas Is to be Obtained.

ALTHOUGH in the trade and public press the manufacturers of film continue to protest that they dearly love the author and are willing to give him money for Fords and frankfurters, the press agent seems to be the only person who has much to say about real encouragement, and this in spite of the fact that unless the entire system of manuscript purchase is changed, the business will continue to sink.

It is impossible to continue production with the constant recurrence of the same ideas from the same staff authors. The business of exhibiting pictures is falling rapidly. The theaters are losing their patronage. Something must be done and done promptly. The only thing that can be done is to throw out the staff writers and give better stories a better production than is possible from a crew of directors too deeply sunk in the mire of self-esteem to realize that their very jobs are in peril. Witness an exhibitor in the Middle West; the manager of a theater in a fairly large town. He writes:

> I know that the public is finicky, but it has been made so by the chop suey productions. The fault is not with the public, but with the producers. They persistently abuse confidence and outrage public intelligence too often. There is a dearth of brains in the industry—creative brains—and if they continue this erratic and uncertain bombarding of the public with the same hackneyed situations, as Louis Reeves Harrison says in a recent article—"we will be hunting new ways of eating regular." Even we benighted exhibitors know wherein the producers fail. They do not seem to furnish the point of contact with the masses. The ever-present stereotyped punch, thrill and situation is there, but the real point of contact, the point of intimacy, is lacking. "The Mating" is a fair sample of what I mean by contact. There never was a prettier play—just pure entertainment, that's all.

That all—but it is a very great deal. "The Mating" was a rather old theme, newly treated, but it was a heart-interest play. There were no train wrecks or aeroplane disasters, no murders or suicides—just a STORY. And stories are written by authors, not by directors. As Captain Leslie T. Peacocke says:

> A tailor may make a good suit, but only fools would trust him with the weaving of the cloth. You are hitting the right nail on the head in your plea for the author's continuity of his own story. I think that you, William Lord Wright and myself have taken up the cudgels on behalf of the free lance writer more than others, and endeavored to get manufacturers to see that the author and not the director or staff writer is the logical person to make the continuity.

As a matter of fact, we do not plead for the free lance writer. This is a plea for the very existence of the business, because it is only through a departure from the current and time-honored methods that the business of making pictures can be saved. We are not pleading for the free lance as such, but because the free lance is the only man who can be looked to for the novelty of idea. We went through this once before around 1910. It was found that the complacent directors could not write their own stories. The free lance was turned to. From the best of the free lances, the studio writers were picked. Now they are falling short. Once more the free lance must be encouraged.

And what encouragement is given him?

William A. Brady has a prize contest. Scripts are to be tied up to the end of the year. The first prize is one thousand dollars. That is just about what a good script should bring without any prize-contest nonsense. From there the prices rapidly scale to $100 each. Surely no author who can write a decent script is going to be tempted by the prospect of $100 for his story.

Another company conducted a contest for the photoplay class in an eastern university. There was to be a prize of a trip to California and the winning script, if found worthy, was to be purchased. The winner was asked to compromise the trip and accept a merely nominal price for the story "since it must be entirely reconstructed by our editor." This is a plain and unqualified lie. This writer saw the script and will undertake to make a production from it with merely minor changes. And probably that company thinks it is "encouraging" the author by trying to bilk him.

A western writer in a personal letter expresses doubt as to the honesty of a company, having been told that the staff writer whose name appears on most scripts as "author," no matter who supplied the idea, saw all the submissions. This was told her by the editorial department. The staff author has no business reading and absorbing the ideas of others, and he will absorb these ideas unconsciously, no matter how honest he may intend to be. Surely there is no encouragement here. This studio makes a practice of "encouraging" new authors by offering five to ten dollars a reel and the promise that in time the writer will be advanced. One of the graduates of this concern has recently done thousands of dollars damage to another concern merely by buying scripts for them and buying stuff so far out of the company's line of policy that some houses refuse the reels because of their unfitness.

And as a last exhibit, one of the best known writers, a man of sound technique, strong ideas and large reputation writes in part:

> In the past ten months I have sold two fives, one two and a single and have made three adaptations. My last sale was $750 for five reels. If something doesn't develop soon I'll have to quit the game, and If I do it will be once for all.

Here is a man who in the past has refused the editorship of the Biograph and Selig companies to this writer's own knowledge, who has written some of the Biograph's biggest hits and who has done splendid work in many other directions, but because he will not sell on synopsis and for a beggarly sum, he cannot sell in profitable quantities and is ready to turn his talents elsewhere at a time when manufacturers are announcing that they are searching the market for good material.

With the exception of Captain Peacocke's letter, none of these quoted paragraphs were written in connection with the present discussion. They are all part of the average mail for a week and but repeat what others have said over and over again.

Manufacturers say that they seek new stuff. If they do they are singularly shortsighted, for with dwindling bank accounts and rapidly fading prestige they are permitting their directors to do the same old stuff in the same old way. They know no other, they can understand no other. They play to the same hackneyed, time-honored and time-worn punches and exploded sensations and now and then when a story does come through that is a story and not the same old thing they will not learn that lesson.

The business is rapidly reaching the point where the manufacturer must himself worry about the regularity of his future meals. The public is reaching the point where the novelty of action and the popularity of the player can no longer excuse the absence of real story, and the author, and only the author, can supply stories. Editors must readjust their standards and no longer cater to the few low-browed boobs who can be appealed to by flash sensation and sex stuff. Clean, bright stories are needed, and these must be supplied by the authors and not by staff men steeped in the studio tradition of contempt for the public and its requirements.

The author must be encouraged, but he must be encouraged with decent treatment, good production of his work and a fairly large check for a story. Prize contests do not appeal to real writers, and there are even some who dislike to see their stories botched and absorbed by thick-headed, single-idea directors. There is still time to avoid a wreck, but action must be prompt if it is to be effective. It is easier to drive patrons from the theatres than it will be to draw them back again.

NEW WEEKLY FOR WESTERN NEW YORK.

The first regular issue of the Buffalo Weekly, which will be circulated in western New York, appeared on July 6 at the Strand theater, Buffalo. The weekly is produced by the Associated Film Producers, the offices of which are at 678 Main street, Buffalo. The promoters of the new film design to create something different from the weeklies now being shown. The Associated has been made official photographer for the forty-second annual session of the Mystic Shriners. The concern made pictures of the preparedness parade in Buffalo on June 24 and showed them in one of the local theaters three hours after the end of the parade.

Actresses and Stars Real and Near*

Some Women Are Born Players, Others Achieve Distinction Through Work, and Others Have Press Agents.

By William Morgan Hannon, B. L., L.L. B., Author of "The Photodrama—Its Place Among the Fine Arts."

WHENEVER one calls for the definition of any art one is treading on very dangerous ground, but when one calls for the definition of a true exponent of any art one is treading on very explosive ground. Then arise the defenders of the various artistic faiths—each certain that his road alone leads to Rome. Then arise the manifold "schools", euphemisms, for the most part, for bands of near-artists who lack the individuality to stand alone, and who believe that in union there is strength! To such as these a man may not extol realism, and yet have a deep and abiding love of romanticism in his soul! Hence, there is no safe, middle ground for the critic, no golden mean.

For if a critic is profuse in his praise of a comparatively unknown player, he is suspected by many as a press agent! If he criticises a popular player adversely he is a cynic! In either case, he is likely to invite the wrath of the gods; gallery gods sometimes, more often those in the lower regions of the theater. Under the circumstances it would seem to be a welcome innovation to have a codification of nice, safe, sugar-coated and conventionalized rules of criticism! Which brings us to (or perhaps against) our subject "Actresses—and Stars!"

Now, we would no more attempt a crystalline definition of the elusive, evanescent and spontaneous art of acting than we would of a metaphysical category like time or space. Acting, though properly a representative art, is to a great extent, sui generis; it is only truly comprehensible in terms of itself. For every stage director knows that "personality" plays strange tricks oftentimes on the best-timed "stage business," and that individuality ever and anon transcends well-settled rules of technic. But this does not mean, of course, that acting is an anarchistic art, that it is a game without rules. On the contrary it is our aim to suggest that a certain class of exponents of this art who bear the insignia of success are perhaps beyond its true purview.

Despite our high regard for the art of acting we are going to make a big concession! It is this: that some stars are actresses! How reasonable we are! Naturally, some stars are actors. We freely concede that, too. But that is beside the question, for this is "ladies' day," if you please.

Now that it is understood that we are talking about actresses and not merely stars, we can go a step further! Some women are born stars, some achieve stardom through a careful study of technic combined with hard work, and some, of course, have clever press agents! But there is still a fourth variety. And this fourth variety is as immeasurable as the fourth dimension.

We allude to that species that is the outgrowth of the mania of the American people to make cuteness and art interchangeable phenomena. When a player can make an average audience exclaim, "Isn't she cute?" then the road to stardom for the aforementioned player is a path of violets and roses. Her success is assured. She is an artist, or rather, to use polite English and correct French, as the posters would put it, she is an artiste! Lithographers to the colors! Publicity experts to the front! Then follows these rather startling results: Aforesaid lady who was formerly the incarnation of demureness now becomes decidedly "up-stage" and develops "temperament!" The Kokomo Gazette issues frontpage "copy" to the effect that a genius of the feminine gender was born there eighteen summers ago.

To those who are prone to think that cuteness alone might be the end of the histrionic art, the above statements will seem more like vivisection than criticism. But then, the chief function of a critic is to cover a certain amount of white paper with a certain amount of black ink—the blacker the better!

Now, only a misanthrope—or worse still, a misogynist—would quarrel with cuteness in a woman on the stage, on the screen, or in life. Like beauty, it is a pleasure-giving attribute that is worthy of admiration—even emulation. But let us not confuse cuteness per se with art. There is a place for everything in life—and in Art.

Therefore, it would seem reasonable to insist that an adorable dimple, plus a beautifully trained smile that comes and goes at will like some complexions, aided and abetted by a pair of eyes that shame the very stars, and all crowned with a head of hair that is the envy of all women—these things, we repeat, splendid and charming as they are, do not alone make a genuine actress. Surely an exponent of the drama or the photodrama needs more requisites than these to be called an artist in her profession. Certainly this will seem sound doctrine to all except those who think that personal adorability will make up for a lack of histrionic ability. These words will doubtless seem hard to many fair ladies in the land. But they represent honest criticism just the same.

And if a woman can portray the doll-baby, sweet-young-thing type successfully, it is, of course, quite to her credit. But if she plays this role year in and year out she should not complain if those who take the dramatic art seriously consider her a near-actress. Imagine a critic so monstrous as to call a screen or footlight favorite a near-actress! What a bold, bold man! What food for comedy and tragedy is here. Shades of professional vanity! And normal vanity in a star is always a wee mite—it is usually only as broad as the blue sky and as deep as the blue sea.

Quod erat demonstrandum. Some stars—but they must be some stars first—are actresses!

*Copyright, 1916, by William Morgan Hannon.

Valkyrien.

THE distinctive beauty of Valkyrien, as she is called on the screen, combined with a rare talent for emotional expression, has given her a certain place among photoplay stars in America as well as in Europe. While with the Thanhouser Company she played leading roles in a number of notable productions, among them "The Cruise of Fate," "Silas Marner," "Hidden Valley," and "The Image Maker of Thebes," all de Luxe features on the Mutual program. In the Vitagraph picture "Youth," her unusual charm was revealed to advantage, also to a large degree she was responsible for the success of Pluragraph's "Diane." At present Valkyrien is engaged in the making of an elaborate Fox production.

Valkyrien.

During her rise to the front ranks of screen players this gifted actress has been materially assisted by her husband, Baron Dewitz, an expert of the first calibre in the finer points of photoplay construction. Valkyrien and Baron Dewitz came to this country after a through training in European studios, an experience that has proved of value to a number of American manufacturers ready to profit by lessons learned in the foremost foreign studios. Under the title of consulting technical director, Baron Dewitz has collaborated on the production of many of the pictures in which his wife has appeared, and where the story has called for European settings his knowledge has been of particular value in the perfection of details.

Valkyrien enjoys the advantage of being a strongly individual type. Her personality is impressive and during her American career she has revealed her versatility by playing dissimilar characters with equal success.

PIONEER ACQUIRES NEW FEATURES.

Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, 130 West 46th street, is making great headway with its new productions. "The End of the World" was booked at one of the largest theaters for a solid week. "The Folly of Revenge" is keeping the staff rather busy for the warm weather. It is an intense love drama between sculptor and model. Elsie Le Claire shows ability in "A Woman Wills."

Observations

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

GREAT interest is being manifested in the moving picture trade over the fight Lee Ochs, the popular president of the New York Exhibitors' Association, is making against the blue laws in the State of New Jersey. Mr. Ochs has a picture house on the beach front at West End, N. J., and he depends to some extent upon Sunday business to make financial success in the summer months, which is the only part of the year the theater can be operated. The authorities have dug up some of the old blue laws of the state and ordered picture houses in West End and Long Branch closed on Sundays. Mr. Ochs was at first inclined to have a test case before the courts and made an unsuccessful effort to get the Long Branch exhibitors to cooperate with him in keeping the houses open on Sundays and invite prosecution under the blue laws. Other exhibitors declined to act with him on the ground that they preferred to obey any laws that are in force. Mr. Ochs has now taken the position that what is "sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander" and single handed he has undertaken to see that the blue laws are fully enforced against everybody they are intended to reach in Long Branch and elsewhere. On this proposition he should receive all the moral and financial support all exhibitors in the State of New Jersey can give him. His fight now is not to fight the existing laws by violating them, but to insist upon a strict enforcement of them against others as well as the motion picture exhibitors. Such enforcement has always brought into line a preponderance of public opinion which has eventually brought about a repeal of silly and unduly obnoxious laws. Among the things Mr. Ochs intends to attack are the selling of liquor in hotels at Asbury Park and other places on Sunday; baseball, tennis and other pastimes; the operation of bathing beach pavilions, which are operated and patronized as pleasure resorts. Mr. Ochs also intends to make a fight against the ice cream, soda water, fruit and souvenir stands, none of which can claim more exemption than the picture houses under the plea of necessity. Mr. Ochs is advised by his counsel that the obnoxious blue laws go so far as to prohibit the operation of the railroads on the Sabbath, particularly along the coast, where 90 per cent. of the traveling by railroad on Sundays is done by people pleasure-bound and not through necessity. Mr. Ochs will also be prepared to show that the blue laws are enforced against some railroads and not against others. For instance, trains are not permitted to stop at Lakewood on Sundays, but the place can be reached by railroad to Point Pleasant and an automobile ride of about nine miles to Lakewood, and automobiles for hire to the public are operated for that purpose. It has been charged that Mr. Ochs has undertaken the enforcement of the blue laws in a spirit of retaliation because he has been unable to open his picture house on Sundays. This is unfair to him and no doubt originated in official circles to discount the sincerity of his purpose. He has decided to obey the laws as they stand and at the same time kill them by insisting upon strict enforcement against all who come under them.

* * *

The proposed ordinance to rearrange the annual license fees to be paid by motion picture houses in Greater New York has been tabled until next fall, as the Board of Aldermen have decided to have no more hearings on the proposition until that time. While this action has given general satisfaction, there are some exhibitors who look upon it as not so much a relief to the bona fide motion picture exhibitors as it is an undue benefit to some who put pictures into their theaters this summer merely to not have them remain idle. The proposition to revise the license system has brought about the discovery that while the license fee for houses seating over 299 and under 600 was raised from $25 to $100 no provision was made for houses seating over 600. Some of the exhibitors say that many of the old line theater managers are responsible for the periodical agitation of the fee system. It is claimed their object is to get motion picture licenses as near the prohibitive point as possible so that the competitive power of picture houses may be reduced. These people, it is said, have absolutely no use for moving pictures or the industry except during the season when the pictures serve them in keeping the houses open until the regular season opens. When asked the grounds for complaint against such houses and their managers in view of the fact that they operate under a regular theatrical license, which is much higher than any paid by the picture houses, one of the complaining exhibitors said: "I admit these houses are so licensed, but that license gives them proportionately more latitude and many more benefits than we have. That license does not cost them a cent more during the summer than it does during their regular season. If it were not for the pictures their houses would be dark this summer, and without payment of any fee they become our competitors during a season when we have hard work to hold our patronage. The regular exhibitors have all the trouble and expense of meeting and combatting the various influences that bring about litigation over censorship laws and many other regulations, while these so-called legitimate theater people during nine months of the year go upon their way serenely, not caring about the picture business except when they see an opportunity to do it harm. I think a well defined regulation should be drawn for the protection of regular motion picture theaters. There should be official distinction made between regular theatrical licenses and license for motion picture theaters. At present there is a distinction, but it is made entirely against the picture theaters. The fee we pay restricts our privilege so that we cannot come in direct competition with the so-called legitimate houses whose fee gives them the privilege to compete against us. The point I am trying to make is that the license granted a regular theater should be good only during the life of its regular season and when that season closes and the management goes into the motion picture business a special license should be required."

* * *

That was real, good, hot stuff the delegates to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania pulled off at their state convention when they showed that a picture passed by the official Censorship Board in Philadelphia was so immoral that it was rejected by exhibitors in New York, where there is no official censorship. This is a worse indictment than the decisions of the courts reversing rulings of the Censor Board in which it had been held that certain pictures were immoral, as it convicts the board of bad judgment both ways. Each day brings more evidence sustaining the claim made by the motion picture people that official censorship is a figurehead of incompetency and that the motion picture people are better qualified to judge what should be presented to the public and what it wants than two or three politically created people whose chief work is to show they are trying to earn the salaries attached to their office.

* * *

The people of Louisiana are alert to conditions in the moving picture world and are lined up against the puritanical methods adopted in some of the sister states to injure it. The authorities of Baton Rouge had been discussing a censorship ordinance for about three months. They have finally decided against official censorship, but later on will adopt a regulation whereby both regular theaters and motion picture houses will be held accountable for any improper productions. This is all the moving picture people ask—a fair chance without discrimination. Another movement in the same state meets the unqualified approval of the exhibitors. The state intends to make an appropriation for the exhibition of educational films in the public schools. As a rule, educational subjects have not been profitable to the exhibitors, except so far as they tend to create a desire on the part of the children and school officials to see other moving picture productions.

* * *

The two great questions occupying the attention of the better informed and most aggressive people in the motion picture world is what outline of policy the committee in charge of the proposed union of all branches of the industry will make and what the action of the delegates to the National Exhibitors' Association will be concerning same. At present the outlook for ultimate success of the project is very bright. All the leading trade journals are using their best efforts to promote the undertaking and every man who is recognized as a factor in each particular branch of the business is working to the same end. It is sincerely hoped that nothing will be allowed to defeat the movement. At no time in the history of the business has there been a more decided spirit for a complete unity of purpose. Nothing remains to develop but action, and none with an eye to the best interests of the industry and all branches of business connected with it will undertake to do anything that will bring that action promptly, nor neglect to do anything that will serve the same end. Now is the time to get together and formulate plans for operation to protect the interests of the industry when the common enemy returns from his summer vacation and again begins his lobbying work. He is a shrewd manipulator and nothing he does can be under estimated.

British Notes

IT IS perhaps rather strange that the further exhibition of a film production that has already fulfilled most of its engagements with exhibitors should be withdrawn by a special government order. Such is the fate of "The Dop Doctor," which on this account the Pathe Company announces, cannot be exhibited further—at least for some time to come. The film is a Samuelson production, founded upon incidents within the besieged town of Mafeking during the Boer war. Another picture to be withdrawn this week is the Fox reconstruction of Kipling's poem, "A Fool There Was," starring Theda Bara. The subject was strongly criticised at the recent trade exhibitions both favorably and adversely, but the present action of the company was decided upon after consultation with the British Board of Film Censors. There is, however, a probability that a slightly different version of the picture will be released later in the year.

* * *

The Fox Company is now showing to exhibitors number nine of the first sixty completed features that have been released in the states since the inception of the company. It is also preparing the first Valeska Suratt picture, "A Soul of New York" (called, I think, in the states "A Soul of Broadway"), made particularly appetising to fair picture-fans by the press-paragraphs of Miss Suratt's 150 "derniere cris" and by the recent flying visit to London of the actress. During her stay in town Valeska Suratt along with Messrs. Sheeh n and Darling, visited the Ideal Company's studios on the outskirts to see the filming of the theater scene in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Mr. Darling was quite enthusiastic at the finished performance of Sir Geo. Alexander and the way the film was produced, which he considers the finest production to leave these shores. Mr. Darling is of the opinion that the nursing and cherishing of conventional stage ideas is a barrier to progress with the English producer. "As an instance," he said, "all your producers I have seen employ the colored canvas scenery for film settings. We employ nothing but black and white in our sets, for you must remember color does not photograph."

* * *

Winfield P. Sheehan, American director of the Fox Film Corporation, leaves London this week-end.

* * *

The initial presentation of the Triangle "Macbeth" in Europe will be at His Majesty's theater, London, next Thursday, June 22. The first copy of the production has already arrived and it is expected the London run will be of ten weeks duration. The prices of admission are graduated from one shilling to five shillings.

* * *

That large and lucrative sideline of the vast kinematograph film industry, the junk trade, appears to be hard against the wall as the indirect result of the war. Shipping difficulties encountered last year through the commandeering of all available shipboard presented not insurmountable difficulties, but with the imposition a few weeks ago of drastic regulations governing the official censorship and despatch of junk stock for export, it is hardly surprising to hear that one or two of the oldest firms in the line contemplate closing down this department. "Junk" is an elastic term in its motion picture sense, but is usually accepted as a simple classification for any production that becomes purchasable on the second-hand market at the rate of ten shillings per 1,000 feet or thereabouts. The Orient is a large outlet for old stock within this category, particularly India, China and Japan. To the latter country alone a London house has a standing order for the shipment of four million feet per week.

* * *

Roy Aitken of the American Triangle and Mutual Corporations is among us for a week or two, and is familiarizing himself with the extensive organization which has been rapidly brought into being to handle, under the direction of Messrs. Winik and Davies, the output on the European market.

* * *

The National Association of Theatrical Employees is in negotiation with the London branch of the Exhibitors' Association with a view to establishing among motion picture exhibitors in the country a specific schedule of staff employment conditions. The proposals already made only refer to motion picture theaters within the London area and are classified under two heads, class A houses and class B houses. Briefly summarised, the proposals of the National Association of Theatrical Employees are:

Class A houses (theaters with a continuous program, afternoon and evening): Chief operator, minimum wage for a six-day week of 8½ hours per day, £3. Overtime at the rate of 1/3d per hour between 9 a. m. and 6:30 p. m., and 2/6d per hour between 6:30 p. m. and 9 a. m. Assistant operator, inexperienced, minimum wage for a six-day week of 8½ hours per day, £1-5-0, with overtime at the rate of 6d per hour. Assistant operator, experienced, minimum wage, same hours as above, £1-12-0, with overtime at the rate of 8d per hour.

Cashiers, minimum wage for six-day week of 8 hours daily, £1-10-0. Sunday pay 1/3d per hour with a minimum of 5/.

Doorkeepers, minimum wage for six-day week of 8½ hours daily, £2 per week, with overtime at rate of 8d per hour or ¼d per hour on Sundays.

Attendants, male (including ushers, ticket collectors, etc.), minimum wage for a six-day week of 10 hours daily, £2. Sunday overtime at ¼d per hour with a minimum of 6/. Female, minimum wage for a six-day week of 8½ hours daily, £1-5-6d, with overtime at 6d per hour or 1/ on Sundays. Women filling men's position shall be paid at men's rate. Female cleaners, 6d per hour with daily minimum of 2/6d; double pay on Sundays.

Commissions for sale of articles in theaters shall be in addition to above.

Class B houses (theaters with two performances nightly or continuous with occasional matinees): Chief operator, minimum wage of six evenings' attendance between 5:30 p. m. and 11 p. m., £1-17-6d, with an additional 3/6d for each matinee. Overtime and scale for assistant operators as for Class A houses.

Cashiers, minimum wage for six evenings' attendance between 5:45 p. m. and 10:30 p. m., 18/, with 1/6 for each matinee.

Doorkeepers, minimum wage for six evenings of five hours each, £1-1-0, with 3/ for each matinee.

Attendants, male, minimum wage for six evenings of five hours each, same as doorkeeper. Female, minimum wage for six evenings, 18/, with 2/6d for each matinee.

Cleaners as for Class A houses.

Suitable accommodation is to be provided for staff taking meals on the premises and eating accommodation for female employees. No operator shall be required to continuously operate longer than three hours. J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

WHITE HOUSE SHOWING FOR "CIVILIZATION."

Thomas H. Ince has been granted the honor of presenting his eleven reel feature photodrama, "Civilization" at the White House before President and Mrs. Wilson. Details for this event are now being completed even to elaborate preparations being made for special scenery. The prologue in which seventy persons take part in a war and peace pantomime story preceding the picture at the Criterion Theater will also be given. The chorus of thirty-five voices heard at the Criterion will be augmented in Washington by about 100 more young women of prominent choral societies there, who will participate in this one performance.

President Wilson at the request of Mr. Ince will select his own invited audience. It is expected that all of the prominent members of the Cabinet, Senate and House of Representatives will attend. The exact date of the performance will be announced shortly.

WALTHALL'S BROTHER WITH V-L-S-E.

Another member of the family that produced Henry B. Walthall has cast his lot with the film industry. W. C. Brandon, Atlanta manager of the V-L-S-E., announces that Wallace Walthall has been appointed to a position in the booking department of that exchange. The announcement was deferred to be given out at a dinner tendered Henry B. by the Atlanta Screen Club recently. The Essanay star was making a visit to his home in Columbiana, Ala., and on his way back to Chicago stopped off for two days in Atlanta.

"DAMAGED GOODS" WITHDRAWN SEPTEMBER 1.

The Mutual Film Corporation announces that it will accept no bookings for "Damaged Goods," the seven-part Richard Bennett drama, for showing after September 1.

"All the prints now working will be withdrawn on that date and they will be absolutely taken off the screen at that time," said J. C. Graham, assistant to the president of the Mutual. "The exhibitors who expect to play 'Damaged Goods' must book it for exhibition in the months of July and August."

Australian Notes

MRS. KATE DWYER, a member of the newly-formed Board of Film Censors, when interviewed, said she was glad to have accepted the position.

"I think picture films need censoring," she said, "but I believe they should be censored from a broad-minded viewpoint. I would like to see the suggestive picture cut out entirely. In its place there is plenty of room for nature study pictures, pictorial descriptions of historical events, visualizations of famous books and photographic scenes to give a familiar idea of other places in the world.

"I think the pictures have been the means of cementing families. What other form of amusement affords pleasure to parents and children alike? I believe that the increase of picture theaters is largely responsible for the decrease of crime, because simple amusement keeps people off the streets. and out of the liquor bars. Where are the gangs of young men who at one period regarded the evenings as the time for settling suburban antagonism by means of street fights? The 'pushes' no longer exist, and I believe the great majority of the youths who might have belonged to them spend the evening happily in their local picture theater.

"In censoring films I do not think one should cut out everything that is not beautiful; otherwise we should be unable to depict some of the finest novels written. I have heard people decrying 'The Silence of Dean Maitland' as objectionable in parts. I disagree on that point, for the film makes it possible to veil unpleasant parts of a story so that there is no revulsion of feeling though the original plot of the story is unbroken.

"One thing I have noticed about photoplays is that there is always a beautiful moral. For instance, a fallen woman is never depicted as being beyond redemption. Rather is she represented as a repentant sinner, and subsequently as a happy convert."

When asked what she thought of comedy films, and Chas. Chaplin in particular, she smiled benignly, and said: "Oh, he's harmless, and the children like him, and who would want to rob people of a little laughter."

Members of censor boards, please take note.

* * *

A picture entitled "Ambition" has been released by a Sydney exchange this week, and is being screened at the Williamson-Waddington circuit of theaters. It is a series of scenes culled from the earlier successes of Charles Chaplin, and is, I think, identical with the picture which Essanay warned exhibitors against booking last October. A quarter page advertisement appeared in the Sun last Sunday with the same warning. The picture is being released by Cricks and Jones in two episodes of two reels each, both parts having a week's run.

* * *

A series of official French war pictures are at present being screened nightly at the big Sydney town hall, and the seating accommodation of 3,000 is taxed to overflowing nightly.

* * *

C. L. Yearsley, publicity manager of Australasian Films, Ltd., has to be credited with bringing out the "smallest newspaper in Australia." It consists of six pages, each measuring about eight by four inches; it is called the Triangle News, and is used as a house organ to the Lyceum-Triangle Playhouse, Sydney. It is the only house organ of any picture theater in this city, and as the name implies, contains news and photographs of Triangle players. One page is devoted to the current program, with cast of pictures, etc. If so requested, it is posted free to any patron of the theater each week.

* * *

The current Triangle program is one of the best presented yet, "The Beckoning Flame" (Kay-Bee), "Martha's Vindication" (Fine Arts) and "The Village Blacksmith" (Keystone) constituting the bill. The Griffith subject was conceded to be the best, the work of Tully Marshall gaining the approval of the audience. His characterization of Sell Hawkins is a masterpiece. "The Beckoning Flame" is a plendid picture from an artistic point of view, and in addition is excellently acted. "The Village Blacksmith" presented Hank Mann for the first time to Triangle patrons, and his comedy was received with shouts of merriment.

* * *

The following pictures are among current screenings: "New York," this is the second Pathe Gold Rooster play to be shown here, and is one of the strongest dramatic pictures seen for some time; "The Supreme Test" (Broadway Universal), featuring Henrietta Crosman; "The Island of Regeneration," Cyrus Townsend Brady's famous novel, visualized by the Vitagraph company; "The Sins of Society," a Robert Warwick-World film; "From the Valley of the Missing," from the Wm. Fox studios; "Cora" (Metro), featuring Emily Stevens.

* * *

In the Practice Court of Melbourne this week an application was made by J. C. Williamson, Ltd., for an injunction against Hoyt's Prop., Ltd., to prevent them producing, or in any way advertising for production, the animated picture play, formerly known as "The Nigger," under the title of "The Curse of a Nation."

Applicants contended that the title of Hoyt's production might lead to confusion with their picture, "The Birth of a Nation."

The general manager of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., said that the company had no copyright in the picture, "The Birth of a Nation." The company had obtained the right to show the picture in Australia for the Epoch Corporation of New York and Chicago. The agreement entered into with that corporation was that Epoch should provide the films and J. C. Williamson should provide the theaters, and meet the cost of screening at the theaters. The profits, as far as Victoria was concerned, were to be equally divided.

The Chief Justice said he found no guide in law that would enable him to say with any degree of certainty whether Williamson, Ltd., were entitled to the relief claimed. In all the circumstances of this case, he did not think the court should interfere, and therefore refused the application.

* * *

A long Triangle program was presented at the Majestic theater, Melbourne, this week, consisting of two five-reelers, viz.: The Ince "Between Men" and Griffith's "The Lamb." Other features showing include "Seven Sisters" (Famous Players) and "The Sins of the Mothers" (Vitagraph).

* * *

The new Strand theater, Hobart, Tasmania, was opened this week by the mayor of Hobart. The official opening was made an evening function, the ceremony of formally declaring it open being performed by the mayor, while the mayoress took her share in the inaugural proceedings by going into the operating chamber and starting the machine for the first film in the evening's program. The Strand is the finest building in Tasmania, and is probably the largest picture theater in Australasia—having seating accommodation for over 2,500 persons. No expense has been spared in the artistic arrangement of the interior. The seating accommodation is in accordance with latest ideas. Special attention has been given to the operating chamber. It is detached from the main building, and is built of concrete and brick. The initial program consisted of "Business is Business," Broadway Universal Feature, and Eleanor M. Ingram's romance, "The Unafraid."

TOM. S. IMRIE.

Sydney, N. S. W., Australia, May 31, 1916.

RAVER STUDIOS PROGRESSING.

The Raver Studios at Rockville Centre, L. I., set as they are in the midst of a wealth of Arcadian scenery, are reaching a tangible stage. The executive building has been completed for several weeks and is occupied by the office force of the company. It was planned in such a fashion as to give ample space to all. Every effort is being put forth to complete things so that the first big production can be released some time in the early fall.

Between the executive building and the studios proper a laboratory is being completed that will have a capacity of more than twice the requirements of the company. The studios are reaching the stage where the lights will soon be installed and the finishing touches added.

Under the instructions of a landscape specialist, flower beds, shrubbery and trees are being laid out. Winding paths and latticed summer houses with vines twining around and over them also form a part of the scenery scheme.

While the first production will be of the kind larger than five reels, the name of it is not being announced. It will be a well known subject with a cast of popular players, headed by a noted star.

NEW LASKY PRODUCTION FOR SESSUE HAYAKAWA.

Sessue Hayakawa, Japanese screen star, who has appeared frequently in Lasky productions and was the star in the recent Paramount release "Alien Souls," will appear soon in a feature play said to be the most elaborate in which he has appeared and is entitled, "The Honorable Friend." It will be produced under the direction of Edward LaSaint.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Is Y. M. C. A.

SOTO SUNETARO, manager of the Auditorium, Kingston, N. Y., replying to our recent speculation as to whether the enterprise was under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. or mercly a tenant of the Association, writes:

> For your own information and others, the Kingston Association is conducting the Auditorium as a place for the showing of moving pictures. We are using Paramount, Metro, Big Four and Fox productions. Our Auditorium seats 750. We play three shows a day, six days a week. We have a complete outfit, consisting of one Powers and one Simplex machine. Are working on an A. C. current and get along very nicely.

There seems to be a general tendency on the part of the various branches of the Y. M. C. A. to turn to pictures as a source of revenue that is, at the same time, a far more potent factor for good than the uninformed crusades for censorship. It is far more important to show good pictures than to prevent the evil ones. These last will take care of themselves in the long run and in no other way can their faults be so strongly exploited as through contrast with the better bills that the Association runs. There is no hypocrisy, no fanaticism about the Young Men's Christian Association in general. It is broad gauge and fair minded, and in glaring contrast to the behavior of certain self-seeking ministers. It is always possible to get clean and interesting programs of photoplays. This having been demonstrated, it is clear that anything else is the result of deliberate intent and a matter for police and not censorship interference.

Simple.

H. R. Weber, of the Orpheum, Chambersburg, West Virginia, says that surely he is still there. We admitted that he was lately, but were surprised to know it, because he did not suffer from writer's cramp until lately. Just to show he has been busy he sends in another stunt that is so simple it sounds almost foolish. All he did was to advertise a "Go-to-the-Orpheum week" by means of a few squibs in the daily papers. Then he got a program a little better than usual (and his usual ones are good), sat back and collected the coin. Just curiosity, whetted by lack of more definite announcement, brought them in and the program was calculated to keep them coming. It is not always the most intricate and cumbersome scheme that is the best. Most always it is the simplest. Mr. Weber seems to have found that out in his nine years of management.

Jubilating.

The Theatorium, Mt. Carmel, Pa., sends in a jubilee week program, which is an effort worthy of Col. Ebbetts, who can get more special baseball days into one season than all the other fifteen teams in the big leagues. It is announced as a jubilation over the victory of the coal miners, which will not so strongly appeal as a reason to those who are at present laying in next winter's coal. A better than usual film program, a mighty tasty offset colored cover and four-page insert and a general air of festivity were all that was required. The program cost more, but it brought even more business, and there you are. Very easy and very profitable if you work it right.

Killum.

Walter Brooks, of the Auditorium, Coatesville, Pa., has some clever clip stuff in his program and sometimes original matter. It is not always easy to tell which is which, but this is worth reprinting if you have not had it:

> We sincerely hope that some one will reserve a nice, forward trench in the next war for the "Third Reader" Class, whom we have always with us. You know the kind—they sit just back of you, in the midst of an absorbing picture, and read thusly: "Pauline-bids-good-bye-to-her-old-mother" in a sing-song tone, filling the intervals between titles with interesting explanations like this: "You see, this girl married this fellow and then this other fellow comes back and finds THIS fellow—an'—an' —wait, see—he's a burglar. This other fellow is going to jump at him from behind the safe. There, didn't I tell you? I saw this picture last week." And so on for two hours. All in favor of the execution, say "Aye."

The title reader assuredly is a pest and should be talked to constantly if the majority of your patrons are to enjoy their pictures in peace. Here is a case where peace at any price should be procured.

Royal in Line.

The Royal, Calumet, Mich., slips a pink insert into its late program to announce that the rear rows have been raised a little and made more comfortable. Now they cost fifteen cents unless they are reserved, when the price is twenty cents. No seat is held beyond eight o'clock, hut if tbe scat has been paid for in advance it should be held for the purchaser. The Royal is also trying to build up a permanent list by offering to reserve the same seats each night or for specified nights for regular patrons. This is an excellent scheme both for house and patron.

Something from Sergel.

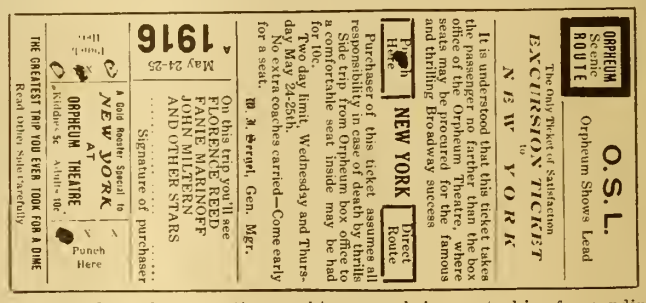
W. J. Sergel, of the Orpheum, Burley, Idaho, writes:

> Many thanks for constructive criticism on the last stuff I sent in. After reading your article I gave those colored manila programs the "once over" again, and I must confess they were not exactly pleasing to the eye.
>
> You'll find the space pretty well filled on the enclosed program.
>
> I believe I'm giving you something new in the enclosed "railway" ticket. The ones I distributed were printed on a lighter stock, of a green shade, as near as possible to color used by the road serving us, the Oregon Short Line. The paper throw-away is not my design, but is an exact reproduction of the style newspaper ad used in this section by the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific. I believe it could be greatly improved by a bolder and larger type on the "Oregon Short Line" and "Union Pacific" display. These attracted lots of attention, caused lots of talk, and as the house was taxed to its capacity both nights, I presume they were effective.
>
> I used a stunt similar to Udell's "Excuse Me" stunt, on the same subject. I put out a first card with "Excuse me," a second with "Excuse me again," and dated the third card, with a couple of lines and house name, all very much the same as he did. My distribution was different. I hired a man, blacked him up, put on a negro wig and a white porter's coat. At every house he would ring the bell and when he was answered he would hand them this foot-square card and say nothing.

It seems a pity to go and spoil it, but several years ago William Barie, Jr., then of Wichita, Kans., but now of Texas, used a strip ticket with several coupons that was actually printed on the same "safety" paper that the railroads use, save that it did not carry the exclusive railroad design. The idea has been forgotten by most exhibitors, but it is a capital one, and for a guide we reproduce Mr.



ORPHEUM Scenic ROUTE
O. S. L.
Orpheum Shows Lead
The Only Ticket of Satisfaction
EXCURSION TICKET
NEW YORK
to
NEW YORK
Direct Route
It is understood that this ticket takes the passenger no farther than the box office of the Orpheum Theatre, where seats may be procured for the famous and thrilling Broadway success
Punch Here
NEW YORK
Purchaser of this ticket assumes all responsibility in case of death by thrills
Side trip from Orpheum box office to a comfortable seat inside may be had for 10c.
Two day limit, Wednesday and Thursday May 24-25th.
No extra coaches carried—Come early for a seat.
W. J. Sergel, Gen. Mgr.
Signature of purchaser
On this trip you'll see
FLORENCE REED
FANIE MARINOFF
JOHN MILTERN
AND OTHER STARS
May 24-25
1916
A Gold Rooster Special to
NEW YORK
AT ORPHEUM THEATRE
Punch Here
THE GREATEST TRIP YOU EVER TOOK FOR A DIME
Read Other Side Carefully

Sergel's card, at the same time making our obeisance to him for sending in our sample on white paper, from which we can reproduce. The throwaway is an odd effect easily obtained. It is just a cheap news stock five hy seven, and the attractor is a bit of six-point rule about an inch and a half from the left hand margin and running almost the length of the sheet, then turning off like a reversed L with an extra long upright. Mr. Sergel also sends in a program which shows that he has been reading George Editor Carpenter's Real Reels, for he, too, breaks into slang and blames it on the usher, just as Carpenter unloads his crimes. It is well done and more apt to he read than any straight announcement. It is not a very expensive piece of paper, but it is so well done that it looks a lot more than it costs, which should be the real aim of the advertiser.

No Particulars.

L. Friedband, of the Lyric, Leighton, Pa., writes:

> I have been a pretty close student of your column, in fact of your entire paper for some time, but especially so since A. P. Guimes and myself took over the old Fairy theater and renamed it the Lyric. I am enclosing a few of our ads from the daily paper, as well as some of our programs and other distributed matter and would like to know if you think that the money spent for newspaper advertising could bc more advantageously used for throwaways, etc.

No facts are given upon which an opinion may be based. It all depends upon the value of the media. In communities where the newspaper is read and the rates permit the use of a generous space, then newspaper advertising is apt to be best because it gets directly into the home. On the other hand, some classes do not have the newspaper reading habit, but will study out distributed matter. Here throwaways will exceed the newspaper in value, as Steve Farrar pointed out last Spring from his own experience.

The local paper is crude as compared to the city dailies, yet it seems to he very much alive and if Leighton is a reading community, it most certainly would pay to stay in the daily. The theater advertising runs on the front page along with a lot of local news, which is better than the plate matter that many small town dailies use. If they do not read, then in spite of the advantageous position given, the advertising is of small value. But newspapers are not printed when they are not read, and we think that if the paper could he induced to give a reading notice with the advertisement, the reading notice to appear on the back page if the ad, is on the front, or vice versa, it would pay to stay in. If there is a large percentage of possible patrons among the non-readers, then split the advertising appropriation and put a third of it into some loud throwaways. The house uses a card or four-page program, neatly done. This will supplement the newspaper advertising, hut it will not replace throwaways. These last should be on cheap news or bright colored news if the latter can he had cheaply. It should be of the "Today" type, with a small date for verification, and contain half a dozen telling lines rather than carry a lot of small type. It is useless to put a lot of reading matter on a throwaway because it mostly appeals to those who do not read much and three striking lines are better than three hundred words of description. We are inclined to think that a slight reduction of the advertising and the diversion of this money to the throwaways will give good results. To this end the advertisement should be reformed and the matter condensed. The lines "The House of Quality," and "Our Motto, Nothing too good for our patrons," might be dropped.

One line on the programs we like. It reads: "Remember we guarantee you a full show, no matter how late we sell you a ticket." The entire first page of the program is well planned, and along the lines already suggested in this department.

A Hint from "The Clansman."

L. J. Scott, who edits the Clansman for the Kansas City V-L-S-E, offers something new in a classified criticism of the recent releases. The story might he a little more fully given, hut apart from this it gives the facts in compact form to the man who wishes to prepare an advertisement. A sample criticism reads:

THE LAW DECIDES.
Vitagraph, 7 Reels, Special Feature.

STARS—Dorothy Kelly, Donald Hall, Harry Morey, Bobby Connelly and Louise Beaudet.
STORY—Based on the struggle between a wife and a stepmother for a man's love.
ACTION—Good, consistent development.
SITUATIONS—Very appealing, tense and many highly dramatic.
ACTING—Superh. The characterizations are perfect.
PHOTOGRAPHY—Very good.
BOX OFFICE VALUE—Of the very highest order. Can he played in any theater at 25 cents with the assurance of pleasing.
REMARKS—This feature deals with a subject that is not imaginary hut a prohlem oft-times occurring in real life. A great amount of comment and praise was aroused during the recent engagement at the Willis Wood, Kansas City.

Another good thing in the current issue is the list of those Congressmen who voted to report favorably and against the Hughes Censorship Bill, suggesting that these names be remembered when the statesmen come up for re-election. If all of the picture theaters in the country would hold up their end in the political fight and help to procure the defeat of those lawmakers who force obnoxious measures on the motion picture business it would be a question of only a short time before the solons would he as careful of the picture interests as they are of the newspapers and "big business." Meantime the Clansman is doing its full share in the state fights in its territory.

A hint for general advertising is found in a page and a half story on "Summer Complaint. Symptoms—Cause—Effect—Cure." Of course the exhibitor's summer complaint is lessened business, and the cure is better bills and better advertising. For the patron the summer complaint is, of course, the heat and the cure the coolness of the theater. To drive home the argument E. R. Pearson estimates that a well planned campaign in his territory alone would make a difference of $400,000 a year. This looks mighty big, but he proves his point, and proves it smartly and well. People will come to the theater in summer if you will make them, and you can make them if you go at it properly.

It is not possible to list all the good things in the current issue, but there is meat on every page and real help to the exhibitor. It is worth real money to every theater man who gets one, and that is what makes it such a good advertising medium for V-L-S-E.

Another.

We are getting so used to summonses that if we ever get a real one we are in danger of slipping it into the copy drawer and being in contempt of court before we realize our error. The latest is sent in by Brother Richardson, who has been exercising his alleged motorcycle through the Connecticut mud and who sends in from Waterbury a summons issued by the Strand theater there. This is specially printed, and the only lapse is that it is all type where in a regular summons on a printed form some of the matter is typewritten in. This would he the essential portions of the document and the use of typewriter type would have been even stronger. It calls the recipient to the Strand to see Pavlowa and is nicely done save for the above omission.

Too Much the Same.

Frank L. Schaffer uses a six-page folder for the Theater De Luxe, Los Angeles, a blue on blue that looks like something as far as you can see it. The front page is nicely planned with a drawn house name, but inside, where six sections are given half a page each, the printer has done the usual stunt of trying to fill the space with type. It is all pretty much the same size, so nothing stands out. That copy, properly set, would give a good display, hut there must be some intelligence used in selecting the type faces, and if the printer cannot do this unassisted it will pay Mr. Schaffer to sit in on the job with him. As the pages open up, all that shows is a mass of type. Nothing stands out any more than one egg will stand out from its companions in a dozen unless it is brown where the others are white, has a crack or possesses some other distinctive mark. For example, in the four lines:

Bessie Barriscale and William Desmond
in
Bullets and Brown Eyes

Three of the four lines have practically the same value. They are all eighteen point. The players' names in ten point with more white space between and with the title in twenty-four point would have given display. It is a pity to spoil an otherwise good job through careless composition.

Lighted Announcements.

Lester Nichols, of the Gem Theater, Peterborough, N. H., sends in suggestions for a transparent sign. He writes:

> Get an old picture frame around two feet wide by three feet long. Remove the picture and affix the glass securely in the frame. Make a box for the rear of the frame in which a light can be placed, the light striking through the glass. Arrange for the easy removal of the frame, using thumb buttons or some other device. Then place a piece of tissue paper on the glass on the inside of the box and affix with gummed labels. Now lay the frame on some flat surface and paint on it with water colors or "letterine." Replace the frame, turn on the light and the sign can be read all over the theater. It attracts attention, as it is different from a slide or any common way of advertising. The tissue paper is used to hide the electric light, so that an even flow of light will go through the glass. To change, merely remove the frame and wash off the lettering with a damp cloth.

The idea is an excellent one and in line with the theater transparency invented by Martin Lehman some fifteen or twenty years ago, but it can he home made and is probably used in many houses already.

It would be better to use a sheet of ground glass or, if this be not handy, to give the glass a ground effect by touching with the tip of a brush dipped in white paint, not using enough to heavily coat the glass. Perhaps it will he easier to coat one side of the glass with varnish (after carefully cleaning the surface with washing soda) and when the varnish becomes tacky pressing down a sheet of white paper. A second coat of varnish over the paper will make it water and dust proof. Now letter the back with any opaque water color and this can be washed off at will. Most photographers have a marl which they use for blocking out negatives. This costs less than water color and works better. This should not be confounded with the more expensive opaques. Anything that will dry down quickly will serve and common whiting with a little glue will serve as well if it is rubbed up to get all the lumps out. If quick drying is desirable, work up with wood alcohol instead of water.

But such a light box will show a point of light where the lamp rests if the box is the same size as the frame. It will be better to make the box enough larger than the frame to take a light at the top and bottom. Paint the interior with flat white paint and give a second coat of some good gloss white, or, better still, use aluminum bronze. It takes a second light to get an even illumination, but the effect is worth the slightly increased cost. If desired, there may he two or more circuits in the box carrying white and colored lamps, and if one white and one colored lamp is lighted the effect will give a white sign shading into the color. If practicable the wires can be carried to the stage or the box office and the sign thrown off when the picture is running and flashed on when the reels are being changed. The flashing into sight will attract attention where the constantly lighted sign soon becomes a part of the surroundings.

For hanging the frame, the better way is to use the hangers used for fly screens at the top and a pair of brass hooks and eyes at the bottom. This permits the frame to he moved slightly outward and then lifted from the hangers.

To hold the glass securely use glaziers' points and finish off with very narrow moulding of the sort known as quarter rounds.

One objection to lettering on the glass is that either the letters must be put in reverse or else lettered on the front of the glass, where there is no protection. It would seem that for lobby work it would be better to provide a set of frames over which paper may be stretched and these can be lettered at leisure and put in place in a moment behind the front glass with ample protection to the sign. Here the paper can he used but once and any marking ink can he used. Mr. Nichols' suggestion opens up many possibilities.

From the "Brush League."

J. F. Parks, of the Morris Grand, Hot Springs, S. D., sends in his program to show how they do it "in the brush league." He adds:

> I am a firm believer in well directed advertising as a material help in interesting the better class of picture patrons and find that the weekly program in connection with nicely printed heralds for each feature subject "gets the bacon" every time. I use a mailing list and get these programs right into the houses each week, which enables patrons to know definitely what is going on at my house.

The program is a four-pager 4½ by 9, green stock printed in black, a sort of pea green that is vivid and colorful instead of the usual sickly hue. The front page announces a switch to features, and inside, by dated days, he announces his titles and gives a brief line or two to each subject. These comments are generally short enough to he grasped at one look and pointed enough to sink in. It is not "bush" stuff in any sense. It would he well to give the month as well as the day, but this is more or less of a detail, though "Monday, May 29th," looks better than "Monday, 29th." We are inclined to think that the program alone would do most of the work and that this could best be supplemented with dodgers, with only an occasional herald. For the small town the advertising float, with a couple of twenty-eight sheets, is sometimes better still. It is largely a matter of experiment and class of audience.

Has a Paper.

Frank Vesley, of Brown's Opera House, Salinas, Calif., sends in some house organs with this letter:

> I am quite familiar with your name, as the first I do when I receive the "World" is to look through your department, which I find a great help indeed.
>
> I am sure that the greatest part of my success is due to the many helpful ideas I have gotten from this department, and I am still hunting for some.
>
> I am sending by mail a few copies of the "Movie News," a little weekly publication I get out every week, and I would like to hear what you have to say about it.
>
> I have only been in the game a little over two years. I started in a larger city when I was nineteen by buying a "lemon" and trying to make it go by loosing a lot of money. That is where I learned. I came back to this town and made my money back and now manage one of the prettiest houses in the county.
>
> In issuing the "Movie News" my purpose was to have a medium through which I can educate my patrons to appreciate the better class of pictures and arouse their interest in the players and in the theater.
>
> The town having only 3,500 inhabitants, I know most of them and the mailing list was an easy matter. We show Metro pictures, Fox pictures, Big Four and Gold Rooster pictures. We also feature "The Girl and the Game," which is a good drawing card.

About the best way to make money is to lose it and know how you lost it. Then the other way must be the way to win and you have a map. Even at that not all are as fortunate as Mr. Vesley. His house sheet is a nice looking four page issue, nine by twelve, a pulp paper that is a better grade than news and one that is likely to get too expensive if paper keeps going up. It takes coarse cuts well and his printer gives him good make up and impression. He makes his editorial page work for better films at better prices occasionally, and he probably started the sheet for the sake of that editorial page, which is the proper way to go about it. The manager who has a sheet and who does not know what to do with his editorial page is losing money. It is, when properly done, the best advertisement there is, but it must be backed up with film talk and gossip—the sort of stuff people like to read. Mr. Vesley knows what to do with it because he follows this department and makes good use of what he finds here. He also clips from the various house organs of the manufacturers and gets, all told, a better than usual sheet.

Spreading the System.

The Victoria, Buffalo, has a new scheme, possibly patterned after the report blanks used by certain releasing affiliations. It does not matter where they got the idea; the fact remains that anything that gives the patron the idea that his opinion is of value will help to make friends. Of course, it should be done in such a fashion as to make them critical but not critics, for to the untrained man criticism is merely another name for fault finding, whereas the true critic may find more to praise than to damn. On the back page of the program is printed a list of the attractions for the week in tabular form, with columns for excellent, good, fair, medium, poor, inferior. It is to be checked and handed to an usher or sent in by mail. A chance to build up the mailing list is lost through not providing a space for the name and the address, and this addition would also help to create a feeling of intimacy. It might even open up a medium of correspondence whereby the critic might not only be made a friend but a walking advertisement. The explanatory text is given here because it is well done:

> THE PEOPLE SPEAK.
>
> YOU are the only real critic of motion pictures.
>
> Into YOUR hands we have placed the greatest force for good that has ever been given to the motion picture lover.
>
> By making use of it YOU can dictate the kind of photoplays that the VICTORIA and the producers must furnish for your entertainment, and YOU can raise the standard of the motion picture productions to a height never dreamed possible. The VICTORIA and the producers of films MUST abide by your decision.
>
> Let us illustrate how YOU can help the VICTORIA to better its program.
>
> Below are printed this week's stars and the plays they are appearing in at each performance. After you have viewed the offering, the VICTORIA respectfully urges that you give your frank opinion of the photoplay, by marking an X under one of the six headings listed. In other words we want your criticism.
>
> Hand this checked page to the usher or send it to the VICTORIA.

It might be better to change the first paragraph to something more on this order:

> The public is the ultimate consumer of motion pictures and the weight of public opinion must be looked to to not only maintain the business, but to make it even greater and better than it is now.

This gets away from the always objectionable word "critic," and the amateur critic is apt to be as hurtful to business as the amateur censors, and we all know what they can do.

Comes Mr. Cobb.

A. H. Cobb, Jr., of the Temple, Hartsville, S. C., admits that he has been negligent about visiting lately, but sends in a lot in apology. He says:

> It has been some time since I kicked into your department and perhaps you think I'm dead to the world, but I'm still here alive and kicking. My only excuse for butting in again is to send in some programs and a few newspaper ads. for comment and criticism.
>
> Since I sent in my last program I have made some decided changes in the appearance, and I am inclosing a few different ones to receive some good strong criticism. If it was not for criticism things would never improve any, and I always look on criticism as a boost instead of a knock. The little "D-K" is just one I got out on "The Iron Claw," because they held up so long on my paper order.
>
> Now for a few facts. Don't know whether you have heard them or not, but here goes. This is a theater in a town of about 3,000, with only a weekly newspaper. Having only a weekly, about the only thing I can do is to run my advance program, as you will see by the inclosed clippings. We are running 85-day Paramount features and 90-day Pathe Gold Rooster plays. "The Iron Claw" is 30-day stuff. The World features are old as to release date, but the condition of the films is almost perfect. Have an awfully attractive little house, better than you will find in most towns this size (even if I do say so myself). House seats 275, showing about a 9 x 12 picture on a Mirroide curtain, with a seventy-foot throw. (This will interest Brother Richardson more than you, perhaps.) Have only one machine, a Simplex, motor-driven, but we sure have the picture. Run from 3:30 to 6 and from 7:30 to 10:30 or 11. When I came here seven months ago found the theater was running 18 reels of Mutual commercial at $11 a week. First three days I was here took in a total of $7 for the three days. Played Mary Pickford here lately and had them standing in the lobby waiting to get in.

Mr. Cobb has been reading, if he has not been writing, for his programs are along the lines of the Lehigh-Orpheum, South Bethlehem, Pa., an excellent model to follow. Presumably this is locally printed, but it is well done. There is no room for commeut, for he has followed an approved model, and both he and the printer have followed it intelligently. He even has a very tasty ornament for the front page: one in keeping with the object of the program. It is a smaller form than the Lehigh, but it loses nothing in the reduction.

The D.K. is merely a very red baggage tag suitably printed up. This probably worked better than some of the ready print paper, for no one could overlook so vivid an appendage to his front door.

His newspaper work is mostly full double columns or a strip across the front page right under the date line in the fashion suggested by J. W. Llewllyn.

And please note that with features Mr. Cobb is doing a better business than the predecessor, because he is giving a show. Eighteen reels for $11 doesn't mean much in the way of service, and it did not bring even that small cost. A better program won.

In the newspaper work the printer is not doing as well as on the program job. Taking the full double column examples, he uses too large a type for the minor lines. A twenty-four-point "Dainty, winsome, irresistible" rather overshadows the thirty-point Marguerite Clarke, for example. The use of ten-point would have given some white space with which to throw into prominence the player's name. This holds good all the way through the two advertisements sent in. Both are too full of metal and are shy space. It is not the size of the type that counts, but the relation of the sizes and the manner of display.

London Advertisers.

H. V. Fisher sends copies of his April and May issues of The Advertising World, of London, containing considerable matter on the various angles of photoplay advertising in England. These contain a symposium on advertising films to the user that is contributed to by most of the leading lights of the business, including, as a matter of course, Philip Wright Whitcomb, of Hepworth's, W. Arthur Northam, of the London Film, J. Cabourn, of the Bioscope, G. A. Atkinson, of the Cinema, and others. One thing that stands out in the various articles is the evident knowledge of the advertising men of media and methods. They are advertising experts and not merely press agents; which is something quite different. Over here, with a greater field, the matter has not been approached with the same care and thoroughness.

BETTER BUSINESS
Can be made through intelligent advertising.
Picture Theatre Advertising
Covers every angle, gives you copy and suggestions for copy, and shows how the leaders in the game have won their successes. Costs only two dollars and ANY ONE of the hundreds of schemes will bring that much to the house.
GET IT TODAY
The Moving Picture World
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticised, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is inclosed.

---

Mrs. Russell Agrees.

PRAISE from Sir Hubert it is indeed to have Mrs. L. Case Russell so thoroughly in agreement with a recent comment on synopsis only, for Mrs. Russell is a singularly clever reconstructor herself as well as a writer of unusual merit. She writes at too great length to be quoted in full, hut in part she says:

> "Those D(arne)d Synopses" awoke a responsive chord, and to such an extent that I take my typewriter, as is my custom, in the two trusty forefingers with which I manipulate the keys and add evidence.
>
> You say "stories will continue to be rotten just so long as 'anyone about the yard' is allowed to butt in, etc." A case in point—A recent Vitagraph Blue Ribhon of mine, The Two Edged Sword, dealt with a clean, simple farmer hoy, one who had never known women, a man of emotions slow to kindle, without the faintest hysteria in his nature. I wrote the continuity, accounting for every move, emphasizing characteristics down to the last detail. As I developed the story, when the farmer lad learned that the woman who had lured him on was married, he simply stood stunned while the truth that blighted his life and ultimately drove him to suicide was forced into his slow brain, then he sought a secluded spot where, thinking he was alone, he ground under his heel the ring he had hought to seal his faith in a woman's smiles.

The story was "reconstructed" to suit the ideas of action that prevailed in the mind of some director and that threw the picture entirely out of drawing. There was no repression; no characterization, merely the usual ranting that the average director imposes upon his people. Then she sold some synopses only and asked permission to do them into action. She was told that she might, but when she saw it again it was a three-reel instead of a two and completely changed by some person or persons unknown. She writes:

> Here is where any tears on tap may he utilized. My story dealt with an officer helonging to the U. S. Volunteers in the Philippines, back in the U. S. on leave of ahsence. The story was not military, as all the action took place during his brief sojourn with an old aunt and uncle in a little Middle West town. Point No. 1—The "reconstructionist" left my title "Captain Sheldon, U. S. V.," hut put him on the Mexican horder, where none hut regulars have ever heen stationed. Next, he carefully established the fact that he was ahout twenty, yet a captain who had seen service in the Philippines, and later on the Mexican frontier. Then he has him write a letter home in which he tells his mother he will soon be home on a furlough—the term to use if he is an enlisted man, but not if he is an officer. There were innumerahle other anachronisms, such as the lover asking his sweetheart to meet him in the "hothouse," when "conservatory" was palpably meant—this in a sub-title, too, but the hig thing was that the entire spirit of the story was absolutely lost, and that the tawdry, conventional result bore no more resemblance to my story than a ten-cent store hat hloom would to a full-blown fragrant rose.
>
> I wanted a story of a man's sacrifice that would have in it no faintest tinge or element of selfishness. A sacrifice for a mother can never he a sacrifice—the most unselfish act a man can perform for her is but her due, and only a drop in the vast ocean of debt. To sacrifice for a wife holds an element of selfishness—for a sweetheart the same—to give of yourself for those you deeply love or who depend upon you holds potential rewards far beyond the sacrifice. So I had my hero sacrifice, first fortune, then love, for the sake of a little old woman's faith in her husband, proven a rogue after his death. Without tiresome details I cannot make the blighting system employed quite clear, but the very fact that the staff man established the hero as a son of the woman effectually killed my motive—naturally a man would protect his father's name, and his mother's, and if his name was involved, as it would be if his father was proven a rascal, his sacrifice in freeing the girl might appear an act of cowardice. The "happy ending" was also forced in, despite the fact that to make it such a most absurd situation was evolved, and the hero's sacrifice was unnecessary, after all. Oh, it was a smear, and it was a really good story, if I do say it as shouldn't.
>
> Therefore have I registered a solemn vow—no more sales of synopses only. I reserve the right to furnish the continuity. This I do prayerfully and well-nigh hopelessly, knowing the chances are 100 to 1 that my play will have to be revised or reconstructed, hut at all events I shall perhaps, by careful characterization, forceful presentation, be ahle to at least reveal the soul of my story so that, unconsciously and unacknowledged, the one who reads may absorb enough of it to unintentionally reveal it in his conception of "how it should be done."
>
> Just so long as companies employ "writers" at $25 per week, just so long shall the decline of the photoplay continue. And just so long as producers will pay for names that adorn magazine covers and hest seller backs, and turn these over to their staff to "adapt" will the descensus Averni go on. Until the men who select the stories know a story when they see one, refusing to be blinded by the radiance of a famous name or frightened by an unfamiliar one, and pay for the properly developed and complete scenario, Mr. Brisbane may continue to hold his original contention unchallenged.

More Mrs. Russell says, and very much to the point it is, hut this is the gist of her letter, and it lays bare the greater evil. No reconstructor can possihly get the author's exact angle. The more he does the worse he makes things, as a rule, and in general the reconstructor is not a clever workman, but one who takes a hack joh because he can do no original work. To give such a man a story to do with it as he wills or as a director wishes is to encourage literary crime.

Ones and Fives.

A California correspondent in a lengthy but interesting letter seeks to argue for the all-feature program. He protests against seeing "merely the skeleton of a play" and pleads for characterization. By characterization we take it that he means a lengthy exposition of character devoid of marked narrative action—in other words, padding. He says:

> Of course if the photoplay is going to he a means of passing time in hetween cars as it were, why, then, I am very disappointed. Do you go to a stage play and drop in some time in the second act? Why wouldn't a person go into a picture house at the heginning of the performance? * * * Believe me, the cinematographic art will go plumb south if it has to depend so entirely on plot that the great thing is to be ahle to rush your marionettes through the story in the shortest possible footage. * * * It is a torture to be forced to sit through a short comedy or drama. Either the cameraman makes them up as he goes along or a staff writer or semi-free lance gets his stuff through entirely on mechanical perfection.

We do not go to the theater at the commencement of the second act of a drama. If we go in search of amusement at that hour, we turn to the vaudeville theater. In the same way there will presently he feature houses and houses with one-reel programs, and the features will have to be features and not merely film in a given length. Pure characterization will never please as much as vivid action. There must he plot action to hold interest, and characterization must come through this action, but in a sense the correspondent is right, only what he is trying to complain of is something that he may know nothing ahout. He really complains at the lack of continuity and the resultant effort to cut ten reels to five.

Accuracy.

Steve Talbot sends in a still picture that he got hold of. It is the interior of a miner's cahin in the days of '49, and on a shelf, its title clearly readahle in the print, is a copy of Seven Keys to Baldpate.

Logic.

Lately a company offered "merely a nominal sum" for a script hecause they did not make money on the last story along those lines they produced. Common sense would suggest the inadvisahility of making more of the same sort, hut if they want to gamhle again, why make the author pay the cost? If they offer him fifty instead of five hundred, will the difference in payment recoup their loss if the venture again fails? That "nominal sum" stuff is getting frayed at the edges and worn thin in the center.

ORDER NOW

The THIRD Edition of Technique of the Photoplay

IS NOW READY

This is virtually a new book under the old title. More than double the text and with an arrangement especially adapting it for the student. The most complete book ever written on this subject.

By Mail, Postpaid Three Dollars

Address all orders direct to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 146.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

In your opinion, is it best for the operator to handle the house lights, or should it be done from the main house switchboard, or should the operator handle a portion of the lights and the rest be handled from the main switchboard?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 139.

The Roll of Honor on question 139 consists of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; E. Paterson, Tama, Iowa; O. J. Bean, New Bedford, Mass.; Thos. J. Maloney, New Bedford, Mass.; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wilson Hays, Barton, Md.; Walter Collins, Tiffin, Ohio; W. B. Allen, Edmonton, Canada; Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Md.; Frank F. Bell, Palestine, Texas; J. L. Arnold, Bellingham, Wash.; W. E. Bryner, Springfield, Ill.; R. Farley, Calgary, Alberta; G. A. Yager, Anadarko, Okla.; Geo. P. Berry, Hickory, N. C.; M. Hoover, Franklin, Ind.; John Metzger, Strathcona, Alberta, and William Call, Moroni, Utah.

I have selected the reply of F. F. Bell as the most complete of any.

Reply to Question No. 139.

By F. F. Bell, Palestine, Texas.

The Question:

Suppose you were running a film which you knew to be perfect, and there was an up-and-down movement in the picture on the screen; where would you look for the trouble? Enumerate the various things which might cause it. Suppose the movement was sidewise? Suppose the sprocket holes showed on one side?

The Answer:

Up and down movement: Dirt on intermittent sprocket. Badly worn intermittent sprocket; one side worn more than the other; imperfect sprocket (out of true); intermittent sprocket shaft sprung; worn intermittent movement; loose pin in cam; broken point on star; star or cam loose on shaft; sprocket loose on shaft; tension too weak (runs O. K. at slow speeds); worn ball and arbor on Motiograph will cause picture to jump all over after the grease in intermittent movement gets warmed up; worse at high speeds than low; loose flywheel; machine table loose (master bolt). This latter isn't possible on four legged stands, and movement would be both up and down, and sidewise.

Side motion: Intermittent sprocket having side play; both sides of sprocket running parallel yet lopsided. (This happened to me five years ago); machine not fastened down securely, allowing it to rock with the crank movement; guide rollers at top of gate not hugging the film snugly enough.

If the sprocket holes showed on one side it would be caused by the following: Intermittent sprocket out of line with aperture; aperture plate set too far to one side; badly worn gate rollers; film not properly threaded on sprocket.

In addition to Brother Bell's reply, Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Md., sets forth certain things which, while they have nothing to do with the questions asked, are of sufficient interest to deserve publication. In part, he says:

> There may be an up and down motion of the picture on the screen when both the film being projected and the projector itself is mechanically perfect. Some of the causes for this are: Picture taken with a camera which is not accurate, or by a camera which is not properly adjusted. Carelessness, or poor judgment in the drying room hy the use of wrongly designed drying racks, or drums, since film which is wound tightly on an unyielding drying rack, or drum, will in all probability be badly stretched, the consequence of which is an unsteady picture on the screen. Faults in printing room also may cause an unsteady picture.

All of which is perfectly true, though, as I said, it has nothing to do with the question asked.

For Wellington, Colorado.

J. P. Lyons, New York representative of the Electric Products Company, manufacturers of the Wottom Rexolux, says:

> In June 7th issue, I notice an inquiry from Mr. F. H. Gray, Wellington, Colo., about taking current from his generator for ignition purposes after starting his show, in order, apparently, to save his dry cells. There are several ways in which this may be worked out in more or less satisfactory manner, both with and without the use of a small storage battery floating on the line with a resistance. However, the method to be suggested will depend entirely upon the manner in which he is at present operating, and to make an intelligent suggestion it will be necessary to know whether he is using a 110 volt generator, with a rheostat ahead of his arc, or whether it is a 50/60 volt generator, shunt type, without resistance in lamp circuit. If he has a 110 volt generator, then by inserting a bank of light current carrying capacity resistance in a separate circuit to the ignition coil, he can get an ignition voltage that will be sufficiently uniform to give good results, but if it is a 55/60 volt shunt machine, then this scheme would not be feasible for the reason that when carbons are brought together the generator voltage would fall too low, and this would interfere with ignition to an extent that would probably cause the engine to shut drown. Under these circumstances a small storage battery floating on the line could be worked out in good shape. If this is done it should be so wired up that opening the ignation switch to shut down the engine would also open the circuit between the generator and the battery, and thus prevent a discharge of the battery into the generator when the plant is idle.

It would have been better had Friend Lyons included sketches. However, Wellington will take notice, and if there is anything he does not understand let him write, whereupon I will take the matter up with Mr. Lyons and go into it further.

A New Stunt.

A. C. Stewart, Waitsburg, Washington, says:

> Here is an idea I have tried out and found to be practicable with alternating current. About four turns of common bell wire thrown around the core of the operating transformer (compensarc, economizer, inductor, etc.), will act as a battery for the operating of bells, buzzers, and low voltage signal lamps, as long as the primary circuit of the transformer, or choke coil be closed, regardless of whether the secondary is closed or open. This avoids the bother and inconvenience of batteries and cells. On a choke coil the secondary must, of course, be closed or there would be no flux.

Brother Stewart then goes on to say that there ought to be a music exchange for player-piano music, which portion of his letter I have taken the liberty of referring to the Music for the Picture Department.

As to the bell stunt, why that is passed on to our readers for their consideration. It unquestionably would work all right with a transformer, though hardly practicable with a choke coil, I think.

Smattering of Knowledge.

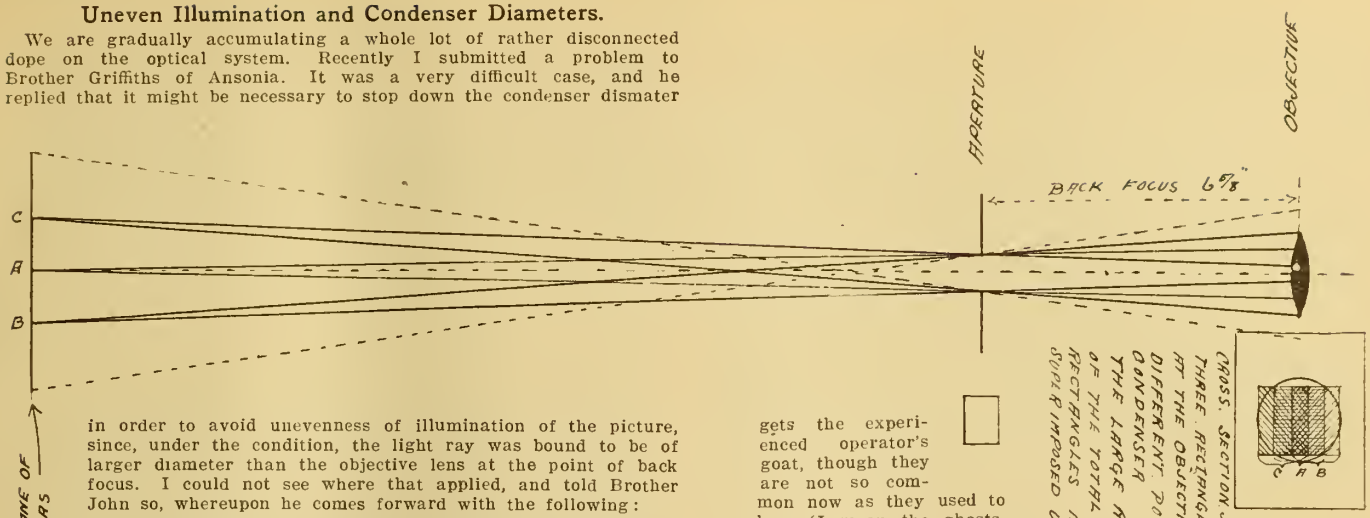
Cainsville, Md., writes:

> Will you kindly advise as to what is required for an operator to become a member of the union. I am writing in the interest of my brother, who has had about four years' experience, using several makes of machines, besides being possessed of a "smattering of knowledge" of electricity and lenses. If he could pass a suitable examination will it be required that he must serve an apprenticeship?

That is the principal difficulty with all too many operators, Cainsville, they have a "smattering of knowledge" instead of at least a tolerably complete knowledge, gained by earnest study of the subject of projection, including the things naturally allied thereto, such as electricity and lenses. The requirements necessary to enter the union vary with different unions. In some the examination is a stiff one, and you cannot get in unless you are in position to prove yourself a thoroughly competent operator. In others the examination is, I regret to say, in the nature of a farce. In any event, however, the applicant must, under the I. A. laws, have resided in the jurisdiction of the union which he desires to join for a period of not less than six months.

Uneven Illumination and Condenser Diameters.

We are gradually accumulating a whole lot of rather disconnected dope on the optical system. Recently I submitted a problem to Brother Griffiths of Ansonia. It was a very difficult case, and he replied that it might be necessary to stop down the condenser dismater



APERTURE
OBJECTIVE
BACK FOCUS 6 5/8"
C
A
B
EQUIVALENT PLANE OF CONDENSERS
CROSS SECTION SHOWING HOW THE THREE RECTANGLES OF LIGHT OVERLAP AT THE OBJECTIVE FROM THREE DIFFERENT POINTS OF THE CONDENSER. THE LARGE RECTANGLE CONSISTS OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF SMALLER RECTANGLES INCORRECTLY SUPERIMPOSED UPON EACH OTHER in order to avoid unevenness of illumination of the picture, since, under the condition, the light ray was bound to be of larger diameter than the objective lens at the point of back focus. I could not see where that applied, and told Brother John so, whereupon he comes forward with the following:
C A B

> Replying to your question as to why stopping down the condenser would make for evenness of illumination, with reference to the case in question, the rectangle of light reaching the objective would be much larger than the diameter of the objective. Now, this rectangle of light is not made up of a single, solid rectangle of light, but of an infinite number of smaller ones which are more or less incorrectly superimposed upon each other. The size of each individual rectangle may be found by drawing four lines from any point in the equivalent plane (i. e., the center of the combination of the condensers), and having them pass through each extreme corner of the machine aperture, and on the point of back focus of the objective.

This will give the four corners of each individual rectangle, because from each point of the condensers there is a cone of rays which carry a full film image. Now, if we first consider a cone from the center of the condenser on the axis, we would get an evenly illuminationed image on the screen, though it would be very faint if we consider but one point of the condenser. The illumination would, however, be even, because the rectangle of light would only be a little larger than the aperture of the lens, and would not be obstructed in its passage through the objective lens. But if we take the cone of rays which is passing through a point of the condenser near its bottom edge, it will still pass through the aperture, but the rectangle of light, which carries a full film image, will reach the objective lens. We now have, at the screen, not only a faint, even image, but an additional part of an image, and this second part will appear brighter because it is receiving twice as many rays, being fed through two points instead of one. Let us take, for instance, one of the small individual rectangles that, coming from the edge of the condenser, would occupy one of the corners of the large rectangle, but one corner of the film image would reach the screen, though in the other three corners of the large rectangle there would be a similar small rectangle, each having a corner passing through the objective lens, but each corner passing through would be a different corner of the image, so that instead of getting four full film images, we would be getting four corners, consequently the corners of the screen would be better illuminated than its center, and we would have more points of the condensers feeding the corners than we have points feeding the center, and the result of the total will be a dark ghost in the center. If, on the other hand, the small individual rectangles from the extreme edges of the condenser are being obstructed, so that a little more than half of the film images are passing through the objective, then the center of the screen will be fully illuminated, and the corners less fully, which will result in a light ghost. It must be carefully remembered that there are as many individual small rectangles as there are points on the condenser, and that is literally numberless whereas we can only consider the effect of a few, and the only way we can be sure of even illumination is to reduce the size of the large rectangle, or light ray, so all of the small individual rectangles will reach the screen, whereupon its illumination will be as even as the illumination at the aperture is. From this viewpoint, stopping down the condenser makes for evenness of illumination, where the objective lens is of small diameter, because it reduces the size of the rectangle of light covering the objective lens.

Referring to the sketch, in which the conditions you asked about are duplicated, you will probably see that if the whole rectangle of light is allowed to reach the objective, then the outside edges of the condensers will deliver a large number of film images to the objective, of which only one corner can reach the screen, and while they are giving but little illumination to the screen, what little they are giving is going to the corners. I have only shown three of these small rectangles just to set forth my idea. A, B and C are three vertical points of the condenser. To show them other than vertical would require solid geometry, and make a complicated drawing. You will see from this idea that it is possible to have both light and dark ghosts, even though your aperture does not cut into the ghost zone, and I think this is the kind of ghost which gets the experienced operator's goat, though they are not so common now as they used to be. (I mean the ghosts, not the goats.) If you will turn to page 597, Gage's "Optic Projection," you will find this idea corroborated where he says: "Increasing the diameter of the objective, or diaphragm, has the same effect as increasing the diameter of condenser." Note what he says about opening and closing the diaphragm of objective, and apply the same meaning to the diaphragm of the condenser. He tells the effect, and I think I have found the cause.

It begins to look to me like we need a new form of condenser worse than we need anything else. I don't like to reduce the diameter of the condenser, and if we are going to avoid that, and keep the crater within 3½ inches of the lens, where it ought to be, I believe we have got to get the condenser further back, and get a more nearly parallel light beam beyond the aperture.

The other possibility for accomplishing the paralleling of the light beam is shown on Page 1168, May 13th issue of the World.

Still another plan is shown in the accompanying diagram of a telephoto condenser, of which Brother Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, writes:

> Herewith a triple condenser system is shown, with a diverging lens placed next the arc. If we now regard the action of the diverging lens alone, it is found that the real crater becomes focused as a virtual image at a position nearer to the lens, as shown in the drawing by the dashed lines, and also, the virtual image is smaller than the real crater. Therefore, it is seen that the function of the diverging lens is, optically, to reduce the size of the crater; also to move it closer to the condensers.

The purpose of this action is quite obvious from the drawing, for if we now consider the diverging lens as for the moment removed, then the real crater becomes focused by means of the meniscus-bi-convex set, with a 1½-inch spot at a position nearer to the condensers (as shown by the dotted lines); but by replacing the diverging lens, the real crater is replaced by the virtual crater, which now becomes focused at a position much farther from the condensers (as shown by the full lines), while also the reduced size of the crater enables the aperture spot to be maintained at its desired minimum size of 1½-inch diameter.

The advantage of increasing the distance between condensers and aperture is already well known, but we again call attention to the fact that in the diagram the position of the arc and the size of the aperture spot are maintained at maximum efficiency, and also the condenser system has six curved surfaces which can be advantageously selected for reducing spherical aberration.

This system is really a telephotographic lens, but placed and used in a reverse manner.

Why not place a negative lens between the condenser and aperture, and thus get the effect of added distance between condenser and aperture, without its actuality? This suggestion is by Brother Griffith.

Carbon Gas.

A long time ago this department suggested to operators and to machine manufacturers, as well as to theatre managers, that the top of the lamphouse be connected to the vent flue, or the open air by means of a three or four-inch metal pipe, to the end that the heat of the arc and the carbon gas be carried off. In my recent trip through New England I found a large number of lamphouses thus equipped; also I found a large number that were not, and I would like to suggest that, inasmuch as carbon is transformed into gas in the process of volatilization, and inasmuch as the modern tendency to high amperage is causing the formation of large quantities of carbon gas, which cannot be otherwise than unhealthy, it is of increasing importance that this sort of connection be made. It is an easy thing to do, and this department has secured the addition of a connection for such a pipe in practically all modern up-to-date lamphouses, and those manufacturers who have not already adopted the connection have promised the editor to put it on in the near future. The operating room is rendered not only much more healthy by the carrying off of these gases, but the taking away the heat of the arc renders the room very much more comfortable in summer. Without this connection all the heat generated by the arc is thrown directly into the operating room, through the circulation of air from the lamphouse and direct radiation. Operators should demand this sort of ventilation for the lamphouse, and up-to-date managers who have due regard for the comfort and health of theater employes will not need urging to bring about its installation.

Woke Him Up.

T. J. Maloney, New Bedford, Mass., writes:

> When you lectured in New Bedford at midnight on June 2nd I, as one member of Local 334, was pretty tired after having worked all day, but you certainly woke me up, and made me forget my tired feeling. What you said in your lecture was just good, hard, rock-bottom, common sense, and I don't believe there was one of the men who did not thoroughly enjoy the evening, though we regretted your inability to get around and see the theatres, and give projection the once-over, because, if I do say it, they have got to go some to beat us. In closing I want to wish success to yourself, and the projection department; also to the Moving Picture World and its management.

I am very glad indeed to know that you enjoyed and profited by the lecture. The local has asked me to come to New Bedford again, and I will try to arrange a second visit some time in the not very distant future.

Projector Manufacturers' Attention.

What constitutes a very serious error is the fact that some manufacturers supply no means for adjusting the pressure on the tension shoes of their projectors; also in my opinion none of them give the matter of tension adjustment the careful attention it demands.

As a matter of fact an examination of many machines in actual daily use in theatres has revealed the fact that every one of them carried more tension than was necessary, and that most of them had tension very greatly in excess of the requirements. The evil of too much tension is readily understood when we consider the fact that the edges of the sprocket holes, notwithstanding the fact that they are of celluloid and only 5.5 thousands of an inch in thickness, actually cut or wears away steel which is as hard as glass (the intermittent sprocket teeth of modern projectors, or most of them, are hardened glass hard) in a comparatively short time. This gives some idea of the pressure exerted by the sprocket teeth on a delicate celluloid edge, which must be and remain perfectly true if the picture is to be steady on the screen, and it is readily seen that ANY EXCESS OF TENSION ADDS GREATLY TO THE STRAIN.

And right here one of the evils of over-speeding enters, for EXCESSIVE SPEED, OF COURSE, COMPELS EXCESSIVE TENSION, HENCE A LARGE INCREASE OF STRAIN AND WEAR ON THE SPROCKET HOLES.

The excuse of manufacturers who omit a tension adjustment is that the average operator cannot or will not use an adjustment with intelligence. This has been very largely the fact, and still is so, in a lamentably large number of cases, yet, in my opinion, it does not justify the omission of a tension adjustment, or the inclusion of a poor, inefficient one. I have tested the tension on many of the new machines which are sent out without tension adjustment, AND IN EVERY CASE THE TENSION WAS VERY MUCH MORE THAN IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN—IN SOME CASES FULLY TWICE THAT WHICH WOULD BE REQUIRED UNDER ANY POSSIBLE CONDITIONS. I tested one non-tension adjustment projector on the day of its installation and found it impossible to run the machine fast enough to cause the film to overshoot without danger to both the film and the mechanism. I have tested many new machines having a tension adjustment also, and them, too, I have found to almost invariably leave the factory with tension set tight enough for Kinemacolor speed—sometimes even more than that.

How tight ought the tension to be, do you ask? Use your brains! What is the tension for? Why it is to stop the film the instant the intermittent stops, hold it snugly against the sprocket teeth at all times—in other words, to prevent the film "over-shooting" at the highest speed the projector will be operated or run. But there must be a little leeway allowed, else you might slightly exceed that speed at some time; also some films require a trifle more tension than others. The rule I worked out for myself when I was operating proved satisfactory then, and I have no manner of doubt that it will do the same now. Set your tension so that at a crank speed ten revolutions in excess of the highest speed you will use, the picture will begin to crawl up slightly on the screen, which shows that the film is "over-shooting," i. e., its momentum is carrying it forward (downward) slightly after the intermittent has stopped.

PERFECT SPROCKET HOLES ARE ABSOLUTELY VITAL TO PERFECT PROJECTION, hence you cannot afford to unnecessarily injure them, either by undue strain or wear.

It is also a fact that unnecessary tension helps to produce quick under-cutting of the intermittent sprocket, and this in itself is enormously injurious to the sprocket holes of the film, causing injury to sprocket holes which mounts into the thousands of dollars every day.

They Want More.

The editor lectured to Local Union No. 334, New Bedford, Mass., on Friday, June 2. He is now in receipt of the following communication:

> Mr. F. H. Richardson, New York City.
>
> Dear Sir and Brother:
>
> I trust that you and your Harley-Davidson are still spreading the good word among managers and operators. Well, they are still talking about the lecture and probably will be for some time to come. The more they talk and think about it the more the conviction grows that you hit the nail on the head in about everything you said. I don't know who enjoyed it the most; whether it was the operators or the managers, but I am sure that all those present felt well repaid for the time and effort expended. At the last meeting of the Union the body expressed a firm desire to have you pay us a return visit, as we wish more enlightenment of the subject. We had just enough in that pleasant two hours to create the desire for more, and I was instructed by the local to communicate with you to find out the earliest date when you can return. The boys would like it to take place on a Saturday and Sunday, if possible, and would like to know what your expenses would be and how soon we can stage the affair. We realize that you have many different towns to visit, and do not want to deprive any other local of its opportunity to hear your very instructive lecture, but if you have an open date, we would be pleased indeed to see and hear you again. With best wishes and hoping to receive a favorable reply, I remain, Fraternally yours,
>
> WALTER O. SMITH, Fin. Sec'y Local 334.

I certainly appreciate the spirit of progressiveness this letter shows, and am quite willing to do anything possible to aid a local of this kind. It will, however, be entirely impossible for me to again visit New Bedford before early fall, and I cannot definitely promise even then, though—maybe. It certainly will be done if at all possible.

It's the Dope.

T. J. Trabue, Biloxi, Miss., says:

> I wish to thank you for putting me wise to the value of condensing lens holders. I purchased a Preddy and have not had a single broken lens since. My lamphouse is, however, charged with juice, which apparently leaks through the insulation of the carbon holder arm. I have carefully re-insulated this joint, but it failed to remedy the trouble. Is there any better material for the purpose than mica? How about having the bushing holes made larger, so I could get in a greater amount of insulation?

Yes, both Preddy and the Elbert condenser holders are a good proposition. With regard to the grounding of your lamp to the lamphouse, why that could happen in a number of ways. Possibly an unnoticed strand of the asbestos wire is touching something. Possibly you have no insulating washer where the wire goes through the lamphouse and the current is leaking through the insulation at that point. Possibly carbon dust across the mica insulation is causing the trouble, though it seems hardly possible that you would have overlooked these points. No, there is plenty of insulation materials, but possibly in taking the joint apart you have injured the insulation which goes around the screws. I would suggest that you borrow a magneto from your local electrician and make a test across the mica. If you get a ring, there is your trouble; if you don't, then try the mica in the other carbon arm. If you don't get a ring at either place then you will have to find out where the current is leaking from the wire into the metal of the lamp or lamphouse. If you do find the leak is across the mica insulation, then I would suggest that you have the local electrician rebuild the insulation, as it would be a rather delicate job for you to tackle.

Compensarc Trouble.

Illinois asks:

> Would you make me a diagram of a dissolver for moving picture work? Am running two Powers Six A projectors, one compensarc, and one rheostat, which works well, pulling about 50 amperes. The compensarc is a Fort Wayne, running on contact No. 3, which is supposed to give 60 amperes but does not. What causes this? Can it be the compensarc? The current is 60 cycle, 110 volt.

So far as the dissolver be concerned, Illinois, I would refer you to page 605 of the Handbook, a copy of which you ought by all means to have. You can get a very fair dissolver by connecting the dowsers of your machines by a cord or small chain running through pulleys on the ceiling, so that the closing of one opens the other. The better way is, however, to rig a shutter on the front wall of the operating room, so that when the shutter is moved one lens opens exactly in proportion as the other lens changes. There was a shutter of this kind described, with diagrams, in the department several months ago. It was the Merklein dissolver.

As to the compensarc, how do you know it is not delivering 60 amperes? Have you tried it with an ammeter? Possibly your line voltage is not what it is supposed to be, which would, of course, operate to reduce the amperage delivery of the compensarc. Does the machine get abnormally warm? Place a thermometer in contact with the hottest part of the instrument for five or ten minutes. Its temperature should never exceed 40 degrees centigrade or 72 degrees Fahrenheit above the temperature of the surrounding air. If it does exceed this, then it is getting too hot, and there is something wrong. It is possible that your compensarc is a very old one in which case it may require attention from the manufacturer, even to the extent of rewinding the coil and rebuilding the core.

Well, Perhaps.

John Solar, Watertown, N. Y., says:

> Referring to your comment on Brother Martin's last letter, page 181, June 10th issue, with relation to aperture lens in front of the film, you say you think it would affect the objective, which is quite true. If will, however, also affect the objective if placed back of the film. The objective lens is designed to receive and pass rays at approximately some given angle, and any small departure from this angle is overcome by refocusing the lens. When we insert the aperture lens the result would be the same as if we had shortened the focal length of the objective. The result is the same as if the lens barrel was extended back and an uncorrected lens inserted. In his diagram Mr. Martin indicates the aperture lens as a corrected lens. A simple lens made from one kind of glass cannot be corrected, neither can two lenses of the same kind of glass be corrected without eliminating all their power. By selecting a certain ratio of curves we can minimize spherical aberration, but for correction we must use a dispersive lens in connection with the collective one.

Yes, I can see that Brother Solar is entirely right in saying that the aperature lens would affect the objective, regardless of which side of the film it might be placed on, though I cannot say whether the effect would be the same regardless of which side of the films the lens be. I take it that Friend Martin meant a lens of two kinds of glass of different curvatures, though the drawing does not actually show that part of it. He, of course, understands that a corrected lens must of necessity be a combination lens. The more I look at the optical system, however, the more thoroughly I am becoming convinced that the idea of an additional lens either located between the condenser and the film, or between the film and the objective is sound, and that is what we are going to come to in the near future. The paralleling of the light ray beyond the aperture, without setting up other troubles, would, it seems to me, solve the whole proposition. The question is: can it be done? I personally am inclined to believe it can, the main difficulty being to secure proper lenses for experimental purposes.

The Projection Engineer.

The value of the services of the projection engineer have not as yet received any very general recognition; also there are those posing as projection engineers whose claims to that title are decidedly hazy and difficult to discover.

The simple fact that a man has been a practical operator, or even that a term of practical operating has been supplemented by a term of service with a projection machine manufacturer, or a screen manufacturer, or some other manufacturer, does not entitle him to dubb himself "projection engineer." As a matter of fact it may be justly questioned as to whether anyone has the real right to call himself projection engineer, since there is no such diploma issued by an authoritative body, and most certainly no one is justified in assuming the title except by reason of a long and severe course of training, which must comprise practical operating, electrics as applied to projection, optics as applied to projection, and several other highly important branches of the art of projection, each one of which requires much study and very careful experimentation.

The need for men who have actually given long and strenuous study to all these various things is indeed very great. The waste due to inefficiency of projection apparatus, either inherent or present through lack of knowledge in the proper adjustment thereof, is nothing less than huge, amounting to tens of thousands of dollars a day. For instance, in many cases efficiency at the screen is very greatly reduced simply by the wrong location and improper size of the observation port in the operating room wall. The efficiency of a very large percentage of projectors is being largely reduced through lack of proper adjustment of its optical system, and the damage to film through lack of exact knowledge of proper adjustment of the tension of the machine in itself amounts to many thousands of dollars every day. The selection of a motor generator set, or a mercury arc rectifier, is not a thing which ought to be left to hap-hazard guess-work of a manager or an operator who has not made practical tests of the electrical efficiency of the various types of those devices, and who probably has never actually seen more than one of two of the many different designs of those machines, nor should the purchaser depend altogether on the very highly-colored statements of salesmen, who all too often get the truth more or less warped in their anxiety to produce selling results. The selection of a projection machine ought not to be a matter simply of personal preference of an operator or manager, but should, of right, be left to the judgment of a projection engineer who is thoroughly acquainted with all the advantages and faults inherent in the various machines. The building and the location of the operating room is made a subject of more absolute crass stupidity than any other one thing I know of. Architects, no matter how otherwise capable, seem to have absolutely no idea, or even the good germ of an idea, as regards damage to the result on the screen through the improper location of the operating room. Not long ago I examined a really splendid example of theater architecture and equipment. It was the best, without exception, I have ever looked at, but the architect who planned that splendid plant committed the USUAL deplorable BLUNDER of locating the operating room at the very top of a high balcony, at least 40 feet above the screen.

Architects' trade journals seem content to go on allowing the moving picture industry to be outraged every day by architects who plan such theaters, without any apparent knowledge of the requirements of practical projection, since up to date I know of no adequate or intelligent effort any of them have made to enlighten their readers on this highly important matter.

Now the theater in question is, as I have said, barring this one error, a really splendid house, both in equipment and planning, and I venture the assertion that THE OWNER OF THAT HOUSE COULD WELL HAVE AFFORDED TO HAVE PAID A PROJECTION ENGINEER A FEE OF EVEN AS MUCH AS $1,000, OR EVEN TWICE THAT SUM TO HAVE HAD THAT BLUNDER AVOIDED. It would, as a matter of fact, have cost considerable less than one-tenth of one thousand dollars to have consulted a projection engineer, and thus have avoided an error which forever makes it impossible to deliver a perfect picture on the screen of that theater.

My advice to theater managers is to consult a projection engineer occasionally with regard to conditions in their operating rooms, and particularly to consult a projection engineer when contemplating the purchase of new equipment. But above all things theater owners who are building new theaters should compel, if necessary, their architects to submit their plans to a competent projection engineer, and accept his suggestions with regard to operating room size, location, ventilation and port openings. There are very few cases in which the fee thus expended would not return its value many, many times over.

Deep Crater.

B. Silver, New York City, says:

> Regarding Friend Merklein's letter, May 27th issue, concerning the forming of a deep crater, we experienced the same trouble. some of the National and Speer carbons have a way of forming a very deep crater, which, though it does not actually form a ghost on the screen, still does prevent me from getting a clear field. I am sure this is due to the softness of the core A flat crater always gives the best result, and I think, Mr. Richardson, it is up to you to call the attention of the manufacturers to this item, since we surely have no one else who would be listened to with any degree of attention. I have the new handbook, and all I can say is blessed be the hands that wrote this wonderful book.

All right, Brother Silver, I will consider my hands as being duly blessed; also I will call the attention of carbon manufacturers to this particular matter, but it cannot be expected that there will be immediately results. It takes time, and usually lots of it, too, to accomplish anything in a matter of this kind.

Later: the following letter just came to hand—evidence that the Speer company is very much "on the job."

June the 28th, 1916.

F. H. Richardson, New York City. Dear Sir: When your letter of June 15th was received it was immediately turned over to our Engineering Department for their consideration, and this accounts for the fact that we delayed in acknowledging receipt of same and thanking you for your kindness in bringing this to our attention. The matter is being taken up by our engineers and as soon as the case is sufficiently developed, we shall be very glad to advise you of any discoveries that we have made. Assuring you of our appreciation of this matter, we remain,

Very truly yours, SPEER CARBON COMPANY,

Richardson's

Motion Picture Handbook for Managers and Operators.

Over 700 pages and over 300 illustrations help to make a book that will be a lasting monument to its author's knowledge, ability and diligence. No such work on Projection has ever before been attempted, nor is it likely to be for many years to come. Price is $4.00 per copy, postpaid.

Address All Orders and Remittances

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue New York

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy in the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

Black Finishes for Amateur Camera Builders.

In response to several queries for means of finishing the metal parts of cameras, are given the following directions:

For camera parts a dead black finish is requisite, a lustrous finish being the cause of reflections. Formulas for blackening various metals are quite simple, but their efficiency should be tested on odd scraps of metal before treating the camera parts.

For Brasswork. Clean with fine emery and rinse; immerse in a saturated solution of copper nitrate for about two minutes and then remove and heat over the flame of a Bunsen burner or other clean flame, such as that of an alcohol lamp. Repeat this process several times, until the desired depth of color is reached. A saturated solution of copper nitrate can be made by dissolving an ounce of copper filings in two ounces of nitric acid; this should be done in open air, stirring the mixture as an aid to solution. Do not breathe the red fumes, which are highly poisonous.

Another method of blackening much used by instrument makers on brass articles is:

| | |
|---|---|
| 10 per cent. Ammonia | 25 parts |
| Dry Copper Carbonate | 5 parts |
| Water | 75 parts |

The cleaned brass is immersed in this solution with agitation for about fifteen minutes, or until a satisfactory black is obtained, when it is rinsed and dried or baked.

The solution should be about blood heat.

For Zinc Parts. Clean with emery and rinse off all grease and dirt, using hot water. Immerse in a solution made up of copper chloride 45 grains, zinc nitrate 30 grains, water 4 ounces, adding one-half ounce of hydrochloric acid, after immersion until the right color has been secured, rinse dry.

Tin Parts. Boil water, 1 ounce; borax, 15 grains; shellac, 30 grains; glycerine, 15 minims. Boil until all dissolved and then add 60 grains of nigrosin. Immerse until desired color is reached.

Bellows Interiors. Use a thin solution of shellac dissolved in alcohol in which lampblack is mixed to give the right color.

Camera Woodwork, Interior. In 10 ounces of hot water dissolve ½ ounce shellac and ¼ ounce borax. Then add ½ dram of glycerine and sufficient aniline black to make a deep black color.

There are also many black lacquers on the market which may be used for the coarser metal parts, but they are not so permanent as the methods given.

High Prices for Sugar.

J. Rufus Wallingford has entered the Photographic arena. Blackie Dawes has ironed out his silk hat, re-waxed his mustache, put on his famous tan spats and is seeking whom he may devour.

The shell game man has his lay-out spread on the table and the gold brick gent has packed his satchel with phoney money.

The market price of sugar, just plain sugar such as you carelessly dumped into your coffee at breakfast this morning, has gone to twenty-five dollars a pound, salt is as precious as platinum and starch can no longer be used on your fine linen.

You don't need to call the police to protect you. But you will probably go down to the surrogate's court and ask to have a guardian appointed if you buy some of the "substitute" developers on the market, and after finding that they don't work as well as they should, you send them to an analytical chemist for a report.

The Eastman Kodak Research Laboratory has been doing some valuable work for you. Here is what was found in a "developer" that sells for over $30.00 per pound: Metol 10 per cent., Hydrochinon 16 per cent., Sodium Sulphite 30 per cent., cane sugar 33 per cent. Other constituents (mostly water) of no value as developer, 11 per cent. Figuring Metol at $50.00 per pound, you could make up this "developer" for less than $6.50 a pound.

"Sweeten to taste" seems to be the rule in the manufacture (!) of war-time developers. Three contain sugar in quantities varying from 30 per cent. to 50 per cent. But sugar is not the only table luxury introduced. Another contains 36 per cent. of table salt and some Pyro, while another contains 40 per cent. of the ordinary wash-tub variety of starch. The directions on the bottle do not state whether or not this starch acts as a mountant and does away with the necessity for the use of paste.

Anyway it's better for the photographer to buy his paste separately from his developer. It's likely to save him from fifteen to twenty dollars a pound.

The warning is: Make your own substitutes. If you want to use sugar, salt and starch in your developer, go to the grocer. He may charge you war prices, but not Wallingford prices. The manufacturers of papers and plates are keeping chemical prices as low as possible and are publishing revised formulas to help out the situation. Watch the direction sheets and make your own substitutes.

How to Clean a Lens.

The lens should always be kept clean from dust, grease marks, finger prints or other impurities.

For ordinary cleaning in the field one should carry a tight envelope with several sheets of lens paper which is a very fine, satiny, soft Japanese tissue which may be purchased for a few cents at any optician's or good photo supply house.

To give a lens a thorough cleaning spread upon a table a clean sheet of paper; take the lens apart, and with a clean camel's hair brush dust each of the combinations on both sides. If the surfaces are very dirty and have lost their polish, make up the following:

| | |
|---|---|
| Nitric acid | 3 drops |
| Grain alcohol | 1 ounce |
| Distilled water | 2 ounces |

Dip a tuft of filter cotton in this solution, rub each side of the lens, then polish with an absolutely clean chamois. As new chamois is often softened with oil it should first be thoroughly washed in soap and water and dried and well softened by crumpling and rubbing with clean hands before using. Never use old chamois unless absolutely sure of its perfect cleanliness, as the same property which renders it such a good cleansing agent also makes it liable to pick up bits of grit which may injure the delicate polish of the lens.

A small cleanly defined scratch does not damage a lens perceptibly, nor do small air pubbles in the glass, as they are unavoidable in the present stage of development in the manufacture of optical glass, but many fine scratches or perceptible dimming of any of the polished surfaces are serious defects and the lens should be returned to the maker for repolishing, or if the defects are of any appreciable depth, the lens should be disposed of and a new one purchased.

If, on placing one of the combinations on a piece of white paper, any discolorations can be observed, whether yellowish, spotted or prismatic sheen, it is probable that the balsam which cements the elements together has deteriorated and the lens should be sent to the maker for re-cementing. It is too delicate a job for any except an expert optician; for if the center of any of the elements is thrown out of alignment with the optical axis you have ruined all of the finer corrections of the lens; although you may not be able to detect it with your eye.

Clean the lens tube before replacing the lenses, each of which should be finally dusted with a camel's hair brush.

"American Photography Exposure Tables."

There has just reached our desk a copy of the new edition, eighty-fifth thousand, of the "American Photography Exposure Tables." This valuable booklet has been completely revised, and contains accurate tables for determining photographic exposures under all conditions in all latitudes throughout the world. It lists all plates now known to be on the American market, and contains, in addition to the tables, a concise and comprehensive treatise on photographic exposure, outdoors and indoors, by day and by night, for still and moving objects and for copying, reducing and enlarging. The book is completed by a number of pages designed for exposure records. Published by the American Photographic Publishing Company, Boston, Massachusetts. Price, vest pocket size, bound in cloth, twenty-five cents.

While this valuable booklet is intended primarily for the still photographer, it is of as great value to the motion photographer, and especially those who go about recording the strange places of the earth. By applying the simple calculations necessary in the matters of diaphragm and shutter speeds these tables apply as well to the motion camera as to the still box.

A List of Plate and Film Speeds.

We have just received from G. L. Harvey, manufacturer of the Harvey Exposure Meter, 105 South Dearborn street, Chicago, a new list of carefully compiled plate and film speeds that should add very greatly to the usefulness of this popular meter. Mr. Harvey has also gotten out a little folder that goes very thoroughly into the matter of motion picture camera exposures and every motion picture photographer should send for a copy of this folder. With the information that it gives, even tyros in motion picture work should find no difficulty in the overcoming of that bugbear of correct exposure in making motion picture film.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by CLARENCE E. SINN and S. M. BERG

Musical Setting for "Flirting with Fate."

Released by the Triangle Film Corporation July 9.

(Suggestions prepared by S. M. Berg. By special arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., music publishers, New York.)

THIS "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is not designed to solve every possible musical requirement of the film, but is intended as a partial solution of the problem—what to play for the picture. It has proven to be of great assistance to the leader, not only by relieving to a degree the tedium of rehearsals, but by assisting materially in overcoming those conditions encountered when the film is not available until the hour of performance.

Musical Suggestion Cue Sheets can be obtained (free of charge) by managers from their local exchange in advance of the date of release. This will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film drama he is to portray with his orchestra.

Together with the suggested music at the title or descriptive cues where it is to be played, the tempo or characteristic is given so that the leader can select or substitute any or all of the numbers from his own library, thereby avoiding any financial outlay though still carrying out the interpretation.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will help the leader to anticipate the various cues which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or a described action (marked D). For instance: 6 T "It was rent day" is a sub-title and is printed reading matter on the screen. But 24 D "At Gladys' home" is a description of action.

August Holliday has a hard time getting along as an artist. He falls in love with Gladys Kingsley, whom he happens to see in the Park. His friend, Harry Hansum, takes him to a reception at her home, but he finds there is a rival. Discouraged, he goes home, and then meeting with further disappointments, hires Automatic Joe, a gunman, to shoot him unawares. Later word comes that he has inherited a million dollars and also he receives an encouraging note from Gladys. He decides he doesn't want to die and spends quite some time dodging men that look like Joe. He marries Gladys, still fearful, and as the ceremony is over he sees Joe in a Salvation Army suit. He has reformed and wants to return the money, but a long chase ensues before he can get near enough to Augy. Story closes with Joe a guest at the wedding breakfast.

The success of this picture depends upon the demonstration of Augy's fear for the assassin. The THEME suggested, "Serenata," by Tarenghi, although described as allegro moderato is characteristic of fear and would be appropriate to play at the suggested scenes.

(Hymn.) There are several scenes of Salvation Army meetings. It would be appropriate for cornet, trombone and drums only to handle these scenes and play some popular Salvation Army hymn at the suggested times.

Note particularly: Shot 36, Explosion 41¼, Explosion 58.

Time schedule: 68½ minutes (five reels—about 4550 feet).

| Time | | Sub-titles or Descriptive Cues. | Music. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 0 | D | Opening. | In Poppyland.....Albers (Moderato grazioso) |
| 2½ | T | The rent collector. | |
| 4 | T | The portrait of the girl. | Destiny Waltz.....Baynes |
| 6 | T | "It was rent day—" | |
| 8 | T | "I know who she is—" | Serenade ..... Zerkowitz (Allegro non troppo) |
| 11 | T | Auntie has imported a suitor. | |
| 12 | T | "That affair is cut and dried." | Eva Waltzes.....Lehar |
| 15¼ | T | "He's an artist—" | |
| 16¼ | T | "Let's beat it, Augy." | Serenade .....Ern (Allegretto) |
| 20½ | T | "I may not be welcome—" | A Garden Dance.....Vargas (Allegro moderato) |
| 23 | T | At the point of proposing. | Misterioso No. 1 |
| 23½ | T | Meanwhile at his studio. | Nocturne ..... Krzyanowskl (Molto lento) |
| 24 | D | At Gladys' home. | |
| 28½ | T | After a night of bitter anguish. | |
| 29¾ | T | Half an hour later. | Keep Going.....Klelnecke (Allegro 2-4) |
| 31 | T | "Why, I'd croak a whole family." | |
| 32 | T | "He shot a guy—" | Serenata .....Tarenghl (Allegro moderato) (THEME) |
| 36 | D | When Joe pulls gun. | |
| 37 | T | "That last style suits me." | Visions .....Tschaikowsky (Andante con espressione) |
| 39 | T | "Here's that painting, sir." | Repeat: THEME. |
| 41¼ | T | But what if— (Explosion.) | Reverie .....Vleuxtemps (Andante con espressione) |
| 42 | D | Telegram. | |
| 43½ | T | Automatic Joe remembers. | |
| 44½ | D | Salvation Army meeting. | Hymn. |
| 45 | T | Augy obeys an old injunction. | Repeat: THEME. |
| 48 | D | When Augy sees the detective. | |
| 49 | T | Interrupting a rehearsal. | Happy Hottentots....Romberg (Allegro 2-4) |
| 51¾ | T | Might this be Automatic Joe? | Repeat: THEME. |
| 54 | D | Salvation Army meeting. | Hymn. |
| 54½ | T | A fugitive nibilist. | Hurry No. 1. |
| 56 | T | "I was rated as the best—" (Salvation Army meeting.) | Hymn. |
| 56½ | T | One obligation still— | Repeat: THEME. |
| 58 | D | Explosion. | The Flatterer.....Chaminade (Molto capriccioso) |
| 62 | T | But alas our lovers— | |
| 62¾ | T | The orchestra will now— | Lohrengrin Wedding March. (Direct cue) |
| 65 | D | When guests throw confetti. | Repeat: THEME. |
| 67 | T | "My young friend—" | |
| 37¾ | T | "I knew it was a sin—" | Take Me Home With You. Romberg |
| 68½ | T | The End. | (Allegro moderato) |

Musical Classification.

By S. M. BERG.

The following letter treats with a matter which is no doubt a problem to many players of the film. There is no question but that Mr. Taylor is seriously interested in his work.

Mobile, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

I have been reading with much interest your articles on "Music For the Picture," in the "Moving Picture World" and would like to ask you whether you would not devote an article again on the classification of a moving picture library.

I am organist at the Crown Theater of Mobile, Alabama. How would the following sub-divisions do?

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Neutral | Pathetic | English |
| March | Religious | Scotch |
| Waltz | Indian | Western |
| Overture | French | Chinese |
| Selection | Oriental | Russian |
| Agitato and hurry | Spanish | Hungarian |
| North and South | Mexican | Italian |
| Misterioso | Irish | German |
| Love Songs | Negro | One-steps |
| Berceuses | Rags | |

This list may look crude to you, but I am ambitious for enlightenment along these lines. Hoping you will give this some attention when you find it convenient, I am

Very truly yours,

EDWIN LYLES TAYLOR.

In reply to this valued correspondent, there is in preparation a very interesting series of articles to the Organist which will deal very thoroughly with all phases of the organ, including a detailed list of appropriate music.

The above list is not crude, but the fault I find is that there is not sufficient detail. For instance, under "March" there are military marches, maestoso marches, processional marches and funeral marches, which should be separately classified. Dancing waltzes, selection waltzes, pleasing little French waltzes, valse intermezzos, valse lentos must also receive their separate classification instead of all being under the one head, "Waltzes." Overtures and selections are the most difficult numbers to classify, according to my mind, because there is hardly one of them that can be played in its entirety for any picture. Educationals are an exception and even then they are hardly appropriate. Excerpts from them are excellent, however. Pathetics should be detailed such as semi-pathetic, pathetic, dramatic, etc.

All characteristics such as Indian, French, Oriental, Spanish, Irish, Scotch, English, etc., must be classified according to tempo such as allegro, allegretto, adagio, etc., because when you get a picture of this kind you cannot play an allegro number to a pathetic scene just because the allegro number happens to be English and the scene English.

To tell a little secret, I have for my own use a system of index cards whereby if I require an allegretto I turn to this card where I have listed everything that will depict allegretto including some allegro and moderato movements which would be effective if the tempo were changed. This is also a very important point in the playing of music. I have always maintained that it is perfectly permissible to somewhat change the tempo of the music to interpret the action. There is a tendency among players today to overuse special music in hurried action. Supposing the character on the screen is seen riding horseback in the park and for the purpose of introducing another character a suggestion of an accident or runaway is portrayed. Frequently only a flash is seen. You possibly would he using a bright two-step or popular number for the park scene and to change to an agitato which would only last ten seconds would be difficult and unsatisfactory. But to momentarily hurry the tempo of the piece you were playing would give you the desired effect.

One thing more upon which Mr. Taylor is certainly to he congratulated is his classification of "North and South." To my personal knowledge, a leader was sent from New York City to take charge of a restaurant in Washington, D. C. On a certain occasion he played a selection of American Airs which contained a certain Northern air, still considered objectionahle to Southerners, and there resulted an uproar that required all the manager's diplomacy to quiet. In the picture theaters of today such incidents are frequently happening, players feeling that any patriotic air fits a military figure.

Space prevents me from dealing more thoroughly with this question, hut at a future date I hope to go very thoroughly into this phase of music for the film.

Musical Terms (Continued).

By S. M. BERG.

SIGNATURE.—The signs indicating tempo and scale in which the melody is played.
SIMILE.—Similarly; a direction to perform the following measure oi passages in the same style as the preceding.
SMORENDO.—Dying away.
SONORO.—Sonorously, resoundingly, resonantly, ringingly.
SOSTENUTO (SOST.).—Sustained; prolonged. Standing alone, as a tempo mark it is much the same as Andante cantabile.
SOTTO.—Below—under, sotto voce, in an undertone, under the hreath.
SPICCATO.—See springing bow.
SPIRITO, CON.—Spiritedly, with spirit.
SPRINGING BOW.—In violin playing, a style of howing in which the bow is allowed to drop on the string, making it rehound and quit the string hetween each two notes.
STACCATO (STACC.).—Detached, separated; a style in which the notes played or sung are more or less abruptly disconnected.
STENTANDO (STENT.).—Delaying, retarding, dragging.
STREPITO.—In a noisy, boisterous, impetuous style.
STRETTO.—Pressed together; hurried.
STRIDENTE.—Strident, rough, harsh.
STRINGENDO (STRING.).—Hastening, accelerating the movement, usually, suddenly and rapidly, with a crescendo.
SUBITO.—Suddenly, without pause.

T

TACIT.—"Is silent."
TARANTELLA.—A dance 6-8, gradually increasing in speed.
TEMPESTUOSO.—Stormily, passionately, impetuously.
TENUTO (TEN.).—"Held," means (a) generally, that a tone so markeu is to be sustained for its full time value; (b) occasionally legato.
TOSTAMENTE.—Boldly and rapidly.
TRANQUILLO.—Tranquilly, quietly, calmly.
TREMOLO.—Quivering, fluttering.
TROPPO.—Too, too much. Allegro ma non troppo, rapid but not too fast.
TUTTO.—All, whole; con tutta la forza, or tutta forza, with full power and strength.

U

UNISONO (UNIS.).—Unison.

V

VELOCISSIMO.—Very fast; with extreme rapidity.
VIGOROSO.—With vigor, with energy.
VIOLENTO.—In a violent, impetuous style.
VIVACE.—Lively, animated, hrisk. Vivace calls for a movement exceeding Allegro in rapidity.
VIVACISSIMO.—Very fast, presto.

(The End.)

Announcement.

By S. M. Berg.

These columns in the past have almost exclusively heen devoted to the pianist or the orchestra leader. To-day one must realize the enormous strides that the organist is making in interpreting music for the film. It is not an improhable calculation to state that 70 per cent. of the motion picture theaters have some form of organ and that 60 per cent. of this numher depends upon this instrument as the only means of musical accompaniment.

Realizing the enormous numher of players and in reply to many inquiries from correspondents a series of articles will be presented dealing with all phases of this important work. It is hoped that help will he found in them hy the pianist aspiring to become an organist or the church organist turning to motion pictures for a livelihood who lacks experience in the industry.

Aware of the fact that there would he many questions or technical points to he dealt with I am pleased to inform my readers that I have secured the services of Norman Stuckey to collahorate with me. Mr Stuckey has a thorough technical knowledge of the organ and he is today filling the position of organist in one of New York City's largest motion picture theaters. His capabilities and experience in the musical interpretion of motion pictures are therefore unquestioned.

The articles will appear in the following order:

1. THE ORGAN.
2. HOW A PIANIST CAN BECOME AN ORGANIST.
3. TECHNIC. (Including manuals and pedals.)
4. REGISTRATION. (Stops and combinations.)
5. EFFECTS AND PHRASING.
6. SUITABLE MUSIC AND SCREEN ACTION IT DEPICTS.
7. HOW A CHURCH ORGANIST CAN BECOME A PICTURE PLAYER.

Inquiries that open any new phase of this work will he dealt with in due course in succeeding articles. An immediate reply, however, will be sent by mail to the correspondent.

Brevities.

Charles Fang, the Oriental musician who composed the musical score for the Unity Sales Corporation's serial "The Yellow Menace" takes issue with a recent musical article which suggests high tensioned music for pictures with Oriental settings; this article recommends such music as Oehmler's "Cleopatra," Gruenwald's "Arabian Nights," and Luigini's "Ballet Egyptian."

It is useless, inartistic and jarring in its effects upon the audience to use patched-up music for a hig serial picture dealing with a topic of "The Yellow Menace," says Mr. Fang, who, hy the way, is a graduate of Yale University. Its effect upon the continuity of the action is ruinous, and in many other ways it tends to distract from the value of the pictures. In writing the music for "The Yellow Menace" I tried to carry out a certain definite underlying theme which carries the thread of the Oriental story throughout the pictures. Music is to a picture what the laying on of colors is to a work of art. That is to say, I believe that music holds certain color values, in which I am horne out by the Baklst Russian Symphony Orchestra, which goes so far as to use colors to express the emotions aroused hy its music, such as red for passion, purple for anger, hlue for disdain, and yellow for jealousy. I think that the music of "The Yellow Menace" will offer a distinct surprise, for while it is Mongolian in its deepest currents the surface tones and values are Caucasian in nature.

The Place of the Animated Cartoon

Where It Belongs in a Motion Picture Program Told by Harry Palmer, Gaumont Cartoonist.

THE animated cartoon is an integral part of any motion picture program, whether the exhibitor places his main dependence upon a five-reel feature or upon pictures shorter in length. It is the exhibitor's aim to provide variety. The cartoon is the farthest remove from the photoplay in method of depiction, and as such comes as a psychological shock to the spectator. His interest is not only arrested for the animated film, but it is also stimulated for what follows.

In the old days of melodrama the playwright would always put in an Irishman or a Chinaman who was known as "comic relief." He has been denied comedy in writing features for the screen, and must now provide comedy as a separate entertainment. In pictures comedy now has three divisions, each important; there is polite comedy into which Miss Mabel Normand is being graduated, slap-stick comedy, such as is given in its best form by Charles Chaplin, and animated pictures.

The first and second forms of comedy may not both appeal in the same house. There are neighborhood theaters which prefer genteel comedy, and others which have the risibilities of its patrons aroused only by the slap-stick and the seltzer bottle. It is interesting to note that both classes of houses welcome the animated pictures. This is due to the fact that spectators more readily accept the animated picture convention, recognizing that they are not asked to give the cartoon the same credence they do the comedy. Their surrender to the "make-believe" is easier.

The best place on the program for an animated reel is right after the big feature.. This may be a five-reel picture or a three-reel picture. Whichever it is, it is usually of a tense nature. Spectators wish to relax after it is over, and—as was explained in showing how the animated picture appeals to the greatest number of spectators—the greater relaxation for the greatest number is secured by showing an animated picture.

Events of national importance, the coming election, the Mexican situation, and general preparedness, afford such striking subjects for caricature that the cartoonist now makes his happiest hits depicting such events in a gently satirical vein. The ideas are grasped immediately by every one. For these reasons the animated cartoon should have a place on every program.

GEORGE PROCTOR MARRIES MISS CURRAN.

After resigning as scenario editor of the Gaumont company to join the Lasky forces in California, George DuBois Proctor surprised many of his friends in the newspaper and theatrical worlds by announcing his marriage to Miss Eileen Alanna Curran. The ceremony was solemnized in the rectory of All Saints Church, New York City, July 3, and Mr. and Mrs. Proctor left three days later for Hollywood, Cal.

Mr. Proctor, who is a Yale graduate, is well known from coast to coast in the newpaper field. More recently he has been interested in editing motion picture publications, and serving as scenario editor of several of the more important film corporations. Miss Curran, who played last season with Montgomery and Stone in "Chin-Chin," appeared previous to that with "The Pink Lady" and with Lew Fields in "All Aboard." She is an ardent Irish worker, and has been noted as a stage beauty since she appeared first in America with the Irish theater movement.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and PROF. HARDIN LUCAS

CO-OPERATIVE CONTRACT REVISED.

THE responses to my proposal for a co-operative educational film service have been many and encouraging, but the number of unequivocal acceptances has not reached the point where operation of the plan is assured for the coming year. Too many of my fellow educationists are apparently deluded by the smug notion that they will be able to secure the proposed service just as easily by waiting until next September before they actually sign contracts for this school-year series of weekly five-reel educational programs. I have faithfully tried, in previous articles, to disabuse their minds of any such thought. I must now reluctantly announce that only those who have made the initial payments (membership fee and forty per cent.) as provided in the abridged contract can reasonably claim the right to purchase the service at the rates specified on this page in the issue for May 27. Your delay, Mr. Educationist, in accepting the original proposal makes it possible at this time to revise the contract in certain particulars without injustice to any intending circuit member; more exhaustive study of the situation convinces me that it will be wise to incorporate into the plan certain principles that will work for stability and equity in the operation of each circuit.

The charges are to be increased by only a small amount just now, but there can be no guarantee that those who are least prompt in subscribing will not find the fees considerably advanced by the time their minds are fully made up. The rate of rent as now revised will average a little less than forty-four cents per reel per run—provided the co-operative care of the films proves to be such that they actually last through the school year. The schedule of charges for the use of each reel is arranged on a decreasing scale, according to the number of runs for which the film has been used, and it is estimated that each member will use fifty reels at the 75-cent rate, fifty at the 50-cent rate and one hundred at the 25-cent rate—thus making the total rent on 200 reels (forty weekly programs of five reels each) only $87.50.

As stated in the accompanying outline, preference will be shown in the formation of each circuit to groups of members subscribing for totals of about a dozen runs within each weekly circuit. In order to facilitate the grouping of local members into regional circuits without delay, a promoting member will probably be appointed in each center about which a satisfactory cluster of subscribers seems likely to develop. Lest there be a stampede of applicants for such appointments, it should be stated at once that the compensation, if any, allowed to promoting members will be merely nominal, although all approved expenses incurred will be paid out of the net proceeds of the enterprise. I shall be glad to receive suggestions as to the persons in each region most likely to prove efficient in the promotion and supervision of these weekly circuits.

It should be sufficiently plain to all now that prompt action alone can make possible the inauguration of this plan early in the coming school year. If we are to have the special positives printed in time for use in September the required number of membership fees and first payments on rental must be in hand far enough in advance to permit the necessary preliminary work to be done before the summer is over. Bethink you! YOUR delay, combined with like inaction on the part of a few others, may mean the indefinite postponement of real visual instruction in our schools. "Act, act in the living present!"

The very generous attitude of the publishers of the Moving Picture World has enabled me to insert in this department, beginning with the issue for April 15, 1916, ample information about this plan of securing educational motion picture films for school use through the active co-operation of educationists themselves. In view of the fact that nothing further can be done until ACTION on the part of prospective users of such films makes the plan operative over a fixed circuit, we have determined that the details of the proposed contract will not be republished after this.

Therefore, since no further space in this department will be available for announcement, it is up to you, Mr. Educationist, to send in your subscription without further delay. If you want this chance for your school, write me at once, stating the number of runs for which you will subscribe and giving the names and addresses of other probable members in your region.

Educational Motion Pictures for Schools.

Are you willing that your school shall become one of two hundred or more co-operating institutions to be routed in one or more interstate circuits for the economical circulation of non-inflammable films for standard machines?

Features of This Co-operative Plan.

FILMS:
Non-inflammable material. Standard gauge and perforations. For any standard machine. Standard length (approximately 1,000 ft.).

PRODUCERS:
Unrestricted; no preference. Many leading firms have pledged fresh positives from any of their negatives that are no longer in active demand in the theaters. We may stimulate further production.

SUBJECTS:
Wide variety (see programs). Correlated closely with school work. Complete lists not available until after searching editorial work; then supplied in detail to members. Specialized lists for, e. g., high schools as fast as the number of subscribing members of each type may warrant.

PROGRAMS:
Weekly, through 5 to 10 school months, 4 to 6 reels each (lock-reel plan). Balanced so as to include, e. g., three reels, literature or history; one reel, nature, science, geography; one reel, industries, civics, sports. Perhaps a wholesome comedy.

BOOKINGS:
Each series routed fully in advance. Each member to receive in advance his calendar showing all dates and subjects.

TRANSPORTATION:
One-way-only charges from next preceding point, borne by each member; obviously by enlisting your neighbors you save.

AREA COVERED:
No part of United States excluded. Any chain of subscribers for a dozen runs within a weekly circuit may be supplied in almost any region.

TIME ALLOWED:
Two-run subscribers retain films from morning to midnight only. One-run subscribers, half-day.

FINES:
Damage to material fully paid for by subscriber constructively responsible. Delays and errors in forwarding find for the good of the service.

RENT: (Payments to be made as specified below.)
Average, probably less than 50c per reel per run. Entire year's series of, say, 40 weekly five-reel programs, approximately $87.50 per run. Charges vary according to age of films: A. Under 100 runs old, 75c per run. B. One hundred to 200 runs, 50c per run. C. Over 200 runs old, 25c per run.

REELS AVAILABLE:
Number of reels in a given circuit dependent upon runs subscribed for. Approximately half as many reels as runs. If 400 runs sold 200 reels assured.

FREE AIDS: (To be provided from surplus.)
Pedagogical leaflets to be specially prepared by staff of educators. Lantern slides and stereographs grouped in close relation to topics in the films. Color prints, postcards, etc.

MEMBERSHIP:
Not restricted, except as distance from nearest members may exclude you; ergo, enlist others in your religion. Preference will be given to groups of members subscribing for total of about a dozen runs, $20.00, more or less, according to date of joining circuit. Annual fee, $20.00—more or less, according to date of joining circuit. Promptness rewarded by discount.

PAYMENTS:
Membership fee, in advance, $37.50 per run, before films can be had (for cash) from the producers; $25.00 per run, after 10 weeks of service (part of this fund used for leaflets); $25.00 per run, after 20 weeks of service (part of this fund used for other aids). Deferred payments to be represented by negotiable notes sent in with first payment.

BUDGET:
About $1,000.00 for each weekly circuit. Membership fees cover editorial expenses, etc. Per run installments applied first to cost of films and operating expenses. Net proceeds divided: (a) Reserve fund, for replacement of films or distribution as dividend, or used to stimulate production of educational scenarios and films. (b) Free aids fund. (c) Compensation to manager.

If the plan as outlined above appeals to you as likely to enable the pupils in your school system to have their rightful chance to see desirable educational motion pictures, I shall be pleased to have you write me. Send a small remittance for copies of the full form of contract, which will then be sent as soon as the total remitted by all interested will justify printing and distribution. HARDIN LUCAS.

Many Changes in That Universal Program

New Schedule of Release Dates and a Rearrangement of Brands--- Many Interesting Subjects

THE new arrangement of the Universal program goes into effect during the week of July 17. After a correspondence with all the Universal Exchanges, Morris Pivar, head of the Universal Program Department, has found that the majority of exchanges are in favor of identifying certain types of subjects with various brands, rather than identifying the stars with these brands, which has been the practice in the past.

In the program for the week of July 17, as given below, it will be noticed that the following changes have been affected:

The Tuesday Victor takes the place of the former Imp.

The Wednesday Laemmle takes the place of the former Victor.

The Thursday Victor takes the place of the former Laemmle.

The Friday Rex takes the place of the former Victor.

The Saturday Laemmle takes the place of the former Powers.

The Sunday Imp takes the place of the former Laemmle.

A five-reeler will be released under the Red Feather brand each week thereafter. On July 17 Flora Parker DeHaven, wife of Carter DeHaven, will be featured in "The Seekers," a five-reel drama, in accordance with this policy. The Nestor brand hereafter will stand for parlor comedies and on the same day that "The Seekers" is released Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran will break up the game in "Kill the Umpire," a Nestor comedy of the parlor and the diamond.

Each week hereafter there will be released a three-reeler under the Gold Seal brand and the first of these will be put on the market on July 18.

The title of this picture is "The Crystal's Warning," a three-reel mystery drama in which Hobart Henley, Sydell Dowling and Sidney Bracy are featured. The Victor brand will henceforth be synonymous for comedies or comedy dramas and on July 18 Violet Mersereau and William Garwood will appear in the first of these Victors, entitled "The Gentle Art of Burglary."

On July 19 Mary Fuller, who is still at the Universal's Fort Lee studios, will star in "The Garden of Shadows," a two-reel society drama. This will be released under the Laemmle brand, which hereafter will symbolize refined society dramas. On the same date Billie Ritchie will cavort about on the top of an eighteen-story building in "A Bold, Bad Breeze," an L-Ko slap sticker. Universal Animated Weekly No. 29 will be released on the same day.

Pat Rooney in "The Belle and the Bell Hop," a two-reel Victor comedy, heads the bill on Thursday, July 20, and is followed by King Baggot in "His Own Story," a Big U sea drama. Under the Big U brand rural, costume, sea, light western and juvenile dramas will be released in future.

In accordance with the new program arrangement by which novelties, such as cartoons, manikins, juvenile comedies and educationals will be released under the Powers brand, "The Devil Dancers of India," one of the Dorsey educational features, will be given out over the exchange counters on July 20.

Herbert Rawlinson with Agnes Vernon is featured in "Lee Blount Goes Home," a two reel Imp under-world drama, on July 21. Melodramas, detective, mystery and under-world dramas hereafter will be released by the Universal under the Imp brand. On the same day Allen Hollubar and Ruth Stonehouse will be seen in "The 'Phone Message," a Rex society drama. All refined society dramas will be released hereafter under the Rex brand. July 21 will also see the release of the Nestor comedy scream, "The Come On," in which Matt Moore and Jane Gail take the leads.

Western, mountain, Indian, railroad and animal dramas hereafter will be released under the Bison brand, and the first of these, "A Midwinter Madness," a two-reel northwestern snow picture featuring Dorothy Phillips, will be sent out on July 22. On the same day G. Raymond Nye and Roberta Wilson will appear in "A Social Slave," a Laemmle society drama. The day's program will close with William Franey and Gale Henry in the Joker comedy, "She Was Some Vampire." Hereafter slap-stick comedies will be released under the Joker and L-Ko brands.

On July 23 the feature will be "Branscombe's Pal," a two-reel society drama which will be released under the Re brand. On the same day Billie Armstrong and Louise Orth will play the part of funmakers in "Spring Fever," a time L-Ko release.

The twelfth two-reel episode of "The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring" featuring Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be released during the week of July 17.

On July 31, Carter De Haven will be seen in the five-reel Red Feather, "From Broadway to a Throne," and on July 24 Hobart Henley will star in "Temptation and the Man," another Red Feather five-reeler.

Pathe Fashion Film to Have Wide Publicity

Co-Operative Publicity to be Given these Releases by Leading Newspapers and Department Stores

THE most beautiful fashions ever seen in America shown at the same time in leading newspapers, leading department stores and leading moving picture theaters, will result from a decision just made by J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc. Fashion films will be produced by Pathe under the personal supervision of Miss Florence Rose, the country's famous fashion expert, formerly editor L'Art de la Mode and editor of the fashion pages of the New York Evening Mail and the New York Globe. The first release in one reel will be seen publicly the week beginning August 7 and new pictures will be shown every two weeks thereafter. Leading newspapers will, every day for twelve days in advance of release date, publish the fashions to be shown on the screens in each release. Later, the garments will be on sale in the stores. This means that the women of America can first see them in the newspapers, then on the screen, and later at their own department store. The title of the first reel is "A Day With a Society Girl," which shows her from the time she wakes up in the morning until she leaves the Charity Bazaar that night. Twelve of the most beautiful girls in New York will be shown in 30 of the very latest creations ranging from boudoir caps and night gowns to the latest style in evening dresses and a feature of the release is a famous scene at the Englewood Golf Club.

The picture presents in advance what the most fashionable women will wear in September, October and November. It will show thousands of dollars' worth of furs, shoes, hats etc. The following list of newspapers merely marks a beginning. Additional ones are being signed in large numbers:

Chicago Daily News, St. Paul News, Minneapolis News, Omaha News, Louisville Times, Pittsburgh Dispatch, Buffalo Enquirer, Baltimore American, Boston Traveller, Syracuse Post-Standard, Utica Observer and Cleveland News.

These are something entirely new in fashion pictures. In the past, fashion films have shown the creations of Paris and Fifth avenue solely. Never have they shown the fashions for the American women of East, West, North and South. The Florence Rose pictures will show the new fashions that the women in your city, whatever it may be, will wear. This is the first time an attempt has been made to show the women of the country, months in advance, the clothes they will be wearing during the coming season.

The first release will present some of New York's latest fall fashions. A pretty story will be woven into each reel to increase the interest of the audience. This means that by the time the fashion reels reach the smaller cities the pictures will still be of unusual interest because they will show what the women there will be wearing at that time.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

Stars, Plays, Editors and Other Important Adjuncts Being Gathered About Great Combination

THAT the merger of the Famous Players Film Company and the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company into the $12,500,000 Famous Players-Lasky Corporation was one designed to gain instant increase in productive activities by these leading producers for the Paramount program is clearly indicated by the first announcement emanating from the newly formed concern.

The engagement of Robert E. MacAlarney, city editor of the New York Tribune and president of the New York City News Association, as editor of the Lasky scenario department which followed closely on the heels of the engagement by the Famous Players of Shannon Fife, John A. Moroso, Izola Forrester and Forest Halsey to assist Harry R. Durant in that company's script department, shows that the stories in which the concern's great aggregation of stars is to be presented will receive the most careful attention of trained experts.

The record-breaking offer by the Famous Players of $100,000 for one hundred photoplay ideas is unaffected by the merger and the new corps of scenario experts will devote a large part of their attention to the technical perfecting of those scripts which are accepted under the offer. Add to this material the five new plays and the amount of material which is being piled up by the producers becomes apparent.

As a further indication of the projected activities of the combination it may be stated that a series of special Mary Pickford subjects is now being planned. John Emerson, who made his debut as a motion picture star with the Famous Players and has since acquired an enviable reputation by his remarkable success as a director of photoplays, has been engaged to direct Miss Pickford in these productions.

Del Henderson, one of the best known motion picture directors in the business, has been added to the Famous Players staff, and is now at work on "Rolling Stones" in which Owen Moore is being starred.

The first stars to be engaged since the merger are Maurice and Florence Walton, the internationally celebrated dancers, who are soon to appear in a Famous Players production.

The moving of the Lasky scenario department, under Hector Turnbull, from the west coast to New York augurs closer co-operation between the two companies at once, and a desire to concentrate the scenario work.

Still another indication of the get-together spirit, the office of Adolph Zukor, president of the new concern, will be moved from the Famous Players Studio in Fifty-sixth street to 485 Fifth avenue, the address of the Lasky Company. The publicity departments of the constituent companies will also make their headquarters at the Fifth avenue address.

One of the great advantages of the merger is the fact that the placing of the executive responsibility upon the shoulders of Adolph Zukor, Samuel Goldfish and Arthur S. Friend, respectively president, chairman of board of directors and treasurer, will give Jesse L. Lasky opportunity to devote a far greater part of his time to the actual producing of pictures, and of coming in even more frequent personal contact with the stars and directors.

Picture Trip Around the World by Auto

C. Post Mason Will Exhibit and Arrange State Rights for "Greater New York By Day and By Night"

LEAVING New York the early part of August C. Post Mason, traveling by automobile, will commence a trip that has for its intinerary the principal countries of the world. He will stop at the principal cities en route from New York to Frisco, exhibiting his production, "Greater New York by Day and by Night," and disposing of territory. From Frisco car and driver will take steamer for Honolulu, where a ten days' stay will be made, then on to New Zealand and Australia. From Australia, the Far East, including Japan, China and India, from thence to Egypt, Italy, Spain, France and England. In addition to exhibiting his production of "Greater New York by Day and by Night," Mr. Mason will take a series of pictures throughout the entire route which he intends to exhibit on his return to New York.

Mr. Mason has spent the last fifteen years in traveling on the continent and through the Far East and has already accomplished some very big motor tours. He holds the thousand-mile-non-stop-run record of Australia, and his last trip, some six months ago, was a tour of 2,400 miles through Queensland with a company of six performers, under the patronage of the Belgium Consul at Queensland and in aid of the Belgium Fund.

Mr. Mason's production "Greater New York by Day and by Night" has been made with the official sanction of the municipal authorities. The Commissioner of Parks, the Commissioner of Bridges, the Immigration Department and General Manager Headley of the Interborough, all granted special permission for this production. The statistics given in the titles for the production are all authentic and were furnished by the various commissioners to be used in this production. Every scene of note in New York including its world-famous buildings, bridges, transportation systems, drives, boulevards and streets are all shown.

The State rights and the bookings for local exhibitions will be done from Mr. Mason's New York office, Candler Building, 220 West 42d street.

Mr. Mason is a well-known identity in the theatrical world internationally, having been associated with several international tours and events of note, having been general manager of the great six-day bicycle races at Sydney and Melbourne, where a world's record for attendance was created, there being over 65,000 people at the finish of the Sydney six-day race.

C. Post Mason and His Touring Car—Mrs. Mason, Who Will Accompany Her Husband, Is in the Car.

It will be Mr. Mason's endeavor to make this picture of New York as educational as possible and he will lecture on same. A trade showing of this subject will be given at the Sun Photoplay projection rooms, 218 West 42d street, at 3 o'clock Thursday, July 13.

Pathe Program Ready up to End of July

First Two Chapters of "Grip of Evil" and Gold Rooster Play Featuring Lina Cavalieri and Lucien Muratore

THE Pathe Program, with at least four reels of serial stuff on its pages each week, begins the week of July 17 with "The Lost Paradise," the next to the last chapter of the "Who's Guilty?" series. Anna Nilsson has been featured with Tom Moore throughout this entire series, and the combination has thus far been a decided success.

Following "The Lost Paradise" comes "Fate," the first chapter of "The Grip of Evil," continued photodramas which have been described as "a master plot in fourteen chapters of two reels each." Miss Jackie Saunders, the Balboa player, aptly dubbed "The Maude Adams of the Screen," is featured with Roland Bottomley throughout these plays. "Fate" tells of an English nobleman banished from home because of his attachment to a girl "not of his class." He marries the girl, comes to America with her, and a child, John Burton, subsequently the hero of each chapter of these photodramas, is born to them.

"Unfriendly Fruit" is the title of a Heinie and Louie comedy released on the Pathe Program in the week of July 17. It features James Aubrey as "Heinie." The story is of slapstick variety and starts with that luckless pair, Heinie and Louie, rescuing a fair damsel, who tells them her life history.

Next is a cartoon comedy, "Home, Sweet Home," by Rube Goldberg—the "guy"—so the advertisements say—who made laughing a national daily habit.

On the same reel with the Goldberg cartoon is a short educational, "The Caterpillar," showing this insect the insatiable hunger of which is responsible for the destruction of so many gardens.

The piece de resistance of the Pathe Program of the week of July 17 is "The Shadow of Her Past," the Gold Rooster Play, featuring Lina Cavalieri, sometimes called "the most beautiful woman in the world," and her husband, Lucien Muratore. The feature is in five parts. It is a romantic tale of an American girl studying music in Italy, who loves and is loved by a promising young painter. The story breathes an old-world atmosphere, and was given every realistic advantage in the matter of set, natural scenery, extras, etc., when Mr. Muratore, under whose supervision the film was made, took his company to Italy some months ago.

The week of July 17 ends with No. 58 and No. 59 of the Pathe News, issued respectively on Wednesday, July 19, and Saturday, July 27.

July 24 ushers in the last chapter of the "Who's Guilty?" series, "Weighed in the Balance." It is fitting that "Weighed in the Balance" should be the final chapter of this series, as it is the strongest drama of the lot, which is saying a great deal.

The second chapter of the new "Grip of Evil" continued photodramas, "The Underworld" follows the last installment of "The Grip of Evil." These dramas depict the adventures of John Burton in search of an answer to his question, "Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?"

The Lonesome Luke Comedy for the week of July 24 is "Luke, Crystal Gazer," and shows the flexible Harold Lloyd, alias "Lonesome Luke" as a "spiritualist." Following "Luke, Crystal Gazer" comes a split reel industrial and scenic film. The industrial is "Paper Parasols," which shows the making of paper parasols in Java from the use of the crude materials to the assembling of the finished product. The scenic is called "Ornate Pagodas." The film is a pleasant one and a welcome rest between heavy dramas.

The week of July 24 is rounded out with two issues of the Pathe News, No. 60 and No. 61, released on Wednesday, July 26, and Saturday, July 29, respectively.

Kalem's Funmakers Busy

Studios on Coast and Florida Going at Top Speed to Meet Demand for Comedies.

WITH three comedy releases a week on the General Film Company program, the Kalem Company now has quite an army of fun-makers at work at the two Coast studios and in Jacksonville. Ham and Bud and Ethel Teare head the forces on the Pacific Coast, producing the Tuesday and Wednesday releases.

"The Great Detective," and "A Watery Wooing" are the two subjects recently completed by these companies. In the former Ham makes a vigilant Sherlock and Bud the Watson who takes care of his 999 disguises. To secure many novel effects trick work was called into strong play in this one reeler. Ellen Godsay and A. Edmondson are others in the cast of "The Great Detective," which is scheduled for release on July 18.

In "A Watery Wooing" Ethel Teare makes a pretty picture in a comedy of the seashore in which she is supported by Myrta Sterling, Gus Leonard and Victor Rottman. "A Watery Wooing" will be issued on July 19.

"A Double Elopement," coming on Friday, June 21, is the release just completed by the Sis Hopkins company. Rose Melville's famous creation gets into a ridiculous mixup following her taking up of the study of "fysical kulture."

With the final touches put to "The Girl and the Tenor," the first Ivy Close release, Director Robert Ellis has started another single reeler in which Ivy is seen leading a double life, as a popular cartoonist and a writer of "high-brow" literature. Naturally affairs get tangled and she finds herself in a pretty mess, keeping her separate identities in their proper places.

RIALTO USHERS READY FOR SCRAP.

The Rialto drill corps, consisting of sixteen of the ushers of that theater, who have been trained in military evolutions until they have achieved a degree of perfection that has caused them to invite competition with all comers, have notified Managing Director S. L. Rothapfel of their intention to enlist as a unit in event of actual hostilities in Mexico. They were assured their salaries would be paid by the corporation during their absence.

Selig Pinned Faith to Short Subjects

Now Reports Splendid Results in an Increased Business on General Film Program.

OVER a year ago, William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, publicly asserted that the public demanded more and better picture plays of three reels and under. At that time the more or less padded feature play held full sway and many authorities in motion pictureland smiled when they read Mr. Selig's statement.

Then Mr. Selig announced another policy: "I shall assign my best directors, my strongest stories and my highest priced stars to the production of shorter length films to be released in regular service of the General Film Company." This statement was also received with merry ha, ha's by many who thought some press agent or other was getting busy.

And how things are changed today? The Selig business through regular General Film service trebled within six months; exhibitors of motion pictures wrote commendatory letters; the public demanded Selig pictures in one, two and three reels.

Then some of the "wise ones" awakened; statements were prepared six months later reiterating just what Mr. Selig had stated over a year ago. Other concerns promised more money and more attention to their shorter length comedies and dramas.

Just the same, credit is due Mr. Selig for his far-sightedness. He stood alone a year or more ago in his determination to increase the quality of two and three reelers, to pay as much attention to the production of shorter films as to productions of five reels or more.

That the public has appreciated Mr. Selig's sound policy is attested by the unusual popularity of Selig picture plays, which have indeed reached an enviable standard. And what is more, Mr. Selig personally views and pronounces judgment on every film play now released by his company.

A NEW ACTOR: PAUL PANZER, JR.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Panzer, 260 Morningside avenue, Cliffside Park, N. J., on June 26, there arrived Paul Panzer, Jr. Felicitations.

Will Keep up the Pace at Essanay Studios

No Let-up During the Summer—New Subjects for General Film and V-L-S-E

THERE will be no lessening of efforts at the Essanay studios during the summer months. On the contrary, production will be continued with the consistent average that has been maintained in months past.

If any doubt rested in the minds of Essanay directors and actors of whether or not an easy summer was in prospect, it was dispelled when President George K. Spoor placed another feature on the floor. This, with the two other features now in the course of constructions, and together with the General Film Service program, will employ without interruption every principal in the large stock company.

The latest five-act play for V-L-S-E distribution is "Lost Twenty-four Hours," the famous stage comedy played with wonderful success for years by Robert Hilliard. It offers ideal film material, being a fast moving piece founded on humorous complications. Richard C. Travers, Marguerite Clayton, Warda Howard and a capable supporting cast will appear in it. It is being directed by L. C. Windom. Interiors require numerous large sets, and this part of the picture will be taken first.

Essanay's largest studio is now occupied with sets for Henry B. Walthall's latest feature, "The Sting of Victory." All exteriors have been completed and the new vehicle for this famous star will be ready for release early in August. The play was selected by Mr. Walthall himself and as it is a theme which he likes, President Spoor believes that he can predict that it will be a superior production.

Edna Mayo and company are still at the Dells of the Wisconsin River, working out of Kilbourn, Wis., for scenes in "The Return of Eve," a five-act feature. Most of the picture will be exterior scenes, but the few interiors must be elaborate. A whole studio has been set aside for the construction of these sets and when the company returns there will be no delay in starting interiors. Miss Mayo's supporting cast at the Dells includes Eugene O'Brien, Edward Mawson, Emily Fitzroy and Edward Arnold.

While the short-reel program at Essanay is well ahead of release there is no slowing up on this angle either. Numerous two and three-reel offerings presenting Essanay's best known actors and actresess are now in the process of production or preparation.

At Leading New York Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of July 9 at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses

"The Selfish Woman" at The Strand.

FOR the week beginning July 9, the Strand theater offered Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgley in "The Selfish Woman." This screen play is another of the Hector Turnbull stories, written especially for the two stars and produced by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co. The story of the play utilizes the two fields which are favored by the moving picture; scenes which use Eastern society for a background and contrasting scenes in the rugged life of a Western railroad camp.

As an added feature the Strand offered the latest Charlie Chaplin release, "The Vagabond." This is the second Chaplin comedy to be shown at the Strand, the success of the first picture being such that arrangements have been made for the future Chaplin pictures.

The musical program consisted of an overture by the Strand Concert Orchestra, incidental music and numbers by three soloists.

"The Half-breed" at the Rialto.

Two comedians headed the program at the Rialto—Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. The latter did not make his advent until Monday, when he was seen in "The Vagabond." Meantime Mr. Fairbanks monoplized the bill in a dramatic photoplay, "The Half-breed," with the support of a Keystone comedy, "Bathtub Perils," "The Half-breed" shows Fairbanks in a role new to him. While there is a comedy element running through the story; it is really of a highly dramatic character, a modern love romance of the Sierras.

A visit to "Delaware Water Gap," and the latest events gathered for the topical weekly were also shown. Vocally, the quartet from "Rigoletto" the piece de resistance, with four well-known singers: Mme. Regina Vicarino, of the Boston Opera Company; Alfred de Manby, of Covent Garden, London; John Campbell, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Harriette McConnell, a contralto, new to New York.

"The Smugglers" at the Broadway.

Donald Brien, in a comedy produced by the Famous Players Film Co., "The Smugglers," was the main attraction at the Broadway theater. As the title of this photoplay comedy indicates, "The Smugglers" is replete with episodes, both amusing and stirring. Underneath the fabric of romance and drama is a strong foundation of laughter, as the director of the production, the well-known Sidney Olcott, has never permitted the star or his support to take themselves too seriously.

More fun was added to the program on Monday when Charlie Chaplin was presented in his latest two-part comedy, "The Vagabond." The usual weekly news, scenics and cartoons completed the bill.

Eighty-first Street Theater Program.

At the Eighty-first Street theater four Triangle pictures were shown. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Charles Ray in "The Deserter," and a Keystone comedy, and on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday Douglas Fairbanks in "Flirting With Fate," and another Sennett Keystone comedy constituted the picture programs.

INCE BACK IN NEW YORK.

Thomas H. Ince returned to New York last Wednesday, July 5, after witnessing the premiere of his massive film spectacle, "Civilization," in Chicago, where the Grand Opera House has been sold out twice daily since its premiere, June 30.

The newspaper reviews of "Civilization" were even more eulogistic in the Windy City than in New York—in fact, the Chicago press is unanimous in acclaiming Mr. Ince's masterpiece as the cameraman's greatest achievement to date.

Although most of the Western states were sold to state rights purchasers even before the Chicago opening of the successful cinema spectacle, the demand has now shifted to the South.

Mr. Ince on his arrival in New York went at once to the Ince laboratories to prepare a dozen more prints of "Civilization" which now has its fourth duplicate showing at the Brighton Beach Music Hall. The fifth print has just been shipped to San Francisco, and still another will be sent to Atlantic City this week where "Civilization" will inaugurate an all-summer season early in July.

"FOOLISH QUESTION" ASKED BY GOLDBERG?

Rube Goldberg, the famous artist, whose animated cartoon in Pathe motion pictures have achieved great popularity, has been making his funny characters ask "foolish questions" for years. Now he has asked a question for himself and it was favorably answered by Miss Irma Seeman, a New York society girl. So now they're engaged.

No date has yet been set for the wedding.

"GIRL FROM FRISCO" ALL-CALIFORNIAN.

If the birthplace of those responsible for a production is any guarantee of realism, Kalem officials feel that there is little doubt about that company's new Western series, "The Girl from Frisco." Marin Sais, star of the new fifteen-week continued photoplay, was born in Marin county, California. True Boardman is a native of San Francisco, as is James W. Horne, director of the series. The author, Robert Welles Ritchie, was born in Mississippi, but his parents brought him to California at the age of three, so he proclaims himself as worthy a "native son" as any.

Mutual Presents Well Balanced Program for July 17

Florence Turner in "Doorsteps" Heads a List of Excellent Subjects Covering a Wide Range

A LONG, well-balanced list of offerings, varying in the choice of subject, players and manner of presentation, constitutes the releases of the Mutual Film Corporation for the week of July 17. The most important feature is the second of the Florence Turner Series of Mutual Star Productions, "Doorsteps," which promises to make even a greater appeal to followers of the screen than Miss Turner's recent success, "Far from the Madding Crowd."

The star is supported by her own company of experienced actors, consisting of the favorites, Henry Edwards, Malcolm Cherry and Campbell Gullan. Director Larry Trimble has cast each in the role best adapted to his capabilities, personal appearance and powers of expression. The story of "Doorsteps" is unique, being hung upon the interesting career of a boarding-house "drudge," an uneducated servant of the English slums, who through her sheer perseverance, inborn dramatic talent and the desire to please the man she loves, within a few short years becomes one of the most noted emotional and character actresses of the day.

In the Gaumont-Mutual three-part drama, "Gates of Divorce," Gertrude McCoy, the national favorite, is starred. In addition to the consistency of plot, extravagant and appropriate settings, and the high quality of photography, Director Edwin Middleton has chosen an all-star cast to interpret the six prominent roles. Headed by Gertrude McCoy and Alexander Gaden, this constellation consists of Iva Shepard, famous villainess; John Reinhard, the likable "heavy"; Lucille Taft, the charming ingenue, and Mathilde Baring, of character role fame. Author Robert Burns fashioned the part of a self-centred society woman around Miss McCoy, thus affording this talented actress an opportunity for the display of her versatile and emotional powers of expression. Mr. Gaden is exceptionally convincing, and in the third act his portrayal of the disillusioned lover is remarkably well handled, made tense through all repression of melodramatic tendencies. This society drama treats a delicate theme in a tactful manner, subtly introducing the moral.

There are three features of shorter length, diverse in subject and starring popular players. From the American studios comes a two-act human interest drama, "The Dancer," in which Vivian Rich and King Clark have the principal roles. The story is based on the interference of a mother between a man and his wife, picturing the result in a vivid, true-to-life manner.

Margaret Gibson and William Clifford are starred in a two-part Horsley production, "The Ostrich Tip," which aside from the strong love interest and dramatic climaxes, has an educational value. Life on an ostrich farm is realistically presented in detail, as a unique background for the romance.

Mustang offers a comedy-drama in two acts, "The Dyspeptic," cleverly written, acted and produced. Nita Davis and Ashton Dearholt carry this story to an unusually thrilling climax.

Mutual's array of fun makers present one of the most laugh provoking bills this year. George Ovey is starred in a cub one-reeler called "Jerry's Stratagem."

The Beauty releases feature Orral Humphrey in "A Studio Satire" and John Sheehan and Carol Halloway in "The Land of Tortilla," a parody on the Mexican situation, which is sure to be appreciated by every true American.

Vogue comedians, headed by Ben Turpin, supply twenty minutes continuous laughter in their latest offering, "For Ten Thousand Bucks."

This week's excellent program is rounded out by the Mutual Weekly, which takes us through Mexico, and to every spot in the world where there is something worth while happening. Kartoon Komics that are clean and amusing by Harry Palmer, on the same reel with the scenic series, "See America First" and "Reel Life," the Mutual Magazine in Film, conclude the list of offerings.

"Liberty" New Preparedness Serial

Universal Will Make Feature Subject Based on Mexican Trouble.

THE Universal announces the title for the first four episodes of its new patriotic preparedness serial, "Liberty," the first installment of which will be released during the week of August 14. The four episodes will be entitled, respectively, "Across the Border," "Fangs of the Wolf," "Riding With Death" and "American Blood."

"Liberty" deals with adventure below the Mexican border at the present day. Outlaw Mexican bandits, border raids and their repulse by American troops, the adventures of an American girl on a great hacienda down below the Rio Grande, the trapping of American troops and their splendid fight to escape the ambush prepared for them by traitorous natives, pitched battles in the mesquite country and in the mountains of Sonora with greasers carefully intrenched and well supplied with American-made machine guns, the abduction of an American girl by natives who hold her for ransom, the invasion of Mexico by the American government after repeated raids of American towns along the border and the final establishing of a protectorate over Mexico—all combine to make "Liberty" a super-serial with all the attraction of heart-interest drama and the thrills of a real-life photographic reproduction of actual events along our Southwestern border.

The serial, which features Marie Walcamp as "Liberty Wharton," was written and produced by Jacques Jaccard. Miss Walcamp is supported by the following all-star cast: Jack Holt, Neal Hart, Bertram Grassby, L. M. Wells, Maud Emery and Roy Stewart. A troop of championship Rough Riders drilled the 2,700 horsemen and infantrymen who play such an important part in the picture. The foregoing is a general synopsis of the serial, which by no means details all the stirring action and collisions between great bodies of troops, infantry actions against Mexicans sheltered behind barbed wire entanglements and other stirring episodes which will be worked into the play by Mr. Jaccard as the story progresses.

Paramount Program

Feature Distributing Company Announces an Interesting Quota of Subjects.

FIVE-REEL Paramount pictures scheduled for release during the week of July 24, will include the Morosco production, "An International Marriage," in which Mlle. Rita Jolivet will appear, and "Little Lady Eileen" from the Famous Players studios, featuring Marguerite Clark in the role of a young Irish girl. The Morosco picture will be a Monday release. "Little Lady Eileen" will be shown on Thursday.

Paramount short reel subjects for the same week will include an edition of the "magazine on the screen"—Paramount Pictographs; "The Real Bohemia," in the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures, and the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoon, "Bobby Bumps and the Detective Story."

"How the Chemist Makes War," an out-of-the-trenches exhibition of the efficiency of guncotton, gas masks and incendiary bombs, will head this release of the Pictographs. Electrifying a railroad for 410 miles by the use of water power—one of the world's greatest engineering feats—is the subject of another film feature, "Climbing the Rockies on a Waterfall." Also included in the screen periodical will be "Constructive Imagination" in the "Better Babies" series, "What a Tennis Ball Will Do" and "How Germs Destroy Each Other."

Dime library detective tales proved so alluring to the hero of Earl Hurd's drawing, "Bobby Bumps and the Detective Story," that he spent all of his spare moments reading them. His watchful father, discovering his son deep in the pages of one of the yellow volumes, reprimands him and takes the story away. Later Bobby discovers his parent absorbed in the censored volume and recovers his book with the aid of his pointer pup. An exciting chase which follows brings the book into mother's possession and leads to the climax of the plot.

"The Real Bohemia" continues Burton Holmes' European tour for motion picture audiences.

Horsley to Increase Output

More Five-Reel Dramatic Subjects—Cub Comedies to Be Made in Two-Reel Lengths.

AN INCREASE in production at his West Coast studios has been ordered by David Horsley, beginning with the week of July 10, the output of film will be greater than ever before. Mr. Horsley wired instructions from New York City, he being in the east watching the progress of his working forces at the Bayonne, N. J., and Long Island studios, and within the next month many new faces will be seen at the Los Angeles plant in numerous capacities.

Under the new system, Crane Wilbur, the author-star, will be seen once more in subjects of the five-reel length, powerful dramas of the sociological and psychological nature under the continued direction of Robert B. Broadwell and Miss Mae Gaston will be seen in the roles of leading feminine support.

Margaret Gibson and William Clifford will also avert to the five-reel dramas, supported by a company of capable players who have been identified with these co-stars for many months. Director Charles Swickard will supervise the productions.

A change of great importance involves the Cub Comedy company. The popular star, George Ovey, who more than a year ago created his famous character of Jerry, and who has delighted with his one-reel laugh producers of clean and wholesome comedy, will in the future be seen in the same variety of work but in two reels.

The announcement of the change in the length of the Cub pictures comes closely following the report from England that the Cub brand of pictures have become so popular that exchanges are unable to handle the demands made upon them by the exhibitors. Not alone is this fact true of England, but all throughout the United States the comedies with George Ovey have gained a tremendous following.

When the one-reel subjects of the Cub brand are discontinued, this company will have completed fifty-seven stories. In each George Ovey has been starred, at all times in the character of Jerry. The great success of this company is due to the untiring efforts of Director Milton H. Fahrney, who besides producing every one of the comedies was also the author of the same.

The personnel of Director Fahrney's company now numbers twenty permanent players and with the introduction of the added reel the company will be bolstered up by many more funmakers of both sexes.

No announcement has been made regarding the first of the new length pictures, which will be produced by Directors Fahrney and Swickard, but Director Broadwell and Crane Wilbur are preparing for their first five-reeler and it will be a military drama, the locale of which will take the company to the International Border for at least a week.

IVY CLOSE LIKES AMERICAN CONDITIONS.

American producing methods and American natural conditions for picture making have an enthusiastic booster in the person of Ivy Close, the famous beauty now in Jacksonville as a Kalem star. "I admire your energy and speed while working on a picture," she declares, "and also your insistent demands for variety. Why, your directors seem always to be seeking a new angle on a scene, a new touch. There is no following the line of least resistance.

"But most of all," she continues, "I like your sun. Of course, it is the same sun we have in England, but how much harder it works for you here. English producers and players would think it Paradise to be able to enjoy day after day and week after week of continuous sunshine.

"Though I have been on the speaking stage most of my life, I had some experiences with a few English pictures. Over there you go out for a morning of work with the sun just barely peeping through. A scene or two is taken and then a cloud passes across the sky and shuts off the stingy sunlight you had. Then you stand around and talk, and grumble, or, being English, you have tea. Sometimes it is hours before a ray of clear sunlight is granted again and by that time the nerves of a player are on edge—he is discouraged and exasperated, and all the spirit and enthusiasm with which he started the day are gone.

"I imagine that this natural obstacle has had much to do with the slow development of the motion picture in England. Here, on the other hand, you have all the natural advantages possible, in addition to the restless energy and imagination necessary to do big things in the screen art."

VITAGRAPHS ON GENERAL FILM PROGRAM OF JULY 17TH.

S. Rankin Drew is seen in a single part comedy offered by Vitagraph on July 17th. The title of the picture is "The Musical Barber." "The Fur Coat," another one-part comedy, is released on July 21st.

"The Musical Barber" tells of the trouble caused by De Goat, a beard trimmer whose chief delight is playing musical instruments between and during shaves.

Scene from "The Fur Coat" (Vitagraph).

William Dangman in "The Fur Coat" is overjoyed at receiving word of a legacy left him by his uncle. After leaving his position in anticipation of soon becoming a millionaire he receives the legacy, a fur coat, and on the strength of its appearance, dates up the village belle. After spending all his money on her he is forced to "hock" the coat. He later finds that his uncle's fortune was sewed up in the lining of the fur "benny," and after a lively chase he manages to get it back. Others in the cast of "The Fur Coat" are George O'Donnell, Shirley Moore and Ralph Whiting. Frank Currier produced the picture from Edward J. Montague's script.

GAUMONT SINGLE REELS.

Nothing Larger on the Program for Week of July 23.

THE week of July 23 will bring from the Gaumont studios only three single-reel releases. The first to reach the screen, that of July 23, is "Reel Life," the Mutual Magazine in film. This issue, No. 12, contains three interesting and well-diversified subjects. There are edifying pictures showing how a large correspondence school transacts its business. This is called "A Day in the World's School House." Another series of entertaining views is entitled "Preparing Anthracite Coal." These pictures were taken at Lansford, Pa., and show that there is a great deal of work to be done after the coal comes to the surface before it is ready for the consumer. The third division of the film gives remarkable pictures of "The Breeding of Sea Gulls." A Gaumont photographer made a special trip to an island off the Massachusetts coast to obtain these pictures, and was fortunate enough to get views of the "industry" from the egg to the adult gull.

July 26 the Gaumont company will release "See America First." Another instalment of United States Department of Interior motion pictures of national parks will be the subject—Crater Lake, Ore. This national park is noted for pictorial beauty far in excess of its geographical extent. The sides of the Crater are 2,000 feet high, and with the reflection in the deep blue water it seems as if one were looking from the rim down 4,000 feet of cliff to the water. On the same reel Harry Palmer has another instalment of his Gaumont Kartoon Komics.

The third single-reel of the week is The Mutual Weekly, which is made at the Gaumont Laboratories.

NEW AMERICAN SCENARIO EDITOR.

George Wight, publicity man of the American Film Company, Santa Barbara, has been placed in charge of the company's scenario department, succeeding William Pigott. Mr. Wight will continue to direct the publicity work of the studio. He is a New York and Chicago newspaperman and came to the Flying A studios from the San Francisco Examiner in February. The American is in the market for the best in the way of good stories by trained writers or well-known authors.

Four Big Stage Successes for Famous Players

"Under Fire," "Under Cover," "Rolling Stones" and "Nearly Married" to be Adapted for Screen

FOUR important acquisitions to the screen were made recently by the Famous Players Film Company in obtaining the photoplay rights to this number of the greatest stage successes of the past few seasons—"Under Fire" and "Under Cover," by Roi Cooper Megrue, and "Rolling Stones" and "Nearly Married," by Edgar Selwyn, with whom the respective negotiations were conducted. There will probably be other important announcements forthcoming concerning other plays by these well-known authors.

"Under Fire" was one of the most spectacular successes of the season and enjoyed a record-breaking run at the Cort theater, where its thrilling war scenes and the international spying in the very trenches themselves held the theater public breathless for many weeks. Inasmuch as "Under Fire" is essentially a play of action from the beginning to the end of the story, it is an ideal photoplay subject. It will be remembered that the action of the last act takes place in a British trench. Though the scene was cleverly handled on the stage, the unlimited possibilities of the motion picture camera will enable the Famous Players to greatly enhance the effectiveness of the scene.

"Under Cover," which scored a great success at the Cort theater, is already under production with Hazel Dawn and Owen Moore in the stellar roles. This is another play which won its success because of the swiftness of its action and because of the tremendous suspense in which it holds one until the very last minute. It is a story of the secret service, of the United States customs officials, of a girl who is forced to spy upon the man she loves in order to save the reputation of her sister, who is a thief. It is international in its scope, the action taking place in Paris, on shipboard, in the Custom House, at the pier, and at a magnificent Long Island estate.

In "Rolling Stones," which held the boards at the Harris theater for a long run, Edgar Selwyn evolved a marvelous mixture of near-tragedy, comedy, melodrama, farce and all the known ingredients of a play, but so deftly were they woven together that the play was pronounced by the dramatic critics and by the public at large to be a masterpiece. It was called the breeziest crook play that has been presented in New York for many seasons.

"Nearly Married" filled the Gaiety theater to overflowing during the season of 1913. It is a story of New York society life and of a near-divorce in which there is a remarkable intermingling of laughter and dramatic suspense. The play is particularly well suited for adaptation to the screen because a great deal of the action takes place out of doors. Opening in a Fifth avenue hotel, it moves to the Cherry Tree Inn at Oscawanna, where the burning of a garage works wonders in restoring the marital happiness of a couple that had hired a "professional co-respondent" in order to rid themselves of their respective burdens.

The acquirement of these celebrated Broadway successes for photoplay purposes indicates the intention of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, announced to the trade last week, of extending the activities of these producers in every direction.

Robert Welles Ritchie

ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE, author of Kalem's new series, "The Girl from Frisco," has had a career packed with exciting experiences that may well be said to rival in thrill any of his stirring stories that appear in such publications as The Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Short Story Magazine and Harper's.

It is probably because there is so much of "real life" in his stories of the West that their success forced Mr. Ritchie a few years ago to give up newspaper work and devote his entire attention to the writing of short stories.

Robert Welles Ritchie.

A graduate of the University of California, Mr. Ritchie was barely beyond his "cub" reporter days on the San Francisco Call when he covered one of California's best remembered "stories" — the Folsom prison break. On this occasion a half score of desperate convicts escaped to the mountains and for weeks fought off the armed militia of the State, the leader of the band, "Red Shirt Gordon," never being captured. Mr. Ritchie, with a handful of San Francisco newspaper men, chartered an engine and braved death to go into the mountains after the story. It is interesting to note that this famous event has been made the basis of one of the episodes of "The Girl from Frisco."

Though his career has taken him to many distant corners of the world, it is the West that Mr. Ritchie knows best. During his many years as a Pacific Coast newspaper man he lived and moved in the picturesque locations and thrilling atmosphere that will be presented in "The Girl from Frisco."

Work of production on the new Kalem series which will feature Marin Sais and True Boardman, is already well under way at the Glendale studios, which were recently greatly enlarged in preparation for the new series. After mapping out his schedule of locations for the early episodes Director Horne claims that his company will hold the mileage record for traveling before the series is done. Each episode written so far calls for a long trip to get some particular location called for in the story, and California's little-known sights will be strongly presented in the course of the romance.

V-L-S-E. PLANS FURTHER EXPANSION IN CANADA.

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, has just returned from Canada, where he went for the purpose of enlarging the facilities of that organization to take care of its increased business in the Dominion. But six months old, the Toronto Branch has proved a revelation to film men in general, on account of the tremendous strides it has taken. When he was sent to Canada to open the Toronto Branch W. C. Gookin, present manager, said that if Canada was the graveyard of film, as is generally said, he intended to have a magnificent monument. The necessity for substantial expansion at this early date shows that such a monument is to be one only of progress.

The sub-office at Montreal, which heretofore had done business through the Toronto branch, has also met with such unprecedented success that it will henceforth be run as a regular branch exchange.

The Montreal office has been almost doubled in size to take care of the ever-increasing business. An entire ground floor of one of the largest buildings in the city has been rented. This is near the Imperial theater, which is the V-L-S-E first run house in that city.

The matter of the establishment of several additional branch offices in the Canadian Dominion was also discussed by Mr. Irwin and Managers Gookin and Watrous of Toronto and Montreal respectively.

ELEANOR WOODRUFF WITH FROHMAN.

After several weeks spent in long tramps through the mountains of New England, Eleanor Woodruff is once more under the Cooper-Hewitts and will shortly be seen on the screen again. Although Miss Woodruff's vacation has taken her away from active work she has not been absent from the picture houses, for many pictures in which she played leading parts have been shown, notably "Big Jim Garrity," on the Pathe Program, and "The Island of Surprise" and "Britton of the Seventh," on the Vitagraph program. The vehicle chosen for her by the Frohman Amusement Co. is "Jaffery," dramatized from the novel by William J. Locke, in which she plays opposite C. Aubrey Smith, the well known English actor.

"Expense Be Blowed," Says Brady

The Story is What World Film Man Wants And Will Pay Any Price

THAT a misconstruction was placed upon the announcement that William A. Brady was offering $5,000 as prizes in World Film's scenario contest, now running in the Saturday Evening Post, was demonstrated by the announcement of another concern, which stated that they were not in favor of contests as it did not offer compensation to the losers.

The wrong impression was gained through the belief that all scenarios received would be considered in the contest.

This is not the case. The fact is borne out by the knowledge that within the past two months, or rather since the contest was announced, Mr. Brady has purchased from Thomas W. Lawson his famous fiction document, "Friday, the 13th," and for which, more than the usual amount was paid. In fact the price was unusual and it required considerable effort to prevail upon Mr. Lawson to allow the filmization of his work.

"There is no price too large commensurate with the importance of the story, prestige of the author and possibilities of the tale, from five hundred dollars up," to quote Mr. Brady, "for the World Film to pay for material."

There is no limit. Stories are the essential necessity at present, and will continue to be for many months to come, and appreciating this requisite, the allowance for scripts and ideas, as outlined by Mr. Brady and his co-directors, the amount of money paid to authors for material is not measured by any set amount, but will be governed only by the story.

Within the very recent past a number of highly important and internationally-known playwrights and novelists have been in conference with Mr. Brady and a number of highly important stories either secured or obtained under optional advisement among which was "Husband and Wife," "The Heart of a Hero," "The Almighty Dollar," "Her Majesty" and others.

Scenarios received for immediate consideration are not considered as entered in the contest but are given prompt readings by Mr. Brady and his assistants. Nothing in the way of synopses or scenarios are placed among the stories entered in the contest unless the writer so specifies.

Insofar as the losers are concerned, in any contest, there are just as great a number of disappointed writers sending in their stories and getting the usual "sorry but we find this unavailable" as there will be at the finish of the contest. And then again, from the number of highly important personages who are sending in for our charts and suggestion literature, a new vein of literature may be uncovered. We are getting seriously constructed stories from persons high in politics, education, journalism, science and the trades and arts, and if we succeed in developing one big writer and a few minor ones, with new thoughts, new ideas and big themes, we will have worked not in vain.

J. Albert Hall Has Great Record

J. ALBERT HALL, who appears as Captain Kemp in the "Yellow Menace" serial of the Unity Sales Corporation, and regarded as one of the foremost leading men of the screen, has had a wonderful career as a stage and screen star.

Born in Calcutta, British India, of Swedish parents, he came to Sweden at an early age. Graduated from the University of Malmo, Sweden. He came to America at the age of eighteen and studied dentistry at the Pittsburgh Dental College, but being possessed of an excellent bass voice soon abandoned the molar trade for the stage. He appeared with Camille D'Arville Opera Co., Brian Boru, Castle Symphony Opera Company, with Henry Savage, also with the "Walking Delegate" and others. After six years in opera Mr. Hall entered the Percy Williams Stock Co., in Brooklyn, Vallamount Stock, Paxtany Stock, Lakemont Stock and others. He has also supported such famous stars as Edward Harrigan in "Old Lavender," Henrietta Crossman in "Christian Pilgrims." Robert Edison in "Classmates," and was leading man with Lauretta Taylor, also leading man of the Third Avenue theater, Seattle, Central theater, San Francisco, Grand theater, Los Angeles.

J. Albert Hall.

Mr. Hall's moving picture experience dates back three years, having started with Biograph, later with Edison and Pathe. He has supported Mary Pickford with Famous Players over a year, Hazel Dawn, Wilton Lackaye, World Film, also with Fox Film Co.

His last picture with Famous Players was opposite Mary Pickford in the "Eternal Grind," in which he scored a hit. His favorite sport is polo and he says that he will remain in pictures just as long as possible.

VITAGRAPH V-L-S-E RELEASES.

Six parts of tense, throbbing drama, with an excellent plot, beautiful settings and superb acting, are seen in Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon Feature for July 17, entitled "The Tarantula." "Kernel Nutt and Prince Tango," a one-part comedy with Frank Daniels, also appears on the program for this day.

"The Tarantula," from the pen of George D. Baker, who also directed the action, features Edith Storey and Antonio Noreno in roles particularly suited to their capabilities. In the supporting cast are seen Eulalie Jensen, L. Rogers Lytton, Charles Kent, Harry Hollingsworth, Emmanuel A. Turner, Raymond Walburn, Harold Foshay, Gordon Gray and Templar Saxe.

"Kernel Nutt and Prince Tango" presents Frank Daniels as a ferocious cannibal. We first see him as a seafaring man, whose wife is the leader of a female uplift society. When the society decided on Prince Tango, son of a Zulu chieftain as their protege, Nutt sees that something will have to be done. After kidnapping the prince, Nutt disguises himself as a cannibal and presents himself at his home, where everything is in readiness for Tango's reception. He gives the society a wonderful exhibition of cannibalistic tendencies, which soon convinces them that they had better abandon their intentions of uplifting him. Nutt's deception is finally discovered and then the fireworks start in earnest. Ross D. Wytock wrote the story. Daniels was supported in its enactment by Nellie Anderson, Nathaniel Griswold and Olive Trevor. Charles Dickson directed the picture.

KANSAS CITY AGAIN WINS BLUEBIRD CONTEST.

General Manager M. H. Hoffman, of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., announces that the third contest among Bluebird exchanges for the $100 prize has been won by R. C. Cropper and his forces at the Kansas City exchange. The contest covers separate periods of four weeks each and is awarded on the best showing of business, accounting for increased sales, volume of collections and minimum running expense. This is the second time in succession the Kansas City office has won the prize, and if that organization captures the contest a third time Manager Cropper automatically wins a substantial annual increase in salary.

Sol L. Lesser Makes Flying Trip to New York.

Sol L. Lesser, the young states rights magnate, who has sole rights to "The Ne'er-Do-Well," the big Selig photodrama which is being released through the V-L-S-E., made a flying trip to New York last week.

Reviews of Current Productions

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF

"Our American Boys in the European War"

Four Reels of Pictures Showing Activities of the Ambulance Corps in France—Handled by Triangle.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THAT American volunteers are doing their share towards alleviating the sufferings of soldiers wounded on the French battlefront has been pretty well advertised through newspaper dispatches and magazine articles; but where printed descriptions may fail to give a complete impression of the sacrifices being made every day, these pictures will be conclusive. Photographically they are not remarkable but in subject matter they are just the thing to arouse interest in a work that needs financial support—the work at the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris.

Scene from "Our American Boys in the European War" (Triangle).

In handling the picture it is announced that the Triangle Film Corporation is prepared to donate all of the receipts to the hospital fund. The first public showing at the Hotel Majestic, New York, will be followed by others in practically all of the larger cities, where the co-operation of the most influential residents will be solicited.

Every now and again we are given glimpses of exploding shells and trench warfare, although the opening reels are in the main devoted to a quiet detailed depiction of the life of the men who have given their services to the French government as ambulance drivers and surgeons. The extent of the work being carried on may be gathered from the fact that more than 150,000 wounded have been transported in the ambulances of the American hospital, where approximately 1,000 patients are cared for every day. After viewing these pictures one can have no doubt about the tireless enthusiasm and the heroism demanded of the men in the service.

Comedy would not ordinarily be expected in a release of this description, yet it exists in the picturing of a performance given by French soldiers on an improvised stage within range of the German guns. Then in the concluding reels there are excellent views of the aviation corps, giving close-ups of a number of Americans who are flying for France. The picture is bound to aid a worthy cause.

"Beyond Recall"

No. 8 of the 'Who's Guilty?" Series Shows Danger of Administering Death Penalty on Circumstantial Evidence.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS instalment of the thought-provoking "Who's Guilty?" series, shows up the weakness of criminal convictions based on circumstantial evidence. It goes further than this and pictures convincingly the way in which a young man was sent to the electric chair because he did not have money enough to obtain further delay of his execution. No sooner has his life been sacrificed than the one witness who could have saved him, turns up with the missing evidence.

Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore play the leads as usual. Their work is commendable for its freedom from theatrical artifice and convincing quality. The direction is also excellent, putting the problem before the observer concisely and clearly.

The case is one in which the young man goes to say goodbye to a sweetheart with whom he desired to break relations. He leaves her in a despondent mood after the first visit and then returns, to find her dead by her own hand. The landlady has heard their first altercation and her evidence points conclusively to murder. The young man's friend, with whom he had been dining, has taken a steamer and cannot establish his alibi. So, in due time, the death penalty is exacted, though the young man is innocent of the crime.

"The Weakness of Man"

Problem of Loveless Marriage Is Presented in Peerless-World Production Starring Holbrook Blinn.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

WHEN this five-part drama has run about half its course there is a marked and somewhat unfortunate change of tone. What has been developed as a quite comprehensibly unfortunate marital problem gives place to convenient melodrama—the kind of melodrama to be expected when the hero, on the verge of suicide, assumes the identity of a dead gangster and hides himself in the underworld, where he encounters the actress whom he loved, but could not marry because his father wished otherwise. An audience may be excused if it takes the denouement of the story less seriously than the opening reels, dealing with the always diverting subject of thwarted love.

The situation confronting a wealthy youth is within reason, moreover it opens the way for effective dramatic conflict. David's aged and dying father has set his heart upon a marriage between his son and his ward, regardless of the fact that each is in love with some one else. Returning from France, David is enjoying a merry end to his bachelorhood with his sweetheart Babbie, a musical comedy star, and her company. Scenes on the steamer lack nothing in gayety. Then, as an indication of impending tragedy, there are frequent flashes of the family circle awaiting the son's arrival, although there is no enthusiasm on the part of the girl, who, unfortunately, has given her heart to an appreciative physician.

Neither David nor Janice make any pretense of loving each other, but rather than disappoint the dying man they consent to a union, the only logical outcome of which is unhappiness. Five years of boredom culminate in the inevitable break, and it is right at this point that the author switches from a drama adhering reasonably well to the facts of life to one that becomes rather openly melodramatic.

Scene from "The Weakness of Man" (World).

Holbrook Blinn, giving a forceful interpretation of David, is admirably supported by Eleanor Woodruff as Janice and Alma Hanlon as the vivacious Babbie. The picture was carefully staged and intelligently directed by Barry O'Neill.

Three Strong Triangle Subjects

Bessie Barriscale in "The Payment," Douglas Fairbanks in "The Half Breed," and DeWolf Hopper in "Stranded."

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

"The Payment."

ONE of the finest stories ever produced under Ince supervision, a credit to all concerned in its production, "The Payment" is first of all a well-constructed play of intense interest. A strange situation is worked up without a false note. A talented girl turned bitter, almost cynical, by a wretched environment of home life decides that poverty is closely allied to a lack of ambition. She is not unscrupulous. She does not run away from home, nor does she avoid hard work when she leaves home and earns a living in the city that she may study at night and push on to success in an artistic career. Deeply in earnest, in many respects a fine character, clean in conduct, she finds that she must study abroad for two years in order to perfect herself as a miniature painter, and there is but one road open to that end.

Scene from "The Payment" (Triangle).

A married man of wealth, one of those peculiar individuals who will give talent a chance at the price of a soul, cynically intimates that the girl would not pay the price of her artistic advancement if given the chance of her life. After a period of self struggle she binds herself to a payment against which all her finer nature is in revolt, the payment to be made on her return. She spends two years abroad and finally achieves fame, all at the expense of a man whose payment is deferred. She lives in hope that he will relent when he sees the good he has accomplished, especially when she comes to know his wife and fall in love with that wife's splendid brother. On the eve of her engagement, however, she is reminded determinedly of her obligation.

It is possible for her to marry, but she becomes convinced that she will eventually be compelled to tell her husband who paid all her bills, and for what purpose, and she refuses the offer of marriage from intricate motives, the one overwhelming one being that she realizes the moral cost of material achievement. This admirably built play is treated with exquisite taste, not a flaw observable in the way it is handled, and it gives Miss Barriscale opportunity large enough to be in accord with her talent. The entire production is a source of delight, full of subtle revelation of character, admirably cast, the illusion preserved by appropriate settings and "atmosphere," a gem in the Ince collection.

"The Half Breed."

At last we have a picture in which the intense personality of Fairbanks does not bulge out of the story, one in which the characterization is difficult and where it is not made dominant to story interest. The result is not only an artistic achievement, but a stronger proof of his ability than in those cases where the limelight was played on him from beginning to end. It is always the case of a really fine artist, such as Fairbanks, that he does not need the center of the stage to hold the eye. His impersonation of the half breed is a piece of artistry without losing whatever charm of individuality he possesses, a role of dignified pathos at moments, one of undeniable charm all the time. He is well supported by Alma Reuben, Jewel Carmen, Sam DeGrasse, Frank Brownlee and others.

The story is not injured by some Bret Harte subtitles, but, to the contrary, nor is interest scattered by the invasion of many characters. The subordinate roles are so well taken, and so well handled, that they afford touches of humor in relief and contrast. The half breed, through white contempt for the aboriginal strain in him, becomes an outcast, living in a cave hollowed out of a giant redwood, exhibiting higher principles than are found outside of Bret Harte's charming stories, a very lovable fellow in spite of his savage strain, who meets a true mate in a homeless and friendless girl he protects and finally saves in a forest fire. This fire is one of the most spectacular ever shown on the screen, and contributes its share to a story bound to win.

"Stranded."

If De Wolf Hopper is selecting his own roles, his preference, probably a natural one, is for those broad, big-hearted and humanitarian. He seems perfectly at home in them, and never more so than as an old-fashioned Shakespearian interpreter out of work. As the strutting Thespian in silk hat and threadbare coat, strange compound of egotism and warm-heartedness, living on memories of other days and nibbles of free lunch, hopeful at one moment, in dark despair at another, yet philosophically swallowing his misery when brought into contact with the suffering of others, there could be naught but imitation after Hopper's impersonation. He has artistically covered the whole ground.

The poor old fellow does not lose a certain dignity when compelled to join a vaudeville company, one of the "ten, twenty, thirty" kind, though he makes a miserable failure in his attempt to elevate the particular kind of public taste to be found among patrons of vaudeville. He imagines that it is representative, just as most actors really do who size up an entire town by that portion of it fool enough to attend their performance—the inference is natural. Yet when he finds himself completely stranded through his tender devotion to a crippled little trapeze performer, Bessie Love, he stumbles upon a village community intent on studying Shakesperian drama and despises them secretly because they cannot act as well as professionals, all of which is in strict accord with such characters. The story is decidedly theatrical in its ending, but it is so well done that it gets over and there is no doubt that it will succeed.

---

"Gloria's Romance"

Chapters VIII. and IX. Reveal the Mystery Surrounding Freneau's Death and the Strange Disappearance of His Body—Gloria Out of Sick Room.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THERE is much to be thankful for that the eighth and ninth chapters of "Gloria's Romance" bring Gloria out of the sick room, and that we shall be spared the ministrations of Dr. Joyce to the fair patient. It is also hoped that the good Doctor will spare us any further experiments showing how a clear liquid can be turned black by the addition of another equally translucent, and vice versa.

Although increased interest is created by these chapters, the action is still slow; but there is hope that the story of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes will yield full compensation in the eleven chapters that remain.

When Dr. Royce took the tell-tale letters from the dead body of Freneau, in order to ward off scandal from the Stafford family, he introduced another important factor that awakens renewed interest in future developments. The strange disappearance of the dead body of Freneau from the spot of the murder is another mysterious incident that adds to the interest in the story. We are shown in the eighth chapter that the body was found a week afterwards in the river, but no explanation is given as to how it was placed there.

Scene from "Gloria's Romance" (Kleine).

David Stafford still suspects his wife of an intrigue even after Freneau's death, and although she throws him off the scent for a time the impression still remains in the mind that she will be forced to pay the penalty of her indiscretions.

Gloria's threat that she will tell the police all that she knows of Freneau's death leads to Dr. Joyce's disclosure to Gloria's father of the intrigue between the wife of his son David and the dead man, and he dissuades Gloria from doing so, only after showing her that her own love letters from Freneau will be aired in court. Yet she secretly vows that she will find her lover's murderers at all costs.

It can readily be seen that she can be prevented from doing this when she is given unquestioned proofs of Freneau's perfidy, and I expect that these will be furnished in due time.

The use of double exposure at the close of the ninth chapter, in the dinner scene, to show how Gloria's mind is constantly reverting to her dead lover, is almost uncanny. Freneau appears first at her right hand and then at her left as she criticises herself for lack of loyalty to his memory. Her father, knowing the true character of the dead man and horrified at the sight of his child wearing mourning for him, and also his engagement ring, had persuaded her to cast them off.

The Smugglers"

Donald Brian Is Featured in Five-Part Famous Players Subject That Makes Good Entertainment.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IN "The Smugglers," the five-part Famous Players subject released July 6, we have good comedy—clean-cut all the way and without a trace of anything approaching a triangle. Donald Brian, musical comedy favorite, is featured, but more than Mr. Brian it is the story and the general production that counts. The tale, which is by Charles F. Horne and produced by Sidney Olcott, hangs together well. There is just a bit of the dancing that has made Mr. Brian famous, but that bit justifies his reputation, even if it be a bit too well executed to be entirely convincing when we taken into consideration the fact that he has not before met the partner whose steps so splendidly match his.

Scene from "The Smugglers" (Famous Players).

Mr. Brian has the role of John Battleby Watts, breakfast food magnate who marries and goes abroad. With him he takes his sister-in-law, for whom he purchase an English husband of most imposing name. Complications multiply following the buying of a necklace of pearls and also an imitation with which Watts thinks he can fool his wife. When he meets a chorus girl and by mistake gives her for a souvenir the genuine, the story is well and mirthfully on its way.

Cyril Chadwick is Uppington, the Englishman who is very much more of a good fellow than he looks to be. Harold Vosburgh is a representative, special agent of Uncle Sam abroad, on the lookout for smugglers. Rita Bori is Sally Atkins, the chorus girl who benefits by the mistake of Watts. Olive Tell and Margaret Greene are the brides. It is a good cast.

One of the best of the comedy situations is the accidental uncovering to the customs men of the imitation string through the breaking of the hollow cane by Uppington. There are many other moments filled with mirth—and some with suspense—before the tangle is definitely straightened out. "The Smugglers" will make excellent entertainment.

"Queen of the Roses"

Photo-Operetta Presented by the Rosegraph Film Company Is Disappointing—Music by Leoncavallo.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE "Queen of the Roses," announced as a photo-operetta by Ruggiero Leoncavallo, and presented with considerable ceremony at the Candler Theater, New York, on July 6, is doomed to wither and pass away. Even on the first night it showed unmistakable evidence of fading when an audience that nearly filled the theater at the opening of the performance became appreciably smaller as the evening advanced. There were many vacant seats before "the end" was flashed on the screen.

Evidently the producers attempted a whimsical satire to accompany a score by the composer of "Pagliacci," but instead of being whimsical or satirical the story and the incidents shown on the screen are merely foolish. From first to last the picture is on the wrong side of the line separating the humorous from the absurd, and the music, melodious and pleasing as it sometimes is, fails to compensate for a such a quantity of childish nonsense.

Technically, the photoplay recalls the workmanship of at least five years ago. Most of the settings are gaudy rather than rich, frequently the photography is crude and, for comedy effects, the actors resort to burlesque methods. In a lengthy overture the Metropolitan orchestra gave selections from "Pagliacci," which proved to be the most attractive part of the program, for the composer did nothing at all momentous in the score for "Queen of the Roses." The general tone of the music is one of romantic sentiment, whereas the tendency of the picture is toward broad burlesque, and the two do not harmonize.

The story is said to have been inspired by a notorious affair in the early life of the former King of Portugal. The heir to the throne of a mythical kindom and his brother visit the important cities of Europe under the guardianship of Prof. Gin. After several reels, dealing with their escapades, Manuel falls in love with a flower girl, who eventually is crowned Queen of the Roses. One or two scenes aiming at spectacular effects might be impressive had not audiences become accustomed to a more advanced photoplay art.

"The Silent Battle"

Bluebird Drama Based on a Novel by George Gibbs—Kerrigan Plays Hero Who Inherits a Taste for Drink.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

IN common with a number of his brother authors, George Gibbs works on the assumption that an inordinate taste for wine, women and song is passed from generation to generation. When this is granted the responsibility for misdeeds may be lifted from the shoulders of an erring hero, who is not suffering through any fault of his own, rather because he chances to be the son of an unrighteous father. Starting with a handicap such as that placed upon Tom Gallatin in "The Silent Battle," it is comparatively easy to make the hero a likable, not a blameworthy character, and an audience, especially an audience of matinee girls, will follow his uphill fight with sympathetic concern. Partly because of the smooth adaptation of Mr. Gibbs' story supplied by F. McGrew Willis, and largely owing to the handsome presence of J. Warren Kerrigan in the role of Gallatin, these five reels are certain to be well received.

The story does not suggest anything new, but familiar characters and situations are handled in such a satisfactory manner that the picture holds the attention during its unfolding and leaves a pleasant impression. The silent battle is fought to a successful conclusion and, as may be expected, the victorious hero is rewarded by a reconciliation with the only girl he ever really loved. If the producers were fortunate in casting Mr. Kerrigan as Gallatin, they were no less so in giving the role of the heroine to Lois Wilson, always delightfully fresh and pretty, and altogether the sort of a woman to convert a man to temperance and domesticity.

A prologue filling about half a reel serves as a background for the character of Tom. We meet his father, who gives every evidence of an unrestrained liking for strong drink, a fact that is carefully established to account for the problem confronting the son, who becomes a brilliant lawyer. Having journeyed to the woods for his health, he encounters an ingenuous girl and they enjoy a babes in the woods existence until Tom tastes liquor, thereby releasing all that is unworthy in his nature. Their estrangement is made more definite by a woman determined to marry Tom and not particular about the means used to gain her end. The plot is ample to keep things moving, and many of the scenes in the woods, always clearly photographed, are charming. Maud George and Harry Carter are prominent in the cast.

Scene from "The Silent Battle" (Bluebird).

"From Broadway to a Throne"

Five-reel Universal Production Features Carter De Haven As "Battling" Jimmie, a Pugilist.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS production, written and produced by William Bowman, combines a sporting story with a tale of the "Prisoner of Zenda" type. The hero, impersonated by Carter De Haven, is a Broadway youth who craves prize ring honors. He is the adopted son of a writer and composer, known as Scene from "From Broadway to a Throne" (Red Feather).

Marlex, whom Jimmie styles a nut, in Broadway parlance.

The tale drifts from Manhattan to a province in Europe known as Mangolia, the latter action taking place in Jimmie's long sleep, superinduced by another pug named Killer Briggs. In other words, Jimmie takes a knockout blow at the close of the second round and dreams that he is taken abroad as a long-lost prince. He is introduced to court life and some fairly good comedy results before his friends arrive and the deception is found out. At this point Jimmie wakes up and learns that he is a defeated man.

This production is not without its amusing qualities, but it possesses a number of drawbacks which keep it from being really first class. The burlesque style of presentation interferes somewhat with the conviction of certain scenes, and when it all turns out to be a dream the observer feels just a trifle disappointed, and that the joke is partly on him. The movement of the first three reels is also too slow.

The fight scenes are well staged and a portion of the scenes taken in Mangolia. A large cast is employed in both situations. Yona Landowski, Malcolm Blevins, Duke Worne and Walter Belasco are also in the cast.

"Fathers of Men"

Robert Edeson, the Star of a Six-Part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature, Released on the V-L-S-E Program.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD is the author of "Fathers of Men," a six-reel photoplay of life in the Canadian Northwest. With such a locale, it is a foregone conclusion that the story treats of the primitive passions of humanity. Beyond allowing himself the utmost freedom in having his characters arrive upon the scene at the opportune moment, Mr. Curwood has constructed a plausible story, strong in motive and picturesque in detail. The scenes are all taken during the winter months, and director William Humphrey has been successful in reproducing the atmosphere of the Northwest, with its deep snows, dog teams, and bitter cold.

A woman's guilty love is the cause of the tragedy with which the photoplay is filled. John Howland, a factor for the Hudson Bay Company, is deserted by his wife while he is taking their little boy to a distant post, to be operated upon by the company doctor. She never returns. Twenty years later Howland who is now an officer of the Northwest Mounted Police, meets the man who wrecked his home, and succeeds in fastening the crime of murder upon him, although his enemy is innocent. Blake, the object of Howland's revenge, is killed while trying to escape from his guards, and, later, Howland is struck down by the sons of the prisoner. The story is now taken up by the younger Howland and the Blake boys. In the middle of a duel between David Blake and young Howland, they are stopped by an appeal for help, from a young girl. She leads them to where her sister and supposed mother are perishing in the snow. The men assist the women to find shelter in the cabin of a half breed and, after engaging in a desperate fight to protect them from a gang of drunken trappers, are about to settle their own quarrel, but bury the hatchet when they learn that the elder woman is only the foster mother of the girls, the real mother of young Howland and the victim of the older Blake.

Robert Edeson plays a dual role in the drama—the Howlands, father and son. The one criticism to be made of his work is on the score of age—he appears rather too mature for the younger Howland. His acting in both roles is worthy of his reputation. The scenes where both men appear are managed cleverly. William Humphrey is forceful as Blake, and Naomi Childers, Bobby Connelly, Harry N. Northrup, Stanley Dunn, Kalman Matus, Logan Paul, Robert Gaillard, Carolyn Birch and Betty Howe complete a well selected cast.

Scene from "Fathers of Men" (Vitagraph).

"The Stolen Master"

Lubin Three-Reel Crook Drama, Written and Directed by Jack Byrne.

Reviewed By Edward Weitzel.

THE production of "The Old Master" would be much more impressive if the director had selected a "prop" painting that bears some resemblance to a work of art. It is true enough that many wealthy Americans have been swindled when buying pictures, their knowledge of masterpieces being somewhat vague; but the "celebrated painting" used in "The Stolen Master" would hardly deceive a Kansas City pork packer.

The story of the photoplay tells of the operations of a pair of foreign crooks, who steal valuable paintings and smuggle them in to this country. A dealer in oil paintings buys the pictures, has them copied by some struggling young artist and sells them as originals, to the money kings of his native land. Arthur Travis, a talented but unappreciated knight of the brush, is asked to make a copy of a stolen master. The artist, who is in love with the dealer's daughter, refuses, but the lady crook takes him in hand and introduces him to a bottle of absinthe. The drug gains control of him, he makes the copy, and it is sold to a millionaire. The picture dealer's daughter straightens the matter out, however. She prevails upon the artist to acknowledge the fraud and give up the absinthe. The millionaire then commissions him to paint a real masterpiece. The foreign crooks are arrested and taken back to France.

Aside from the inartistic "prop," the production is creditable.

Scene from "The Stolen Master" (Lubin).

Adda Gleason and George Routh as the French thieves are excellent, and Evelyn Page, Samuel Curtis, Alan Forrest and Bird Hopkins sustain their acting at a fair average.

Trio of Kalem One-Reelers

"The Broken Brake," a "Hazard of Helen" Drama; "The Baggage Smashers," a Ham Comedy, and "A Double Elopment," a Sis Hopkins Release.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"The Broken Brake."

THE story leading up to the big situation where Helen Gibson performs the hazard which gives this one-reel railroad drama its punch is clearcut and full of excitement. A number of laborers who have been injured by a dynamite explosion are put in a box car and started on a down grade to the next station. A broken brake prevents the men in charge of the car from controlling it. Helen saves the lives of the men by overtaking a train while on horseback, leaping from the horse to the train and doing a job of expert switching that brings matters to an exciting climax. E. W. Matlock wrote the scenario. The cheerful way in which Miss Gibson risks her neck for her beloved railroad should make the company present her with a life pass, if nothing else.

"The Baggage Smashers."

A lady station agent engages Ham and Bud to hustle trunks for her in this one-reel comedy, and everyone concerned immediately gets into all kinds of trouble. Desperadoes and a country detective mix it up with Ham and Bud and keep them moving on a much faster schedule than they had bargained for. Ellen Godsay, A. Edmondson and Freddie Frealick assist Lloyd V. Hamilton and Bud Duncan to garner the laughs.

"A Double Elopement.

The double elopement which takes place in this one-reel comedy becomes a badly mixed up affair. Prof. Doolittle elopes with his own sister, and the maid and her pal try to elope with the family spoons. Sis Hopkins helps to jumble things up and "an enjoyable time is had" by her all through the reel. The picture is set to quick time and is full of laughs. Rose Melville as Sis Hopkins continues to fall over her feet and smile with the same sweet innocence as of yore.

Scene from "A Double Elopement" (Kalem).

"Greater New York by Day and by Night"

G. Post Mason Shows Important Places in "The Wonder City of the World"—Four Interesting Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

FOR thoroughness in giving practically every point of interest in New York, for careful editing, informative titles and unfailingly clear photography, C. Post Mason's four reels are to be highly commended. While pictures of New York are innumerable, it is doubtful if heretofore the entire territory, from the Battery to the Bronx and from Riverside Drive to the bridges spanning the East River, has been covered so completely in one collection of views. And the scenes are assembled with a nice regard for variety and contrast to prevent monotony and suggest the complexity of the life in this most cosmopolitan of American cities.

Mr. Mason's titles are really notable features of the picture. Instead of vague generalizations that mean nothing, we find concise statements of fact—the cost of great structures, when they were erected, or the historical significance of old landmarks. Even New Yorkers will learn something new from the data gathered by Mr. Mason with the aid of various city officials. Nothing worth while has been overlooked and there is not a poorly photographed scene in the entire series, whereas some of the photography is remarkable.

Times Square at night, pictures of the police parade taken from the Metropolitan building, a battleship passing under the Brooklyn Bridge, the illumination of the Singer tower, Luna park in a blaze of electric lights, are scenes of extraordinary quality. For human interest Mr. Mason went to the East Side, the Bowery, Chinatown and Mott street, where typical bits of life were snapped. Starting at the Battery, we journey up town, taking in Wall Street, the Stock Exchange, Trinity and St. Paul's churches, the Tombs; everything, in fact, that might be of interest. On Fifth avenue the principal mansions are shown; also those on Riverside Drive, and the photographer did not overlook the attractions of the city's parks.

There should be a steady demand for these four reels, abroad as well as in this country, for as a picture of New York they are not likely to be surpassed. According to the present plan, rights will be sold for the territory which Mr. Mason does not visit in the capacity of lecturer.

"Jaffery"

Excellent Adaptation of Locke Novel Is Made by the Frohman Amusement Corporation—Released by World Film in Six Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

APPROPRIATELY cast in every role, flawlessly staged to create the atmosphere of one of William J. Locke's most popular novels and directed with rare skill by George Irving, "Jaffery" occupies a certain place among the best of current productions. It is the type of picture that exhibitors want but seldom find—a picture with a story that is not insipid, yet instead of depending upon abnormal sex relationships, possesses charm and romance and leaves an unquestionably wholesome impression. Several of Locke's works have been treated successfully on the screen, but in no instance has the spirit of the author been more completely realized and surely no character impersonation has surpassed that of C. Aubrey Smith as Jaffery.

Much might be said about the perfection of the settings in giving a background to a story of English life, but for the real value of the picture it is necessary to look deeper and attribute the sustained appeal of the six reels to a comprehensible plot developed in a logical, natural manner, and to exceptionally effective acting. There is heart interest in abundance, a fair degree of suspense and a pleasing consistency in the character drawing.

As in most of Locke's stories the people are taken from the upper class in England, which embraces a number of men of a literary temperament. The greatest of these, although it does not appear so for a time, is Jaffery, who, travelling in the Balkans as a war correspondent, meets the daughter of an

Scene from "Jaffery" (Frohman).

Albanian chieftain. She becomes the wife of Jaffery's companion, the husband dies and the widow goes to England under the guardianship of the middle-aged bachelor, who really does not know what to do with her.

This opens the way for a situation of the kind that the English novelist invariably handles with true humor and feeling. As the plot advances, interest centers more completely in the relationship of Liosha, a wild creature unaccustomed to the ways of conventional society, and Jaffery, who has fallen in love with a pretty, selfish woman devoted to the memory of a husband who gained fame by claiming the authorship of a novel left by a deceased friend. Florence Deshon, an admirable type for Liosha, is notably successful in expressing the emotions of the girl confronted with unaccustomed restraints, and never fails to make clear the fluctuations of love and jealousy when Jaffery ignores her in favor of Doria.

In the end Liosha wins and the denouement is all the better because it comes as something of a surprise after Jaffery has recognized the shallowness of Doria. Eleanor Woodruff appears altogether charming as Doria, moreover her acting lacks nothing in force or sincerity. Ben Hendricks is capital in several comedy scenes, whereas other roles are capably filled by Eric Blind, Paul Doucet and Doris Sawyer.

"Dust"

Mutual-American Subject Featuring Winnifred Greenwood and Franklin Ritchie—An Exceptional Production.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

IN AN artificial combination of social criticism and vigorous melodrama, "Dust" registers a distinct advance over others of its kind through skillful handling by Edward Sloman and intelligent interpretation of Winifred Greenwood and Franklin

Scene from "Dust" (Mutual).

Ritchie and finely supported by a capable cast. The story is decidedly theatrical at moments, daringly so when Ritchie is made to leap on the stage during a Belgian relief entertainment and point out to the audience that conditions of suffering in their midst, caused by some of their members, one in particular, needed relief quite as much as the deplorable Belgian situation. He has investigated and found that the woolen mills conducted by the father of his fiancee are quite as destructive as war so far as human life and human happiness are concerned. There is risk in such a sensational development, but it is well handled and gets over.

Ritchie, in his character of reformer, makes a vigorous political campaign and upsets the sordid plans of the mill owners to such a serious degree that he becomes the declared enemy of his father-in-law elect, yet when the mills burn he risks his life in a spirited and exciting attempt to save that of the mill magnate. The latter's greed sends him to a tragic death and the daughter's heart is softened to a degree that she becomes an angel of mercy, well worth the young reformer's love. The story is sensational, but the characterization is consistent, credit to Clifford Howard, the author, and it is carried forward to a high climax through scenes of growing interest.

Dustin Farnum in Next Pallas Release.

Closely following the release of "The American Beauty," starring Myrtle Stedman, Pallas Pictures announces as its next subject for the Paramount Program, Dustin Farnum in "Davy Crockett," the historic subject as done by Frank Mayo. The new Farnum vehicle will be released on July 13.

As "Davy Crockett" Dustin Farnum appears in a role to which he is well adapted. As the romantic back-woodsman he is shown at his best, while his love for the out-of-doors and his proficiency with the paddle, the rifle and his knowledge of the gentle art of riding a spirited horse all stand him in good stead. The famous frontier story offers a splendid motion picture subject due to its continuous thread of vigorous action which includes the famous cabin-in-the-woods scene with the hungry wolves trying to break through the door.

Supporting the star in "Davy Crockett" are Winifred Kingston as Eleanor Vaughn, the dainty Miss who is carried off by her lover as was the maid of old, by brave Lochinvar, Harry De Vere as her father, Herbert Standing, Ogden Crane, Page Peters, who was recently drowned in Californla, and Lydia Yeamans Titus. The production was staged under the direction of William Taylor, while the camera work was entrusted to Homer Scott.

Richard Bennett in "The Sable Blessing."

The title of the first of Richard Bennett series of Mutual Star Productions in the process of completion at the American studios has been changed to "The Sable Blessing." The story has been considerably revised by Director George Sargent. The plot hinges upon the psychological effect of clothes upon the character of a man who has been a drudge all his life until he becomes the possessor of a sable overcoat won in a raffle. This prize works a complete metamorphosis. The leading role offers Mr. Bennett many opportunities to display his talents for forceful screen acting.

Big Demand on "How Britain Prepared"

Boston Photoplay Company Purchases Rights to the New England States—Other Negotiations Pending.

THE announcement last week that "How Britain Prepared" was to be exploited on the state-right basis has brought to the Patriot Film Corporation a vast number of offers and inquiries from all parts of the country. The state-right buyers, and the owners of exchanges in general, who had been seeking an attraction that would enable them to capitalize the widespread demand throughout their territories for a production that would harmonize with the preparedness campaign that is being waged at the present time, have expressed keen interest in the news that such a picture is available.

The state rights announcement of the Patriot Film Corporation came in the nature of a surprise to the trade in general, as that company had expressed the intention of presenting the film as a road attraction for the larger legitimate theaters. The sudden turn in events, however, that led to the mobilization of the entire National Guard has aroused such great interest in the topic the picture deals of, that it was determined to sell the exhibition rights to the various territories, so that it might have the speediest method of distribution.

The first contract for territory to be actually signed was made by the Boston Photoplay Company, for the rights to the New England States. At the present time, however, a number of other offers are under consideration. Announcement of the closing of these negotiations will probably be made within the course of the next few days.

Zbyszko in Selig Athletic Series.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, the great Polish athlete, who is a candidate for the title of world's champion wrestler, appears in the third release of the Selig Athletic Series to be released through the V-L-S-E.

The great Pole is seen in a finish match with Marion Plestina, the Croatian heavyweight champion, who gives him the fight of his life, but Zbyszko manages to win two out of three falls.

Francisco Verri and Oscar Egg, the six-day team, so well known to bicycle enthusiasts for their speed and daring, will ride one mile against time on indoor trainers. These trainers are machines which record the speed of the riders, although the bicycle remains stationary.

Sherman Landers, the Oregon schoolboy sensation, appears at the interscholastic meet on Stagg Field, Chicago. In that meet he won sufficient points to secure the championship for his school.

Charles Morin and August Kickofer, champion billiard artists, play a game of three-cushion carrom billiards and display some difficult shots.

John Mason in "On the Brink of Shame."

John Mason and Miss Alma Hanlon are the stars in the five-part photo drama entitled "On the Brink of Shame," screen version by Edna G. Riley, which is at present being produced by the Triumph Film Corporation, under the personal direction of Messrs. Julius Steger and Joseph A. Golden.

Like their recently-released photoplay, "The Prima Donna's Husband," featuring Holbrook Blinn, Kathryn Brown Decker and Clara Whipple, the new photoplay is said to be an exceptionally powerful story with a great heart appeal and bringing home forcefully a timely lesson.

The directors have chosen a remarkably strong cast for the support of the stars, embracing such well-known names as Walter Hitchcock, Edward Langford, Frederick Esmelton, Harry Burkhart, Jean Stewart, Eloise Clements, Marie Reichardt, Eleanor Kent and Darie Sawyer.

The production will be finished by the end of July and will be released early in August.

Heeza Liar Goes a Courting.

In the latest release of the Paramount-Bray Animated Cartoons "Colonel Heeza Liar's Courtship," J. R. Bray's doughty hero allows his thoughts to turn to romance. Sitting in his bachelor quarters surrounded by his varied assortment of pets, he decides that a happy married life is the ideal existence and begins to look for a wife. But he finds it difficult to discover one who possesses all of the qualities he demands. After many disappointments he concludes it makes no difference whether a man courts a girl six years or marries her at sight—she'll fool him anyway. He decides to take a chance and proposes in a hurry to a doll-faced clinging vine who looks as if she might be an expert at darning socks and admiring a husband. This is where the Colonel receives a knockout blow as far as matrimony is concerned. He discovers his prospective wife is a widow with twenty-three children and retreats hastily to his bachelor quarters.

Another Anita Stewart Feature.

Anita Stewart's latest starring vehicle is "The Daring of Diana," a Blue Ribbon Feature in five parts from the pen of Charles L. Gaskill, which is announced by Vitagraph for July 24. Other capable Vitagraphers in the cast are Anders Randolf, Francis Morgan, Julia Swayne Gordon, Charles Wellesley, Joseph Donohue and Donald MacBride. S. Rankin Drew directed the production.

Comments on the Films

EXCLUSIVELY BY OUR OWN STAFF.

General Film Company

BETTER HALVES (Vim), June 29.—The situations in this one-reel farce have long served to make people merry. However, they were right good material in the days of their youtb, and have lost but little of their vitality. Two married couples figure in tbe plot and are cleverly acted by Babe Hardy, Billy Ruge, Florence McLoughlin and Ray Godfrey.

THE ENGINEER'S HONOR (No. 86 of "Tbe Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series"—Kalem), July 1.—Tbe leap from a speeding auto to a train moving at equal speed which Helen takes in this one-reel drama is done in order to clear a young engineer of the charge of robbing an express company. The story, acting and production are well up to the mark set for the series.

EDISON BUGG'S INVENTION (Lubin), July 1.—Tbis comedy is five hundred feet long. Anotber comedy of equal length, "Under a Barrel," is on the same reel. Tbe first picture pokes fun at a small town fire department, and Raymond McKee and Babe Hardy are the principals; the second is a colored comedy, with John and Mattie Edwards in the leads. Both comedies are stupid, and "Under a Barrel" is decidedly coarse.

THE GIRL OF GOLD GULCH (Sellg), July 1.—The stock ingredients of a western melodrama are to be found in this one-reel story, written by Cornelius Shea; but, Tom Mix produced it and plays the lead and that makes a heap of difference. Tom drives a stage in this picture, and to see him mount the box and pick up the lines is worth the price of admission. Victoria Forde, riding a race, is another winning feature. By tbe way, is there another man on earth who can equal the ease and grace with which Tom Mix gets into a saddle?

THE BLUE OR THE GRAY (Biograph), July 3.—A Civil War drama of considerable strengtb, reissued by Biograph. Donald Crisp, Alfred Paget, Robert Harron, Irene Howley and Mildred Manning are in the cast. A review appeared in the issue of June 10.

OTTO, THE TRAFFIC COP (Lubin). July 3.—There is a good deal of unexpected comedy in a policeman, as this one-reel photoplay proves. It was written by Marie Foster, and D. L. Don, Patsey DeForest, George Egan and Eleanor Blanchard comprise a good cast. Tbe fun is kept moving at a lively rate.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 53, 1916 (Selig), July 3.—Lincoln Handicap run at Lincolnshire, Eng.; Harvard and Yale boat race, New London, Conn.; pulling snake's tooth at Lincoln Park, Chicago; National Guards, Troy, N. Y.; National Guards at Camp Whitman; National Guards at Camp Johnson, Cal.; El Paso, Tex., Gen. Bell and troops ready to resist the Mexicans; Carranza in Mexico City; Gen. Funston at San Antonio, Tex.

BILLIE'S MOTHER (Vitagrapb), July 3.—A simple one-reel story, in wbich a lost cbild awakens a frivolous woman to her duty and wins her a new fatber for her boy. Louise Beaudet, Donald Hall and Helen Costello have the leading roles. A scenic, "A Tour from Bergen to Bandak," is on the same reel. It shows a number of striking scenes in Norway.

THE PEACH PICKERS (Kalem), July 4.—The peaches referred to in tbis one-reel Ham comedy do not grow upon trees, but entrap the male species upon the public thoroughfares. Ham and Bud are but too willing victims of several charmers and, like Adam with the apple, meet their downfall. An average Ham comedy.

CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL, NO. 12 (Essanay), July 5.—Wallace A. Carlson's sense of humor and clever pencil supply this number of the pictorial with some amusing cartoons and more of Dreamy Dud's amazing adventures. A Western scenic is on the same reel.

NOTCH NUMBER NINE (Kalem), July 5.—There is gunplay aplenty in this one-reel Western drama. Tbe leading character is an expert at "getting the drop" on his enemies, as the nine notches on the bandle of his revolver bears witness. Lovers of a lively western drama will find the picture quite to their taste.

HOUSEKEEPING (Vim), July 5.—Harry C. Myers and Rosemary Theby are the stars of this domestic comedy which illustrates the troubles of a newly-married couple. The subject is treated in a broadly farcical manner and capitally played by Mr. Myers and Miss Theby.

THE SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 54, 1916 (Selig), July 6.—San Francisco moving treasure from the old to new City Hall; Allied troops in German East Africa; bringing the wounded from the Carrizal fight to El Paso; blind English soldiers, London; Troop A. New Jersey Cavalry at Sea Girt, N. J.; swearing in State troops at Springfield, Ill.; floral pageant and parade of regulars, Los Angeles, Cal.; memorial services at Washington in honor of the late President of China.

A DAY AT SCHOOL (Vim), July 6.—Babe Hardy's sweetheart is sent to boarding school, in this one-reel comedy, and Babe, as Plump, gets into a girlish but expensive frock and follows her, after tbe manner of Mary's lamb. Runt is the janitor, and the mixup tbat was bound to occur is quite as full of pretty girls in pajamas and nighties as tbe situations give warrant.

THE PSYCHIC PHENOMENON (Kalem), July 7.—Sis turns hypnotist in this one-reel comedy and performs some remarkable feats with the aid of a sleeping powder. Rose Melville's creation of Sis Hopkins has added a unique figure to moving pictures. Her embodiment of the awkward country girl is the cause of much wholesome laughter.

TO SAVE THE ROAD (No. 87 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Kalem), July 8.—Like the other numbers of tbe series, the thrill of this hazard loses none of its force from tbe fact that the spectator is aware that Helen will come through safely. Homer Eon Flindt has supplied a good scenario and Producer James Davis has worked in the railroad effects with the realism they demand.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY (Lubin), July 8.—Burlesque melodrama is tbe intent of this split reel photoplay. It was written by C. Doty Hobart and is along the lines made familiar by many similar pictures. The complications are well handled. Jerold T. Hevener, Babe Hardy, Bill Powers and Lellie Farrin form an energetic cast.

THE RIVAL QUEENS (Lubin), July 8.—An African comedy, played by John and Mattie Edwards. It is on tbe same reel with "A Terrible Tragedy" and is closely related to the familiar old afterpiece of the colored minstrel sbow.

FURNISHED ROOMS (Vim), July 7.—A would-be rain-maker is an important character in this one-reel farce. The picture has a well-defined plot and a good supply of amusing incidents. Pokes and Jabs head the cast and contribute their usual amount of ginger.

WHEN IT RAINS IT POURS (Vitagraph), July 7.—A lively rainstorm plays an important part in this one-reel comedy and brings about the comedy situations. There is plenty of amusing action in the picture which Mary Anderson, Reggie Morris, Annie Schaefer and Otto Lederer act with skill.

SOME DUEL (Selig), July 8.—Another one-reel comedy written, produced and acted in by Tom Mix. The treatment is broadly farcical; the whole picture appearing like a bit of cowboy fooling, into which all tbe characters enter with great enjoyment. Victoria Forde, Joe Ryan and Sid Jordan assist Tom Mix in the acting.

---

General Film Company Specials

THE REGENERATION OF MARGARET (Essanay), July 1.—Although the question of permitting defective infants to live is treated prominently in this three-reel photoplay, the author has made an interesting drama from the subject. It gives Warda Howard and Ernest Maupain opportunities for strong acting, and furnishes John Junior, Patrick Calhoun and Florence Oberle witb excellent roles.

BLACK MAGIC (No. 15 of the "Social Pirates"—Kalem), July 3.—This is the closing instalment of the George Bronson Howard serial. A blackmailing fakir is exposed by Mona and Mary, and the wife of a banker rescued from him. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of July 15, page 474.

THE RETURN (Selig), July 3.—Tbe time of this three-reel screen-drama is tbe present day, but its spirit is that of a romance of medieval Italy. It is a love story, and the men and women in it love and hate with a disregard for everytbing else that keeps the interest at close tension. The picture is a novelty, when so many realistic and sociological dramas and novels are being produced. Kathlyn Williams, Guy Oliver, Wellington Playter, Vivian Reed, Sidney Smith and Harry Lonsdale bring out the strong points in the acting. T. N. Heffron has directed the picture effectively.

HIS TRUST AND HIS TRUST FULFILLED (Biograpb), July 4.—Made by Griffith in 1911 these two reels do not suffer by comparison with present-day productions. The story concerns the Civil War and the years immediately following. Wilfred Lucas gives a particularly fine sketch of a faithful negro servant. Reviewed in the issue of June 10.

THE FABLE OF "THE FEARSOME FEUD BETWEEN THE FIRST FAMILIES" (Essanay), July 4.—Wisdom seasoned with wit is always to be found in a George Ade fable. The present one is in two reels, and pokes good-natured fun at amateur theatricals. Rival society ladies aspire to play Juliet and the fearsome fued which is the result leads to the bankruptcy court. As usual, the Ade subtitles are fifty per cent. of the entertainment.

THE STOLEN MASTER (Lubin), July 6.—A review of this three-reel picture is printed on another page of the present issue.

LETITIA (Vitagraph), July 1.—This three-reel photoplay belongs to a class of fiction that one accepts without question. Its story may never have happened, but it has that touch of real feeling and kindliness that give it a strong appeal. It tells of a faithful servant and his daughter, who do their best to brighten the last days of a lonely old man. Charles Kent, Hugh Wynne and Belle Bruce make much of the three roles. Gordon Arthur Smith is the author of the story and Harry Davenport directed the picture.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

THE GRASP OF GREED, July 17.—A five-part adaptation of H. Rider Haggard's novel, "John Meeson's Will" featuring Louise Lovely. The enjoyment of the picture depends largely on personal taste. The story is old-fashioned and more or less improbable. A full review of the production will be found on another page of the magazine.

Fox Film Corporation

AMBITION, July 3.—A five-reel picture with Bertha Kalish in the leading role and dealing with modern politics. It is not a deeply significant picture. A longer review will be found on page 472, issue of July 15, 1916.

International Film Service Inc.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 51, 1916, June 27.—Harvard-Yale boat race, New London, Conn.; Gen. Sarrail decorated at Salonika; twenty-ton blast, San Francisco; Charles Evans Hughes attends commencement at Brown University, Providence, R. I.; four-year-old golf players, Baltusrol, N. J.; Mrs. John Jacob Astor weds Wm. Karl Dick at Bar Harbor, Maine; exploding mines at Fort Rosecrans, Cal.; fashion section; Mexican refugees at El Paso; National Guardsmen of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts prepare for war; President Wilson and Secretary Baker review the militia of the District of Columbia.

HEARST-INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 52, 1916, June 30.—Funeral of Gen. Gallieni at Paris; launch of U. S. Oil Tanker Cuyama at Mare Island, Cal.; memorial to the late Lord Kitchener, London; police field day at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y.; Sultan of Turkey at Constantinople; fashion notes; wreck of the steamer Bear, Eureka, Cal.; milltary activities at El Paso; National Guards of Illinois and New York entrain for service on the Mexican border.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 53, 1916 (July 4).—British trench guns firing shells over the Bulgarian lines; leopard at Central Park Zoo, New York, is manicured; Sir Roger Casement, London; new ocean liner pier, New York; Fashions; Knights Templar conclave at Los Angeles; Charles Evans Hughes at his country home, Bridgehampton, N. Y.; outing of New England motion picture exhibitors, Pemberton, Mass.; President Wilson in Independence Hall, Philadelphia; New York and Massachusetts National Guardsmen leave for the border; wounded troopers brought to El Paso.

HEARST INTERNATIONAL NEWS PICTORIAL, NO. 54, 1916 (July 7).—Regatta at Philadelphia; Charles E. Hughes and family at Bridgehampton, L. I.; Serbian army at Salonika, Greece; initial flight of Second Battalion aeroplane, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Fashions; dedication of Labor Building, Washington; Mrs. Josiah Cowles at Los Angeles, Cal.; fire, Portland, Ore.; National Guardsmen aviation camp, Garden City, N. Y.; official censor, Washington; American refugees arrive at Galveston, Tex.; negro troopers delivered to American army officers by Mexico, El Paso, Tex.

Mutual Film Corporation

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 79, July 5.—A topical number, containing many scenes of interest at home and abroad. A number of sidelights on the Mexican situation are included.

A MERRY MIXUP (Cub), July 7.—George Ovey appears in his well known character, Jerry. This time he impersonates a young husband in order to deceive a trusting uncle who wanted his nephew to marry somebody else. Some amusing complications of a typical knockabout sort occur. The number is entertaining.

THE GINK LANDS AGAIN (Beauty), July 9.—Orral Humphrey appears in this, as the Gink from Kankikee. The story has rural settings and among other things the gink masquerades as a butler. He assists the lady of the house in getting rid of a marauding gang. This has amusing moments.

REEL LIFE, NO. 10 (Gaumont), July 9.—A fine educational subject and a mighty interesting one. We are shown the elaborate manner in which the waters of the sewers of Paris are cleared and purified. The graduates of the instruction department of the New York Association for the Blind are shown at their work of chairmaking, caning, basket weaving and working on looms after studying the pattern through instructions printed in raised letters, and there is also a picture of a blind shorthand writer and typewriter at work. The stenographic notes are taken on a typewriting machine that punches shorthand characters, which afterward are read by touch. Then, too, there are pictures of the soft coal mining industry and of animal studies at the New York Zoo. A thousand feet worth seeing.

HIRED AND FIRED (Vogue), July 9.—A one-reel knockabout comedy number, by Robert A. Dillon. Two tramps break into a moving picture studio and are hired as villains. A general mix-up occurs, in which a man with a hose plays an important part. This contains a fair amount of amusement.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials

THE HIDDEN FACE (Gaumont), July 6.—A three-reel number, featuring Alexander Gaden, Iva Shepard and Henry W. Pemberton. This is a mystery story centering about the Rev. Martin Preston, in love with Helen Claude, daughter of a candidate for Congress. Two murders occur, the minister being unjustly suspected of the last one. This contains numerous elements of appeal, and a happy ending is reached after the mystery is solved.

THE TAMING OF WILD BILL (Mustang), July 7.—A two-reel number, by Karl Coolidge, featuring Jack Richardson, Hugh Bennet and Nita Davis. The story concerns the reformation of a drunkard through the influence of a girl, the young daughter of an itinerant minister. Wild Bill, as the drunkard is known, breaks up a religious meeting, and then later reforms and takes the pledge. The plot is familiar, but has certain elements of interest and is enacted by a competent cast.

THE GOOD-FOR-NOTHING BRAT (Centaur), July 8.—A two-reel number, featuring Margaret Gibson and Wm. Clifford. The girl, a city waif farmed out to country life, falls in love with the new schoolmaster. The situation is an appealing one, and the school scenes are amusing. Later the story becomes too sentimental and a trifle overdrawn. The death of the girl, who drowns herself because the village gossips dig up her past life of poverty, has a depressing effect. A little better action and a happy ending would have improved this subject.

THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE (No. 8—American), July 10.—In the opening we are shown how Cleo and Hope escape destruction when the hut on the cliff is, by dynamite, lifted from the edge of the cliff and dropped into the ocean. In a fade-in we see again this unusual sight, which adds interest for those who did not see No. 7. The denouement of tbis chapter, an earthquake-wrecked restaurant, in the debris of which the principals struggle for possession of the precious book, furnishes excitement. It is a question if the train wreck would not have been stronger dramatically if the actual collision—in miniature—had been omitted. The real punch in the situation came as the second train passed into the mountain, the spectator knowing that, through falsification of signals, another train was speeding toward it on the same track.

DUST (American—De Luxe), July 10.—A five-reel sociological study, by J. L. Lamothe, featuring Franklyn Ritchie, Winifred Greenwood, Nell Franzen and Harry von Mater. This is a powerful satire on the class of society workers who give entertainments and spend vast sums on foreign charities, wbile subsisting at home on the earnings of underpaid factory workers. It is admirably constructed in the main, in spite of certain scenes being a trifle overdrawn, and drives home its message forcibly. The factory scenes, the war-relief entertainment, the legislative session and the fire are all well presented. The story interest is also good. A strong example of the serious type of film production.

DOORSTEPS (Mutual Star Production—Turner), July 20.—This five-part production, based on Henry Edwards' stage play of the same name, was made in England at the Turner Studios. Florence Turner is featured and plays the title role in an inimitable fashion. The picture is one of the best of tbe season, and will be enjoyed by any audience, presenting, as it does, a clean story of splendid characterization well produced. Larry Trimble directed the picture. "Doorsteps" is the maid of all work in a cheap rooming house, who eventually, by sheer force of circumstances, evolves into a successful actress.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

THE DUPE (Lasky), July 3.—A pleasing offering presenting Blanche Sweet, Thomas Meighan, Veda McEvers and others. The direction is capably handled, as is the construction of the plot. Though Blanche Sweet does well the histrionic honors should go to Veda McEvers. Settings and photography are splendid throughout. For an extended review of this feature see page 475 of the July 15 issue.

THE SMUGGLERS (Famous Players), July 6.—A five-part subject featuring Donald Brian. It is good, clean comedy. The picture is reviewed on another page.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

OUR LOBSTER SUPPLY (Pathe), June 26.—Showing Maine and Massachusetts government stations, where ten million eggs are hatched each year. The interesting views show how lobsters are taken in pots and the female stripped of eggs.

PERAK—THE PROTECTED (Pathe), June 26.—On same reel with above. Interesting views taken in a town on the Malay peninsula, protected by Great Britain. Native customs and athletic sports are depicted.

LUKE'S SOCIETY MIX-UP (Rolin), June 26.—Harold Lloyd and Beeb Daniels are featured in this amusing comedy of the newly rich. The famous violinist fails to show up at the reception and the hero acts as a substitute. There is some funny small business running all through this, and some knockabout work at the close.

PATHE NEWS, NO. 53, 1916 (Pathe), July 1.—How swamp lands are drained by ditch digging at the rate of 1,000 ft. an hour, opens this pleasing number. Breaking and branding horses for Mexico, King George at Aldershot, and a marathon race up and down Mt. Tamalpias, are other good features.

NUTTY NEWS (Pathe), July 3.—Very funny animated drawings by R. L. Goldberg, showing burlesque battle scenes, a fire in Deadbury, Maine, and burlesque nature studies.

THE PORCUPINE (Pathe), July 3.—Close views of the porcupine in its native habitat, both in this country and in Africa. This is interesting and instructive. On same reel with above.

ACROSS THE MALAY ARCHIPELAGO (Pathe), July 3.—Fine views of the natives in their ordinary pursuits. Elephants at work, road re-pairers on the joh, jinrikisha races and other features are Included. Well-pictured and instructive.

THE KINKAJOU (Pathe), July 3.—A study of a curious animal of the raccoon family, found in Mexico and Brazil. It has a head like a dog and swings by a prehensile tail, like a monkey. On same reel with ahove.

LUKE'S WASHFUL WAITING (Rolin), July 3.—A knockahout comedy numher, featuring Harold Lloyd and Beebe Daniels. The action is of the rapid-fire sort and occurs largely in a tailor shop and Chinese laundry. This is laughahle throughout.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

BEYOND RECALL (Arrow), June 26.—No. ɔ of the "Who's Guilty?" series. This is an entertaining two-reel number, featuring Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore. The ohserver is shown the manner in which a young man is convicted of a crime on circumstantial evidence and sent to the electric chair. After his execution the one witness who could have saved him turns up. Lack of money is given as the reason for his failure to ohtain full justice. This is not only well presented, hut carries a gooa suhject for thought.

THE WEAKER STRAIN (Arrow), July 3.—Anna Nilsson and Tom Moore appear in this two-reel subject, No. 9 of the "Who's Guilty?" series. The hero is a young architect whose wife wants to he a singer. He is injured accidentally and she goes on the stage to earn money. The dramatic scenes occur when Tom hecomes wildly jealous of her manager. She kills the latter and the husband assumes the guilt. The numoer holds the interest closely.

THE CAVE OF DESPAIR (Feature), July 3.—Chapter 19 of "The Iron Claw." This number again tantalizes the ohserver with speculations as to who the Laughing Mask can he. The latter assists Davy to escape from the detectives. Margery then visits the great houlder, with the Iron Claw hovering near. She enters the secret doorway, pursued by the latter. The Laughing Mask again appears and grapples in hand-to-hand conflict with the Iron Claw. The numher closes with the ohserver still puzzling over the solution still to come.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE EYE OF THE NIGHT (Ince), July 16.—A modern version of "Shore Acres" with some spectacular scenes and some fine acting by William H. Thompson as the lighthouse keeper and Marjory Wilson as the girl who erred from natural affection. Principally characterized by Miss Wilson's strong performance.

THE LITTLE SCHOOLMA'AM (Fine Arts), July 16.—The story of a little country schoolma'am unjustly persecuted, with Dorothy Gish in the title role and some charming children in suhordinate parts. The children will make a hit.

Universal Film Manufacturing Company

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 27 (Universal), July 6.—Presidential Candidate Hughes at Brown University, scenes on the Mexican border, police drills at Sheepshead Bay, trial of Sir Roger Casement, and other scenes are included In this entertaining number.

TWO SEATS AT THE OPERA (Imp), July 16.—A comedy numher, featuring Wm. Garwood as a plumber and Edwina Marten as a maid. Two tickets to the opera furnish such complications as the plot has, but it does not develop much strength. The number is only fair.

BASEBALL BILL, NO. 2 ("Flirting with Marriage") (Laemmle), July 16.—Smiling Billy Mason appears again as the haseball fiend. He huys a second hand gentleman's outfit and attends a game. He is accused of stealing a woman's purse and later arrested as a lunatic. The number is only fairly successful, owing largely to the uncertain construction.

KILL THE UMPIRE (Nestor), July 17.—Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran appear in this hasehall story hy Ben Cohn. Eddie goes to the game to hawl out the umpire. He slugs him with a pop hottle. Later they meet unexpectedly at dinner and trouble results. This will tickle haseball fans and others will enjoy it also.

THE GENTLE ART OF BURGLARY (Victor), July 18.—A comedy numher, hy Raymond L. Schrock, featuring Wm. Garwood and Violet Mersereau. The girl and young man invade the house of a mutual friend at night, the former disguised as a hurglar. A real thief appears and the two hide in the same bed. This contains a hroad comedy situation, hut is well handled and amusing.

A BOLD BAD BREEZE (L-KO), July 19.—A one-reel comic, featuring Billie Ritchie, Bill Bevan and Lucille Hutton. Billy has a dream in which most of the events take place. There are some vulgarities in this which lower the tone of the production. The action is rapid and the "cyclone" feature is amusing.

IMPERIAL INDIA, NO. 2 ("The Devil Dancers of India") (Powers), July 20.—Another of the remarkably interesting series of Oriental films taken by Dr. Geo. A. Dorsey. This shows elephants at play and on parade. The scenes taken at the Festival of the Gods is very impressive. Market scenes and a view of the town pump at Delhi are also shown.

THE COME ON (Nestor), July 21.—A very good comedy number, by John C. Brownell, featuring Jane Gail, Matt Moore and others. The country girl arrives at a hig hotel and her roll is immediately spotted by some clever city crooks. She and her friend turn the tables on them and get away with their cash. This is clever and well presented.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials

THE MONEY LENDERS (Bison), July 1.—A two-reel number, written by Wright Roherts, featuring Marie Walcamp, Edward Wallack, L. C. Shumway and Lee Hill. This is a stirring railroad story, located in a rugged, picturesque mountain district. The girl's father is division superintendent and agrees to send several carloads of munitions over the horder. The young villain gets a hold over the father to press his case with the daughter, hut the girl outwits him. The explosion makes an interesting scene and the situation in the office later in the story is tense and exciting. A pleasing numher.

THE STAMPEDE (Universal—Special), July 10.—The chief feature of this installment, No. 11 of "Peg o' the Ring," is where the elephant carries Peg away during some excitement at the circus. She again falls into the hands of the villains and is taken on a small schooner, where the men cut cards to see who wins her. Lund, Jr., follows on a fast launch and the reel closes with he and another fighting the seamen. The opening scenes of the numher contain a good deal of repetition of old situations.

THE CRIMSON YOKE (Rex), July 16.—This is an entertaining two-reel numher, featuring Cleo Madison, Wm. V. Mong and Frank MacQuarrie. The location is not made very clear, the girl and her lover heing apparently half-breed Indians on a large plantation, though the girl is described as "free born." She offers herself as the mistress of a slave dealer, to save the son of the house from disgrace. Later her own lover comes to save her. There is a pleasing freshness in the plot and situations which more than make up for certain obscurities. The ahuse of the girl hy the slave dealer and her rescue hy the lover hold the attention closely. All of the principals do good work in this number.

THE SEEKERS (Red Feather Photoplay), July 17.—A five-reel production, hy Olga Printslau, featuring Flora Parker De Haven, Edward Hearn, Paul Byron and Charles Mailes. This is the story of a quiet religious sect, known as "The Seekers." Two orphans, a hlacksmith and his sister are the characters around which events center. The young man is falsely imprisoned and the girl shields him when he escapes. She is in love with the minister's son, who is sheriff of the community. The events move along in a convincing way and develop both humor and drama as they progress. The production makes a pleasing study of life among a people not unlike the Quakers of early days.

ON THE HIGH SEAS (Universal—Special), July 17.—Twelfth Installment of "Peg o' the Ring." This opens with Lund, Jr., still battling with the seamen for posession of Peg. He finally saves her and they return to the circus. Peg makes up as a clown and takes Flip's place in the ring while he is suffering from the effects of an accident. This furnishes some comedy. Peg is once more spirited away and meets with a fall over a cliff. The installment is not particularly strong and, like many of its predecessors, pays little attention to the general plot.

THE BELLE AND THE BELL-HOP (Victor), July 20.—A two-reel comic numher, hy C. E. Van Loan, featuring Pat Rooney, Adele Farrington, Marc Rohbins and others. The hotel types are familiar and recognizahle and many of the incidents are funny in themselves. The situations lack any connecting plot thread, which gives them a scattering effect. Pat Rooney does some amusing stunts as the bell hop, hut the production as a whole is not strong and much of the humor seems forced. The photography and settings are the strongest features of the production.

LEE BLOUNT GOES HOME (Imp), July 21.—A two-reel offering, hy Harvey Gates, with Herhert Rawlinson, Agnes Vernon and Wm. Quinn in the leads. The young convict, falsely imprisoned, dreams that he returns home. The events in the dream are vivid and dramatic. Later, after dreaming he has shot the man for whose crime he Is imprisoned, he awakens to find the real criminal has confessed and he is free. This is full of action and sustains the interest throughout. A strong suhject, capably handled.

A MIDWINTER MADNESS (Bison), July 22.—A two-reel number, by Winthrop Kelly, featuring Dorothy Phillips and Stanley Walpole. The story is one of the Canadian Northwest. The wife, living happily with her husband and child, is suddenly confronted hy her former sweetheart. Intense jealousy on the part of the husband follows. The story is rather conventional and slightly drawn out. There are some wonderfully good snow effects. The action is only fairly strong, the chief attraction in the offering heing found in the winter effects.

V-L-S-E, Inc.

THE VALIANTS OF VIRGINIA (Selig), June 26.—Kathlyn Williams and Arthur Shirley play the leading roles in this five-part Selig production written by Hallie Erminie Rives. The southern atmosphere presented in this film is adequately presented, the direction on one or two occasions falls below the average. The acting is at all times good, and taken as a whole "The Valiants of Virginia" is a worthy film. For an extended review of this suhject see page 472 of last week's issue.

World-Equitable.

THE WEAKNESS OF MAN (Peerless), July 24.—For the first three reels this Peerless-World Film picture presents an interesting and emotionally intense love story, which becomes more melodramatic and less convincing in the latter part. Holhrook Blinn, Eleanor Woodruff and Alma Hanlon are the principal players. Most of the action is laid In or near New York. A review appears elsewhere in this issue.

Miscellaneous.

JAFFERY (Frohman), July 15.—Adapted from William J. Locke's novel, this six-part picture occupies a certain place among the hest of current productions. The story is interesting and wholesome and the production made by George Irving is exceptionally pleasing. Auhrey Smith in the title role is given an excellent support by Florence Deshon and Eleanor Woodruff. A review appears elsewhere in this issue.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

CRATER LAKE, ORE. (Gaumont's "See America First").

Following its other successful releases of United States Government film of National Parks, the Gaumont Company, on July 26, will present in Mutual Service pictures of the Crater Lake National Park. This park lies in the very heart of the Cascade Range in southern Oregon. It has an area of 249 square miles. The great scenic attraction is Crater Lake, a body of water of unbelievable blue. It is rimmed for its 24 miles of shore line by a continuous, unbroken circular wall 2,000 feet high.

Scene from "See America First" (Gaumont).

This short description of this marvel of nature permits one to imagine what wonders of scenery await spectators of this issue of "See America First." The cliffs present some of the most striking pictures of the entire western country. The water reflects the walls so perfectly that one cannot tell the wall from the reflection in the intensely blue water. Hence it seems as if one were gazing down 4,000 feet to the water instead of only 2,000 feet.

Among the places noted for their beauty shown on the screen are Wizard Island, the Phantom Ship, the Pinnacles, Anna Creek Falls and Canyon, and innumerable lakes, falls and mountain peaks. An excursion on Crater Lake is a trip never to be forgotten. The Gaumont Company was fortunate to secure such an excellent series of views, and the government was also fortunate in securing such a prominent company with such a large and established clientele to release its national park pictures.

GOOD WORDS FOR "THE GRIP OF EVIL."

In the July 16th issue of the National Sunday Magazine. 2,500,000 copies of which are circulated in Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, St. Louis, St. Paul and Cleveland, Dr. Frank Crane the celebrated editorial writer will publish an article headed "The Grip of Evil" dealing with the same questions as those which combine to give Pathe's Masterplot of the same name such intense human interest.

This is a further indication of the interest aroused on the part of the Country's big men in the subject used as the theme of Pathe's picture released July 17th.

Prominent exhibitors everywhere are planning newspaper articles and sermons, as well as voting contests among their patrons on the question, "Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?" Confident of splendid results because of these facts detailed by one of them in a letter to the Pathe Company:

" 'The Grip of Evil' is not a serial or a series in the usual sense. It is something entirely new, best described as 'A Masterplot in Fourteen Chapters Showing the Real Side of Humanity.'

"The picture has the cumulative interest of a serial because throughout its length, John Burton, once a laborer, now ten times a millionaire, played by the famous young English actor Roland Bottomley, is seen in one thrilling adventure after another, seeking an answer to the question, 'Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?'

"It has the advantages of a series, because versatile Jackie Saunders plays a different role in each episode, running the gamut of human emotions with a handsome gown designed by one of New York's famous modistes to fit every mood.

" 'The Grip of Evil' contains all the thrills, the elements of love, mystery and suspense, that have made all Pathe's serials such great successes. The theme is so big that it has commanded the attention of the Nation's leaders, men such as President Wilson, Governors, Mayors, etc., with whom the entire country is familiar, who have expressed conflicting opinions which will start widespread discussion, and give 'The Grip of Evil' valuable word of mouth advertising."

VOGUE-MUTUAL STUDIOS BUSY.

With two companies engaged in the production of three pictures weekly, and several new faces included among the stocks cast, the Vogue-Mutual studios at Los Angeles are humming with activity these days. Latest of the recruits to join the Vogue-Mutual contingent are Gypsy Abbott and Elsie Greason. Miss Abbott has been assigned as leading comedienne of Rube Miller's company, while Miss Greason, for the past year and a half has been appearing in Selig releases.

At present, Rube Miller and his company are putting the finishing touches to "Some Liars," in which Miller and Ben Turpin have the principal parts. Jack Dillon, Paddy McQuire and Arthur Moon are the trio of funmakers in "A Mix-up in Dry Goods," first of the Vogue-Mutual comedies in which Miss Greason will appear. Most of the action of this piece takes place in a dry goods store, in the filming of which one of the largest of the Los Angeles stores was used.

'THE GROUCH" (Essanay.

The metamorphosis of a hard shell crab who isn't even good to his folks into a gay bon vivant who takes music with his meals and permits himself to be led into the ways of frivolity and recklessness makes up an engaging theme for this three-reel comedy. The most natural thing after seeing the picture is to try Harry Beaumont's system on one's own boss. Harry Dunkinson, often seen in Essanay comedy leads, is a guaranteed laugh-getter in this play. He is a chronic grouch, his office is a maze of inefficiency and his home merely a place to go to. Then Beaumont, the young efficiency expert, forces his way into the office. He finds efficiency begins with the boss and after a reel and a half finally wins a smile from the grouch. He lays his golf bag on his desk during the noon hour and in his absence the boss, overcome with curiosity, has succeeded in smashing all the windows in his office with the balls. After that it's easy to get him to the country club. A number of girls, carefully instructed by the younger man, pay a lot of attention to the boss and he finally comes out of his shell and has some fun in spite of himself. The suspicious wife and daughter find him dancing and new complications arise, but Efficiency Harry quickly solves them and convinces the old man that if he wants to step around with the young fellows he'd better take one of them into the family as a son-in-law.

Scene from "The Grouch" (Essanay).

"THE DREAM GIRL" (Famous Players-Lasky).

Mae Murray will appear in her third photoplay production for the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company on July 17, when there will be shown publicly for the first time in Paramount theaters Cecil B. De Mille's production "The Dream Girl." This is an original story by Jeanie MacPherson and marks Miss Murray's first appearance under the direction of Mr. De Mille and under the most favorable combination of circumstances as the star in a photoplay which is the joint work of "Scene from "The Dream Girl" (Famous Players-Lasky).

Miss MacPherson and the Lasky studio's director general, who are responsible jointly for the film drama "The Golden Chance."

As Lady Jocelyn Leigh in "To Have and to Hold," Miss Murray made her screen debut and scored a pronounced success. Again as the mischievous widow in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" she increased her popularity and established herself as a photodramatic artist of distinction. But as the little child of the slums in "The Dream Girl" she is said to have surpassed any of her previous triumphs.

Theodore Roberts, as the father, is said to have done the best character work of his remarkable career either on the stage or on the screen. The brilliant young English actor Earle Foxe, is seen as the young college student who appears to "The Dream Girl" as the magic knight.

Other members of the cast are James Neill, Mary Mersch, Mrs. Lewis McCord and Charles E. West.

THREE STARS IN ONE BLUEBIRD.

Fitting to the part the player best adapted to play it, Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., are progressing in their purpose to make "the play the thing" and just to prove that they are not piccaunish in the matter of "stars" as well, the Aug. 14 release will have in its cast three stars who have won their spurs earlier in the Bluebird series.

"Betting Loved a Soldier" is the title for the film version of Ludivoc Halevy's "L'Abbe Constantine" and Rupert Julian will have as leading lady, both Louise Lovely and Francelia Billington. These three players have been stars in different Bluebirds on several occasions—Mr. Julian and Miss Billington having been principals in "Naked Hearts," while Miss Lovely has appeared as a Bluebird star many a time and oft.

Elliott J. Clawson prepared the story in a scenario form and Mr. Julian directed. Of "L'Abbe Constantine," as a story, the Encyclopedia Brittanica asserts that "the Abbe will rank permanently in literature by the side of "The Vicar of Wakefield," adding that the creation of this splendid character opened the doors of the French Academy to Ludivoc Halevy.

Going to such sources for certain of their releases proves the sincerity of Bluebird's purpose to make the play the first essential of their commercial reputation—and with three stars employed in its interpretation the drama may be expected to have the best possible portrayal.

CHURCH ADAPTS THE MOTION PICTURE.

The problem of the Motion Picture for use in the church has been discussed in every branch of the motion picture industry, and has met with little or no success.

The Picture Theater Equipment Co. of 1604 Broadway, New York, are specializing in this field and report the installation of a Powers Cameragraph machine with transformer, special Piteco lenses, booth and supplies, for the St. Joseph Church, Rosebank, S. I.

This is the second installation of Motion Picture Machines in churches made by the Picture Theater Equipment Co. in Rosebank, S. I. The previous installation having been made in the St. Mary's Church. This equipment also consisted of a Powers Cameragraph machine complete with Piteco lenses, transformer and entire projection outfit.

Butter-Kist Popcorn Machines

What Theater Managers That are Now Getting Extra Profits from Their Customers Have to Say.

Clarksburg Amusement Co. say: "I have found people coming to my theater in preference to others because they could get Butter-Kist pop corn here. Butter-Kist receipts alone have run as high as $112 a week. Would not think of running a theater without one of your machines." Alhambra Amusement Co. says: "Butter-Kist pop corn machine a money maker even under unfavorable weather conditions. Doing a minimum of 150 bags and a maximum of 300 bags a day." Theatre Grande, Detroit, Mich., says: "In practically four months, machine has returned in profits our original investment. Have taken in as high as $46 in one day from pop corn and peanuts. Operated machine only in the evenings, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. People pass other machines and buy Butter-Kist pop corn."

What is true in the cases of these owners holds good in every theater where this machine has been installed. The great success of the Butter-Kist idea has warranted its makers in predicting that within a comparatively short time every theater will add a Butter-Kist machine. Its power to attract attention—to get people into the theater—to earn a big profit, all make it a most invaluable adjunct.

"A MIDWINTER MADNESS" (Universal).

The scorching days have come, the saddest of all the year. But to make all Universal photo fans "twenty degrees cooler than the street outside" there will be released on July 22 a Bison two-reel northwestern picture entitled "A Midwinter Madness," all the action of which takes place in the snow country.

Dorothy Phillips plays the lead in the play and, as the accompanying picture suggests, she must have had a thoroughly enjoyable time during the filming of the drama. Oh, what joy it is in mid-summer to ponder on the delights of rolling in a snow bank!

"A Midwinter Madness" is a thrilling drama of the Canadian northwest. Its characters, French-Canadian habitants, are played by Dorothy Phillips, Stanley Walpole, Barrington Barringer and Nellie Slattery. Dorothy Phillips plays the role of a wife wrongfully accused of infidelity and, goaded into madness by her husband's accusations, she is about to become in reality the mistress of her supposed lover when fate intervenes.

"THE BELLE AND THE BELL HOP" (Universal).

"You can talk about Hebe, the Graces, the Peri and Houri, but give me the Venus de Milo," says Pat Rooney. "I could sit and talk to her for hours. She listens to all my troubles, my hopes, my dreams and my aspirations with never a comment one way or the other. However, I think she understands and it is a genuine relief for me to be able to talk to a woman who says nothing but listens attentively.

"The Venus de Milo has a certain trigness, a belle tournure," says Pat, "that all the other divinities of classical mythology woefully lack. All others are base deceptions, monstrum hor-rendum, as Virgil says, and since working in pictures I have her statue constantly on hand to develop my sense of callaesthetics.

Scene from "The Belle and the Bell Hop" (Victor).

"She plays a prominent part in 'The Belle and the Bell Hop,' a two-reel Victor which will be released on Thursday, July 20, and I feel sure than on this, her first appearance in comedy, she will be a rip-snorting knockout, as our genial friend Nat Rothstein of the Universal advertising department is wont to express himself."

"THE PRIVATE BANKER" (Selig).

"The Private Banker," produced by Thomas Santschi from the story by T. Edward Hungerford, is another one of those excellent Diamond Specials to be released through the General Film on Monday, July 17. "The Private Banker" is a gripping story of the Italian quarters and features an exceptional cast of players, including Edith Johnson, Wheeler Oakman, Leo Pierson and Harry Lonsdale.

Pietro, a young Italian workman, loves Lucia, a beautiful young girl. Tony, an idler and crook, is Pietro's rival for the love of the girl. Tony and Tomaso, an elderly Italian crook, Scene from "The Private Banker" (Selig).

start a private banking company. They tempt their Italian friends to place their hard-earned savings in this bank, promising an exorbitant interest. Tomaso plans to loot the bank, but is discovered in the act by Tony, who kills Tomaso. Pietro, expecting something wrong, arrives just as Tony is escaping with his ill-gotten gains. Pietro takes the money from Tony and hides it. Tony is discovered and shifts the guilt for the death of Tomaso to Pietro. When Pietro comes to work the next morning he is made prisoner by the infuriated workmen and thrown into the scoop of a gigantic steam shovel. Then the machinery is slowly started. It seems that Pietro will meet a horrible death, but at that instant Lucia appears on the scene, stops the machinery and saves her lover's life. Then it is that Pietro gives the money he has saved to his fellow workmen. Lucia explains that Tony has confessed all the details of the plot. There is a succession of strong situations and thrills in this unusual drama.

"LOVE'S LARIAT" (Bluebird).

The introduction of a bunch of Western cattlemen into New York society and the effect high life in the metropolis has upon the cowboys forms the basis of an excellent comedy drama. Harry Carey, Neal Hart, William Quinn and Olive Fuller Golden are the principals and there is a numerous company of frontier experts to supply the atmosphere of the "wooly West."

After the action has rushed along for four reels at a high speed comedy pace the story takes a sharp turn to the sensational and winds up with a "punch" of sentimentality that completes the gamut of emotions. George E. Marshall and W. B. Pearson provided the scenario and Harry Carey assisted Mr. Marshall in the work of directing the scenes.

The contrasting scenes of rugged Western life and the placid moods of Fifth Avenue society people and their surroundings makes the feature pictorially unusual. When eight cattlemen with their full equipment of saddles, chaps and side-arms get into the running on Broadway the comedy is immensely exhilarating.

Olive Fuller Golden is the daughter of the late George Fuller Golden and her presence in the cast is bound to attract the attendance of the hosts who followed Golden as a stage monologist and as a leader among members of the vaudeville fraternity of White Rats.

PATHE FASHIONS FILM TO BE RELEASED SOON.

Since J. A. Berst, Vice-president and General Manager of Pathe, announced several weeks ago the addition to the Pathe program of a fashions film to be known as "The Florence Rose Fashions," there has been considerable interest manifested by the exhibitors. The first reel of the new film to be finished was shown in the Pathe projection room the other day and after seeing it Mr. Berst gave it as his opinion that the innovation was bound to be a success.

Miss Florence Rose, the energetic and capable fashions expert who is producing the pictures, has turned the Jersey City studios into a beauty congress. Old time property men, carpenters and scene painters have stopped work to see the fashions girls before the camera. One of the boys the other day expressed the sentiment of all when he said "Gee, where did all those queens come from anyhow?"

Dell Boone, Florence Reutti, and Corene Uzzell are the three girls playing the more important roles. A scenario was written especially designed for opportunities to show various gowns and costumes and the finished picture is down for release on August 7th. One picture will be released every two weeks.

UNIVERSAL FILMS PARALYSIS PLAGUE.

The Universal Animated Weekly has entered into arrangements with the New York Department of Health to film a series of views showing how the spread of the infantile paralysis scourage may be checked. New York's fathers and mothers are terrified at the rapid spread of the disease which on July 4 in one day alone claimed 27 lives in the various boroughs and was rapidly spreading. In twenty four hours 59 new cases were reported. Since the disease first broke out in South Brooklyn late in June, many cases have been treated with a large mortality rate, and preparations at the city hospitals have been made to treat 1,500 more cases.

Scenes at the hospitals, illustrations of practical measures to stop the spread of the disease, the activities of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, the Bureau of Infectious Diseases, quarantine officials, the Health Department, the frantic attempt of the hospital authorities to supply cribs for the stricken children and to collect them in hospital ambulances, the medical treatment advisable in the prevention of the disease, flagrant violations of the sanitary code and the exodus of fifty thousand babies from New York all will be shown in the film which the Animated Weekly has secured permission to take as part of the campaign to stamp out the disease.

"Hans and Fritz" Coming.

To satisfy the exhibitors' call for world-known characters in animated cartoons, the Mutt & Jeff Film Company have completed arrangements with the Celebrated Film Corporation whereby the Mutt & Jeff Film Company can produce the cartoons of Hans and Fritz, whose comical pranks appear on the pages of over one hundred leading newspapers. Hans and Fritz comics, following those of Mutt and Jeff, are considered to be the second best on the market today. Judging the speed with which the exchanges are signing contracts for Hans and Fritz in animated form a very bright future is assured these films.

Hallberg Has Projection Room.

The Godfrey-Becker Building at 729 Seventh avenue, is being rapidly filled with film exchange offices and feature film concerns, making it a very popular center for motion picture exhibitors to examine films.

Quite a number of the concerns have put in projecting rooms. J. H. Hallberg has equipped among others the projecting room of the Keen Cartoon Company and the public exhibition room of the building with Power motor-driven machines, 6-B's, and has closed a contract with the Clara Kimball Young Corporation for two Simplex machines for their new projecting room on the fourteenth floor.

TABLE MANNERS IN "BETTER BABIES" SERIES.

Chesterfieldian manners instilled with Mother Goose in the days of pinafores and rompers make the child a jewel to its parents. Working on this theory, the editors of Paramount Pictographs have included films on table manners in the etiquette series of "Better Babies" releases for the "magazine on the screen." Among other things the picture show how the child should hold a knife and fork, ask for a second helping, butter bread correctly and become familiar with the courtesies which should be shown parents and governess.

Scene from "Table Manners in the Nursery" (Paramount).

"THE CRIMSON STAIN" (Consolidated).

What promises to be the most strange and startling motion picture yet filmed, is noted for release August 21 through the Metro Exchanges, in "The Crimson Stain Mystery," a sixteen-episode serial, which is being made by the Consolidated Film Corporation, of which O. E. Goebel is the president. Ethel Grandin and Maurice Costello will be featured. The novelization is by Albert Peyson Terhune, while the photography and technical arrangements are to be handled by the Erbograph Company, under the personal direction of Ludwig G. B. Erb, which bespeaks for this production the finest that human ingenuity can produce.

"The Crimson Stain Mystery" will be given the most extensive newspaper advertising campaign yet attempted in any previous serial. The story will be printed serially in a list of the leading newspapers throughout the United States. This list will be headed by the New York World and papers of similar standing will be used in all parts of the country.

The story of "The Crimson Stain Mystery" carries a dramatic quality and strength equal to the dreams of a Poe. It deals with a modern Frankenstein. A physician makes a discovery whereby he can give greater power to the brain cells and thereby bring greater happiness to mankind. Through some slip, the power thus discovered works the wrong way, and instead of a better, happier race, there comes to life one of the most crafty, intelligent set of persons the human ingenuity can imagine, and they set out to avenge themselves on society.

The crimson stain is a flush that appears in the eyes of the leader of this criminal race.

PATHE NEWS SWEEPS BROADWAY.

The Pathe News celebrated the glorious Fourth by conquering Broadway in a way that has never before been accomplished by a news film. Every picture theater on Broadway from the Battery to Spuyten Duyvil, with the exception of only two, has booked the News. Among the houses contracting for regular service are the Broadway, Rialto, Palace, Strand, Eighty-first Street, Schuyler, Olympia, Riverside, Nemo, Clairmont, Hamilton, Bunny and New York. Many of these theaters, it will be seen, enjoy a national reputation.

J. A. Berst, Vice President and General Manager of Pathe, visited two well-known Broadway houses one night a week or two ago, and found that one of them did not show the "News." The next day he called a conference with A. S. Abels, Manager of the New York booking office, and Erie Mayell, Manager of the "News" department. A line of action was determined upon and New York salesmen were requested to show what they could do. Every man hustled, and the bookings poured in from theaters all over Greater New York. In consequence if a New Yorker wants to see the Pathe News, no matter where he lives, he can find a theater near by which shows it. Mr. Berst's "Pathe News Week" was a great success.

ATLAS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY STARTS WORK.

Busy bees flying around Atlas office, laboratory and studio getting ready for production of one-reel comedies, which will be produced by Tommy Mullens assisted by George Orth, with Al. Haunsbacker behind the camera. All productions will be under the personal supervision of P. R. Upton and released through one of the large companies in New York.

Notes of the Trade

THREE World players are working in "The Almighty Dollar" under the directorial supervision of Maurice Tourneur—Frances Nelson, June Elvidge and E. K. Lincoln.

* * *

Rollin E. Sturgeon, director-general of the western Vitagraph, has gathered together 200 expert divers and swimmers to take part in the realistic shipwreck scenes he is incorporating into a six-reel detective play by Cleveland Moffet.

* * *

Alice Brady, and twenty-seven World Film players, spent the past week at New Bedford, Mass., where numerous of the scenes to be used in "Miss Petticoats" were staged aboard the whaler Charles W. Morgan, a typical craft. Captain Cleveland, who has equipped the whaler and who leaves shortly for a two months' trip, entered into the spirit of the picture, and with his crew acted in accordance with the director's instructions.

* * *

"The Beckoning Trail," in which J. Warren Kerrigan is being starred, is nearing completion under the direction of Jack Conway at Universal City. It is a five reel feature, written by F. McGrew Willis of the Universal staff, and in which the star is supported by Lois Wilson, playing opposite, Harry Carter and a large cast of Universal City stock players.

* * *

The Unity Sales Corporation, through its vice-president and general manager, Andrew J. Cobe, announces the acquisition of the Nat Goodwin picture drama, "The Marriage Bond." In this picture, the much-married actor enacts the character of an injured husband, who through nobility of soul wins his way finally to his erring wife's heart.

* * *

A series of three act feature releases, starring Gertrude McCoy are now being prepared at the Gaumont-Mutual studios in Flushing, L. I. Miss McCoy's first appearance in these productions will be in "Gates of Divorce," a story of life in a big city written by Robert Burns, a New York newspaper man. Miss McCoy will have her own company of players in the filming of these productions, the members of which are now being selected.

* * *

Director Paul Scardon has just completed a five-part Blue Ribbon Feature in which James Morrison is starred. The story is a picturization by George H. Plympton of a book by George Allan England, the novelist.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Daly, of the Selig Company, recently entertained at dinner at their Los Angeles home the occasion being the second anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Daly is known in professional life as Fritzi Brunette. Among those who assisted in the celebration of the happy event were, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nash, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Heffron, Mr. and Mrs. Charles West, and Miss Vivian Reed.

* * *

Shirley Moore, one of Ralph Ince's latest finds, is playing an ingenue lead in a novel automobile comedy at the Bay Shore studios. Playing opposite her is William Lyttell in a juvenile role.

* * *

It will require probably three weeks more for Director Joseph DeGrasse to complete the five reel social drama entitled "If My Country Should Call," which he is filming at Universal City. The leading roles are played by Dorothy Phillips and Lon Chaney, supported by Adele Farrington, Helen Leslie, Gretchen Lederer, Frank Whitson, Jay Belasco, Albert MacQuarrie and Carl Von Schiller.

* * *

In a five-part Blue Ribbon release featuring Lillian Walker, Vitagraph's popular star, many well-known spots of the Greater City are used as backgrounds. Wilfrid North, who is directing the filming of the picture, also wrote the story.

* * *

Silent speeches of American statesmen will be shown on the screen in "Oratory," a release of the Paramount Pictographs. Men in the public eye will be shown in characteristic attitudes familiar to audiences all over the country.

* * *

Edward Elkas, character man, has found his presence needed in three recent Vitagraph productions that are billed for future showing. At one and the same time he was working as Ortos, the spy in "The Battle Cry of War," as Abie Lefkovich in a Barney Bernard feature directed by Paul Scardon, and in another photoplay that will be released as a three reel melodrama.

* * *

J. Warren Kerrigan and his company, including Lois Wilson, his leading lady, Maude George and Harry Carter, directed by Jack Conway, have completed "The Beckoning Trail," a five reel feature, and it is expected they next will commence work on another feature entitled "A Social Buccaneer." The cast will include Miss Wilson, playing opposite, Miss George and Carter, and a number of others from the Universal stock company.

* * *

Montessorri methods used in educating the senses of the child are being shown in the "Better Babies" films of the Paramount Pictographs as part of the nation-wide campaign for healthier children which the Paramount Pictures Corporation is waging through the films.

* * *

Antonio Moreno is working in a picturization of one of Harriet T. Comstock's novels being produced by Vitagraph Director Harry Davenport. When completed, it will be in five parts and released through the V. L. S. E.

* * *

"By Conscience's Eye" is the title of a one reel domestic drama which is being filmed by Director George Cochrane, featuring Marjorie Ellison. It was prepared for the screen by Fred Myton, of the Universal staff.

* * *

Carpenters are very active these days at the Vitagraph Bay Shore studios, erecting a new outdoor stage. Ralph W. Ince, the supervising director, expects to do considerable work on the new stage this summer.

* * *

Upon completion of "The Germ of Mystery," Director William R. Daly of the Selig Company, will immediately begin work on a story of artist life entitled, "Out of The Mist." Fritzi Brunette will be given a wide scope for her talents playing the dual role of mother and daughter. The supporting cast includes Guy Oliver, Lillian Hayward, Frank Clark, William Scott and others.

* * *

Pat Rooney, under the direction of Roy Clements, is working in his new comedy, "Some Medicine Man,," written by Eugene B. Lewis and prepared for the screen by Fred Myton. Opposite Rooney appears Coudray as an Indian princess, Ed Sedgwick the heavyweight comedian, Jean Hersholt and Clyde Benson.

* * *

Ralph W. Ince was so pleased with the work of Jessie Miller in "The Conflict" that he engaged her for the heavy role in his new spectacular feature, which will be done at the Vitagraph studios at Bayshore.

* * *

At least three weeks more will be required by Director William Worthington to complete "The Spring Song," featuring Ruth Stonehouse, a story written by Harvey Gates. Miss Stonehouse is supported by Franklyn Farnum, playing opposite, little Dorothy Clark, Kingsley Benedict, Arthur Hoyt, William Canfield, Wadsworth Harris and Helen Wright. Some of Miss Stonehouse's dances are being introduced into the story.

* * *

"In the House Of The Chief" is the title of a new Selig drama in three reels now in course of production at the Pacific Coast studios. The cast includes Charles West, Vivian Reed, Eugenie Besserer, Sidney Smith, Al. W. Filson and Harry Lonsdale.

* * *

Helmer W. Bergman, who is picturizing "The Battle Cry of War," from the story by Cyrus Townsend Brady and J. Stuart Blackton, is at work on the last two reels of this sequel to Vitagraph's "The Battle Cry of Peace."

To date he has written more than seven hundred scenes and also assisted in their direction.

* * *

"The Caravan," a story by Raymond Wells, is being produced by the author at Universal City, featuring Lena Baskette, the clever child actress and dancer supported by Claire McDowell, Jay Belasco, C. G. Briden and Malcolm Blevins. The story is being produced in three reels, with a distinctly Egyptian atmosphere.

Picture Theaters Projected

FORT PAYNE, ALA.—Miss Leona Thomason will expend $5,000 to remodel opera house for a moving picture theater.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—J. H. Hiltse has purchased the Alhambra theater at the corner of Fifth and F streets.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—The Come Again theater on M street has been remodeled and the seating capacity increased.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Skinner & Garret, 1416 F street, N. W., have the contract to erect a moving picture theater, 44 by 85 feet, to cost $6,000.

MIAMI, FLA.—W. B. Ogden will erect a theater building to be leased by J. C. Boss, proprietor of the Fotosho. The structure will be two stories high and include fourteen offices on the second floor.

CLOVERDALE, IND.—A new addition has been built to the Joy theater.

MOORESVILLE, IND.—A four-foot ceiling ventilating fan has been installed in the Dreamland theater.

CEDAR FALLS, IA.—Frank Schlueter has taken over the Grand theater.

MASON CITY, IA.—A. Kahnm has reopened the Casino theater.

MYSTIC, IA.—B. S. Staley, Centerville, Ia., has the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 48 by 85 feet, to cost $10,000. Plans are by L. H. Marston, 138 N. La Salle street, Chicago.

ORANGE CITY, IA.—J. Richards has purchased the interest of A. Miller in the Lyric theater.

OSKALOOSA, IA.—McConnell & Houser have opened the Orient theater.

BOSTON, MASS.—William D. Bradstreet, corner Warren avenue and Berkley street, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater of fireproof construction, 150 by 60 feet.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—J. F. Wuerth is having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater and arcade store, 30 by 60 feet and 36 by 120 feet, to cost $15,000.

DETROIT, MICH.—Frank Farrington Construction Co., Sherer building, has the contract to erect a one-story moving picture theater, 100 by 100 feet, to cost $15,000, for Frederick Deladde. The house will be known as the Delthe.

NEW ULM, MINN.—Howard Cooper, a prominent business man of this town, has taken over the Gem theater.

WINNEBAGO, MINN.—R. L. McMillan has purchased the Princess theater.

MALTA, MONT.—Milk River Amusement Company has disposed of its interest in the Orpheum theater to B. B. Survant.

ROYAL, NEB.—The Royal is the name of a new moving picture house opened by Troutman & Puteney.

RIVERSIDE, N. J.—Frank E. Hahn, of Philadelphia, is preparing plans for a theater, store, hall and lodge building, 120 by 180 feet, to be known as Fox's theater.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Architects Brook & Rosenberg, 367 Fulton street, are preparing plans for a 1½-story moving picture theater, 50 by 100 feet, to cost $30,000.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—McDonald & Wallace, southeast corner Atlantic avenue and Hicks street, will expend $4,000 in making alterations to their moving picture theater.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—W. A. Mosher, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., will build an extension to his moving picture theater, 20 by 71 feet. The improvements will cost about $10,000.

CINCINNATI, O.—Park Hall Amusement Company, D. L. John, manager, 3065 Madison road, plans to erect an airdome for the exhibit of moving pictures, to cost $10,000.

WESSINGTON SPRINGS, S. D.—F. R. Gervers has leased the Grand Opera House and will devote it to the exhibit of high-grade pictures.

WINNER, S. D.—J. C. Lakin and W. H. Fulwilder plan to erect a modern moving picture theater on Main street.

BROWNWOOD, TEX.—Southern Amusement Company will erect a brick airdome on Fisk street.

APPALACHIA, VA.—Loyal Order of Moose contemplate erecting a three-story opera house and hall building, to cost about $30,000.

RICHMOND, VA.—Arcadia Amusement Corporation, organized with $300,000 capital; John T. Anderson, president; J. J. Pollard, vice-president and treasurer, both of Richmond; G. L. Stabler, secretary, Washington, D. C., will erect theater building on Broad street; entrance to theater through arcade with glass roof; musicians' gallery at end of arcade; glass-roofed court with display fountain beyond; theater to seat 2,500 persons; roof garden will have seating capacity of 2,000; moving stairways, etc.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Work will be started shortly on the construction of a fireproof moving picture theater on Third street. It will be known as the Capital, have seating capacity of 1,600 and cost approximately $25,000.

Dependable Light

Direct current—steady, non-flickering light. Up to 4 K.W. capacity. 60 to 110 volts. 20% overload above current required for picture machine, handling 25 to 50 lamps in addition. Motor, 4-cylinder, 4-cycle, high-grade and fully guaranteed. Compact, inexpensive. Write today for Bulletin No. 20.
Universal Motor Co., Dept. W, Oshkosh, Wis.

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS
Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG

Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Trade News of the Week

GATHERED BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

Massachusetts at the Convention

Members of the State League, Which Has Recently Joined the National Body, Have Been in Chicago—President Horstmann, Hiram Abrams, W. E. Green and William Roin Were Delegates—Other Local Exhibitors Present.

By William M. Flynn, No. 80 Summer street, Boston Correspondent.

BOSTON, Mass.—Massachusetts moving picture exhibitors are taking a great interest in the annual convention of the Moving Picture League of America now in session in Chicago. This interest is increased by the fact that the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts has joined the national body.

The official delegates of the league attending the convention are: President E. H. Horstmann of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts; Hiram Abrams, president of the Paramount Picture Corporation, W. E. Green of the Famous Players company and William Roin. The party left Boston Saturday July 8 on the Twentieth Century Limited. A score or more of their friends and prominent moving picture men were at South Station to give the delegates a fine send-off.

The Massachusetts exhibitors have a number of important matters to take before the national body and will be much in evidence on the floor of the convention hall. A number of other New England exhibitors are attending the convention and this section of the east will be well represented at Chicago.

Big Audiences the Rule.

Boston, Mass.—The unseasonable, cool weather has made a tremendous boom for the moving picture houses of this section. On the 4th of July when ordinarily the moving picture houses are playing to empty benches, the rain and cold drove crowds into the theaters so that capacity audiences were the rule throughout the day and evening. A record for the day was perhaps made by the Majestic theater where 10,764 people saw the feature film "Where Are My Children?"

"Who Will Be Flo?" Contest.

Boston, Mass.—Over 200 beautiful young girls who hope to win fame before the moving picture camera are entered as contestants in the "Who Will be Flo?" contest being conducted by a local newspaper. The contest is under the direction of the Novelty Moving Picture Company of No. 115 East 23d street, New York City, a subsidiary company of the Novelty Slide Company. H. C. Young is the local manager and his assistant is Charles Lewis, formerly of the Universal Film publicity department. Both young men have made scores of friends since their arrival in Boston, and at their headquarters in the Boston Journal building are daily surrounded with Boston's fairest young girls who are eager aspirants in the "Who Will be Flo?" contest.

DeForest White of the Boston Journal staff is conducting the daily write-up feature of the contest. He is running a daily interview with the various contestants and has many pretty things to say of the girls who hope to be Flo. The "Who Will be Flo?" contest opened with a week of publicity in which the only line appearing in newspapers, film slides street cars and posters was: "Who Will be Flo?" This was followed by attractive advertising telling of the contest. Publishers of the Boston Journal are said to be very well satisfied with the results so far obtained from the contest.

F. A. Grady Heads New England World Film.

Boston, Mass.—Frank A. Grady, formerly of the General Film and the V-L-S-E Companies, has been appointed New England manager of the World Film Corporation and has taken charge of their office at No. 57 Winchester street. Mr. Grady believes that success in the film business as in any other mercantile line, can be attained only by fair and honest treatment to the trade that is served as well as the company one represents. Mr. Grady is extending the business of the company in a substantial way. His spirit of co-operation with the trade is shown in the fact that last week two of the World stars, Gail Kane and Clare Whipple, appeared at the Onset theater, Onset, by his arrangement.

MAINE NEWS LETTER.

From John P. Flanagan, Maine Correspondent, Moving Picture World, Bangor.

An Ellsworth Consolidation.

ELLSWORTH, Me.—A consolidation of the two moving picture theaters in Ellsworth has just been effected, the acquisition of the Bijou and Strand theaters by Mrs. Harriet C. Davis. Mrs. Davis will continue the business for the present at the Odd Fellows' Building, operating under the name of The Davis. If the business warrants, she contemplates later remodeling the Davis carriage repository on Franklin street in a thoroughly up-to-date moving picture house. Mrs. Davis has also leased the Hagerthy Building, which has been occupied by the Bijou and will open it as a nickel theater under the name of The Nickel, as soon as the house can be thoroughly renovated and improved ventilation provided for.

Reopens Bangor's Nickel.

Bangor, Me.—Thomas Williams has taken a lease of the Nickel theater on Union street, and opened the same on Saturday, July 8, with Charley Chaplin in "Carmen" and "The Beloved Vagabond," a six-part Pathe picture. Admission is five cents. The Nickel has been vacant since the latter part of 1914. Before that it was leased by the Keith interests, and previous to 1911 was known as Acker's theater, vaudeville and moving pictures.

Benefit for Soldiers' Families.

Bangor, Me.—The Bijou and Park theaters, of Bangor, both controlled by the Keith company and under the management of Stephen Bogrett, gave a benefit performance for the families of Bangor militiamen who are at the Mexican border on Friday and Saturday, July 7 and 8. A considerable sum of money was raised for this worthy purpose.

ORANGE, N. J. THEATERS MERGE.

By Jacob J. Kalter, Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

D. J. Shepherd and George Cuff Combine Two Theaters.

ORANGE, N. J.—A deal of more than local interest was consummated last Saturday when the U. S. Palace theater. Main street, and the Colonial theater, also on Main street, was brought under the new ownership of D. J. Shepherd, former manager of the Palace, and George W. Cuff, former owner of the Colonial. The two houses had long been at swords-points, but now the two playhouses will be run jointly. The trade name of the new concern is the Mutual Theater Company, of which Mr. Cuff is president and Mr. Shepherd is secretary and treasurer. The Palace was purchased from Frank G. Hall, president of the United States Theater Company, Hoboken.

Mr. Shepherd, when seen at the Palace by the representative of the Moving Picture World, made the following statement: "I believe the new merger will be mutually beneficial both to Mr. Cuff and myself. Instead of competing with each other, we shall work in harmony, and naturally there is but one result that can follow—increased patronage to both houses. Personally I am delighted at the way things turned out, and I safely predict that the consolidation of Orange's largest picture theaters will bring nothing but good results to all concerned."

Sunday Shows Stopped.

Newark, N. J.—Many of the local theaters have come out with announcements that no Sunday benefits will be given during the summer. At first it was commonly held that the managers quit of their own volition, but it later developed that the show-houses were closed by the police department. It is unofficially announced that the houses will be opened in the fall.

Police Supervise Picture.

Orange, N. J.—The U. S. Palace theater, of which D. J. Shepherd is manager, showed "Where Are My Children?" last week July 6, 7 and 8. It was only after he had undergone great trouble that Mr. Shepherd was allowed to exhibit the picture. All persons under twenty-one were barred from seeing the picture, as the local authorities held that the film was fit for adults only.

Long Branch Incorporation.

Long Branch, N. J.—The Broadway Theater Company has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with registered office at 142 Broadway, Long Branch. The concern is capitalized at $100,000 and will conduct amusement enterprises. The incorporators are Hyman Rosenberg, Helen L. Bergen, and Hy. Senser.

Trade Name Filed.

Newark, N. J.—Thomas H. Simarian and San Tefank, who operate the Central theater, 482 Central avenue, have filed as their trade name the Oriental Amusement Company.

Fire at Olympia.

Newark, N. J.—A small blaze at the Olympia theater, 324 Norfolk street, threw the audience into a panic. The fire was caused by the film becoming ignited. The blaze was confined to the operators' booth. No one was injured. The house is owned by I. Spitz.

New Hoboken Exchange.

Hoboken, N. J.—The Civilization Film Corporation has recently been granted a charter under the laws of the state of New Jersey as being of Hoboken. The purpose of the new concern is to conduct a moving picture exchange, Frank G. Hall, George A. Enwright and Harry T. Hall, being the principle incorporators. The company has been capitalized at $125,000.

PHILADELPHIA NEWS LETTER.

From Philadelphia News Service, 326 Real Estate Trust Bldg., Philadelphia Correspondent.

Great Northern Theater Improvements.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Architects Herron and Doyle have plans for extensive alterations and additions to the Great Northern theater, Broad street and Erie avenue, one of Philadelphia's most popular moving picture theaters. Work will consist of a new front and interior remodeling as well as a large one-story addition. The contract for this work has been awarded to the Hogg Construction Company and work will be started immediately.

Bill Wert Engaged.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Bill Wert, of the Calehuff Supply Company, 1301 Race street, has announced his engagement to Miss Florence Rosenblit, and declares that he intends to spend his vacation in company with his sweetheart in the vicinity of Niagara Falls. Preparations for the trip have been completed and he will be absent from his place of business during the next several weeks.

Three Harrisburg Houses Sold.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The Wilmer & Vincent Theater Co., of New York, have recently taken over sole interest in the Orpheum, Majestic and Colonial theaters of Harrisburg. Nathan Appel, a former resident of Harrisburg, and who held a half interest in the theaters, has sold out his holdings. Wilmer & Vincent have long been important factors in the theatrical industry in Harrisburg.

Exhibitor Blaker in Town.

Mr. Blaker, the well known exhibitor of Wildwood, N. J., was numbered among the recent visitors to this city and before departing for the sad sea waves he paid his respects to the Calehuff Supply Company where he purchased considerable new equipment.

H. Bernstein Prospering.

Chester, Pa.—H. Bernstein, proprietor of the Grand theater, of Chester, reports exhibiting to large audiences and declares that there is every indication that business will continue of a favorable nature for many weeks to come. He recently paid a visit to Philadelphia and visited the Swaab Film Service where he purchased additional equipment.

Joseph L. Bailey Has Beautified His Theater.

Paulsboro, N. J.—Joseph L. Bailey, the premier exhibitor of Paulsboro, N. J., has recently had his theater entirely renovated, both as to exterior and interior. The alterations cost in the neighborhood of $8,000 and the theater is now one of the most beautiful and modern in the state of New Jersey. In addition to the renovation, considerable new equipment has been installed.

Business Notes.

The showing of the film entitled "The Ne'er Do Well" portrayed from the famous novel by Rex Beach, at the Forrest theater, Philadelphia's most elaborate playhouse, has met with unexpected success and there is every indication that the film will be exhibited to large houses for many week to come.

James McCartney, the enterprising manager of the Richmond theater, of Richmond, Pa., and the Empire theater, of Frankford, Pa., has recently purchased considerable new equipment from the Calehuff Supply Company, including several Rembusch crystal fibre screens and additional paraphernalia.

F. P. Bloomfield, of the Mirror Screen Company, headquarters Shelbyville, Ind., is at present in Philadelphia and is making his headquarters at the Calehuff Supply Co., 1301 Race street, who are jobbers for the Mirror screens.

MID-NEW YORK LETTER.

By E. O. Weinberg, Plaza Theater, Troy,
Special Correspondent.

N. S. Gallon Finds Business Good.

ALBANY, N. Y.—N. S. Gallon, formerly with W. L. Sherry Feature Film Co., is now representing George Kleine in New York state. He reports business good and says "Gloria's Romance" is taking hold very strong.

Frank J. Frayne Pleased.

Albany, N. Y.—Frank I Frayne, formerly with W. E. Greene, is now representing V-L-S-E in the eastern part of the state. V-L-S-E features are booking very strong, according to Mr. Frayne, and he secured several large contracts this week.

Fox Players at Ausable Chasm.

Port Huron, N. Y.—Director Davis, Theda Bara and a company of twenty-six players are at Port Henry, N. Y., taking scenes for a forthcoming release. Many scenes will be laid near Ausable Chasm.

Charles Travers Guiding Plattsburg House.

Plattsburg, N. Y.—Charles Travers, formerly at Orpheum theater, Schenectady, is now managing the new Clinton theater, Plattsburg, N. Y.

Pathe Office Hustling.

Albany, N. Y.—Pathe's Albany office stands second on the list of exchanges for amount of bookings on "Who's Guilty?" Mr. Epstein, the manager, is very much pleased, of course, and says that his roadmen and office employes are working day and night to put the Albany office at the head of the list. His force consists of the following: Cashier, Henry Zeilmaker; booker, E. E. Weakley. Mr. C. Westcott has just been transferred to New York city office. Salesmen, E. G. Briggs and A. Sachs; shipper, P. Gentile.

Beautiful Saranac Lake House.

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—Seymour & Bernstein are building a beautiful $100,000 motion picture theater at Saranac Lake. Work is progressing rapidly.

Strand at Schenectady Opens.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Strand theater, Schenectady, N. Y., recently opened. The Strand was formerly called the "Art theater"—one of the finest small houses in this vicinity—also one of the oldest.

WISCONSIN NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Special Correspondent.

Theater Restricting Ordinance Illegal.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Assistant City Attorney McIntyre gave an opinion to the judiciary committee of the City Council that the ordinance restricting the number of moving picture theaters in the city is illegal. A new one will be drawn.

Talking Over a Possible Merger.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Thomas Saxe was in Chicago to attend a meeting at which the proposed merger of the Marcus Loew, C. H. Miles, Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Pantages and Saxe theaters were discussed. The new Miller theater under construction by Saxe Brothers, on Third street, will be prominent in the local end of the vaudeville chain.

Eau Claire Theaters Combine.

Eau Claire, Wis.—Four moving picture theaters in Eau Claire will unite for economy of operation, it is reported. Elimination of disastrous competition is one of the chief advantages.

New Wisconsin Theaters and Changes.

Plymouth, Wis.—John Anton of Racine and Jack Anton, proprietor of the Princess theater in this city, have purchased the Crystal theater here from August Scheibe.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Mrs. F. Rassow is having constructed at Thirty-eighth and Galena streets, brick and concrete moving picture theater which will seat 750. It will cost $15,000.

Manitowoc, Wis.—Theo. Goryizka will erect a moving picture theater at Twentieth and Marshall streets.

Superior, Wis.—The Savoy theater has been taken over by the Strand Amusement Company, which operates the Strand moving picture theater. It will run musical comedy.

Stevens Point, Wis.—"The Battle Cry of Peace" was selected as the opening attraction of J. R. McKinlay's new theater which was expected to be ready early in July. McKinlay has leased the Ideal theater for three years to C. W. Rice of Marshfield, who will operate it with a Mu[illegible] program.

[illegible] Point, Wis.—Manager Mont[illegible]ell has remodeled the Grand theater and increased its seating capacity.

Mabel Normand Company's Studio at Los Angeles, Cal.

General Film Company's Boston, Mass., Home. Photographed for The Moving Picture World by Richard Hildebrand.

Pittsburgh Screen Club Elects

At Annual Meeting on July 2 Practically Every Member Answered to His Name on Roll Call—New Officers Are: President, A. H. McClelland; Secretary, G. R. Ainsworth, Corresponding Secretary, Wm. Myer—Other Officers.

From Pittsburgh News Service, 6016 Jenkins Arcade, Pittsburgh, Correspondent.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — The Pittsburgh Screen Club held its annual election of officers at the headquarters in the Lyceum building Sunday afternoon, July 2, combining this event with one of the best attended and most enthusiastic gatherings in the history of the organization. The meeting was presided over by the retiring president, A. B. Kester. Practically every member of the Club answered to the roll call and there were a goodly number of visitors present. Mr. Kester made a brief address withdrawing his name as a candidate for re-election, as the weight of personal business matters would prevent him from serving another term. Charles Seltzer, whose name appeared on the ballot as candidate for president, and Mayer Silverman, who had been nominated for treasurer, also withdrew their names. The election resulted as follows: President, A. H. McClelland; vice-president, G. R. Ainsworth; secretary, William Mayer, re-elected; corresponding secretary, M. J. C. Kornblum, re-elected; treasurer, Charles Reamer; organizer, Max W. Herring, re-elected. The following Board of Governors was elected: Three-year term, M. Feitler, George Schweitzer; two-year trem, C. W. Eckhardt, Charles Seltzer; one-year term, Mayer Silverman, E. L. Harmon.

On account of the absence of the former treasurer, Charles Reamer assumed the duties of that office immediately after the election, and it was deemed advisable to install the rest of the officials also at this time. The newly elected president A. H. McClelland, accordingly took the chair. He made a brief but very appropriate address, which was followed by short talks by Vice-President Ainsworth, Treasurer Reamer, Corresponding Secretary Kornblum, Organizer Herring and Messrs. Schweitzer, Seltzer and Feitler, of the Board of Governors. Their remarks indicated that the zeal and enthusiasm which characterized the work of the Screen Club throughout the first year of its existance will continue to make for the success of the organization. Dr. J. R. Gray, a member of the Screen Club of Denver, Col., was present and delivered an interesting address on the work carried on there.

Admission Prices Go Up.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Beginning July 10th., the three leading motion picture theaters in the East Liberty district and among the finest in Pittsburgh, will raise their admission from 10 cents to 15 cents, the advance to be in force in the evenings. The houses adopting this arrangement, which is regarded as the initial step in a similar movement by the best theaters throughout the city, are the Regent, of the Rowland & Clark chain, the Liberty, of the Liberty Theater Company, and the East Liberty Cameraphone, of H. B. Kester. Maintaining beautiful and most comfortable houses and offering the best procurable first-run films the year round, these as well as other theaters of the higher type can readily secure the just advance in admission price and thus continue to raise their standards. These houses are located in one of the most exclusive sections of the city and cater to a large patronage of the better class.

D. C. France Will Manage Film Dept.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A. S. Davis, manager of the film department of the Feature Film & Calcium Light Company, 938-940 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, and one of the best known members of the local trade, has withdrawn from the above position on account of his many other interests. The department will be managed by D. C. France, who will take charge of the entire business, including both films and supplies. Mr. Davis is interested in oil and other lines, in addition to being connected extensively with the producing end of the film business.

Big Storehouse of Davis Co. Burns.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A spectacular fire on July 6 destroyed the large storehouse occupied by the Harry Davis enterprises Company at 108-118 Third avenue, Pittsburgh, with a total loss of $200,000. The Davis Enterprises Company, which operates the Grand Opera House, now showing feature pictures, the Lyric and the Temple theaters, exclusively picture houses, as well as the New Davis theater, the city's finest vaudeville house, used the burned building for the storage of scenery and other theater equipment. The loss on the large quantity of these goods is estimated at $40,000.

Local Film Nines Cross Bats.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The baseball fever is rampant in Pittsburgh film circles, with several games between star exchange nines scheduled each week. One of the clashes well-attended by the moving picture people took place last week at the Arlington grounds between teams of the Independent Film Exchange and the Fox Film Corporation. It developed into a slugging match, with the Fox team finally on top by a score of 13 to 10. Frank Ray pitched for the Fox team, while Ray Miller, Jack Campbell and Charles Miller took turns twirling for the Independent. J. McGrew and "Ted" Miller officiated as umpires.

Strand at Salem, W. Va., Opens.

Salem, W. Va..—The handsome new Strand theater, at Salem, W. Va., was opened on July 3 by its owner, G. C. Broadwater. The Strand has a seating capacity of 400 and is quite modern throughout. Metro, Triangle and Fox pictures are shown, with a change of program three times a week.

Curdy Wrote Prize Scenario.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Lenore M. Curdy of Pittsburgh, Pa., wrote the prize-winning script of the scenario contest which was held recently by the Pittsburgh Press. The title of the scenario is "The Man and Millionaire."

Oscar Crough Joins Unicorn.

The local office of the Unicorn Film Service has strengthened its road force by the addition of Oscar Crough, formerly of the Pathe Pittsburgh exchange.

Grand Theater Sold.

Portage, Pa.—The Grand theater, Portage, Pa., was sold recently by A. J. Lacey, of Barnesboro, to the owners of the building, who will continue to conduct the house along up-to-date lines.

New Theater in Erie.

Erie, Pa.—Work has begun on the new theater of J. G. Hamer on West Eighteenth street, Erie, Pa. The house is to be a modern, fireproof structure, embodying the latest ideas in arrangement and equipment. It will have a seating capacity of 600.

Thomas Fairgraves Buys Theater.

Erie, Pa.—The Princess theater, Erie, Pa., has been sold by its former owners, Potter and Burgess, to Thomas Fairgraves, a prominent exhibitor in Erie.

An Attractive Theater Opened.

East Liverpool, Pa.—The attractive Ceramic theater has been opened at East Liverpool, Pa., showing high-class feature pictures.

BALTIMORE NEWS LETTER.

By J. M. Shellman, 1902 Mt. Royal Terrace, Baltimore Correspondent.

Taxes of Somerset, Frederick and Cecil.

BALTIMORE, Md.—On June 30th, the tax levy for the year 1916 was completed by the county commissioners for Somerset County when they met at their offices in the Courthouse in Princess Ann, Md. The county rate was filed at $1.15, and as the state rate is 32½ cents, the combined rate will be $1.57½, which is an increase in the county rate of 12½ cents over the 1915 rate.

On June 30th a special meeting was held at night of the county commissioners in Frederick, Md., and the tax rate for Frederick County for the year 1916 was fixed at $1.05, which is 7 cents higher than the 1915 rate.

On July 3rd the county commissioners met at Elkton, Md., and the tax rate for the year 1916 for Cecil County was fixed at $1.25, which is an increase of 19 cents over the 1915 rate.

Parkway to Enlarge.

Baltimore, Md.—The Parkway Theater Company takes over new property that has a frontage of 24 feet on North Charles street and extends on a line westerly for 190 feet, which places it just in the rear of the present Parkway theater building. It is understood that an enlargement of this theater to make the seating capacity greater by 250 seats, is now being contemplated.

May Change for New Theater.

Baltimore, Md.—Manager L. A. DeHoff, of the New theater, announces that this theater is to be closed until August 1st for a general house cleaning. The entire interior will be redecorated and painted, and the scenery for the stage will be entirely remodeled to resemble the stage of the Strand theater in New York. A new operator's booth will be installed, and a new system of heating is being contemplated.

Strand's Manager Resigns.

Baltimore, Md.—The mangership of the Strand theater, 404-6 North Howard street, seems to be a bit unsettled, for Eugene M. Daly has resigned as manager, as he is again going with the Lyman Howe pictures. Rumor has it also, that Harry Woods has resigned as the general manager of this theater, and that Edward Rosenstein will again take charge as manager.

J. H. Lubin in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md. — J. H. Lubin, general manager of the Marcus Loew vaudeville enterprises visited Baltimore during the week of June 26th and had a conference with Harry Woods, resident manager of the Hippodrome theater. It is understood that this had something to do with the extension of the Loew circuit of theaters in the South.

Pathe Company in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md.—A company of Pathe players are in this city. E. I. Demarest was to direct them, but has returned to New York. The company includes Pearl White, Lila Leslie, Niles Welch, Harry Forde and several others. With the exception of Edward Jose and Harry Forde, who arrived later, all came into Baltimore on Sunday night, June 2, and are now making their headquarters at the Hotel Kernan.

Parkway Matinee.

Baltimore, Md.—Manager Bernard Depkin, Jr., of the Parkway theater, 3-9 West North avenue, has a knack of selecting photoplays that will especially appeal to the kiddies. For the usual matinee that was held on Saturday, July 1, the program included "The Three Bears" and "The Deerslayers," as well as a cartoon and several comedy subjects.

Corporation Insolvent.

Baltimore, Md.—On Saturday, June 24th, Judge Bond, in Circuit Court No. 2, adjudged the Co-Operative Industrial Corporation, proprietor of Berman's Photoplay theater, 913 East Baltimore street, insolvent and dissolved by order of the court. Edward A. Weiler was appointed receiver under a bond of $1,000.

The Censor Board.

Baltimore, Md.—Up to Saturday, June 24th, it is understood that 65 reels, comprising 26 separate productions, had been examined by the Maryland Censor Board. Mrs. Harrison, secretary of the Board, stated that nothing, up to this time, had been objected to by the Board. On Thursday, June 22, all the members attended the meeting.

The working hours are from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. and only one member sits at a time to examine the pictures. The reel is rejected or approved by the member who inspects it and if the exhibitors dissent, a second screening, in the presence of two members of the Board is held. The judgment of these two is considered final excepting a disagreement. It has been figured out that between 150 and 200 reels will be inspected every week.

Exhibitors Aid Fresh Air Fund.

Baltimore, Md.—Friday, June 30th, was known in Baltimore as "Movie Day" on the calendar of the Fresh Air Society. It was termed thus because a good many theaters donated part of the receipts on this day to the Fresh Air Fund. The Fresh Air Society was deeply gratified when the president of the Garden Theater Co. offered to give half the proceeds of the entire day at the Garden theater to the cause.

All the money taken in between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. on this day by the theaters listed below was donated to the Fresh Air Fund. The theaters included were: The Parkway, A. B. Depkin, manager; The New Pickwick, G. H. Gaffney, owner and manager; The Goldberg, S. Goldberg, manager; The Wilson, G. L. Wonders, manager; The Eureka, Mr. Keefe, manager; The Idle Hour, C. Wasky, manager; The New Brodie, J. Brodie, manager; The Bridge, The Lafayette and The Goodtime.

Innovation at Strand.

Baltimore, Md.—Through Eugene M. Daly, manager of the Strand theater, 404-6 North Howard street, it has been arranged that first run Metro pictures will be featured at this house. An ingenious innovation this theater has introduced is the presenting to its patrons with handsome motion picture magazines which feature exclusive write-ups of the screen artists. They are presented free at every performance.

"Dumb Girl" at Victoria.

Baltimore, Md.—Through Nat Keene, manager of Pearce and Scheck's Victoria theater, 415 East Baltimore street, Anna Pavlowa in "The Dumb Girl of Portici," was booked for a solid week's run from June 26 to July 1, at this theater. A fine attendance was recorded for the week.

Responsibility for Slugs in Pay Phones.

Baltimore, Md.—As many of the moving picture theaters in Baltimore have pay phones located in their lobbies for the convenience of their patrons, it is not out of place to note at this time the opinion which has just been handed down, which will be of import to them. On June 30th, W. Cabell Bruce, Chief Counsel to the Public Service Commission, gave it as his opinion that the owners of premises on which pay telephones are located are not responsible for the slugs which may be deposited in boxes as substitutes for 5-cent pieces.

Free Films for Khaki Boys

Harry M. Crandall, One of the Capital City's Leading Exhibitors, Is Furnishing a Free Picture Show Every Night at Camp Radio, Fort Myer—Finds Several Guardsmen Who Are Operators and Willing to Help.

By Clarence L. Linz, 365 Tenth St., N. E., Washington, D. C., Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Harry M. Crandall, head of a group of motion picture theaters here has made a great many friends, and has received considerable free advertising indirectly as a result of his thoughtfulness in giving the boys who have been in camp on the Fort Myer (Va.) Military Reservation preparatory to going to the border, entertainment in the way of motion picture shows.

The novelty of camp life was fast wearing off when a member of the National Guard of the District of Columbia meeting Mr. Crandall on the street casually remarked that he wished that the latter's theater could be lifted off its foundation and re-erected at Camp Radio. If that was all that was wanted, Mr. Crandall could become a fairy grandfather, with the aid of the Washington exchanges, if Uncle Sam would furnish the juice. It was not long before a tent was erected to serve as a booth, a large screen was set up at the appropriate distance from the tent, and in the tent there was installed a modern and new gasoline engine which operated a Power 6A projection machine. This latter was loaned to the camp by Mr. Crandall, as well as the rheostat, and other equipment.

Mr. Crandall has agreed to furnish a motion picture show each evening during the time the guard may be in camp, and the various exchanges without hesitation have come forward with the offer to loan such films as may be desired. The pictures have done wonders in many ways; they have made the stay of the civilian soldiers more pleasant and have aided in maintaining discipline. The thanks of the officers and the men have been extended to those who have been instrumental along these lines, and the word has gone out to other organizations what good fellows the film men of the District of Columbia are.

And there is no trouble about operators, for there are six members of the local union who are serving in the guard, and each is more than willing to do his share in turning the crank that his fellows may have the pleasure the pictures afford.

Mutual's New Offices.

Washington, D. C.—The Mutual Film Company is now well established in its new quarters at 419 Ninth street Northwest, which place was formerly occupied by the Washington Film Exchange, now located in the building adjoining the Fox Film Company, in the next block on Ninth street. These new offices are larger than those which this concern occupied across the street. They have been thoroughly gone over to meet the needs of the Mutual, and there is plenty of space for the efficient handling of the business.

Manager A. J. Nelson Still Heads Local General.

Washington, D. C.—The writer had his attention called last week to a paragraph appearing in the Moving Picture World of July 8, introducing V. H. Bendell, of the General Film Company, to the trade in this territory, which might be misinterpreted. It is not by any means to be understood that A. J. Nelson, manager of the local exchange, has been superseded by another, as some seem to have thought from the wording of the article, for Mr. Nelson is very much on the job and has succeeded in increasing his business to such an extent as to make it necessary to send Mr. Bendell to Washington to assist him. Mr. Bendell is attached to, and not in charge of the Washington branch.

Washington would indeed be sorry to lose Mr. Nelson, and the Washington correspondent will take great care in the future not to spread any false alarms, although those who misunderstood the paragraph did so through no intent on his part. The genial manager of the General is making a headway among the film interests here accomplished by no previous manager of the same concern in the same length of time. He is courteous to the very limit, always pleasant, and has a good word for everybody. No wonder he's a favorite.

But Mr. Bendell is also coming along in fine shape. He is the type of salesmen that the exhibitors like to come in contact with, and he's bound to secure a big following wherever he goes.

Miss Mary Jeffries Returns.

Washington, D. C.—Miss Mary Jeffries, assistant to Carl F. Senning, manager of the Fox exchange, has just returned from an extended vacation trip which took her to Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.; Detroit, Mich., and other middle west cities, and to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Despite this jaunt, Miss Jeffries has returned to Washington rested and ready to start in on another hard year's work. Miss Jeffries is a hard worker, and she has the distinction of being the only film executive of the female sex in the city of Washington. She is a thorough "film woman," and the members of the industry here are glad to see her back at her desk again.

John M. Britt Leaves the Elite.

Washington, D. C.—John M. Britt has severed his connection with the Elite theater on Fourteenth street Northwest. He is said to be about to re-enter the motion picture business, however, at an early date.

Universal Opens Clarksburg Office.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—The Universal Film Exchange is open and doing business now at 211 North Sixth street, and, as Manager J. A. Lavelle puts it, "we are here and now ready to take care of all the wants and requirements of the exhibitors in this section of West Virginia.

Mr. Lavelle was formerly manager of the Exhibitors' Film Exchange, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and for some time was located in Washington, D. C., as an exchange manager. He is an old timer in the game, having been connected with the business practically since its inception. He has with him Sol Burka, formerly manager and press agent for the Robinson Grand theater of Clarksburg, W. Va., and at one time advance man for Cohan and Harris productions. Mr. Burka has taken up road work, and is meeting with no little success.

Working in conjunction with the Washington and Baltimore offices, the new branch is able to furnish everything in the line of Universal service, Red Feather features and Bluebird photoplays. Mr. Lavelle extends an invitation to all of the exhibitors of the territory to drop in and see him when in the neighborhood and to look over his offerings.

F. P. Bryant Goes to Atlanta.

Charlotte, N. C.—F. P. Bryant, formerly with Pathe, Inc., and the Fox Film Corporation, has joined the sales force of the Atlanta office of the V. L. S. E., Inc., and will cover the North and South Carolina territory, relieving Mr. Simpson, who formerly covered this section, and who will now go through Mississippi and Alabama. Mr. Bryant's home is in this city, and he is well known throughout the state among the motion picture theater interests.

"Nation" Film Suit Again

Ohio Supreme Court Once More Takes Up Consideration of Censor's Ban on "The Birth of a Nation"—Decision Follows Action of the Federal Court That Leaves State Tribunal Free to Carry Matter Through.

By Kenneth C. Crain, 610 1st Nat. Bank Bldg., Cincinnati Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, O.—Hope is rising again in the hearts of those interested in the ultimate fate in Ohio of "The Birth of a Nation," one of the several big productions which Ohio exhibitors and the public have not yet been permitted to see. Following its recent action in refusing to pass upon the matter, the Ohio Supreme Court has ordered a rehearing of the case, basing its action upon the fact that the Federal Court had suspended the suit brought there in order to permit the State tribunals to carry the matter through to a finish. The Ohio Supreme Court at first took the ground that the filing of the Federal suit was enough to prevent it from going any further with consideration of the case, and this left the Epoch Producing Co., of New York, which is fighting for the right to show the picture, completely "up in the air," both courts doing the well-known Alphonse-Gaston act and each giving the other the right of way. With the rehearing by the Supreme Court, however, and the dismissal a few days ago of the suit in the Federal Court, indications are than an authoritative review of the questions involved is at last to be had.

Ed. Bernardi to Leave Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O.—Ed. Bernardi, who has been interested in and manager of the Colonial, one of the popular houses on Fifth street, ever since it was built, several years ago, is to leave Cincinnati, it is understood, going East, either to New York or Philadelphia, to form new connections in the moving-picture business.

George B. Cox's Picture Holdings.

Cincinnati, O.—The extent to which the fortune of George B. Cox, the recently deceased Cincinnati political leader and financier, was invested in moving picture enterprises, was revealed by the inventory of his estate, which was filed in court a few days ago. Among the items relating to theatrical enterprises were the following: 3,600 shares United Theaters Co., of the appraised value of $432,000; 975 shares Olympic Theater Co., Cincinnati, $87,750; 58,216 shares World Film Corporation, $29,180; 10 shares Cincinnati Walnut Theater Co., $1,000; 11 shares Strand Amusement Co., $1,100; 5 shares Loew Theatrical Enterprises, $200.

H. E. Aitken Visits C. C. Hite.

Cincinnati, O.—Manager C. C. Hite, of Triangle, had a distinguished visitor recently in the person of H. E. Aitken, president of the company, who stopped off to look things over in Cincinati, en route from New York to Chicago. Mr. Aitken was much pleased with the condition of the company's business and prospects in this section. Mr. Hite was in Indianapolis recently, closing a contract with the Circle theater there for the first run of Triangle service. The house is now under construction, and is to open about September.

Gem Theater Closes.

Ironton, O.—The Gem theater, on South third street, has been closed and placed in the hands of a receiver, bad business being given as the cause of the financial difficulties in which the owners of the house are involved. The house has been conducted by A. J. Wellman and Nicholas W. McMahon, Jr. Mr. Wellman has gone to Ashland and Mr. McMahon will take charge of the Grand theater, in Ironton, it is understood.

Burlew Theater Sold.

Charleston, W. Va.—The Burlew theater, which has been for some years operated by Gen. W. S. Burlew, is to be sold to the P. J. Crowley Co. for $135,000, it is understood. The new management is planning to make improvements which will cost about $30,000, and will make it one of the finest houses in West Virginia. The Crowley company now owns a number of houses in West Virginia, and the acquisition of the Burlew makes its chain one of considerable strength and value.

Airdome Fails on Account of Rain.

Cincinnati, O.—George C. Ruff, who, with Charles Linhardt and Martha Pollock as partners, started an airdome at 940 West Ninth street last summer, recently filed suit for the appointment of a receiver and the sale of the property, on the ground that the business cannot pay its debts and has not been run at a profit. The enterprise was badly hit by the rainy weather of last summer, and as the month of June this year was not propitious, the partners decided that it would be best to close up the business.

Small Panic With Little Cause.

Cincinnati, O.—A slight accident at the Ivy theater, in Cleves, a few days ago, indicated clearly how panics can arise in crowds without the slightest cause. A belt connecting the gasoline engine to the electric generator which supplies current to the house broke, causing some noise, and at the same time shutting off the lights. There was a mad rush for the door, in which, for a wonder, nobdy was injured, thanks largely to the coolness of the management and the employes. The trouble was remedied in a short time, and the audience returned to its seats quietly. It is a good thing to keep the possibility of a belt slipping off in mind.

CLEVELAND NEWS LETTER.

By Hubert Persons, Special Correspondent, 410 Standard Theater Building.

Candidate Opposed to Legal Censorship.

CLEVELAND, O.—Edward Stanley, manager of the Ray theater, 1114 Prospect avenue, is making anti-censorship a part of the platform on which he is making the race for election as state representative on the Republican ticket.

"I am eternally opposed to legalized censorship," Mr. Stanley said in announcing his candidacy." He is expected to receive the support of practically every man connected with the moving picture business in this part of the state.

Proposed Get-Together Called Off.

Cleveland, O.—The plan of Cleveland exhibitors to back a "get-together meeting," at Mansfield, July 6 and 7, was abandoned because too little time would intervene between that and the Chicago convention. Exhibitors declared they would not be able to attend both meetings, and did not want to miss the Chicago gathering.

Will Probably Abandon Summer Closing.

Cleveland, O.—It is expected that the effort of the Cleveland exhibitors to carry out a summer closing plan with a view to stimulating business later in the season, will be abandoned because of lack of response to the referendum vote taken recently. Sam Bullock, who fathered the closing plan, declares that indifference on the part of the exhibitors has caused the plan to fail. Only about forty responded to cards sent out from the headquarters of the Exhibitors' League. Of these about twenty-five favored closing for a few weeks in the summer.

Others declared they would close if their immediate competitors agreed to close, but would remain open otherwise.

Takes More Than a Button and a Card.

Cleveland, O.—"The One Thing Needful," was the title of an address delivered by C. A. Megown, secretary of the Northeastern Ohio Moving Picture Exhibitors' League, before the Operators' Union the night of July 5.

"It takes more than a button and a card to make a projector out of an operator," Megown declared. His address was a plea for better projection and closer co-operation between operators and exhibitors.

Making Film for General Electric Co.

Cleveland, O.—The Alhambra theater will have the first run for the East Side of the Ray comedies, made by the Reserve Photo Play Company. The comedies star Johnny and Emma Ray.

Robert H. McLaughlin, president of the Reserve Company, has just completed a five-reel scenario he was commissioned to write for the General Electric Company. It is entitled, "Flame Eternal, a Drama of Light and Love." The play is based on the theory of reincarnation. It presents in story form the history of light from the first spark to the present modern form of electric lighting. The General Electric Company will produce the picture in Los Angeles.

Reserve Photoplay Moves Studio.

Cleveland, O.—The Reserve Photo Play Company, of this city, has just moved its studio from 717 Superior avenue, to the Wilshire building, where it will occupy the entire upper floor and the roof of the building. The roof is to be used as an open air studio. All interior work is to be done in the studio proper, which has room to accommodate five "sets." The entire floor has 25,000 square feet of space.

"Better Film" Movement in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O.—The Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs has just organized a permanent sub-committee on moving pictures, as the result of the "better film" mass meeting held here a few weeks ago in the Chamber of Commerce. The new body is to be a part of the civics committee of the Federation of which Miss Bertelle M. Lyttle is chairman. Meetings are being held in the public library to formulate a definite program.

Local Film Crowds Theater.

Cleveland, O.—The Metropolitan theater was crowded to the doors five times the week of June 26, when the photoplay "The Perils of Society," presented for the benefit of a fund being raised to aid the French war orphans, was shown. The affair was in charge of Mrs. James R. Garfield. A group of society folk were the players and the scenes were enacted at various clubs and private residences.

Joe Williams Films Soldiers.

Cleveland, O.—Joe Williams, manager of the Fox Cleveland office, became a director of pictures the week of June 26, when he made nearly 3,000 feet of "war" scenes here, showing the Ohio National Guard members in camp, at drill and on duty at the hastily opened recruiting offices. A. P. Anthony was the man with the camera, but the directing was done by Williams, who is a former newspaper man. What use is to be made of the film has not been disclosed at the Fox office.

ST. LOUIS NEWS LETTER.

By A. H. Giebler, 236 Vanold Building, St. Louis Correspondent.

Flower Gift at Majestic's Birthday.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—A. D. Pappas, manager of the Majestic theater at 1020-24 Franklin avenue, celebrated the first anniversary of the theater's existence last week. More than six thousand carnations and roses were given away to the patrons as souvenirs of the occasion, and the patrons themselves entered into the spirit of the celebration with much enthusiasm and appreciation. The Majestic is operated by the McKinley Amusement Company, of which John Karzin is the president. Mr. Karzin is also proprietor of the Casino theater on Market street, and of the Royal, also on Market, opposite the Casino.

Local Pathe in Splendid Condition.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Pathe exchange at 3210 Locust street has been paid a visit recently by I. W. Goodfield, inspector and auditor of the Pathe exchanges, and was found to be in a splendid condition under the able management of C. S. Edwards, whose success in booking Pathe serials is marked. Mr. Edwards made a flying trip through his territory recently calling personally on his customers and doing some very good booking business through Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Gus Mohme in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo.—Gus Mohme, of the Biograph Company of New York, was in St. Louis on July 4, with a film featuring Bert Williams, which was shown to a number of interested exhibitors in the projection room of the General Film Exchange at 3610 Olive street. Manager H. P. Wolfberg, of the General, acted as host to the audience whom he had specially invited to the preliminary showing of the film.

IN DETROIT.

Local Universal Expanding.

Detroit, Mich.—Publicity on an extensive scale is to be thoroughly tried out by George W. Weeks, manager of the Detroit Universal, who is opening the new publicity department this week in the greatly enlarged quarters which his company has on West Fort street. Fred T. Grennell, who has been the publicity director for the Majestic, Orpheum and a dozen other local theaters, has been placed in charge.

This is the first publicity department which has been opened here by a local exchange.

"The exhibitor first will be the slogan of the department. If an exhibitor wishes any assistance in the advertising of a Blue Bird, Red Feather or Universal feature the help is here, and, of course, the service is free. We will supply him with photographs, advertising copy and every essential, even to feature stories if he can place them."

The Universal headquarters in Detroit promise to be the finest in the state, and perhaps in the country. A new fireproof film vault is just being completed and the paper and the film rooms are complete in every respect. The paper and stock rooms have their own street entrance and are separated by fire doors from the main offices which face on Fort street. The business office is finished in cream color with simple but beautiful decorations and there is light on three sides. All the furniture is in mahogany and brass railings separate the different departments. One side of the office is taken by M. S. Bailey, the manager, and the publicity department with Mr. Week's private office is directly to the rear. The switchboard operator and the information clerk are in the center and the Blue Bird, Red Feather and Universal salesmen's departments occupy the other side of the building, with the cashier's office back of the switchboard. The office will be completed in about two weeks, or not later than July 10, at which time a formal opening reception will be held, to which the exhibitors of the city and state will be invited.

Majestic's Children's Matinees Popular.

The special children's matinees at the Majestic, Detroit, are attracting about 1,500 children each Saturday. The matinees precede the regular performance, starting at 2 o'clock. A topical review of current events, a comedy and songs by Henry Santrey, comprise the children's program.

Two Ends That Don't Pull Together

Detroit Exhibitors Complain of Lack of Co-operation in Exchanges—Service at Call of Highest Bidder, Regardless of Old Relationship—Exchange Men Say Exhibitors Are Also at Fault.

By Jacob Smith, 503 Free Press Bldg., Detroit Correspondent.

DETROIT, Mich.—A very common complaint among the exhibitors of Detroit and Michigan is that a contract with the exchanges cannot be relied upon. "You may get service from a certain company for a while, but as soon as some other theater in the locality offers more money—and this is a daily occurrence of new theaters entering the field—you are politely notified that after such-and-such a date you will no longer be supplied. There are mighty few exchanges that protect the exhibitors, and it seems that they prefer to take a chance and sell to the newer theaters or those that offer more money instead of standing pat on their old customers." Such was the remark a group of small exhibitors made to the World correspondent not long ago.

In discussing this matter with Detroit exchanges, here is their viewpoint: "It is not so that we throw down every exhibitor because someone else will pay more money, although this is true in some cases—especially where a big new house enters the territory and is willing not only to pay more but to use more of our features. We would much prefer to continue relations exclusively with the small exhibitor, but how can we do it when 'he is in the rut' and makes no extra effort to increase his business. Then again, we have found that many exhibitors will sign for service with one company, while at the same time they are negotiating for other service. If they don't land this other service, they continue the original service contracted for, but if they do land the new service, they don't hesitate a minute to notify you of cancellation. In other words, the exhibitors are no more considerate of the exchange than some exchanges are of the exhibitors."

Here seems to be a sample of the exhibitors and exchanges pulling apart instead of pulling together. Each one seems determined to fight his battles entirely alone rather than meet his competitors, and those with whom he does business half-way. Real organization is certainly needed very much in the motion picture industry—not so much nationally as locally. In every section there are local conditions that differ from other sections, hence local organization is more necessary.

Two Young Exhibitors.

Detroit, Mich.—Probably the youngest theater owners in Detroit are the Cohen Bros., who operate the Coliseum, at Greenwood and Canfield avenues. Both have been in the amusement business for the past four years, formerly operating the Colonial on Gratiot avenue. The Coliseum theater is a beautiful playhouse, seating close to 800, is of solid brick and tile, and one of the coziest on the west side. The Cohen Bros. built it, and are sole owners of both the property and building.

Summer Business Fine.

Detroit, Mich.—Bert Williams, manager of the Henry S. Koppin chain of theaters—the Woodward, the Rosedale, the Comique and the LaSalle—reports that summer business is holding up exceptionally well. All of the houses are doing nicely, and all have recently been completely overhauled. General offices of the Koppin Co. are in the Breitmeyer Building.

Miles-Detroit Dividend.

Detroit, Mich.—Directors of the Miles-Detroit Theater Co. have declared the regular semi-annual cash dividend of 3½ per cent. with an additional dividend of 1½ per cent., making 5 per cent. for the six months. Checks were mailed July 10.

August Kleist Wants Ordinance Changed.

Detroit, Mich.—August Kleist, now of Mt. Clemens, but formerly of Pontiac, Mich., recently elected a delegate to the national convention at Chicago and president of Michigan State Branch No. 4, said when in Detroit the other day: "As I told the city commission of Pontiac at the time of the drafting of the local ordinance, I stand for better pictures and I worked along those lines at the Bay City State Convention and will do so again at the national convention which I will attend. As the Pontiac ordinance now stands it is next to impossible to enforce it. I believe the age limit should be set at 10 instead of 13 years as the present conditions tend to prompt the children to prevaricate in regard to their ages to gain admittance, and in spite of rigid supervising both by the censor and theater managers they will slip by. If the city ordinance called for a 10-year age limit, instead of 13, I believe it would have the effect of eliminating much of this wrong age giving and have a tendency to better the morals of the children."

F. J. O'Donnell Improving Ann Arbor House.

Frank J. O'Donnell, manager of the Majestic theater in Ann Arbor, called at the World's Detroit office on July 6. He reports that a new stage, new heating plant, new scenic effects, new carpets and draperies, and another new entrance to relieve the congestion, are among the improvements now being made to the Majestic. This house has closed for the summer, but will reopen sometime in September, during which month the University of Michigan again convenes. "It was the best season the Majestic ever had, and we had little trouble with the students, because we made them understand that there would be no free shows and that we would maintain order at any price," said Frank.

Made Use of World Article.

Detroit, Mich.—The 25,000 programs used by the Majestic theater, Detroit, for the week of June 25, contained an insert on which was reprinted the article, "Douglas Fairbanks in New York," written by George Blaisdell in the Moving Picture World. Full credit was given to Mr. Blaisdell and the World at the conclusion of the article. Many thanks.

New Theaters Thereabouts.

Detroit, Mich.—The Frank Farrington Co. has been awarded the contract for building the theater and store building on Chene street, near the Boulevard, for the Iris Theater Co.

Plymouth, Mich.—Architects Varney & Varney of Detroit are completing plans for a theater and dance building to be erected in Plymouth, Mich.

Belle Isle, Mich.—The Belle Isle Coliseum Co. has capitalized for $250,000, to erect a mammoth coliseum building on East Jefferson avenue, near the Belle Isle bridge. Frederick Ingersoll of the Knickerbocker theater, directly across the street, is the principal stockholder, holding 10,500 shares, par value $10 each.

Midland, Mich.—On July 1 a new motion picture theater will open at Midland, Mich., owned by William A. Cassidy of Saginaw. The house manager will be Sidney Jacobs. The theater seats 500.

Mortal Fear of Sabbath Shows

Church People Will Often Oppose Clean and Wholesome Amusements on Sundays Even in Places Like Havana, Illinois, Where Thousands Flock into Town Every Sunday for Recreation and Fresh Air Outing.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Special Correspondent.

HAVANA, Ill.—Manager Dick Diamond of the Castle theater brought the Sunday show issue to a focus by announcing that he would try out the Sabbath performances. The churches circulated petitions against the policy. Curiously enough, Havana has not had Sunday shows of any kind, although its career has not been marked by any Puritanical upheavals. It is located on the Illinois river near several beautiful lakes and is a growing summer resort. Special trains and steamers often bring thousands of visitors to the city on Sunday. The stranger within the gates must be cheered, therefore it is possible (or was last summer) to secure access to the saloons between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. As long as the citizens are tolerant of this and other dubious forms of hospitality, a crusade against innocuous (and Havana exhibitors use good programs) amusements would seem to be inconsistent.

Mrs. Day President of Illinois Photoplayers.

Champagne, Ill.—Mrs. F. H. Fay, who is writing the scenario for a three-reel college life story, has been elected president and director of the Illinois Photoplayers at the University of Illinois. Heinard Sellards was chosen secretary and treasurer and Owin Kiler business manager. Photography of the first production will be done by R. E. Norman of Chicago.

Camera Men Film Troops.

Springfield, Ill.—Camera men were busy during the mobilization of the Illinois National Guard in this city. J. J. Pasztor of the Selig-Tribune weekly and J. T. Rucker of the Pathe were on the ground and followed the troops to the border. George Fortune of the Illinois Film Company of this city was active in securing camp life films for local consumption.

Operator Takes Severe Electric Shock.

Warsaw, Ill.—Elmer Kuse, operator, attempted to adjust a machine at Dreamland without turning off the current. He received a shock which threw him against the other machine, where a connection was formed. He shouted for help, managed to break loose and fell unconscious.

Airdome at Alton.

Alton, Ill.—The management of Sportsman's Park has installed a motion picture machine and will use the ball park as an airdome in the evenings.

Changes in Illinois Theaters.

Rockford, Ill.—H. C. McMillan has sold his interest in the Colonial theater to Harry Wexelbaum of Lima, Ohio.

Bloomington, Ill.—C. E. Irwin has consolidated the Princess theater at 412 North Main street with the new Irvin theater. The building which the Princess occupied has been sold.

West Brooklyn, Ill.—A moving picture show, giving performances every Saturday night, has been opened in the opera house.

The manager of the New Marquette theater, Mr. B. A. Lucas, is going to install a $5,000 Seelig Pipe Organ and Orchestra, and a new $200.00 Gold Fibre screen.

Michigan Theater Changes.

Bay City, Mich.—J. D. Pilmore, former managing owner of the Bijou theater, has again taken over its management.

Adrian, Mich.—New decorations, new machines and new ventilation have been given the Crescent theater.

Coldwater, Mich.—The opera house will play feature pictures every Wednesday and Saturday. The programs started with the Famous Players' "The Eagle's Mate."

Kalamazoo, Mich.—The Fuller theater was leased by LeRoy Hornbeck, representing the Stair interests to P. C. Schram, part owner of the Orpheum theater, who will operate it as an exclusive high class feature picture house. The initial attraction was the Mutual picture, "The Isle of Love." The house was redecorated, new machines installed and an orchestra added.

Holland, Mich.—Edward F. Kirkpatrick of Chicago has purchased the Apollo theater from Roy Newman and has assumed charge.

Manistee, Mich.—O. J. Lauer formerly manager for the Fitzpatrick McElroy Company at Benton Harbor, and a stockholder of the company has assumed the management of the Lyric theater here, succeeding Otto Krause. The Lyric is installing a new pipe organ.

ACQUITTAL ON SUNDAY CHARGE

Atlanta, Ga. Jury Finds S. B. Harvil Not Guilty in Test Case.

By A. M. Beatty, 43 Copenhill Avenue, Atlanta, Special Correspondent.

ATLANTA, Ga.—The first case to be tried in the crusade against Sunday moving pictures, started by J. A. Manget, resulted in the acquittal of Samuel B. Harvil in Judge Calhoun's division of the City Criminal Court Friday, June 30.

Harvil was one of seven indicted on a charge of working on the Sabbath. He was indicted as "manager and operator" of the De Soto theater, on Whitehall street.

In his defense Harvil stated he was not the manager of the De Soto, but a minor employe, and this may have had something to do with the verdict, which was returned after the jury had been out a few minutes.

The case is regarded as a test, although one or two more of the indictments may be tried. However, it was stated in the solicitor's office Saturday that it was doubtful if there would be further prosecution in the other cases.

BILL AGAINST CONTESTS.

Popularity Contests and Like Schemes May Be Ended by Wohlwender Bill.

Atlanta, Ga.—There will be an end to moving picture and other "popularity contest" voting schemes in Georgia if the bill which was introduced by Representative Ed Wohlwender of Muscogee county on the first day of the present session of the Georgia legislature becomes a law. Mr. Wohlwender's bill would declare all such contests illegal.

Mr. Wohlwender sets forth his reasons for introducing the bill as follows:

"It is a commercial scheme to work up business, but there is too much work in it for the entrants for what they can get out of it. Every time one of these 'contests' is put on a lot of young ladies of the community get into it and try to win prizes. They can't all win, but they all put in an endless amount of work, drum every office, store and even residences in behalf of 'votes,' and in the end about half of them, or more, are disappointed. I don't believe they help the business, and certainly they don't justify the 'contestants' for the work they put in it. That's why I have introduced a bill to have it stopped."

The Wohlwender bill provides that after passage of the act it shall be illegal to conduct any "popularity contest" of any nature, whereby any ticket, writing, paper, certificate, token, device or other thing whatever is given with the subscription to any publication, or with the purchase of any article of merchandise, or theatrical ticket, purporting, designated or intended to give or entitle the holder, or any other person, to participate in any contest whereby anything of value is offered as a prize.

F. P. Bryant Will Travel for V-L-S-E.

Atlanta, Ga.—W. C. Brandon, Atlanta manager for V-L-S-E, announces the appointment of F. P. Bryant, formerly with Pathe and Fox, to a position on the sales force of the Atlanta office. Mr. Bryant will travel North Carolina and South Carolina.

Mr. Bryant's home is in Charlotte, N. C. He is known to all exhibitors in North and South Carolina and is considered one of the best posted men in that territory.

R. Simpson Transferred.

R. Simpson, whose home is in Meriden, Miss., and who has been covering North and South Carolina for the V-L-S-E, is being transferred to that state and Alabama.

Ralph DeBruler Goes to Macon.

Atlanta, Ga.—Ralph De Bruler, until recently manager of the Piedmont theater in this city, has severed his connection with that theater and will shortly leave for Macon, Ga., where he has closed a contract to assist in the management of the completion of the new photoplay theater being built there by Troop Howard and Brown Wimberly. Mr. De Bruler, when the house is completed, will conduct it upon the same high plane which he always installed in every house with which he has been connected.

The best wishes of hundreds of friends and acquaintances in Atlanta go with Mr. De Bruler in his new associations.

Theater Notes.

The Princess, Macon, Ga., is undergoing extensive repairs and when opened in the fall will be one of the handsomest houses in the South.

Pretty girls in the roles of ushers are scoring a hit at the Piedmont theater. This novelty was introduced last week by the management of the house and the service that has been given by the young ladies has been pronounced entirely satisfactory.

E. R. Croff of the Jefferson theater, St. Augustine, Fla., was in Atlanta July 1, the guest of Joe Marientette, and closed a contract for one year to use Southern World Film features.

Atlanta Personal Notes.

Hunter Bennett, special representative of the Mutual Film Corporation, after being the guest of Charles Kessnich this week, left Saturday for New Orleans.

Carl Rowntree of the Scenic Film Company is in Philadelphia in attendance on the sessions of the Ad Men's Club of the World convention.

J. B. Joel, prominent film man, of Athens, Ga., was in Atlanta Saturday along film exchange row.

A. M. Lucas, division manager of the Triangle Film Corporation, was in Atlanta on the 30th after spending a week in New Orleans.

Robert M. Savini, president of the United Film Service, with Mrs. Savini, has been in New York and Atlantic City. They returned last week.

TENNESSEE NEWS LETTER.

By J. L. Ray, 1014 Sablman Bldg., Nashville, Special Correspondent.

Chattanooga Sunday Pictures.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—That the citizens of Chattanooga are thoroughly in favor of Sunday pictures needs no further testimonial than a visit to East Lake Park on that day. The first of the free summer exhibitions was given on June 25th, being attended by a crowd probably the largest ever known to that popular amusement center. The pictures were furnished by the management of the boathouse and refreshment places as a special inducement to attract the public to the park, and the hearty manner in which the populace responded insures a continuance of the free Sunday night shows throughout the summer. The fact that the exhibitions are given in the open air serves further as an appeal to the public to visit the park during the warm months.

Shelton Takes Over Strand.

Nashville, Tenn.—The Strand theater of this city, formerly operated by the Dixie Amusement Company, H. M. Waddle, president, has been taken over by Roy Shelton through a reorganization of the company. Mr. Shelton is president of the company under the new arrangement, and will continue to serve as manager, which office he has held since the opening of the theater. The Strand is featuring Fox and Triangle productions.

King Wants Westerns.

Nashville, Tenn.—J. W. King, operating the Excel theater at Nashville, is anxious to get in touch with commercial houses having on hand a number of old westerns and military subjects, together with one reel comedies. Mr. King operates his house exclusively for colored patronage, and states that this class of exhibition never fails to attract the crowds.

The Lincoln, also for colored people, was recently disposed of by Mr. King to R. L. Lewis and D. Smith. This house is conducted on a high plane, prices running five, ten and fifteen. Manager James Raymond is well pleased with the manner in which the attendance is holding up under the new ownership.

Open Air Exhibitions.

Memphis, Tenn.—The East End Park pictures have been transferred from the theater to the open air during the hot months. The show can be quickly transferred to the playhouse, and the patrons may be assured of a good show even in the event of rain, as a large covered walk extends from the main entrance to the theater.

Sudekum Pleases Militia Men.

Mobilization Grounds, Camp Rye.—A first class projection machine, in charge of a skilled operator, has been installed in the reviewing stand at the state mobilization grounds, Cumberland Park, and a free moving picture show, with nightly change of program, is being given for the benefit of the Tennessee troops encamped here.

This splendid diversion has been afforded the soldier boys through the courtesy of Tony Sudekum, of Nashville, one of the most public-spirited exhibitors in the South.

Memphis House Improves Ventilation.

Memphis, Tenn.—The ventilating system of the Princess theater has recently been improved by the installation of a mammoth fan. This house is now second to none in point of comfort.

NEBRASKA NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Special Correspondent.

Clinton, Ia.—Manager Norman Samish of the A-Muse-U theater, is now operating the Family theater. He opened it, after alterations, with "The Foundling," and will use Paramount and Metro service.

Lisbon, Ia.—L. D. Hendrix, manager of the Star theater at Mt. Vernon, Ia., has leased the Cozy theater here. He will add twenty feet to its length and install new equipment.

Yorktown, Ia.—Ernest Azelein has purchased the Gem theater from Arthur Anderson.

Blair, Neb.—Harry Higley, formerly at Missouri Valley and Iogan, Ia., has purchased the interest of Olin Hopewell and will be associated with C. J. Robinson in the operation of the Home theater.

Nebraska City, Neb.—Manager Robert Booth of the Paramount theater was in Kansas City to purchase equipment for remodeling his theater.

New Theaters and Changes in Iowa.

Oelwein, Ia.—"The Strand" is the new name of Dreamland which now is under the same management as the Colonial theater.

Tama, Ia.—Fife & Russell, owners of the Idle Hour theater, have leased it to [illegible]kes and Ralph Fife.

Ft. Madison, Ia.—F. A. Leberman has taken over the Orpheum theater.

Tama, Ia.—F. Porter has sold the Star theater here to W. H. Clausen, owner of the Grand theater at Toledo.

Theaters Help Boys in Khaki

Minneapolis Picture Exhibitors, in Step with Confreres in Other Parts of the Nation, Are Showing Patriotic Pictures and Giving Benefit Programs—Films Show "Boys from Our Town Marching to War."

By Perry S. Williams, Special Correspondent, Address Tribune, Minneapolis, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—This part of the country has been no exception, of course, to the recent stirring scenes which have been enacted in connection with the mobilization of the state troops for service at the border. Film producing companies in the Northwest made the most of the opportunity, with the result that there now are on the market many reels which depict the "boys of your own town marching away to war." There is a brisk demand setting in for the films and it is certain that the men who jumped to grasp the opportunity will not lose anything by the venture.

One of the many uses to which the films will be put will be benefit programs the money from which will be turned over to the fund to insure better care for the boys while they are away, in case of illness and for their families who remain behind. In one case in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Battery B of the First Field Artillery, which is made up for the most part of boys and men from the exclusive social ranks of the cities, films have been taken and these will be shown at special society events which will take on the nature of charity functions.

OAK THEATER OPENS.

A New Picture House Near University of Minnesota.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Another photoplay house was added to the list of such theaters in this city several night ago when the doors of the new Oak theater, which is situated at Oak street and University avenue, were thrown open to the public. Guy Dawson, proprietor of this latest venture in the Minneapolis film theater field, reported an attendance which taxed the capacity of his house the first night. The theater will have a call on part of the business from the students at the University of Minnesota, being situated only a few blocks from the campus.

J. B. Reisman Ahead of Newspapers.

St. Paul, Minn.—J. B. Reisman, manager of the Dale theater here, gave his patrons a display of the alertness which must be possessed by the modern business man. Reisman's opportunity came on the night the state militia over the nation had been ordered mobilized by the President. As may be remembered the call came on a Sunday, June 18. A friend of Reisman who happened to be in a position to learn of the order as soon as it reached the city called the theater manager over the telephone with the result that more than 12 hours before the people read of the call in their papers the next morning Reisman's patrons had learned of it through the medium of an announcement made at the Dale theater, which Reisman wrote out at once and had thrown on the screen. The scene in the theater resembled that in a grandstand when the home team knocks out a win in the last inning, according to all reports.

F. N. Phelps Interested in New House.

Duluth, Minn.—Frank N. Phelps, manager of the New Grand theater of this place, will be part proprietor of the $100,000 moving picture playhouse which is being erected in the Twin Port of Superior just across the state line in Wisconsin. The new theater will be one of the finest equipped for its size in the country and will have the most modern arrangement and machinery obtainable. It will have a seating capacity of 1,200.

"Buzz" Bainbridge Showing Films.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The attractive Shubert theater of this city has been turned over to moving pictures. Manager "Buzz" Bainbridge, who is some film manager as well as regular theater man, is responsible for the change. The Shubert has been playing a stock company for several years. Bainbridge in announcing the change in policy, for the summer at least.

New Local Theaters and Changes.

Minneapolis, Minn.—William B. Watson is the manager for the New Lyndale theater, Lyndale avenue and Lake street, here. He formerly was manager of the Victor, Little Falls, Minn.

Milton, N. D.—A moving picture theater being put up here is being furnished with all the most modern appliances. C. W. Plan is the owner.

Seattle, Wash.—Ackerman and Harris announce that they are to construct a vaudeville and picture house which will cost from $250,000 to $300,000. Work on the big theater is to be started in the immediate future.

Langdon, N. D.—The last of the preliminary planning and other work on the new Electric theater for this place has been finished. W. F. Winter, owner, announces that he has received the final plans for the house. It will be modern in every respect.

Rio, Wis.—The new Princess theater of this place was opened a few days ago. W. F. Bridges and W. W. Collins are in charge.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—The Princess theater has been opened here. The proprietor is S. J. Smith.

Flaxton, N. D.—The year's lease just taken out on Hovland and Sweenes' Hall by J. J. Powers marks the extension of the film business here, for Mr. Powers intends to make use of the space for showing pictures.

Crosby, N. D.—Ralph W. Sellers is the new proprietor of the motion picture house here. He bought out the interest of A. A. Ashley.

Drake, N. D.—Manager Mitchell of the Grand theater at this place has further widened his activities. He has taken over the Drake moving picture theater.

Slayton, Minn.—The new playhouse nearing completion here will be devoted to pictures. It will be known as the Murray.

Stevens Point, Wis.—The Ideal theater here has been taken over by C. W. Rice. Rice has been proprietor of the Unique theater at Marshfield, Wis., for three years.

Worthington, Minn.—The Grand theater here has dropped its exclusive policy. The house recently was bought by Edward McCracken and E. M. Ehlers, who will change the policy of the theater and run it as a moving picture house.

Plymouth, Wis.—The Crystal theater has been sold to John Anton.

New Orleans Press Club Entertains

Picture Men, Legislators, Newspaper Men and Others Enjoy Good Time Together—Exchange Managers Contribute to the Entertainment a Comedy Each and Metro Wins First Prize with "Borrowing Trouble."

By George M. Cheney, New Orleans Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS.—All moving picture roads in New Orleans led to the Press Club Friday night, June 30. "An Evening," as the invitations described it, was pulled off successfully under the auspices of local exchange and newspaper men, with the film men furnishing 90 per cent. of the entertainment features. Four exchanges each sent a one-reel comedy, Metro, Pathe, General and Universal, while the Triangle contributed a two-reel Keystone. The judges awarded the first prize to the Metro organization, which sent Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in "Borrowing Trouble." The Triangle-Keystone film ran a close second, while each of the other three films were enthusiastically applauded.

A large delegation from the motion picture colony was present, including the exchange managers who had contributed the exhibition films, who were Messrs. Raoul Junet, of Pathe; Al G. Shear, of Universal; H. G. Morrow, of General; Karl A. Bugbee, of Metro, and Arthur Lucas, of Triangle. D. D. Moore, editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, and president of the Press Club, presided. A large delegation from the State Legislature was present. A number of local cartoonists caricatured prominent Orleanians in a prize contest. First prize went to L. A. Winterhalder, whose subject was Mayor Martin Behrman. At the conclusion of the exhibition the guests retired to the buffet, where palatable refreshments were served. The motion picture end of the entertainment was creditably handled by Maurice F. Barr, local manager of Blue Birds, Inc.

Metro's First New Orleans Anniversary.

New Orleans, La.—On June 27 the Southern Metro Pictures Corporation celebrated its first year of existence and prosperity in New Orleans. The initial force of the New Orleans office of Metro consisted of Karl A. Bugbee and one stenographer. When Mr. Bugbee sat down to a handsomely appointed "birthday" dinner in his residence, 1523 St. Charles avenue, there were five employes around the festive board. They were C. J. Bryant, manager of publicity; Fred Veith, booker; Victor Maurin, shipping clerk, and the Misses Louise Seibert and Josie Meyer, stenographers. Things that are usually said at birthday dinners were said at this dinner, and every one present had a share in the speechmaking. Metro's progress in the year it has been in New Orleans has been of a consistent nature.

First World Man in Khaki.

New Orleans, La.—Readers of this page in Moving Picture World may confidently expect to see several "somewhere in Mexico" dispatches before many moons. George M. Cheney, New Orleans correspondent of the World, is one of the boys in khaki. He is a high private in the rear ranks of Washington artillery, a famous command that participated in the Mexican affair of the forties and likewise covered itself with glory in the Civil War. Although Washington Artillery left this week for the border, Mr. Cheney still is in the city, having been detailed as a recruiting officer. He probably will leave at any moment, however.

Fox Picture of Camp Stafford Boys.

New Orleans, La.—Acting on a telegram from the Fox offices in New York, R. E. Barron, local manager, left this week for Camp Stafford, at Alexandria, La., to secure a thousand feet of soldier boys film. He was accompanied by N. Uyama, cameraman for the Nola Film Company. The Fox Corporation is paying particular attention to troop movements all over the country and is securing all film possible.

Film Lady Weds.

New Orleans, La.—Motion picture circles were very much interested in the wedding on June 28 of Miss Jeanne Olivier and Richard Mestayer. Miss Olivier until a few weeks ago was with the Fox stenographic forces. She was one of the oldest employes in point of service on the Row and was very popular. Mr. Mestayer is a prominent lumber man.

Soldier-Exhibitor's Mother Runs Show.

New Orleans, La.—Just what part are the women going to play in this "near-war" with Mexico Mrs. E. Harriman, at present the sole proprietor of the Broadway theater, one of the largest suburban houses in the Crescent City, can answer part of that question. The Broadway was opened a few months ago by Earle Harris and a younger son. Both were members of Washington Artillery, and both had to leave when the call to arms and the border came. What to do with the Broadway was the question. Mrs. Harris was the answer. So Mrs. Harris manages, takes tickets, and generally makes herself useful around the theater, while she prays that her sons may be returned to her. It is understood that an effort is being made to have the younger son taken out of militia service, on the ground that he was under age when he enlisted.

Shorter Crescent City Items.

"We have had 23 requests for bookings July 4 on 'The Battle Cry of Peace,'" reported R. King Evans, manager of the V-L-S-E exchange. "It is a physical impossibility to fill all these orders with five prints; we have been limited to that number. In addition we find that business in Louisiana is decidedly on the increase."

Nat Ehrlich, manager of Triangle, has returned to home stamping grounds after a few weeks at the Atlanta office.

H. F. Wilkes, Paramount manager, is on a week's trip throughout Mississippi.

It is probable that the Eugie theater, Ursuline and Dorgenois streets, will be taken over shortly and reopened.

Count J. J. De Praslin, managing director of the Southern Amusement Company, which recently took over all the picture houses in Lake Charles, La., was a visitor in town this week.

Miss Anna H. Sessions, manager of the Southern World Film, is just back from a trip through Mississippi. She finds conditions very good in that state.

Visitors on the Row this week included E. Weil, Moulin Rouge, Rayne, La., and Edgar Hirsh, Gem theater, Hattiesburg, Miss.

Rene Graubert, manager of the Pickwick Film Company of New Orleans, is at present in New York city on a business trip.

Galveston, Tex.—W. H. Suden, formerly manager of the Breakers Bathhouse, will manage the Crystal Palace this season, according to announcement made by G. K. Jorgensen, the owner.

DALLAS NEWS LETTER.

By S. A. M. Harrison, 618 Comal St., Dallas, Special Correspondent.

Lincoln Theater Opened.

HOUSTON, Tex.—A handsome new motion picture theater for colored patrons, which has been named the Lincoln, was opened June 26th. Modeled after the Queen theater, although the seating capacity is smaller, and the interior decorations not quite as elaborate, the new theater is complete in every way, and bids fair to become a very popular amusement resort. The new theater was dedicated on June 19, and in celebration of Emancipation day the evening performance was to a capacity house. It seemed very appropriate that on the anniversary of their freedom the colored people should assemble in a theater named after their liberator.

Gilligan in Houston.

Houston, Tex.—Joe Gilligan, the well known representative of the Pathe for eastern Texas, has been in Houston recently putting over the story of Pathe's new serial in the papers.

"Where Are My Children" for Houston.

Houston, Tex.—"Where Are My Children" opened in Houston July 4 for a week's run at the Zoe theater. This is one of the Hulsey theaters and Mr. Ward of Zoe, and Mr. Peebles of the Houston office of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company, owners of the picture, succeeded in getting much advance advertising.

"The Dumb Girl" Does Record Business.

Houston, Tex.—Pavlowa in "The Dumb Girl of Portici" did a record business at the Queen theater at Houston, June 27-30 inclusive.

Well-Known Exhibitor Hurt.

Terrell, Tex.—E. L. Byars of Terrell, Tex., was very badly hurt in an automobile accident recently, the accident happening between Dallas and Terrell. The car was going at a fast rate of speed as Mr. Byars in company with two other men were hurrying home as one of the party had been taken quite ill, and in attempting to pass another, the car driven by Mr. Byars turned turtle catching him under the steering wheel and crushing in his right side. At the present writing Mr. Byars is reported as doing very nicely.

Mr. Byars is very well known among the moving picture fraternity in Texas being a member of the firm of Gwin & Byars at Terrell, Tex., who are managers of the Lyric and National theaters of that city.

Lowe Sells Out to Hill.

Dallas, Tex.—W. L. Lowe has sold out his interest in the Alliance Film Corporation at Dallas, Tex., to his partner J. W. Hill, the sale taking place June 28th. Mr. Lowe has not as yet announced what his new connections will be. Mr. Hill will continue the same policy as heretofore. He is making arrangements for the handling of some "big stuff" which he expects to begin releasing about the middle of July.

Ben Lewis Goes to El Paso Theater.

Houston, Tex.—Ben B. Lewis of the Liberty theater at Houston, Tex., has gone to El Paso, where he has acquired an interest in the Grecian theater at that place. The Liberty will be in charge of H. C. Norfleet during Mr. Lewis's absence.

Among Texas Exhibitors.

Beaumont, Tex.—The Kyle opera house has recently been opened for pictures, having been taken over by Mr. Pittman of the Pittman theater at Port Arthur, Tex.

Wichita Falls, Tex.—The Lydia-Marguerite theater at Wichita Falls, Tex., under the management of Wreen & Berry has recently been closed.

Denison, Tex.—Joe Wells, who recently had charge of the Rex, has relinquished same, and is now managing the Garden theater at Longview, Tex. Mr. Wells has also taken over the Hippodrome at Tyler, Tex.

Brownsville, Tex.—A. C. Sanchez has opened a new theater in the Mexican Quarter at Brownsville, Tex.

Carmine, Tex.—Otto Schilling has opened a new theater here, and reports that business is exceptionally good.

Eilinger, Tex.—Chas Meyers has opened a new theater here.

Freeport, Tex.—H. A. Owens has moved his theater from La Porte, Tex., to Freeport, Tex.

Fayetteville, Tex.—J. O. Baco has opened a new and complete theater, and reports very good business.

Galveston, Tex.—The Best theater has changed from straight features back to a regular program. Manager claims that features do not pay in the down town houses in Galveston during the summer.

Angelton, Tex.—Prue Stuckey, formerly of Blessing, Tex., has moved his show to Angelton. He has a well equipped house and should do well, as Angelton is a very prosperous growing town and this is its first show.

Ratcliff, Tex.—A. L. Pratt has opened a new theater at Ratcliff, Tex.

Nordheim, Tex.—A. W. Sadler has opened a new theater at Nordheim, Tex.

Houston, Tex.—E. H. Hulsey of Dallas paid Houston a visit during week of June 26th, looking over his interests in that city.

Runge, Tex.—J. W. Neil has purchased the Moving Picture theater at Runge, Tex., from J. W. Ward.

Houston, Tex.—H. C. Norfleet arrived in Houston June 26th, and has been getting hold of the ropes of the Liberty theater in that city, as Mr. Lewis, the present manager, left for El Paso July 1st.

Houston, Tex.—J. W. Salles, traveling representative of the Texas Consolidated Film & Supply Company's offices, returned to his post June 24 after a two weeks' vacation, which he spent down on the coast of Louisiana at his old home. Mr. Salles will travel out of the Houston office of the Consolidated for the next few weeks.

KANSAS CITY NEWS.

Business Notes for Kansas City.

L. J. Scott, publicity manager for the V-L-S-E at Kansas City, is now getting up complete campaigns on the superfeatures, and the exhibitors are using them in real cleanups. The campaigns go into every detail that the exhibitor can possibly employ, from posters to newspaper advertising and stunts.

This sort of help has been tried out on the "Battle Cry of Peace" most thoroughly. And an incident of the results of such helps is that in all but the very smallest towns the picture is shown at least two days—the impetus gained by the efficient advertising makes the longer engagements profitable.

Lee D. Balsley, publicity manager for the Kansas City Feature Film Co., has returned from a trip through Iowa, during which he visited Cedar Rapids, Fort Madison, Burlington, Davenport, Muscatine and other places.

Among the Exchange Men.

Kansas City, Mo.—Joe Levy arrived in Kansas City last week, and will take charge of the local branch of the United Film Service. A. A. Chatkin will be advanced to a post of equal or greater importance. M. A. Levy, president of the company, was in Kansas City and announced the change.

L. E. Young, formerly with the Bluebird at Cincinnati, is now traveling out of Kansas City for the Mutual.

W. Sillman, who is closing his Lyric Theatre in Kansas City, Kan., for the summer, is now in charge of the poster department of the Associated Film Service Co.

Kansas City, Mo.—Frank A. Salisbury has joined the George Kleine forces at Kansas City as a traveler.

K. C. Agnew, formerly cashier of the Pathe exchange at Kansas City, has graduated to the road, getting the territory made vacant by the removal of W. Beckenstein to Omaha into Unicorn work.

Phil L. Ryan, who has made a fine sales record in Kansas City territory with the Kansas City Feature Film Co., distributors of Paramount, has gone to Metro, being given a territory that allows him to make his headquarters at Des Moines and to be near his parents. Mr. Ryan is a strong man in the industry; he brought to it practical advertising experience with the John Lee Mahin Advertising Agency.

A. W. King, a Kansas City man not previously connected with the industry, has joined the forces of the General at Kansas City and will travel Missouri and Kansas.

Kansas City Screen Club on Job

Preparing to Raise Funds for Active Work—May Hold a Two-Day Show Followed by Grand Ball—Expectations of Help of Talent, Both Local and Outside, and the Affair Will Be Boosted Vigorously by Local Publicity Men.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Screen Club of Kansas City is planning big things for the benefit of the industry of the entire district, events being worked out now that will "put the moving picture man on the map," not only in Kansas City but in a large area of Missouri and Kansas. To begin with, a suggestion to raise adequate funds it has been proposed and favorably considered to hold a two-day show, or in club parlance, to "run a reel," the central feature of which will be an extravaganza centering about moving pictures. The songs and story of this will be written by members of the club, and actors will be taken from the membership, and from the ranks of professionals. It is believed the companies will be glad to lend their players for the few days, and they would be given parts which would not require long rehearsal. The play would be given in a big downtown theater. It would be advertised through the entire district—and with the competent publicity men of the Kansas City exchanges on this job, it would get some advertising.

The show would run two nights. On the third night there would be a grand "moving picture ball" in Convention hall, at which again the well-known actors and actresses would be the features.

It is believed that some such plan as this would not only arouse great interest among Kansas City people in the industry, but would be welcomed by the outside exhibitors as well.

Indeed, the outside exhibitors are already taking a keen interest in the Kansas City Screen Club, and many applications for membership are coming from them. They say they want to see some place in Kansas City where they can foregather and spend their spare moments without having to loaf about the offices of the busy exchanges.

Local Bluebird Exchange Again Wins.

The Bluebird Exchange at Kansas City has for the second successive time won the contest for the largest increase in business and the most efficient operation. Three prizes of $100 each have been given, the contest covering a period of a month.

Biennial V-L-S-E. Conference.

Kansas City, Mo.—The biennial salesmen's conference of the V-L-S-E, Kansas City territory, was held recently and was the usual peppery affair—perhaps there was more pep than usual, for the cards have been turning up right for the salesmen. Their exhibitors have been making good with the pictures—and that's what the salesmen like to talk about. The details of the company policy and the plans were gone into thoroughly, discussions revealing many helpful hints. Those who attended were R. L. White, Iola district; Y. Darnell, Nebraska; H. A. Reed, Kansas; J. H. Gilinsky, Oklahoma; J. E. Story, Missouri; T. F. Nine, booker; F. G. Gettinger, sales promoter; L. J. Scott, publicity manager, and E. R. Pearson, manager of the exchange.

Emerald Airdome Opens.

Kansas City, Mo.—The open air Emerald theater, with a seating capacity of 1,000, has opened, at Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue. The management believes in giving the open air as good service as is given in the "winter" theater across the street, and the projection is particularly well cared for. The charge is five cents. Business up to winter standards is expected. The program, too, is kept up.

Reducing License Fees in Washington.

Topeka, Kan.—The city commissioners have heeded the protests of the motion picture exhibitors, and have reduced the license fees from $100 a year to $50 for houses seating 650 or over, $40 for those seating 400 to 650, and $25 for those seating less than 400.

Filming Missouri History.

Kansas City, Mo.—Historical romances based on Missouri scenes and events are being produced in Kansas City and St. Louis by the Pageant-Film Corporation of Kansas City, which has the backing of the Missouri Historical Society and many local historical associations. George B. Harrison, president, has for a year been delving into ancient history, and has uncovered a world of valuable relics and data; he has found ancient citizens who took part in many of the early day events.

Exhibitor Ferris Prospers.

Cherokee, Ia.—A. G. Ferris of Cherokee, Iowa, recently bought the Empress theater, which was three doors from his former house, the Happy Hour. He sold the Happy Hour to Sisk & James, with the understanding that the name was to be changed; that theater is now the American. Mr. Ferris took the name Happy Hour with him to his new theater, where he is continuing his former policy as to pictures. He is refurnishing the Grand, and will open it in the fall with spoken drama and feature pictures. Another instance of Mr. Ferris's enterprise is the fact that he will present the "Birth of a Nation" during July at the Grand for four days—as long a run as the picture had in the largest cities of the immediate territory.

Kansas Theater Notes.

Kansas City.—William Sillman will close the Lyric during the summer, the attendance falling off in the hot months.

Topeka.—J. C. Elliott, formerly manager of the Iris and of the Aurora, has leased the Best theatre. He has provided the Best with new equipment and is going to run it on the same high plane as those he has previously conducted.

W. E. Kleppish, owner of the Grand theatre at Fort Madison, Iowa, has bought the Orpheum, and will make the latter his regular performance house, installing the Paramount, Triangle, Fox and Metro pictures formerly shown at the Grand. He will use the latter for big features, which he will put on for runs of three and four days.

Topeka, Kan.—J. H. Cooper, manager of the Orpheum theatre, and a stockholder, has brought about a receivership, in order to give him greater opportunity to settle up the obligations of the company. J. C. Elliott, manager of the Best, was appointed receiver. The Orpheum will run as usual, the only difference being that the creditors will get their money before any goes to stockholders. It is said that Mr. Cooper, in the few months he has been interested in the house, has paid off a substantial part of the indebtedness that was hanging over it.

The Pageant-Film Corporation has leased the old John Taylor mansion, a three-story brick with two big barns, and is now installing its offices and equipment for making pictures there. Some of the early-day events center around this old home, and it is well adapted to the purposes of the company. W. Alexander Swan, formerly with the Thesbian, Kansas City, is now with the Pageant-Film Corporation, as manager of production. Mr. Swan is well and favorably known in the trade, having been identified with it for eight years.

Lorin Theater Opens in Berkeley

Beach-Krohn Amusement Company's Fine New Picture Theater Had Its Premier on June 24—Site Is Same as Old Lorin Theater in South Berkeley—Represents Investment of $50,000—Details of Construction.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North St., Berkeley, Cal., Special Correspondent.

BERKELEY, Calif.—The Lorin theater, in South Berkeley, representing an investment of $50,000, was opened by the Beach-Krahn Amusement Co. on the evening of June 24 under the most auspicious circumstances with William Hart in the "Primal Lure" as the attraction. This house occupies a frontage of sixty feet on Adeline street and is erected partly on the site of the old Lorin theater, which was closed last March and which enjoyed the distinction of being the first brick fireproof theater built in Alameda county exclusively for motion pictures.

The theater is built along simple Grecian lines, with trimmings of copper, and has a handsome marquis awning. The interior is also along simple lines, unmarred by posts or any obstructions, the color scheme being ivory blue and gold, with velvet carpets and draperies of tan and blue. In the vestibule a handsome drinking fountain is installed for the convenience of patrons. Two stairways lead to the mezzanine floor, where the ladies and gentlemen's rest rooms are located, together with the offices of the company, and from here the balcony is reached.

Music is furnished by an American Fotoplayer made at the Berkeley factory of this concern, but a few blocks from this new house. A splendid heating and ventilating system has been installed, the air throughout the house being changed every ten minutes. The new house has a seating capacity of about 900 and a daily change of program is being made, Paramount, World and Triangle releases being featured.

Closes for Alterations.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Haight Street theater has been closed for extensive alterations and when the changes are complete will have a seating capacity of 1,500 instead of 800, as at present. A large balcony is to be added and the front of the house will be made more attractive by the addition of a handsome marquise.

Manufacturer Visits Coast.

San Francisco, Calif.—I. R. Rehm, president of the Atlas Educational Film Company of Chicago, arrived here recently to inspect the local office and investigate business conditions. He came by way of the Northwest and will return home via Los Angeles and the South. Conditions throughout the country were reported to be in fine shape and the factory now has about all the business it can care for.

Old House Closed.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Elite theater, on Market street, about opposite the Imperial theater, has been closed and the equipment has been purchased by Walter Preddey. This house has been conducted for about seven years, but will now be remodeled and made over into a store.

Good Out of Town Supply Business.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Breck Photoplay Supply Company has been doing quite an extensive out of town business of late, both in supplies and machines. Among the latter that have been shipped out of late have been Simplexes to the Nixon opera house, Winnemucca, Nev.; to Robert Marsden, Jr., Marshfield, Ore., and C. L. McCarthy, Dufur, Ore. George Breck, the founder of the company, recently returned from a trip through the southern part of the state.

More Copies of Pathe News Needed.

San Francisco, Calif.—The popularity of Pathe News in this territory has become such that it has been found necessary to take another print, and five are now working out of the local office. The Orpheum theater is one of the latest theaters to add this feature to its program. Manager Oviat is now looking around for a new location, as the lease on the present quarters expires next March, and it is desired to get closer to the other exchanges.

New Traveler for Triangle.

San Francisco, Calif.—The Triangle Film has added to its traveling staff of late, having secured the services of M. F. Lowery, formerly with the General Film. The Triangle service is now getting well placed in this territory and Manager B. F. Simpson states that a steady increase is being noted all the time, indicating that conditions in general are in good shape.

Coast Edition of Pictorial Planned.

San Francisco, Calif.—Manager H. L. Knappen of the local branch of the International Film Service has received word that plans are under way for the establishment of a Pacific Coast edition of the Hearst International News Pictorial in order that this territory may secure more local news subjects and more prompt service. The local cameraman for this news pictorial recently did such a good job of photographing government fortifications for preparedness pictures that army officials were compelled to exercise their powers of censorship and some of these pictures will probably make their appearance under the caption of "Somewhere in the U. S."

J. J. Unger Back from New York.

San Francisco, Calif.—J. J. Unger, district manager for the Metro, returned recently from a business trip to New York, visiting the exchanges in this territory on his way back. He is well satisfied with the showing made by the local branch, first run pictures being shown in almost every district.

Oberle Now With All Star.

San Francisco, Calif.—A. R. Oberle, formerly of Honolulu, T. H., is now with the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc., in the capacity of traveling representative and is covering northern California with "The Ne'er Do Well" and other features controlled by this concern.

Sol L. Lesser Off for New York Again.

San Francisco, Calif.—Sol L. Lesser left recently on another trip to New York, lending color to the rumor that he has a commutation ticket between these two places which calls for so many trips a year. It is anticipated that this trip will be a short one.

California News Briefs.

Pinole, Calif.—The Star theater being erected by David Herrscher is rapidly nearing completion and will be opened at an early date.

Orange, Calif.—W. H. Fowler has purchased the Starland theater from R. E. Lowery.

Merced, Calif.—The Victor theater was recently sold by Mike Athens to Roy Halverson and is now closed. Mr. Athens is understood to have left for Douglas, Ariz., to re-enter the moving picture business.

Stockton, Calif.—The Empire theater was recently closed for two weeks by Dave Solari, during which time extensive alterations were made.

Monte Rio, Calif.—A moving picture theater has been opened at Monte Rio, a fashionable summer resort on the Russian river, by T. W. Bree.

Buys New Box Office Equipment.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Kahn & Greenfield circuit has been so well pleased with the equipment in the ticket selling booth at its new Mission theater that Caille electric ticket selling machines and change makers have been purchased for installation in the New Fillmore and the Progress theaters on Fillmore street.

Threaten Spokane With Old Blue Laws

City Commissioners Irritated by Restraining Order of Court, May, by Way of Reprisal Enforce 30 Year Old Law.

By S. Clark Patchin, 1811 Eleventh Ave., Spokane, Special Correspondent.

SPOKANE, Wash.—Another gun was fired in the censorship fight of the theater men versus the city commissioners when Charles W. York, manager of the Auditorium theater, and Elliott & Sherman Film Corporation, through their representative, W. E. Mick, filed a suit asking the judge of Superior Court to grant an injunction enjoining the city commissioners and the chief of police from interfering with the production to be shown at the Auditorium July 2 to 9, inclusive; also to prohibit them revoking or suspending the license of the theater. The commissioners ordered eliminations to which the producers and exhibitors object, basing part of their objections on the fact that the film ran for three weeks in the Clemmer theater last year after being permitted by one of the commissioners who is now in office. Judge Bruce Blake issued a temporary restraining show-cause order and a hearing was ordered.

The commissioners threaten to retaliate by enforcing an ordinance passed thirty years ago to close all the theaters on Sunday. The general provisions of the closing ordinance follows:

"No person or persons shall, within the limits of the city . . . on Sunday . . . open . . . for the purpose, exhibition or performance . . . of any play or amusement." The ordinance makes the offense a misdemeanor and provides for a fine of $10 to $50. The enforcement of the ordinance is delegated to the chief of police.

Feature Hits in Spokane.

That the martial spirit is strong in Spokane was evidenced during the presentation of Willie Collier, Jr., in "The Bugle Call" at the Liberty theater. Manager Ralph Ruffner had full houses almost constantly and critics in the local papers praised the film in strong terms and said: "If all pictures were like it there would be no call for censorship."

The annual encampment of the G. A. R. of Washington and Alaska was held in the city and hundreds of the veterans of the Civil War, Sons of Veterans, Veterans of the Spanish-American War and members of the Boy Scouts attended the theater. Members of the Woman's Relief Corps and Daughters of the G. A. R. were given a percentage of tickets sold for use on Thursday during the encampment.

"Where Are My Children?" will be permitted to be shown in the Casino theater according to the decision of Commissioner F. K. McBroom and members of his censorship board, recently appointed. A trial run of the picture was given by Manager Will T. Reed at which the members of the board were present.

DAKOTA NEWS LETTER.

By Frank H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Special Correspondent.

Theater Changes in the Dakotas.

FLAXTON, N. D.—Houland & Sivennes' hall has been leased for a year to J. J. Powers, who will conduct a moving picture show.

Milton, N. D.—C. W. Plain is erecting a moving picture theater here.

Crosby, N. D.—Ralph Saller of Westby, Mont., has purchased the Photo Play theater from A. Ashley.

Drake, N. D.—Manager Mitchell of the Grand theater has taken over the Drake picture theater.

Milbank, S. D.—Milbank now has but one moving picture show. The owners of the Comet theater have shipped their machine to Aberdeen.

Columbia, S. D.—F. S. Lewis planned to open July 15, in Columbia hall a moving picture theater seating 250. A stage and $400 worth of scenery has been installed so that it can be used for other attractions.

Mt. Vernon, S. D.—A. H. Baker of this place has purchased the Elite theater at Lanesboro, Minn.

Lawton, N. D.—Joseph Miller contemplates opening a moving picture show here in the fall.

Belle Fourche, S. D.—Couch & Peterson, proprietors of the Iris theater have purchased Dreamland theater from Miss Bessie Jones.

Ipswich, S. D.—John Pesava, who sold the Columbian theater here to Ed J. Engler and Martin Peterson has returned to Olivia, Minn., where he purchased the theater he formerly owned.

Miller, S. D.—Dan O'Connor has closed the Jewel theater.

Aberdeen, S. D.—The Rialto theater has installed a new Powers 6-B Cameragraph.

Lead, S. D.—Construction of Horace S. Clark's new theater on Main street is rapid; the end of June may see its completion. The house will seat 400 on the main floor and 300 in the balcony.

PORTLAND NEWS.

Exhibitor Is Patriotic.

Boise, Ida.—Theodore Johnson, manager of the Idaho Amusement Company operating three theaters here, won the everlasting favor of the public when he admitted the soldiers mobilized at Fort Morrison free of charge during their stay at the camp. Over 1,000 troops were quartered near Boise and any of them in uniform could see Mr. Johnson's pictures when off duty.

Heard on Film Row.

North Bend, Ore.—George Heglie has opened a new theater here seating 350. The house is first class in every respect and upholstered chairs furnished by the Service Film Company of Portland have been installed.

Portland, Ore.—A. S. Kirkpatrick, road man for Mutual, returned recently from a successful trip into Eastern Oregon and Idaho.

Woodburne, Ore.—A. Leaf has opened the Woodburn theater.

Portland, Ore.—The T. & D. theater did the biggest business since its opening day during the week of June 25 when it showed the new edition of "The Spoilers." The management has booked "Shoes" and "The Ne'er Do Well" to follow.

Portland, Ore.—The Reliable Film Service has furnished an outfit to one of the big logging camps in the woods off the Columbia River. The timber men say that by showing films of city life, the lumberjacks can be induced to remain longer at the camps.

Klickitat, Wash.—A new theater has been opened here.

Portland, Ore.—"Capturing a Lion in Montana" was shown recently at the Majestic and the lion in question was shown in a cage in the lobby. The identity of the lion was vouched for.

Portland, Ore.—Recent visitors in the city were W. A. Crank, road man for Metro out of Seattle, and E. R. Saunders, of the Bell theater, Ilwaco, Wash.

Censors Slash Big 4 Feature

"God's Country And The Woman" Suffers Severely At the Hands of Portland Censors—Is Viewed Once by Reviewers' Committee and Three Times by Board —Scenery Is About All That Remains.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, Ore.—The V-L-S-E production, "God's Country and the Woman," was roughly handled by the censor board four times during the past two months, being viewed once by the viewers' committee and three times by the official board. Were the picture shown in Portland today with the Board's sanction, it would not be "God's Country and the Woman," by James Oliver Curwood, as its title might indicate, but would be a series of incidents, somewhat connected, perhaps, transpiring in a land of wonderful scenery. This is not only the opinion of the writer, who saw the picture before any eliminations were ordered, but is as well the consensus of opinion of exhibitors who have viewed the picture and considered the effect of the eliminations ordered by the board. Fifteen hundred feet of eliminations are required to bring the picture to the Portland standard, says E. J. Myrick, manager of the Columbia theater, who has checked the excisions required by the board. The elimination blank on file at the City Hall makes the following the conditions upon which the film can be shown in Portland: Reel 1, eliminate "Shame, black beast, where is your child's father." Reel 2, eliminate leader which refers to, "your little grandson welcomes you." Reel 4, eliminate all cradle scenes, also caption, "The baby sleeps with me." Eliminate the caption, "But why should I not know, Josephine has shown me the baby," etc. Reel 5, eliminate the affidavit which refers to the mother having given birth to the child; eliminate caption, "Something terrible has happened, do not ask me," etc., and eliminate all the rest of this reel. Reel 6, eliminate all reference to the baby and all cradle scenes; eliminate all burial scenes, where Josephine is in the little cemetery and where the mother is standing by the window looking at the burial of the baby is to be eliminated; same reel, eliminate the flash backs which show the mother and baby when Josephine is explaining to Jean that they are in trouble and want him to help them out.

It will be recalled that the T. & D., Portland's largest theater, attempted to open with this picture and that the Saturday afternoon before the Sunday show the censor board viewed the picture and did not pass on it. "Dollars and the Woman" was substituted by Bruce Johnson for the opening show during the course of the viewing. Two subsequent viewings by the official body resulted in the passing of the picture with the eliminations aforesaid.

"God's Country and the Woman" was recently viewed by the censorboard at Pendleton, Oregon, and afterwards shown by C. G. Matlock at the Pastime theater. The picture received the highest praise from the Pendleton board.

Summer Films at the Heilig.

Portland, Ore.—The Heilig, Portland's largest theater, opened to pictures July 2, and will continue this policy during the summer. This house is the city's legitimate theater and seats 2,200. A large pipe organ has been installed in the orchestra pit, which has been deepened to receive it, and the organ is so constructed that it will co-ordinate automatically with the piano when desired.

All the above sounds very prosaic, but listen: The Heilig has one of the largest stages in the country, also an expansive fly loft. The stage has been converted into a Japanese garden set with rustic benches and lighted with a hundred Japanese lanterns. One garden drop sets against the back of the screen and another against the back wall of the stage. Between the two drops the floor has been polished for dancing. Cal Heilig has arranged to have his orchestra play dance music during the showing of the topical, travel and comedy films and those of the audience who desire to do so can go to the Japanese garden and dance to their hearts' content. The lobby, foyer and stage have been most artistically decorated to give the house the real atmosphere of a photoplay theater. K. D. Raker, a staunch friend of the World, is in charge of the projection.

Photoville Closes.

Portland, Ore.—S. Morton Cohen, of the Pecific photoville circuit, recently announced the closing of two of its houses, the Strand at Spokane and the Tacoma at Tacoma and the sale of the Oak theater, the Seattle house, to local interests. The Strand at Portland is still doing a good business with photoville. By reason of the closing of the two northern houses, however, the W. V. M. A. has cancelled its time here and this house will hereafter be booked through the Fisher circuit. Universal and Bluebird will be run as before.

Censors Still Cut.

Portland, Ore.—Exchange men and exhibitors are complaining louder than ever over the treatment they are receiving at the hands of the censor board since the promulgation of the so-called guides to viewers. "The Blowout," a Vogue comedy, came near meeting with disaster because it showed a plumbing shop and the usual plumbing fixtures on sale, said G. A. Reed. The Mutual manager argued with the viewer, finally inducing her to change her decision and the film was passed with but a few inches of eliminations. The viewer thereafter resigned from the board.

A committee from the Oregon Motion Picture Men's Association is working upon a plan which it will soon make public whereby theater-goers can be protected from improper pictures but which will at the same time give exchange men and exhibitors fair treatment. Tom North wired from Seattle that he would give the association his heartiest support.

Erickson Is Back.

Portland, Ore.—Emil Erickson is back at the Universal. He is booking for Bluebird and is handling the publicity for the entire northwest offices. Before leaving the Portland office about six months ago, Erickson had been employed by Universal for several years in the capacity of booker and road man and recently he was road man out of Butte.

Fox Men in Town.

Portland, Ore.—E. R. Redlich, Pacific Coast manager for William Fox, with headquarters in San Francisco, and Robert C. Montgomery, special representative from the New York office but now working on the Pacific Coast, were visitors in Portland.

D. L. Sharits Leaves Medford.

Medford, Ore.—D. L. Sharits, who has successfully operated the Star theater here for several years, has sold his house to George Hunt, now manager of the Page theater. Mr. Sharits left for Birmingham, Alabama, via the overland trail by automobile. His wife and little girl will accompany him on the long trip.

Universal Moves.

Portland, Ore.—The Film Supply Company of Oregon, handling the Universal product and also accommodating the Bluebird staff, moved to its new quarters on Ninth and Davis streets July 1. The new offices are located on the ground floor of a building erected especially for the company and are arranged and equipped in the most up to date manner. Manager Metzger does not hesitate to say that the new Universal exchange is one of the swellest on the coast.

Irwin Sees Promise in Canada

General Manager Walter W. Irwin of the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay, Inc. Finds Business in the Dominion More Apt to Grow Than That in the States—Is Now Suffering from War But Will Prosper.

By W. M. Gladish, 1263 Gerrard St., E. Toronto Correspondent.

TORONTO, Ontario—An important event occurred in Toronto moving picture circles a few days ago when General Manager Walter W. Irwin of the Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay, Inc., visited the Canadian headquarters of the company, which has now been in operation for six months. Immediately after an official inspection of the local premises he decided, it is announced, that much larger offices will be secured immediately in order to take better care of present business and to provide for the increased volume anticipated by developments throughout the whole Dominion.

Mr. Irwin holds encouraging views concerning Canada's future. "Those composing the sales forces in Canada are the most fortunate in the entire organization, for the growth of our business, and of all other businesses, is bound to be more rapid in the Dominion than in the United States," declared Mr. Irwin while in Toronto. "Canada possesses wonderful climate and tremendous national resources while its immigrants are a good class of people. It is, of course, unfortunate that Canada in her loyalty and generosity is necessarily losing so many splendid men in war but, in spite of this economic loss, Canada can look confidently to the future and anticipate great prosperity after the war—at least for several years."

FILMS FOR CAMP BORDEN.

Two Exhibitors Get Permits to Erect Theaters Near Site.

Toronto, Ontario—With the opening of Camp Borden, the new training area for 40,000 Toronto and Ontario soldiers, on July 1st, there was a great rush of business prospectors to the scene. Only two moving picture men were able to secure permits for the erection of theaters within the camp limits. These hustling picture magnates were M. S. Marvin, manager of the Strand theater, Toronto, and Stanley Adams, a Toronto entertainer. Both arranged for the erection of picture houses of permanent nature, each seating about 1,500 persons. Mr. Marvin has also built a second moving picture theater in Angus, the nearest village to the camp, nine miles away.

The Adams theater, of concrete and wooden frame construction, was erected in seven days. The Universal program will be seen here throughout the summer and seven-reel shows will be provided.

NEW CANADIAN PRODUCERS.

Canadian Picture Features Co.—Premier Feature Film Co.—Crown Theater Co.

Toronto, Ontario—Details of the organization of the Canadian Picture Features Company, Limited, one of the several new film producing companies in the Dominion, have been given to the Toronto representative of Moving Picture World. The authorized capital of the company under its Dominion charter is $500,000, of which $250,00 is said to be paid up. The officers of the company include J. Shea, the well-known theater manager of Toronto and Buffalo, who heads the new corporation, and Mr. Brownridge of Toronto.

The company has undertaken to establish a studio at Kingston, Ontario, and has asked for a five-year lease of the Kingston fair grounds for production purposes. The concern proposes to spend $20,000 immediately for the plant and equipment and to employ at least forty people from the start. It has also promised the City of Kingston that the pay roll will amount to $100,000 yearly and, as an evidence of good faith, a cash deposit of $20,000 will be made in a Kingston bank.

According to plans now being arranged in Toronto and Quebec, the Premier Feature Film Company of Canada, Limited, still another Canadian photoplay producing company, will shortly be established in Quebec. Studio equipment to the value of $35,000 has already arrived at Quebec, and the work of constructing the $50,000 studio and laboratory has been started at St. Louis and Gomin roads. New York, Quebec and Toronto capital is said to be behind the venture.

Public notice has also been given of the incorporation of the Crown Theater Company, Limited, with a capitalization of $80,000, for the purpose of renting and producing moving pictures and to engage in the operation of theaters. The headquarters of this company have been located in Quebec City also.

MONTREAL NEWS LETTER.

By Our Montreal Correspondent.

Oliver McBrien Will Manage Crystal.

MONTREAL, Canada.—Oliver McBrien has been appointed manager of the Crystal Palace theater. Mr. McBrien was formerly manager of the Family theater and later of the Scala theater.

New Manager at the Grand.

Montreal, Can.—Geo. Rotsky has been appointed manager at the new Grand theater. He was once with local General Film and later with the Mutual. There are in Montreal at the present time seventeen film exchanges and forty-eight houses showing pictures.

Gotham Film Coming.

Montreal, Can.—I. J. Barsky of the Gotham Film Co. of New York was in Montreal last week making arrangements for the Gotham program to be shown in Canada. Mr. Barsky is an old-time Canadian film man, having been in western Canada for a good many years with the Allen Amusement Co., who now control the Famous Players Film Co. for Canada. While Mr. Barsky was in town he paid a visit to S. B. Taube at the Universal Film Co.

Manager Brenon a Polo Player.

Montreal, Can.—St. John Brenon, local manager of the Fox Film, is the first Canadian exchange manager to be seen on the polo field. He has been selected to play against O'Hara on the 13th of July.

New Picture House.

Westmont, Can.—Plans have been prepared for the construction of a new picture house on the corner of Sherbrooke street and Grey avenue, Westmount. It will seat about 1,200.

From Film Baseballdom.

Montreal, Can.—The standing of teams in the local film baseball league are as follows:

| | Won. | Lost. |
|---|---|---|
| Universal Stars | 6 | 1 |
| Metro Maroons | 4 | 3 |
| Famous Players | 3 | 4 |
| C. C. Club, Tivoli theater | 1 | 6 |

G. Stevens With Toronto Universal.

Montreal, Can.—G. Stevens of Klein-Edison local exchange left for Toronto branch of the Universal.

Personal and Business Notes.

Montreal, Can.—Manager Baryle of the Universal has returned from a ten days' trip in Ontario. J. J. Orkney, manager of Bluebird, reports good business.

Harry Bryan, manager of the Windsor Photo Plays theater, has inaugurated a matinee for children on Saturday mornings from 10 to 12 which has proven a big success.

Sam Bernstein, manager of the Globe theater, has added a six-piece orchestra.

"Who's Guilty?" is proving a great success in Montreal. So great is the demand that two copies had to be released.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LETTER.

Calgary Council Votes Down Restriction Measure.

CALGARY, ALBERTA.—Alderman Arnold introduced at the last meeting of the Calgary City Council a motion which was designed to place restrictions on the location of theaters and concert halls of the city, but after considerable discussion the measure was voted down. The motion proposed that no theater should be permitted except in certain districts, unless with the consent of two-thirds of the property owners within a given radius; and the supporters of the motion urged that responsible control of such places was needed, and that it was bad policy to allow places of amusement to spread indiscriminately.

It was stated that the proposed legislation was in reality put forward in an effort to eliminate a Chinese establishment which, after being refused a theater permit on account of the fire ordinances, had just been granted a license as a concert hall, although the purposes for which the building was to be used were not altered in any way.

Colonial Theater Gives Per Cent. to Red Cross.

Vancouver, B. C.—The Daughters of the Empire held a patriotic tag day here on June 30, and Manager Hector Quagliotti of the Colonial theater made a substantial contribution to the cause by donating a percentage of his receipts to the fund. The cashier and young lady ushers wore the headdress of the Red Cross nurse, and were dressed in white. An entertaining program of musical selections was given by prominent local artists during the afternoon, and the house was crowded to capacity. "The Two Orphans," the first Fox feature to be shown at the Colonial, was the attraction.

A Sign By-Law Ruling.

Winnipeg, Man.—To correct an impression that the sign by-law forbids the taking down of signs for repainting and subsequent re-erection, City Electrician Cambridge has notified the Board of Control that this work may be done providing that it does not involve a change of location or supports.

New Batch of British War Films.

Winnipeg, Man.—A special showing of a new batch of British war pictures was given after the final performance at the Pantages one night recently, and the film created intense interest. The pictures are being handled by the Famous Players Film Service, Ltd., under the personal direction of Ben Blum.

Sues Express Company for Delay.

Victoria, B. C.—Suit has been instituted by the Dominion Theater Company of this city against the Dominion Express Company, claiming damages for the failure of the latter company to deliver the Famous Players subject, "The Eternal Grind," to the theater in time for the Monday performances, as a consequence of which the house was forced to close until Tuesday. The express company started the film toward Edmonton, and when the mistake was finally discovered aboard the train, it was too late to ship the picture on the boat for Victoria. Aided to a certain extent by this circumstance, the Royal Victoria theater, operaed by the same company, and opening on that evening with its first showing of Fox pictures, "stood them out" for the first time in the history of the house.

K. M. Leach and Wife Visit H. J. Allen.

Calgary, Alberta.—K. M. Leach and wife, operating a moving picture theater at Swift Current, Sask., were recently the guests of H. J. Allen, Calgary manager for the Famous Players Film Service, Ltd. Mr. Allen reports that the new Allen theater at Moose Jaw, Sask., is rapidly nearing completion and will be opened some time in July.

Operators' Exams Begin.

Winnipeg, Man.—Examinations of moving picture operators under the new Public Amusements Act began at the parliament buildings on June 26, under the direction of A. H. Garland, chief inspector of public amusements.

New Theaters and Changes.

Macleod, Alberta.—C. G. Bowker has taken over the Empress theater here, and has opened with Famous Players service. K. J. McRae, who formerly conducted the Empress, has left for the east.

Vancouver, B. C.—The latest issue of the British Columbia Gazette announces the incorporation of the Broadway Theater Company, Limited, with a capitalization of $20,000. Work on the Broadway theater, at Broadway and Main street in this city, is progressing at a good rate.

Stettler, Alberta.—Jack Blockley will shortly open a theater here.

Taber, Alberta.—The Palm theater is being entirely refitted, preparatory to reopening in the near future. Paramount service will be used.

Edmonton, Alberta.—The ventilating system at the Monarch theater is being improved, and business is reported as being very good, considering the season.

Fox Office in Winnipeg.

Vancouver, B. C.—R. A. Scott, general representative of the Dominion Exclusives, Ltd., handling the Fox program in Western Canada, has left to give trade showings throughout the territory, and to open an office in Winnipeg.

Sarcee City, Alberta.—This military camp now has two moving picture theaters, as well as one presenting musical comedy stock. Business is good.

Soldiers Go and Theaters Close.

Edmonton, Alberta.—An epidemic of closing has struck the Edmonton theaters, and four houses have suspended (temporarily, at least), within a very short time. The Empire has just closed its season, followed by the Bijou, which has been playing stock musical comedy and moving pictures. It is stated that the Bijou will be thoroughly renovated during the summer, re-opening with the same policy when the hot weather is over. Two picture houses—the Garland and the Orpheum, which are two of the city's oldest theaters—have also closed for lack of patronage, as the recent departure of so many soldiers from Edmonton has had the effect of cutting down the attendance very materially. It has been rumored that the Pantages was to close during the summer, but this is denied by Manager Milligan.

Local Universal Moves.

Vancouver, B. C.—After casting about for several months for a suitable location, the local office of the Universal will be moved to a ground-floor store room on Dunsmuir street near Granville, and directly across the street from the Colonial theater. This will give the Universal the only exchange quarters in the city located on the street level.

'Ray.

Vancouver, B. C.—Manager James Pilling of the Orpheum theater has been notified by the Famous Players Film Service, handling the picture, that the recent week of the British government film, "Britain Prepared," was the biggest that the picture has had in Canada. 'Ray for Vancouver!

Union Operators Win

Vancouver Managers Sacrifice Their Objections to the Union and Keep Up the Standard of Their Projection—Scarcity of Competent Men—Union Makes a Gain and Local No. 348 Is Stronger Than Ever.

By E. C. Thomas, 821 Rogers Bldg., Vancouver, B. C., Special Correspondent.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—After being in force for a period of only about ten days, the lock-out of union operators effected by the managers of all except two of the local moving picture theaters was brought to a close, and a return was made to the open-shop conditions which formerly existed.

As good non-union operators to take the places of the discharged union employes were rather hard to secure, the exhibitors decided that it would be to their advantage to keep up the standard of their projection, even if it involved sacrificing their objections to the union. Then, too, on account of this scarcity of men, many of the houses were running matinees with only one man, and there was considerable objection to this on the part of the fire underwriters.

No violence was attempted or threatened by the union operators, but their committee placed before the exhibitors a statement of the advantages of employing union men, among which was the retention of the good will of all branches of organized labor. It was also pointed out that no one would have any control over the possible actions of non-union operators, while responsibility for the conduct and efficiency of the union men rested in the organization itself.

The union operators have returned to work at the houses conducted by the National Amusement Company, and there is also one at the Rex theater, which has for a long time been operated on a strictly non-union policy. The managers of all the houses have agreed that their operators may apply for membership in the union if they so desire, and it is thought that many will take advantage of this opportunity to become affiliated with the Vancouver Local No. 348, I. A. T. S. E. The organization now bids fair to become an important factor in the local field, and there is a feeling that coming events will give it still further strength.

CARELESS OF OTHERS' RIGHTS.

Censors Do Not Return Deleted Scenes —An Injustice.

Vancouver, B. C.—A great deal of complaint is being voiced in local film circles regarding the reckless tactics pursued in the British Columbia censor's office in cutting out scenes or business in films submitted for inspection. Thousands of these cuts are made every year, and the censor's department considers this matter of so little moment that no record is kept of the number of cuts, the censor contenting himself (but no one else), with the remark that "several thousands of excisions were made," or else not mentioning this slight detail at all.

A local film man talked with the World representative at some length regarding this matter, and had some interesting comments to make. "With the comparatively small population served by the Canadian exchanges," he said, "it becomes necessary to circuit films between the various exchanges, instead of obtaining a separate copy for each office. Thus the productions of all the manufacturers are continually being sent from one province to another, where naturally the censorship standards differ materially. Where one board might take exception to certain scenes, another would cut out entirely different portions, simply depending on the disposition, digestion, and personal views of the various officials.

"But the deleted parts of our films—our own property, mind you—are not returned to us, so that when the films are sent out of the province the cuts may be replaced in their proper places. Our holier-than-thou censor refuses to give the exchanges credit for even ordinary honesty, and will only return the cuts when the entire film is returned to him, so that his approval marks may be cut out. If this is done, when the films are again brought into British Columbia they must again be submitted to the censor, and the examination fees paid over again. Because we are unable to bear the expense of these repeated examinations of the films, the parts cut out, representing thousands of dollars annually, are to all intents and purposes confiscated by the censor.

"Further than this, these cuts become effective in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, where the British Columbia authorities have no jurisdiction, and where these cuts might not have been made. Other parts, however, may be cut out, and by the time the film reaches' British Columbia again, the film has been butchered by every board in the Dominion, and represents but a shadow of its former self. Take for instance "His Prehistoric Past," a Chaplin Keystone originally issued in two thousand feet. When it finally reached here it was eight hundred feet long.

"If nothing else can be done, the censor should at least be required to issue with each film which has been cut a memorandum giving in detail the cuts made, and the reasons therefor. The revenue from the film business would amply warrant the slight extra expense this would involve, and the result would reveal some of the most idiotic excuses for mutilating a film that it is possible to imagine. Some of the 'reasons' for cuts are enough to make a horse laugh, especially since the price of gasoline has gone up."

OPERATORS LICENSING LAW.

British Columbia Will Now Examine Operators and Issue Licenses.

Vancouver, B. C.—Before being prorogued the British Columbia Legislature passed the amendment to the Moving Pictures Act, providing for the examination of operators by the provincial authorities, and taking away the right of cities to issue supplementary licenses. An elaborate equipment of projection apparatus is now being installed by the censor's department at the court house, consisting of Power's Simplex and Edison machines, transformer, motor generator set, etc., and applicants for licenses will be given a thorough examination in practical projection problems, under the supervision of a member of the censor's staff.

Local Pathe Office in Calgary.

Calgary, Alberta.—Andrew P. Keegan, western general manager of the Specialty Film Import Limited, handling the Pathe program in Canada, has arrived in this city for the purpose of establishing an office to take care of the Alberta trade. Practically all this business has heretofore been done out of the Vancouver office, but it is expected that with the new arrangement better service and better satisfaction will result. Mr. Keegan has secured quarters in the Leeson & Lineham Block, and will be ready to serve Alberta exhibitors during the first week in July.

"Camp Hughes Strand."

Winnipeg, Man.—Allardt Brothers of Chicago, operating the Strand theater in this city, have just opened at Camp Hughes, the great summer camp of the Manitoba military battalions, a large vaudeville and moving picture theater which is to be known as the "Camp Hughes Strand."

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending July 22 and July 29

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 696, 698, 700, 702.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases.

| | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916. | |
| BIOGRAPH—The Informer (Drama), (Biograph-Reissue No. 64) | 20903 |
| LUBIN—Otto's Vacation (Comedy) | 20904 |
| SELIG—The Private Banker (Two parts—Drama) | 20899-900 |
| SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 57, 1916 (Topical) | 20902 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Musical Barber (Comedy) | 20901 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916. | |
| BIOGRAPH—By Man's Law (Two parts—Drama), (Biograph-Reissue No. 65) | 20908-9 |
| ESSANAY—The Other Man (Two parts—Drama), Reissue) | 20905-6 |
| KALEM—The Great Detective (Comedy) | 20907 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916. | |
| ESSANAY—Vernon Howe Bailey's Sketch Book of New Orleans (Cartoon-Comedy) | 20911 |
| —A Scenic subject on the same reel | 20911 |
| KALEM—A Watery Wooing (Comedy) | 20910 |
| VIM FEATURE COMEDY—The Connecting Bath (Comedy) | 20912 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916. | |
| LUBIN—The Rough Neck (Three parts—Drama) | 20913-4-5 |
| SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 58, 1916 (Topical) | 20916 |
| VIM—Aunt Bill (Comedy) | 20917 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1916. | |
| KALEM—A Double Elopement (Comedy) | 20921 |
| KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE — Sibyl's Scenario (Three parts—Drama) | 20918-9-20 |
| VIM—Help Help! (Comedy) | 20923 |
| VITAGRAPH—The Fur Coat (Comedy) | 20922 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916. | |
| ESSANAY—The Grouch (Three parts—Drama) | 20924-5-6 |
| KALEM—In Death's Pathway (No. 89 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama) | 20928 |
| LUBIN—Americans After All (Comedy) | 20927 |
| SELIG—Shooting Up the Movies (Two parts—Comedy) | 20929-30 |

General Film Company.

Advance Releases.

MONDAY, JULY 24, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Sailor's Heart (Comedy—Biograph-Reissue No. 66).
BIOGRAPH—A Natural Born Gambler (Two Parts—Comedy).
LUBIN—(Title not reported.)
SELIG—The Conflict (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 59, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—A Cheap Vacation (Comedy).

TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1916.

ESSANAY—A Brother's Loyalty (Two parts—Drama) (Reissue).
KALEM—Ham Comedy (Title not decided).

WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Billionaire (Three parts—Comedy).
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 13 (Cartoon-Comedy).
—A scenic subject on the same reel.
KALEM—A Mix-up in Art (Comedy).
VIM FEATURE COMEDY—Will a Woman Tell? (Comedy).

THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1916.

LUBIN—(Title not reported.)
SELIG—The Selig-Tribune No. 60, 1916 (Topical).
VIM—The Hero (Comedy).

FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1916.

KALEM—The Girl and the Tenor (Comedy).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Sand Lark (Three parts—Drama).
VIM—What'll You Have? (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—A Jealous Guy (Comedy).

SATURDAY, JULY 29, 1916.

ESSANAY—Repentance (Three parts—Drama).
KALEM—A Plunge from the Sky (No. 90 of the "Hazards of Helen" (Railroad Series—Drama).
LUBIN—(Title not reported.)
SELIG—Local Color (Western—Comedy).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

SMASHING RECORDS

THE

Bert Williams Two Reel Comedies

Booked everywhere—in the best theaters

First release July 24th Biograph - General Film Service

WILL A WOMAN TELL?

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, JULY 26

FEATURING
THE CELEBRATED COMEDY TEAM

HARRY C. MYERS & ROSEMARY THEBY

General Film Service

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending July 22 and July 29

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 696, 698, 700, 702.)

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

| SUNDAY, JULY 16, 1916. | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| LAEMMLE—Baseball Bill No. 2 "Flirting With Marriage" (Comedy) | 01600 |
| IMP—Two Seats At the Opera (Comedy) | 01599 |
| REX—The Crimson Yoke (Two parts—Drama) | 01598 |
| MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916. | |
| NESTOR—Kill the Umpire (Comedy) | 01603 |
| RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—The Seekers (Five parts—Drama) | 01602 |
| UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 12 "On the High Seas" (Two parts—Drama) | 01620 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916. | |
| GOLD SEAL—The Crystal's Warning (Three parts—Drama) | 01604 |
| VICTOR—The Gentle Art of Burglary (Comedy) | 01605 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916. | |
| ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 29 (Topical) | 01608 |
| LAEMMLE—The Garden of Shadows (Two parts—Drama) | 01606 |
| L-KO—A Bold Bad Breeze (Comedy) | 01607 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916. | |
| BIG U—His Own Story (Drama) | 01610 |
| POWERS—The Devil Dancers of India (Educational) | 01611 |
| VICTOR—The Belle and the Bell Hop (Two parts—Comedy) | 01609 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1916. | |
| IMP—Lee Blount Goes Home (Two parts—Drama) | 01612 |
| NESTOR—The Come-On (Comedy) | 01614 |
| REX—The Phone Message (Drama) | 01613 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916. | |
| BISON—A Midwinter Madness (Two parts—Drama) | 01615 |
| JOKER—She Was Some Vampire (Comedy) | 01617 |
| LAEMMLE—A Social Slave (Drama) | 01616 |
| SUNDAY, JULY 23, 1916. | |
| IMP—No release this day | |
| L-KO—Spring Fever (Comedy) | 01620 |
| REX—Branscombe's Pal (Two parts—Drama) | 01618 |
| MONDAY, JULY 24, 1916. | |
| NESTOR—Art for Art's Sake (Comedy) | 01622 |
| RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAY—Temptation and the Man (Five parts—Drama) | 01621 |
| UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—The Adventures of Peg o' the Ring No. 13 (Two parts—Drama) | 01639 |
| TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1916. | |
| L-KO—Lizzie's Lingering Love (Three parts—Comedy) | 01623 |
| REX—Cross Purposes (Drama) | 01624 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1916. | |
| ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 30 (Topical) | 01627 |
| GOLD SEAL—A Splash of Local Color (Two parts—Drama) | 01625 |
| VICTOR—Just a Few Little Things (Comedy) | 01626 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1916. | |
| BIG U—Priscilla's Prisoner (Two parts—Drama) | 01629 |
| IMP—Won by Valor (Drama) | 01628 |
| POWERS—Jitney Jack and Gasolena (Comedy-Cartoon) | 01630 |
| —Creating Life From a Dead Leaf (Educational) | 01630 |
| FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1916. | |
| BIG U—A Great Love (Drama) | 01632 |
| IMP—The Circular Room (Two parts—Drama) | 01631 |
| NESTOR—The Unexpected Scoop (Comedy) | 01633 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 29, 1916. | |
| BISON—For the Love of a Girl (Two parts—Drama) | 01634 |
| JOKER—I've Got Yer Number (Comedy) | 01636 |
| LAEMMLE—The Mask of Fortune (Drama) | 01635 |

Mutual Film Corporation.

| SUNDAY, JULY 16, 1916. | Serial No. |
|---|---|
| BEAUTY—The Rummy Act of Omar K. M. (Comedy) | 04899 |
| GAUMONT—Reel Life No. 11 (Mutual Film Magazine) | 04901 |
| VOGUE—A Deep Sea Liar (Comedy) | 04900 |
| MONDAY, JULY 17, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—The Dancer (Two parts—Drama) | 04902-3 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Title to be announced later | |
| TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1916. | |
| VOGUE—Title to be announced later | 04904 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—In the Land of the Tortilla (Comedy) | 04906 |
| GAUMONT—See America First No. 45 "New Orleans, La." (Scenic) | 04907 |
| —Kartoon Komics (Cartoon) | 04907 |
| MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 81 (Topical) | 04905 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1916. | |
| GAUMONT—Gates of Divorce (Three parts—Dr.) | 04908-9110 |
| MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION—Doorsteps (Turner—Five parts—Drama) (No. 120) | |
| FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1916. | |
| CUB—Jerry's Strategem (Comedy) | 04913 |
| MUSTANG—The Dyspeptic (Two parts—Drama) | 04901-2 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1916. | |
| CENTAUR—The Ostrich Tip (Two parts—Drama) | 04914-5 |
| SUNDAY, JULY 23, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—A Studio Satire (Comedy) | 04915 |
| GAUMONT—Reel Life (Mutual Film Magazine) | 04918 |
| VOGUE—For Ten Thousand Bucks (Two parts—Comedy) | 04916-7 |
| MONDAY, JULY 24, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—Pastures Green (Two parts—Drama) | 04919-20 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Title to be announced later | |
| TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1916. | |
| VOGUE—Jealousy a la Carte (Comedy | 04921 |
| WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1916. | |
| BEAUTY—Gamblers in Greenbacks (Comedy) | 04923 |
| GAUMONT—See America First, No. 46 (Scenic) | 04924 |
| —Kartoon Komics (Cartoon) | 04924 |
| MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 82 (Topical) | 04922 |
| THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1916. | |
| AMERICAN—Out of the Rainbow (Three parts—Drama) | 04925-6-7 |
| MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Title to be announced later | |
| FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1916. | |
| CUB—The Masque Ball (Comedy) | 04930 |
| MUSTANG—That Gal of Burke's (Two parts—Dr.) | 04928-9 |
| SATURDAY, JULY 29, 1916. | |
| CENTAUR—The Haunted Symphony (Two parts—Drama) | 04931-2 |

EXHIBITORS
Attending the # CONVENTION

Can prove to their own satisfaction that a

SEEBURG
Pipe-Organ and Self-Playing Orchestra

Solves the Music Problem

Be sure to visit our exhibit—North End, Exposition Building

The SEEBURG exhibit is The BIGGEST at the CONVENTION

The SEEBURG was chosen to interpret the pictures at the Convention Theatre.

This is an unusual opportunity to learn that the SEEBURG will give YOU

100% SATISFACTORY RESULTS

J. P. SEEBURG PIANO COMPANY

Manufacturers

1004 REPUBLIC BUILDING, STATE & ADAMS STS., CHICAGO

BRANCHES

BOSTON 162 Boylston St.
MINNEAPOLIS 80 So. 8th St.
NEW YORK 729 Seventh Ave.
BEAUMONT, TEXAS 702 Pearl St.
PHILADELPHIA 923 Walnut St.
FARGO, N. D. Stone Bldg.
PITTSBURGH 791 Penn St.
ST. LOUIS 602 Princess Theatre Bldg.
ATLANTA 65 N. Pryor St.
SAN FRANCISCO 52 Turk St.

Stories of the Films

BIOGRAPH.

THE INFORMER (Re-issue—July 17).—The cast: The girl (Mary Pickford); Her sweetheart (Walter Miller); His brother (Henry Walthall); The girl's mother (Kate Bruce); A Southern girl (Dorothy Gish); A Southern boy (Robert Harron); Soldiers (W. Christy Cabanne, Joseph Graybill and Harry Carey).

The young lover leaving home at the opening of the war to join the Confederate Army, tells his brother to take care of his fatherless sweetheart during the perilous times which are to follow. But the brother weakens and fails to be true to his trust. He permits her to believe that her lover is dead. Caught in the neighborhood, however, between the lines of the enemy, the brother appears before them at the crucial moment. In retaliation the false brother turns informer. Both forces are aroused to arms and during the attack upon the girl defending her wounded lover and family alone in the negro's cabin retribution comes in the form of a stray bullet.

BY MAN'S LAW (Re-issue—Two Parts—July 18).—The cast: The girl (Mae Marsh); The boy (Robert Harron; The slavers (Antonio Moreno); The brothers (Mildred Manning, Donald Crisp and Alan Hale); Oil Magnate (Charles H. Mailes).

"Are the days of despotism over, when one hypocritical Money God can so sway the wheels of destiny that thousands of helpless men, women and children may be thrown defenceless upon the world?" So the editorial questioned. It served only as an impetus for the magnate to turn public opinion by philanthropy, while he continued to satisfy his own lusts at the expense of other lives.

ESSANAY.

THE SECRET OF THE NIGHT (Three Parts—July 15).—The cast: Evelyn Glenn (Lillian Drew); John Martin (Sydney Ainsworth); Carrol Johnson (John Lorenz); Grace Martin (Gertrude Glover).

Against her father's wishes Evelyn Glenn marries John Martin, a detective. For a year they are happy together and then Martin suddenly disappears. He has been struck by lightning and becomes a victim of asphasia. With memory of his identity completely obliterated, he, strangely enough, takes up his same line of work. As Thomas Harding he becomes a famous detective. His wife lives on in darkness concerning the mystery of her husband's disappearance. Grace, her daughter, grows to womanhood and is to marry Carol Johnson. Francois Maudont, a French adventurer posing under the name of Cuthbert, fascinates her and possesses a hypnotic power over the girl which puzzles her mother. She appeals to a detective agency and Thomas Harding is assigned to the case. The shock of meeting with the familiar surroundings of the past brings back his memory and John Martin and his wife begin life where they left off years before.

THE OTHER MAN (Re-issue—Two Parts—July 18).—The cast: Harry Ross (Francis X. Bushman); Mildred Braddon (Lillian Drew).

Harry Ross, returning from a long trip taken when his wife divorced him at her father's behest to marry Frederick Braddon, a millionaire, calls on her. She finds the old love returning and consents to fly with him. But Bleeker, the old butler, stands at the door with her child as Mildred, suitcase in hand, prepares to depart. She cannot go on. So it is Bleeker instead of Mildred who meets Ross at the hotel. Ross is given a letter, a locket and a photograph of the baby. He understands and, a broken man, leaves.

VERNON HOWE BAILEY'S SKETCH BOOK OF NEW ORLEANS (July 19).

These are motion drawings picturing New Orleans from the time of its earliest settlement in 1702 by the Indians. The walled city, constructed of five forts in 1769, is shown with the development which has brought it up to its present state—a great modern city, important in commerce and shipping and having a population of 350,000. In the old French quarter much of the picturesqueness and charm of its earlier days is retained, and this has not escaped the pen of the sketch artist. This is a split reel release, sharing the length with western scenic.

THE GROUCH (Three Parts—July 22).—The cast: Jimmie Bradley (Harry Beaumont); Peter Dixon (Harry Dunkinson); Helen, his daughter (Virginia Bowker); Mrs. Dixon (Camille D'Arcy); Dr. Bradley (John Cossar).

Dr. Bradley has been trying without success to amputate Peter Dixon's grouch. Peter is the original hard shell crab, and his contracting business suffers. When Jimmie Bradley, the doctor's son, comes home from college with a commercial education, friends try to get him the position of office manager for Dixon. On the mayor's recommendation Dixon gives him a trial. He effects a complete change in the office and in Dixon. The grouch permits himself to be taught golf and startles his wife and daughter by his change in demeanor and attire. Suspicious, they follow him to the country club and find him gaily chatting with a number of girls. There is a scene and Jimmie is discharged in front of everybody. But Mrs. Dixon, Helen and Jimmie are contented, nevertheless, the latter two for more than one reason.

KALEM.

IN THE SERVICE OF THE STATE (No. 13 of "The Social Pirates"—Two Parts—June 19).—The cast: Mona (Marin Sais); Mary (Ollie Kirkby); Jones (E. Forrest Taylor); The purser (Frank Jonasson); Mr. X (Rupert Dell); The captain (Edward Clisbee). Producer, James W. Horne.

Mona and Mary become volunteers in the service of the government to aid Jones, of the Secret Service, recover from the foreign agent, Mr. X, important fortification plans. Mr. X has escaped to an ocean liner, and for diplomatic reasons it is necessary that Jones recover the plans without creating any disturbance or publicity. All Jones' efforts and the attempts of the girls to make the acquaintance of Mr. X at first prove fruitless. Then, following a new plan, Mary becomes a close friend of the purser, the only person on board besides Mr. X knowing the combination of the safe in his stateroom.

At the dance on the last night of the voyage numerous articles of jewelry disappear, and when the discovery is made Mary is accused of the crime because of an incriminating necklace found hidden in her girdle. While a search of Mary's room is being made by the ship's officers and Mona, who claims to have lost a diamond brooch, Jones enters and tells of having seen Mr. X steal up to his stateroom during the dance, put a suspicious looking package in his safe and later, on deck, slip the necklace in Mary's girdle. To avoid making a false step it is decided that the purser shall search the safe.

Mona watches at the door to give the alarm should Mr. X arrive. As the safe door swings open, she calls a warning and the purser runs to the door. Mona who really has the stolen valuables in her handkerchief, hurriedly slips them in the safe and extracts the fortification map. Mr. X, accused of the thefts, notices the loss of the map, and immediately takes on a mask of silence. At Mona's suggestion, the captain decides that since the stolen articles have been recovered and to avoid scandal for the line, no prosecution will be made.

THE BEGGAR AND HIS CHILD (June 20).—The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); Mr. Lotta Coin (A. Edmondson); Mrs. Lotta Coin (Mrs. Dunlap).

"I'm goin' to be a beggar and you're goin' to be my child," says Ham to Bud, and it is no sooner said than done. Bud makes a captivating little girl, while Ham plays a fiddle. They are in a fair way to getting rich quick when Mrs. Lotta Coin happens along. "How strangely you resemble our little Nell," she says to Bud, after which she adopts the "youngster," making Ham her butler. Life is one sweet song for the pair in the Lotta Coin home until their rivalries get too strenuous and a sudden expose ends with them out on the sidewalk.

THAT LONELY WIDOW (June 21).—A description of this release was published on page 134 of the issue dated July 1.

HER GREAT INVENTION (June 23).—A synopsis of this release was published on page 134 of the July 1 issue.

THE MYSTERIOUS CIPHER (No. 85 of "The Hazards of Helen"—June 24).—The cast: Helen, the operator (Helen Gibson); Chilton, dealer in antiques (G. A. Williams); His partner (P. S. Pembroke); Blanding, their tool (Ed Gibson); The claim agent (C. W. Dudley). Released Saturday, June 24.

Chilton, a crooked dealer in antiques, decides on a daring scheme to recoup his finances by defrauding the railroad. A car-load of cheap furniture is shipped with a valuation of $40,000 on it. Blanding, the tool of Chilton and his partner, awaits at Lone Point a telegram giving the number of the car. A cipher message comes, and shortly after Blanding receives it the car is found afire at the siding. So carefully have the plans been laid that the dealers succeed in collecting the damage claim, after which another cipher is sent to Lone Point telling Blanding to come out of hiding. Helen, whose suspicions have been aroused by the ciphers, sets about a lone investigation. How her keen wits—and, when the moment of danger comes, her bravery in the face of terrible danger—succeed in apprehending the guilty ones is told in the closing scenes of this "Hazard of Helen."

THE MUSIC SWINDLERS (No. 14 of "The Social Pirates"—Two Parts—June 26.).—The cast: Mona (Marin Sais); Mary (Ollie Kirkby); Prof. Herman (Frank Jonasson); His aide (Rupert Dell); Carson (E. Forrest Taylor); Grant, a reporter (R. E. Bradley); Winnie (Priscilla Dean). Directed by James W. Horne.

Mona and Mary, on a slumming trip with Carson, the milionaire social worker who has aided them in the past, learn the story of Winnie, who has been brought to starvation through being duped by Prof. Herman. The latter is an unscrupulous sharp who defrauds girls and their doting parents through promises of a brilliant future on the concert stage after he has cultivated their volces.

The girls plan to recover Winnie's money and drive Herman from business. Mary becomes one of his pupils, and after winning his confidence secures his aid in a plan to mulct Mona and her supposed wealthy backers, Carson and Grant. The plan works along smoothly until the suspicions of Herman's aide are aroused and from then on the struggle is bitter until the final scene finds the girls successful.

HAM THE EXPLORER (June 27).—The cast: Ham (Lloyd V. Hamilton); Bud (Bud Duncan); Queen Eukalelle (Eileen Godsey).

Ham and Bud find a mysterious map, showing the hiding place of a treasure hoard. They then set out on a wild journey to the land of the Euks, where the treasure is hidden. In the land of the Euks they meet Eukalelle, who is "some queen." But they arouse the wrath of Olgaloola, the medicine man of the tribe and Ham is sentenced to the axe.

But he succeeds in inveigling Olgaloola into a game of dice and before it is over Ham possesses the crown and all the authority that goes with it. He then becomes jealous of Bud, who is getting in strong with the queen, and Bud is sentenced to the fate originally set for Ham. But another game follows, and its conclusion finds Bud crowned King. But by this time Ogaloola has gathered his followers and a battle starts which sends Ham, Bud and Queen Eukalelle flying for safety.

WHEN OPPORTUNITY KNOCKED (June 28).—The cast: Annette (Ethel Teare); Reggie (Victor Rottman); Sam (Freddie Graelick); Mrs. Sumclass (Myrta Sterling). Written by Louis B. Gardner. Produced by Harry Millarde.

Annette is a struggling artist, hoping for the day when she will paint some society leader's portrait and be made. Mrs. Someclass, who lives next door, is cold to her advances. Reggie Sumclass wants to attend the Jolly Fellows Picnic, but is told by his mother to stay at home. At first he kicks, but when the view from his window discloses Annette across the areaway painting industriously he is satisfied to remain to flirt. This meeting with no response he starts to sing and thrum the mandolin. His music is so atrocious that Annette instructs her colored servant to subjugate him.

Sam looks up the dictionary and finds that "subjugate" means to conquer by force, to bring into dominion. He carries instructions out literally to Annette's dismay. Then, just as she is deliberating the problem of handling the much-battered and unconscious Reggie, the doorbell rings. It is Mrs. Sumclass, decided, after a quarrel with her artist, to give Annette an opportunity. Here is the chance for which she has waited—but under such circumstances! Reggie is hurriedly hidden in a cupboard under guard of Sam. When he awakes there is a grand scuffle, much noise and explanations. Mrs. Sumclass says "So you did go to that Jolly Fellows Picnic after all, didn't you?" and then apologizes to Annette for his entrance into her house in such condition. Reggie grasps the situation and admits his guilt, receiving in

Developing and Printing

Guaranteed to be photographically correct. Let our expert photographers bring out your negatives and prints the way you want them.

Low prices—satisfaction guaranteed.

IMPERIAL FILM MFG. CO.

Offices, 547-549 Peoples Gas Building

Studio and Factory, 950 Edgecomb Pl., Chicago, Ill.

reward a grateful smile from Annette, with the promse after Mrs. Sumclass has left, that "You may call occasionally."

SETTING THE FASHION (June 30).—The cast: Sis Hopkins (Rose Melville); The demon janitor (Henry Murdock); Mike, the mail man (Frank Minzey); Madame Prichet (Olive West). Written by Samuel J. Taylor. Directed by Robert Eilis.

Sis loses her place as maid because the attentions of Mike, the mail man, prevent her from carrying out her duties. She gets a job as assistant to the demon janitor of the building in which Madame Prichet has her hairdressing parlor. Madame Prichet hurries off to her home in response to a telegram that "Your husband has eloped with a chicken." Sis, left in charge of the shop, tries her best to do the work, but she knows only one style of hairdressing and that the stiff pigtails she wears herself. As the name of Madame Prichet's shop is an authority the society leaders accept the style as the latest from France and soon all the society of the town is wearing pigtails. It leads to absurd complications that form the balance of this one-reel comedy.

THE ENGINEER'S HONOR (No. 86 of "The Hazards of Helen"—July 1).—The cast: Helen, the operator (Helen Gibson); Gypsy Joe (O. Philippi); Auditor Blake (G. A. Williams); His son (P. S. Pembroke). Written by Herman A. Blackman. Produced by James Davis.

Circumstances make Helen think that Jack, the engineer and son of the road's auditor, is guilty of the theft of $50 that comes to light through a shortage in her accounts. Gypsy Joe, the real thief, gathers his followers to seek vengeance on the train crew for having thrown him off the train. In the fight which follows Gypsy Joe's followers are vanquished, but the leader succeeds in overcoming Jack, the engineer, and making way with the engine. Jack, who lies stunned on the floor of the cab, gradually recovers his senses and pounces on Joe. A blow renders Gypsy Joe unconscious, but a second later Jack also drops once more to the floor of the cab, for the struggle has been too much for his ebbing strength.

Trainmen notice the wild engine and word is sent ahead to Helen to derail it to save the passenger. At the moment Helen is confessing to Auditor Blake that she believes his son guilty of the theft. Blake pleads with her not to derail the engine, and they determine on a daring plan. As the engine approaches they climb into Blake's auto and start down the track. Helen climbs out on the hood and when the engine comes within reach quickly leaps to the cowcatcher, while the auto swerves from the track and the path of the onrushing locomotive. In another second Helen brings the engine to a stop within inches of the oncoming passenger. As they prepare to bandage Gypsy Joe's wound his bandanna headcovering is removed, and with it is disclosed the stolen money.

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 52 (June 29).

College Station, Texas.—In spite of the lack of machine guns in the army, the Government places two at the disposal of Agricultural and Mechanical College here.

On the Eastern Front, Russia.—The Russians in the retreat, which they are now retrieving, burned all their bridges, but the German army builds bridges as well as it fights.

Cambridge, Mass.—Class day at Harvard ends in a riot of confetti as the thousands of spectators pelt the students in the stadium.

New York, N. Y.—The "Fighting 69th" create immense enthusiasm in their march down Fifth avenue to entrain for camp.

Washington, D. C.—Without the pomp of a reviewing stand, President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker witness the departure of the District of Columbia troops for Fort Meyer.

Surrey, England.—The women in this neighborhood, undaunted by the scarcity of men, are taking entire charge of the work on the farms.

Dudley, England.—The soldiers who have lost a leg in the trenches and are now supplied with artificial limbs, are fast learning to walk without crutches.

Springfield, Ill.—The camps Lincoln and Dunne are attracting visitors from all over the state. Joseph Medill Patterson, Associate Editor, Chicago Tribune, takes as good care of his horse as he does of his newspaper. Mayor R. R. McCormick of the First Cavalry, I. N. G., Associate Editor, Chicago Tribune, bids Mr. McCormick "Good-bye."

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 53 (July 3).

Troy, N. Y.—Company A, 2nd Infantry New York National Guard, dressed up like hobby horses perform a few fancy stunts before leaving for Camp Whitman.

Camp Johnson, Cal.—The National Guardsmen of this state demonstrate that they are well equipped and well trained.

New London, Conn.—In a grueling race over the historic course here, Harvard defeats Yale in the 8-oared varsity classic.

Camp Whitman, N. Y.—The boys of the 69th find a number of unusual tasks for city bred chaps in the business of camp life.

El Paso, Texas.—General Bell redisposes his men to bring the entire town of Juarez, across the river, under the guns of the U. S. troops.

Lincolnshire, England.—The Lincoln handicap here was witnessed by thousands, including leaders in society.

Mexico City, Mex.—Thousands of Mexicans throng the streets and greet Carranza on the occasion of his speech upholding General Trevino's action in attacking U. S. troops at Carrizal.

Chicago, Ill.—Cy De Vry, curator of the Lincoln Park Zoo, practices a little dentistry on Abigail, the dainty python who suffers with toothache.

San Antonio, Texas.—General Funston, the capable commander of the border troops, is undaunted by the prospect of the enormous job of "cleaning up Mexico."

THE PRIVATE BANKER (Three Parts—July 17).—The cast: Lucia (Edith Johnson); Pietro (Wheeler Oakman); Tony (Leo Pierson); Tomaso (Harry Lonsdale); Amato (Thomas Bates). Directed by Thomas Santschi. Written by Edward Hungerford.

Pietro, a young Italian workman, loves Lucia, a beautiful young Italian girl. Pietro has for his rival in love, Tony, an Italian idler and crook. Tomaso, foreman of the roadwork, favors the courting of Pietro, for the young Italian is a hard worker and saves his money.

Tony and Amato, an elderly Italian crook, plan to start a private bank. Amato purchases bank furniture on the instaliment plan, and sends Tony forth through the Italian colony to induce his friends to place their savings in Amato's bank at a tempting rate of interest. A large amount of money is thus obtained, and Amato plans to flee with the ill-gotten gains, leaving the Italian workers penniless. The night Amato plans his escape, Tony enters the bank, discovers Amato's plot and kills him. Pietro has followed Tony, who has been acting suspiciously and discovers the crime. He takes the money from Tony and hides it, with a determination to return the funds to the rightful owners later.

Tony, through revenge, charges that Pietro killed Amato and stole the money. When Pietro arrives at the scene of work the next morning he is surrounded by a mob of infuriated workmen. Before he can explain, he is overpowered and placed unconscious in the scoop of a large steam shovel.

In the meantime, Lucia, who has been ministering to Tony, who was injured, discovers that Tony is the guilty party. She rushes to the locality where her father and the Italian workmen are employed, springs to the steam shovel and stops it just in time to save her lover's life. Pietro then produces the satchel of money, which he had hidden, and explains the entire circumstance to his Italian friends.

SHOOTING UP THE MOVIES (Two Parts—July 22).—The cast: Tom Travis (Tom Mix); Vicky Wilson (Victoria Forde); Sheriff Wilson (Sid Jordan); Murry (Howard Farrell); Hazel (Hazel Daly); Bad Man of Hell's Half Acre (Joe Ryan). Written and directed by Tom Mix.

Tom Travis, a bad man, comes to New Mexico. He sees Vicky, the sheriff's daughter, playing a part for a motion picture company. The action calls for Vicky to be overcome by the villain and thrown on a horse. Tom, not understanding the action, blazes away at the villain, and the bullet passes through the actor's hat, chasing the horse upon which Vicky is riding. Tom, coming up with Vicky, believes he has saved her.

The director and Vicky's father think Tom a great actor. The sheriff, however, discovers that Tom has the reputation of a "bad" man, and orders him to stay away. Tom, of course, ignores this admonition, and spends his time making love to Vicky. The sheriff again orders Tom away, and in a rage, Tom proceeds to shoot up part of the town known as Hell's Half Acre.

A posse and the sheriff pursue Tom, but on second thought the sheriff decides to make Tom a deputy, because of his good work in clearing up the neighborhood.

Tom and Vicky again meet and refuse to renounce their love for one another. Then it is that father decides that he must make the best of the love match, and permits the couple to plight their troth.

LUBIN.

OTTO THE SLEUTH (July 10).—The cast: The Sleuth (Davy Don); Mistress (Florence Williams); The Butler (Bernard Siegel); The Maid (Patsy De Forest). Adapted and directed by Edwin McKim.

The sleuth is notified that a pet canary has been stolen from a nearby residence. The owners ask him to investigate. We now find him in the home questioning the servants, who happent to be big and husky. Their boldness make him uncomfortable. Finally the mistress comes in. He asks for the bird cage, which she is holding. He wants to put it through the third degree.

Next we find the sleuth and his assistant in the office of mystery, and after questioning the cage he cannot get a clue. He finally plans a "murderous" deed. He decides to get a bird like the one stolen, and get the reward. This is soon done, but when he nears the home he hears laughter. He peeks through the curtain and observes that the real bird has been found. The folks pull the curtain aside, and, seeing the cage behind his back, they ask for it.

One of the husky butlers takes the cage out of his hand. Seeing another bird in the cage the butler and the rest of the folks laugh at him as a detective and order him out of the house. The big butler is next seen escorting the great slumberville sleuth to the door. As he opens the door the sleuth steps out. He is about to speak to the butler, when the butler slams the door in his face, leaving him standing on the steps outside.

THE HALF WIT (Two Parts—July 11).—The cast: Ned (L. C. Shumway); Bud Adams (George Routh); Giovanni Mancuso (Melvin Mayo); Paretti (Robert Gray); Mrs. Aldrich (Dorothy Barnett); Theresa (Helen Eddy); Banker Aldrich (Jay Morely); Mother Brown (Adelaide Bronti). Written by Arthur Peterman. Directed by Captain Wilbert Melville.

Ned, a half-wit boy, is used as a tool by a gang of crooks led by Bud Adams. Ned is cruelly treated, and his one friend is Theresa, the daughter of Mancuso, an Italian wine merchant. The Mafia are after Mancuso, but he plans to escape their demands by selling out his business and leaving the city. Paretti, leader of the Mafia, swears that Mancuso will not escape him. Accordingly, he cuts an entrance to a cabinet in Mancuso's home from a room in the empty house next door. Theresa tells Ned that she and her father are going to leave, and Ned is disconsolate. In his despair he tells the whole story to the crooks at their hangout. Adams has an idea. He tells his companions that they can rob Mancuso without fear of discovery by disguising themselves as members of the Mafia. Mancuso sees the supposed members of the Mafia, and locks himself in the cabinet. The crooks beat on the door and Theresa starts for help. But Adams, trapping her in the dining room, tries to make her tell where the money is hidden.

Meanwhile, Ned has found out from the old hag at the hangout what the crooks are up to. Theresa is having a struggle with Adams when Ned Arrives. He shoots and kills Adams. The crooks at the door hear the shot, and are going to rush to the dining room, when Ned mimics Bud Adams' voice, and says that all is well. He is going to escape with Theresa, but she tells him they cannot leave her father at the mercy of the others. Ned has a plan. He slips on Adams' disguise and tells the crooks he knows where the money is. He leads them unsuspecting to the cellar, and Theresa slams the trap door on them. Theresa rushes for the police, and the crooks are captured, but not until they have knocked Ned unconscious in the cellar.

Theresa then goes to look for her father. She is grief-stricken to find that the Mafia have secured their revenge after all. Several days later Ned recovers from an operation performed on his brain. He is no longer a half-wit, and a wealthy banker offers to send him to college. But Ned is loyal to the only friend he had in the old days, and he gives up the promised career to marry Theresa.

EXPIATION (Three Parts—July 13).—The cast: Mrs. Hammond (Octavia Handworth); Mary Challoner (Octavia Handworth); Alfred Cagan (E. K. Lincoln); Jack Hammond (Clarence Jay Elmer); Elsie Gerard (Margaret Adair); John Challoner (Herbert Fortier); Butler (Wm. H. Turner). Written by Frances Greene. Directed by George Terwilliger.

Jack Hammond on his return from college decides to spend his life assisting his mother in philanthropic schemes. His mother tells Jack the story of her life. Her father, an Englishman of wealth, found it necessary because of his business to live in Turkey, where she, his only child, spent the greater part of her time. At the outbreak of the Crimean War, the village near their home is captured by the Russians and burned. A group of officers enter their home and imbibe freely of wine. The girl is assaulted by one of them whose name she does not know. But as she tells her son the story she shows him an old-fashioned seal ring she found the next day. Jack vows to kill the man who ruined his mother's life should they ever meet.

Later Jack begs his mother to go to America. They do. Alfred Gerard, a peace advocate of international reputation, lives in New York with his only child, Elsie. Gerard and Mrs. Hammond meet, as do Jack and Elsie. Jack falls in love with Elsie and admires her father for his ideals and exemplary life. Gerard, who is attracted by Mrs. Hammond, has built and endowed a home for fatheriess children and their mothers over the portal of which is inscribed

"Let him that is without sin, cast the first stone."

A fete is given to celebrate the opening of the home, and at that affair Jack and Elsie declare their love for each other. Jack goes to Gerard and learns that Elsie is not Gerard's daughter, but a waif. Gerard also tells a story of his earlier life, a repetition of the story told to Jack by his mother. Jack realizes that he is listening to the story of the man who blighted his mother's life—his own father. At the conclusion of his tale, Gerard tells Jack that the later years of his life have been devoted to expiation, and that he will never allow himself the solace of a woman's love. Jack finally goes to Gerard's home and thrusts under Gerard's eyes a seal ring. Gerard demands to know where Jack got the ring and Jack replies: "Twenty years ago my mother found this ring on the floor after you left her." Gerard staggers and cries, "You are my son." Which causes Jack to reply, "Yes, and I have sworn to kill you." Jack throws himself upon Gerard, who being the stronger, pushes Jack into a chair, saying, "You are right, my son, but I must not die by your hand." Gerard takes a revolver and leaves the house. Jack, who is watching, follows.

Mrs. Hammond and Elsie are driving in the park. Gerard sees a lonely bench, raises the revolver, but falters. Mrs. Hammond sees this and rushes for the bench as does Jack. Mrs. Hammond arrives first and jogs Gerard's elbow with the result that he only receives a scalp wound and lapses into unconsciousness. Mrs. Hammond takes his head in her arms and declares her love for him. Jack tells Gerard that this expiation must take the form of making his mother happy, as she loves him.

---

HANG ON COWBOY (July 15).—The cast: Jack (Romaine Fielding); Bess (June Daye); Black (Jack Lawton); Nan (Eleanor Mason); Tim (Arthur Minium): Written and directed by Romaine Fielding.

Black is a human vulture who preys on innocence, so when he selected a day to lure Bess to the city it was coincident that he should select the very day on which Jack, the cowboy, decided to go to town for a ring and marriage license for his sweetheart, Nan. Both men, intent on their particular errands, ordinarily should never have met at all had not coincidence stepped in and caused their paths to cross.

Jack, being of the free and open-hearted nature, attended strictly to his business and everybody's else with whom he came in contact. So as soon as it dawned on him that he had a duty to perform, as well as to get the ring and marriage license, right manfully did he go about it. He came through the danger zone with his life, leaving a trail of excitement behind him—a soda emporium that needed repair, a bootblack stand with Italians ranged in front frozen with fear, a police station astonished and its clerks terror-stricken, a fire department that to a man didn't know whether to laugh or be angry, a wrecked joint in the Tenderloin, the four men who had trapped Bess jailed in jig time, and the thoroughly repentant and frightened Bess clasped in her mother's arms.

Jack rode to the ranch with the ring, a somewhat mussed marriage license, a broad and battered grin, and the declaration that he had bad "a bully day."

---

OTTO'S VACATION (July 17).—The cast: Peck (Davy Don); Mrs. Peck (Eleanor Blanchard); Buck, a millionaire (George Clark); His daughter (Patsy De Forest). Written by V. L. Wormell. Directed by Edwin McKim.

Peck's wife grabs all the money he earns. When he gets two weeks vacation with pay he keeps the money and tells her he has been laid off. Her brotber offers Peck a job carrying the hod. She gives Peck a pair of old overalls and orders him to get to work. Peck makes a getaway, leaving a note saying he is going to have two weeks of enjoyment and suffer the consequences.

While sojourning at a summer resort Peck saves an heiress from serious injury. Through a misunderstanding his picture and the heiress' gets in the paper along with the announcement of their engagement. Peck's wife reads the account and gets on his trail, hotfoot. She discovers him in the company of the heiress and her father, but he escapes her. She goes to the chief of police for aid. He tells her that her case will be investigated after they get through with the important stuff.

Mrs. Peck reads a letter lying on the chief's desk offering a reward for a certain crook. The letter is accompanied by a photograph. She exchanges Peck's photograph for the crook's. This results in Peck's speedy arrest. When they are locking him up Mrs. Peck appears, claims him as her husband, and explains the exchange of photographs. She makes accusations against the heiress. While they are all arguing with the chief, Peck beats it. Mrs. Peck pursues and overtakes him. She proceeds to beat him up. Peck gives her a roll of bills he obtained from the heiress's father. This helps him out some.

---

THE ROUGH NECK (Three Parts—July 20).—The cast: Larry Grady (George Routh); John Calkins (B. W. Hopkins); Mary Calkins (Evelyn Page); Robert Calkins (Wedgewood Howell); Luis Fernandez (C. K. Van Auker); Mercedes Alvirez (Adelaide Bronti). Written by James Douglass. Directed by Melvin Mayo.

John Calkins is a mercenary manufacturer of firearms. He has a daughter, Mary, and a son, Bobbie, who has graduated from Annapolis. The son leaves home after his furlough to join his ship. Larry Grady is a rough neck. His former employer willed him a steam yacht on condition he use it to make his own living by chartering it. John Calkins hears through a secret channel that Luis Fernandez, a Santa Bana relovutionist, is in this country to buy arms. He meets Fernandez. Mary goes out for a row in the bay. Her boat is upset and she is rescued by Larry Grady. Her father and Fernandez have seen the accident and arrive just as Larry and Mary reach shore. The father rewards Larry with a $50 bill for saving Mary's life.

Later Mary writes him a note and thanks him and also asks him to call. He does so but arrives when the Calkins are entertaining. In his ill fitting clothes he does not appear favorable. In the meantime Calkins has landed an order from Fernandez for the firearms. On account of the embargo they decide to charter a yacht to carry the guns to Santa Bana. Accordingly they arrange terms with Larry, explaining to him that they want to use his yacht for a pleasure cruise, and telling him that Mary is going. Fernandez buys off Larry's crew and substitutes men whom he has fixed. Fernandez talks to Calkins, gets Calkins to invite Larry to go for a ride with him and Mary, and while they are gone, Fernandez with the bought crew smuggle aboard a number of rifles packed in mattresses. They start out.

Larry is now much in love with Mary and Fernandez begins to show jealousy. Larry finds the rifles in a broken mattress. Approaching Calkins and Fernandez he tells them that it is just such men as you that complicate neutrality. This yacht goes no further; we are going to turn around and go back. The yacht is near the town in the Republic of Santa Bana where the arms are to be landed. Fernandez gets his crew drunk; they rush at Larry. Mary attempts to stop them; Fernandez siezes her in his arms. A fight begins, and Larry is knocked overboard. Fernandez orders his bought crew to keep the yacht headed for the town. Larry manages to swim ashore. He sights an American warship in the bay and signals them that Americans in the city are in danger from the revolutionists. Fernandez, as the yacht nears the town, again attempts to force attentions on Mary. Calkins tries to prevent it, but is knocked unconscious and bound up. Fernandez brings Mary and her father, now really prisoners, ashore. He asks Mary to marry him, telling her if she says "no," he will kill her father. In the meantime the Americans go to the rescue and we see Larry comforting Mary as the picture ends.

---

AMERICANS AFTER ALL (July 22).—The cast: Hans Wurst (Richard Wangemann); Mrs. Wurst (Eleanor Blanchard); Marie Wurst (Frances Sansom); Jacob Kline (Clarence Jay Elmer); Peter Kline (Kempton Greene); Carl Muller (Ferdinand O'Beck); Mrs. Muller (Jessie Terry); Keller (James Cassady). Written by Frances M. Greene. Directed by Clay M. Greene.

Four members of a German street band in a small town are married to women of other nationalities and sympathies. Wurst to an Irishwoman; Kline to an Irishwoman; Muller's wife is French, and Keller's Italian. The younger member of the band, Peter Kline, is American born, of American sympathies, and the same is to be said of Marie Wurst, daughter of the manipulator of the bass drum.

The band repairs to a saloon for refreshment, just as the news comes through Casey, a quarrelsome Irishman, that Ireland has espoused the cause of England in the war of the Nations. Disputes lead to a fight in which the members of the band are thrown from the saloon, bruised and with instruments battered. Peter Kline, who is neutral, tells of the occurrence to his sweetheart, Marie, and they agree to avert the introduction into the family circles of discussions that may lead to family jafs. Mrs. Wurst goes to the other wives, inciting them to open riot and to the breaking of crockery. Mrs. Keller is averse to taking sides, but is carried from her house by the other women. On the street she encounters a meeting of Italians, who have just heard that Italy, too, has declared war. She becomes fired with patriotism, and hurries to rescue her child from the care of its German father.

Again it is too late, for Peter and Marie have rescued Keller and the baby from imprisonment in his own home, and gathering the other members of the band, she finds for them a rendezvous on a freight wharf, where she provides them with temporary lodgings in boxes and barrels, away from their irate wives. When night comes the four wives come to the conclusion that, base as these German husbands are, they are after all husbands, and appeal to the police to assist them in finding them. The police, fearful that they are German spies, orders them under arrest.

Matters arrive at a crisis when Marie and Peter solve the problem: the four Germans shall at once become American citizens, and the now enthusiastic Casey shall show them the way to naturalization. The band with Marie, Peter, and Casey repair to the city hall, the first papers are taken out and the four disconsolate wives find their husbands as they are descending the city hall steps playing The Star Spangled Banner, and a table is formed with the wives reunited to their spouses, and little Marie, as the Goddess of Liberty, in the center of the group, supported by her truly German-American lover.

---

VIM.

SPAGHETTI (July 13).—The cast: Plump (Babe Hardy); Runt (Billy Ruge); Cashier (Ray Godfrey); Italian Customer (Bert Tracy); Chef (Harry Burns).

Between attending to business calls and endeavoring to keep his assistants from making love to his pretty cashier, Runt has his hands full. To mend matters, his chef spoils the meal of a regular customer and he, being a typical son of Sunny Italy, shows his disapproval by trying to divert the circulation of the culinary artist's blood. In despair, Runt employs Plump as head chef. The latter's gifts are more in the line of lovemaking than in preparing the menu, and Runt discovers to his horror that he has only added another nuisance to his establishment.

Things go from bad to worse. The Italian gentleman calls for another meal and Plump's cooking sends him into a couple of fits, in the course of which he makes good his threat and cleans up the whole place. Spaghetti files through the air. Plump runs away with the cashier and poor Runt, trying to quell the disturbance, is finally buried under volley after volley of the stringy mixture.

---

THE GREAT SAFE TANGLE (July 14).—The cast: Pokes (Robt. Burns); Jabbs (Walter Stull); Ima Shark (Harry Naughton); His Stenographer (Ethel Burton); Ima Lark (Frank Hanson); Clerk (Robin Williamson).

When a man is anxiously awaiting the arrival of a safe at his office, it is a calamity that the safe should have been entrusted to the tender mercies of Pokes and Jabbs for safe delivery. The only thing that Pokes and Jabbs know or cared about was that they were ordered to deliver one safe and return with another one. Lark, the lawyer, who had ordered the new safe had accepted from his friend Shark some valuable papers, which Robin, a clerk in Shark's office, but in reality the spy of a foreign government, was anxious to obtain.

After an arduous journey Pokes and Jabbs arrive at the office building where despite the protests of Lark that it was he and not Shark that had ordered the new safe, the terrible truckmen deliver the safe in Shark's office. Then they forcibly take from Lark's office his own safe in which Robin disguised as a girl had concealed himself. On their way back to the store with Lark's safe, Pokes and Jabbs get stuck fast on the railroad tracks in front of an oncoming express. With a crash and thud the train hurls them high in the air but with the good luck that always accompanies the pair they fall through the roof of the office building and back into Lark's office, safe, Robin and all.

---

AUNT BILL (July 20).—The cast: Plump (Babe Hardy); Runt (Billy Ruge); Mrs. Plump (Florence McLoughlin); Mrs. Runt (Ray Godfrey); Aunt (Bert Tracey); Bogus Aunt (Billie Bletcher).

The families, Plump and Runt, although in fairly good circumstances, live a little beyond their means, so that the arrival of a letter from their wives' unknown and wealthy aunt is the cause of general rejoicing.

Brimming over with anticipation of the good things to come, Plump confides in his club friends and they plan this joke: that one of them shall dress up and pose as the aunt. The plot is overheard by Plump's best pal and he informs Plump of the pending deception. Unfortunately, the real aunt appears earlier than expected, and our heroes, thinking that she is the impersonator lead her the life of a dog—much to the old lady's amazement.

At last, driven wild by her relatives' unexplainable conduct, Aunty gathers her clothes and steals out in time to meet the bogus one, who promptly retreats. Explanations ensue, but to no avail, for the now-thoroughly disgusted lady tears up the $10,000 check and departs, leaving her would-be heirs frozen with disappointment.

HELP! HELP! (July 21).—The cast: Pokes (Robt. Burns); Jabbs (Walter Stull); Girl (Ethel Burton); Her Sweetheart (Robin Williamson); Member Strong Arm Club (Harry Naughton).

Because Robin happened to be a much smaller man and not fond of rough play, Pokes was able to frighten him away from Ethel's side. This incident makes Pokes a hero in the eyes of Ethel, who admires manly men. Pokes is getting away with a great amount of talk concerning his ability as a fighter until Jabbs strolls along. Then it is all over with Pokes, who is forced to witness Jabbs coolly walk home with Ethel while he sits disconsolate in the park.

Thirsting for revenge, he secures the services of a professional strong arm agency to mete out to Jabbs a well-deserved beating, but not knowing Jabbs' name merely tells the agent to bruise the man with the mustache sitting on Ethel's porch. Little does Pokes realize that Robin has also hired the agency to send Norton one of the bruisers to beat up Pokes, also leaving the same instructions as to the man with the mustache. Jabbs is really another member of the Strong Arm Club and he is sent out on the second order, little knowing that he is really supposed to be out looking for himself.

When Norton and Jabbs reach Ethel's house they find only Pokes, and as he has a mustache they go after him with a vengeance. But as even the worm will sometimes turn, so Pokes turns and routs both of the thugs only to find that after all his strenuous fighting Ethel thinks him too rough and gives her affections to gentle-hearted Robin.

VIM FEATURE COMEDY.

